R—Scottdale, Pa. B—Scottdale, Pa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Kennedy, Ray R. (2158908) Near Ribeauville, France, Oct. 18– 19, 1918. R—Estherville, Iowa. B—De Kalb, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

KENNER, ALBERT W. Near Soissons, France, July 22, 1918. R—Washington, D. C. B—Holyoke, Mass. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

B-Canada. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Kenny, Frank H., Jr. (1211265) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Searsdale, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

KENNY, THOMAS (1204791)... Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 17. 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland.

G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

KENOYER, JOHN (1448399)
Near Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918.
R—Hutchinson, Kans.
B—Medora, Kans.
G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Kent, Walter J. (1222934).... Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 17, 1918

R-Whitestone, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Private, Company E, 6th Engineers, 3d Division.

About 2.30 a. m. he was on guard in a corral when a shell landed, wounding some of the men and killing several animals. He immediately awakened the occupants of the camp and returned to his post, finding that another shell had struck, wounding several more men and killing more horses. He went to a wagon where a sick soldier lay helpless and succeeded in carrying him and leading a hadly wounded soldier away from the spot. While thus engaged a third shell struck, wounding one man and violently throwing all three men to the ground. Private Kennedy arose and carried the helpless soldier to a safe dugout, where he was given first aid. He then returned to the corral to assist other wounded. corral to assist other wounded.

Corporal, Company G, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
When his platoon commander was wounded he reorganized the platoon while under severe fire, placing his men so as best to repel the enemy's counterattack. He inspired his men by his own personal bravery. Wounded and sent to a hospital he returned to the front line after a week's treatment, being severely wounded while leading his men in an attack.

Private, Company C, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Armed with only his rifle and bayonet, Private Kennedy alone captured a machine gun after killing the entire crew. He then turned his captured gun on the enemy, causing the retreat of an entire platoon.

Captain, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.

Learning that 2 of his men were lying wounded in an exposed position in front of our lines, he went forward alone, facing heavy fire, to their rescue. After carrying 1 of the wounded men hack to our lines, he was confronted by a German upon his return. Picking up the rifle of the wounded man he had come to rescue, he shot the German, and then completed his mission of resente.

Private, Company C, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

On the night of Oct. 18-19, when all communication had been temporarily lost with the unit on the left of his regiment, he volunteered to attempt the establishment of liaison, fully aware of the danger necessarily incurred. While attempting to cross a heavily shelled area to reach the flank regiment he received a wound which resulted in the loss of a leg.

Major, Medical Corps, attached to 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Learning that his regimental commander had been mortally wounded near Soissons, France, July 22, 1918, he voluntarily went through machine-gun fire beyond the front lines in the hope of helping him. Finding his colonel dead, he recovered the body, in spite of the danger to which such action subjected him.

First lieutenant, pilot, 91st Aero Squadron, Air Service.

This officer gave proof of his bravery and devotion to duty when he was attacked by a superior number of aircraft. He accepted combat, destroyed 1 plane, and drove the others off. Notwithstanding that the enemy returned and attacked again in strong numbers, he continued his mission and enabled his observer to secure information of great military value.

Private, first class, Company H, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
When his commanding officer fell wounded he made his way through intense machine-gun fire to his first sergeant and notified him that he should assume command of the company. He then continued with the company until the command of the company. He then continued with the should assume command of the company. He then continued with the company until the advance was checked and the first sergeant severely wounded, when he made his way in search of the next in command. Failing to find him, he organized a squad of slightly wounded men and, with an automatic rifle and ammunition which he salvaged, mopped up a section of the enemy trench, and then rejoined his company in its continued advance.

Sergeant, Company H, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
While patrolling alone in advance of the line, he discovered a German officer directing a detachment in establishing machine-gun posts. He immediately opened fire, killing 1 and forcing the others to surrender. Later, reinforced by the remainder of his squad, Sergeant Kenny captured 34 of the enemy, including 7 officers. including 7 officers.

Private, Company E, 137th Infantry, 35th Division. Having previously made several trips to the rear with wounded comrades under heavy shellfire, Private Kenoyer, with another litter bearer, after making three attempts, succeeded in reaching their battalion commander, who lay wounded under heavy machine-gun fire, and carried him back to safety.

Private, first class, sanitary detachment, 105th Infantry, 27th Division. Private, first class, santary detachment, 195th Inlantry, 27th Division. With splendid courage and devotion to duty and without thought for his own safety, he cared for 40 wounded men of his command, at all times exposed to terrific machine-gun and high-explosive shell fire. He continued his aid until he himself was severely wounded while attempting to obtain stretchers with which to move the more serious cases. His remarkable courage and devotion to his comrades inspired every man of his command. KEPNER, WILLIAM E. Near Cunel, France, Oct. 5–6, 1918. R—Kekomo, Ind. B—Peru, Ind. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Detroit, Mich. B—Port Huron, Mich. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

KERR, MARK E. (10384)

Near Fleville and St. Juvin, France,
Oct. 11-13, 1918.

R—Fellows, Calif.
B—Ireland. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Salt Creek, Wyo. B—Denver, Colo. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

*KESKE, CLARENCE E. (275379)

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Beaver Dam, Wis.

B—Oak Grove, Wis.

G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

*Kessler, Edward M. (2176452).... Near Flirey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Cheney, Kans. B—Maize, Kans. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Kessler, Henry O. (1708151) Near Ville-Savoye, France, Aug. 23, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

KETCHEM, HAROLD (2185885)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R→Alexandria, S. Dak. B—Elnora, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*KIAH, MARTIN J. (1551116)Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Bay City, Mich. B—Bay City, Mich. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, 306th Infantry, 77th Division. He displayed exceptional qualities of leadership and gallantry in action while leading his company against a counterattack of the enemy in superior numbers. Later, although 3 times wounded, he remained with his command.

Captain, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
While in command of a battalion, Captaiu Kepner personally led I company of his command in an attack on a woods occupied by a company of German machine gunners. He was the first man to enter the woods, and later, when part of the attacking company was held up by flanking machine-gun fire, be, with a patrol of 3 men, encircled this machine gun, and after a hard hand-te-hand fight, put the gun out of action.

Private, Company F, 114th Infantry, 29th Division. While on guard duty in the front line, Private Kerr saw 4 of the enemy approaching through the thick fog. Without hesitation, he gave the alarm and charged them, capturing the entire number after determined resistance.

Private, first class, section No. 647, Ambulance Service.
After 36 hours of continuous firing over heavily shelled roads, he, upon his own initiative, was the first to establish liaison with an advanced dressing station which had been isolated by the explosion of a tank trap. To do this he lifted his car across the mine crater with the aid of some infantrymen, and for 8 hours thereafter drove his ambulance through a heavy bombardment of high-explosive and gas shells between the mine crater and the dressing station. During this period his car was pierced repeatedly by shell fragments, 2 of his patients receiving additional wounds. 2 days later, when the Infantry had made a further advance, his car was again the first to establish liaison with an advanced dressing station on the outskirts of St. Juvin.

Corporal, Company M, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
He volunteered to carry a severely wounded soldier to a dressing station across a bridge subjected to intense enemy fire. With 3 other soldiers he started across the bridge carrying the wounded man. 1 stretcher bearer was killed and another wounded, but Corporal Kerr continued with the wounded soldier and after reaching the dressing station returned and rescued the stretcher bearer wounded on the bridge.

Sergeant, first class, Company F, 316th Engineers, 91st Division. He volunteered to accompany an officer and 3 other soldiers on a reconnaissance patrol of the city of Audenarde. Entering under heavy shell fire, the party reconnoitered the city for 7 hours while it was still being patrolled by the enemy, and advanced 2 kilometers in front of our own outposts and beyond those of the enemy.

Private, Company M, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
When his battalion was held up and suffering heavy losses from flanking fire of 4 enemy machine-gun nests, Private Keske volunteered and advanced to a position 250 yards ahead of the line and helped to establish a position neutralizing the enemy fire, which enabled the battalion to re-form. He remained in this advanced position, inspiring by his courageous example his comrades to maintain the position, although under terrific machine-gun fire from 3 sides and hand grenades, until he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles Keske.

Corporal, Company F, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
When his platoon was held up by heavy machine-gun fire in front of the Boisde-Mort Mare, Corporal Kessler advanced with his squad and succeeded in putting the machine guns out of action without losing a man. Farther on in the woods 2 more machine guns were encountered, firing from a dugout. This soldier went out alone and silenced the guns with hand grenades, thereby facilitating the advance of the entire company.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Rev. C. M. Kessler.

severely wounded while engaged in the undertaking.

Private, Company C, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. He was the first to respond to a call for volunteers to rescue a wounded soldier who had fallen severely wounded while on a patrol. Crawling forward through intense machine-gun and artillery fire, he assisted in the rescue, being

Private, Machine Gun Company, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Private Ketchem, a runner, carried many messages under heavy fire. At one time when his platoon was held up by machine-gun fire he, with another soldier, refused to take cover, but delivered effective rifle fire until the machine gun was silenced, thereby enabling his platoon to continue its advance.

Corporal, Company C, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
When volunteers were called for his by company commander, Corporal Kiah volunteered and rescued wounded comrades from a barrage. Although wounded in the performance of these heroic deeds, he continued until killed by shell fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George Kiah.

Kieler, John T.
Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France,
Oct. 3-4, 1918.
R-Chestertown, Md.
B-Chestertown, Md.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

KIDD, CHARLES M. (1786710) __ Rear Verdun, France, Nov. 10, 1918.
R—New Freedom, Pa.
B—Baltimore County, Md.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Denver, Col. B—Creston, Iowa. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

*Kidder, Hugh P..... Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 2-3, R-Minneapolis, Minn. B-Waukon, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Kielpinski, Vincent P. (274795)..... Near Juvigny, France, Aug. 31, 1918. R.—Milwankee, Wis. B.—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Portland, Oreg. R—Fort Myer, Va.
G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.
Medal of honor and distinguishedservice medal also awarded.

BY, ROBERT E. L. (40436).

Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 14,
1918. R—Laurel Bloomery, Tenn. B—Ashe County, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

10, 1918.

R—Waucoma, Iowa.

B—Waucoma, Iowa.

G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

KILFOYLE, FRANK J. (1458113)_ ROLE, FRANK J. (1403115)
At Varennes, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—St. Joseph, Mo.
B—St. Joseph, Mo.
G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Kilmer, Everett A. (2662358)...... Near Charpentry, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Seneca, Ill. B—Verona, Ill. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

First lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Although severely gassed by a gas shell which burst in the trench beside him Lieutenant Kibler retained command of his company and led it forward in a difficult night attack, penetrating the enemy's line to a depth of 2 kilometers. Throughout the night he and his men were subjected to a deadly cross fir from enemy machine guns and at daybreak a strong counterattack was launched against him. Heroically leading a small force against the flank of the attacking party, Lieutenant Kibler succeeded in routing a greatly superior force. He courageously continued to lead his men until so weakened by the effects of the gas that he lost consciousness.

Corporal, Company E, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.
While his company was being held up by machine-gun fire, Corporal Kiddled his squad, in spite of a severe leg wound, against the machine gun, killing the gunner and clearing the way for the advance of his company.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.

Private Kidd displayed exceptional bravery in carrying his machine gun through heavy fire ahead of the Infantry front line to a point only 30 yards from 6 enemy machine guns which defended a hill. Despite the intense grenade and machine-gun fire which was directed at him, he maintained such effective fire that the hostile guns were put out of action and the infantry advanced thereupen received. advance thereupon resumed.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
On the morning of Oct. 2 he led a small patrol into enemy trenches and captured
2 strong machine-gun positions which were menacing his company. On Oct. 3 he, with his platoon, attacked and captured 4 machine-gun nests and many prisoners, after which he went to the aid of 2 of his wounded men. While attempting to better his position in the face of heavy machine-gun and artillery fire he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Kate Kidder.

Sergeant, Company K, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
When his company had become disorganized and his company commander gassed, Sergeant Kielpinski carried orders under intense fire and assisted in reorganizing the company. Though he was wounded next day and ordered to the hospital he returned from the dressing station to his company and continued in eaties. continued in action.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, 89th Division.
As Chief of Staff, he exposed himself to artillery and machine-gun fire during the advance of his division, exercising cool judgment and strong determination in reorganizing the lines and getting troops forward to the objective.

Private, first class, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Private Kilby volunteered to go with his company commander to reconnoiter a German trench before a contemplated advance. They encountered a German German trench before a contemplated advance. They encountered a German officer with 7 men in the trench. Private Kilby successfully cleaned the trench and saved his captain's life by his coolness and exceptional courage.

Private, first class, Company D, 130th Infantry, 33d Division.

Private Kilcher voluntarily returned through the enemy's barrage after a raid to rescue another soldier who had been wounded, and was himself wounded as a result of his self-sacrificing effort.

Sergeant, Company M, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.
Under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire Sergeant Kilfoyle led an automatic rifle squad into Varennes and captured an enemy machine-gun nest, which bad been inflicting heavy casualties on our forces, killing or wounding all the members of the crew, including a German major. Two days later he again displayed skillful leadership in organizing his platoon against an enemy counterattack, which was successfully repulsed.

Private, Company M. 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He voluntarily accompanied 3 other soldiers and went forward under heavy enemy fire and rescued a wounded comrade who had fallen in advance of our Private, first class, Company C, 21st Machine Gun Battalion, 7th Division. He acted as a runner during offensive operations and under severest barrages and carried important messages to and from the front lines.

First sergeant, Company K, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.
He led a patrol of 5 men to flank a machine-gun nest, but heavy machine-gun fire caused the loss of the other members of the patrol. He picked up the automatic rifle of a fallen comrade and by his effective and severe fire rendered valuable aid in breaking up a local counterattack which was forming.

KILROY, LAWRENCE B, (2019020)

Near Kadish, Russia, Sept. 27-28, 1918.

R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

KIMBALL, ROY EDMUND (198999) _____At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Somerville, Mass. B—Deering, Me. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Kimball, Walter G..... Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12,

R-New York, N. Y. B-Canton, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*KIMMELL, HARRY L. South of Soissons, France, July 19,

1918. R-Washington, D. C. B-Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

KINCAID, JAMES LESLIE ... Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 27,

1918. R—Syracuse, N. Y. B—Syracuse, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

KINDLEY, FIELD E. Near Bourlon Wood, France, Sept.

24, 1918. R—Coffeyville, Kans. B—Pea Ridge, Ark. G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1919.

KING, DELANCEY_ Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Buffalo, N. Y. B-Lockport, N. Y. G. O. No 15, W. D., 1919.

KING, EDWARD E. (44351)_ Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Dayton, Ohio. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

KING, EDWARD L ... Near Imus, Cavite Province, P. I., Oct. 6, 1899.

R—Bridgewater, Mass.

B—Bridgewater, Mass.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service medal also

awarded.

Private, 337th Ambulance Company, attached to medical detachment, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia).

Acting as stretcher bearer to 2 companies of Infantry in action against the Bolsheviks, Private Kilroy, for 2 days and nights made his way through swamps and forcests to administer first aid and earry wounded to the dressing station. His work at all times was accomplished under sweeping machinegun and intense artillery fire, making it necessary for him to crawl on his hands and knees for long distances.

Private, first class, 101st Field Signal Battalion, 26th Division.

Private Kimball displayed remarkable coolness and courage under violent bombardment when he voluntarily repaired telephone lines and rendered great assistance in maintaining communication. Although wounded, he continued his work until ordered evacuated by his commanding officer.

First lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
While advancing in the first wave of the advance of Sept. 12, he was forced to deploy his platoon over a wide sector in thickly wooded territory in order to maintain contact and liaison with the unit on the flank. The crews of several machine-gun nests were routed, and in one instance he captured a machine-gun crew assisted by only two of his men.

Captain, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
When his company was halted by machine-gun fire from the front, Captain Kimmell led a platoon through heavy machine-gun fire and captured the enemy position, forcing its defenders to surrender. His gallantry enabled enemy position, forcing its defenders to sur the entire battalion to continue the advance.

Oak-leaf cluster.

Captain Kimmell was awarded an oak-leaf cluster for the following act of extraordinary heroism north of Fleville, France, Oct. 9, 1918: He personally led 2 platoons of his company against a strongly held enemy position. He fell mortally wounded while leading this advance, but other members of his command, inspired by his gallantry, successfully assaulted the enemy position.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Commander Harry L. Kimmell, U. S. Navy.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department. Because of a shortage of officers and after additional officers had been requested. ceause of a shortage of orders and after additional officers had been requested, Colonel Kincaid volunteered to command one of the battalions of the 106th Infantry. He commanded the battalion throughout the engagement of Sept. 27, 1918, with great courage and forcefulness and without regard to his personal safety, thereby setting a splendid example to all ranks.

First lieutenant, 148th Aero Squadron, Air Service. He attacked a formation of 7 hostile planes (type, Fokker) and sent 1 crashing to the ground.

Oak-leaf cluster.

Oak-lear chitser.

A bronze oak leaf is awarded to Lieutenant Kindley for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Marcoing, France, Sept. 27, 1918: Flying at a low altitude, this officer hombed the railway at Marcoing and drove down an enemy balloon. He then attacked German troops at a low altitude and silenced a hostile machine gun, after which he shot down in flames an enemy plane (type, Halberstadt) which had attacked him. He has so far destroyed 7½ enemy aircraft and driven down 3 out of control.

First lieutenant, 108th Infantry, 27th Division

He was wounded early in the engagement, but continued to lead his men until he received a second wound. His gallantry under shell and machine-gun fire and his disregard for his own safety furnished a splendid example to all ranks.

First sergeant, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Assuming command of his company after the company commander had been wounded, Sergeant King reinforced it with remnants of other units, leading the entire command through perilous machine-gun and artillery fire to his objective. After having consolidated his position, he led a volunteer patrol against several machine-gun nests which were harassing the position. Under violent fire from these guns he cleaned out the troublesome nests, with small leavest to his forces. losses to his forces.

Captain, 11th Cavalry, U. S. Army.
While serving as captain, 11th U. S. Cavalry, his great personal bravery in disarming a hostile Filipino saved the life of a brother officer.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 149th Fleld Artillery, 42d Division. Placed in charge of a telephone detail, he refused to be evacuated when wounded by a splinter from a shell which killed 5 of his men and wounded 12 others. He remained on duty until the regiment left the line, inspiring his men by his example of fortitude.

King, George (42508)

Near the Argonne Forest, France,
Oct. 9, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—Scotland.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*KING, HAROLD J Near Fismes, France, Aug. 4, 1918. R—Manistee, Mich. B—Manistee, Mich. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

King, Henry M. (1241143) At Apremont, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Greensburg, Pa. B—Greensburg, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

King, James Norman Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 16, 1918. R-Lima, Ohio. B-Fairgrove, Mich. G. O. No. 127, W. D., 1918.

King, James Pryn Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 10, R—Hillsboro, Ill. B—Dixon, Mo. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

*King, Jesse L. (2288851)... Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Laramie, Wyo. B—Blencoe, Iowa. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

KING, OGDEN DOREMUS....

Near the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 9-10, 1918. R—Albemarle, N. C. B—Albemarle, N. C. G. O. No. 137, W. D., 1918.

King, Richard E. (2187488)

Near Marimbois Farm, France,
Nov. 4, 1918. R—Tucson, Ariz. B—Perry, Okla. G. O. No. 37, W D., 1919.

KINGSBURY, CARL O....

On the morning of Apr. 13, 1918. R—New Castle, Pa. B—Greenville, Pa. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

KINNEER, ISAAC G. (105248)______ South of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R-Mount Pleasant, Iowa. B-Veedersburg, Iud. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He was a member of a reconneitering patrol which encountered heavy fire from hostile machine guns. Private King advanced alone and killed the gunners, enabling his patrol to complete its mission.

First lieutenant, 126th Infantry, 32d Division. Advancing in the face of terrific machine-gun fire, Lieutenant King rescued a wounded man of his platoon, the exploit being accomplished in broad day-light. After carrying the man 150 yards, in full view of the enemy, he stopped at request made by the dying man. During the advance from the Ourcq to the Vesle he demonstrated most admirable courage and fearlessness. While accompanying a reconnaissance patrol on the night of Oct. 10 he was killed by sniper fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Dr. James A. King.

Sergeant, Company I, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.
During a determined enemy counterattack, Sergeant King, volunteered with another soldier to locate the source of enemy fire which was inflicting heavy casualties on his company. Going forward under fire and discovering 7 of the enemy, they opened fire, killing 2, wounding 2, and capturing a machine gun. Their courageous feat materially aided his platoon to continue the advance.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.
He gave proof of unhesitating devotion and energy far beyond all call of his duty as battalion chaplain. He was continually on the outpost lines searching for and burying the dead and circulating among the men in the trenches. During the entire period the line was subjected to extremely heavy shelling from the enemy, yet he allowed nothing to interfere with his having burial services for the dead that were brought to the burial ground located within the shelled area. He was sent to the rear, but he prevailed upon the surgeon to allow him to return to the front and continue his work.

First lieutenant, 122d Machine Gun Battalion, 33d Division. While in command of a machine-gun platoon attached to the 131st Infantry, Lieutenant King, by personal reconnaissance established machine-gun and automatic-rifle outposts. During a threatened counterattack he exposed himself to point-blank fire and walked from outpost to outpost reassuring his Corporal, Company D, 361st Infantry, 91st Division. Corporal King, together with 2 other soldiers, captured 3 enemy machine guns and 26 prisoners. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Olive Jacob.

Assistant surgeon, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

On 2 successive days the regimental aid station in which he was working was struck by heavy shells and in each case demolished. 10 men were killed and a number of wounded were badly hurt by falling timbers and stone. Under these harassing conditions this officer continued without cessation his treatment of the wounded, assisting in their evacuation and setting an inspiring example of devotion and courage to the officers and men serving under him.

Private, Headquarters Company, 340th Field Artillery, 89th Division. Assisting an officer in establishing communication with the advancing Infantry, Private King reached Marimbois Farm, where he found the place occupied by the enemy. Armed with hand grenades, he advanced on a dugout, where he routed out 17 of the enemy, bringing them back to our lines in the midst of severe shell and machine-gun fire.

Hospital apprentice, first class, U. S. Navy, attached to Headquarters 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He displayed commendable action in the immediate care and attention incident to the evacuation of more than 100 casualtics following the gas-shell bombardment on the morning of Apr. 13, 1918, after he himself had been subjected to gas. He worked incessantly, disregarding his own symptoms, until he had to be evacuated

Corporal, Company D, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
When a German 77-millimeter gun, supported by numerous machine guns, broke the tank attack and held up the Infantry advance, Corporal Kinkade, with 2 scouts, made an encircling movement amid heavy fire and put the gun out of action, capturing the entire crew. They cleaned out the enemy dugouts in the vicinity and returned with 40 prisoners, including an officer.

Supply sergeant, Company A, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. Sergeant Kinneer took command of his platoon after his platoon leader had been wounded, and led one of his sections through our own barrage in order to take up a position where he could fire upon two 77-millimeter fieldpieces which were firing point blank on our troops. The fire of his gun was so effective that the guns were captured and the crews were forced to surrender *KINNEY, CLAIR A. Near Doulcon, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Endicott, Wash. B—Endicott, Wash. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

KINNEY, MARTIN H. (2237426) __. Near Pont-a-Mousson,
Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Fort Worth, Tex.
B—Fort Worth, Tex.
G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918. France,

Kinsley, Wilbert E.

East of Cunel, Verdun Sector,
France, Oct. 7, 1918.
R.—Elmira, N. Y.
B.—Somerville, Mass.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Kirk, Edgar-Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Princeton, Ind. B—Kirksville, Ind. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

KIRK, HENRY S. (1203467) ___ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, R—New York, N. Y. B—Dorset, Vt. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

KIRK, RICHARD M. (2257820)

At Audenarde, Belgium, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Seattle, Wash. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

KIRKPATRICK, CLIFFORD (10395) At Semmerance, France, Oct. 13-15, R—North Leominster, Mass. B—Fitchburg, Mass. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

KIRSCHENBAUM, EDWARD (550986) _ Near Moulins, France, July 15, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

KJELLBERG, JOHN... Near Trugny, France, July 23, 1918. R.—New York, N. Y. B—Sweden. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 49th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
With a patrol of six other machines, Lieutenant Kinney attacked 17 enemy planes (type Fokker). Diving into the midst of the enemy formation, he fired into one of the German planes and pursued it until it crashed to the ground, though he was wounded by another Fokker which attacked him from the rear. After maneuvering to escape his pursuer, he immediately attacked another enemy plane directly in front of him and forced it to the ground. In so doing he was fired upon from behind by another Fokker, several bullets striking him in the body and another setting fire to his gas tank. He succeeded in making a safe landing. This gallant officer has since died of his wounds. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. M. P. Kinney.

Sergeant, Company E, 315th Engineers, 90th Division.
After receiving orders to withdraw from position, he saw an officer lying wounded and helpless about 15 yards in advance of the line. With utter disregard for his own safety he crawled through heavy enemy fire from the front and flanks to the aid of the officer and dragged him back about 50 yards to the shelter of a small mound, where he dressed the officer's wound, and then carried him through the barrage to a first-aid station.

Second lieutenant, pilot, 3d Observation Group, Air Service.
While staking the advanced lines of the 80th Division he was attacked by 8 enemy machines (Fokker type), which dived out of a near-by cloud bank. Although attacked simultaneously by the enemy planes, he placed his airplane in such a position that his observer, Second Lieut. William O. Lowe, U. S. Marine Corps, was able to shoot down and crash I enemy plane and disable a second so badly that it was forced to land a few killometers inside the German lines. Later, on the same mission, he was again attacked by a patrol of 5 enemy scout machines, and in a running fight he drove these off and successfully completed his mission. and successfully completed his mission.

Second lieutenant, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. At a critical period in the attack south of Soissons when the Infantry was held up by a German battery, he pushed forward with one of his machine guns in the face of direct machine gun and artillery fire and by cool and courageous direction of this gun put the battery out of action, thereby causing its capture and permitting the Infantry to advance.

Sergeant, Company B, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line Sergeant Kirk, with an officer and 2 other sergeants, occupied an outpost position in advance of the line which was attacked by a superior force of the enemy. Sergeant Kirk assisted in repulsing this attack and in killing 10 Germans, capturing 5, and driving off the others. The bravery and determination displayed by this group was an inspiration to all who witnessed it.

Sergeant, Company H, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

Ie was a member of a patrol sent out to reconnoiter the town of Audenarde.

This patrol discovered several enemy machine-gun suiper posts, located in buildings, which were enflading the streets of the town. Taking another soldier with him and dodging from building to building, he entered one of these houses and captured 2 machine gunners.

Private, first class, Section No. 647, Ambulance Service.
While he was loading his ambulance at an advanced dressing station he was struck in the back by a shell fragment and rendered unconscious. Upon recovering he drove his car through heavy shellfire back to the field hospital and made repeated trips until he was relieved. Two days later, arriving at a point on the road near an advanced post, he saw a shell strike in the middle of an infantry detachment moving up to the line. He stopped his car and, despite continuous and intense shelling, loaded on 3 wounded soldiers, carried them to the nearest aid station, returned, and continued the work of evacuation until relieved.

Private, Company F, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Private Kirschenbaum carried numerous messages through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire from the front-line companies to battalion headquarters. Due to his efforts communications were maintained during the period when his organization was successfully defending its position against powerful enemy attack. On one of his trips he captured 3 enemy prisoners, who had infiltrated through our lines.

Privata, Company B, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division.

After several runners had been killed in the attempt, Sergeant Kite volunteered and delivered an important message under a hail of fire.

Second lieutenaut, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

After being wounded he refused to be evacuated, but gallantly continued in command of his platoon, firing the machine gun himself when the crew was depleted until he was wounded a second time.

KJOSE, CLARENCE OLANDO (2186117) ... At Claire-Chenes Woods, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Akron, Iowa. B—Sioux City, Iowa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—St. Paul, Minn. B—De Sota, Minn. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

KLAPETZKY, JOSEPH W. (1789740) _____ Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Syracuse, N. Y. B—Syracuse, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Reno, Nev. B—Princeton, Wis. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

*Kleiber, Walter J. (107175) ______ Near Greves Farm, France, July 14, 1918.

R—Whiting, Ind. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

KLEIN, IRVING (1707558). Near Binarville, France, Sept. 29, 1918, and Charlevaux, France, Oct. 3-7, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Hungary.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Klick, Albert W. (68563) Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Fairfield, Me.

B—Germany. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

KLIER, GEORGE J. (1830246) Near Verdun, Frauce, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

KLINE, DAVID (2180319) .....

Near Remonville and Barricourt, France, Nov. 1-2, 1918.

R—Omaha, Nebr.

B—Omaha, Nebr.

G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Northeast of Nantillois, Oct. 12, 1918. France. R—Bloomington, Md. B—Martinsburg, W. Va. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

*Kline, Robert J. (279460). Near Gesnes, northwest of Verdun, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Saranac, Mich. B—Lowell, Mich. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1919.

KLING, ISAIAH MILLER (542647). Near Cunel, France, Oct. 20, 1918. R—Gettysburg, Pa. B—Byerstown, Pa. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
Advancing with 2 squads in front of the company to which he was attached, after being twice stopped by enflading machine-gun fire and losing half his detachment, Corporal Kjose continued to lead his squad through the woods, and put out of action an enemy machine gun which had been holding up the advance of the Infantry. This soldier had been wounded twice within the 3 preceding days, but continued in action, refusing to be evacuated.

Private, Company F, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. Private Klanska, at great personal risk, voluntarily left his shelter and went 100 yards into an open field swept by heavy machine-gun fire and brought in a wounded man on his back Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry J. Klanska.

Corporal, 314th Ambulance Company, 304th Sanitary Train, 79th Division. He went through heavy shellfire into a burning dressing station which he knew contained a large quantity of ammunition, in order to rescue 2 wounded German prisoners. He succeeded in carrying them to safety.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 362d Infantry, 91st Division. Private Klaviter, a runner and signalman, while carrying a message to the attacking battalion, encountered an enemy machine-gun nest. Single-handed he killed 2 of the German machine gunners and captured 6 others, together with their gun, ammunition, and belts. The prisoners were then turned over to some other soldiers and forced to carry a wounded officer to the rear, while Private Klaviter continued on his mission.

Private, Battery E, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division. He was acting as telephone operator at a gun in a detached position when all the crew became essualties. With another soldier he courageously continued the erew became easualties. With another soldier he courageously continued to fire the piece under the heaviest bombardment until it was struck by a shell and he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Reinholdt T. Kleiber.

Corporal, Company A, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

On Sept. 29, after locating the position of 3 enemy machine guns, he succeeded in silencing 1, took up a position against the other 2 under intense shellfire, and sent back information to his company commander which made it possible to clean out the entire nest. On Oct. 3, although wounded seriously, he continued to assist his men in repulsing the attack of an enemy patrol.

Sergeant, Company H, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

With the aid of 6 conrades, Sergeant Klick attacked and put out of action a machine gun which was checking the advance of his company. Later he captured, without aid, about 20 prisoners, and while advancing against another nest he was twice wounded. Although in severe pain, he declined the use of a litter, walking 3 kilometers to a dressing station.

Private, first class, Company G, 320th Infantry, 80th Division.
While his platoon was being forced back he remained to bind up the wounds of a comrade, although he himself was suffering from a painful wound. He then refused to be taken to the rear until all the others had been evacuated.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 341st Machine Gun Battalion, 89th Division.

Attached to a company immediately behind the assault battalion of Infantry he worked unceasingly, giving first-aid treatment to the wounded in his vicinity in an area constantly swept by intense fire from all arms. Displaying the highest devotion to duty and disregard for his own safety, he frequently worked in plain view of the enemy.

Second lieutenant, 11th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.
While the Infantry was falling back 200 meters to take cover from heavy artillery and machine-gun fire he, with his platoon sergeant, stayed at their 1 remaining machine gun, which they continued to operate for 45 minutes, until the Infantry position was reestablished. They not only successfully covered withdrawal of the Infantry, but also captured a German machine gun and 3 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company D, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
Picking up a light Maxim gun an I ammunition left by the retreating enemy, he advance I in front of his company's line and supported it with enfilading fire so effectively that he was soon made the target for many German guns. With the utmost coolness and entire disregard for his own safety he continued to give appreciable support with his captured gun until he was killed by the hostile machine-gun fire. His example of bravery and audacity was an inspiration to the whole command.

Posthumously awarde 1. Medal presented to sister, Miss Ruth Kline.

Corporal, Company K, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

Corporal Kling courageously led a detachment of 20 men against a machine-gun position on the right flank of the company, which was causing heavy losses. During the attack all others of Corporal Kling's detail became casualties, but he continued on alone. Gaining an advanced position in a shell hole, he kept the enemy machine gun under continuous fire until reinforcements arrived and continued. and eaptured it.

1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Hoboken, N. J. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*KLINGER, WALTER W. (1278414)_____At Bois-d'Etrayes, France, Oct. 23,

1918. R—Newark, N. J. B—Newark, N. J. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

July 15, 1918. R—New Castle, Pa. B—Austria.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Nov. 2, 1918. R—New Brunswick, N. J. R—New Brunswick, B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

R—Renovo, Pa. B—Williamsport, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

KNESS, KARL F. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Wichita, Kans. B—Wichita, Kans. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

KNIGHT, HENRY (546170)_ Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Easton, Me. B—Fort Fairfield, Me. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

KNIGHT, PAUL R. Near Binarville, France, Oct. 3-5, 1918.
R—Hibernia, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Knoke, Eugene F. (2261810)

Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Glasston, Mont.

B—Deshler, Ohio.

G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

KNOTTS, HOWARD C.
Near Arieux, France, Sept. 17, 1918.
R—Carlinville, Ill.
B—Guard, Ill.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1921.

Knowles, James, Jr... Near Montfaucon, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 127, W. D., 1918.

*Knowlton, Raymond F. (134079) North of Verdun, France, Oct. 21, 1918.

R—Danvers, Mass. B—Gaysville, Vt. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Private, first class, Company M, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
When sent out as a scout with a small patrol consisting of an officer and 2 men, Private Klinge courageously went ahead alone, killed 2 enemy scouts whom he encountered, and drove the gunners away from 2 machine guns.
When the patrol came up the capture of the guns was completed with their assistance.

Sergeant, Company B, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.
Two of his companions baving been killed, he advanced alone upon 1 of the enemy's strongest machine-gun nests and destroyed it with hand grenades.
He was later killed while administering first aid to a wounded soldier. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. John Rummell.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. Although badly wounded, he continued to perform his duties as runner, and before he would accept relief notified adjoining relays that his post was disabled.

Private, first class, Company B, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.

Private Knapp took command of Company B, after all the officers were killed or wounded, and led his company to the attack. When held up by machinegun fire from enemy nest, he led out a patrol against it, capturing the guns and killing the crew. Again on Nov. 6 at Hill Cote St. Germaine he assumed command of the company and repulsed a strong enemy counterattack.

Private, Battery D, 197th Field Artillery, 28th Division. Seeing another soldier fall seriously wounded, Private Knauff ran to his assistance and under heavy shellfire carried him to safety.

Private, 17th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He volunteered and assisted a wounded comrade to get to the rear, going through an area swept by terrific machine-gun and artillery fire for a distance of more than a kilometer. He carried the wounded man the greater part of the distance.

Private, Company D, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
After his company had been relieved he remained to guide the new organization through the intense artillery and machine-gun fire, and for 3 days carried food and water to the wounded, who could not be removed during the bombardment.

First lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. Although he had been twice wounded, he led his company in 4 attempts to cut through a heavy barbed-wire entanglement to capture Hill 205 in the Forest of Argonne, France, in order to reach 2 battalions of his regiment which had been cut off by the enemy.

Private, Company M, 362d Infantry, 91st Division. He performed his duties as company runner with the utmost fearlessness, crossing fire-swept fields on two occasions to carry important messages to neighboring units.

Second lieutenant, 17th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
During a patrol flight 5 American planes were attacked by 20 enemy Fokkers.
During the combat, when Lieutenant Knotts saw one of his comrades attacked by 7 enemy planes and in imminent danger of being shot down, he, atthough himself engaged with the enemy, went to the assistance of his comrade and attacked 2 of his immediate pursuers. In the fight which ensued he shot 1 of the enemy down in flames and forced the other out of control. His prompt act mabled his comrade to escape destruction, although his comraders plane was so disabled that he made the allied lines with difficulty, crashing as he landed.

First lieutenant, 95th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While on a voluntary patrol over the enemy's lines he observed 3 enemy Fokkers attacking 1 of our balloons. He unhesitatingly attacked, and in a bitter combat that lasted for 5 minutes he succeeded in bringing 1 of the enemy planes down in flames and driving off the others.

Private, first elass, Battery E, 101st Field Artillery, 26th Division. With great heroism and devotion to duty and with utter disregard for his personal safety, he rushed forward to the aid of a wounded soldier who was lying exposed to terrific enemy fire. While so engaged he was hit by enemy shellier and mortally wounded, dying shortly thereafter. The superb devotion to duty displayed by Private Knowlton greatly inspired and encouraged the men of his battery Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Ralph L. Knowlton.

KNOX. THOMAS T ox, THOMAS T Against Spanish forces at Las Guasi-mas, Cuba, June 24, 1898. R—Nashville, Tenn. B—Roane County, Tenn. G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1924.

1918.

R-South Coventry, Conn. B-Bridgeton, Me. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

*Kobernat, James F. (1429404)..... In the Forest of Argonne, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R-Hill City, Minn. B-Hurley, Wis. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

Koch, Arthur H. (2850524) Near Fey-en-Haye, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—St. Paul, Minn. B—Brownsville, Minn. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Kochanik, John (274833) Near Fismes, France, Aug. 4, 1918. R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Austria. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

*Kochensparger, James A. (93879). Northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 29, 1918. R—Circleville, Ohio. B—Pickaway County, Ohio. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

1918. R—Alliance, Ohio. B—Alliance, Ohio. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

KOEHLER, KURT H. A. (155137).

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Hillsdale, Oreg.
B—Germany.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

KOEPPEL, OSCAR... Near Seringes, France, July 27, 1918. R—Linden Heights, Ohio. B—Willshire, Ohio. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

KOERPER, FRANK P. (1385894) Near Gercourt, France, Sept. 26, R—Chicago, Ill. B—Milwaukee, Wis. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

KOFMEHL, WILLIAM H... North of Verdun, France, Oct. 21, 1918. R-Rapid City, S. Dak. B-Farley, Iowa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

numbers.

Captain, 1st Cavalry, U. S. Army.

Though severely wounded, he refused to leave the firing line, but continued to lead his troop until exhausted from excessive loss of blood. His great fortitude and fearless conduct was an inspiring example to his men.

Sergeant, Company L, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

His platoon having been relieved from its position in the front lines, Sergeant Knox remained with the relieving platoon, which was without a commissioned officer, organized and maintained its position during a severe attack by enemy infantry, bombers, and machine-gun fire. Though his platoon was entirely surrounded and cut off from support, and he himself twice wounded by shrapnel and grenades, he led his men against the enemy, broke through their lines, and established contact with the units on his right. His coolness, leadership, and outstanding courage under intense enemy fire greatly inspired his men and spurred them on to great endeavors in the face of vastly superior numbers.

Private, Company M. 307th Infantry, 77th Division. He succeeded in establishing an automatic rifle post under heavy machine-gun fire. In the face of this heavy fire he continually advanced until he was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Joseph B. Kobernat.

Corporal, Company A, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.

With the help of only one other soldier Corporal Koch successfully attacked a German machine-gun nest from the flank, killing 7 Germans, wounding 1, and capturing 3 machine guns.

Corporal, Company K, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
Ordering his squad to take cover, Corporal Kochanik single handed rushed an enemy machine gun and killed the 2 Germans manning it. As he was turning the captured gun on the enemy the courageous soldier was killed by Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Walter Kochanik.

Sergeant, Company F, 166th Infantry, 42d Division. He was killed on July 29, 1918, when establishing an outpost beyond the edge of Seringes-et-Nesles, which had just been captured by our forces. Through-out the attack he led his section of automatic riflemen with the greatest gallantry, giving an example of courage and bravery that was an inspiration to the men of his command. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles Koehensparger.

First lieutenant, 146th Infantry, 37th Division. Lieutenant Kochli, with 2 noncommissioned officers, advanced 200 yards beyond the objective of the patrol in the face of heavy machine-gun fire and captured three 77-millimeter fieldpieces and 2 light machine guns.

Private, Company A, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.

Operating without assistance a machine gun which he secured by crawling out ahead of our lines, he successfully resisted a greatly superior force of the enemy, killing several and causing the rest to retreat. When wounds in the shoulder made it impossible for him to further operate the gun he rendered it unserviceable with a pick handle before retiring and reporting to his company commander. commander.

Captain, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

After being severely wounded while leading his men through an intense barrage, Captain Koeppel refused to leave his company until they had been established on the front line and all orders and instructions turned over to the next in command.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Under heavy machine-gun fire he crept up to a church and captured 4 of the enemy, who were operating machine guns from the building.

Second lieutenant, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.
After his platoon had suffered heavy casualties in the Bois-des-Rappes from machine-gun fire he located the enemy guns, and, rallying a handful of his men, charged the enemy positions, capturing 37 prisoners. After getting his own machine guns in position Lieutenant Kofmehl, seeing that one of his gunners had been wounded, operated the gun himself, setting an excellent

Private, medical detachment, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. In spite of the fact that he had been severely wounded himself near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918, he refused to be relieved and continued to treat wounded under fire for 2 days.

Kohn, Marian (553826)

During the Argonne-Meuse offensive, France, Oct. 5-6, 1918.

R.—Toledo, Ohio. B—Russia. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Кони, Мат А. (2705642) __ Near Heurne, Belgium, Nev. 4, 1918. R—Wabasha, Minn. B—Wabasha, Minn. G. O. Ne. 59, W. D., 1919.

KOIJANE, FRANK A. (1389510). At Hamel, France, July 4, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Koleman, Norman (297349) Near Les Pres Farm, France, Aug. 9, 1918.

R-Lansing, Mich. B-Gibsonburg, Ohio. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Kolonoczyk, Wasyl (1210213) Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 18, 1918

R—Cohoes, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Kolwyck, Oren C. (1312511) Near Villeret, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Humboldt, Tenn. B—Trenton, Tenn. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*Koon, Carter R. (155143) South of Soissons, France, July 20,

R—Seattle, Wash. B—Tacoma, Wash. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Koon, Ethen S... Near Ypres, Belgium, Aug. 31, 1918. R—Asheville, N. C. B—Columbia, S. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Kopp, Henry (57929) Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Broeklyn, N. Y. B—Broeklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Korgis, Hercules E. (51858)

Near Mont Blanc, Oct. 3-9, 1918, and near Letanne, France, Nov.

R-Worcester, Mass. B-Turkey. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.

1918.

R-Roybury, Mass. B-Roybury, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company B, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.

Seeing his platoon commander and platoon sorgeant buried by a shell explosion, Corporal Kohn left his trench and, in the face of perilous machine-gun and shell fire, single handed rescued his comrades from the caved-in trench.

Corporal, Company K, 145th Infantry, 37th Division. Corporal Kohn went through heavy shell and machime-gun fire for a distance of 100 yards and carried a wounded courade to safety.

Sergeant, Company G, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
While digging in at his final objective he came under fire from a hostile machine gun in a sunken road 200 yards to the right front. With Lieutenant Yagle and 2 Australian soldiers, he rushed the position and captured the gun and Sergeant, Battery C, 119th Field Artillery, 32d Division.

Sergeant Koleman had just returned with his gun crew to their dugout after maintaining fire for 12 hours under heavy bombardment when a shell of large caliber struck directly over the dugout, killing or wounding the entire crew. Regardless of the fact that he himself had been wounded in 9 places, Sergeant Koleman immediately walked and crawled to the nearest shelter to secure aid for his men.

Private, Company C, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Private Kolonoczyk, under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, left the shelter of his trench and, going forward under a thick smoke screen, single handed captured between 30 and 40 German prisoners. His conspicuous gallantry and bravery upon this occasion showed a heroic disregard for his own safety, which were redended executed for all. which was a splendid example for all.

Oak-leaf cluster.

Outsteam cluster for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 18, 1918: After the advance of his company had been stopped by strong hostile machinegun fire, he, with 3 companions, advanced far ahead of the front line to attack an enemy position located in a large farmhouse. By skillful maneuvering in the broad daylight, they covered all entrances to the house and forced the surrender of the entire force of the enemy, numbering 36 men and 2 officers. During the exploit they killed 2 Germans who attempted to take cover in the cellar.

Private, Company M, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

He displayed marked bravery as battalion runner, fearlessly exposing himself before for the deliver important messages. Volunteering to deliver a messages. sage which necessitated his crossing a barrage of high explosive, shrapnel, and gas shells, he was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William H. Kolwyck.

Private, Company B, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
He volunteered and obtained the permission of his company commander to pass through an area then under heavy shellfire for the purpose of recovering wounded comrades. He made 2 trips successfully, but on his third trip he wearned communes, and was mortally wounded. Wedal presented to mother, Mrs. Fannie H. White.

Posthumously awarded.

Second lieutenant, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

Ignoring his severe wound, suffered in the advance of his platoon against the enemy south of Ypres, he remained with his men until all the wounded had been evacuated and personally directed the reorganization of his position until ordered to the rear by his commanding officer.

Private, first class, Company H, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. He displayed excellent courage in capturing a machine gun, which he turned upon an adjoining treuch, forcing 20 of the enemy to surrender. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry Kepp.

Sergeant, Company L, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
While leading a small patrol in an endeavor to establish liaison with the French troops on the right, during an attack, Sergeant Korgis's patrol was subjected to short-range machine-gun fire from 2 enemy guns. The fire halted their advance, whereupon Sergeant Korgis designated a few men to fire upon the onemy from the first, while he led the received right of the control of t the enemy from the front, while he led the remainder in a flank attack upon the enemy room the front, while he led the remainder in a liank attack upon the enemy, charging the post, killing the enemy crew of 8 with grenades, and capturing their guns. On Nov. 5, when an attack section became disorganized due to surprise fire from enemy machine guns, Sergeant Kergis fearlessly exposed himself to this fire and rushed to the "panic stricken" section and conducted them to cover, reorganized them, and subsequently led them in an attack upon the enemy position.

Private, 16th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. When volunteers were called for to rescue another member of his company who was severely wounded, he responded and in plain view of the enemy carried his wounded comrade to shelter through heavy machine-gun fire.

KORN, WALTER S. (1981322) ... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Leetonia, Ohio.
B-Holmesville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

KORTH, HERMAN (2305645) .... Near Juvigny, France, north of Soissons, Aug. 31, 1918. R—Fond du Lac, Wis. B—Germany. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*Korzysko, George (1389643) Near Forges, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B-Russia.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Kos, Max S. (2004446) ______ Near St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 8-9, 1918. R-Indianapolis, Ind. B-Fort Wayne, Ind. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Kostak, Frank J. (1387719) _____ At Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 9, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

KOUTS, WILLIAM M. (2257105)_ Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Camas, Wash. B—Vancouver, Wash. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

KOWALKOWSKI, LEO (2180133) ... Near Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—St. Louis, Mo. B—St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Kowaski, Louis L. (56777)..... Near Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918.

R—Indiana Harbor, Ind. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

KOZIKOWSKI, STANISLAW (1708153) _ Near Binarville, France, Oct. 2-7,

R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Poland. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Kozloski, John (2337870) Near Grand Ballois Farm, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Kramer, Henry G. (1210306) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Kramps, Clarence O. (1038528)..... Near St. Eugene, France, July 14-15, 1918. 15, 1918. R—Rosedale, Kans. B—St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919,

Sergeant, Company G, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
He continued to lead his platoon in attack on the Hindenberg line after he had received a wound from shrapnel. He was later knocked down by a rock thrown by a shell explosion, twice more wounded by shrapnel, but continued to lead his platoon until he received a severe wound, which necessitated his evacuation. He personally captured 2 prisoners in the attack.

Sergeant, Company D, 121st Machine Gun Battalion, 32d Division. Under heavy fire from machine guns and artillery, he crawled to the crest of a hill, setting stakes to line our artillery on enemy machine-gun emplacements. He remained in observation in this perilous position for half an hour, signaling back when our own troops were endangered by the fire of the batteries.

Private, Company H, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
During the action in Forges Wood, he, single handed, attacked and captured several machine guns, killing the gunners with hand grenades. It was while he was thus engaged that he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Mike Korzysko.

Private, Company K, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.

He volunteered to patrol the valley along the railroad tracks north of St. Thibaut for the purpose of locating machine-gun nests. He was wounded early in the morning, but remained in the valley until the next night, securing the information for which he was sent, and killing 2 Germans.

Private, Company G, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Single handed, Private Kostak with great gallantry attacked a machine-gun position, capturing 2 machine guns and 7 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company D, 361st Infantry, 91st Division. Sergeant Kouts, together with 2 other soldiers, captured 3 enemy machine guns and 26 prisoners.

Private, Company E, 137th Infantry, 35th Division.
Having previously made several trips to the rear with wounded comrades under heavy shellfire, Private Kowalkowski, with another litter bearer, after making three attempts, succeeded in reaching their hattalion commander, who lay wounded under heavy machine-gun fire, and earried him backtersoftsty. back to safety.

Corporal, Company B, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. He captured an enemy machine gun and aided materially in breaking up a counterattack by using it against his fees. In company with his captain he led the way to a dugout which he had located in capturing the machine gun and assisted in taking 9 prisoners.

Private, Company C, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
During the time when his company was isolated in the Argonne Forest and cut off from communication with friendly troops, Private Kozikowski, together with another soldier, volunteered to carry a message through the German lines, although he was aware that several unsuccessful attempts had been previously made by patrols, the members of which were either killed, wounded, or driven back. By his courage and determination he succeeded in delivering the message and brought relief to his battalion.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
Private Kozloski repeatedly volunteered and delivered messages over routes where all previous runners had either been killed or wounded.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Peter Kozloski.

Sergeant, Company M, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

In the attack on the Hindenburg line, after all the officers of his company became casualties, he took command and led his company in the attack through machine-gun and artillery fire. Shortly after returning from a personal reconnaissance of the enemy machine-gun position, he again took up the advance, and was leading the attack when killed by an enemy sniper. The heroism displayed by this noncommissioned officer was an important factor in the success of the attack of his company.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles C. Kraft.

Corporal, Company D, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line Corporal Kramer, with 4 other soldiers, left shelter and went forward into an open field under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in bandaging and carrying back to our lines two wounded men.

Corporal, Battery C, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

He remained on duty as chief of section after being very severely wounded.

Later in the action, when one of his gun crew was wounded, he was lifted to the seat and continued to fire the piece in addition to his other duties until forcibly taken from the seat and sent to an aid station. Here it was found that he had keen wounded in takense. that he had been wounded in 4 places.

Krause, Joseph (1786771)

Near Consenvoye Woods, France,
Nov. 6, 1918.

R—New Rochelle, N. Y.
B—New Rochelle, N. Y.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923

Krause, William H. (1213849)
Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Syracuse, N. Y.
B—Syracuse, N. Y.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

KRAYER, NICHOLAS (1210537) ... Near Ronsov, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New Providence, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

Kreger, Edward A
Between Los Banos and Bay Laguna, P. I., Mar. 10, 1900.
R—Cherokee, Iowa. B—Keota, Iowa.
G. O. 108, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

*KREIS, JACOB (2024430) At St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 10, 1918. R-Sheboygan, Wis.

B-Russia. G. O. No. 147, W. D., 1918.

B—Pennsylvania. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

KRESS, JOHN A ESS, JOHN A Near Umatilla, Orcg., July 8, 1878.
R—Elmira, N. Y.
B—Tioga County, Pa.
G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1925.

Kreuzman, William A.... Near Bayonville, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Batesville, Ind. B—Georgetown, Ky. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*KRIECHBAUM, PHILIP E ... Rear Apremont, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Chambersburg, Pa. B—Chambersburg, Pa. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

Sergeant, sanitary detachment, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.
During the Meuse-Argonne, while Hill 378, north of Verdun, was being stormed by the 316th Infantry, Sergeant Krause, himself in the foremost rank, rushed forward in the face of heavy fire from a machine-gun nest and rescued successively 3 wounded soldiers who had fallen in the attempt to take the hill bringing each in turn to safety. His actions were in disregard of his own safety and were an inspiration to his comrades.

Private, medical detachment, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
The battalion to which he was attached, forced by vastly superior numbers to take up a more advantageous position, left 21 wounded men well in advance of their second position. Private Krause, together with Lieut. Warde B. Smith, Medical Corps, and Sergt. John W. Doyle, medical detachment, under observation of the enemy and in the face of intense enemy machinegun fire carried the wounded men to a place of safety. The indomitable spirit and extreme devotion to his comrades inspired the men of his organization with renewed courage and determination.

First sergeant, Company C, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

He displayed great gallantry during the operations against the Hindenburg line. A smoke barrage was put down by the enemy between his company and the company on the left. The company commander having been wounded, Sergeant Krause sent a soldier to establish liaison with the company on the left. When this soldier was severely wounded and unable to accomplish his mission, Sergeant Krause went himself and succeeded in reaching the company. While returning to his own company Sergeant Krause met a party of Germans attempting to break through the gap between the two companies. In a personal encounter he killed a German officer and forced the rest of the party to withdraw.

Corporal, Company E, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

During the attack on the Hindenburg line, after all officers in his company had been killed, Corporal Krayer exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire to reorganize his command. He went from shell hole to shell hole, and by his courageous example inspired his men to continue the advance.

Captain, 39th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers.

For extraordinary heroism in an engagement with an armed enemy between Los Banos and Bay Laguna, P. I., on Mar. 10, 1900.

Private, Company I, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.

Accompanied by another soldier, he penetrated the enemy's lines and patrolled a sector from the north bank of the River Vesle to the town of Bazoches. These two men entered an enemy dugout and killed two Germans, at the same time locating a machine-gun emplacement.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to Henry Gross, administrator, for delivery to the next of kin.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.

After being severely wounded in the right shoulder, Private Kreitzer refused immediate evacuation and continued to perform his duty as company runner. Upon several occasions, he exposed himself to heavy enemy fire in order to carry messages from company headquarters to his platoon. His gallant conduct aided materially in keeping up the morale and courage of his comrades.

Captain, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. Captain Kress volunteered, though not charged with combat duties, to organize aptain Kress vointheered, though not charged with compat duties, to organize and lead an expedition against bands of hostile Piute-Bannock Indians and to prevent their crossing the Columbia River. Captain Kress seized a river boat and equipped it as a gunboat and by his gallant and fearless leadership in patrolling the Columbia River was successful in five attacks upon the Indians, both on land and from the river; succeeded in capturing and killing their horses, destroyed their boats, arms, and ammunition, and camp equipage, thus frustrating their plan of spreading the war among the Indians to the North.

Private, 82d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Private Kreuzman volunteered and went forward to reconnoiter a ravine which was infested with hostile machine guns, returning with several prisoners.

Second lieutenant, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
When his company was halted by heavy machine-gun fire, Lieutenant Kriechbaum advanced ahead of his company, thus personally leading them to the attack. He was killed by enemy machine-gun fire while some distance ahead of the first wave. His initiative and heroism were material factors in this operation. this operation.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Lucy E. Kriech-

KRIGBAUM, WILLIAM L. Near Bois-de-Chaume, France, Oct.

9, 1918. R—Decatur, Ill. B—Decatur, Ill. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Kroger, Chester F.
Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
R.—Cincinnati, Ohio.
B.—Newport, Ky.
G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

KROMER, CHESTER H. (280958)
Near Juvigny, France, Aug. 30, 1918.
R—Grand Rapids, Mich.
B—Grand Rapids, Mich.
G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Krotoshinsky, Abraham (1706855).... In Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 6,

R—Brenx, N. Y. B—Peland.

G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

Near Consenvoye, France, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Kruger, Anthony J. (1709796)

Near Wilhelmplatz, France, Sept.
29, 1918.

R—Patchegue, N. Y. B—Maspeth, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919

KRUM, JAMES EDWARD (1387247). Near Hamel, France, July 4, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.

KRZYKWA, ALBERT S. (281563) Near Romagne, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Alto, Mich.
B—Grand Rapids, Mich.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Kubacki, Steve (1099757)

Near Jaulny, France, Nov. 10, 1918.

R—Milwaukee, Wis.

B—Germany.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Kuhlman, Alfred H. (2039948) _____ Near Haumont, France, Oct. 11, Near 1

R-Rogers City, Mich. B-Rogers City, Mich. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
When the town of Fismette was held both by the enemy and our forces, Captain Kriechbaum voluntarily exposed himself to heavy close-range machine-gun fire in order to rescue a wounded soldier. While in the performance of this heroic act, he was severely wounded in both legs.

Captain, 124th Machine Gun Battalion, 33d Division.
When the hattalion to which Captain Krigbaum was attached had reached its objective north of Bois-de-Chaume, it was subject to two counterattacks. The right flank of the battalion was left exposed and all the gun crews on that flank were either killed or wounded and the guns put out of action. At the most critical time of this emergency, Captain Krigbaum alone mounted a captured German machine gun and so successfully operated it against the enemy that the counterattack was stopped and the flank of the battalion saved from serious losses. saved from serious losses.

Second lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
While directing the attack of his plateon against strong enemy resistance beyond the Paris-Soisons Highway, Lieutenant Kroger was severely wounded in the head by a machine-gun bullet. He refused immediate evacuation, and although staggering from the loss of blood he assisted in the reorganization of the various units of the 2d Battalion and continued with the advance until he fell from exhaustion.

Corporal, Company K, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
Corporal Kromer voluntarily made 4 trips in front of the line under machinegun and artillery fire and brought in 4 wounded men who had been left in an exposed position after a withdrawal of the line.

Private, Company K, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

He was on liaison duty with a battalion of the 308th Infantry which was surrounded by the enemy north of the Forest de la Buinonne in Argonne Forest.

After patrols and runners had been repeatedly shot down while attempting to carry back word of the battalion's position and condition, he volunteered for the wiscin and was excellently accompaighed it. for the mission and successfully accomplished it.

Private, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
While his platoon was halted by murderous fire of the enemy, he crawled from a shell hole in which he was seeking shelter and made his way forward to the aid of a wounded comrade. On the way he was wounded, but bravely continued on, until he had dressed the wounds of his comrade. He then insisted on well-like to the dressing station for treatment of his own wounds. on walking to the dressing station for treatment of his own wounds,

Sergeant, Company K, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
He was ordered to take his platoon and capture a machine gun which was holding up the advance of the company and causing many casualties. Armed with an automatic pistol, he, without hesitation and with utter disregard for his personal safety, charged the machine gun, stopping only when he was rendered unconscious by two bullet wounds in the neck.

Sergeant, Company E, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Although severely wounded in the right arm at the beginning of the engagement, he continued forward as squad leader, exhibiting great gallantry and setting an inspiring example to his men. After his wound had been dressed he insisted upon returning to duty with his plateon.

Private, Company M, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

In an attack on Cote Dame Marie the 126th Infantry was held up, owing to intense enemy machine-gun fire and grenades. Private Krzykwa volunteered as a member of a combat patrol which cut through the enemy lines, capturing 10 machine guns, killed and captured 15 of the enemy, and forced a large number to surrender, clearing that part of the Cote Dame Marie of the enemy and enabling the regiment to continue their advance.

Sergeant, Company D, 55th Infantry, 7th Division.

After leading his platoon to its objective and having consolidated a defense position, Sergeant Kubacki alone went forward under heavy shellfire to reconnoiter the enemy's position. Finding the area clear, he moved his platoon 300 yards forward to a more favorable position, which he held despite the fierce fire of the enemy.

ergeant, Battery F, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

fe volunteered to carry messages after communication had been broken off.

Although wounded, he refused to be relieved, and continued making trips to the batteries throughout the heavy bombardment without thought for persenal safety.

Private, 116th Ambulance Company, 103d Sanitary Train, 28th Division. As a stretcher bearer he gave proof of great courage and high sense of duty by helping transport a wounded soldier to a dressing station under heavy fire, by which 3 other stretcher bearers were killed or seriously wounded. He was wounded himself, but he nevertheless returned to the shell-swept area and assisted in rescuing a wounded officer and 6 wounded soldiers.

KUHLMAN, GEORGE WINFIELD-Near Fismes, France, Aug. 5-6, 1918. R-Glidden, Wis. B-Algoma, Wis. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Kukoski, John. At Chateau-Thierry, France, June

6, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

Kunieawsky, Ben (105711)...... Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Dickinson, N. Dak. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

*Kunzie, Harry K. (280706)

Near Cierges, France, Aug. 1, 1918.

R—Big Rapids, Mich.

B—Michigan.

G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

KWASIGROCH, PAUL J. Near Bois-de-Chatillon, France, Nov. 5-6, 1918. R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Linden Station, Wis. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Kyle, Ernest C. (880907) ____ Near Haumont, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R-Portland, Oreg. B—Acton, Kans. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

LA BUHN, EDMUND F Near Brabant, France, Oct. 8-9, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Lacosse, Lawrence J. (1211766)_____ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, R-Malone, N. Y. B-Burk, Vt. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

LA CROIX, ORIE H. (1683636) Near Binarville, France, Oct. 1, 1918. R—Bridgeport, Conn. B—Canada. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

LA FORD, RUSSELL E. (1215451) East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918 R—North Tonawanda, N. Y. B—Vermilion, Mich. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

LAGEAISE, STANLEY, Jr. (56046) _____At Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918. R—Duluth, Minn.
B—Willow River, Minn.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Second lieutenant, 107th Engineers, 32d Division.

He was sent on the night of Aug. 5-6, 1918, to make a reconnaissance of all possible means of crossing the River Vesle, near Fismes, France. It had been reported that the Germans had all retreated from the south bank of the river. but he found that such was not the ease; they were there in force. Nevertheless, such was his bravery and determination that he crossed into and through the German lines, made a full reconnaissance, and returned with his report.

Private, 49th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Alone, he charged a machine gun and with the utmost bravery captured it and its crew, including an officer.

Private, first class, Company C, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
Private Kunieawsky, with a companion, went forward in front of our lines to flank and locate the enemy machine-gun nests, whose fire was halting the advance of our Infantry. They were exposed to heavy machine-gun fire advance of our Infantry. They were exposed to heavy machine-gun fire but pushed forward. His companion was mortally wounded, but Private Kunicawsky continued and located the enemy position and returned with information which enabled our forces to put nests out of action.

Corporal, Company I, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

He crawled out in advance of his company and, single handed, killed the 6 Germans forming the crew of a machine gun. He then continued forward to silence another gun, being mortally wounded in the attempt.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William G. Kunzle.

Private, Company H, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.
Exposing himself to heavy machine-gun fire, Private Kurle crossed an open field 300 yards wide and rescued a severely wounded comrade.

Second lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.

Despite severe leg wounds, he remained on duty with his company throughout the entire action, refusing treatment until his objective had been reached and the remainder of his company reorganized and a liaison established. On the following day, after first aid had been given, he returned immediately to duty, and during the remaining advances commanded in a most skillful and courageous manner, he being the only officer left with the organization.

Private, 116th Ambulance Company, 104th Sanitary Train, 29th Division. As a stretcher bearer he gave proof of great courage and high sense of duty by helping transport a wounded soldier to a dressing station under heavy enemy fire, by which 3 other stretcher bearers were killed or seriously wounded. He repeatedly returned to the shell-swept area and assisted in rescuing the wounded.

Second lieutenant, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

Becoming detached from his regular organization on Oct. 8, Lieutenant La Buhn, aecompanted by 5 soldiers, attached himself to another company and voluntarily took part in the offensive operations. Leading his men, he charged a machine-gun nest and captured several guns and 4 prisoners. Ho continued in action with this company until wounded on Oct. 9, 1918.

Private, Company K, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Private Lacosse, with 3 other soldiers, went out into an open field under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in carrying back to our lines 4 seriously wounded men.

Corporal, Company A, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. When his company commander and first sergeant had been wounded, he rallied the company and continued the advance, fearlessly exposing himself to hostile fire and inspiring the men with him by his courage.

Private, Company K, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

During the operations against the Hindenburg line he left shelter and went out into the open under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in bandaging and carrying back to our lines a wounded officer.

Private, first class, Company K, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. While earrying a message he was wounded in both legs and in the face, but delivered his message to the proper place before he collapsed from loss of blood.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
During the 3 days of fighting at Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918, he worked bravely without thought of himself to maintain lines in working condition. He was almost constantly under heavy fire, but fearlessly went into it whenever necessary and thereby aided materially in the success of the regiment's enterprise.

LAIMINGER, ALFRED S. (240647)...... Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France,

Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Sopris, Colo.

B—St. Louis, Mo.

G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

LAIRD, FRED L. (1453036)

At Hilsenfirst, Alsace, July 6, 1918.
R—Hamburg, Ill.
B—Hamburg, Ill.
G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

*Lait, Henry A. (68386)______ Near St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-Old Town, Me.

B—Bangor, Me. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

LA JENNESSEE, JOSEFH P. (2382994). Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Mahnomen, Minn. B—Mahnomen, Minn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LAKE, JAMES (1981635) ... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Kingston, Ky. B-Richmond, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LAMB, EARL (1391257)

Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LAMB, JOHN R. (252120). o, JOHN R. (252/120).

Near Juvigny, north of Soissons, France, Aug. 28-Sept. 4, 1918.

R.—Rockford, Mich.
B.—Rockford, Mich.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

LAMB, ROBERT J. Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Fayetteville, N. C. B—Fayetteville, N. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

LAMBERT, JOHN H Near Stenay, France, Oct. 30, 1918. R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Salem, N. J. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company A, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
Private La Grow displayed an admirable quality of courage in always being the first to venture forth in an endeavor to wipe out obstacles in his company's advance. He captured without aid 3 enemy machine guns on different occasions.

Private, Company H, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
When his company was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, he circled through the woods and opened fire with his automatic rifle upon the enemy machinegun emplacement, forcing the enemy crew to retire, leaving their gun in position.

Private, first class, Company H, 135th Infantry, 35th Division.
While acting as rear guard for a raiding party he saw 2 of the enemy who had escaped the attention of the raiding party preparing to cut off the retreat of the party. In spite of the enemy machine-gun and artillery fire heremained behind to cover the retreat of the party and by his rifle fire killed 2 of the enemy who were preparing to cut off the retreat of the party. A few minutes later, with a grenade, he killed 1 of the enemy who had attacked 2 unarmed litter bearers. By his prompt deed he saved the lives of these 2 means.

Private, first class, Company G, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
Private Lait, with 2 other comrades, advanced into the open and fired an automatic rifle on an enemy machine-gun emplacement, thereby drawing the machine-gun fire to themselves and enabling the platon, which had been exposed to an enfilading fire, to flank the gun and put it out of action. Private Lait was killed by a machine-gun bullet during the action.
Posthumonsly awarded. Medal presented to father, Hyman Lait.

Sergeant, Company D, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
He retained the command of his platoon after he had received a severe gunshot wound in the leg, maintained the organization of his platoon under heavy fire, and directed it in the overcoming of several machine-gun positions. He consolidated his position on the line held by the company and remained on post 36 hours until ordered evacuated on account of his wound.

Corporal, Company F, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
With 2 other soldiers Corporal Lake advanced ahead of their company and rushed an enemy machine-gun nest from the flank, capturing 14 members of the crew and 2 machine guns, and thereby enabling the advance to continue. Carrying the captured guns with them to the objective, they later used them successfully in repelling a hostile counterattack,

Private, Company B, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
With 8 other soldiers, comprising the company headquarters detachment,
Private Lake assisted his company commander in cleaning out enemy dugouts along a canal and capturing 242 prisoners.

Corporal, Company F, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
When the advance of his platoon was stopped by an enemy machine gun, be charged the gun from the flank, wounded 1 of the gunners, and captured the other 2 members of the gun crew, together with the gun. Remaining in an advanced position under fire throughout the day, be used the captured machine gun in breaking up an enemy counterattack.

Sergeant, Company C, 107th Field Signal Battalion, 32d Division. When heavy shelling and machine-gun fire destroyed telephone communication, Sergeant Lamb, without orders and upon his own initiative, went out and repeatedly patrolled the line, making repairs and reestablishing communication. Thereafter he continued to patrol the lines, constantly improving connections and placing the line in protected places. He worked indefatigably day and night during a period of seven days, and refused to rest or seek a place of Safety while he could find work to do. When he saw the body of his brother who had been killed in action, he did not falter, but remained on duty as before. He was finally forced to go to a hospital by reason of complete exhaustion. By his bravery and devotion to duty he so distinguished himself as to become the object of admiration by brother officers and soldiers. self as to become the object of admiration by brother officers and soldiers.

Captain, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. Capean, 178th Handry, out Division.

In command of a company he, with 2 other men, rushed a machine-gun post which was holding up the advance, killing the German crew. Later, separated from part of his command, owing to a dense smoke screen, he found himself with a few men in front of 3 German machine-gun nests. Leading the attack, he captured the enemy posigons with 25 prisoners.

First lieutenant, 91st Aero Squadron, Air Service. While on a photographic mission in the vicinity of Stenay, his work being seriously interfered with by the fire of a formation of enemy planes, he temporarily discontinued his mission, attacked the formation, and dispersed, it destroying 1 plane and seriously damaging another. He then returned to his objective, completed his mission, and returned with information of great militory relate. military value.

R—Apollo, Pa. B—Salina, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LAMM, JOHNNIE (1320902) ___ Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Lucama, N. C. B—Lucama, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Akron, Ohio. B—Salisbury, Vt. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

*Lamson, Dwight F. (2189236) Near Limey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Little River, Kans. B—Goodland, Ind. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

LANDES, WILLIAM S ... North of Samogneux, France, Oct. 11-25, 1918. R—Lansdowne, Pa. B—Sheldon, Ill. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Landry, Gerard P. (106254)... Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Dutch Town, La. B—Dutch Town, La. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

de - Grande - Montague, France, Oct. 8-16, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md.

B—Baltimore, Md.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LANE, ELMER L. (72414) ___ At Bois Brule, France, Apr. 13, 1918. R—West Somerville, Mass. B—Woonsocket, R. I. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918. LANE, HERSCHEL V....

Near Vierzy, France, July 20, 1918. R—Minneapolis, Minn. B—Omaha, Nehr. G. O. No. 137, W. D., 1918.

Lane, Leslie M. (64075) Near Seicheprey, France, Apr. 4-5, 1918.

R—Poughquag, N. Y. B—Kent, Conn. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company A, 320th Infantry, 80th Division.
Private Lambing, when his company was suddenly pulled back, went forward through both friendly and enemy shellfire to an advanced post and directed the occupants of the outpost to safety, although he was killed in the act.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Frank J. Lambing.

Private, Company G, 120th Infantry, 30th Division. In the face of heavy machine-gun fire, Private Lamm, with 2 other soldiers, attacked and put out of action an enemy machine-gun post, capturing a German officer and 3 soldiers.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

While his platoon was taking shelter from the withering machine-gun fire, Sergeant La Morder heard cries of a wounded comrade in a near-by shell hole. Braving the deadly machine-gun fire, he went to the soldier's assistance, hound up his wounds, and, when attempting to carry him to safety, was himself severely wounded. He started to crawl to the dressing station, but became exhausted after going a very short distance.

Corporal, Company F, 1st Gas Regiment. Corporal Lampman, with 3 other soldiers, advanced nearly 200 yards over an open hillside exposed to machine-gun fire and carried 2 wounded men to the protection of a near-by trench.

Private, Company G, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Seeing his lieutenant fall severely wounded, Private Lamson, with another stretcher bearer, rushed through severe machine-gun fire to his assistance. When they had placed the lieutenant on their stretcher and were endeavoring to go through the heavy fire to the dressing station, Private Lamson fell morthly. tally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles E. Lamson.

First lieutenant, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.

First lieutenant, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.

Acting as regimental munitions officer, he was wounded early in the action, but remained on duty for two weeks, supervising the distribution of ammunition in the front-line battalions. Through his untiring efforts and utter disregard of personal danger under heavy shellfire an adequate supply of ammunition to the battalions in the line was constantly maintained. After the attack on the Bois d'Etrayes, Oct. 24, when liaison with the advance battalion had been broken by the intense bombardment, this officer volunteered to proceed to the position occupied by this battalion and returned with valuable information as to the location of the front line.

First lieutenant, 369th Infantry, 93d Division. Lieutenant Landon, on duty as assistant liaison officer, personally carried an order to the assault battalion in order to insure its delivery, passing through heavy fire. The battalion commander being killed just as he arrived, Lieuneary life. The battain commander being kined just as he arrived, hedreant Landon gave the order to the next senior, and then waited to see its execution. When the assaulting line wavered under a terrific enemy barrage, this officer jumped ahead of the line and led the first wave 1,000 meters to the objective, assisting in consolidating the new position before he returned to regimental headquarters.

Sergeant, Company B, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
When his platoon commander was incapacitated by wounds, July 19, 1918, near Soissons, France, he displayed instant initiative, effectively took command of his platoon, and directed its movements with marked ability and courage during the remaining three days of the advance.

First lieutenant, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
On Oct. 8 he led his platoon through machine-gun and rifle fire in an advance which resulted in the capture of 300 prisoners and 12 machine guns. On the morning of Oct. 16 he voluntecred, with 1 sergeant, and straightened out the line of an adjacent unit. His movements were under constant machine-gun fire, and so close to the enemy that he, with his sergeant, captured 2 prisoners while accomplishing their mission

Private, Company F, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.

For coolness and gallantry in action on Apr. 13, 1918. Standing on parapet of trench in order to see advancing enemy through heavy fog, he continued, under heavy fire, to throw hand grenades at enemy until severely wounded, thus preventing enemy from penetrating line in vicinity of his post.

Private, 77th Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He volunteered and successfully carried messages from Vierzy to the front line near Tigny, through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, after 2 others who had been detailed for the duty had failed to get through.

Private, first class, Company C, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

On the night of Apr. 4-5, 1918, he was carrying rations to the men in the front trenches. He encountered a large enemy platoon who demanded his surrender. He refused to surrender, drew his pistol, and killed the enemy platoon commander, causing the enemy raiding party to retire. During the encounter he was severely wounded by hand grenades. By his quickness of action he undoubtedly saved the lives of the men in our advanced listening post.

Lanergan, John F. (600143).... Near Verdun, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R.—Dorchester, Mass. B.—Roxbury, Mass. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Langdon, Russell C.
Near Fismes, France, Aug. 5, 1918.
R.—Brooklyn, N. Y.
B.—Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

Lange, Carl M. (105472) Near Fleville, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Hartington, Nebr. B—Wall Lake, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Langemak, Fritzhof G. (284261)..... Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Sturgeon Bay, Wis. B—Milwaukee, Wis. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

1918. R—Swepsonville, N. C. B—Alamance County, N. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Langham, George W. (2311110).... Near Juvigny, north of Soissons, France, Aug. 29-Sept. 2, 1918. R-Roaring Spring, Pa. B-Puzzletown, Pa. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

LANGLEY, JOHN H. (2405820) .....

Near Chevieres, France, Oct. 21, Near Chevieres, France, 1918. R—Newfield, N. J. B—Pottstown, N. J. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

LANGSTON, LUTHER J. (1528479) Near Ivoiry, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Covington, Ohio. B—Covington, Ohio. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

*LANIGHAN, MATTHEW S. (1735646) __ Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16,

R-Lockport, N. Y. B-Lockport, N. Y. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

sive, north of Ciergos, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R—Holyoke, Mass. B—Turners Falls, Mass. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

LARKIN, MICHAEL (58203)

Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Jersey City, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company B, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
While engaged as runner during the attack on Houppy Bois on Oct. 23, he made repeated trips over an area swept by machine-gun and artillery fire.
On Oct. 27, after all his superior officers had become casualties, he assembled scattered combat groups, and, after reorganizing them, led them in a successful counterattack against the enemy.

Colonel, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.

After a patrol had reported to him that a bridge crossing of the Vesle could not be located due to heavy enemy machine-gun and rifle fire, Colonel Langdon personally led a patrol through an area covered by enemy shell and machine-gun fire, to the Vesle River and selected a suitable spot for the building of a bridge and gave instructions for the selection of material for construction.

Private, first class, Company B, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. Seeing that his first line was being held up by machine-gun fire from the woods, Private Lange, with another soldier, voluntarily made his way through a terrific enemy barrage and entered the woods, cleared out 3 machine guns, killed several of the crew, and captured about 20 prisoners. Failing in his attempt to communicate the success of his mission to the attacking wave, he himself went back, and, finding all his officers had become casualties, assisted in organizing a small force and leading it to the objective.

Corporal, Company M, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

In the absence of any commissioned officer he assumed command of the platoon of which he was a member when it was in serious danger because of lack of leadership. With utter disregard for personal safety, subjected to intense machine-gun fire, he coolly reorganized the men about him, most of whom were replacements who had never been in action. Although lost and without maps he led his men in vigorous attacks against the enemy forces and well placed machine-gun nests, eventually reaching his objectives where he reestablished liaison with his flanks and continued the advance. By his fearlessness and aggressiveness he prevented the enemy from gaining advantage of a gap which was starting to open in our attacking line, and by his initiative aided the advance of the troops on his flanks. initiative aided the advance of the troops on his flanks.

Private, Company A, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Being a company runner, he displayed marked bravery, repeatedly crossing heavily-shelled areas and exposing himself to machine-gun fire to deliver important messages, enabling his company to maintain adequate liaison.

Private, Company II, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.

Though he had been severely gassed, he remained on duty with his company while it was in the front line. Later, when it was in support, he voluntarily aided in the work of carrying wounded across an area covered by artillery and machine-gun fire.

Private, medical detachment, attached to Company G, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

He remained on duty continuously for 4 hours administering aid to wounded men under heavy shellfire. Finding that he could not properly work while wearing his gas mask, he removed it, though many gas shells were bursting in his vicinity. After being gassed, he continued to work for an hour until all the wounded were attended.

First sergeant, Company A. 148th Infantry, 37th Division.
When his platoon was halted by the fire of concealed enemy machine guns, Sergeant Langston dashed ahead of his organization and, alone, captured the enemy machine gun, forcing 5 of the enemy to surrender. This act of heroism enabled his organization to resume the advance.

Sergeant, Company I, 309th Infantry, 78th Division.
Although wounded, he refused to be evacuated and led his men with marked personal courage, capturing several enemy machine guns and prisoners. He was killed while organizing his platoon for a further advance.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Edward Lanighan.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. Under observation of the enemy and subjected to heavy machine-gun fire, he, of his own initiative, worked his way from shell hole to shell hole in order to give first aid to 3 wounded men who were lying in an open field next to the Cierges-Romagne Road.

Corporal, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

When his platoon had been halted by heavy machine-gun fire from the front, Corporal Larkin, with 3 others, pushed forward through heavy fire and attacked the enemy machine-gun nest. Two enemy machine guns were captured and their crews forced to surrender. He then reorganized the enemy position and assisted in the repulse of a strong enemy contretatack. served with distinction until a serious wound forced his evacuation.

LARNER, GORMAN DE FREEST...... In the region of Champeny, France, Sept. 13, 1918.

R—Washington, D. C.

B—Washington, D. C.

G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

LARSON, COLONEL (282986) ... Near Juviguy, France, Sept. 1-3, 1918.

R-Neillsville, Wis. B-Lewis, Wis. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Blossburg, Pa. B-Schenectady, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Larson, Julius D. (915376)... Near Brieulles, France, Nov. 3, 1918. R—Chaseburg, Wis. B—Chaseburg, Wis. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Lashiwer, Hyman (40917) Near Jaulny, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LATHAM, DAVIDSON U. N. (1408986) Near Septsarges, France, Oct. 24, 1918.

R—Gastonia, N. C. B—Lexington, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LAUBER, CLARENCE E. (3091038)______ Near Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918.

R-Wauseon, Ohio. B-Archbold, Ohio. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Concord, N. C. B—Concord, N. C. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

3, 1918.

R—Bridgeport, Conn. B—El Paso, Tex. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*Lautenslager, Earl W. (1213623) ___ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Geneseo, N. Y. B—Fayette, N. Y. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1919.

*Laviolette, Henry J. (72416) _____ At Chateau-Thierry, France, July 20-23, 1918.

R-Marlboro, Mass. B-Marlboro, Mass. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, pilot, 103d Aero Squadron, Air Service. He attacked an enemy patrol of 6 machines (Fokker type) and fought against odds until he had destroyed 1 and forced the others to retire.

Oak-leaf cluster.

Oak-lear chases. A bronze oak leaf, for extraordinary heroism in action in the region of Montfaucon, France, Oct. 4, 1918. While leading a patrol of 4 monoplanes, he led his patrol in an attack on an enemy formation of 7 planes. By skillfully maneuvering he crushed 1 of the enemy machines and with the aid of his patrol forced the remainder of the enemy formation to withdraw.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
Corporal Larson constantly patrolled the telephone lines in front of Juvigny, repairing the lines under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. Near Ecurey, when the enemy artillery fire was so intense as to make telephonic communications impossible, Corporal Larson, on duty as a lineman, volunteered as a runner, and served as such under extremely heavy fire until completely exhausted.

Corporal, Company K, 314th Infantry, 79th Division. He, with another soldier from his platoon, outflanked a machine gun in advance of our line, killed 3 of the crew and captured 2 others, together with the machine

Private, first class, Company F, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.
With indomitable courage and bravery he rendered most valuable assistance in the construction of a pontoon bridge across the Meuse River and 2 other bridges across the Canal Est. At both places the work was done in the face of heavy machine-gun fire.

Private, first class, Company M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Private Lashiwer, with 3 other soldiers, volunteered to carry wounded men of other companies from in front of our advanced positions and carried this work on under violent machine-gun fire while a counterattack was developing. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Eva Kessler.

Wagoner, Company G, 5th Ammunition Train, 5th Division.
When an enemy shell struck some pyrotechnics stored in the ammunition dump of his organization, he assisted in removing inflammable material and placing the fire under control. Through his coolness and courage the destruction of a large quantity of near-by ammunition was avoided.

Private, Company I, 356th Infantry, 89th Division.

Private, Company 1, 35th Infantry, 85th Division.

Private Lauher accompanied Lieutenant Murphy and 3 other soldiers in a flank attack on 3 heavy machine guns. Fired on directly at 30 yards, they charged the guns, and in the hand-to-hand fight which followed this seldier and 2 of his comrades were killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Elsie Lauber Porter.

Private, Company A, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

In command of the battalion runners, Private Laughlin volunteered to carry messages through the unusually heavy fire. During a very critical period of the fighting he twice went through a machine-gun barrage to the front line to obtain information when no word from that source had been received for a long period.

Sergeant, Company B, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. During the absence of his platoon commander, Sergeant Launcelot took command of the platoon, led an attack, and captured 7 machine guns in strong position. He was later seriously wounded.

Private, Company B, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line, when his company was held up by an enemy machine-gun nest, he volunteered to cross an open field in front of his company in order to ascertain the exact location of the enemy's position. While engaged in this enterprise he was killed by a bursting shell. His heroic self-sacrifice was a splendid example to the men of his company. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George J. Lautenslager.

Private, first class, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
During an engagement with hostile Mexicans at Nogales, Ariz., and Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, on the 27th of August, 1918, Private Lavery, braving the heaviest fire, repeatedly entered the zone of fire with his motor truck and carried wounded men to places of safety, thereby saving the lives of several

Private, Company K, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
Private Laviolette, acting as a runner, carried messages through heavy artillery fire with absolute fearlessness until killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Midard Laviolette.

*LAVOIE, LEO J. (42517) ... In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Lunenburg, Mass. B—Fitchburg, Mass. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WHORNE, DEWIE H. (1320851)..... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, LAWHORNE.

R-Draper, N. C. B-Ambrose County, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Lawless, Edward R. (556118) Near Trosnes, France, July 18, 1918. R—Boston, Mass. B—Leominster, Mass, G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Near

R-Newport, R. I. B-Newport, R. I. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Lawlor, Joseph William
At St. Martin-Reviere, France,
Oct. 17, 1918.
R-Montelair, N. J.
B-Montelair, N. J.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Lawrance, Jaceson S.
At Binarville, France, Sept. 30, 1918.
R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

LAWRENCE, HENRY S. (1257212)

Near Bastieux, France, Sept. 5, 1918.

R—Peckwille, Pa.

B—Seranton, Pa.

G. O. No 128, W. D., 1918.

Lawrence, Hull F. (1736600) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R—Newark, N. J. B—Newark, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LAWRENCE, VIVIAN S., Jr. (1842279) Near Gercourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Churchland, Va. B—Churchland, Va. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

*Lawson, Bradley (1980606) ______ Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Kildav, Ky. B—Jellico, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LAWSON, FRED M. (542413) _ At Fossoy, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Roschill, Ky. B—Mercer County, Ky. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
He led his squad against an enemy machine gum which was causing severe losses in his company. His journey was made through a very difficult terrain and under deadly fire, but his mission was accomplished without the loss of a man. Later in the day he was killed while leading his squad.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Margaret Lavoie.

Corporal, Company G, 120th Infantry, 30th Division. In the face of heavy machine-gun fire, Private Lawhorne, with 2 other soldiers, attacked and put out of action an enemy machine-gun post, capturing a German officer and 3 soldiers.

Sergeant major, Headquarters Company, 39th Infantry, 4th Division. When it had become necessary to send an urgent message to the battalion base company, Sergeant Major Lawless, though under fire for the first time, voluntarily took the message across an open field, a distance of 500 yards. It seemed almost impossible to get through the murderous fire, but, knowing the importance of the message, Sergeant Major Lawless ventured through rather than take the longer yet safer route. He completed his mission, returning agest the square course. ing over the same course.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.

During a raid Sergeant Lawless bayoneted the men at 2 enemy machine guns which were firing upon our raiding party and put several others out of action with hand grenades.

First lieutenant, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Being the only officer left with the company, Lieutenant Lawlor was ordered to clear a village of the enemy. Most of his command became separated from him in a dense fog, but with his 1 remaining squad he proceeded to accomplish his mission. Lieutenant Lawlor and 1 soldier came upon 100 Germans operating machine guns from behind a hedge and succeeded in capturing 50 of the enemy. This officer then pursued the others, exchanging shots with a German officer as he rau.

Major, Medical Corps, attached to 368th Infantry, 92d Division. Major Lawrance, with 2 soldiers, voluntarily left shelter and crossed an open space 50 yards wide, swept by shell and machine-gun fire, to rescue a wounded soldier, whom they carried to a place of safety.

Sergeant, Company B, 108th Machine Gun Battalion, 28th Division. When the advance of the platoon commanded by him was held up by machinegun fire from the front and flanks, Sergeant Lawrence took a rifle and bayonet gun hre from the front and names, sergeant Lawrence took a the and bayone and, accompanied by another soldier, crawled under the enemy wire in the face of severe fire, drove off the crews of several enemy machine guns and returned with 2 prisoners, thereby enabling his platoon to rush on. Subsequently, under heavy machine-gun and sniper fire, he went along the line of his gun emplacements cheering and encouraging his men, his fearlessness of several and inspiration to them throughout the engagement. affording an inspiration to them throughout the engagement.

Private, Company K, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
While his company was seeking shelter from a continuous rain of machine-gun bullets, Private Lawrence voluntarily carried messages from his company commander, who was lying wounded under enemy observation, to battalion headquarters. He worked under heavy bombardment at all times, but showed remarkable courage and devotion to duty while thus engaged.

Corporal, 319th Ambulance Company, 305th Sanitary Train, 80th Division. While he was passing along the roads leading to Septsarges, near Gercourt, in an ambulance, a large shell fell among a group of Infantry soldiers near by, severely wounding 5 of them. He stopped the ambulance and rendered efficient first aid, through concentrated shellfire. He then loaded the patients in the ambulance and removed them from the shelled area.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 120th Infantry, 30th Division. Having been wounded by a burst ng shell immediately after the opening of the attack, he refused to go to the rear, but remained with his corporal, who had been severely wounded by the same shell. For 2 hours, under an intense enemy barrage, he continued to minister to his wounded comrade until another shell burst near hy, by which he was fatally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Bud Lawson.

Corporal, Company L, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
When it was reported that the enemy had crossed the Marne River, Corporal Lawson twice led a patrol across his platoon front through heavy shellfire and at the risk of his life. On July 15, 16, and 17 he worked day and night uneasingly until forced to stop from complete exhaustion, displaying at all times the highest coolness and judgment and rendering services of the greatest value.

LAWSON, WALTER R. Near St. Mihiel, France, July 30 and Sept. 13, 1918.

R-Birmingham, Ala. B—Georgia. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

LAY, ARTHUR (38906) _____ Near the Meuse River, France, Nov.

3-4, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Albany, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LAYER, JOHN L. (1038310) ... Near St. Eugene, France, July 14,

R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

LEACH. GEORGE E. Near Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918. R—Minneapolis, Minn. B—Cedar Rapids, Iowa. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

LEACH, JOHN A. (552565)

Near La Franquette Farm, France, July 22, 1918.

R-Westminster, Vt. B-Westminster, Vt. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Leach, John W. Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Knoxville, Tenn. B—Wytheville, Va. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LEARY, EDMUND M.
Near Stenay, France, Nov. 10, 1918.
R.—North Whitefield, Me.
B.—Cambridge, Mass.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

At Audenarde, Belgium, Nov. 1,

R—Salt Lake City, Utah. B—Georgetown, Tex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

12, 1918.
R—Gardner, Mass.
B—Fitchburg, Mass.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*LEDWELL, HARVEY M. (2337850).... Near Charmel, France, July 26,1918. R—Greensboro, N. C. B—Clay County, Ind. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

a, ALFRED P. (73537) At Apremont, France, Apr. 10, 1918. R—Northanipton, Mass. B—Ware, Mass. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

ARTHUR TRUMBULL. R. AKHUR TRUMBULL.
Near Tronsol Farm, France, Sept.
28, and at Leeuwken, Belgium,
Oct. 31, 1918.
R—Walla Walla, Wash.
B—Seattle, Wash.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Captain, observer, 91st Aero Squadron, Air Service.

This officer showed rare courage on a reconnaissance far over the enemy lines when he continued on his mission after being seriously wounded by anti-aircraft fire. On Sept. 13, although he was still convolescing from his wound, he volunteered for a particularly dangerous mission requiring a flight of 75 kilometers within the enemy lines. Because of weather conditions he was forced to fly at a dangerously low altitude and was repeatedly fired on by anti-aircraft and machine guns. He successfully accomplished his mission and returned with important information. returned with important information.

Mechanic, Company D, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

While passing through the German lines at night, carrying messages, Mechanic Lay captured 8 of the enemy, including 2 officers, and marched them back 4 kilometers. The next day he carried messages through artillery and machine-gun fire and fearlessly exposed bimself to danger in guiding companies into position. While returning from a mission he carried a severely wounded comrade through a machine-gun barrage to the dressing station.

Private, Battery B, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division. He continued on duty repairing breaks in telephone line, even after being severely wounded and almost unconscious.

Colonel, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division. Near Pexonne, France, on Mar. 5, 1918, he entered the quarry of Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, then subjected to particularly accurate artillery bombardment, for the purpose of directing and encouraging the officers and men of that battery, when he might with propriety have sent his directions by messenger.

Sergeant, Company H, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report
While his unit was in close contact with the enemy and the enemy that the company had been ordered to withdraw. Those who thus retired were shot down by the enemy. During the disorder that followed, Sergeant Leach fearlessly reorganized the platoon under close-range enemy fire. Due to his heroic example, the men of his platoon held their ground and repulsed the strong enemy attack which followed.

First lieutenant, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
About 6.30 in the morning of Sept. 29 Lieutenant Leach received a serious wound which rendered his right arm useless. Notwithstanding his suffering and weakness from loss of blood he continued to lead his platoon toward its objective until after 1 o'clock of that day, when he became so exhausted and weak that he was ordered to the aid station by his commanding officer and from there was evacuated to the hospital.

Colonel, 358th Infantry, 90th Division

Under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, Colonel Leary personally led 2 sections of machine guns and 2 platoons of Infantry to the assistance of 1 of his battalions in order to protect its flank.

Captain, 316th Engineers, 91st Division.

He led a patrol of 4 men on a reconnaissance of the city of Audenarde at a time when it was still occupied by enemy patrols and snipers, obtaining important data on destroyed bridges and locating materials necessary in repairing them. While on this errand Captain Leavell and his men encountered a German patrol 3 times their number, and in the combat which followed several of the enemy were killed or wounded and a spy was captured.

Corporal, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
When ordered on an exploiting party 1½ kilometers in advance of our lines, he first reconnoitered the route and then led his men forward under heavy fire from the enemy artillery and machine guns. He held the position he established, under heavy fire, until relieved, 14 hours later.

Sergeant, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Although very seriously wounded, he refused aid of his men, who stopped to assist him, ordering them forward and directing their attack until they had passed beyond hearing distance.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to niece, Mrs. Gertrude Holland.

Private, Company L, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
During the action of Apr. 10, 1918, he displayed courage, coolness, and the spirit of self-saerifice in voluntarily going through shell-swept area to bring back wounded to a place of safety, carrying 1 wounded man more than 50 yards under heavy shell fire.

First licutenant, 364th Infantry, 91st Division. On the afternoon of September 28 he advanced with his platoon to Tronsol Farm under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and captured 7 machine guns and much ammunition. Forced to retire, he returned with his capture and platoon in good order. On Oct. 31, while attempting to locate machinegun nests which were holding up his advance, he was so severely wounded that in spite of his desire to continue he was unable to do so. R—Osage, Iowa. B—Norway. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Lee, Chris (54614) Near Cantigny, France, May 27, 1918.

R—Canada. B—Pope County, Minn. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Lee, Christopher F.... Near Verdun, France, Oct. 25, 1918. R.—Boston, Mass. B.—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Silver Spring, Md. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

LEE, EVERETT D. (1205388)

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Saratoga Springs, N. Y. B—Saratoga Springs, N. Y. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

Lee, John B.
Near Mezieres, France, Nov. 3, 1918.
R—Newark, N. J.
B—Newark, N. J.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

*Lee, John C_____ Near Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 9, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

LEE, ORUM (1521885) Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Orrville, Ohio. B—Reedy, W. Va. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

E, ROBERT S. (1200983) East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918

R—Albany, N. Y. B—Louisville, Ky. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

Lee, Theodore F. (2260957)

Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Ibapah, Utah.

B—Oakley, Idaho.

G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company D, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Having become separated from their company in a smoke barrage, Private Lee and Corpl. Henry W. Cardwell found themselves face to face with a party of the enemy. Private Lee brought his automatic rifle to his shoulder and attempted to fire, but the gun was jammed and would not shoot. Seeing themselves covered by the gun, and not knowing its condition, the Germans threw up their hands, and while Private Lee kept the rifle at his shoulder, Corporal Cardwell rounded up the Germans and disarmed them. Their ruse resulted in the capture of 12 of the enemy, comprising 3 machine-gun crews

Private, first class, Company K, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. During an enemy raid Private Lee exposed himself to heavy artillery, machinegun, and rifle fire to go to the company dump for ammunition. Although wounded twice when en route to the dump and 3 times more while returning, he persisted and delivered to his squad the needed ammunition and then acted as loader for an automatic rifle team until the attack was repulsed.

Major, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
When his battalion had met with heavy artillery, machine-gun, and rifle resistance and his troops were on the verge of becoming disorganized, he took the leadership of the front-line platoon and charged the enemy. In this act he was so seriously wounded that he had to be evacuated.

Captain, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

For extraordinary heroism in command of a raiding party against the enemy trenches near Balschwiller on the morning of Aug. 31, 1918, leading the advance through the enemy wire, being the last to quit the enemy trenches, personally assisting in carrying the wounded back through the enemy counter-barrage, and remaining all day of Aug. 31 in a shell hole in no man's land in order to assist all wounded to return to our line.

Sergeant, Company L, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.

When the advance of his company was checked by concentrated machine-gun and ritle fire Sergeant Lee advanced alone, sought out oneny machine-gun nests, and by the use of hand grenades and with complete disregard for his own safety, killed and wounded members of enemy machine-gun crews, causing them to abandon the guns, and thus permitting the Infantry to again advance. Sergeant Lee's courage and devotion to duty raised the morale of his company to a high pitch.

Private, Company D, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

The advance of his organization having been temporarily halted by machinegun fire from a fortified house, Private Lee went forward as a scout to locate the entrance to the house. After discovering the entrance, he led a detachment in an assault, and at the point of the bayonet compelled about 35 of the enemy to surrender. A few minutes later, while advancing alone toward an outhouse, he effected the capture of more of the enemy.

Second lieutenant, observer, 24th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

He exhibited extreme courage in the course of a long and dangerous photographic ie exhibited extreme courage in the course of a long and dangerous photographic and visual reconnaissance in the region of Mezieres with 2 other planes of the 24th Aero Squadron. Their formation was broken by the attack of 10 enemy pursuit planes, 5 onemy planes attacking Lieutenant Lee and his pilot. With remarkable coolness he succeeded in shooting down 2 of the planes. They then had a clear passage to their own lines, but turned back into Germany to assist a friendly plane with several hostile aircraft attacking it. They succeeded in shooting down 1 more of the enemy. Lieutenant Lee and pilot returned to are lines with information and plotographs of great military. pilot returned to our lines with information and photographs of great military

Second lieutenant, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

When his platoon was held up by fire from a machine-gun nest he advanced alone against the enemy position, and, although mortally wounded, attacked and killed the crew, falling dead among the bodies of the Germans.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary A. Lee.

Sergeant, Company II, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.
Sergeant Lee, with an officer and noncommissioned officer, advanced 200 yards beyond the objective of the patrol in the face of heavy machine-gun fire and captured 3 77-millimeter fieldpicees and 2 light machine guns.

Sergeant, Company C, 102d Field Signal Battalion, 27th Division. Sergeant Lee was a member of an advanced regimental signal party which went over the top with the third wave in the attack against the Hindenburg line. The officer in charge and 3 privates were wounded, and 2 sergeants, 2 corporals, and 2 runners were killed. Sergeant Lee, in the face of terrific shell and machine-gun fire, fearlessly and courageously strung telephone lines and patrolled same in such a manner as to insure telephone communications with the battalion to which he was attached. His bravery and extreme devotion to duty was a splendid inspiration to all his comrades.

Private, Company H, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.
When the advance of his battalion was held up by a machine-gun nest on a high ridge south of Gesnes, Private Lee and another soldier charged the emplacement, killing part of the erew and routing the others, capturing 3 heavy machine guns and 1 light Maxim gun, which they turned on the retreating Germans

R—Fort Worth, Tex. B—Yoakum, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Lee, William F.
At Cheveuges, France, Nov. 7, 1918.
R—Amherst, Mass.
B—Fort Warren, Mass.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Leeb, Joseph S. (2293711)

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*LEEKER, GARRETT (550897). Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Jersey City, N. J. B—Jersey City, N. J. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

*LEEPER, DAN C Near Villers-devant-Dun, France, Nov. 2, 1918. R—Denison, Tex. B—Denison, Tex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LEGENDRE, JAMES HENNEN.... On the Lucy-Torey Road, France, June 6, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New Orleans, La.
G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

LEGGE, BARNWELL R. Near Verdun, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Charleston, S. C. B—Charleston, S. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also

Legnosky, John (560215)

In the Bois-de-Malaumont, east of Breuilles, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Hadley, Pa.
B—Leisenring, Pa.
G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

*Lehy, Howard C. (1746071)

Near Bois-de-Grande-Fontaine,
France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—Oakhurst, N. J.
B—Oakhurst, N. J.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*LEIBOULT, EDWARD N... Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R.—Fulton, N. Y. B.—Palermo, N. Y. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

LEITER, WILSON H. (1245908). Near Fismette, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—Harrisburg, Pa. B—Harrisburg, Pa. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919. Corporal, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. During an advance of his company he volunteered to carry a wounded comrade to a place of safety through hostile machine-gun fire. He later brought a wounded soldier from no man's land through a heavy machine-gun and artillery barrage.

Major, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

While his battalion was engaged with the enemy on the heights near Sedan he left his advance command post, went forward in the face of heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, where he personally supervised the successful reduction of enemy machine-gun positions and strong points. Later in the engagement, when his battalion was under a heavy frontal and flanking fire of machine guns, rifles, and direct artillery fire from high ground, he again left his advance command post, and with the utmost disregard for his personal safety advanced into the assault waves, traversed them, encouraging his men, and assisted the company officers in bringing such effective fire upon the enemy as to analyte the battalion to advance upon their objective in the minienemy as to enable the battalion to advance upon their objective in the minimum time and with the least possible loss of life. His gallant and courageous conduct was an inspiration to his command and in a large measure responsible for the success of the 28th Infantry in the operations against Sedan.

Private, Company D, 361st Infantry, 91st Division. He voluntarily and unhesitatingly left shelter under heavy shellfre and without thought of personal danger rendered first aid and carried a wounded comrade to a place of safety.

Private, first class, Company F, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. In the attack on Hul 253 Private Leeker took command of his platoon after the platoon leader and the sergeant had become casualties. He reorganized the platoon under fire and fearlessly led it to its objective. He fell mortally wounded while leading his men in the attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Sadie Leeker.

Captain, 359th Infantry, 90th Division.

In the face of intense machine-gun fire, Captain Leeper led his company forward to its objective, capturing a machine-gun nest and making possible the capture of a strong enemy position on a hill. He was severely wounded during these operations, but his courage was an inspiration to his men in consolidating their position.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Leonora O. Leeper.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He displayed exceptional bravery in organizing and leading a party of voluntoers through heavy machine-gun fire for the purpose of securing 2 wounded men on the Lucy-Torcy Road June 6, 1918.

Major, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. Personally leading an attack against a strong enemy position, he inspired his men by his courage, cutting his way through entanglements and directing the attacks against 3 different strong points.

First sergeant, Company L, 58th Infantry, 4th Division.
Although painfully wounded in the foot on Oct. 4, First Sergeant Legnosky remained on duty with his company. After his company commander had been killed he assumed command of the company and efficiently led it in action until the unit was released on Oct. 7, 1918. He repeatedly exposed himself to heavy fire in order to better control his men.

Sergeant, Company B, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

After his patrol had disposed of 2 sniper posts with rifle grenades he held his group in position and covered the withdrawal of his platoon from heavy enfilading machine-gun fire of the enemy.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Lehy.

First lieutenant, 326th Infantry, 82d Division. Under terrific fire he led his platoon across the Aire River, formed them on ground devoid of cover, and, though he had suffered 50 per cent casualties. led the survivors in a charge against the enemy, falling mortally wounded at the head of his men. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Della M. Leiboult.

Private, Company M, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
While his company was withdrawing to a place of safety Private Leiter stopped in a most exposed position and picking up a badly wounded man he continued in the withdrawal until the point of assembly was reached, at which time he brought him to a dressing station.

*LEITNER, ALOYSIUS....

At Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 12, R—Holstein, Wis. B—Charlesburg, Wis. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

LEITTELL, WILBUR F. Near Apremont, France, Oct. 1, 1918. R—State College, Pa.
B—Scottdale, Pa.
G. O. Ne. 72, W. D., 1920.

Lemaster, Frank (155210)

Near Bois-de-Moucy, France, Oct.
9, 1918.
R-Morgan County, Ky.
B-Morgan County, Ky.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LE MASTERS, CHARLES A. (2193675)... Near Beauclair, France, Nov. 4-11, 1918. R—Litchfield, Nebr. B—Ord, Nebr. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LE MAY, JOSEPH J (2784996) ..... Near Eclisfontaine, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Seattle, Wash. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

LEMIEUX, WILLIAM (554737). At Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Taunton, Mass. B—Canada. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*LEMMA, SAMUEL (542066) ______ In the Belleau Wood, France, June 18, 1918.

R—Canandaigua, N. Y.

B—Italy.

G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Near Charpentry, France, Sept. 27-28, 1918. LEMMON, FRED L ...

R—Hutchinson, Kans. B—Clyde, Ohio. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

LEMON, DWIGHT E. (3107539) ___. Near Verdun, France, Nov. 8, 1918. R—Indianapolis, Ind. B—Alvin, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Savannah, Ga. B—Savannah, Ga. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Private. Headquarters Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

On June 12, 1918, in the attack on Bois-de-Belleau, although seriously wounded on the 12, the first access of boss-de-Beneal, atthough seriously wounded he displayed extraordinary heroism in assisting to capture 3 officers and 169 men of the enemy forces, after which he continued forward and aided in taking 6 more prisoners, who were operating a machine gun. The wounds received while performing these valiant deeds have since proved fatal. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Joseph Leitner.

Captain, 107th Machine Gun Battalion, 28th Division.

Captain Leitzell exposed himself to heavy fire in order to place his machine guns in action against an enemy counterattack. Due to his initiative and gallantry the enemy attack was repulsed without the aid of supporting Infantry. Later, the commander of arriving Infantry support being wounded, Captain Letzell took command of the Infantry and led them to their positions. While in the performance of this act he was seriously wounded.

Private, Company C, 1st Engineers, 1st Division. Remaining alone on an outpost 100 yards in advance of his detachment, Private Lemaster, by the efficient and effective use of his rifle, stopped a German counterattack, personally killing 12 of the enemy during the exploit.

Corporal, Company C, 314th Field Signal Battalion, 89th Division. From Nov. 4 to 11, while continually under heavy shellfire, Corporal Le Masters laid and maintained lines of communication within his area with utter disregard for his personal safety.

Private, Company K, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers, Private Le May, with 5 others, advanced 400 yards beyond their front to bring in wounded comrades. They succeeded in rescuing 7 of their men and also in bringing in the dead body of a lieutenant while exposed to terrific machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalien, 3d Division.
Though the two Infantry platoons to which he was attached had been reduced to but 15 men, Sergeant Lemieux stuck to his position with his 2 guns, and, in order to obtain a better field of fire, placed them on top of a railroad embankment in plain view of the enemy under intense machine-gun and shell fire. From here he maintained a deadly fire upon enemy boats crossing the Marne River, sinking several, killing the occupants of others, and forcing several to turn back. He also wiped out several enemy platoons which were preparing to cross the river. His guns were twice buried by hursting shells, but each to cross the river. His guns were twice buried by bursting shells, but each time he calmly cleared the guns and immediately resumed firing. His gallant stand contributed materially to the successful defense of the sector.

Private, medical detachment, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. After being severely wounded in the leg, Private Lemma exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire in order to give medical attention to other wounded. His activities after being wounded caused a serious hemorrhage, which resulted in his death from loss of blood.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Lemma.

Sergeant, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

He alone charged an enemy machine gun, capturing the gun and 2 German soldiers. He was seriously wounded, while in the successful execution of this mission. His timely capture of the gun made it possible for his company to advance and organize their objective with few casualties.

lieutenant colonel, 140th Infantry, 35th Division. Wounded severely in the chest, he remained in command of his battalion for 24 hours, until no longer able to walk. He showed a great personal courage and skill in leading his battalion against heavy shell and machine-gun fire, refusing to be evacuated until helpless from loss of blood.

Private, Company B, 310th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th Division.
When his comrades, many of whom were wounded, were suffering from want of water, he took their canteens and went 200 meters to the rear under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire; here he filled the canteens at a spring and returned through intense fire, under direct observation of machine gunners and enjoyer. and snipers.

Corporal, Company B, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Corporal Lenahan, a runner, repeatedly carried messages through heavy barages. On one occasion, when an enemy shell struck a dugout occupied by himself and several comrades, burying 2 of them, though he was suffering from the concussion, he immediately set to work digging out the imprisoned men, disregarding the intense shell and machine-gun fire to which he was subjected *Lenahan, John C. (1710242) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Pottsville, Pa. B—Pottsville, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

22, 1918.
R—Kings Mills, Ohio.
B—Waynesville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

LEONARD, HARRY W. (93220) Near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 15-18, and July 28, 1918.

R—London, Ohio.
B—Madison County, Ohio.
G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

LEONARD, JOHN W NARD, JOHN W
Near Romagne, France, Oct. 14, 1918.
R—Toledo, Ohio.
B—Toledo, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Leonard, Melvin H...
Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R.—Boston, Mass.
B.—Middleboro, Mass.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LEPLEY, JAMES B. (102463).

Near Souain, to the northeast of Chalons-sur-Marne, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Red Oak, Iowa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

LESESNE, FRANCIS K ... Rear Ardeuil, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Charleston, S. C. B—Charleston, S. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LESH, WILLIAM THEODORE (1915792)_ Near Sommerance, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Scranton, Pa. B—Scranton, Pa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

LETZING, JOHN LAWRENCE .. North of Montfaucon, France, Sept.

29, 1918. R—Roxbury, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

Levan, Simpson (156177)

Between Moneaux and Vaux,
France, July 1-3, 1918.
R-Linn, Kans.
B-Linn, Kans.
G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

LEVAS, JAMES (106256)_ AN, JAMES (10020).

Between Berzy-Le-Sec and Soissons,
France, July 19, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Turkey.

G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

27, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company M, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. When his company was ordered to take a position along the river bank, under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, Private Lenahan, acting first sergeant, made his way from flank to flank, supervising the disposition of the troops.

Despite serious wounds received, he completed his mission and reported to his company commander, dying shortly after from the effects of his wounds. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Lucy Lenahan.

Private, Company K, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
Engaged as gunner of an automatic rifle team, Private Lennox was so severely wounded that he was unable to withdraw from the advancing enemy. Concealing himself until the assaulting wave had passed over him, he opened fire on the enemy from the rear, completely discouraging their attack and forcing them to retire.

Private, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Severely wounded on July 19, 1918, he continued to go forward with his company until the operations were over. On July 20, in spite of his wounds, he carried a message through a heavy barrage.

Private, first class, Headquarters Company, 166th Infantry, 42d Division. During the terrific struggle of July 15-18, 1918, he continually volunteered and carried messages through territory swept by high explosives, shrapnel and gas. On July 28 he left his shelter to assist his company commander, who, had been seriously wounded, carrying him through a rain of shells to a place of centre. of safety.

Major, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
Major Leonard personally led the assaulting wave in an attack under severe shell and machine-gun fire from the front and flanks. Upon reaching the objective, he directed the organization of the position and by his example of fearlessness rallied his men and kept his line intact.

First lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

Although impeded by a very painful wound, he continued to lead his company, resisting a first and second attack of the enemy, though barely able to walk. Upon gaining his objective he supervised the consolidation of the position under severe shellfire and remained until his company was relieved.

Sergeant, Company M, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

Near Sonain, to the northeast of Chalons-sur-Marne, France, on the night of July 14-15, 1918, he left his trench and returned to the woods, through a smothering fire of gas, high explosive, and shrappel, to search for 2 men from his platoon who were missing. He found them lost in the woods and guided them back to the platoon. On July 28, 1918, pear Sergy, France, he led his platoon forward in the face of a heavy machine-gun fire and captured 6 machine guns and 13 prisoners from the Prussian Guards.

Captain, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.

Painfully wounded in the arm by shellfire, Captain Lesesne nevertheless remained with his company until his organization two days later had gone into a reserve position, and he was ordered evacuated.

Sergeant, Battery A, 321st Field Artillery, 82d Division.
Wounded by shellfire, he refused to be evacuated, but after receiving first aid continued to command his section, which was under heavy fire, encouraging his men by his own bravery.

Second lieutenant, 148th Infantry, 37th Division.
During the attack Lieutenant Letzing exposed himself to heavy artillery, rifle, and machine-gun fire to lead tanks against enemy machine-gun positions.

After the tanks had been withdrawn he walked up and down the firing line of his platoon and encouraged his men to greater efforts.

Corporal, Company A, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.

Although wounded in the head and left leg by a high-explosive shell, which fact he concealed from his officers, Corporal Levan continued forward with his company. While thus wounded he led his platoon under heavy fire from Moneaux to Vaux during three days of hard and constant fighting, effectively discharging his duties until exhausted.

Sergeant, Company B, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division, sergeant, Company B, at Machine Gun Battanion, its Division. He took charge of his platoon after his commander was killed. Soon afterwards he himself was wounded, but he dressed his own wound and continued forward. In a later advance directed by him he was severely wounded, but placed his gun in position, looked after the security of his men, and reported those facts personally to his commanding officer before permitting himself to be taken to a dressing station.

Private, Company G, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

When his company was in action near Hill 212, Private Levenson was posted as lookout while his company was intrenching. He observed the enemy bringing forward machine guns through the wheat fields to place them in position. Waiting until they were within close range, he exposed himself to heavy machine-gun and artillery fire and succeeded in killing or distribute these properties. disabling the crew of 2 machine guns, thus saving his company from heavy casualties,

Levesque, Adelord (1550809)

Near Montfaucon, France, Oct. 5, 1918, and near Cierges, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R-Canada. B-Waterville, Me. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Levine, Abel J. (1211232).

Near Bony, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Mount Vernon, N. Y.

B-Russia. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*LEVINE, JACOB (1697649) Near St. Juvin, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

LEVIS, WILLIAM EDWARD.

Near Bois-d'Aigremont, France,
July 15, 1918.

R—Alton, Ill.
B—Alton, Ill.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

LEVY, JOSEPH (1746080). At Bois-de-Grande Fontaine, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Scabright, N. J.

B—Scabright, N. J.

G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

LEVY, REUBEN M. (2263302)

Near Very, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Placerville, Calif.

B—Vallejo, Calif.

G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

Lewandowski, Felix (551730)...

During attack on Hill 253 in the Argonne, France, Oct. 8 and 9, 1918.

R.—Trenton, N. J.

B.—Russia.

G. O. Noge, W. D. 1999. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

*Lewis, Charles (2388698)

In the Bois-des-Rappes, France, Oct. 12, 1918, and near Cunel, France, Oct. 13, 1918.

R—San Francisco, Calif.

B—Toledo, Ohio.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Lewis, Converse R_____ On the Buluan River, island of Mindanao, P. I., June 14, 1904. R—New Orelans, La. B—Fort Custer, Mont. G. O. No. 111, W. D., 1919.

LEWIS, EVAN E. Near Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R-Worthing, S. Dak. B-Worthing, S. Dak. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Battery D, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

on Oct. 18, when 4 men of his gun crew were wounded and he himself hit by a shell fragment, he kept the gun in action until a new gun crew was organized.

On Oct. 18, when an enemy shell burst at his gun, killing or wounding all the gun crew but himself, he again kept to his gun carrying out the mission assigned to him.

Corporal, Company H, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

After his platoon had suffered heavy casualties and all the sergeants had been wounded, Corporal Levine collected the remaining effectives in his own and wounded, corporal evidence concern the remaining checkers in his own and other units, formed a platoon, and continued the advance. When his rifle was rendered useless, he killed several of the enemy with his pistol. He was wounded shortly afterwards, but he refused assistance until his men had been cared for and evacuated.

Private, Company E, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
While his company was being attacked from three sides and the terrific enemy fire had caused many casualties in the ranks, he volunteered and carried a message to the left flank. After he had advanced about 10 yards he was killed by a deluge of machine-gun bullets.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Nathan Levine.

Second lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

On several occasions he volunteered and went through the intense artillery bombardment of the enemy to perform important missions. He led a detail of 3 men to secure rockets, and on the journey 2 were killed and the other wounded. Undannted, he alone pushed on, arriving at the ammunition dump just as an enemy shell exploded and destroyed it.

Supply sergeant, Company B, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
With utter disregard for his own safety, he repeatedly led details through heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun fire, carrying rations to the hungry and exhausted men in the advanced positions. Again and again he carried wounded men under the hottest enemy fire to dressing stations with complete contempt for personal danger. The consistently heroic conduct of Sergeant Levy throughout his combat service served as an example of soldierly conduct to the men of his company.

First sergeant, Company B, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.

After the advance of his platoon had been held up by machine-gun fire, Sergeant

Levy, with 1 other man, attacked 1 machine gun and put it out of action. This act resulted in the enemy abandoning 2 other machine guns and permitted the advance of his platoon.

Private, first class, Company I, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Private Lewandowski carried numerous messages from company to battalion headquarters over a route which was constantly swept by heavy machine-gun and artillery fire. His efforts in maintaining communication were of the greatest value to his commanding officer.

Private, Company A, 368th Infantry, 92d Division.

During an attack on Binarville he volunteered to go down the road that leads into the village to rescue a wounded soldier of his company. To accomplish his mission he was compelled to go under heavy machine-gun and shell fire. In total disregard of personal danger he brought the wounded man safely to applies.

Sergeant, Company M, 61st Infantry, 5th Division. He assisted, on Oct. 12, in carrying his company commander, who had been severely wounded, to a first-aid station under heavy shellfire. On Oct. 13 near Cunel, he took charge of his company and successfully reached the objective and held it until he was killed by shellfire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Carrie Runkel.

Second lieutenant, 23d Infantry, U. S. Army. For extraordinary heroism in action against hostile Moros on the Buluan River, island of Mindanao, June 14, 1904.

Major, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

Being second in command of the assaulting troops, he displayed great bravery and rare initiative. While under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire he reorganized scattered units, established and organized positions in depth, set up liaison from front to rear, and in hand-to-hand fighting personally led his men, inspiring in them a confidence and tenacity of purpose that were productive of present ductive of success.

Oak-leaf cluster.

He is also awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished-service.

He is also awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished-service. cross for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Beaumont, France, Nov. 10, 1918: Commanding his regiment, he personally led the advance of his front line, under a heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and gained the absolute confidence of his troops by his example of courage and coolness.

1918.

R—Chavies, Ala. B—Cherokec, Ala. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

*Lewis, Frank N_Near Cunel, France, Oct. 5-6, 1918.
R—Memphis, Tenn.
B—Cismont, Va.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LEWIS, HAROLD A. (1277011) ... Near Ravine de la Reine, north of Samogneux, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Jersey City, N. J. B—Jersey City, N. J. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

*LEWIS, HARRY J. (549264) ___ Near Jaulgonne, France, July 23, 1918.

R—Martville, N. Y. B—Rochester, N. Y. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Lewis, James (284458)_______ Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4-11, 1918. R—Hay River, Wis. B—Boyceville, Wis. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Near Ville-Savoye, Fran 18, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Lewis, Morrison F. (1249842) Near Baslieux, France, Sept. 5, 1918.

R—New Castle, Pa. B—Jeanette, Pa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Elmira, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Lewis, Robert F. (1315851)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29,
1918.

R—Bolton, N. C. B—Wilmington, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Lewis, Stacy A. (105252).

Near Soissons, France, July 22, 1918.

R—Kildare, Okla.

B—Silverdale, Kans.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Lewis, William F.

Near Laksamana Usap's Cotta, island of Jolo, Philippine Islands,
Jan. 7, 1905.

R—Kinston, N. C.
B—Chester Springs, Va.
G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

Private, first class, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

During the period from Oct. 9-11, 1918, he repeatedly volunteered and carried messages from his company in the front line to his battalion post of command, crossing and recrossing a fire-swept valley while engaged in this work. After being dangerously wounded on his last trip, he bent all his energies to attracting the attention of another runner who would deliver his message, but the delay in securing first aid resulted in his death. Ilis work during these days was not only an inspiration to his comrades but also of inestimable value in the success of the regimental attack.

Postburnously awarded. Medal presented to father, Joseph W. Lewis

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Joseph W. Lewis.

Captain, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Although severely wounded in both arms and both legs during the advance of his company on the night of Oct. 5-6, Captain Lewis continued in command, and by his bravery and courage contributed materially to the complete sue cess of the attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. T. W. Lewis.

Sergeant, Company K, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.

After his platoon commander had been wounded, Sergeant Lewis, although twice wounded himself, continued to lead the platoon until its objective was reached. By his bravery and persistency the platoou, greatly outnumbered, succeeded in overcoming the enemy.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Private Lewis repeatedly volunteered and carried messages across a zone swept by artillery, machine-gun, and rifle fire. He fearlessly and efficiently performed his duties until killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Merton Lewis.

Private, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

He volunteered repeatedly for dangerous missions, and, a private at the time, took command of the platoon when all the noncommissioned officers had become casualties. In leading his men forward he inspired them by his personal bravery, ably directing the consolidation of the objective when taken. Placed in permanent command of his platoon by his company commander, he led an attack with marked disregard of personal danger and later led ration and water details through heavily gassed and shelled areas to obtain supplies for his men.

Captain, 302d Engineers, 77th Division.

Under enemy fire, high explosive and gas, Captain Lewis voluntarily plunged into the Vesle River to rescue some soldiers who had fallen into the water with full packs while crossing a footbridge and were in danger of drowning. In order to see he removed his gas mask, and as a result was severely gassed.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division. He directed a detail running a telephone line to an advanced observation post under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and when shellfire rendered the maintenance of the line impossible, directed his detail in the evacuation of wounded infantrymen. Subjecting himself to intense enemy fire he carried to the rear the body of an officer who had been killed by enemy machinegun fire.

Corporal, Company M, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

After his company had reached its objective, Corporal Lewis rendered valuable assistance in organizing positions on ground swept by enemy fire. Alone, he llanked a machine-gun position and captured two prisoners. While patroling between the outposts he was wounded by machine-gun fire.

Corporal, Company G, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
His section having been stopped by a concealed machine gun, Corporal Lewis, on his own initiative, crawled forward alone over ground swept by machinegun fire. Attacking the nest with bombs and firing at it with his rifle, he killed the entire crew, numbering 7, and thereby cleared the way for the further advance of his section.

Sergeant, Company A, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. He voluntarily organized a machine-gun crew, moved forward in front of the Infantry under heavy machine-gun and shell fire, killed an entire machinegun crew, and captured the gun.

Captain, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

During the attack on the cotta, Captain Lewis showed great gallantry and courage when he went into the line of fire to the assistance of a badly wounded soldier, whom he rescued and carried to the dressing station, where the man later died.

the gun.

LIBERMAN, LOUIS (125221)

At Villers-Tournelle, Cantigny sector, France, May 1, 1918.

R.—New York, N. Y.

B.—Russia.

G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

LICKLITER, JOHN D. (57133)

Near Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 20, 1918.

R-Martinsburg, W. Va. B-Martinsburg, W. Va. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

LIDDELL, CHARLES J. (1489634)

Near Attigny, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Marietta, Okla.

B—Thackerville, Okla.

G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

9, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill.

B-Canada.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

LIEBERMAN, NATHAN (1386775) ... At Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

Liebeskind, Harry (2853)
In the Bois-de-Caures, north of Verdun, France, Nov. 8, 1918.
R-Waterbury, Conn.
B-Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

LIENHARD, JACOB ... Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Plymouth, Wis. B—Plymouth, Wis. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Lietzan, Joseph (126340) _____ At Couellemelle, France, Apr. 27, 1918.

R—Hammond, Ind. B—Hammond, Ill. G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

LIEUALLEN, FRED ADCOOK Near Sergy, France, July 28 to 31,

R—Portland, Oreg. B—Umatilla County, Oreg. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

10, 1918.

R—Freeport, Ill. B—Broadhead, Wis. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

LIGHT, JOHN C. (1467652) Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Topeka, Kans. B—Plaiu View, Kans. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

First licutenant, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
Licutenant Lewis, although ill at the time, led his platoon in an attack in the Bois-de-Grande Montagne against numerous enemy machine-gun nests and quickly dispatched the enemy troops therein. Finally he advanced alone and captured an enemy sniper from a tree and brought him into our lines.
He remained with his company until Oct. 18, when he collapsed with shell shock and exhaustion.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 6th, Field Artillery, 1st Division. He displayed distinguished bravery in twice leaving his shelter during a heavy bombardment and going to the assistance of wounded men lying exposed in the open.

Sergeant, Company D, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. He gave proof of unbesitating devotion and energy in brilliantly leading four men against a machine gun which was delivering intense fire and capturing Sergeant, Company D, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.

Sergeant Liddell was engaged on a reconnaissance with another soldier when the latter was wounded. Being unable to carry his comrade back to the dressing station, he placed him in a sheltered position and made his way to regimental headquarters, 4 kilometers to the rear, to secure an ambulance. The ambulance being driven back by enemy artillery fire, Sergeant Liddell made another trip to the rear and returned with a side car, in which he succeeded in rescuing the wounded man, despite heavy machine-gun fire.

Private, Company II, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Advancing single handed against a machine gun, Private Lidwell put it out of action, killing its crew of 3 and preventing an enfilading fire on the company, thus saving many lives.

Corporal, Company C, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. He displayed unusual gallautry in rushing a machine-gun nest whose fire was checking the advance. With the assistance of men in his squad he put the machine gun out of action and took 4 prisoners.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 102d Infautry, 26th Division. Private Liebeskind exposed himself to beavy enemy fire to accompany a medical officer to a badly wounded soldier. The patient was carried to a shell bole, and later Private Liebeskind exposed himself to heavy fire in order to cut a passage through a wire entanglement. This act made it possible to evacuate the patient to the rear.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He led his men in an attack on a strongly held enemy position through heavy machine-gun and shellfire, and although severely wounded continued to lead and encourage his men.

Private, Battery E, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division. Under a heavy bombardment, be voluntarily went to the assistance of other soldiers who had been buried in a dugout by enemy shellfire, and was killed while engaged in this heroic act.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Anna Lietzan.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 47th Infantry, 4th Division. Captain Lieuallea operated a dressing station [for 2 days under unusually heavy enemy fire. Our front line was for a time bent back by the enemy, thus exposing his position to capture by the enemy; he refused to leave his dressing station, and continued to attend to the needs of 100 wounded men until the lost ground was retaken by our troops. This officer performed gallant service also at St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 6 to 12, 1918, while maintaining a dressing station with the advanced elements under heavy enemy fire.

Second lieutenant, 122d Machine Gun Battalion, 33d Division.
Leading his platoon, under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, Lieutenant Liggett launched an attack on 2 enemy machine-gun nests. Accompanied by I soldier, he silenced the fire from I nest with rifle fire, and directed the fire of his platoon so that the other nest was destroyed. He was severely wounded in this action.

Corporal, Company A, 110th Engineers, 35th Division.

He fearlessly attacked a machine-gun position and single handed killed 1 gunner and captured another. Later, when his entire squad was wounded he refused to be evacuated, although severely wounded himself, and remained at his post until his entire squad had been cared for.

LIGHT, LAVERN (2417804) ... Near Grand Pre, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R-Cooperstown, N. Y. B-Exeter, N. Y. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

LIGHTNER, BLAKE
At Commont, France, July 29-31,
1918, and near Montblainville,
France, Sept. 27 to Oct. 3, 1918.
R—Rosebud, Pa.
B—Irvona, Pa.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

LIGON, LOUIS LUCIUS. Near Brancourt, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Anderson, S. C. B—Piedmont, S. C. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

LIGSUKIS, FRANK (1899406) ... Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R—Hartford, Coun. B-Russia. G. O. No. S1, W. D., 1919.

9-11, 1918. R-Chicago, Ill. B-Sweden. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

LILLARD, DAVID W.
Near Ponchaux, France, Oct. 7, 1918.
R.—Etowah, Tenn.
B.—Decatur, Tenn.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*Limon, Jóe (2268298).... Near St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 10,

R—Seattle, Wash. B—Spain. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

LINBERG, ALBERT W.
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 8, 1918.
R—Hillsboro, Ill.
B—Sweden. G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1924.

LINDAHL, LUTHER E. (558271)

Near Bois-de-Brieulles, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Sheffield, Pa.
B—Sheffield, Pa.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company E, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
While his company and 2 others were fighting to prevent being cut off and annihilated by the enemy, Corporal Light voluntarily crept out 10 yards in advance of the line and killed 5 of the enemy who were attempting to execute an encircling movement with machine guns. Remaining in his exposed position with cool tenacity he contributed materially toward reducing the hostile forces and making possible a rush by his company.

Corporal, Company F, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.

His daring and bravery were conspicuous. He charged a German machine gun single handed, killing the gunner and putting 3 others of the crew to flight. During this action he killed 6 of the enemy. He showed rare leadership on numerous occasions in forming groups and leading them against machine run nexts. machine-gun nests.

Second lieutenant, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.
Lieutenant Lightner voluntarily established an advance observation post at Courmont, During his work he was knocked down by the concussion of an exploding shell, but remained at his post. Throughout the action in the Argonne he repeatedly exposed himself while leading his men. At Montblainville, although wounded by a shell splinter, he continued in action and succeeded in putting into operation German machine guns against the enemy, greatly existing inequality their gounderstack. He refused to be executed greatly assisting in repulsing their counterattack. He refused to be evacuated until ordered to the rear.

Captain, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. Commanding a battalion which had been caught in a terrific barrage, Captain Ligon pushed forward and led all his command until the barrage had lifted. Although he was severely gassed, which rendered him nearly speechless and caused much suffering, he remained with his troops for 8 days, leaving his post only when ordered to do so by his commanding officer.

Mechanic, Company I, 325th Infantry, 82d Division. With another soldier, Mechanic Ligsukis voluntarily made several trips into No Man's Land under heavy enemy fire and carried to safety 8 wounded comrades who had been lying helpless and exposed to this fire.

Private, Company D, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Being on duty as a runner, he carried messages under beavy shell and machinegun fire. Owing to casualties he did the work of 6 runners, proving himself to be a man of unusual gallantry and devotion to duty.

Captain, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. Severely wounded in the side when an enemy machine-gun bullet struck and everely wounded in the side when an enemy machine-gun builet struck and exploded two clips of shells in his magazine pouch, Captain Lillard struggled to his feet and directed the further advance of his company. For 6 hours he remained in command of his company, issuing orders from a shell hole under the most intense fire. During part of this period he was practically unconscious and was suffering severe pain, but he nevertheless successfully accomplished the organization of his company's position.

Private, Company M, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Wounded in a scouting mission, Private Limon remained on observation until he had gained valuable information. After having his wound dressed, he returned to duty and made several trips to the flank regiments, each time bringing back valuable information for our own troops and of the enemy.
He later valuable information for our own troops are described in the company of the private of the He later voluntarily located a minnenwerfer and heavy mortar emplacement from which the enemy was firing on neighboring troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Erminic Limon.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 18th Infantry, 1st Division. Crawling out over shell-torn ground and in the face of direct machine-gun fire, he rescued a soldier whose leg had been shattered by shellfire. By performing an amputation while constantly exposed to sniping and machine-gun fire he made it possible to evacuate the soldier to safety a few hours later, when the infantry moved forward.

Sergeant, Company I, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Sergeant Lindahl charged an enemy machine gun which was inflicting heavy losses upon our troops and delaying the advance. He wounded the gunner and captured the gun, thereby enabling our advance to continue.

Sergeant, Company H, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
After all his company officers and first sergeant had been evacuated because of gas, Sergeant Linden assumed command of the company, which was then occupying an extremely precarious position, exposed to an unusually heavy shell and gas bombardment. He remained in command until the company was relieved, and the following night, despite his sufferings from the effects of gas helped carry up ammunition under intense enemy artillery fire,

LINDGREN, EVERETTE E.
Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4,
1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Adrian, Minn. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

LINDHOLM, REUBEN P. In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 4, 1918 R.—Bayshore, Long Island, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Lindie, Elmer H. (68223) Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R-Monson, Me. B-Monson, Me. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

R—Dunnegan, Mo. B—Leonard, Kans. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

1918. R-Madison, N. C. B-Madison, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Lindsay, Robert W. (1386578)..... Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R-Morris, Ill. B-Morris, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*Lindsey, Clinton S..... In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 6, 1918. R—San Marcos, Tex. B—Bertram, Tex. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

LINDSEY, CLYDE II. (3489185)

Near Bois-de-Brieulles, France,
Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Cambridge, Ill.
B—Maywood, Mo.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LINDSTEN, ALBIN (2156105)

Near Bellicourt, France, Scpt. 29,
1918. R—Whitebear, Minn. B—Whitebear, Minn. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Lingo, Lovick P.
At Cornay, France, Oct. 9-10, 1918.
R—Miledgeville, Ga.
B—McIntyre, Ga.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. During an attack on a strong enemy position, under terrific machine-gun and artillery fire, he led his platoon to the support of the platoon operating on his left, rallying men from another company, who had become separated from their organization, to his support. Although severely wounded, he remained in action until the position was consolidated.

Second lieutenant, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

Although wounded severely in the arm by a machine-gun bullet, he continued to lead his company. After making the disposition of his company he reported in person to his commanding officer. He then returned to his company and continued in command until relieved.

Private, Company F, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
Under heavy grenade and rifle fire he crawled forward from shell hole to shell hole until he reached a flank position of an enemy machine-gun nest, from which point he killed a gunner and caused the rest to surrender to his comrades.

Sergeant, Company B, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

His platoon having been halted by heavy machine-gun fire, Sergeant Lindquist went forward through heavy machine-gun fire and, single handed, attacked an enemy sniper who, armed with a light machine gun, was inflicting many casualties on his organization. He killed the sniper and thus enabled his organization to continue the advance.

Sergeant, Company L, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

Sergeant Lindsay was in command of his platoon on the right flank of the assaulting wave, when hidden concentrations of machine guns were encountered in front and on the right flank. Skillfully maneuvering his combat groups, he led them with remarkable courage and coolness through the heavy enemy machine-gun fire and broke up the hostile counterattack which had been started. In so doing he personally advanced ahead of his men under heavy fire from machine guns and snipers and succeeded in locating some of the machine-gun nests.

First lieutenant, 139th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
In company with two other planes, Lieutenant Lindsay attacked 3 enemy planes (Fokker type) at an altitude of 3,000 meters, and after a sharp fight brought down 1 of them. While engaged with the 2 remaining machines 8 more planes (Fokker type) came at him from straight ahead. He flew straight through their formation, gained an advantageous position, and brought down another plane before he withdrew from the combat.

Private, Company B. 131st Infantry, 33d Division. the volunteered to carry messages over ground swept by heavy fire after 2 other runners had been wounded. He delivered important messages working to maintain liaison after he had himself been wounded.

Private, 82d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He displayed commendable gallantry when he voluntarily sought permission to leave shelter and, at great exposure to himself, rescued a helpless wounded officer from an open field.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Felix W. Lindsey.

Private, Company A, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.
Disregarding personal safety, Private Lindsey, in the performance of his duties as runner, carried repeated messages across a greatly exposed area, which was subjected to fierce artillery and machine-gun fire. He succeeded after another runner had been killed in the attempt.

Private, Company H, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers by his company commander to locate the source of machine-gun fire which had cut off the headquarters platoon from the rest of the company, Private Lindsten crawled through the barrage, ascertained the position of the guns, and led the platoon to safety. He then crawled back through the barrage, located the rest of the company, and guided the platoon to them.

Private, Company D, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. He was a battalion runner, when his battalion was surrounded by the enemy in the forest of Argonne and cut off from communication with friendly troops. He carried messages with great cheerfulness under conditions of stress and under heavy machine-gun and shellfire, at a time when he was exhausted by exposure and hunger, being without food for 5 days.

First lieutenant, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
Lieutenant Lingo was with an attacking party which, after driving off the enemy, was counterattacked and surrounded. Upon being called on to surrender, he refused and, despite the fact that 10 men had been shot down in trying to get away, fought his way out and, though wounded, reached his own lines. Later, when Lieutenant Lingo learned that his company was without officers, he returned and remained with it for several days until weakness from his wound forced his evacuation.

*LINIGER, WILLIAM (2305455)... Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1919. R—Muskcgon, Mich. B—Muscatine, Iowa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Buies Creek, N. C. B—Person County, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Linskey, William F. (1387408)... At Hamel, France, July 4, 1918. R—Chicago, III. B—Chicago, III. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

LINTON, CLYDE W. (152364)

Near Suippes, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Akron, Mich.
B—Unionville, Mich.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*LIPPE, OSCAR P. (1707011) ..... Near Vesle River, France, Aug. 29, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*LIPPITT, ALEXANDER F...

In the Champagne sector, north of Chalons, France, July 15, 1918, R.—Providence, R. I. B.—Providence, R. I. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

1918. R—Brenham, Tex. B—Brenham, Tex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LISA, JAMES R. Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—Randalls Island, N. Y. B—Calument, Mich. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

*LISTER, JOHN M. (2264913) Near Waereghem, Belgium, Oct. 31, 1918. R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Austria.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

LITCHFIELD, JOHN RUSSELL.....

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918. R—Blackwell, Okla. B—Flanagan, Ill. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company I, 126th Infantry, 32d Division. After all the officers of his company had been killed or wounded, an attack by his platoon was ordered on an enemy machine-gun nest. Receiving a mortal wound in the attack which captured the enemy nest, Sergeant Liniger struggled on until the objective had been reached, encouraging his men and setting them an example by his bravery.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Elsie Liniger look, Company M, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. Hearing that the casualties in his company were very heavy, he left his place in the kitchen and joined his comrades on the front line. From there he advanced alone a distance of 200 yards and located 2 machine-gun nests, the journey being done in the face of heavy enemy fire.

Private, Company E, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
He was severely wounded in the right arm by shrapnel at the beginning of the battle. Nevertheless he carried his automatic rifle forward and used it effectively in the assault on the village.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Patrick Linskey.

Corporal, Battery E, 42d Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps. He displayed remarkable courage and devotion to duty as a lineman in charge of exposed telephone lines between his battery commander's station and the firing battery during the German attack at Suippes. At great personal risk he repaired the lines as they were broken by shellfire. In performing this duty he was severely wounded.

First lleutenant, 51st Infantry Brigade, 26th Division.
Lieutenant Linton, while acting as liaison officer with brigade headquarters, volunteered to carry a message from the front lines to the rear through a terrific barrage and murderous machine-gun fire. After successfully accomplishing this mission he returned with a platoon of reinforcements across an open field through the same heavy fire. When the town of Marcheville fell into the enemy's hands, he volunteered to lead a platoon in the counterattack and was wounded while in command. He retained command and held his ground with the platoon until he received his second and fatal wound. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Catherine S. Linton.

Sergeant, Company L, 307th Infantry, 77th Division. He saw a wounded comrade 50 yards away and immediately started to his assistance across an open space covered by machine-gun and sniper fire. He was killed attempting to reach his comrade.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Therese Radley Lippe.

First lieutenant, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
During a powerful enemy attack, Lieutenant Lippitt led his platoon through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire in a counterattack against the enemy, which had gained a foothold in our line. The enemy was repulsed and the line reestablished. He assisted in the reorganization and defense of the position against 2 enemy assaults. The gallantry of this officer was a great aid to his command at a time of unusual danger. He was killed a few days later while advancing to an attack. while advancing to an attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles W. Lippitt.

Sergeant, Company I, 141st Infantry, 36th Division.

After all the officers of his company were either killed or wounded, Sergeant Lipscomb took command of his company, and, although twice wounded, continued to advance. He led the company with courage and skill, held difficult positions in the exposed salient occupied by the first battalion, and established a flank guard.

First lieutenant, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.

After his battalion had been compelled to withdraw because of enfilading fire, Lieutenant Lisa displayed marked bravery in going forward and attending wounded men, whose evacuation was impossible because of the intense fire.

Corporal, Company K, 363d Infantry, 91st Division. When the progress of 2 front-line companies had been stopped by the intense fire of enemy machine guns and the enemy began to close in on these troops, he voluntarily assembled a squad of automatic riflemen and grenadiers and went forward to an exposed position, where he directed the fire of his squad until Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Michael Lister.

Pharmacist's mate, third class, U. S. Navy, attached to 74th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He displayed exceptional bravery in giving first aid to the wounded under shell-fire. He was killed while taking a wounded soldier out of a trench to the rear. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Martha D. Litchfield.

LITTAUER, KENNETH P.
Near Conflans, France, Sept. 14, 1918, and near Doulcon, France, Oct. 30, 1918.
R.—Branford, Conn.
B.—Newark, N. J.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LITTLEFIELD, FRANK C. (1910940).....At Cornay, France, Oct. 10, 1918.
R—Winterport, Me.
B—Winterport, Me.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

LITTLEJOHN, KENNETH S.
At Claire-Chenes Woods, France,
Oct. 20, 1918.
R-Nogales, Ariz.
B-Montclair, N. J.
G. O. No. 137, W. D., 1918.

LLEWELLYN, FRANK A.
East of St. Die, France, Aug. 17, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.

R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Minneapolis, Minn.
G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

LLOYD, WILFRED (275108)

Near Fismes, France, Aug. 4, 1918.

R—Beloit, Wis.

B—Roscoe, Ill.

G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

LOCKARD, DENNIS H. (198629)

Near Exermont, France, Oct. 5, 1918.

R.—Muncy, Pa.

B.—Muncy, Pa.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*LOCKE, KARL W.
At Chateau-Thierry, France, June
6, 1918.
R—Cleveland, Ohio.
B—Oberlin, Ohio.
G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

*LODER, JAMES C. Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R.—Chattanooga, Tenn. B.—Chattanooga, Tenn. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918. Captain, 88th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

He volunteered on a mission to protect a photographic plane for another squadron on Sept. 14 and continued toward the objective at Conflans even after 3 other protecting planes had failed to start. In an encounter with 5 enemy pursuit planes he completely protected the photographic plane by skillful maneuvering, although his observer was wounded and his machine seriously damaged. On Oct. 30, while on duty as Chief of Air Service of the 3d Army Corps, he volunteered and made an important reconnaissance of enemy machine-gun emplacements at a low altitude near Doulcon.

Corporal, Company K, 32sth Infantry, 82d Division.
Corporal Littlefield was a member of a detachment which had been surrounded by the enemy and had fought for several hours against overwhelming odds.
When the officer in charge was about to surrender to the enemy, this soldier refused to do so and, dashing through severe machine-gun and rifle fire, succeeded in making his escape, though he was painfully wounded in the face in so doing. Reporting to his company without delay, he remained on duty throughout the entire operation.

Captain, 6th Engineers, 3d Division.

He reorganized 3 Engineer companies after they had retired from the woods, and by his personal example of daring and bravery successfully led his men against enemy machine guns. His gallant action resulted in the capture of of the Claire-Chenes Woods.

First lieutenant, 164th Infantry, 26th Division.
As his battalion was advancing across an open field it came under fire from a hostile machine gun located in a strong enfilading position in a ravine.
Hastily gathering a group of men from his platoon, Lieutenant Livermore led them in a charge on the nest and put it out of action, capturing 11 prisoners and saving his battalion many casualties.

First lieutenant, 99th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Lieutenant Llewellyn, acting as pilot, and Lieutenant Neel, acting as observer, carried on successful liaison with the Infantry during the attack on Frapelle. They flew over the enemy lines at an altitude of only 400 meters, firing on and disconcerting the enemy, and thereby giving courage and confidence to the American forces. Despite heavy fire from 15 antiaircraft machine guns and several batteries of antiaircraft artillery, they performed their work efficiently. Their aeroplane was struck by a number of machine-gun bullets, one of which cut the rudder and elevator control wires and caused the rudder to jam. The broken control wire was held and operated by Lieutenant Neel, under direction of Lieutenant Llewellyn. Running the machine together in this manner they continued their liaison work until the plane began to become unmanageable, when, in spite of its damaged condition, they brought it back to their airdrome.

Private, Headquarters Company, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
Advancing with front-line units, he established observation posts under heavy and continuous shell and machine-gun fire. Although suffering from wounds, he remained at his post and rendered valuable reports regarding the progress of the battle.

Private, first class, Company L, 127th Infantry, 32d Division. Wounded while advancing under machine-gun fire, he showed highest devotion to duty by returning to his company as soon as he had obtained first-aid treatment. He crawled to a road, secured a pistol to replace the one he had lost when he was wounded, and joined a group which attacked a machine-gun nest, capturing the position and the machine gun.

Sergeant, Company C, 2d Field Signal Battalion, 1st Division. Leading a detail through an intense bombardment, Sergeant Lockard kept in operation the telephone lines of regimental headquarters, thereby enabling his regimental commander to keep in touch with elements on the firing line.

Corporal, 51st Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Locke.

rostnumously awarded. Medai presented to mother, Mrs. Emzabeth Booke

Sergeant, Company A, 129th Machine Gun Battalion, 35th Division.

Accompanied by another soldier, Sergeant Locke went through heavy fire, and by skillful maneuvering located and captured an enemy 77-millimeter gun with part of its crew, which had been checking the advance of our troops.

Second lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
On July 18, 1918, he gallantly inspired his platoon to 3 vigorous and successful advances against machine-gun fire near Soissons, France, in the last of which he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. James C. Loder.

At Le Grand Carre Ferme, France,

Nov. 1, 1918. R—Sealy, Tex. B—Sealy, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Logue, Thomas (297562)_____ Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29,

R-Detroit, Mich. B-Ireland.

G. O. No 66, W. D., 1919.

R—Pekin, Ill. B—Canton, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

LOKEN, CLARENCE (2814509)

Near Beaufort, France, Nov. 4, 1918.

R.—Morris, Wis.

B.—Morris, Wis.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LOMONACO, FRANK (3191095)
In the Meuse-Argonne offensive, France, Nov. 4-5, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Italy. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Trichell, La. B—Trichell, La. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Long, Arthur S. (44521) Near Hill 272, Frauce, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Roberts, Mont. B—Wardner, Idaho. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*Long, Frank S.

Near Fleville, France, Oct. 5, 1918.

R—Burlington, Iowa. B—Burlington, Iowa. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

LONG, MILTON E. At Cunel Heights, France, October, 12, 1918.

R—Columbus, Ga.

B—Columbus, Ga.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

LONGFIELD, SIMON E. (50169)_ Near Bois-de-Clerembauts, France, June, 7, 1918.
R—Hartford, Conn.
B—Ireland.

G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1919.

LONGOWSKI, JOSEPH (561582)_ Near Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Winona, Minn. B—Winona, Minn. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

LOOMIS, CASEY V. Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918.

R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Walhalla, N. Dak. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company K, 360th Infantry, 90th Division.

Although wounded in the arm early in the attack, Sergeant Loescher continued though wounded in the affile early in the attack, designate Locatine to lead his platoon in the attack on a strong enemy position, and by the use of rifles, rifle grenades, and hand grenades, and after capturing several machinegun nests, including one dugout containing 70 Germans, forced the entire strong point to yield, including two German companies armed with machine guns, which had been holding up the advance of the whole company.

Private, Battery D, 119th Field Artillery, 32d Division.

Private Logue worked ceaselessly under heavy enemy shellfire in carrying wounded comrades to the first-aid station until he was himself severely wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Annie Logue.

Corporal, headquarters 3d Battalion, 11th Field Artillery, 6th Division.
Corporal Lohmann displayed fearless devotion to duty in maintaining telephone lines while his battalion was in action near Laneuville. On one occasion he voluntarily accompanied an officer and, under heavy fire, repaired a telephone line which was severed 15 times in 2 hours within a length of only 1 kilometer.

Private, Company M, 356th Infantry, 89th Division. He was engaged as a runner and made several trips, through heavy bombardment, from the front line to the support battalion. Even after his equipment had been riddled by shell fragments, he continued maintaining liaison between these 2 points.

Private, first class, Company K, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.

In the performance of his duties as runner he made repeated journeys across areas swept by machine-gun fire, but he never hesitated in the execution of his mission. On the firing line he was of most valuable assistance in destroying a mission. On t

Private, Company L, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. Private Lonadier, a company runner, displayed exceptional courage in re-peatedly passing through heavy enemy fire and delivering all messages intrusted to him in a prompt and efficient manner.

Private, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Facing direct fire from a 77-millimeter gun which was enfilleding his company, he advanced against the gun with an automatic rifleman. Attacking the German gun position, he captured the crew, making it possible for Private Long's company to hold the ground it had gained.

First lieutenant, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. Having been wounded in the side by shrapnel while caring for wounded men of his platoon, Lieutenant Long refused to be evacuated, but returned from the dressing station to his command. While withdrawing his platoon to a hetter position under a heavy barrage he was instantly killed by shellfire. His courage and solf-sacrifice furnished a splendid inspiration to his men. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Col. F. S. Long.

Second lieutenant, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

After being severely wounded by a machine-gun bullet, Lieutenant Long displayed exceptional courage and determination by remaining with his platoon, moving it forward and clearing the woods of enemy machine guns, 3 of which he captured with their entire crews.

Corporal, Company D, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. Even after having been seriously wounded, Corporal Longfield continued with his duties as runner throughout the whole night, after which he was ordered to the rear because of weakness caused by loss of blood.

Private, Company L, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.
Under heavy fire, while performing a mission as battalion runner, he encountered an enemy patrol of 4 men and, forcing them to surrender, brought them to the rear.

Corporal, 73d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division During an enemy counterattack he voluntarily left a sheltered position and, in entire disregard for his own safety, set up his gun in the open under heavy enemy fire. By securing enfilleding fire on the advancing enemy he broke up the counterattack within 100 yards of our line. Loomis, John H. (1738027)

Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 28,
1918. R—Attica, N. Y. B—Attica, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918

R-Dallas, Tex. B-Dallas, Tex. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*LORING, DAVID WORTH-Near Ypres, Belgium, Aug. 23, 1918. R—Wilmington. N. C. B—Sumter, S. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Losco, Patrick (114893) ______ Near Beaumont, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

LOTSPIECH, ORR V.
Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918.
R.—Booneville, Mo.
B.—Sheldon, Mo.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

ri, John H. (2440260) Near St. Agnan, France, July 16, 1918. R—Waycross, Ga. B—Waycross, Ga. G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918. LOTT, JOHN H. (2440260) __

R—Fargo, N. Dak. B—Fargo, N. Dak. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*LOUGHLIN, JOSEPH J Near Moranville, France, Nov. 9, 1918.

R-Wilmington, N. C. B-Swansboro, N. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Love, Charles J. (1678783)______ Near Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 5,

R—Boonville, N. Y. B—Niles, N. Y. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Lovelace, David H. (1319176)..... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29,

R—Jonesville, N. C. B—Grayson County, Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company F, 311th Infantry, 78th Division. Corporal Loomis volunteered to lead a 3-man patrol on a reconnaissance of enemy positions. After one of his men had been wounded, he continued on with the other one and gained the information sought. Being wounded on the return trip by fire from machine guns, he was forced to remain under cover until night, when he located his other wounded man and returned under cover of darkness with valuable information.

First lieutenant, 132d Machine Gun Battalion, 36th Division.
During an attack to straighten the front of the 71st Brigade, Lieutenant Loomis, in command of a machine-gun platoon, upon arriving at the objec-Loomis, in command of a machine-gun platoon, upon arriving at the objective, discovered that all of the Infantry officers in the vicinity had fallen, thus leaving their troops in confusion. Although under a heavy barrage of high-explosive and gas shells, machine-gun and rifle fire, Lientenant Loomis removed his gas mask in order that his voice might carry, and, with great coolness, reorganized the Infantry forces, thus enabling them to hold the ground they had gained. Lieutenant Loomis renained in command until he was so severely gassed that he had to be carried from the field.

Private, Company B, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.

Private Lord, although wounded severely early in the action and suffering great pain, refused to quit his gun squadron, but advanced with it until its objective was reached.

Second licutenant, 115th Machine Gun Battalion, 30th Division. When his gun positions were rendered untenable by shellifire and his men ordered to seek shelter in dugouts, Lieutenant Loring left a place of safety for the purpose of seeing that all of his men were under cover and was mortally wounded by a shell, dying on his way to the hospital.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Viola Shaw Loring.

Private, first class, Company H, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
As a runner he showed absolute disregard for personal danger in carrying messages across areas swept by artillery and machine-gun fire, maintaining liaison between his company and battalion commander.

Private, 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. While passing through an unusual barrage of artillery fire and machine guns he had his leg broken by a bullet. Undaunted, he dragged himself to the post of command and reported to his company commander that his mission had been completed, thus saving the dispatch of another runner.

Corporal, Company C, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.
Two different times, near St. Agnan, France, July 16, 1918, he preceded his platoon into enemy wire under fire, cut a path for it, and returned and led it through the gaps thus made.

Private, Company B, 112th Engineers, 37th Division.
Private Loucks, with 2 other soldiers, crossed the Scheldt River after 2 attempts and succeeded in stretching a line for a bridge across the stream.
They were discovered and fired upon by the enemy, but they continued at work driving stakes and made a second trip across the river to obtain wire, despite the fact that a violent artillery barrage had been laid down on their Major, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. Although severely wounded, Major Lough continued to lead his battalion to his objective and refused to be evacuated until his battalion was relieved.

Captain, 322d Infantry, 81st Division. At the sacrifice of his own life he went forward through heavy machine-gun fire to locate a nest of machine guns which was holding up the advance of the regiment. He located the machine guns so that the 1-pounders could silence them, but was killed by the enemy machine-gun fire. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Eleanor K. Loughlin.

Private, Company K, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.
Volunteering for a dangerous liaison mission, he went out alone, crossing an open space for 400 yards, which was swept by heavy machine-gun fire. Going far in advance of our lines, he obtained the desired information and brought back a German prisoner. He was killed later in performance of duty by shell-

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Etta M. Love.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 120th Infantry, 30th Division. His left arm having been rendered useless by a shrapnel wound, Private Love-lace continued to carry ammunition with his other arm until the objective was reached, when, against his protests, he was ordered to the rear for medical treatment.

Lowe, John C. (2266478) Near Leeuwken, Belgium, Oct. 31 1918.

R—Long Beach, Calif. B—Hot Springs, Ark. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Lowe, Thurman (741107)_______ Near Munster, Alsace, Sept. 12-13,

R—Boma, Tenn. B—Boma, Tenn. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

LOWE, WILLIAM O....

East of Cunel, Verdun sector, France, Oct. 7, 1918. R—Knoxville, Tenn. B—Athens, Tenn. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Lowry, Francis B.....

Near Crepion, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Denver, Colo. B—Denver, Colo. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

LOYD, LOUIS H. (2189256)... Near Beaufort, France, Nov. 4, 1918. R—Oakville, Mo. B—Annapolis, Mo. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LOYD, SAMUEL A. (1289500)

North of Verdun, France, Oct. 15 and 23, 1918. R-Lynchburg, Va. B-Lynchburg, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Lubeck, Tony (58210)_____ Near Cantigny, France, May 28,

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

LUEBKE, ALVIN J...At Roche, France, Oct. 27, 1918.
R—Forestville, Wis.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Lukaz, Joseph (2338585)

Near Cunel, France, Oct. 13 1918.

R—South Fork, Pa. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

1918

B—Phoenix, Ariz.
B—Phoenix, Ariz.
G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1919.
Medal of honor also awarded.

Corporal, Company C, 364th Infantry, 91st Division. With 3 other soldiers, Corporal Lowe skillfully worked his way under heavy fire to the flank of a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his platoon with enfilading fire, killed 6 Germans, and captured 3 machine guns.

Sergeant, Company A, 52d Infantry, 6th Division.

In repulsing a raid on our trenches, Sergeant Lowe seized an automatic rifle and pursued the Germans across no man's land in the face of converging fire of several enemy machine guns.

Second lieutenant, U.S. Marine Corps, observer, attached to 3d Observation Group, 90th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

While staking the advance lines of the 80th Division he was suddenly attacked by a formation of 8 enemy machines (Fokker type), which dived out of a near-by cloud bank. Although greatly outnumbered, he succeeded in shooting down 1 out of control and disabled a second so that it was forced to land. Later, on the same mission, he was again attacked by a patrol of 5 enemy scout machines, and in a running fight he drove these off and successfully completed his mission. successfully completed his mission.

Second lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps, observer, 91st Aero Squadron, Air

Service.
On Sept. 26, while on a very important photographic mission, Lieutenant Lowry, with Lieutenant Kelty, pilot, realized the importance of the mission and chose to continue their course through a harassing antiaircraft barrage. A shell made a direct hit on the plane, brought it down in fragments, and instantly killed Lieutenant Lowry.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Walter B. Lowry.

Private, first class, Company F, 356th Infantry, 89th Division.
Despite the fact that severe wounds made it impossible for him to take along his automatic rifle, he continued in the advance of the company. Again wounded, he refused evacuation, continuing with his comrades until the objective was reached.

Sergeant, Company L, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

After being severely gassed, Sergeant Loyd continued to advance with his company in spite of suffering great pain. On Oct. 23, when his company was under heavy flanking fire from machine guns, he rescued several wounded men and administered first-aid treatment.

Private, first class, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
While engaged on a mission to kill an enemy sniper, who was concealed in a wheat field and was inflicting severe losses upon American forces, near Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918, and after succeeding in his mission, he himself was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Lubeck.

Private, first class, Company M, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. He volunteered to carry an important message through a heavy artillery bar-rage after several other runners had reported that they could not get through. He succeeded in his mission.

First licutenant, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
Regaining consciousness while being carried to the rear after he had been wounded by an exploding shell, he returned immediately to his company, which he later led 500 meters into no man's land for the purpose of organizing his position preparatory to an attack the next morning.

Private, Company D, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
While defending an outpost, after all his comrades had been wounded, Private Lukaz was attacked by a group of 8 Germans, 1 an officer. With his automatic rifle he disabled all but the officer and 2 men, who took cover in a shell hole. Running to their hiding place, he killed all the enemy with hand grenades and returned to hold his portion of the line intact.

Second lieutenant, pilot, 27th Aero Squadron, Air Service. By skill, determination, and bravery, and in the face of heavy enemy fire, he successfully destroyed 8 enemy observation balloons in 4 days. Oak-leaf cluster.

He is also awarded an oak-leaf cluster for the following act of extraordinary e is also awarded an oak-leat cluster for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Etain, France, Sept. 18, 1918: Immediately after destroying 2 enemy observation balloons he was attacked by a large formation of German planes (type Fokker). He turned to attack 2 which were directly behind him and shot them down. Sighting an enemy biplane, although his gasoline was nearly gone, he attacked and destroyed this machine also.

Posthumously awarded, Medal presented to father, Frank Luke, sr.

*Lukens, Alan W______ Near La Madeleine Ferme, north of Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29,

R—Haverford, Pa. B—Elizabeth, N. J. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

*Lukins, Fred T.

At Chateau-Thierry, France, June
6, 1918.
R—Indianapolis, Ind.
B—Indianapolis, Ind.
G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

LULOFF, ZALME. Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 4,

R—Staten Island, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LUMLEY, ZODA D.

In the St. Mihiel offensive, Sept.
14, 1918, and near Baalon, France,
Nov. 10-11, 1918.
R-Kampsville, Ill.
B-Kampsville, Ill.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Lumpkin, Laurence M. (236436) ...... Near Exerment, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Danville, Va. B—Danville, Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

LUND, CARL S. (109549) _ Near Mouilly, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Somerville, Mass. B—Cranston, R. I. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

BEDFORD B. (1309812)..... France, Oct. 7, *LUNSFORD, Near Bellicourt, France, Oct. 1918.

R—Mount Vernon, Tenn. B—Union County, Ga. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Claremore, Okla. B—Edinburgh, Mo. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

NSFORD, JESSE A. (1320936). Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. LUNSFORD,

R—Timberlake, N. C. B—Person, N. C. G. O. Ne. 32, W. D., 1919.

LUSK, JAMES G.... At Montrebeau Woods, near Charpentry, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Greenville, Miss. B—Greenville, Miss. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

Lutz, John D. (52124)
Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France,
Oct. 3-9, 1918.

R—Allston, Mass. B—Cambridge, Mass. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

The attacking forces of his regiment having been checked in their advance by strongly held enemy positions, a temporary withdrawal of the advance elements was ordered in order that the supporting artillery might lay down a barrage in the woods occupied by the extreme front-line elements. Upon learning that the order for withdrawal had apparently falled to reach a few of his men who still remained in the woods, Captain Lukens himself made his way to the woods, under a hail of enemy machine-gun fire, found his men, and directed them to places of comparative safety, and, while so engaged, was himself killed by enemy machine-gun fire. His superb devotion to the men of his command served to incite them to heroic endeavors. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Lewis N, Lukens. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Lewis N. Lukens.

Sergeant, 20th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Margaret Lukins.

Private, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Disregarding his personal safety, Private Luloff showed marked bravery by carrying messages through heavy machine-gun fire, and after his captain was wounded he rendered valuable assistance in establishing and maintaining liaison between the platoons of this company.

First lieutenant, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
In the St. Mihiel offensive he showed marked personal courage, advancing his first-aid station with the front line. Near Baalon he maintained a dressing station far to the front, under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire, showing absolute indifference to personal safety that he might aid the men on the firing line during heavy gas bombardments.

Sergeant, Quartermaster Corps, Pack Train No. 1, 1st Division. He conducted his pack train, loaded with wire, through the enemy's counter barrage, over high, open ground, under direct observation of the enemy. Five of his 10 mules were killed, but he managed to make a second trip and bring up enough wire to finish the line.

Private, Company B, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. At great risk of his own life from machine-gun fire at close range, Private Lund volunteered and went to the aid of a wounded comrade, bandaged his wounds, and helped him to a place of safety.

Private, medical detachment, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

He went forward alone and unarmed into the enemy's territory to rescue a wounded man who had been injured in the advance patrol fighting. He succeeded in his mission despite very heavy machine-gun and artillery fire.

Corporal, Company M, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. when the line was held up by enemy machine-gun fire he strapped an automatic rifle to his shoulder and advanced in the face of machine-gun fire. Firing as he went forward, he killed 4 of the enemy before he fell, nearly riddled with bullets.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Thomas Lunsford.

Private, first class, Company A, 31st Infantry.
Though wounded early in action he continued to operate his automatic rifle throughout the fight.

Corporal, Company G, 120th Infantry, 30th Division. We attacked, single handed, a machine-gun post from which a destructive fire was being directed against his company. While he was approaching the nest the machine-gun shot the butt off his rifle and cut a hole in his breeches, but he succeeded in getting close enough to the nest to throw 4 hand grenades into it and then killed the gunner with his bayonet.

First lieutenant, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, attached to 16th Infantry, 1st

Division.

After all the other officers in the attack had been killed or wounded, Lieutenant Lusk took command of the fragments of the battalion, reorganized them under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and personally led them forward in the attack, as a result of which 6 machine guns and a number of prisoners were taken. The capture effected, the advance of other troops was insured.

Corporal, Company M, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. He fearlessly exposed himself to a close-range enfilading fire of a German automatic rifle. He continued to lead his men throughout the battle after being wounded.

June 6, 1918.

R—Salesville, Mont. B—Switzerland. G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1926.

LUZOW, GOTTLEIB (45959) __ Near Exerment, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Russia. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Lyerly, William B. (1320094)...... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Mount Vernon, N. C. B-Mount Vernon, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Lynch, Andrew B. (1240277) Near Aprement, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

LYNCH, HENRY PETER (1204251)

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—White Plains, N. Y. B—White Plains, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Lynch, Joseph J. (89809)..... Near Meurcy Ferme, France, July

30, 1918. R—White Plains, N. Y. B—White Plains, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

LYNCH, RONALD D. (731749)_ Near Fontaines, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R—Elbridge, Tenn. B—Hickman, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LYNG, ARTHUR E....

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R-Lowell, Mass. B-New Haven, Conn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LYNK, HARRY E. (1207814) ... Near Ronssey, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Broeklyn, N. Y. B—Kingston, N. Y. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

*LYON, JOHN __ Near Samogneux, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Ballston, Va. B—Ballston, Va. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1924.

Sergeant, Company H, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
Shortly after the assault was launched he was wounded by shellfire. In spite of his wounds he gallantly led his platoon, gained his objective, and remained in command of his platoon until ordered to the rear by his commanding

Private, Company M, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. He fearlessly and frequently passed through heavy machine-gun fire while performing his duty as a runner, after being twice wounded.

Private, first class, Company A, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

His platoon being held up by enemy machine-gun fire, Private Luzow, with 1 other soldier, advanced upon the machine gun with its crew. Their heroic action enabled his platoon to continue the advance with small loss.

Private, Company D, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
With 8 other soldiers, comprising the company headquarters detachment, he assisted his company commander in cleaning out enemy dugouts along a canal and capturing 242 prisoners.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.
He was on duty with a section operating 37-millimeter guns. Under orders he moved the guns to the rear, and then, learning that his commanding officer had been taken prisoner, he, with another soldier, organized a party of 5, attacked the enemy patrol, numbering 35, and killed 15 of them, he personally rescuing his commanding officer and capturing 3 prisoners. Immediately afterwards he took command of 75 men and launched a counterattack, driving the enemy before them for over a kilometer. His conduct exemplified the greatest courage, judgment, and leadership.

Captain, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

Captain, 11th Infatury, 28th Division.

Seeing two of his plateons being cut off by the enemy, Captain Lynch alone went to their rescue and engaged the enemy with his automatic pistol, killing several. He saved his plateons, but in so doing sacrificed his own life.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Alice W. Lynch.

Corporal, Company E, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
Having been trapped in a shell hole with 9 other men 50 yards in front of the line, Corporal Lynch crawled back to his company's position through heavy enemy machine-gun fire and reported their predicament. He then organized a bombing party, led it against the hostile machine gun, and put it out of action, thereby enabling his men to return safely to our line.

Sergeant, Company D, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Sergeant Lynch voluntarily went to the rescue of his lieutenant, who was severely wounded and lying in an exposed position. He succeeded in carrying the wounded officer to safety through the intense machine-gun and rifle fire.

Private, Company B, 6th Infantry, 2d Division.

Private Lynch, accompanied by 3 other soldiers, volunteered and went out under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire to rescue a wounded comrade. Failing in the first attempt, they again tried and this time succeeded in bringing the wounded man to shelter.

Gunnery sergeant, 49th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

While engaged in scouting he discovered the enemy forming for a surprise attack against an unprotected portion of his lines. He quickly organized a sufficient force to destroy the enemy's plans and accomplished the capture of 10 of the raiding party and 6 machine guns.

Sergeant, Company G, 106th Infantry, 27th Division.

While suffering from severe wounds he organized several small groups from other companies, consolidated them, and led them into effective combat, continuing with this splendid example of courage and fearlessness until wounded a second time.

Second licutenant, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.
During the attack on the Bois-de-la-Grande-Montagne, Licutenant Lyon left a place of comparative safety to cross an open space, exposed to direct observation and fire from the enemy, to attempt a rescue of a wounded officer. He and 2 men who accompanied him were killed in this attempt. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Frank Lyon.

Second lieutenant, 114th Infantry, 29th Division. Inspiring his men by his fearlessness, Lieutenant Lyons led an attack against a strongly fortified enemy position, and in so doing was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Thomas M. Lyons.

1918.

R—North Attleboro, Mass. B—Providence, R. I. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

LYSTER, WAYNE G.

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4-6, 1918. R—Aldan, Pa. B—Cardington, Pa. G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Maas, Charles S. (97085) Near Croix Rouge Farm, France, July 26, 1918.

R—Selma, Ala. B—Selma, Ala. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Maass, Charles (2384882) ___ Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 15-16,

R—Swarthmore, Pa. B—Jersey City, N J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MABE, JAMES G. (1314736) ... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Madison, N. C. B-Madison, N. C. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

McAdams, Howard R ... Near Brieulles, France, Nov. 4-5, 1918.

R-Eveleth, Minn. B-Duluth, Minn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*McAfee, John W. (2184365) Near Pouilly, France, Nov. 8, 1918. R—Gallatin, Mo. R—Gellatin, Mo. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-McPherson, Kans. B—Dundas, Minn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also *MCANDREW, EDWARD W. (562392).... Near the Bois-dcs-Ogons, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R.—Chicago, Ill. B.—Vincennes, Ind. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

awarded.

McArdle, Albert H. (3559)... East of Belleau Woods, France, July 18, 1918. R—East Boston, Mass. B—East Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

Macarovsky, Herman (39895)

Near Blenc Mont Ridge, France,
Oct. 3, 1918.

R—St. Paul, Minn.
B—Russia.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Battery C, 103d Field Artillery, 26th Division.

He went through a beavily shelled area to obtain medical aid for his wounded comrades, and, falling to do this, returned to the position to aid in evacuating them. While carrying a wounded man to a place of safety, 2 men who were assisting him were instantly killed; nevertheless, he continued at his teach said the results of the continued at his task until the position was evacuated.

Private, Headquarters Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d

Division.

Private Lyster, a runner, displayed exceptional courage in volunteering to carry important messages over terrain constantly swept by machine-gun and shell fire.

Corporal, Company F, 167th Infantry, 42d Division. He voluntarily went out under a terrific machine-gun fire to the rescue of his commanding officer, who had been wounded.

Private, Company L, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

After all the other company runners had been evacuated because of wounds Private Maass, although himself wounded, refused to go to the rear and remained on duty, carrying messages through heavy shell fire and maintaining liaison with all four platoons until his company was relieved.

Private, Company A, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

Having been severely wounded in the shoulder by shrapnel early in the attack, Private Mabe refused to leave his platoon and, after losing his rifle, armed himself with grenades and cleaned out numerous enemy dugouts. Not until his company had taken its position for the night did he go to the rear.

Captain, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.

Although severely wounded, Captain McAdams remained on duty directing the construction of a poutoon bridge across the Meuse River under heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Corporal, Company D, 356th Infantry, 89th Division.
While a member of a patrol sent out to reconnoiter the banks of the Meuse River, and when all means of crossing the river had been destroyed, Corporal McAfee, with another soldier, volunteered to swim across, though the other side was held in force by the enemy. Before reaching the opposite bank, ho was seized with a cramp, caused by the extremely low temperature of the water, and was drowned.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Oliver P. McAfee.

Colonel, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. As a colonel, commanding the 38th Infantry, he displayed exceptional gallantry s a colone, commanding the soft mantry, he displayed exceptional gamping when his regiment, attacking without support on either flank, was stopped by severe machine-gun and artillery fire, by going ahead of the most advanced elements of his command, and in full view of the enemy, leading his men by force of his own example to the successful assault of Jaulgonne and the adjoining heights. Later in the day, when progress was again checked, he personally reconnoitered to within 50 yards of hostile machine-gun nests, and through information thus obtained was enabled to hold an advanced position with both flanks exposed, for more than 36 hours.

Sergeant, Company B, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.

Sergeant, Company B, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. Exposing himself fearlessly to enfilading machine-gun fire from the enemy, Sergeant McAndrew directed the placing of the guns of his section in such positions as to protect the advance of the Infantry and in so doing was fatally wounded. Despite the fact that one-half of his body was paralyzed as a result of his injury, he insisted upon remaining in command of his section until the action was over. He died in a field hospital shortly after being evacuated.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Charles Weyl.

Private, 103d Ambulance Company, 101st Sanitary Train, 26th Division.
While giving first aid to a wounded soldier who had fallen in a wheat field in range of enemy fire he received 2 machine-gun bullets through the thigh. In spite of his injury he continued at work until the soldier's wounds had been properly dressed and endeavored to carry him out of danger, but fell exhausted from loss of blood.

Sergeant, Company H, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

All of his superior officers having been killed or wounded, Sergeant Macarovsky took command of and organized his company, under heavy shell fire. He then led it to the attack, captured or killed many Germans, and put several machine-gun nests out of action.

MACARTHUR, DOUGLAS. In the Salient du Feys, France, Mar. 9, 1918.

3, 1913. R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Little Rock Barracks, Ark. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

*MACARTHUR, JOHN_ Near Luneville, France, June 13, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Columbia, Pa. G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

McArty, Arnot L. (2100809)

Near Bois - de - la - Cote - Lamont,
France, Oct. 3, 1918, and near Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Enfield, Ill.
B—Enfield, Ill. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R—Springfield, Mass. B—Roxbury, Mass. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

McAuliffe, Daniel (44515) In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Butte, Mont. B—Butte, Mont. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

MCAULIFFE, MICHAEL J. (89784) __ Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

MACBRAYNE, WINFRED C ... Near Fismes, France, Aug. 26, 1918. R—Lowell, Mass. B—Lowell Mass. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

McBreen, Leo (2057707)
In the Meuse-Argonne offensive,
France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—Geneva, Ill.
B—Venice, Ill.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

McBride, Emmett (2387938).

Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Nov. 5, 1918.

R—Browns Spring, Mo.

B—Christian County, Mo.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, then colonel, chief of staff, 42d Division.

When Company D, 168th Infantry, was under severe attack in the Salient du Feys, France, he voluntarily joined it, upon finding that he could do so without interfering with his normal duties, and by his coolness and conspicuous courage aided materially in its success.

Oak-leaf cluster.

An oak-leaf cluster is awarded General MacArthur for the following acts of dis-tinguished service: As brigade commander General MacArthur personally led this men and by the skillful maneuvering of his brigade made possible the capture of Hills 288, 242, and the Cote-de-Chatillon, France, Oct. 14, 15, and 16, 1918. He displayed indomitable resolution and great courage in rallying broken lines and in reforming attacks, thereby making victory possible. On a field where courage was the rule, his courage was the dominant feature.

Second lieutenant, 27th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

Outnumbered and handicapped by his presence far behind the German lines, he and 3 flying companions fought brilliantly a large group of enemy planes, bringing down or putting to flight all in the attacking party, while performing an important mission near Luneville, France, on June 13, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles P. MacArthur.

Private, Company D, 59th Imantry, 4th Division.
On Oct. 3, while acting in the capacity of company runner, he carried messages to 2 platoons of his company through a heavy fire of machine guns and snipers. He successfully delivered the messages, after crawling for a a distance of 400 yards. On Oct. 9, in company with one other runner, he delivered messages to a platoon which was engaged in combat liaison duty in the Bois-du-Fays, passing through a severe artillery fire while in the execution of this mission. cution of this mission.

Private, Company K, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
On July 20 Private Macauley repeatedly carried messages through a field swept by a terrific machine-gun fire. At one time he crawled to a brook through this machine-gun fire and returned with water to 2 wounded men, giving them first aid and assisting them to the rear.

Corporal, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Leading his squad on enemy machine-gun nests which had been inflicting severe casualties on his platoon, Corporal McAuliffe opened an effective bombing attack on the nests, and, although severely wounded, he remained in command until the strong point was reduced.

Sergeant, Company D, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Volunteering for the mission, he exposed himself in the open to heavy shell and machine gun fire to obtain ammunition for his company after all on hand had been exhausted. He made repeated trips over the battle field, gathering ammunition from the bodies of the dead until his entire company had been supplied.

Sergeant, Company C, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

Sergeant MacBeth and another soldier voluntarily went through heavy machine-gun fire to carry an important message to an advance unit. Attracted by the cries of a wounded soldier while they were returning, they went to his assistance and were endeavoring to rescue him when Sergeant MacBeth's companion was fatally wounded. Being unable to bring in the 2 wounded men by himself, this soldier returned to the line and secured assistance.

First lieutenant, Field Artillery, observer, 2d Balloon Squadron, Air Service. While he was conducting an aerial reconnoissance and general surveillance from his balloon, he was repeatedly attacked by hostile airplanes, but continued his has ballood, he was repeatedly attacked by nostile arpianes, but continued his mission despite the proximity of strong enemy air patrols, against which had no defense. When an enemy Fokker emerged from low-hanging clouds, firing at the balloon with incendiary bullets, Lieutenant MacBrayne remained in the basket until his companion, who was making his first ascension, had safely jumped. He leaped when the balloon was nearer the ground, and his parachute opened as he crossed into the woods. He insisted upon reascending immediately, thereby displaying conspicuous coolness and determine Private, Company M, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. With 3 other soldiers he crawled across an open field for 200 yards, subjected the while to intense artillery and machine-gun fire, to execute a flank attack upon a machine-gun emplacements which were holding up our advance. The enemy positions were sileneed, 7 of the crews being killed and 23 made prisoners.

Sergeant, Company I, 61st Infantry, 5th Division. At a critical time, when the advance across the Meuse was being held up by enemy fire, Sergeant McBride displayed exceptional bravery in crossing a damaged pontoon bridge under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire, clearing the bridgehead of the enemy and protecting it. After crossing the canal he displayed great bravery in flanking a machine-gun nest ringle-handed, killing 2 of the gunners, and thereby enabling his company to advance. McBride, Frank (554577) ... At Paroy, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

28-30, 1918. R-Watertown, S. Dak. B-Hamlin County, S. Dak. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Sept. 30, 1918. R—Houston, Tex. B—Duke, Tex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*McCall, Howard C... Near Chezy, France, July 19, 1918. R.—Philadelphia, Pa. B.—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McCallister, Joseph A. (1706239) At Chateau-Diable, near Fismes, France, Aug. 27, 1918. R—Brocklyn, N. Y. B—Brocklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 127, W. D., 1918.

McCann, Kenneth M. (1201080). CANN, RENNETH M. (1201080)
Near Mount Kermmel, Belgium,
Aug. 29-31, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McCann, Walter J. (2946). At Bois Brule, France, Apr. 10, 1918.
R—Springfield, Mass.
B—Springfield, Mass.
G. O. No. 107, W. D., 1918.

McCarthy, James J. (1390530) In Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 5, W. D., 1920.

McCarthy, Michael P. (1392087)..... Near Butgneville, France, Nov. 11,

R—Girard, Ill. B—Girard, Ill. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918.

McCarthy, William (89662)

At Ferme de Meurey, near Villerssur-Fere, France, July 29, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y.

B-Ireland.

G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

McCarthy, William H. (51181)

Near Vaux, France, July 2, 1918.

R—Lynn, Mass.
B—Lynn, Mass.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

McCauley, Philip J Near Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918. R—St. Paul, Minn. B—Lafayette, Ind. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

First sergeant, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Upon his own initiative, Sergeant McBride left his dugout under heavy shell fire and proceeded 200 yards to a house where an officer and another soldier were lying severely wounded. After administering first aid to them he remained with them until they were evacuated.

Private, first class, headquarters detachment, 79th Division.
While acting as a division observer Private McCain remained constantly on duty for several days in a building on the heights of Montfaucon. While in the building portions of it were destroyed by direct artillery fire, and hospital shelling was such that other observers located in the same building withdrew to a safer place. Private McCain, however, remained constantly at his post of duty and obtained important information.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.
Although relieved on the previous night, he willingly agreed to substitute for a sick comrade, returning the following day to his dangerous post as advance machine gunner. During a heavy shelling of his position he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Sylvia McCall.

Captain, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.

After his company had suifered heavy losses in taking its immediate objective, he placed himself at the head of his command and led his men forward in the face of violent shell and machine-gun fire, until he fell mortally wounded, cheering his men on with his last words.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. J. B. McCall.

Corporal, Company H, 307th Infantry, 77th Division. He personally led his squad in an attempt to capture an enemy machine gun, and after all of his men had been wounded and he himself severely wounded he withdrew, and collecting other men advanced three times to the attack, finally capturing the gun and driving off or killing its crew.

Corporal, Company C, 102d Field Signal Battalion, 27th Division.
Corporal McCann, a signalman, worked continuously for 72 hours without relief through repeated gas bombardments. When the forward lines were cut by shellfire, he personally directed the running of a new line under a heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. During the action of Apr. 10, 1918, he displayed conspicuous gallantry by leaving shelter and running through a heavily shelled area to pick up a wounded soldier and carry him unaided and at great personal risk to a dress-

Private, Company B, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
With the assistance of 1 other soldier, Private McCarthy entered a wood where 3 machine guns were holding up our attack, and under unusually heavy artillery and machine-gun fire knocked one of the guns out and rushed the second single handed. With the assistance of the other soldier he then succeeded in capturing about 20 prisoners who were in or near the machine-

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 132d Infantry, 33d Division. After being severely wounded during an enemy barrage, and although bleeding profusely, he remained in line and reorganized a shattered detachment of the 39th Infantry and held the position in the line.

Sergeant, Company C, 124th Machine Gun Battalion, 33d Division When violent machine-gun fire had forced his company to take shelter, Sergeant McCarthy, with another soldier, braved the direct and short-range fire by voluntarily going forward and rescuing a wounded officer and carrying him back to a place of safety.

Private, Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After having been wounded and ordered from the field he went out into an area that was under accurate enemy machine-gun fire and the fire of our own artillery barrage, gave first aid to a wounded comrade, and carried him back to the dressing station.

Private, Company H, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

During an artillery bombardment Private McCarthy was wounded and rendered unconscious by the explosion of a large shell. Upon recovering consciousness he gave no thought to his own wound but devoted himself to the rescue of other wounded and carried them through enemy fire to a place of shelfer. of shelter.

Captain, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.

He displayed great presence of mind, promptness, and unusual courage in conducting the operations of Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, under exceptionally difficult conditions, due to accurately adjusted shellfire near Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918. His fortitude aided materially in the success of the command.

McCelvey, George C. Near St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 7-9, 1918. R-Mount Carmel, S. C. B-Mount Carmel, S. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McClellan, Arno S.
At Sergy, France. Aug. 1, 1918.
R—Harveys, Pa.
B—Scott County, Ind.
G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

McClelland, Helen G.....France, Aug. 17, 1917.
R.—Fredericktown, Ohio. B—Austinburg, Ohio. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1926.

McClelland, Lee R. (1870896)
Near Ardeuil, France, Sept. 30, 1918.
R—Asbeville, N. C.
B—Laurinburg, N. C.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

McClemens, Frederick W. (2311117) Near Romagne, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Carnegie, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*McClendon, Joel H... Near Fismes, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—Farmers Branch, Tex. B—Ferris, Tex. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*McCloud, James M ... Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Burbank, Calif. B—Santa Ana, Calif. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

McCluer, EDWIN ALEXANDER. Near Jonville, France, Sept. 14, 1918. R—Urbanna, Va. B—Norfolk, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.

He stood in the swift current of the Vesle River and helped the men of 3 platoons across. He was pulled into the river twice by drowning men, but each time succeeded in bringing them ashore. On succeeding days he was conspicuously present in places of danger, setting a splendid example to his Second lientenant, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.

This officer fearlessly led his platoon in locating and successfully attacking German machine guns, thereby facilitating the advance of his company. He also led a combat patrol in front of his position for the purpose of driving out hostile snipers. Later, when his company was forced to retire to a more sheltered zone, Lieutenant McClellan, with 1 soldier, remained in an exposed position and rendered valuable service by covering the withdrawal with accurate fire from an automatic rifle.

Reserve nurse, Army Nurse Corps. Professional Profe

Sergeant, medical detachment, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.
While administering first-aid treatment to wounded soldiers on the field,
Sergeant McClelland received a painful wound on the log, but without mentioning his injury he remained on duty, caring for the wounded under shellfire, until the regiment was relieved.

Private, Company M. 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
When the advance of his regiment was held up by enemy machine-gun fire and grenades, Private McClemens volunteered as a member of a combat patrol which cut through the enemy lines, captured 10 machine guns, killed and captured 15 Germans, and forced a large number to surrender to other troops, clearing that part of the Cote Dame Marie of the enemy, enabling the advance of the regiment to continue.

First lieutenant, pilot, 88th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Louis G. Bernheimer, first licutenant, pilot; John W. Jordan, second lieutenant, 7th Field Artillery, observer; Roger W. Hitchcock, second lieutenant, pilot; James S. D. Burns, deceased, second lieutenant, 165th Infantry, observer; Joel H. McClendon, deceased, first lieutenant, pilot; Charles W. Plummer, deceased, second lieutenant, pilot; Charles W. Plummer, deceased, second lieutenant, 101st Field Artillery, observer; Philip R. Babcock, first lieutenant, pilot; and Joseph A. Palmer, second lieutenant, 15th Field Artillery, observer. All of these men were attached to the 88th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, Aug. 11, 1918. Under the protection of 3 pursuit planes, each carrying a pilot and an observer, Lieutenants Bernheimer and Jordan, in charge of a photo plane, carried out successfully a hazardous photographic mission over the enemy's lines to the River Aisne. The 4 American ships were attacked by 12 enemy battle planes. Lieutenant Bernheimer, by coolly and skillfully maneuvering bis ship, and Lientenant Jordan, by accurate operation of his machine gun, in spite of wounds in the shoulder and leg, aided materially in the victory which came to the American ships, and returned safely with 36 valuable photographs. The pursuit plane operated by Lieutenants Hitchcock and Burns was disabled while these two officers were fighting effectively. Lieutenant Burns was mortally wounded and his body jammed the controls. After a headlong fall of 2,500 meters, Lieutenant Hitchcock succoded in regaining control of this plane and piloted it back to his airdrome. Lieutenants McClendon and Plummer were shot down and killed after a vigorous cembat with 5 of the enemy's planes. Licutenants Babcock and Palmer, by gallant and skillful fighting, aided in driving off the German planes and were materially responsible for the successful execution of the photographic mission.

Postumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J.

Major, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. After being wounded twice during an advance by his battalion on a machine-gun nest near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he continued in the attack until killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Dolly McCloud.

Second lieutenant, 344th Battalion, Tank Corps.
Commanding a reconnaissance patrol of 3 tanks, he put to rout a company of German infantry, 4 pieces of artillery, and destroyed 8 machine guns. His action was 8 kilometers in advance of our front lines.

Oak-leaf cluster

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Bois-de-Montre-beau, France, Sept. 28, 1918, an oak-leaf cluster, worn with the distinguished-service cross, is awarded Lieutenant McCluer: In the attack on the woods he led his tank patrol on foot through dense wooded territory and in the face of intense fire. He was 2 kilometers in advance of the Infantry front line during this exploit.

Sergeant, Battery E, 129th Field Artillery, 35th Division.
Sergeant McClure, although wounded by shellfire while manning a captured German gun with a detail of cannoneers, remained at his post until relieved, when he returned to his battery, keeping his gun in action until ordered to the field hospital by his battery commander.

McClure, Lowe A.
In the Bois-de-Pultiere, France, Oct.
14, 1918, and during the Meuse offensive, France, Nov. 5, 1918.
R—Carson City, Nev.
B—Carson City, Nev.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McClure, Robert B.
At Belieu Bois, France, Oct. 27, 1918.
R—Piedmont, Calif.
B—Rome, Ga.
G. O. No. 28, W. D., 1921.

McCombs, Sherman B. (1452462)..... Near Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Albia, Jowa. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

*McConnell, James_ Near Les Franquettes Farm, France, July 23, 1918. R—Syracuse, N. Y. B—Syracuse, N. Y. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

McCormack, Alphonsus L
At Molleville Farm, France, Oct. 15, 1918.
R—Boston, Mass.
B—Boston, Mass.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

McCormick, Christie F.....

Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Algona, Iowa. B—Ottumwa, Kans. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

McCormick, Leighton (127311)..... Near Servillers, France, May 5, 1918. R—Wilmington, Del. B—Wilmington, Del. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. Lieutenant colonel, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.

Lieutenant Colonel McClure, commanding the 3d Battalion, organized his companies and directed their disposition while constantly under fire. At the crossing of the Meuse, Nov. 5, he organized his hattalion for the attack on Hill 292, and under direct enemy fire made a reconnaissance which enabled him to capture Hill 292, with more than 100 prisoners and 50 machine guns, without casualties.

Second lieutenant, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

After being wounded he continued to lead his men until he was again wounded by enemy machine-gun fire in the foot and knee. Despite his wounds he reorganized his command and established a line of resistance, retaining active command until relieved by another officer several hours later.

Corporal, Company H, 53d Infantry, 6th Division.

He was a member of a party of 50 attacked by an enemy raiding party consisting of about 300 storm troops. Although fatally wounded en route to his post from his dugout, he did not falter, and, despite a heavy bombardment, took up his position and continued to fight until the enemy was repulsed. He imbued his men with such fighting spirit that, although greatly outnumbered, they fought until the enemy was decisively beaten.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Gertrude McCluskey.

Wagoner, Company B, 10th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.
On duty as a runner, he volunteered to reestablish liaison with the French unit to which his company was attached, after several officers and men had failed in the attempt. He performed the mission successfully, although exposed to heavy fire. Though knocked down and temporarily stunned by the explosion of a shell, he accomplished a second dangerous mission, remaining on duty until ordered to the rear.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 356th Infantry, 89th Division. He led a section of machine guns with great courage under heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun fire, silencing 3 hostile machine-gun nests. Repeatelly exposing himself in order to get the maximum fire effect, this soldier was fatally wounded and died the same day.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ruth A. McComb.

Mechanic, Company F, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.

When volunteers were called for to ascertain the location of the regiment on the left of his own, Mechanic McCombs immediately responded, and passing through direct machine-gun and artillery fire accomplished this dangerous mission with complete success.

First lientenant, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. He continued in command of his platoon after having part of his face shot away by a machine-gun bullet. He later died of his wound. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Susan S. McConnell.

Private, first class, Company I, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

After being wounded on July 18, 1918, near Solssons, France, he continued to act as a runner for his company under fire during its 3-day advance until killed, July 21, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. W. W. McConnell.

Second lieutenant, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.
He continued in the advance after being wounded by machine-gun fire, taking command of his company and leading it until weakness from his wound necessitated his evacuation. His gallantry inspired his men to successful

Captain, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
Surrounded by the enemy and unable to communicate with the rest of his regiment, he, with only 5 men, maintained an advanced position against a counterattack by picked enemy storm troops, remaining in this perilous place throughout the night under terrific fire of enemy artillery and machine guns until the arrival of supporting troops next day.

Sergeant, Company L, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Sergeant McCormick displayed exceptional bravery in voluntarily leading his platoon into a thick wood, capturing 12 prisoners and 2 machine guns, which had been causing us heavy losses.

Sergeant, Battery B, 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division.
During a heavy enemy bombardment, a member of the battery was severely wounded. Sergeant McCormick, while going to the assistance of this wounded soldier was himself wounded by a shell splinter which passed through his leg above the knee. In spite of his wound, he assisted his comrade to a place of safety and then resumed command of his section, continuing in same until ordered to the rear.

McCowin, Elmer (104360) At Ripont Swamp, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Richmond, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McCov, Charles A. (203088)...... Near Verdun, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Freeport, Ill. B—Argyle, Wis. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

McCoy, Charles Tice....

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4-6, 1918. R-Louisburg, Kans. B-Logan, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McCov, Pete (1981743) Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Morell, Ky. B-Thomas, Ky. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

McCracken, Lynn (105475)

Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Manilla, Iowa.

B—Manilla, Iowa.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

McCrudden, James F. (2450857)_____ Near Grand Pre, France, Oct., 26, 1918. R—Yonkers, N. Y. B—Yonkers, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McCullough, Clare A. (246695) Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 7, 1918. R—Meadville, Pa. B—Meadville, Pa. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

McCunn, Walter T. (2412654)..... Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—East Orange, N. J. B—Green Bay, Wis. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McDade, William J. (1306965)..... Near Geneve, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Statesville, N. C. B—Caldwell County, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

McDaniel, John R. (2809107) Near Vilcey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Pawhuska, Okla. B—Nowata, Okla. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*McDaniel, Lee B. (2175601)_____ In Bois-de-Bantheville, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R—Alma, Kans.

B-McCune, Kans. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919. McDermott, Cleveland W_______ Near Bantheville, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—Syracuse, N. Y. B—Denver, Colo. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company K, 369th Infantry, 93d Division.
While passing through a swamp where most of the plateon was wounded, Private McCowin dressed the wounds of several of his comrades, and after reaching the shelter of a hill beyond, returned repeatedly and assisted many of his comrades to a place of safety. He also carried messages through shell and machine-gun fire after being severely gassed.

Corporal, Company I, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Even though he was suffering from wounds, he refused evacuation, and after all superiors of his company had become casualties, he assumed command, reorganizing the forces and consolidating the position, working in the face of murderous machine-gun fire.

Private, Headquarters Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Engaged as a runner, Private McCoy demonstrated the highest courage in carrying messages over hazardous territory under constant shell and machinegun fire.

Captain, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to niece, Miss Mabel Davel.

Private, Company B, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Unexpectedly encountering 7 of the enemy, Private McCoy, single handed, killed them all with his bayonet and a hand grenade. As a result of this feat he captured 4 hostile machine-gun emplacements and took 17 prisoners out of a dugout near by. Upon advancing farther he found a wounded officer, whom he sent to the rear in charge of another soldier, and continued on to the objective.

Private, first class, Company B, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. During a heavy enemy counterattack Private McCracken conveyed important information through a heavy enemy artillery barrage to an advanced machine gun platoon of his company. By dashing from shell hole to shell hole, exposed to heavy fire, he accomplished his mission in ample time.

Private, Company M, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.

Acting on his own initiative, after all runners had failed to deliver a message, Private McCrudden carried a message through an intense machine-gun fire for the captain of his company. Upon reaching the company he found that the captain had been killed and immediately returned through the same sweeping fire to report the fact.

Corporal, Company F, 128th Infantry, 32d Division. One of four survivors of a platoon of 41 who attacked Hill 209, he, with the 3 others, continued on their mission and held the hill for some time without hope of reinforcements.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 303d Engineers, 78th Division. He was administering first aid to 2 wounded comrades in no man's land, under heavy shellfire, when an exploding shell killed both of the wounded and rendered him unconscious for more than an hour. Upon his recovery he remained at his post, administering treatment to others.

Sergeant, Company B, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
While advancing with his platoon on the morning of Oct. 8, Sergeant McDade was seriously wounded in the hip, but insisted upon remaining with his platoon. He was again wounded twice by machine-gun fire, but continued to the objective, where he materially aided in consolidating the position. He was then ordered to the aid station by his commanding officer and was later evacuated to the hospital.

Corporal, Company M, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.
When his group had been halted by fire from enemy snipers, Corporal McDaniel voluntarily exposed himself by standing in the open under fire, shot down three of the snipers from one tree and two from another.

Sergeant, Company A, 353d Infantry, 89th Division. He led his platoon with great bravery and coolness against eleverly concealed machine guns until he fell severely wounded. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Della McDaniel.

Second lieutenant, 147th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

In starting on a patrol mission he was delayed by motor trouble. Unable to overtake the other machines, he continued on alone. Sighting an enemy plane (Fokker), he immediately gave chase, and, despite its effort to escape, he succeeded in shooting it down. Six Fokkers then attacked him, and, though he was outnumbered and blinded by the sun, he shot down one of them and scattered the others. In the midst of this combat his motor stopped, and he was forced to glide into friendly territory.

McDermott, Francis P. (8144)..... Near Fismes, France, Aug. 8, 1918. R.—Houtzdale, Pa. B.—Houtzdale, Pa. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

*McDermott, Morgan B. Near Cunel, France, Oct. 20, 1918. R-Tucson, Ariz. B-Butte, Mont. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-Cincinnati, Ohio. B-Newport, Ky. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

MacDonald, Beatrice Mary France, Aug. 17, 1917. R—New York, N. Y. B—Canada. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1926.

*MacDonald, Douglas (542071).... Near Cunel, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R.—Oliver Mills, Pa. B.—Oliver Mills, Pa. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

McDonald, George G. (1762843)____ Near Grand-Pre, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919

McDonald, James (263604) Near Sergy, France, July 31, 1918. R—Saginaw, Mich. B—Saginaw, Mich. G. O. No. 61, W. D., 1919.

McDonald, John B.

Near Epinonville and Gesnes,
France, Sept. 26-30, 1918.
R.—Athens, Ala.
B.—Athens, Ala.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

McDonald, Robert (1317009). Near Souplet, France, Oct. 9-10, 1918. R—Regle, N. C. B—Grape Creek, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McDonald, Robert M. (1311723).... Near Brancourt, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Cheraw, S. C. B—Cheraw, S. C. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, first class, Section No. 524, Ambulance Service.
He remained on duty for 30 hours, guiding and directing the ambulances to and from the most advanced points. He volunteered and acted as stretcher bearer in full view of the enemy and under heavy machine-gun fire. At one point he cleared the road of débris under machine-gun fire and guided ambulance to the vicingle. lances to the wounded.

First lieutenant, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.

Accompanied by a soldier, he made a reconnaissance within the German lines and captured a machine gun. Under heavy machine-gun fire he gave first-aid treatment to a wounded soldier and continued on his mission until he was himself severely wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William McDermott.

Captain, 314th Infantry, 79th Division.

Although seriously wounded by three machine-gun bullets while reconnoitering, Captain MacDermut continued to direct his troops and refused to receive medical treatment or to allow stretcher bearers to come to the exposed position until night.

First lieutenant, 281st Aero Squadron, Air Service.

On Sept. 15, 1918, while performing an important mission, his balloon was attacked and riddled by an enemy plane firing incendiary bullets. He stuck to his post and gathered valuable information. On Oct. 5 he was again attacked by several planes and the basket was set afire by incendiary bullets. While descending, he was fired upon and his parachute was hit many times. He, nevertheless, insisted upon returning to the air. On Oct. 6 he was attacked and his balloon was riddled with bullets. Again on the same day he was attacked by several enemy planes; he remained with his balloon until it came down in flames; he then resumed his post in a new balloon.

Reserve nurse, Army Nurse Corps.
For extraordinary heroism while on duty with the surgical team at the British Casualty Clearing Station No. 61, British area, France, Aug. 17, 1917. During a German night air raid she continued at her post of duty caring for the sick and wounded until scriously wounded by a German bomb, thereby losing

Private, Company G, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

While acting as a litter bearer Private MacDonald was painfully wounded in the hand by a machine-gun bullet, but refused to go to a dressing station, continuing to administer first aid to wounded under constant machine-gun and shell fire. On one occasion when a courade had been buried by an exploding shell Private MacDonald rushed 200 yards into the open and worked under heavy fire at rescuing him. He was later killed by shell fire while giving aid to a wounded man.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Carrick MacDonald.

Corporal, Company E, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
While accompanying a separated detachment, Corporal McDonald voluntarily entered a dense woods, infested with snipers and machine guns, to locate the main body of his company. The success of this mission enabled the lost detachment to occupy their position with the company. During the entire action of his company Corporal McDonald was forever eager, in his capacity as runner, to assume the most hazardous risks to maintain liaison between units.

First sergeant, Company K, 125th Infantry, 32d Division First sergeant, Company K. 125th Intantry, 32d Division.

After his platoon commander had fallen wounded at the beginning of the advance, and the platoon was becoming demoralized under intense machinegun and artillery fire, Sergeant McDonald assumed command, steadied his men, and led them in a successful attack in a further advance of 150 yards, gaining an important objective and stregthening the defense of the captured position of Hill 212.

Brigadier general, 181st Infantry Brigade, 91st Division.

He was almost continuously present with the leading elements of his brigade, inspiring his troops by his personal bravery and energy under fire. Near Epinonville, when his command was about to make an attack and was under heavy artillery fire, this oflicer, by his disregard for personal safety, steadied his men and stimulated them to successful assault on the ridge forming part of the German main line of resistance. Two days later, with one flank exposed by the withdrawal of the unit on the right, he led his brigade in the attack on and centure of Gesses. on and capture of Gesues.

Private, first class, Company M, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
He showed exceptional bravery and courage by going forward alone on many occasions to gain information of the enemy. He remained on duty with his company after being wounded until ordered to the rear for treatment.

Sergeant, Company I, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

On the morning of Oct. 8, uear the village of Brancourt, France, he alone charged an enemy machine-gun nest that was causing many casualties in his platoon and temporarily holding up the advance. He killed the gunner and leader, put the gun out of action, and thus enabled his platoon to advance.

MACDONNELL, JOHN L. (1212145). At Guillemont Farm, near Bony, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Bay Shore, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

*McDonough, John F. (2357286).... Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 30, 1918.

R-Boston, Mass. B-Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

MacDougall, Allan J
Near Revillon, France, Sept. 9, 1918.
R—Detroit, Mich. B-Canada. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

23, 1918. R—Pocatello, Idaho. B—Malad City, Idaho. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

McDowell, Edgar E. (1311232)...... Near Montbrehain, France, Oct. 8 1918. R—Hendersonville, N. C. B—Hendersonville, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Dorchester, Mass. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

MACE, JOHN H. (1461283) ___ Near Exerment, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R-Liberty, Mo. B-Liberty, Mo. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

*Macelligott, George H.
Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918.
R—West Somerville, Mass.
B—West Townsend, Mass.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MACELROY, GEORGE L. (1236800)_____ Near Monthurel, France, July 17, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

McElwain, Harry E. (543311) Near Fossoy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Unionville, Pa. B—Fawngrove, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

McEntee, Eugene (78382)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 2, 1918.

R—Portland, Oreg.

B—Montpelier, Idaho.

G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1921.

Sergeant, Company M, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
When the advance of his platoon was held up by machine-gun fire which was harassing his position, Sergeant MacDonnell voluntarily led a detachment of his platoon over the top and destroyed the machine-gun nest. His courageous actions were an inspiration to all his courades.

Corporal, Company B, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Upon being wounded in the arm, going through a heavy artillery barrage, Corporal McDonough refused to go to the rear for first aid, but dressed his wound himself, remaining in command of his platoon section until he was killed by shellfire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Bridget McDonough.

Captain, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
Captain MacDougall voluntarily assumed command of a patrol of 3 men to locate enemy lines and gun positions. Crawling through withering machinegun fire to within 20 yards of the enemy lines, he encountered 2 Germans on outpost, whom he killed. Remaining exposed to the enemy for an hour, Captain MacDougall killed a machine gunner who attempted to take a position in front of him. His entire mission was harassed by perilous machinegun fire and a constant hand-grenade bombardment.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action in the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 4, 1918, Captain MacDougall is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: Leading 3 companies to the aid of a surrounded battalion, he was rendered unconscious by a shell burst, but, upon recovery, refused treatment until properly relieved.

First lieutenant, pilot, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
He, with Second Lieut. Elmere K. McKay, observer, while on a bombing mission, displayed exceptional courage by leaving a comparatively secure position in the center of the formation during a combat with 5 enemy planes and going to the protection of 2 other officers whose plane had been disabled and forced out of the formation. Lieutenant McDougall skillfully maneuvered his machine so as to enable Lieutenant McKay to shoot down 1 of the adversaries and fight off the others.

Private, Company F, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
When the second wave of his company was confronted by 2 enemy machine gun posts, which had been passed over by the first wave, Private McDowell, from a prone position, sniped at these posts and then rushed 1 of them. In so doing he was wounded in the wrist, but he continued on and succeeded in killing 2 Germans and capturing 4 others. The other post, containing 20 of the enemy, surrendered shortly afterwards.

Second lieutenant, 305th Infantry, 77th Division. He displayed unusual courage and determination in making a patrol under le displayed unusual courage and determination in making a patrol under particularly hazardous circumstances, accompanied by only 1 soldier. Crossing the Meuse River, the east bank of which and the ridge east of it were known to be strongly held by the enemy, they proceeded through numerous machine-gun nests over the ridge, penetrating 3 kilometers into the hostile position and returning with important information concerning the enemy occupation.

Sergeant, Company H, 140th Infantry, 35th Division.

He volunteered to lead a detachment to attack a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his battalion. Although severely wounded, he carried the position, killing the enemy gun crew and capturing the machine

First lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Although mortally wounded, he remained in command of his platoon under direct view of the enemy and through a terrific bombardment until he died. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. S. Louise Mac-Elligott.

Bugler, Company H, 109th Iufantry, 28th Division. During the progress of a rather severe attack Bugler MacElroy delivered an important message from his company commander to the regimental head-quarters. In order to perform this mission he was compelled to cross areas swept by heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. Due to his individual gallantry, communication was established at a critical time in the operation of this regiment.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
During an intense artillery preparation by the enemy he voluntarily went out about 1,000 yards, through this heavy shellfire, to administer first aid to 5 wounded men.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. In charge of maintaining telephone communication while advancing with a patrol, he showed marked personal bravery, and after being shot in the ankle refused to be evacuated and advanced for 1,300 meters under heavy machinegun fire, repairing telephone lines and making it possible to send valuable information to the rear, McEWEN, GLEN O. (74459)_____

Near Moulin de Guenoville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R-Spokane, Wash. B-Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

McFadden, James E. (551132)..... Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Cornplanter, Pa. B—Venango County, Pa.

McFarland, George W. (1829414).... Near Brieulles, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Latrobe, Pa. B—Latrobe, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

MacFarland, Jay W...

During the St. Mihiel offensive,
France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R.—Cleveland, Ohio.
B.—Belmont, Ohio.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

*MacFarland, James In the Bossois Bois, France, Oct. 12-17, 1918. R—Burlington, N. J. B—Burlington, N. J. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*McFarling, George (262245)

Near Cierges, northeast of ChateauThierry, France, July 31, 1918.
R—Flint, Mich.
B—Alpena, Mich.
G O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

Near 1918.

R-Baltimore, Md. B-Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

*McGarry, Patrick L. (1253447)..... Near Fisines, France, Sept. 5, 1918.

R-Duryea, Pa. B—Pittston, Pa. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

McGay, George H._____ Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*McGeary, John (90532) _____ Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, Aug. 1, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland.

G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

MCGEE, EDWARD (2213042) In the Bois-de-Barricourt, France, Nov. 1-2, 1918. R—Logan, Kans. B—Tipton, Kans. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McGee, LAWRENCE T. (1257894). At Fismes, France, Aug. 12, 1918. R—Allentown, Pa. B—Allentown, Pa. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 161st Infantry, 41st Division, attached to 1st Gas Regiment.

Sergeant McEwen, with 3 other soldiers, advanced nearly 200 yards over an open hillside exposed to machine-gun fire and carried 2 wounded men to the protection of a near-by trench.

Corporal, Company G, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Corporal McFadden, in command of a squad, defended his position on the banks of the Marne against powerful enemy attacks until all of his men had heen killed or wounded and he himself wounded. He later reported to his platoon commander and acted as liaison agent, refusing to go to the rear to have his wound dressed.

Corporal, Company D, 320th Infantry, 80th Division.
When the Germans counterattacked with a superior number in the Bois-deDonovan, Corporal McFarland went from post to post under intense machine gun and artillery fire, collecting all available rifle grenades in the platoon.
Although he was seriously wounded by a machine-gun bullet, he continued on duty until his platoon was relieved several hours later.

First lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Perceiving a gap which was increasing between 2 attacking companies, Lieutenant MacFarland promptly led 3 squads to fill the interval. His command was met at once by severe machine-gun fire and suffered severe casualties. If ordered his men to keep down and alone went forward to locate the enemy guns. In this act he was severely wounded, but he successfully directed the attack on the guns, which were captured before he was avenueled to the results. evacuated to the rear.

First lieutenant, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.
Throughout the 5 days of our attack in the Bossois Bois Lieutenant MacFarland had an advance dressing station in the woods, under constant shell-fire, without protection. He repeatedly exposed himself to shellfire while going to the aid of wounded. His gallant example assisted greatly in keeping up the morale of the troops with whom he came in contact. He died from the effects of wounds received while giving aid to the wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. James MacFarland.

Private, Company E, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

Although he was himself severely wounded, Private McFarling crawled over to an exposed and dangerous place to render first aid to a seriously wounded comrade and while doing so received a fatal wound.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Ada Jane Mc-

Sergeant, Company H, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. In the Bois-de-Consenvoye, east of the Meuse, he, in command of his platoon, led his men under heavy machine-gun fire and captured approximately 500 prisoners, 3 field pieces, and many machine guns. On Oct. 15 he voluntarily exposed himself to warn his men against gas and was wounded by shrapnel. He refused to go to the hospital until ordered to do so by a med-

Private, Battery B, 109th Field Artillery, 28th Division.
Seeing a wounded comrade lying in an open field swept by an enemy barrage he showed marked personal bravery in going to the rescue. Forced to expose himself to enemy fire to aid his companions, he himself was mortally wounded.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Owen McGarry.

Second lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Organizing a group of 20 men who had become separated from their organizations, Lieutenant McGay, under machine-gun fire, attacked a strongly intrenched position defended by a greatly superior number of the enemy, killing 3 of the hostile force and capturing 25, together with 4 machine guns.

Private, Company G, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. He left his shelter and went out into heavy shell and machine-gun fire to rescue a wounded comrade, receiving fatal wounds in the attempt.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Mary Anna McGeary.

Private, Company M, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
When volunteers were called for to maintain liaison with the assaulting battalion during heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he volunteered and succesfully carried out 5 such missions.

Private, Company C, 109th Machine Gun Battalion, 28th Division. Seeing a wounded soldier in an ambulance which had broken down while crossing a small bridge, in plain view of the enemy and under heavy artillery fire, he went to his rescue, and, assisted by another soldier, carried out the wounded man under intense shell fire 1½ miles to a dressing station.

McGill, Don R.
Near Brabant, France, Oct. 23, 1918.
R.—Nelsonville, Ohio.
B.—Nelsonville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R-Philadelphia, Pa. B—Norristown, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

McGinnis, William H. (567996)..... Near Chery-Chartreuve, France, Aug. 10, 1918. R.—Beckley, W. Va. B.—Beckley, W. Va. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

*McGLINCHEY, WILLIAM J. (1696992).... Near Carrefour-de-Meurrussons, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*McGlue, John R. (1209998) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Lynn, Mass. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

McGowan, Francis (60991). Remy, France, Near Bois-de-St. Rem Sept. 12, 1918. R—Waltham, Mass. B—Waltham, Mass. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

McGrath, Henry John.
On the high seas, Oct. 12, 1918.
R—Jacksonville, Fla.
B—Brookline, Mass.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

McGraw, Joe W. (1517987)

Near Heurne, Belgium, Nov. 4, 1918.

R—McGraw, Ohio.

B—McGraw, Ohio.

G. O. No. 59., W. D., 1919.

18, 1918.

R—Greenfield, Mass. B—Greenfield, Mass. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

MACGUIRE, EDWARD A. Near the Bois-de-Chatillon, France,

Nov. 5-9, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Captain, Field Artillery, 308th Trench Mortar Battery, 83d Division. Due to the untiring energy and determination of Captain McGill, eight 6-inch mortars and ammunition were transported to within 800 meters of the enemy lines, greatly aiding in the preparatory artillery bombardment. Although 15 of the 55 men engaged were killed, 13 wounded, and 4 gassed, the mortars were kept in action until the last one was destroyed by enemy fire.

Captain, 110th Ambulance Company, 103d Sanitary Train, 28th Division. During the night of the 9th of August Captain McGinnis, with complete disregard of his personal Safety, made a reconnaissance under fire and located a line of evacuation for ambulances from Fismette and on the morning of the 10th of August, under shellfire, he personally repaired the bridge between Fismes and Fismette, thereby making possible the evacuation of 28 wounded

Corporal, Company D, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. An incendiary shell exploded near a large ammunition dump near which his company was resting, wounding several of his comrades, and setting fire to a portion of the dump. While a second explosion was imminent, Corporal McGinnis rushed into the flames and dragged a wounded man to safety.

Sergeant, first class, Company B, 344th Battalion, Tank Corps. Gathering several scattered infantrymen, Sergeant McGinty led them into the town of Varennes ahead of the tanks and captured a number of prisoners. He then withdrew to the outskirts of the town to direct the advance of several tanks which had arrived. Returning to the attack on foot, he continued forward until a wound compelled him to retire.

Sergeant, Company A, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
While his plateon was being heavily bombarded he left his place of safety and quiet to rescue a wounded comrade. In attempting this valiant deed Sergeant McGlinchey lost his own life.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Frances M. Mc-Glinchey.

Private, first class, Company B, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

Private, First Class, McGlue, with Mechanic Copeland, left the protection of a trench and, in the face of heavy machine-gun and grenade fire, went in advance of our lines to rescue a wounded comrade. They were exposed to heavy fire from the time they left the trench. Private McGlue was killed as he and his companion were returning to the trench with the succored waveled control of the protection. wounded comrade.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, H. R. McGlue.

Sergeant, Company F, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

Accompanying two other soldiers, Sergeant McGowan rushed foreward in advance of his lines, exposed to heavy machine-gun fire, and attacked an enemy machine-gun stronghold which was halting the progress of his platoon. He succeeded in capturing 2 guns and 6 of the crew who were manning them.

Second lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, with Army Transport Service.

For extraordinary heroism in action between the United States Army chartered transport Amphion and an enemy submarine on the high seas on Oct. 12, 198. In the face of heavy enemy shellfire he took charge of and directed the laying of fire hose along the deck and extinguished a fire which had been started by an exploding shell. Exposing himself to exploding shells and without regard for his personal safety, he carried a wounded seaman across the shell-swept deck to a place of safety. During the entire engagement, which lasted 1 hour and 20 minutes, this officer displayed great coolness, going from place to place about the ship and encouraging the crew at a time when encouragement was sorely needed. His coolness and the effective manner with which he gave orders inspired everyone and greatly aided the escape of the Amphion.

Private, Company D, 145th Infantry, 37th Division. He displayed exceptional personal bravery when, with one other soldier, he went to the aid of a comrade who had been attacked and wounded by a patrol of 8 Germans, putting the patrol to flight and rescuing the wounded man.

Sergeant, Company L, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.

After being severely wounded in the head he struggled to his feet and led his platoon forward, instilling courage and confidence in his men.

First lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
Having developed a hernia in crossing the Meuse River, Lieutenant MacGuire displayed remarkable fortitude and devotion to duty by remaining with his company and leading it into action, reaching his objective under severe machine-gun and shellfire. He continued with his command until a double hernia developed from strain caused by 2 forced marches into advanced positions and he was ordered to the rear.

1918. R—Newark, N. J. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McGuire, James, Jr. (1902288)... Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R—New Haven, Conn. B—Ireland.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

McGuire, Leo F. (10388)

Near Seicheprey, France, Apr. 19,

R—Tulsa, Okla. B—Elgin, Kans. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

McGuire. Maurice J ... Near St. Agnan, France, July 16, 1918. R—Scranton, Pa. B—Scranton, Pa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

McGuirk, Harry (1284895) Near Haumont, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Principio Furnace, Md. B-North East, Md. G O. No. 7 W. D., 1919.

*McGuirl, Bernard (62960)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 23, 1918.

R—Fitchburg, Mass.

B—Fitchburg, Mass.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*McHenry, John, Jr... Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918, and before Blanc Mont, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md. B—Pikesville, Md. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

McIntyre, Donald R. Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 18, 1918. R—Springfield, Mass. B—Manchester, N. H. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McIntyre, Eugene (1396538).
Near Hill 281, France, Oct. 3, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Johnstown, Pa.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

McIntyre, James B... Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 28-Aug. 3, 1918. R-North Adams, Mass. B-North Adams, Mass. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

McIntyre, John (1467559) -Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Topeka, Kans. B—Nokomis, III. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

McIntyre, William... Near Vicrzy, France, July 19, 1918. R.—Chicago, Ill. B.—Scottsville, N. Y. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company B, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
Without regard for his own danger, Sergeant McGuire went to the rescue of a wounded comrade who was lying seriously wounded 100 yards in front of our lines. He earried him safely to the aid station, crossing and recrossing an area swept by intense artillery and machine-gun fire and under the direct observation of the enemy.

Private, Company II, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

With exceptional gallantry, he voluntarily went out into an area swept by heavy machine-gun fire to rescue a wounded sergeant, and succeeded in carrying the latter a considerable distance through heavy fire to a first-aid station.

Private, first class, section No. 647, Ambulance Service.

He was on duty as driver of an ambulance at an advanced post on Apr. 19, 1918.

During Apr. 19 and 20 he made several trips to and from a dressing station reached by an exposed road in daylight, for the purpose of bringing back wounded. On one of these trips the ambulance was blown from the road by the explosion of a shell and he was knocked unconscious by the shock. On the explosion of a stein and the way another than the control of the artering consciousness he returned on foot. Although suffering from an injury in the back and not yet recovered from the shock, he wished to return to duty the afternoon of the same day, but was not permitted to do so by the medical officers until the afternoon of the following day.

First lieutenant, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.
Although painfully wounded shortly after his platoon began an attack, Lieutenant McGuire refused to be evacuated until his command was ordered to withdraw. He then saw that their position was firmly held before going to the rear for treatment. His personal heroism was an inspiration to his men.

Corporal, 116th Ambulance Company, 104th Sanitary Train, 29th Division. He worked for 4 days, fearlessly exposing himself to heavy enemy fire, in administering first aid and directing the evacuation of the wounded. By his conspicuous bravery and untiring energy he was an example to his men.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
While leading a squad of ammunition carriers he was severely wounded. After a tourniquet had been applied to his wounds he ordered the second in command to continue with the work, refusing the aid of his comrades until their mission had been completed. While on his way to a hospital he died of his Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Rose McGuirl.

First lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Lieutenant McHenry led his platoon through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire until he fell severely wounded. On Oct. 3, 1918, while leading his platoon in the attack on the strongly fortified enemy position before Blanc Mont, he fell mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John McHenry.

Second lieutenant, Company E, 310th Infantry, 78th Division. Seeing one of his men lying wounded in a shell hole in front of his main line, Lieutenant McIntyre passed through an intense barrage to his aid. Having bandaged his wounds, he brought back his man to a place of safety.

Corporal, 130th Ambulance Company, 108th Sanitary Train, 33d Division. After being severely wounded by the explosion of an enemy shell in the dressing station, he remained on duty, assisting in caring for the wounded until he fainted from loss of blood.

First lieutenant, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. He organized his platoon into a carrying party and on two occasions brought up ammunition and supplies to the battalion in the front line, through heavy machine-gun, rifle, and shell fire. He was knocked down several times and once thrown into the Ource River, but successfully carried out his mission.

Sergeant, Company A, 110th Engineers, 35th Division. While a member of a platoon of wire cutters, he, with another sergeant, attacked and helped to capture an enemy machine-gun nest that was holding up our advance. One officer, 6 men, and 2 guns were taken in the face of intense machine gun fire.

Private, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Corporal Montag and Privates McIntyre, Messinger, and Wood captured a machine gun which was holding up the 55th Company of Marines, killing the entire crew. To accomplish this hazardous and daring work it was necessary for them to expose themselves to the fire of this gun. Even though Corporal Montag and Privates McIntyre and Messinger were wounded during the advance, the party continued forward and succeeded.

MACISAAC, DONALD (161412)
At Gouzeaucourt, France, Nov. 30, 1917. Gardens, Long Island,

R—Kew Gardens, Long N. Y. B—Chicago, III. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

*MACK, PETER F. (255882) Near Montrebeau Woods, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Ottawa, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

MACK, WILLIAM— On the Vesle River, near Bazoches, France, Sept. 2, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—San Francisco, Calif. B—East Liverpool, Ohio. G. O. No. 147, W. D., 1918.

*McKay, Albert G. (1865857)_____ Near Montbrehain, France, Oct.

Near Montbrehain, Fran 8, 1918. R—Gastonia, N. C. B—Mooresville, N. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

McKay, Elmore K..... Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R—Washington, D. C. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

McKay, James R.
Near Doulcon, France, Oct. 4. 1918.
R—Wheaton, Ill.
B—Grinnell, Iowa.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

McKay, John W. (2213386) ..... Northwest of Bantheville, France, Northwest of Pantal Nov. 1, 1918. R—Independence, Kans. B—Thayer, Kans. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

McKendry, Stewart J. (132500) --Near Vaux, France, July 1, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

Sergeant, Company B, 11th Railway Engineers.

When the unarmed working party of which he was a member was unexpectedly attacked at Gouzeaucourt, France, Nov. 30, 1917, he displayed extraordinary heroism by declining to take advantage of shelter, in going back into the harrage to assist American soldiers of another unit, and returning into the barrages are seried time to course for wounded British soldiers. rage a second time to search for wounded British soldiers.

Private, Company K, 146th Infantry, 35th Division.

After being mortally wounded during the advance, Private Mack refused to go to the rear. He went to the place assigned to him in the line and attempted to dig in. His fearlessness and fortitude were a great inspiration to his comrades.

Posthumously awarded. Mcdal presented to brother, Michael J. Mack

Private, Company B, 135th Machine Gun Battalion, 37th Division. In the face of intense machine-gun fire, he voluntarily swam the Scheldt River to obtain information regarding the enemy. His successful return with the desired information enabled his company commander to so place his guns that they could be fired with great advantage.

First lieutenant, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
Lieutenant Mack volunteered to leave St. Thibaut in broad daylight with another officer and a patrol of 10 men to reconnoiter the enemy's lines. Upon reaching the Vesle River Lieutenant Mack swam across it and arranged the reaching the Vesle River Lieutenant Mack swam across it and arranged the rope by means of which the remainder of the patrol crossed the stream. He divided the patrol and, taking 5 men with him, advanced on the village of Bazoches, which was occupied by the enemy. He attacked enemy hiding places in an old house in which he encountered 4 Germans. Although under machine-gun fire, he gained valuable information, having actually penetrated the enemy's advanced posts, and with great skill withdrew his patrol. Lieutenant Mack and 4 of his men were wounded, 2 mortally.

Captain, 4th Engineers, 4th Division. capiain, 4th Engineers, 4th Division.

He reconnoitered a section of the River Vesle in advance of the front line of Infantry under continuous fire from machine gun and 1 pounders. Proceeding alone for about 1 kilometer along the stream, despite the fact that German machine guns were located near the opposite bank, he continued his reconnaissance and selected several suitable sites, one of which was used the next night. Captain MacKall guided the working party through the enemy's barrage.

First lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.
In an effort to locate enemy machine-gun emplacements, Lieutenant Mackay constantly exposed himself to enemy fire and, while so doing, was severely wounded. During the entire five days of operations he led a scout group forward, locating nests that had been stubbornly resisting the progress of our troops, and supplying the artillery with most valuable information, resulting in the destruction of the nests.

Corporal, Company C, 105th Engineers, 30th Division.
Corporal McKay, a runner, passed unfalteringly through heavy enemy shell fire to inform platoon leaders of the location of cover from the advanced enemy counterbarrage, continuing to expose himself until all were protected, thereby preventing many casualties. As he was returning from this mission he was badly wounded and died shortly afterwards.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Belle Branton

McKay.

Second lieutenant, observer, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

He, with First Lieutenant Harry O. McDougall, pilot, while on a bombing mission displayed exceptional courage by leaving a comparatively secure position in the center of the formation during a combat with 5 enemy planes and going to the protection of 2 other officers whose planes had been disabled and forced out of the formation. While his pilot skillfully maneuvered the machine, he shot down one of the adversaries and fought off the others, thereby saving the lives of the officers in the disabled American planes.

First lieutenant, 49th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
When a patrol of 7 planes attacked a group of 17 enemy planes (Fokker type) he remained above to protect from that direction. Without regard to his own danger he attacked alone 5 more enemy planes which dived into the combat, and pressing the attack succeeded in breaking up their formation and shooting down 1 of the enemy planes.

Corporal, Company M, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.

Immediately after the beginning of the attack in the Bois-de-Bantheville, France, when his company was held up by a strong machine-gun nest and his company commander and several others were killed by its fire, Corporal McKay, accompanied by an officer and with great gallantry and coolness attacked and captured the machine-gun nest of 4 guns, killing or wounding a number of the crew.

Private, Battery E, 17th Field Artillery, 2d Division.
He performed his duty of telephone-line repairman with great bravery and promptness in spite of intense bombardment of the area where he had to work, near Yaux, July 1, 1918, going fearlessly and without waiting to be ordered when communication was broken.

McKenna, Herbert F. (91192)...... Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July Near Villers-sur-Fere, Fra 28, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*McKenna, James A., Jr Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 28, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

R—St. Paul, Minn. B—Fairmont, Minn. G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

Near Binarville, France, Sept. 29, 1918. McKeogh, Arthur F R-New York, N. Y. B-Troy, N. Y. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

Near 1918. R-Willimantic, Conn. B-Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

McKey, Harold, G. At Romagne, France, Oct. 13-14, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*McKibbin, James M..... Near Chevieres, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Buck Valley, Pa.
B—Buck Valley, Pa.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

R-Knoxville, Tenn. B-Meadow Creek, Ky. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

R—Comanche, Tex. B—Goldthwaite, Tex. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Lewiston, N. Y. B-Lewiston, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-East Liverpool, Ohio. B-East Liverpool, Ohio. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

Sergeant, Company K, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

At the beginning of the attack against the enemy positions on the north bank of of the River Ourcı he was wounded in the arm by a machine-gun bullet, yet he continued in the advance and took charge of his platoon when its commander was killed. When the first attack was over, he received first aid and then returned to his company, where he assumed the duties of first sergeant in addition to his duties as a platoon commander.

munication.

Major, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. He was killed while successfully leading a most difficult and trying attack across the River Ourcq and against the strongly prepared positions on the heights beyond.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James A. McKenna.

Corporal, Company L, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

After being seriously wounded near Vaux, France, July 1, 1918, he charged into thick woods held by the enemy in face of a barrage of hand granades and killed 3 single handed.

First lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

In order to obtain ammunition and rations, Lieutenant McKeogh, accompanied by 2 enlisted men, attempted to reestablish communication between battalion and regimental headquarters. When night came they crawled unknowingly into the center of a German camp, where they lay over 3 hours undetected. Finally discovered, they made a dash to escape, and Lieutenant McKeogh, in order to protect his men, deliberately drew the enemy fire upon himself. He succeeded, however, in getting through the enemy lines, delivered his message, and effected the reestablishment of communication.

Sergeant, Company K, 102d Infantry, 26th Division. After all the company officers had been killed or wounded, he took command of the company and led it in effective attack against the enemy on the 25th of October and again on the 27th. After the attack on the enemy of Oct. 28, he secured a box of rifle grenades, and while a protective barrage was laid down with these he crawled out in advance of the line and brought in several wounded comrades.

First lieutenant, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
When his company commander was wounded Lieutenant McKey took command of the company. Although wounded and weakened by the loss of blood, he refused to be evacuated, but continued in command of his men for 32 hours under severe machine-gun and artillery fire until the town of Romagne was taken, remaining in action until ordered to the rear.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 306th Machine Gun Battalion, 77th

During a very heavy artillery barrage, which lasted for approximately 2 hours, Captain McKibbin displayed great coolness and courage in dressing and administering first aid to the wounded. Informed that a sergeant had been wounded and was lying between our lines and the enemy's line, he went to administer first aid to him. While in the performance of these duties under intense fire, he was wounded by machine-gun fire and later died from the effects of the wound.

Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Mary McKibbin. Posthumously awarded.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
When his platoon had suffered heavy casualties and the runners had been killed by heavy artillery fire, Private McKiddy volunteered to carry a message, calling for reinforcements. Making his way through a dense smoke barrage, he succeeded in reaching company headquarters and returning, despite the interse hombardment. despite the intense bombardment.

Second lieutenant, 141st Infantry, 36th Division.
His organization harassed and suffering severe losses from enemy machine-gun fire, Lieutenant McKimmey, accompanied by 2 sergeants, left shelter and advanced across an open area, exposed to enemy fire, in order to attack their position. He lost his life while making the attempt.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, R. L. McKimmey.

Private, 67th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. As a runner he carried messages over territory which was subject to constant shellfire, exhibiting singular courage and devotion to duty.

First lieutenant, 11th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. He with another officer and a soldier, using captured German Maxim guns, pushed forward to a heavily shelled area from which other troops had with-drawn and by their accurate and effective fire kept groups of the enemy from occupying advantageous positions, maintaining fire superiority all the after-He withdrew from his dangerous position only when it became too dark to see.

*McKinlock, George A., Jr At Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, 1918. R—Lake Forest, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

McKinney, Darel Jesse In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 8, 1918. R-Milwaukee, Wis. B-Milwaukee, Wis. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

McKinney, Loater Lloyd (1311144) -- Near Montbrehain, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Spartanburg, S. C. B—Dobson, N. C. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

McLain, Alexis M. (1317178)

Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 10,
1918.

R—Winston-Salem, N. C. B—Alexandria, N. C. G. O. No 81, W. D., 1919.

McLain, Charles L.
On the Marne River, France, July 15, 1918, and at Apremont, France,
Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Indiana, Pa.
B—Indiana, Pa.
G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

*McLaughlin, Edward J. At Etraye Ridge, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R-Newark, N. J. B-Newark, N. J. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

*McLaughlin, Edward R. (2431613). Near Cunel, France, Oct. 18, 1918. R—Wampum, Pa. B—Wampum, Pa. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 1918.

R-Middletown, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

McLaughlin, John (91850) ___ Near Sedan, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R—Wards Island, N. Y. B-Ireland. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

McLawhon, Lewis B. (49243) ... Near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Winterville, N. C. B—Winterville, N. C. G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

McLean, Stephen (60026)... Near Mouilly, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—West Roxbury, Mass. B—Dedham, Mass. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

McLelland, William D.....

Near Nantillois and Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29-Oct. I, 1918. R—Mooresville, N. C. B—Mooresville, N. C. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 2d Infantry Brigade, 1st Division.

He showed noble disregard of self and devotion to duty by traversing the front lines for information necessary in connection with his work as intelligence officer, and while fearlessly performing this work was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. George A. McKinlock.

Sergeant, 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marinc Corps, 2d Division. In the Bois-de-Belleau, on June 8, 1918, although severely wounded he refused to go to the rear for treatment. Despite his wounds he continued to lead his platoon to the attack, inflicting great losses upon the enemy.

Private, Company F, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. Accompanying 2 comrades, he attacked with hand grenades an enemy machine gun stronghold containing at least 40 Germans and 4 machine guns and forced the enemy to surrender.

Private, Company K, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

After 1 soldier had been killed and another wounded in the attempt, he carried a message under heavy fire to company headquarters, bringing up reinforcements which saved his platoon.

Captain, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.

He was an observer with the French when the enemy attack on the Marne River was started July 15, 1918. All the officers of an Infantry company having been killed or wounded, he voluntarily reorganized the remainder of the company and successfully fought his way through the enemy, upon 2 occasions being surrounded. In this operation he was badly gassed. At Apremont, Sept. 29, when his own company had reached its objective, he, finding that another company was without officers, voluntarily assumed command of it and led the first wave. In so doing he was wounded, but he continued in action until the objective was reached.

First Lieutenant, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.
Assuming command of his company after the death of his commanding officer, Lieutenant McLaughlin displayed remarkable courage and coolness in leading his men to the summit of the ridge until he was severely wounded. He was killed shortly afterwards by shellfire as he was being evacuated in an ambulance.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Mary McLaughlin.

Private, Company B, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
The platoon of which Private McLaughlin was a member was cut off from the rest of the company by an intense artillery barrage. It was imperative to communicate with company headquarters. He delivered a message through extremely heavy fire. While on the return trip with the reply he was hit by an enemy shell and instantly killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John W. McLaughlin.

Mechanic, Company I, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

While the rest of his company was being held up by intensive machine-gun fire of the enemy, he advanced alone and put the guns out of action. On several other occasions he volunteered and accompanied patrols in attack against enemy nests, each time proving himself of the greatest assistance, successfully accomplishing his mission despite great hazards.

Corporal, Company M, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. After 10 of the 16 of his patrol had been wounded and others scattered by machine-gun fire, Corporal McLaughlin, with 2 other soldiers, continued on his mission. He located 6 guns and returned with valuable information which was turned over to the troops relieving his regiment. This mission was carried out under continuous machine-gun fire.

Saddler, Machine Gun Company, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
While attached to the headquarters of a machine-gun company of the 23d Infantry, near Chateau-Thierry, France, on June 6, 1918, he made 8 trips as a runner to and from advance platonors. He showed heroic coolness in the face of machine-gun fire and absolute fearlessness in the execution of his work.

Private, Company B, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
When the advance of his platoon was belated by heavy machine-gun fire from the front, Private McLean exposed himself to heavy fire, charged and captured the enemy position. Single handed he forced 9 of the enemy to surrender and enabled his platoon to continue the advance.

First lieutenant, 314th Ambulance Company, 304th Sanitary Train, 79th Division.

Division.

Lieutenant McLelland, near Nantillois, displayed untiring energy in bringing in the wounded while continually subjected to machine-gun and shrapnel fire. It was necessary to move the dressing station to some abandoned German dugouts because of the leavy fire, and during the bombardment this station was set on fire and 6 men killed, but Lieutenant McLelland, by his coolness and courage, enabled the speedy evacuation of the wounded.

McLendon, Preston Alexander

Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-4, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y. B—Wadesboro, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Wausau, Wis. B—Rib Lake, Wis. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

McLeod, Herman L.
In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June

6 and 8, 1918.

R—Paulding, Ohio.

B—Cincinnati, Ohio.

G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

*McLeop, Lamar Y Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Mobile, Ala. B—Grove Hill, Ala. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

1918

R-Columbia, S. C. B-Lynchburg, S. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MacLeod, Norman D.
At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R-Providence, R. I. B-East Providence, R. I. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

McLoud, Paul .. At Gouzeaucourt, France, Nov. 30, 1917

R—Albany, N. Y. B—Montezuma, N. Y. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

McLoughlin, Comerford_ At Ripont, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Rye, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

McLoughlin, John J. (91270)

Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 28, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y.

B—Minneapolis, Minn.
G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1918.

McLoughlin, William (106076)...... Near Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, 1918.

R-Anaconda, Mont. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

McManaway, Herman Blair (1310006) Near Hargicourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Greenville, S. C. B—Greer, S. C. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant (junior grade), assistant surgeon, U. S. Navy, attached to 1st Battalion, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

During heavy action he continually pushed his dressing station to more advantageous positions. Although in great danger because of a severe shelling, he dressed his patients in an exposed position, using his dugout for the seriously wounded.

First lieutenant, 142d Infantry, 36th Division. Leading a patrol of 10 men, with orders to gain contact with the enemy, Lieutenant McLennan was suddenly subjected to terrific machine-gun fire, which wounded two of his men. He quickly ordered his men to shelter, and in order to insure their safety he ran across an open space for a distance of 30 yards to draw the enemy's fire. Rejoining his patrol by passing through the same deadly fire, he ordered them to withdraw, covering their withdrawal and reporting back to his company commander with his 2 wounded men and much valuable information.

Private, 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Howard J. Childs, Joseph A. Dargis, and Allen Benjamiu Tilghman, corporals, and Herman L. McLeod, private, 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps. These 4 men were prominent in the attack on enemy machine-gun positions in the Bois-de-Belleau on June 6 and 8, 1918, were foremost in their company at all times, and acquitted themselves with such distinction that they were an example for the remainder of their command.

Captain, 325th Infantry, 82d Division.
Captain McLeod at a critical time during an enemy counterattack assumed command of an improvised platoon and by fearlessly exposing himself to encourage his men repulsed the attack and held the position, although it had been previously evacuated by a company under a very severe counterattack. In the performance of this hazardous duty Captain McLeod lost his life.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Lucius B. McLeod.

First lieutenant, 323d Infantry, 81st Division.

While advancing with his platoon, under perilous shellfire, he was severely wounded. Refusing aid, he remained, and, while his platoon was suffering heavy casualties, he succeeded in holding his platoon under control and advancing it.

Captain, 103d Field Artillery, 26th Division.
While acting as artillery liaison officer he displayed remarkable courage and judgment under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire. In addition to his duties as liaison officer he volunteered and took personal command of a detachment of infantrymen who were without officers, and by his personal bravery and resourcefulness successfully withstood a violent counterattack by the enemy.

First lieutenant, 11th Railway Engineers.

He displayed extraordinary heroism at Gouzeaucourt, France, Nov. 30, 1917, in remaining under shellfire until the escape of his men, who had been caught unarmed by the German attack, was assured. He then assisted in leading troops to the trenches, directing the procurement and distribution of ammunition, and displaying coolness and judgment while continually under fire.

First lieutenant, 369th Infantry, 93d Division. In command of a company of his regiment during the assault on the enemy's position he voluntarily exposed himself to a concentration of enemy machineposition he voluntarily exposed infinish to a concentration of enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, made his way with great difficulty over rough and broken ground, and rescued his wounded battalion commander and his battalion adjutant and several wounded enlisted men, all of whom he carried to a dressing station, thus undoubtedly saving their lives. The undaunted courage and devotion to duty displayed by Lieutenant McLoughlin inspired the men of his regiment to great endeavors.

Corporal, Company K, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. He killed 4 of the enemy, took 1 prisoner, and held the position by himself until support arrived. Prior to this he had left shelter to give first aid to a comrade who was lying severely wounded in the open.

Private, Company A, 3d Machine Battalion, 1st Division. He advanced against a machine gun and, single handed, killed or captured the entire crew.

Corporal, Company A, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
Volunteering to act as stretcher bearer, he assisted in evacuating the wounded during a severe gas shelling. Realizing the presence of strong gas, he unhest-tatingly took off his mask and placed it on a wounded man whose mask had been shot away, and in so doing he was badly gassed. It then became necessary to evacuate him, but his heroic and timely act saved the life of his comrade.

McManus, Walter P. (1212082).... Near Le Catelet, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Worcester, Mass. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

McMaster, George II
In the crossing of the Rio Grande de Cagayan, P. I., Dec. 7, 1899.
R—Columbia, S. C.
B—Columbia, S. C.
G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

*Mackmer, Herbert W. (1712678).... Near Carrefour-des-Meurrussons, France, Sept. 27, 1918.
R—Collins Center, N. Y.
B—Collins Center, N. Y.
G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

McMorris, William R______ In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct.

4, 1918. R—Bay City, Mich. B—Bay City, Mich. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

McMunn, Richard L.
Near Chateau-et-Ferme-de-Aulnois,
France, Nov. 7, 1918.
R-Olney, Ill.
B-Neoga, Ill.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

McMurry, Ora R.
Near Romagne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Evansville, Wis.
B—Lake Preston, S. Dak.

MACNAIR, HUGH W. (9527)_____At Ostel (Aisne), France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Houghton, Mich. B—Houghton, Mich. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*McNamara, John P. (89925)_____ Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 14-15, 1918.

R—Staten Island, N. Y.

B—Staten Island, N. Y.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

MACNAMEE, FRANK A., Jr In the Belleau Wood, France, July 19, 1918. R-Albany, N. Y. B-Albany, N. Y. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

*McNamee, William J. (748096)
Near Crezancy, and ChateauThierry, France, July 15, 1918.
R-New York, N. Y.
B-Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Corporal, Company M, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

The platoon which he commanded being driven to shelter by intense enemy artillery and machine-gun fire and many of its members wounded, Sergeant McManus, with complete disregard for his own safety and disregarding this heavy fire, advanced in plain view of the enemy, rescued a wounded man of his platoon, and although he himself was severely wounded applied first aid and brought his wounded comrade back to a place of comparative safety, thereby saving the latter's life.

First licutenant, 2tth Infantry, U. S. Army.
While in command of Company II, 24th Infantry, which was held up in the crossing of the Rio Grande de Cagayan, P. I., Dec. 7, 1899, by rifle fire from a well-intrenched enemy on the opposite bank, and being without rafts or boats with which to cross, Licutenant McMaster volunteered to swim the river. Displaying great gallantry and utmost disregard of his own life, with a party of 5 men he swam the river in the face of a heavy rifle fire and with reinforcements which later joined him drove the enemy from their trenches and then through and out of the town, thereby making possible the further advance of his command.

Private, Company A, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

When his platoon encountered intense fire from hostile trench mortars and machine guns, he took up an exposed position on the flank and, with his automatic rifle, covered the withdrawal of the platoon to a protected position, sacrificing his life in so doing.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George Mackmer.

1 of them

advance of his command.

Captain, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

He directed the advance of his company through an intense artillery barrage and against heavy machine-gun fire. When the battalion commander had been wounded, he assumed command of the battalion and led it to its objective, after which he consolidated the new position. While personally resisting an enemy counterattack, he was wounded.

Second licutenant, 130th Infantry, 33d Division. Leading his platoon against a strong machine-gun emplacement, he cut his way through 2 bands of barbed wire and succeeded in reaching the stronghold. Although suffering from severe wounds which he received during the raid, he remained on duty until the action was over.

First lieutenant, 49th Acro Squadron, Air Service. He was a member of a patrol of 7 machines which attacked 17 enemy Fokkers. After shooting down 1 of the enemy, this officer returned to the fight and shot down another.

Oak-leaf cluster. Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Tages La Croix aux Bois, France, Oct. 30, 1918. Lieutenant McMurry is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with his distinguished-service cross: After becoming separated from his patrol because of motor trouble, this officer encountered and attacked 5 enemy planes (type Fokker) and succeeded in shooting down between the company of the compa

Private, first class, section No. 622, Ambulance Service. Having just been relieved after 48 hours of strenuous duty, he volunteered to drive an ambulance to an advanced regimental post under constant and intense fire. While engaged in this dangerous mission, he suffered a wound which necessitated amputation of his right leg.

Private, first class, Company D, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Under direct and heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, Private Mc-Namara repeatedly carried messages across open ground during the attack upon Landres-et-St. Georges. Accompanying a patrol Oct. 14, he was wounded in arm and leg, but continued on with the patrol, which penetrated the enemy lines, where he engaged in hand-to-hand fighting. While thus engaged he was mortally wounded and carried by his comrades to his own lines, where he died two days later. His splendid courage and devotion to duty inspired the men of his patrol to great endeavors.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Annie McNamara.

First lieutenant, 101st Field Artillery, 26th Division. By his utter disregard of danger he inspired great confidence in his men during a critical period by three times going into a heavily shelled area to help rescue wounded.

Private, Company C, 3d Ammunition Train, 3d Division.

On the morning of the 15th of July, Private McNamee, with Private Eckweller, volunteered and brought up a truck for the purpose of saving the records of the 30th Infantry, which were in danger of capture. He was killed while attempting this mission.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, David McNamee.

Captain, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

Advancing for 100 yards under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he went with a soldier to the aid of a wounded man who had had a leg blown off by an antitank shell. Showing utter disregard for personal danger, Captain MacNaughton dressed the wound of the soldier, who had fallen near the tank, which was still being shelled, and then carried the wounded man to safety McNerney, Edward J. (73255)..... Near Epieds, France, July 22, 1918. R.—Lowell, Mass. B.—Lowell, Mass. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

McNicholas, Thomas G.
At Boise-de-Consenvoye, France,
Oct. 26, 1918.
R—Coekeysville, Md.
B—Coekeysville, Md.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

MacNider, Hanford... Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3-9, 1918. R-Mason City, Iowa. B-Mason City, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

McNulty, Clarence J. (17469).... Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 7, 1918. R—Chicago, III. B—Chicago, III. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

McNulty, Herman L.
Near Remonville, France, Nov. 1, 1918.
R—Huntington, W. Va.
B—Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

McNulty, John_____

Between Blanc Mont and St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Revere, Mass. B—England. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

MacPherson, Henry B. (1681718)...At St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R—Abington, Mass. B—Tewksbury, Mass. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

McPike, Leslie Albert (554075)
In the Bois-de-Foret, France, Oct.
22, 1918.
R—Bedford, Ind.
B—Bedford, Ind.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company D, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
On duty as a runner, he repeatedly carried messages under the heaviest shell and machine-gun fire. He also performed heroic service in earrying wounded soldiers to shelter and administering first aid. Though he was almost exhausted, he voluntarily went to the rear under heavy artillery fire and procured food, which he brought back and distributed among his comrades in the shell hole.

Private, Company B, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

Upon reaching his objective, Hill 190, in front of Bouresches, he found he was the only man of his squad left. Going forward, he entered an enemy machinegun position and at the point of his bayonet captured 3 machine guns and 5 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company K, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
Sergeant McNerney, with I other soldier, went to the rescue of a wounded comrade through a severe machine-gun fire at a direct range of only 350 yards and carried the wounded man to safety.

Captain, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

Upon learning that 1 of the officers had been wounded by enemy fire and lying in an exposed position, Captain McNicholas leth his post of command at battalion headquarters and with complete disregard for his own safety made his way through concentrated enemy machine-gun, rifte, and artillery fire, found the wounded officer and carried him to a place of shelter within his own lines. The bravery and devotion to his brother officer displayed by Captain McNicholas greatly inspired the men of his battalion.

Captain, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

He voluntarily joined an attacking battalion on Oct. 3, and accompanied it to its final objectives. During the second attack on the same day he acted as a runner through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. He visited the lines both night and day, where the fighting was most severe. When higher authority could not be reached, he assumed responsibilities and gave the necessary orders to stabilize serious situations. When new and untried troops took up the attack, he joined their forward elements, determined the enemy points of resistance, by personal recommassance, uncovered enemy machine-gun nests, and supervised their destruction.

and supervised their destruction.

Oak-leaf cluster.

Captain MacNider is also awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with distinguished-service cross, for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Remeneauville, France, Sept. 12, 1918: On duty as regimental adjutant, while carrying instructions to the assaulting lines, he found the line unable to advance and being disorganized by a heavy machine-gun fire. Running forward in the face of the fire, this officer captured a German machine gun, drove off the crew, reorganized the line on that flank, and thereby enabled the advance to continue.

Private, medical detachment, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
When his battalion was forced to retire under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, Private McNulty, accompanied by Private William A. Jacobson, went out in front of the battalion, administering first aid and bringing in the wounded, who had been left lying in exposed positions. While they were earrying back a wounded soldier, Private Jacobson was wounded, whereupon Private McNulty alone carried the wounded man to the dressing station and then immediately returned to assist Private Jacobson.

First lieutenant, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.

At the head of his company following close upon the barrage, he inspired his men by his personal valor, and when wounded by a machine-gun bullet in the leg refused to be evacuated. After his wound had been bound up he continued with his company in the advance, remaining on duty till the objective had been reached and consolidated.

Marine gunner, 66th Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Although he was severely wounded during an enemy counterattack, he vol-

Although he was severely wounded during an enemy counterattack, he voluntarily remained on the firing line under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, operating a machine-gun, the crew of which had all been killed or wounded. By staying at his post until the enemy was repulsed and he was ordered to the rear by his commanding officer, he furnished an inspiring example to the other members of the company.

Corporal, Company C, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.

He volunteered repeatedly during the attack on St. Juvin to carry messages through a severe enemy barrage. Throughout the action this soldier showed entire disregard for personal danger and a devotion to duty far beyond the scope of his position, accomplishing several important missions with success.

Sergeant, Company C, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
Having been sent with his section to defend a difficult position, Sergeant McPike succeeded in breaking up a hostile counterattack, though his ammunition was exhausted in so doing. Shortly afterwards, when another counterattack was made against him, he and his men held off the enemy with their pistols, though at one time the Germans had closed in from 3 sides.
Their courageous stand checked the enemy until fresh ammunition could be brought up, whereupon the hostile attack was completely repulsed.

McRae, Duncan K. (2261709)

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Helena, Mont.
B—Helena, Mont.
G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Eau Claire, Wis. B—Eau Claire, Wis. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

McSweeney, Daniel S. (2705993).... Near Ivoiry, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

*McVey, Joseph E. (58743)..... Near Soissons, France, July 18-21, 1918.

R-Kansas City, Mo. B-Wray, Colo. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Norfolk, Conn. B-Bengies, Md. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

McVickar, Lansing... Near Very, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Cambridge, Mass. B—New London, Conn. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MCVICKER, FRANKLIN D (38137)..... At Vaux, France, July 1, 1918. R—Portage, Pa. B—Somerset, Pa. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

MacWilliam, Alexander (1815486) .... Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 4-5, 1918.

R—Erie, Pa. B—Scotland. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Madden, David (2338718) Near Cunel, France, Oct. 7, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

July 31 to Aug. 4, 1918. R—Manistee, Mich. B—Mamistee, Mich. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

JOHN (2273686) At Audenarde, Belgium, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Calexico, Calif. B—Gove, Kans. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company M, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.
Sergeant McRae took out a patrol for the purpose of ascertaining the position of the enemy and the location of machine guns. Three of his men were killed, but he continued on over difficult terrain and returned with information of the highest value in subsequent operations.

Sergeant, Company E, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.

Painfully wounded in the right arm, Sergeant McSorley continued to lead his platoon in the face of terrific machine-gun fire, remaining with his men and directing the advance until he was ordered to the rear.

Sergeant, Company B, 148th Infantry, 37th Division.

Leaving a place of shelter, he voluntarily crawled about 400 yards in advance of the front-line elements of his battalion and attempted to rescue a wounded officer. He then crossed an area swept by intense enemy machine-gun fire and attempted to capture an enemy machine gun which was causing heavy casualties in his company. While so engaged he was severely wounded by enemy fire.

Private, Company M, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

After his platoon commander had been wounded, Private McVey took command of the platoon and displayed exceptional initiative, good judgment, and devotion to duty. He alone captured a machine gun which was holding up the advance and continued to lead his men forward until reaching their final objective; he himself was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Elizabeth Hoy.

Sergeant, Company I, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Sergeant MaeVicar conducted a party of ammunition carriers to the front line during the most violent part of the shell fire near Crezaney on July 15. He also conducted a reconnoitering patrol through terrific machine-gun and shell fire that same day.

First lieutenant, 1st Battalion, headquarters 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division. Lieutenant McVickar volunteered and took forward a gun to the aid of the Infantry under most hazardous circumstances. Despite the loss of 2 horses and the wounding of several of his men, he continued until he encountered an enemy barrage, from which it was necessary to take cover. He exposed himself to the barrages on 5 different occasions to bring in wounded men.

Private, first class, Company A, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. Acting as stretcher bearer, although wounded twice, he continued to make trips through an intense barrage to carry back wounded.

First sergeant Company B, 313th Machine Gun Battalion, 80th Division. Concealing the fact that he was severely wounded, he remained on duty until the afternoon of the following day. While in this condition, he went to the aid of a wounded comrade and brought him to a place of safety, his route being subjected to a concentrated artillery bombardment.

Sergeant, Company E, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Due to the lifting of a heavy fog, Company E was eaught on an open hillside within 100 yards of the enemy's line and were forced to remain in the cover of shell holes for the entire day. Hearing a wounded man mouning in great pain, Sergeant Madden left his shelter and went to his rescue, earrying him through the terrific machine-gun and artillery fire to a shell hole, where he administered all the aid and comfort possible, and then returned to his post through the same intense fire. through the same intense fire.

Private, medical detachment, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
Throughout the advance by Company D, to which he was attached, his conduct in treating the wounded under fire afforded an inspiring example of devotion to duty. He was in the front lines at all times, administering relief not only to men of his company but also to the wounded of other organizations in his vicinity. He voluntarily searched the woods and fields to give first aid to the wounded. In spite of heavy and continuous shell fire, he continued working untiringly day and night until exhausted.

Private, Company I, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. Passing through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, he maintained liaison with adjacent units, displaying marked heroism in his work. He was mortally wounded in the performance of duty.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Robert N. Madden.

Sergeant, first class, Company F, 316th Engineers, 91st Division.
He volunteered to accompany an officer and 3 other soldiers on a reconnaissance patrol of the city of Audenarde. Entering under heavy shellfire, the party reconnoitered the city for 7 hours while it was still being patrolled by the enemy and advanced 2 kilometers in front of our outposts and beyond those of the enemy.

Mader, Thomas Otto (1253128)..... Near Varrennes, France, Oct. 2, 1918. R—Audenried, Pa. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Madore, John J. (558115) _____ Near Bazoches, France, Aug. R-Malden, Mass. B-Canada. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Madsen, Edmund Terner_____At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Indianapolis, Ind. B—Denmark.

Madsen, Howard E. (1284515) In the Bois-de-Consenvoye, France, Oct. 22, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md.

B—Baltimore, Md.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

Maguire, John T.
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—St. Louis, Mo. B—St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

MAGUIRE, SIDNEY CLIFFORD (1386609) ... At Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 9,

1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*Mahafey, Emory (2683) At Cantigny, France, May 28-29, 1918.

R—Atlanta, Ga. B—Lawrenceville, Ga. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

1918. R-Newark, N. J. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

MAHONEY, CORNELIUS J. (2021686).....

Near Kadish, Russia, Oct. 16, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Hartland, Mich. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

*Mahoney, James (2383890) Near Cunel, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Waterbury, Conn. B—Waterbury, Conn. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

MAIER, CARL J. (2261161).... At Bois-de-Cheppy, near France, Sept. 26, 1918. R.—Glendive, Mont. B.—Minnow, S. Dak. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919. near Mcuse,

First sergeant, Battery A, 109th Field Artillery, 28th Division. He displayed great coolness and bravery in helping to guide sections of his battery over a road swept by enemy shell fire, during which 8 men were wounded and 10 horses killed, including one which he himself rode. The driver of a swing team, having difficulty in controlling 1 of the horses of a section, was assigned to another horse and his place taken by Sergeant Mader, who guided the section until he was so severely wounded that he was unable to control. In spite of his wounds, he directed the carrieges to places of to control. In spite of his wounds, he directed the carriages to places of safety, and, disregarding personal safety, requested the medical officer to first give attention to the other wounded. Sergeant Mader's conduct was an inspiration to the men of his battery.

Private, Company G, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
He volunteered to carry a message to an advance squad through heavy machinegun fire. After delivering the message and administering first-aid treatment to the wounded men in the squad he crawled up to the nearest enemy machine gun and put it out of action with a hand grenade.

First sergeant, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Johanne Madsen.

Sergeant, Company D, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
When his platoon was fired on at close range by a machine gun, Sergeant
Madsen went forward and killed 2 of the enemy with grenades, routing the other members of the crew.

First lieutenant, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Although severely wounded, Lieutenant Maguire refused to be evacuated and continued to lead his platoon until again wounded and forced by exhaustion, due to loss of blood, to be evacuated.

Sergeant, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Although wounded early in the engagement, he showed great devotion to duty by continuing at his post as platoon leader for 2 days, relinquishing compand only when forced to do so by the condition of his wound.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
He did more than his duty under violent fire in the open to relieve sufferings of the wounded. On his way to a machine-gun emplacement to succor men who had been injured there he stopped to give first aid to Pvt. Jay Ler.
Antes, who lay mortally wounded and exposed to machine-gun fire, and while performing this heroic act was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Victoria Mahafey.

Corporal, Company L, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
He courageously led several attacks on enemy machine-gun nests. Later in the day he attacked, single-handed, 2 enemy snipers, killing 1 and driving off the other.

Sergeant, Company K, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in north Russia).

After 2 unsuccessful attempts by patrols to locate the right flank of the enemy, Sergeant Mahoney went out alone behind the enemy lines at great personal risk and selected an excellent position from which to deliver a flank attack. The attack delivered by 60 men from the position selected was highly success-

Private, Company G, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
Private Mahoney upon 3 occasions exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire in attempting to work through the enemy lines to carry a message to a group which, due to enemy infiltration, had become isolated. Although mortally wounded, he insisted upon being carried to regimental headquarters in order to make a report of the information gained.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James Mahoney.

Private, first class, Company I, 362d Infantry, 91st Division. Working with a patrol in an attack on an enemy machine gun, he crawled upon the emplacement and without assistance killed 3 enemy gunners and captured their machine gun.

Private, first class, Company F, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.

After his platoon had withdrawn about 50 yards to an established line, a wounded comrade was seen lying ahead in the position they formerly occupied. The enemy had just launched a strong counterattack, but Private Mails, with another soldier, volunteered to go to the assistance of the wounded man. In the face of terrific fire of enemy artillery and machine guns and the fire of their own comrades, who were resisting the attack, Private Mails suc ceeded in bringing his man to a place of safety.

MAIN, CHARLES L. (552263) Near Launay, France, July 15, 1918. R—Rouseville, Pa. B—Titusville, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MAIN, WILLIAM B. (42525) fin the Forest of Argonne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Rouseville, Pa. B—Caneville, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

and 2, 1918.

R—Greenwood, S. C. B—Glendale, S. C. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

MAKOS, SOTEREOS N. (53667)

Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
R—Worcester, Mass.
B—Greece. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

MALCOLMSON, BRUCE K. (2267250)

Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—South Pasadena, Calif.

B—Pasadena, Calif.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Mallan, John C. (1387913)

Near Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R-Chicago, Ill. B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

MALONE, FRANCIS P. (109795). Trugny, France, July 22-23, Near Near Trughy, Flance, co. 1918.

R—New Haven, Conn.

B—New Haven, Conn.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MALONE, PAUL B. South of Soissons, France, July 18-19, 1918.

1918.

R—West Point, N. Y.

B—New York.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

MALONEY, WILLIAM E. Near Remonville, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D, 1919.

1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Joliet, Ill. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

Manco, Artie G. (57328) Near Nonsard, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Richardsville, Ky. B—Warren County, Ky. G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

Sergeant, Company L, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Sergeant Main, with an officer and another soldier of his company, attacked a patrol of 7 Germans who had captured 4 American soldiers, killed 1 of the Germans, and captured the others.

Corporal, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Accompanied by another soldier, he advanced on a German 77-millimeter gun which was enflading his company, and with an automatic rifle caused such heavy easualties among the enemy crew that they were forced to withdraw.

Corporal, Company E, 34th Infantry, 7th Division.

Although suffering from 5 wounds, 1 of which caused the loss of a hand, Corporal Major refused to be evacuated. He remained in command of his squad throughout the day and night and crawled into position the following morning to aid in the repulse of a German attack. His conduct furnished a great inspiration to the men of his company.

Private, Company F, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. He was wounded 3 times, but continued with the advance and kept up the operation of his automatic rifle despite his injuries until the objective had been attained.

First sergeant, Company II, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.

Accompanied by another soldier he advanced against 2 machine guns and killed 2 of the mounters. This made possible the capture of 55 men who were in a trench 100 yards farther forward. Later in the same day he assisted an officer in leading a platoon which captured approximately 100 of the enemy.

Corporal, Company I, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

He volunteered and carried a message from his company post of command to the battalion post of command through the thickest of the German barrage. He was killed in action the same day.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Alexander Malichis.

Private, Company H, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

During an attack he worked out far ahead of our lines and personally killed 4 Germans and brought back 3 prisoners, 1 of them an officer. Later, he formed one of a raiding party and displayed marked skill and bravery aiding in the capture of 14 prisoners. Both these missions were carried out under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company I, 353d Infantry, 89th Division. He led his platoon with marked bravery and ability in an attack which resulted in the capture of 15 machine guns and 70 prisoners, more than 40 of the enemy being killed or wounded. Throughout the attack he showed great heroism, killing 2 of the enemy in hand-to-hand encounters.

Corporal, Company D, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division.

After all the other members of his squad had become casualties, he volunteered and led 2 other squads on a machine-gun [nest, which he had located and put it out of action with the first burst of shot. Later he helped dress wounded men of his squad and evacuated them under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. Although severely gassed the next day, he continued in the advance.

Colonel, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
During the 2 days which his regiment was engaged with the enemy, Colonel Malone frequently visited the advanced troops. On the evening of July 18, after the regiment had suffered severe losses, he assisted in the reorganization of a battalion for the attack on Vierzy. On the morning of July 19 he made a personal reconnaissance of the front lines, under heavy fire, in order to ascertain the enemy position, which was of vital importance.

Second lieutenant, 354th Infantry, 89th Divisiou.

Leading an assault platoon, he encountered a nest of 6 enemy guns, which was pouring out a deadly fire from three directions. Rushing the guns in the immediate front, he captured them, as well as taking the crews as prisoners; and while thus engaged he was knocked unconscious by a bursting shell. Regaining consciousness when picked up by first-aid men, he returned immediately and rejoined his platoon and directed operatious until the objectives were reached.

Corporal, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Sent out alone to locate the position of snipers, and coming upon a machine-gun nest, he boldly attacked it single-handed, capturing the gun, wounding 1 of the crew, and taking 3 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company E, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
When the advance of his company was halted by the fire from 4 machine guns from the front, Sergeant Manco led a patrol of 4 men, through heavy fire, to the flank and rear of the enemy position. He then attacked the enemy and captured the guns and crew.

Mangiaracina, Frank (39439)...... Near Beaumont, France, Nov. 1-5, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Italy. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MANIER, WILL R. Jr.
In the Claire-Chenes Woods, France,

Oct. 21, 1918.

R—Nashville, Tenn.

B—Nashville, Tenn.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*MANN, ALLEN R. (1212830) ... Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Shawnee, Ohio. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

1918. R—Youngstown, Ohio. B—Youngstown, Ohio. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MANNING, JAMES EUGENE....

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918.
R—Canton, Ohio.
B—Allentown, Pa.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Manning, James F., Jr... Near Doulcon, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R.—Purcellville, Va. B.—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1919.

Manning, John C. (54617)
Near Paris-Soissons Road, France,
July 18-19, 1918.
R-Kingsville, Tex.
B-Jena, La.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Manning, John R. (2848637)
In the Bois-de-Bantheville, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Needham, Mass. B—Wellesley, Mass. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Manning, William Sinkler... Near Verdun, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R—Washington, D. C. B—Sumter County, S. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Mannion, Joseph F. (1284404)...... Near Verdun, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company I, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
After requesting that he he permitted to lead a detail for the purpose of recovering the body of a wounded comrade whom he had been forced to leave about 500 yards in front of their lines earlier in the day when on patrol duty, Private Manders led the detail lof 4 men under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire on its dangerous mission. After proceeding about 200 yards the detail life on its dangerous mission. After proceeding about 200 yards the detail felt that the expedition was hopeless on account of the extremely heavy fire. Private Manders, however, refused to give up and insisted on the detail going forward. By his own absolute disregard of personal safety and by his own example he so inspired the members of the detail that they went forward with him under the gravest danger for over 300 yards, recovered the wounded comrade, and made their way back to their own lines.

Private, Company F, 9th Intantry, 2d Division. On duty as a company runner, he repeatedly carried messages through heavy machine-gun and shell fire with utter disregard for personal safety.

Captain, 5th Infantry Brigade, 3d Division.
Captain Manier, brigade liaison officer, was at the command post of the assaulting battalion when word was received that the enemy had penetrated our line and was closing in on the command post. No reserves being available, Captain Manier assisted in hastily organizing a force of runners, a signalman and others, and himself taking a rifle led these men under heavy machine-gun and rifle fire in a counterattack on the advancing enemy. He succeeded in stopping the enemy and holding the position until the line was reestablished. As a result of his courage and initiative a large number of the enemy were captured and many killed or wounded, and the success of future operations assured. operations assured.

Private, sanitary detachment, 107th Infantry, 27th Division. With utter disregard for his own personal safety, Private Mann repeatedly went out into no man's land, in plain view of the enemy, and administered first aid to the wounded. While engaged in this work he was caught in a heavy enfilading fire from the enemy and was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, E. C. Mann.

Corporal, Company C, 4th Engineers, 4th Division.
He was one of 4 men who volunteered and swam the Vesle River for the purpose of doing work on the opposite bank necessary in the construction of a footbridge. With another soldier he succeeded in felling a large tree in the face of heavy machine-gun fire and 1-pounder fire after the remainder of the platoon had withdrawn.

Hospital apprentice, first class, U. S. Navy, attached to 1st Battalion, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

While he was attending a wounded man his dressing station was struck by a shell from which his patient received two additional wounds. He dressed the man's new wounds and while so doing was himself struck in the back and knocked down by the explosion of another shell. He remained at his post, however, until he had finished dressing his patient's injuries and then removed him from the dressing station, which very soon was completely destroyed by a third shell. destroyed by a third shell.

First lieutenant, pilot, 49th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While leading a patrol of 7 planes he accepted combat with 17 German machines (type, Fokker) at an altitude of 1,200 meters. Through his courageous leadership and skillful maneuver of his patrol 7 of the enemy planes were shot down.

Corporal, Company K, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
He voluntarily left his shelter and went to the rescue of 2 wounded French soldiers who were in a burning tank. The rescue was made under an intense fire from the enemy in plain view and while they were using all efforts to complete the destruction of the tank and prevent the rescue of its inmates. Corporal Manning succeeded in forcing open a door of the burning tank, dragging out the wounded men, and bringing them to a place of shelter, from which they were later evacuated.

Private, Company D, 342d Machine Gun Battalion, 89th Division.
Disregarding painful injuries in the face, head, and wrist, he continued on duty as gunner throughout the action until he was relieved and ordered to an aid station by his platoon commander, thereby affording an inspiring example of courage to his comrades.

Major, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

Leading his command in the face of extremely heavy artillery and machinegun fire, he displayed remarkable bravery and coolness in reorganizing his battalion after severe losses had been inflicted on them. By continuous encouragement and daring he directed operations to the successful gaining of his objective. During the operations he was instantly killed by a machinegun bullet Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Barbara B. Manning.

Sergeant, Company C, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
He volunteered and left his place of safety, making his way 100 yards in advance of our lines to the aid of wounded men. At the time the enemy was delivering terrific machine-gun and artillery fire, but he continued and assisted one comrade to a dressing station. He returned and helped the other men to places of safety.

MANNION, MAURICE (1236408) At A premont, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Carbondale, Pa. B—Carbondale, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

MANSFIELD, HARRY (280667) At Romagne, France, Oct. 14, 1918.
R—Mecosta, Mich.
B—Mecosta, Mich.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Mansfield, James R (1783727)...... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Haydenville, Mass. B—Haydenville, Mass. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MANSFIELD, THAROLD B. (2193652). Near Beauclair, France, Nov. 4-11, 1918.

R—Bay City, Mich. B—Flint, Mich. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MANTON, WALTER W ... At Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Manwaring, Clyde F. (735498).... Near Louppy, France, Nov. 9, 1918. R—Akron, Ohio. B—Clymer, N. Y. G. O, No. 89, W. D., 1919.

R—Camden, N. J. B—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

MARAGLIA, BATISTA (1681474)______ In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 1, 1918. R—Stoughton, Mass. B—Italy. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MARCELLA, RICHARD (558037) Near Bazoches, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W, D., 1919.

MARCH, PEYTON C. Before Manila, P. I., Aug. 13, 1898. R—Easton, Pa.
B—Easton, Pa.
G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

*MARCHANT, JOHN R_____ East of the Meuse River and north of Consenvoye, France, Oct. 11, 1918 R-Chicago, Ill. B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 49, W, D., 1922.

MARCINIAK, JOHN (545327)... Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Schenectady, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MAREK, FRANK S. (281493)

At Romagne, France, Oct., 14, 1918.

R—Grand Rapids, Mich.

B—Grand Rapids, Mich.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company F, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.
During a hostile attack Sergeant Mannion displayed exceptional courage and initiative in leading a patrol to the left flank of his platoon and driving off a superior number of the enemy who were attempting to encircle the flank, killing 10 of them, capturing 8, and putting the remainder to flight.

Sergeant, Company I, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
His company having been held up by a machine-gun nest, Sergeant Mansfield, with another soldier, crawhed 200 yards ahead of his company and reduced the machine-gun nest, killing 3 of the enemy and capturing 18.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 311th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th Division. Administering first aid in a most exposed position, Sergeant Mansfield rendered most valuable assistance not only to casualties from his own command, but also to those from other organizations. He continued with his work, although wounded, and refused to leave for the rear until ordered to do so by his commanding officer.

Corporal, Company C, 314th Field Signal Battalion, 89th Division. From the 4th to the 11th of November, while continually under heavy shellfire, he laid and maintained lines of communication within his area with utter disregard for his personal safety.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 26th Infantry, 1st Division. Accompanying his battalion in the attack, he was with the second wave when he sustained a compound fracture of the right forearm from a bursting shell, He nevertheless refused to go to the rear, but remained on duty until the final objective was reached in the afternoon, attending the wounded and directing their evacuation.

Sergeant, Company E, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.

His platoon having been held up by enemy machine-gun fire, Sergeant Manwaring took 3 other soldiers and advanced against the machine guns. Two of the men accompanying him were wounded, but he continued on with the other one and captured 2 of the hostile guns, killing 1 of the crew and driving off the remainder.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Clyde F. Manwaring.

waring

Private, medical detachment, 309th Infantry, 78th Division.

During a heavy bombardment of our front lines, Private Manzi went 50 yards in advance of our positions to an automatic rifle post to dress the wounds of 3 of the crew. He then assisted the wounded men, one by one, to reach a place of safety. All this time the line was under steady machine-gun fire as well as bombardment.

Private, Company L, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
Seeing a runner of his platoon lying helpless from a broken leg in front of an enemy machine gun, Private Maraglia volunteered and went to his aid, making his way through direct fire for a distance of 75 yards and returning with his wounded comrade.

Bugler, Machine Gun Company, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. Responding to a call for volunteers to destroy a hostile machine gun, Bugler Marcella, with two other soldiers, boldly went forward through machine-gun fire and accomplished this mission.

First lieutenant, Astor Battery, U. S. Army. He gallantly led a charge on the quemy's breastworks, volunteers having been called for by the brigadier general commanding.

First lieutenant, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. While commanding his company in an attack in which he was severely wounded he displayed the highest type of courage and leadership by leading his men until the objective was reached, and then holding it against several severe counterattacks until he was killed. His example of bravery and devotion to duty so inspired his men that although temporarily without a company commander they successfully repulsed the counterattacks and held the line intact at a critical point.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Annabelle Marchant.

Corporal, Company A, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

After his company had been ordered to withdraw, he returned to the scene of the struggle and throughout the whole night worked untiringly in the evacuation of the wounded, exposed to the terrific bombardment of the enemy.

Corporal, Company M, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

With another soldier Corporal Marek crawled 200 yards ahead of his company and reduced a machine-gun nest, which had been holding up the advance, killing 3 of the enemy and capturing 18.

July 14-15, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MARINO, CHARLES (73640)

At Bois Brule, near Apremont,
France, Apr. 10, 1918.
R—Greenfield, Mass.

B—Italy. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Mark, Roy C. (2297894)

Near Cierges, France, July 31, 1918.

R—McMillian, Mich.

B—McMillian, Mich.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

MARKHAM, RALPH H. (2267783)

Near Eclisfontaine, France, Scpt.
28, 1918. 25, 1915.

R—McKittrick, Calif.

B—Newville, Calif.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Markley, George Near Somme-Py, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Battle Creek, Mich. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

R—Penllyn, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

1918.

R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-England. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

MARKS, SAMUEL J. RES, SAMUEL J.

Near Malancourt, France, Sept. 27–29, 1918.

R.—Philipsburg, Pa.
B.—Philipsburg, Pa.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*MARKS, WILLOUGHBY R.
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 12, 1918.
R—Apalachicola, Fla.
B—Columbus, Ga.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

R—Quincy, Ill. B—Quincy, Ill. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

MARLIN, FRANK (54038) .... Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Gatesville, Tex. B—Christiana, Tenu. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
Under a heavy gas and shell bombardment he repeatedly volunteered and delivered messages over routes other than his own when the runners assigned to those routes had been killed or wounded.

Private, Company L, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. He displayed coolness, courage, and the spirit of self-sacrifice during the action of Apr. 10, 1918, in voluntarily going through shell-swept area to bring back a wounded noncommissioned officer to a dressing station.

Private, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

Though he was twice wounded during the attack on Hill 212, he displayed remarkable bravery and devotion to duty by continuing in action and advanceing with the attack. He continued to fight until he was ordered to the rear on account of his wounds.

Private, Company K, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
On duty as a scout, Private Markham repeatedly located organizations on the flanks, displaying exceptional daring under fire. Though he had been without water or food for 24 hours he went forward under heavy fire and secured information which enabled his company commander to re-form the line and deliver a concentrated fire on the enemy.

Sergeant, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He volunteered to ascertain the position of enemy machine guns enfilading his company. Under heavy shell and machine-gun fire he explored the enemy's lines and secured valuable information. Later, when his company was ordered to attack, he preceded the line as scout and was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, W. B. Markley.

Second lieutenant, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

While occupying a combat position in the Bois Carre with his plateon of Company I, 18th Infantry, the position was smothered under an intense bombardment of enemy artillery and machine-gun fre. Following a rolling barrage, he was attacked by a vastly superior force of enemy storm troops. The company commander having been killed, Lieutenant Markoe led the counterattack against the raiding forces and killed in close combat the leader of the raiding party. The action of Lieutenant Markoe stopped the enemy in this part of the sector and was the principal factor which led to the repulse of the enemy raid. Despite the fact that he had been severely wounded early in the action, he refused to relinquish command until the enemy was decisively ejected with great loss from the position. Lieutenant Markoe displayed exceptional leadership and extraordinary heroism in this action. action.

Private, medical detachment, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

A patrol of 5 men had advanced about 500 yards in front of our lines. While crossing a small clearing the patrol was fired upon by a concealed machine gun, which killed 2 and wounded 3. On his own initiative, exposed to heavy machine-gun fire, Private Marks went forward and brought in the wounded area. wounded men 1 at a time.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 314th Infantry, 79th Division. Lieutenant Marks advanced with the foremost elements of his battalion, dressing and evacuating the wounded under machine-gun fire for a period of 12 hours. On Sept. 29, when his aid station was shelled, several patients and attendants being killed and wounded, this officer, though himself wounded, remained at his post earing for patients who had received fresh wounds and assisted in their evacuation.

First lieutenant, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.

First lieutenant, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.
While in command of Company C, 61st Infantry, he was severely wounded but continued to lead his company, refusing to be evacuated until the objective was reached and his lines reorganized. About to be evacuated, he learned that an officer of his battalion was mortally wounded and lying exposed to terrific enemy fire in front of the lines. With utter disregard for his own safety he rushed forward to rescue his fellow officer, and in the attempt was struck by enemy high-explosive shellfire and mortally wounded, dying a few minutes later. His undaunted courage and devotion to duty served as a splendid example of soldierly conduct to the men of his command.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Annie Ryan Marks.

Marks.

Second lieutenant, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.

After the entire personnel of the machine-gun squad under his command had been killed or disabled and when he himself was severely wounded near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he kept up the operation of his gun and refused to be taken to the rear when relieved until he had been carried to his company commander and had given the latter valuable information.

Private, Company G, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. With 2 other soldiers he rushed a machine-gun position near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, killed the crew, and captured the gun in order to make the advance of his platoon possible.

*Marlin, Jesse (83455). At Juvigny, France, Aug. 31, 1918. R—Billings, Mont. B—Roanoke, Va. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

MARLIN, WILLIAM L ... At Heurne, Belgium, Nov. 1-2, 1918. R—Covington, Ohio. B—Covington, Ohio. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

MARLOWE, FRED MARION_______At Mim. St. Georges, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Greensburg, Ind. B—Williamstown, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Near Badonvillers, France 24, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MARONEY, WILLIAM (107705)...

Near Chateau-Thierry, France,
June 6, 1918, near Thiaucourt,
France, Sept. 13, 1918, and at Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 4-9, 1918. R—Pensacola, Fla. . B—Syracuse, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MAROUETTE, LOUIS F. (71285)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Springfield, Mass.

B—Springfield, Mass.
G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

*MARQUIS, OLIVER (1569378). Rear Sedan, France, Nov. 7, 1918.

R—Poseyville, Ind.

B—Mount Vernon, Ind.

G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

*Marra, John (44509) Near Charpentry, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-Italy. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

R—Proctor, Mo. B—Morgan County, Mo. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Marsh, Arthur D. Near Verdun, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Newark, N. J. B—England. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MARSH, ELMER M. (43856)_ Near Fleville, France, Oct. 3 and 4, 1918. R-Chickasha, Okla. B-Everton, Mo. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Corporal, Company B, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
He was one of a party of 3 officers and 2 men who, armed with 1 German machine gun and 3 German rifles, attacked a machine-gun nest held by 70 Germans. Under terrific fire from the enemy, who laid down an artillery barrage upon their position, they concentrated their rifle fire so effectively that 32 Germans surrendered within an hour. After the prisoners had been brought in, Corporal Marlin, with a private, established another machine gun in an advanced position and kept up a concentrated fire on the Germans until he was wounded in the body 5 times by machine-gun bullets

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. R. P. Marlin.

Major, 148th Infantry, 37th Division.

While commanding the 3d Battalion, 148th Infantry, Major Marlin displayed exceptional qualities of personal courage and leadership in forcing the crossing of the Escaut River, establishing a bridgehead on the right bank of the river, and maintaining his position against repeated and vigorous counterattacks, all under heavy artillery and aeroplane fire. Major Marlin exposed himself fearlessly and audaciously and without regard for danger, thereby greatly enhancing the morale of the troops and contributing materially to the success of this operation. His personal bravery in this act was markedly conspicuous and outstanding. conspicuous and outstanding.

Sergeant, 74th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Sergeant, 74th Company, oth Regiment, V. S. Meiline Colps, 2a Driston. He had just taken command of his platoon, owing to the senior platoon sergeant having been wounded, when the advancing line was held up by a concentration of enemy machine-gun fire. Taking 2 other soldiers with him, he rushed a German machine-gun pest and put it out of action. The capture of this nest compelled the surrender of the remaining machine gunners in the vicinity, and the line was again able to advance; 80 prisoners and 9 machine guns were captured through this bold exploit.

Corporal, Company C, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

Although wounded while bringing up ammunition for his automatic rifle team, Corporal Maroney stayed with his men, encouraging and directing them.

Corporal, Company C, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division.

Near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, Corporal Maroney took charge of 2 squads after his lieutenant and screent had been disabled and fearlessly led them forward to their objective. Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 13, he displayed great bravery in leading his platoon through heavy machine-gun fire, at one time personally reconnoitering a machine-gun position before allowing his men to proceed. At Medeah Farm, France Oct. 4-9, 1918, he again furnished an inspiring example of fearless leadership and dauntless courses under heavy settliers and machine-gun freship-example. courage under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

Corporal, Company B, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
He showed extraordinary courage and bruvery in going beyond our front line, under heavy machine-gun fire, and bringing back 2 wounded comrades.

Private, Company K, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
Private Marquis was a member of a patrol sent out to silence machine-gun nests which were holding up the battalion's advance. When the officer leading the patrol fell mortally wounded, this soldier attempted to go to the officer's assistance, despite heavy fire from machine guns only 100 yards away, and was hinself killed.

Postbumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Lucinda Marquis.

Private, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

In broad daylight and subjected to heavy fire from the enemy, he led a patrol of 4 men in advance of our lines to rescue a severely wounded soldier. His courage was an inspiration to the men serving with him. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Tony Marra.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division. Corporal Marriott, a member of the regimental telephone detail, when it became impossible to maintain telephone communications, volunteered and carried messages under heavy shell fire, in spite of baving been wounded in the knee.

Captain, 113th Infantry, 29th Division. Refusing to relinquish command of his company, even though suffering from illness, he led them up a road under a most terrific bombardment, and while assisting a wounded man to safety he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Arthur D. Marsh.

Sergeaut, Company K, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

On Oct. 4, after all officers had been killed or wounded, he took command of and led his platoon in the attack, during which he was severely wounded. The objective was taken and held, due in a large measure to his gallant efforts. On the previous day he conducted a reconnaissance of the enemy position and located machine-gun positions. The information obtained proved valuable in the subsequent attack of Oct. 4, 1918.

*Marsh, Harry H.
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918.
R—Paxton, Ill.
B—Burnetts Creek, Ind.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Vida, Mont. B-Lanark, Ill. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

MARSH, JOHN C. (1289360)_____At Molleville Farm, France, Oct.

15, 1918. R—Charlottesville, Va. B—Charlottesville, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Marshall, Allan J. (2262896)

Near Spitaals-Bosschen, Belgium,
Oct. 31, 1918.

R—San Francisco, Calif.
B—San Francisco, Calif.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-South Brewer, Me. B-Westfield, Mass. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

*Marshall, Leroy F. (155281) Near Verdun, France, Oct. 9. 1918. R—Simla, Colo. B—Leavenworth, Kans. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MARSHALL, RALPH WILLIAM...
In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June
6 and 8, 1918.
R-West Chicago, Ill.
B-Elgin, Ill.
G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

MARSHALL, ROBERT E. (2180142)_ Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Graniteville, Mo. B—Knoh Lick, Mo. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Near the Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Minneapolis, Minn. B—Minneapolis, Minn. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

*Martell, Judson G. Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—West Somerville, Mass. B—West Somerville, Mass. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Martens, John C. (525957) Near Kazanka, Siheria, July 3, 1919 R—Anaheim, Calif. B—Canada. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

Martie, John E.
Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—California, Mo.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

*Martin, Cecil N. (2100547)... Near Sergy, France, July 29–30, 1918. R—Lawrenceville, Ill. B—Carmi, Ill. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

First neutenant, 30th Injantry, 3d Division.

Lieutenant Marsh, with a force of 50 men, took a line of trenches, at the same time capturing prisoners greatly in excess of the members of his own command. It was due to his gallant example that this feat was accomplished. He was killed by machine-gun fire as the trench was taken.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Nellie D. Marsh.

First sergeant, Company K, 362d Infantry, 91st Division. He was painfully wounded by a shell fragment, but refused to go to the rear. Remaining with his company under heavy shell fire, he continued to per-form his duties.

Private, first class, Company K, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

After losing his ammunition carrier, Private Marsh advanced unaided and effectively operated his automatic rifle until wounded in the hand. He continued to fire until his ammunition was exhausted, and refused to go to the rear until ordered to do so.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
Although suffering acute pain from a severe injury, he led his section through a continuous rain of machine-gun and sniper fire beyond the Infantry front line, where he encountered the enemy.

Private, Company L, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. He displayed coolness and bravery in carrying numerous messages under shell fire, thereby keeping up liaison between adjacent units.

Corporal, Company A, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
He voluntarily went forward to silence a sniper who was pouring a dangerous fire into his position. He crept through brush for a distance of 300 yards and then crossed a machine-gun-swept area, killing the sniper with his rifle.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry L. Marshall.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He demonstrated conspicuous bravery and coolness in fearlessly exposing himself to heavy fire from machine guns, rifles, and hand grenades in order that he might procure accurate information regarding the movements of the Private, Company A, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

After being wounded in the head and subjected to an intense barrage, he remained at his post for three hours, operating his automatic rifle, until ordered to the rear.

First lieutenant, 58th Infantry, 4th Division.
When his company's advance was stopped by heavy enfilading machine-gun fire, Lieutenant Marshall took 7 soldiers and rushed the enemy nest, killing 6 of the enemy and capturing 30, including a captain. Lieutenant Marshall accomplished this daring feat without any of his own men becoming casualties.

First lieutenant, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
Although seriously wounded, he continued to direct his command under heavy machine-gun and sniping fire and maintained organization under heavy demoralizing circumstances until he was killed by a sniper's bullet. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Edward A. Martell.

He carried a message across a field under fairly heavy fire. He then volunteered to go to break up a sniper's nest, and went alone to an exposed and dangerous point where he could fire at the nest and broke it up, killing one of the snipers and driving the rest away. Private, Company C, 31st Infantry.

Captain, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Captain Martie exposed himself to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire while leading his company forward in an attack against strongly held enemy positions. Reaching his objective, he organized his position for defense and held the same against enemy counterattacks.

Private, Company I, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. Exposing himself to heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, he repeatedly carried messages from his company commander to the battalion post of command. He was killed in the performance of this hazardous duty.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Ettie Bryant.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 23d Infantry, 2d Division. He operated a battalion dressing station near Vaux, France, July 1, 1918, and, although the station was practically destroyed by shell fire, he bravely and successfully treated the wounded and directed their safe evacuation.

Martin, Earl J. (65521) Near Verdun, France, Oct. 27, 1918. R—New Britain, Conn. B—White River Junction, Vt. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Martin, Edward Near Courmont, France, July 29, 1918. R—Waynesburg, Pa. B—Tenmile, Pa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Martin, Harry H.
Near Brueil, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Emporia, Kans.
B—Emporia, Kans.
G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

Martin, Hugh B. (1317775)

Near Busigny, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R—Kinston, N. C.

B—Greenville County, S. C.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Aztec, N. Mex. B-Parkview, N. Mex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Martinez, Lauriano (1626989) Near Fismes, France, Aug. 26, 1918. R—Colmor, N. Mex. B—Chacon, N. Mex. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Martinson, Alfred, (273955) In the Carspach Woods, near Badri-court, Alsace, France, July 19, 1918. R—Eleva, Wis. B—Blair, Wis. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

1918. R—Gleneoe, Pa. B—Mount Pleasant, Pa.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

MARTZ, FORREST L. (1565239) In the Bois-du-Fays, near Brieulles, France, Oct. 6, 1918. R-Tipton, Ind. B-Tipton, Ind. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

MARX, Robert S______ In front of Baalons, France, Nov. 10, 1918.

R—Cineinnati, Ohio. B—Cineinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

Captain, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.

On numerous occasions he personally headed every forward movement of his command, displaying superb courage in his absolute disregard for personal safety. In the attack on Juvigny the battalion commanded by this officer was called upon to execute a turning movement and effect junction with the French troops on the flank. Under the personal direction of Captain Martin this turning movement was completed across a hill strongly held by the enemy, its success being due to his initiative. During this engagement he was gassed and taken from the field unconscious. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Hattie E. Martin.

Corporal, Company I, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

He led his platoon over the top until further advance was impossible. He then remained in observation. Upon being grenaded by two of the enemy, he shot them with his pistol and, moving forward, gained entrance to an unused "pill box." A few hours later he ventured out into enemy trenches, entered a near-by dugout, and disposed of 6 occupants, then retired to his former position in the "pill box," returning to his own lines after dark.

Lieutenant colonel, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. In command of an inexperienced battalion, he led an attack against a strongly held position, and advancing with the front line, raised the morale of officers and men by his coolness under heavy fire and utter disregard for personal danger. Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action Lieut. Col. Edward or the following act of extraordinary beroism in action Lieut. Col. Edward Martin is awarded one oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: For extraordinary heroism in action near Courmont, France, July 30, 1918. Although painfully wounded when regimental headquarters was destroyed by shell fire, he went with a battalion commander and directed the successful attack against a strong enemy position, remaining in command of the regiment until its relief.

Captain, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
Captain Martin, although severely wounded in the right side, before reaching the first objective, refused to be evacuated and continued to direct his company in the attack through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire to the second and third objectives.

Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. When a battalion of Infantry was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, he rushed his section forward to a position 300 yards in advance of our front lines, engaged and silenced the enemy, and allowed a renewal of the advance. He displayed marked personal bravery under terrific enemy fire.

Corporal, Company I, 356th Infantry, 89th Division.
He accompanied Lieut. John H. Murphy, of his regiment, and 3 other soldiers in a flank attack on 3 heavy machine guns. Fired on directly at 30 yards, they charged the guns, and met hand-to-hand resistance, but repulsed the enemy, capturing the guns. Corporal Martinez followed the fleeing Germans until they were lost in the fog.

Private, Company K, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. With 2 other soldiers Private Martinez crawled 300 yards in front of our line through the enemy's wire and attacked a hostile machine-gun nest. The enemy crew opened fire on them at a range of only 10 yards and resisted stubborally, but they succeeded in killing 3 of the erew and driving off the others with clubbed rifles. They returned to our lines under heavy fire.

Private, first class, Company E, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
During an enemy raid on the sector held by the 3d Platoon of Company E, 127th Infantry, which was preceded by a terrife and accurate barrage of high-explosive shells and machine-gun fire, and although surrounded by a superior enemy force, Private Martinson refused to surrender, but instead jumped from his trench and with his automatic rifle repulsed the enemy.

Sergeant, Company C, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.
Under violent shell and machine-gun fire, Sergeant Martz assisted in reorganizing the remnants of his shattered company, which was surrounded by the enemy, and held the position until his group was again cut to pieces. With an officer and 2 other soldiers he then succeeded in fighting his way from within the enemy's lines to his regiment, killing a large number of the enemy with his pistol.

Private, first class, Company C, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. Private Martz and a comrade, under heavy enemy fire, went to the rescue of wounded lying in advance of our lines and returned to our lines with 2 wounded American soldiers. In accomplishing this mission they advanced to within 75 yards of the enemy lines over an area which the enemy raked with their five. with their fire.

Captain, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
Having been sent to make a reconnaissance and if found necessary to take command of the 3d Battalion, 357th Infantry, the advance of which had just been cheeked with severe losses, he displayed the highest quality of courage and leadership in the face of a murderous artillery and machine-gun fire by immediately reorganizing the battalion and after a personal reconnaissance directing the assault line, which resulted in the taking of the enemy position. During the attack Captain Marx was severely wounded. His brave example greatly inspired his men. Masciarelli, Giacomo (3110935)..... Near Malancourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Italy. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MASLOSKY, JOHN (2413727)

Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 26, 1918.

R-Elizabeth, N. J. B-Russia. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

MASLOWSKI, VINCENT (741464)_ Near Munster, Vosges Front, Lor-raine, Sept. 14, 1918. R—Racine, Wis. B—Russia. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

Mason, Claude H. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 8-10, 1918.

R—El Paso, Tex.
B—Wadestown, W. Va.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*Mason, Edward G. (757108)... Near Jaulny, France, Nov. 10, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R—Salem, Oreg. B—Wichita, Kans. G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1919.

MASON, ZELNA (2075)

Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.

R—Memphis, Tenn.

B—Hickory, Ky.

G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

MASSON, JACOB II. (261778).

At Mont St. Martin, south of Fismes,
France, Aug. 5, 1918.
R.—Newport, Mich.
B.—Michigan.

G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

1919. R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Santa Cruz, Calif. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

R-Pittsburgh, Pa.

B—Russia. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

MATHEWS, HOWARD A.
At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R-Kansas City, Mo. B-Jacksonville, Ill. G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company L, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.
Private Masciarelli alone charged a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his platoon. With a flanking fire, he killed 1 member of the crew and caused the rest to surrender. His prisoners consisted of 1 noncommissioned officer and 7 privates.

Private, Headquarters Company, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. He volunteered and carried a message to headquarters after 2 runners had been killed while attempting to get through a barrage. He returned through the barrage with an answer to the message.

Private, Company M, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

He displayed exemplary devotion to duty in attacking machine-gun nests without aid and capturing many prisoners. For several hours be worked in advance of the company, and, although believed to have been lost, he later returned, bringing with him many prisoners.

Private, first class, Company D, 52d Infantry, 6th Division.

Private Maslowski, with other men of his squad, was on duty in a firing trench, in combat with the enemy. A grenade thrown by 1 of the men struck the parapet and fell back into the trench. Private Maslowski seized the grenade and threw it from the trench just as it exploded, thereby saving his comrades and himself from injury and possible death.

First lieutenant, 141st Infantry, 36th Division.
On October 8 Lieutenant Mason followed the wave of attack under heavy shell and sniper fire, and maintained an aid station with no protection, near the front lines, giving first aid to the wounded and evacuating the injured from a heavily shelled area for a period of 3 days.

First sergeant, Company D, 55th Infantry, 7th Division.
First Sergeant Mason continuously walked up and down his company sector, caring for the wounded and encouraging the men during an intense shell and machine-gun barrage. He was mortally wounded while going to the aid of two wounded comrades and died a short time afterwards.
Posthumously awarded. Cross on display at the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C., pending delivery to next of kin, when, and if located.

Second lieutenant, 323th Infantry, 82d Division.

He led a patrol of 40 men through a woods in order to envelope the enemy's position. Advancing under heavy shellfire, this officer was severely wounded but, displaying excellent leadership and unusual bravery, he continued the advance and succeeded in occupying the woods.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Although twice wounded near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he refused an offer to be carried to the rear and continued to render aid to the wounded under fire.

Private, Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
While acting as battalion runner, Private Massicotte, regardless of personal danger, repeatedly vouunteered and carried important messages under intense shell fire, and greatly assisted in maintaining liaison with other units.

Private, Company C, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

During the attack on Mont St. Martin he was severely wounded in the neck and shoulder. He refused first aid and was determined to keep up with the attacking wave, which he did until he became too weak from loss of blood. By this remarkable display of courage he conveyed to his comrades the spirit of fearlessness.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 31st Infantry.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 31st Inlantry.

In answer to a call to save women and children who had been unavoidably entrapped in the railroad station by the fire from contending forces of Russian Government and insurgent troops, he boldly entered the zone of fire and rushed to the station which was being fired upon from 3 sides by machine guns, rifles, and field pieces, and assisted in bringing back through the fire-swept zone a number of women noncombatants.

Private, Company II, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
While acting as company runner, he carried messages under heavy shellfire and machine-gun fire. When a machine-gun nest caused a temporary halt in the advance of his company, he attacked the nest, capturing 3 prisoners. He assisted wounded men, applied first aid, and removed them through heavy shellfire to the dressing station.

First lieutenant, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
He displayed unusual courage and devotion to duty under a violent enemy bombardment by continuing in command of 2 platoons after he was soverely wounded.

MATHEWS, ROY E. (2263447)
In the Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Seattle, Wash. B—Fairhaven, Wash. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Mathey, Maurice (2306537).

Near Juvigny, north of Soissons, France, Sept. 1, 1918.

R-Monroe, Wis.

B-Milwaukee, Wis.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Mathias, Jean In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June

11, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

*MATHIS, JOHN D ... In the Chateau-Thierry, sector, France, June 6, 1918. R—Americus, Ga.
B—Buena Vista, Ga.
G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

Matson, Leon R. (1224735) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 27 and 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Woodhull, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R-Chicago, Ill. B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

MATTER, PETER (1680849).

Near Fismes, France, Aug. 27, 1918.

R—Niagara Falls, N. Y.

B—Syria.

G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

MATTFELDT, CYLBURN O...
Near Jaulny, France, Sept. 13, 1918.
R.—Baltimore, Md.
B.—Baltimore, Md.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

18, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 28, W. D., 1921.

MAUGHAN, RUSSELL L. Near Sommerance, France, Oct. 27,

R-Logan, Utah. B-Logan, Utah. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MAURER, PHILIP (1243833). At Fismette, France, Aug. 10, 1918. R-Dravosburg, Pa. B-Austria. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company E, 58th Infantry, 4th Division.

Acting without orders, he went through heavy artillery fire to notify his regimental commander that our own barrage was falling short, his bravery and presence of mind thus saving the lives of many American soldiers.

Privato, Company F, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.

In an attack against a strong enemy position, supported by many machine guns, he, a runner, worked unceasingly in the maintenance of liaison and carried messages through the most severe machine-gun barrage. On his last trip from the regimental post of command he was severely shell shocked, but continued through the barrage to the battalion headquarters and delivered by the strong strong strong transfer of the strong ered his message.

Private, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. After all the other members of his group had been killed or wounded by fire from an enemy machine gun, Private Mathias charged the gun position alone, killing 3 of the crew and capturing the gun.

First lieutenaut, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

As a leader of a platoon on the first day of the Chatcau-Thierry battle he demonstrated conspicuous courage and ability, fearlessly going forward at the head of his command through hostile machine-gun fire. Killed while leading a gallant charge, his daring inspired his men to successful assault.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Evan T. Mathis.

Sergeant, Company M, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.

On the morning of Sept. 27, after all the officers and most of the sergeants of his company had been killed, Sergeant Matson took command and led the company into effective combat, naking repeated reconnaissances in front of the line under severe machine-gun fire. On Sept. 29 he led his men forward, capturing an important knoll, and held it with a small number of men. Finding the ammunition and food depleted, he led a detail through the heavy machine-gun fire, bringing back both food and ammunition.

Sergeant, Company C, 123d Machine Gun Battalion, 33d Division.
Voluntarily leaving the shelter of the trenches and exposed to terrific enemy machine-gun and artillery fire and under direct observation of the enemy, he rescued 3 wounded men, assisting them to a place of comparative safety. The outstanding bravery and soldierly devotion to duty displayed greatly encouraged the men of his company.

Private, Company E, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

After having been wounded and severely burned and gassed by an explosion of mustard-gas shell, he nevertheless continued at his work as stretcher bearer, evacuating wounded until he was actually unable to see and was ordered to be evacuated himself.

First lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

In plain view of the enemy he rode across a field to a friendly battery whose barrage was falling on the American trenches and stopped its fire, thereby permitting a reestablishment of the front line and saving many lives.

Second lieutenant, 105th Machine Gun Battalion, 27th Division. After having been wounded in the head and suffering great pain, he coolly and efficiently made dispositions for the security of his guns and safety of his men and the evacuation of the wounded. Later at a dressing station, though bleeding profusely, he refused surgical attention until other wounded men of his platoon had been cared for.

First lieutenant, 139th Aero Squadron, 2d Pursuit Group, Air Service. Accompanied by 2 other planes, Lieutenant Maughan was patrolling our lines, when he saw slightly below him an enemy plane (Fokker type). When he started an attack upon it he was attacked from behind by 4 more of the enemy. By several well-directed shots be sent 1 of his opponents to the earth, and, although the forces of the enemy were again increased by 7 planes, he so skillfully maneuvered that he was able to escape toward his lines. While returning he attacked and brought down an enemy plane which was diving on our trenches.

Private, Company C, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

Having heard that 2 wounded comrades were lying in advance of his company's line immediately north of Fismette, Private Maurer and 2 other members of his company volunteered to go through the machine-gun and rifle fire to bring them in. On their first attempt all were wounded and driven back, but in spite of their injuries they advanced a second time and reached the wounded men. Their courageous effort, however, was unfortunately in year, as their courage had been killed. tunately in vain, as their comrades had been killed.

Second lieutenant, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps. Although his motor was running poorly and his tank crew badly gassed, Lieutenant Maury captured a German battery with his gun crews and turned it over to the Infantry. A little later his motor stopped completely, but he soon located another tank, whose crew was badly gassed. He transferred his ammunition and crew to the new tank and continued in the advance of our Infantry to the objective. *MAXEY, ROBERT J.
At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918.
R.—Hot Springs, Ark.
B.—Brandon, Miss.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

9, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

MAY, JOE C. (2239686)

Near Montigny-devant-Sassey, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R—Tahoka, Tex. B—Brookhaven, Miss. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MAY, LESTER T. (2337900) Near Grand Ballois Farm, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Wyalusing, Pa. B—Wyalusing, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MAY, OSCAR P. Near Bois-de-Mort Mare, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Williamstown, Kans. B—Williamstown, Kans. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Stem, N. C. B—Stem, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MAYGEB, ARTHUR G
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 6, 1918.
R—Chicago, III.
B—Deer Lodge, Mont.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*MAYNE, JOHN (2800)
In the Trugny Woods, near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 23, 1918.
R—Boston, Mass.
B—Ireland G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

MAYS, DOALEY (555062)_ Near Connigis, France, July 15, 1918. R—Place, Ky. B—Knox County, Ky. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

MAYS, HERBERT L. (1320812)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Taylorsville, N. C.

B—La Fayette, Ind.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*MAZKWAZ, LOUIS (107707) Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Russia. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

He advanced with first wave and, in the face of heavy shell and machine-gun fire, located the objective of his battalion. He was a cool, dependable, and heroic leader. Although fatally wounded, he gave detailed instructions to his second in command and caused himself to be carried to his regimental commander and delivered important information before he died.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Lu Knowles Maxey.

Corporal, Company B, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.
Corporal Maxie, in company with 4 other soldiers, attacked without support 8 machine guns, and, overcoming the desperate resistance of the enemy, captured both guns and crews.

Sergeant, Company G, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
On his own initiative he rushed an enemy machine-gun nest, capturing the gun and 2 prisoners. Ite displayed marked personal courage under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, passing through the enemy barrage to get water and rations to the men in the front line.

Corporal, Company B, 315th Train Headquarters and Military Police, 90th Division.

During a very heavy attack in the vicinity of his post, where artillery fire and aircraft machine-gun fire had created a most confusing situation, he calmly directed traffic, aided wounded, and removed obstructions, thereby preventing wild disorder. He also assisted the drivers of ammunition trucks in getting their machines to a place of safety.

Private, first class, Company F, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
During a heavy shelling he volunteered and delivered messages over routes where all other runners had been either killed or wounded.

Second licutenant, 356th Infantry, 89th Division. Without assistance, he very courageously attacked and captured a machine gun which threatened to wipe out his platoon.

Captain, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Captain Mayes with 8 other soldiers, comprising his company headquarters detachment, cleaned out enemy dugouts along the banks of a canal, capturing 242 prisoners.

First lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

After his company had been forced to fall back because of heavy losses and his company commander had been seriously wounded, Lieutenant Mayger reorganized the remainder of the company and, under intense shell and machine-gun fire, led it in a successful attack on a machine-gun position which had been causing many casualties in the battalion.

Private, medical detachment, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
Private Mayne, although in an exposed position in the Trugny Woods under fire of rifles and machine-guns, courageously treated the wounded, inspiring the combat troops by his example, until shot through the head and killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Mary Mayne.

Sergeant, Company C, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
Sergeant Mays, single-handed, operated a machine gun after the remainder of his squad had become casualties from enemy machine-gun fire. Although exposed to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, he continued to fire his gun until assistance arrived.

Sergeant, Company G, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Sergeant Mays, with 1 other soldier, attacked a machine-gun post which was causing much damage. They captured the post, taking prisoner 1 officer and 8 men, and put the gun out of action.

Corporal, Company O, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division.
He left the shelter of his trench to rescue soldiers who had been buried by the explosion of a shell. Shortly after, while conducting his men to cover, a shell exploded near by, severly wounding a member of his squad. Directing the remainder of the squad to take cover, he went to the assistance of the wounded man, and while rendering first wid was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Antonio Mazkwaz, MAZUR, JACK (44364) ... Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Austria. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

MAZURKEVCZK, STANLEY (293886)

Near Jaulny, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—East Walpole, Mass.

B—Russia.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R-Saugus, Mass.

B—Italy. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919. MEADOR, ERNEST (1392374)

Near Bois-de-Chaume, France, Oct.

10, 1918.
R—Delavan, Ill.
B—Pineville, Mo.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Beacon, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MECON, JOHN H. (251505) Near Cierges, France, July 31, 1918. R—Eufaula, Okla. B—Williams, Okla. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*Medeiros, Frank L. (58744)..... During the counterattack by the enemy near Catigny, France, May 28, 1918. R—South Boston, Mass. B—East Cambridge, Mass. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

ros

1918.
R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

*MEEHAN, GEORGE R.
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 5, 1918.
R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—Charlestown, Mass.
G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

*MEEK, FIELDING V. (794639) Near Liny, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Smithfield, Ky. B—New Castle, Ky. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

MEEKS, CORBETT (737376). Near Cunel, France, Oct. 21, 1918. R—Neol<sub>1</sub>, Ky. B—Wolfe County, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Meffin, James D. (71288)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Springfield, Mass.

B—Springfield, Mass.

G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Captain Mazur led a squad of auto riflemen through intense enemy fire in an attack against an enemy machine-gun position. He rushed the position and killed or captured the gun crew. His action permitted the further advance of units of the battalion held up by the enemy fire.

Private, Company M. 9th Infantry, 2d Division. With 3 other soldiers, he volunteered to carry wounded men of other companies from in front of our advanced positions and carried this work on under violent machine-gun fire while a counterattack was developing.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

During the offensive operations west of the Meuse, Private Mazzoni, single handed, attacked 5 of the enemy who were firing on our column. He crawled through a woods and attacked them from the rear, killing 1 and taking the rest as prisoners.

Private, Company B, 122d Machine Gun Pattalion, 33d Division. Having induced a stretcher bearer to accompany him, he made his way through heavy shell and machine-gun fire to the front of the lines to aid a wounded comrade. His stretcher bearer was killed in the exploit, but Private Meador placed the man on the stretcher and dragged him back to safety.

Second lieutenant, 1st Colorado Volunteer Infantry.
Lieutenant Means conducted a bold and fearless reconnaissance, during which, regardless of his personal safety, he went beyond the American lines and close to those of the enemy and assisted in examining the ground between the American trenches and Fort San Antonio de Abad held by Spanish forces, thus securing information of the utmost importance in planning the successful attack of Aug. 13, 1898, on Manila, P. I.

Corporal, Company I, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. Corporal Mebreski, with about 12 men assisted in flanking a machine-gun nest and then captured a German ammunition dump with about 65 prisoners.

Private, Company E, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
Though severely wounded while advancing with his platoon in the face of heavy fire from enemy machine guns, Private Mecom refused to return to the rear for first aid, and he not only continued in the advance, but with another soldier successfully attacked a machine-gun nest.

Sergeant, Company M, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. By courageous devotion to duty and presence of mind under fire he prevented the advance against the left flank of his command, which threatened the success of the battle. While exposing himself fearlessly to distribute ammunition and to counsel his men he was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Delfina L. Medei-

Captain, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.
Early in the morning of July 17, 1918, near Monthurel, France, while in an advanced position in the fight he was severely wounded, but refused to leave his command, and continued to direct its operations until it was relieved the night of July 18, 1918.

Second lieutenant, 18th Infantry, 1st Division. Lieutenant Meehan led his platoon through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and urged his men forward in the attack by advancing ahead of the line. He was mortally wounded while in advance of his platoon. His example was such that inspired his men to continue in the advance and take their objective. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Gertrude F. Meehan.

Private, medical detachment, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.

Private Meek distinguished himself by his untiring efforts in administering first aid to the wounded, never hesitating to expose himself to danger in searching for wounded on the field. While making his way through unusually heavy machine-gun fire to a wounded soldier whom he had seen fall Private Meek was mortally wounded. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John S. Meek.

First sergeant, Company H, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.
During a counterattack, he advanced alone over open country under heavy machine-gun fire to a sniping post, and by his efficient resistance greatly aided in the breaking up of the counterattack.

Corporal, Company B, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. Corporal Meffin showed extraordinary courage and bravery in going beyond our front line, under heavy machine-gun fire, and bringing back two wounded comrades.

MEISSNER, JAMES A.
In the Toul sector, France, May 2,

R-Brooklyn, N. Y.

B—Canada. G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

Melcher, Edward J..... Near Chateau-Thierry, June 25, 1918. France, R—Louisville, Ky. B—Louisville, Ky. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MELFI, JERRY (3180986) Near Bois-de-Bantheville, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Swissvale, Pa. B—Italy.

G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

MELL, PATRICK H. In the region of Bantheville, France, Oct. 28, 1918.

R—Augusta, Ga. B—Athens, Ga. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

Melrose, Andrew R. (1210143) _____ Near Vendhuile, France, Sept. 28, Near V 1918.

R-Mareus, Iowa. B-China. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

MENARD, ALEXANDER (1211629) East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Malone, N. Y.
B—Malone, N. Y.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Mendelson, Joseph A.
Near Ville-Savoye, France, Aug.
15-16, 1918.

R—Washington, D. C. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

MENDENHALL, FRED D.
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 20, 1918.
R—Denver, Colo.
B—Gulf Hammock, Fla.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MENEFEE, MARVIN JAMES ... At Molleville Farm, France, Oct.

12, 1918. R—Luray, Va. B—Covington, Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 94th Aero Squadron, Air Service,

First heutenant, 94th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

He attacked 3 enemy planes at an altitude of 4,800 meters over the Foret de la Rappe, France. After a short fight he brought down I of the machines in flames. During the combat the entering wedge and the covering of the upper wings of his plane were torn away, and after the battle he was subjected to heavy fire from antiaircraft batteries, but by skillful operation and cool judgment he succeeded in making a landing within the American lines.

Oak-leaf cluster.

A bronze oak leaf is awarded Lieutenant Meissner for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action: On May 30, 1918, he attacked 2 enemy planes at an altitude of 4,500 meters above Jaulny, France, and after a sharp engagement shot 1 down in flames and forced the other back into its own territory.

Corporal, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Wounded in the head and thigh, Corporal Melcher nevertheless continued valiantly to lead his group through machine-gun and rifle fire to their objec-

Private, first class, Company F, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

After 2 runners had been wounded attempting to get liaison with the troops on the left of his regiment, Private Melfi, though sick from exposure, volunteered and successfully crossed an open field which was constantly swept by enemy machine-gun fire. Having accomplished his mission, he returned the such that cause mechanical uniform additional to his constant of the contraction. through the same machine-gun fire and delivered to his company commander the information he had gained. Private Melfi's devotion to duty and fear-lessness were an inspiration to his comrades.

First lieutenant, 213th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While a voluntary member of a patrol of 6 airplanes, Lieutenant Mell attacked 4 enemy airplanes at an attitude of 2,500 meters. Nine additional enemy airplanes almost immediately joined in the fight. Despite the overwhelming number of enemy airplanes, Lieutenant Mell by great skill in maneuvering and with great bravery succeeded in bringing down out of control 1 of the enemy airplanes. On Nov. 6 Lieutenant Mell with 1 other pilot attacked 3 enemy airplanes at an attitude of 3,000 meters, 15 kilometers within the enemy lines, destroying 1 and combating another until within 50 meters of the ground, where they became separated in the fog. The outstanding bravery and superh devotion to duty displayed by Lieutenant Mell greatly inspired the members of his squadron.

Private, Company A, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
When he was in a shell hole with an officer and 8 men, the enemy threw some hand grenades, I landing among the men. Private Mellen seized it and attempted to throw it out, when it exploded. His action saved the lives of his comrades, but resulted in a severe injury to himself.

Corporal, Company D, 107th Infantry, 27th Division

Leaving the protection of a trench, he crawled out under heavy machine-gun and snipers' fire and rescued a British officer who had fallen in an exposed position. His example was an inspiration to the men serving with him.

Corporal, Company K, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Corporal Menard, with 3 other soldiers, went out into an open field under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in carrying back to our lines 4 seriously wounded men.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry Menard.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 305th Infantry, 77th Division. During a heavy enemy bombardment with gas and high-explosive shells, Lieutenant Mendelson worked for more than 3 hours picking up wounded and gassed men and securing their evacuation, being forced to remove their gas masks, in order to accomplish this work. Though he was almost exhausted from fatigue, he then proceeded to the aid station of another battalion and asskied in treating hundreds of men. Though he was himself suffering from the effects of gas, he refused to go to the hospital upon the completion of this work, as all the other medical officers had been evacuated.

First lieutenant, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.

Although his platoon was constantly under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he courageously directed the wiring of an extreme northern outpost line of Infantry. On the night of Oct. 10, 1918, he skillfully directed the construction of a pontoon bridge over the Loison River. So close to the enemy was his platoon that it was necessary to lash the bridge together, because the hammering of nails would have drawn instant machine-gun fire from the enemy.

First licutenant, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.
While in charge of a 37-millimeter-gun section in advance of the assaulting troops Lieutenant Menefee displayed unusual courage by operating the gun himself after his gunners had been killed, thereby reducing a machinegun nest which had been holding up the line.

MENGE, WILLIAM M. (5839) .... Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, Oct. 3-9, 1918. R—Elizabeth, N. J B—Elizabeth, N. J. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Menges, Ben H. (41132)..... Near Blanc Ment, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Athens, Me. B—Bristol, Ind. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

MERKEL, EDMO E .....

Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-4, 1918.

R—Hattiesburg, Miss. B—Hattiesburg, Miss. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

MERLE-SMITH, VAN SANTVOORD......At the crossing of the River Ourcq, near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 28, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—Seabright, N. J.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

MERRICK, ROBERT G_______At Courban, France, July 14-15, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919. MERRIFIELD, EDWARD L. (2817823).

Near Lesseau, France, Sept. 4, 1918. R—Greenville, Ill. B—Greenville, Ill. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919. MERRILL, JESSE HERBERT (2417792) ___

In the Bois-de-Ronvaux, Sept. 16-17, 1918. R—Elizabethtown, N. Y. B—Tieonderoga, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919. Beis-de-Renvaux, France,

Merrimon, Clifton (2336957)

Near Bussy Farm, France, Sept. 27, R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Cambridge, Mass. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

R-Philadelphia, Pa.

B—Girdletree, Md. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Throughout the engagement he tended the wounded under shell and machine-gun fire, continuing with his work after 2 of his assistants had been killed and I wounded.

Private, Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
By crawling forward alone across a clearing swept by German machine-gun fire and armed only with his rifle and bayonet, he killed 4 of the enemy who resisted him, and after clearing out several dug-outs in the woods returned with 8 prisoners and valuable information. His act of valor was instrumental in warding off a strong enemy counterattack.

Private, medical detachment, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. During the day and night of Oct. 6 he constantly exposed himself under heavy fire, giving first aid to the wounded and assisting in their evacuation.

First sergeant, Company A, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. Voluntarily leading a patrol for a flank attack on the town of Stonne, through unusual artillery fire and exacting machine-gun fire, Sergeant Mercer, leaving his patrol, went forward alone to draw fire from the nests in order to divert the enemy's attention from the attacking patrol.

Pharmacist's mate, second class, U. S. Navy, attached to 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He accompanied a company of marines during an advance under violent fire, going to all parts of the line, giving first aid to wounded and directing their evacuation. Although wounded, he remained on duty until forced to go to

Captain, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Despite the loss of all other officers in his company, and although wounded himself, he continued to direct his men effectively against the enemy. When his major was killed he succeeded to the command of the battation and led it forward throughout the day with courage and gallantry.

First lieutenant, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

After the members of his telephone detail had been pressed into service as runners under a hostile bombardment so severe that telephone communication could not be maintained, he volunteered to drive an ambulance. He made three trips under terrific shellfire to evacuate wounded frem Greves Farm.

Private, Company E, 366th Infantry, 92d Division.

Although he was severely wounded, he remained at his post and continued to fight a superior enemy force which had attempted to enter our lines, thereby preventing the success of an enemy raid in force.

Private, Company E, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
With the remark, "I can get through and find him," Private Merrill volunteered and carried a message from his regimental commander to the commander of an advance battalion through a fire that seemd impassable. He returned with amazing promptness with an answer to the message. This soldier made several other trips on the same night, finding his way through a dark forest, actually walking on bodies of men who had fallen in the only path that could be used.

Corporal, Company L, 372d Infantry, 93d Division.
He attacked with hand grenades an enemy machine gun which was causing heavy losses to his platoon and succeeded in killing the gunner and putting the gun out of action. He then organized the remainder of the platoon and led them to their positions in the trenches south of Bussy Farm.

Private, Company C, 345th Battalion, Tank Corps.
While he was directing a column of tanks through a mine field, assisted by another soldier, his companion was wounded, but he continued with his work until all tanks had safely passed through. Returning, he assisted his wounded comrade to safety, after which he carried messages through an intense bombardment of artillery and machine guns.

Sergeant, Company I, 312th Iufantry, 78th Division.

After having established an observation post without aid in broad daylight and under perilous shellfire of the enemy, he volunteered and carried rations to the post under cover of darkness. Though knocked down by shell concussion, he reached every man who was unable to leave his post, and his continuouslet was carried out under next housesing mechical ways and extilled. entire exploit was carried out under most harassing machine-gun and artillery fire.

```
R—Tuckahoe, N. Y.
B—Tuckahoe, N. Y.
G. O. No. 81, W. D. 1919.
```

MERSHON, VANCE .... Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4-11, 1918.

R-Buckner, Mo.

B—Salem, Oreg. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MERZ, HARRY______ In the Dickebusch sector, Belgium, Aug. 27, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

MESSANELLI, RAY A.....

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4-5,

1918. R—Utica, N. Y. B—Clayville, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

At the attack on Hill 223, Chatel-Chehery, Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 7, 1918.

R—Boston, Mass.

B—Italy.

G O. No. 3, W. D., 1921. MESSINA, JOHN (1909496).

MEYER, ALBERT ... Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Meyer, Frank E. (551410) Near Romagne, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Lancsville, Ind. B—Lancsville, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*MEYER, FRED H. (52561) .... Near Cantigny, France, May 27, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

R—New York, N. Y. B—Hoboken, N. J. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Second lieutenant, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

After successfully crossing the Marne with a night patrol, Lieutenant Merritt captured 3 prisoners. The patrol was then fired on by a detachment of the enemy, and, in the hand-to-hand conflict which followed all of the enemy were killed. The patrol returned to our lines with 1 prisoner and only 2 of the members wounded.

First lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

After the battalion commander and all the senior officers had been killed or wounded, Lieutenant Mershon took command of the battalion and led it successfully to its objective, remaining with it after being painfully wounded, until properly relieved and the new commanding officer thoroughly acquainted with the situation. He then had his wound dressed and returned to his consent activate an expectation of the property of hydrography indirect, fire quamed with the students. He then had its wound cressed and returned to his company, actively supervising the laying of barrages by indirect fire. On the third day he was ordered to the rear, there had his wounds dressed, again returning to his company, remaining with it until it was relieved and reorganized. His courage, self-sacrifice, and utter disregard for his own personal danger was a material inspiration to his men while under the terrific bombardment of enemy artillery.

First lieutenant, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.

When his company was occupying a front-line position and suffering heavy losses from a near-by enemy sniper, Lieutenant Merz, locating the sniper, left his shelter and at great personal danger courageously advanced and succeeded in destroying the sniper and his nest with hand grenades.

Pharmacist's mate, second class, U. S. Navy, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Regardless of his personal danger, he repeatedly exposed himself to machine-gun and shell fire to render first aid to the wounded.

Corporal, Company B, 328th Infantry, 82d Division. Corporal Messina, under heavy shell and machine-gun fire at the risk of his life carried a wounded officer from a shell hole to the regimental first-aid station.

Private, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Corporal Montag and Privates McIntyre, Messinger, and Wood captured a machine gun which was holding up the 55th Company of Marines, killing the entire crew. To accomplish this hazardous and daring work it was necessary for them to expose themselves to the fire of this gun. Even though Corporal Montag and Privates McIntyre and Messinger were wounded during the advance, the party continued forward and succeeded.

Private, 79th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. While on duty as stretcher bearer for his company, he rushed into the open to rescue another soldier threatened with capture, in the face of a large force of advancing Germans. He killed 2 of the enemy and brought in the soldier to a place of safety.

Sergeant, Company G, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

After his platoon had suffered heavy casualties through the devastating fire, Sergeant Meyer, although suffering from a wound, reorganized the remnants of the platoon and continued the advance. He was again wounded but refused evacuation. He insisted on remaining with and cheering the men until struck the third time, when he fell mortally wounded.

Beethungely evented in Medal presented to fether Otto A. Mayor.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Otto A. Meyer.

Scrgeant, Company H, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. He courageously led his platoon through a terrific barrage and silenced a machine-gun position which was enfilading the attacking line. He was killed later in this action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George Meyer.

Private, Company A, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Private, Company A, 20th Highly, 18t Division.

While acting as helper on an automatic-rife team which was under heavy machine-gun fire, he placed himself so as to shield the gunner from the hostile machine gun is, he placed himself as as to neutralize the fire of two enemy machine guns. Private Meyer was mortally wounded, his heroic action costing him his life.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry H. Meyer.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to lather, Henry II. Meyer. Sergeant, Company K, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. Although suffering severely from an attack of gas received on the previous night while leading a patrol in front of Landres-et-St. Georges, during which he secured information of the utmost importance, Sergeant Meyer, in the absence of a commissioned officer, assumed command of his company, which held the most advanced post of his battalion. A high-explosive shell burying 4 men of his company, he immediately and with complete disregard for his own safety, hurried to their rescue and under a heavy barrage of enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, dug with his hands and helmet until he uncovered and rescued the first man; with the assistance of a private of his company he then rescued 2 more men and gave directions for their evacuation. He then, unassisted and under a withering enemy fire, uncovered the body of the fourth man of his company, the latter having been killed instantly.

MEYERS, JAMES P. (42309)
Service rendered under the name,
James E. Perter.

1918. R—Waverly, Va. B—Waverly, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MIANOVICH, STANKO (1999234) __. Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29,

R—Zeigler, Ill. B—Montenegro. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

MICHAEL, WILLIAM II

Near the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 6, 1918.

R—Perryman, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 147, W. D., 1918.

R-East St. Louis, Ill. B-St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

MICHAELS, EMMETT C Near Sommepy, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—St. Joseph, Mo. B—Yarmouth, Iowa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Micklish, Fred (2395893) Near Fossoy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Jonesboro, Ark. B—Jonesboro, Ark. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Chieago, Ill. B—Great Bend, Ind. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Mikos, John J (51295) _____ Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, Oet. 3-9, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
While commanding a plateon of Infantry it was attacked by the enemy on the merning of Apr. 6, 1918. He took effective measures before and during the attack to defeat the enemy and handled his men well, under fire, until he was scriously wounded. Forced to attend to his wound, he refused assistance and walked through the enemy's barrage to a dressing station. He objected to being taken to the rear till he knew the outcome of the attack. His brave example inspired his men to drive off the enemy, who did not reach our trenches. He lost his right hand by amputation as the result of the wound.

Sergeant, Company C, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Cerporal, Company E, 116th Infantry, 29th Division. When his company was subjected to severe machine-gun fire, Cerporal Mczoff, with two other soldiers, attacked a nest of 4 machine guns, killing 8 of the enemy and capturing 27.

Corporal, Company L, 119th Infantry, 30th Division . Separated from his platoon, he encountered a patrol of 18 Germans, attacked them, and killed 3 and captured 15.

Lieutenant commander, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He displayed unusual courage on the morning of June 6, 1918, near the Boisde-Belleau, when he established a dressing station in the open, exposed to both shell and machine-gun fire, in order to be near the wounded. Under these conditions he worked for several hours.

Private, Company E, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

This soldier showed gallantry in attacking an enemy machine-gun nest with his platoon sergeant, killing the crew and capturing the gun, which he used later effectively against the enemy.

Second licutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After 5 members of an automatic rifle squad had been killed by sniper fire and the others were unable to take a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of the company, Licutenant Michaels led the remaining members of the squad against the nest, capturing 15 of the gunners and killing the others. Later he was severely wounded while carrying a wounded member of his platoen to safety, but refused medical attention until the soldier had been eared for.

erporal, Company E, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. When his plateen advanced up the slope in front of the Bois les Jemblets it became necessary to put out of action an enemy machine gun that was cutting up the platoon. Corporal Michalka grasped the situation and at the risk of his own life advanced upon the nest with 2 of his men, killed the operators and captured the gun.

First lieutenant, pilot, 1st Aero Squadron, Air Service. He was assigned the mission of locating the front lines of our troops at a time the was assigned the mission of locating the front lines of our troops at a time when dense mist and low clouds compelled him to fly at an altitude of only 100 meters. His observer's signal rockets drew fire from an advanced hostile machine-gun battery and Lieutenant Michener was wounded in the leg. Despite his wound, he continued the mission until the position of our troops was ascertained. He was then compelled to land on shell-torn ground behind the lines, the plane being completely wrecked.

Private, Company I., 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

Acting as runner, he made repeated trips through the heavy enemy bombardment until wounded while carrying a message. Though suffering great pain, he completed his mission before reporting for treatment.

Sergeant, Company L, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Preceding his platoon in advance by 15 yards, he discovered a machine-gun nest, and crawling forward alone under heavy fire captured the enemy position, taking as prisoners 12 Germans who had manned 2 machine guns.
His bravery inspired the men of his platoon.

Corporal, Company H, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

Although severely wounded early in the engagement, he refused first aid, and continued to lead his section under heavy machine-gun fire until again seriously wounded.

*MILES, 11ARRY B. (1820826) Near Bois-des-Ogons, France, Oct. 4-5, 1918.

R—Richmond, Va. B—Richmond, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MILES, JOHN (1387423) Near Wadonville, France, Nov. 9, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Miles, Perry L.
Near Manila, Philippine Islands,
Feb. 5, 1899.
R.—Columbus, Ohio.
B.—Westerville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1924.
Distinguished-service medal also

awarded

*Miles, Thomas II., Jr_______At Chateau-Thierry, France, June

6, 1918. R—Germantown, Pa. B—Germantown, Pa. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

MILESKI, BEN (1526562) Near Cierges, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Toledo, Ohio.

-Russia. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

MILGRAM, JOSEPH J. (2716667)

Near Grand Monghene, France,

Nov. 8, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

*MILLER, ARTHUR M. (557794) Near Sergy, France, Aug. 1, 1918. R—Websterville, Vt. B—Canada. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*MILLER, BRYAN (2029593) Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

Miller, Charles (59798)

In the Trugny Woods, near ChateauThierry, France, July 23, 1918.
R—Boston, Mass.
B—Boston, Mass.
G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

Miller, Claude II.
At Nauguilian, Luzon, Philippine Islands, Dec. 7, 1899.
R—Lynchburg, Va.
B—Lynchburg, Va.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1925.

Miller, Edwin C. (554702)

At Cierges, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Philipsburg, Pa.

B—Philipsburg, Pa.

G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company B, 318th Infantry, 80th Division.
Always a volunteer for the most dangerous service, Private Miles volunteered to carry a message through a heavy barrage and was killed in the execution of his mission Posthumously awarded, Medal presented to father, William E. Miles.

Corporal, Company E, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

Although suffering severely from the shock of a shell concussion, Corporal Miles volunteered and went 400 yards in advance of our outposts in order to draw the fire of any enemy machine guns, so that fire could be directed upon them. He returned to our lines after accomplishing the mission, but in such an exhausted condition that he had to be carried to the aid station.

First lieutenant, 14th Infantry, U. S. Army.
During the attack by two companies of the 14th Infantry on blockhouse No. 14 and adjacent trenches strongly held by insurgent forces, when the commanding officer was mortally wounded, the advance was checked and the troops were partially demoralized in the face of a heavy concentrated fire from the front and both flanks, Lieutenant Miles assumed command, ordered the advance to continue, and went along the line with utter disregard of the hostile fire and urged his men forward. Then, with exceptional gallantry and the highest qualities of leadership, he dashed forward, many yards ahead of his men, calling on them to follow, and drove the enemy from their position. His splendid example of personal because, courage, and cooless furnished the His splendid example of personal heroism, courage, and coolness furnished the needed inspiration to the wavering command and resulted in the successful accomplishment of a seemingly impossible attack.

Second licutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Anna H. Miles

Private, Company I, 145th Infantry, 37th Division. When a platoon of Company I, 147th Infantry, was held up by machine-gun fire from the left flank, Private Mileski, without orders, rushed forward through heavy machine-gun fire, killed the machine gunner, and caused a number of the enemy to surrender.

Private, first-class, Company A, 312th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th Division. Private Milgram, on duty as a battalion runner, displayed remarkable daring in frequently going through heavy fire in order that communication might be maintained. Upon being sent out to locate the advance units he was repeatedly fired upon by snipers and attacked with hand grenades, but succeeded in returning with valuable information, although 2 other runners accompanying him became casualties.

Private, first class, Company B, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Private Miller was killed while returning with an answer to a very important message which he had voluntarily delivered at a very critical stage of the attack. His mission was one of extreme danger, taking him to the most advanced position through a sweeping fire of artillery and machine gups. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Miller.

Private, Company C, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
When volunteers were called for by his company commander, Private Miller volunteered and rescued wounded comrades from a harrage. Disregarding danger to himself, he continued the performance of these heroic deeds until Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Nellie Miller.

Private, Company A, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
He, with 2 other men in an advanced position ahead of the battalion, charged a machine gun, killed 4 of the enemy, and drove off the rest, thereby making possible the advance of their comrades.

First lieutenant, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army.
When the command of which he was a member was held up in the crossing of the Rio Grande de Cagayan by rifle fire of a well-intrenched enemy, and being without boats or raits with which to cross, he hastily constructed a raft being without noars or rats with which to cross, he hastly constructed a ran-made of hamboo, strips of shelter tents, and personal equipment, and on this flimsy affair with 2 soldiers volunteered to cross the river. Displaying great gallantry and with utter disregard for his own safety Lieutenant Miller crossed the river in the face of heavy rifle fire and took part in an attack which drove the enemy from the trenches and the town occupied by them, thereby making rescrible the further advance of the convence. possible the further advance of the command.

Corporal, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Corporal Miller exposed himself to artillery and direct machine-gun fire while going 300 yards in front of our lines to assist a comrade in carrying a wounded soldier to shelter.

MILLER, FRANK D. (2706)

Near Exeminant, France, Oct. 1-12, 1918.

R—Great Falls, Mont.

B—Great Falls, M. D., 1919.

*Miller, George F. (1316503)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Dyersburg, Tenn.
B—Knoaville, Tenn.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Miller, Harry W. (1213273)

East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R.—Buffalo, N. Y.
B.—Peoria, III.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*MILLER, HENRY (1708665) Near Binarville, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Miller, Herbert H. (2201262)
In the Bois-de-Barricourt, France,
Nov. 2, 1918.
R-Ionia, Kans.
B-Ionia, Kans.
G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

MILLER, HUGH S.
In the Bois-de-Belleau, France,
June 6, 1918.
R-St. Louis, Mo.
B-St. Louis, Mo.
G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

Miller, James R. (1291111)

Near the Cote-de-Roches, France,
Oct. 8, 1918.

R-Cambridge, Md.
B-Hartford, Conn.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Mriler, John C., Jr.
Near Lucy-le-Bocage, France, June 19-20, 1918.
R-Huntington, W. Va.
B-Dunlow, W. Va.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

MILLER, JOSEPH P. (540426)
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 12, 1918.
R—Baton Rouge, La.
B—Ascension Parish, La.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Miller, Lawrence G.
At Belleau, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Webster Groves, Mo.
B—Asheville, N. C.
G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

Private, medical detachment, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

His detachment having been reduced to but 3 men, Private Miller displayed conspicuous courage and devotion to duty in caring for and evacuating wounded across an area swept by shell and machine-gun fire to the regimental aid station and returning with badly needed medical supplies to the forward aid station. His conduct was an inspiration to his associates, their commanding officer being absent and the sergeant in charge having been killed.

Corporal, Company II, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

On Oct. 4 Corporal Miller, with a small group from his platoon, advanced through heavy fire and captured an enemy machine-gun nest with its crew of 6 men. The following day he advanced in front of our lines through heavy fire and assisted several wounded connades to safety. Corporal Miller was killed later during an engagement in the Argonne.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, M. C. Miller.

Sergeant, Company K, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
When a portion of his company was threatened by a counterattack and 2 runners had been killed in an attempt to reach the detachment with orders to withdraw, he volunteered for the dangerous mission, and attempting to cross an exposed field to carry the orders was mortally wounded.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Luther G. Miller.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 108th Infantry, 27th Division. During the operations against the Hindenburg line he concealed the fact that he was wounded from his officers and continued to advance with his company during the entire day. He displayed exceptional bravery and gallantry, setting a fine example to all.

Private, Company E, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
When his company had been cut off from communication and exposed to intense shell and machine-gun fre, Private Miller observed and attacked an enemy sniper, silencing further fire from that source. While attempting to return he was killed by machine-gun fire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry Miller.

Sergeant, Company G, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.

Continuing forward alone, after all the other members of his combat group had been killed or wounded, Sergeant Miller penetrated the enemy's lines, despite machine-gun and rifle fire, located a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his platoon, and put it out of action by effective rifle fire.

Private, first class, Company G, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. When his section of the line was held up by extremely heavy machine-gun fire, Private Miller voluntarily went forward and, unaided, routed out the crews of the 2 nests, killing 3 of the enemy and returning with 3 prisoners.

Private, 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Although ordered to the rear twice because of illness, he returned to his command voluntarily and continued to fight with it vigorously throughout the advance.

Private, Company C, 112th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division. When the advance of the battalion to which his company was attached was halted by heavy machine-gun fire, this soldier boldly leaped to the top of his machine-gun emplacement to draw the enemy fire and thus enable his crew to locate the enemy's emplacement. Later in the action he fearlessly left his trench in search of an enemy sniper, who was causing many casualties among our troops and killed him with a captured German rific.

Second lieutenant, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
With a few volunteers, entered a woods heavily shelled and gassed, and recovered 2 wounded members of his platoon.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

After making a reconnaissance of the enemy positions with 2 other soldiers and finding the enemy forming for a counterattack, Sergeant Miller, upon his own initiative, extended his positions and filled a gap of 400 meters in the line, his platoon commander having been wounded, and successfully repelled the hostile counterattack. Following up the enemy's withdrawal, he placed his guns in an advanced position in a railroad cut and remained there for 4 days without communication with the rear except at night. During this period he repelled 3 enemy counterattacks and half his command became casualties, his courage under these trying conditions being an inspiration to his men.

Second lieutenant, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division.
Lieutenant Miller was struck by a piece of shrappel and knocked unconscious.
Upon regaining consciousness and with great difficulty he rejoined and remained with his platoon during the remainder of the attack until his battalion was relieved.

11, 1918.
R—Lansing, Iowa.
B—Walnut, Ill.
G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

R-Golddust, Tenn. B-Jackson County, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

27, 1918.

R—Kansas City, Kans.

B—McLouth, Kans.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

MILLIS, JOHN M. In Bantheville Woods, France, Oct. 30, 1918.

B-Catlettsburg, Ky.
B-Catlettsburg, Ky.
G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919, and G. O.
No. 13, W. D., 1923.

*Millo*, Jack L. (1391526) Near Briculles, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—England. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

MILLS, BRUCE H. At Blane Mont, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Los Angeles, Calif. B—Mason, Mich. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Camden, N. J. B-Camden, N. J. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Boardman, N. C. B-Boardman, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Asotin, Wash. B—Asotin, Wash. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

MILNE, WILLIAM L. (1489917) Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Muskogee, Okla. B—Parsons, Kans. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company M, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

While his company was engaged with the enemy in the attack on this town,
Private Miller, accompanied by 2 other men and with a Lewis machine gun, by display of excellent initiative and great courage, voluntarily crawled around the town through a heavy hostile machine-gun fire and with the machine gun in a near-by house silenced the enemy machine gun and drove the crew from the hearssing post which was holding up the company's advance. During this action Private Miller was seriously wounded.

Private, Company D, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
Seeking shelter with his company from the severe artillery and machine-gun fire of the enemy, he entered a shell hole. Here he found a severely wounded soldier, and without hesitation carried the man 50 yards under plain view of the enemy and exposed to terrific fire to a place of safety with some of his company.

Private, 45th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He volunteered and carried a message through terrific shell and machine-gun fire. In the performance of this mission he suffered the loss of a leg from an exploding shell.

Cook, Company B, 110th Engineers, 35th Division. When his platoon had been fired upon at short range by a hostile machine gun, he advanced alone, armed merely with a pistol, and, although knocked down by an aerial bomb, went forward to the emplacement, killed the 2 gunners, captured the gun, and made prisoners of the reserve crew of 2 men who were in a neighboring emplacement.

Second lieutenant, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.
Wounded in both legs, one of them being broken when his daylight patrol was caught in heavy machine-gun fire 500 yards in advance of our lines, he ordered his men to return without him. He was later rescued by 2 soldiers.

Oak-leaf cluster.

bronze oak-leaf cluster is awarded Lieutenant Millis for extraordinary heroism in action near Charey, France, Sept. 30, 1918. On the morning of that day an officer returning from patrol reported to Lieutenant Millis that he had encountered enemy machine guns and that several of his patrol had been wounded. Lieutenant Millis, with great courage and without regard been wounded. Lieutenant Millis, with great courage and without regard to his own safety, proceeded over rough and broken ground to a point 400 yards beyond his outposts, where he exchanged several shots with the enemy. Meeting another member of the patrol he was informed of a wounded man about 100 yards beyond his position at that time. Under a withering machine-gun fire Lieutenant Millis with splendid courage and devotion to duty rushed into the open, located and examined the man, whom he found to be dead. Making his way to his outpost he continued to exchange shels with the enemy, one of whom he killed. change shots with the enemy, one of whom he killed.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

On hearing the call for aid by several men who had been wounded, Sergeant Milloy, without regard for his own life, rushed out under heavy machinegun and shellfire, administered first aid to these men, and, while in the act of placing them on stretchers, was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Jack L. Milloy.

Private, 78th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. When the advance of their company was held up by enfilading fire from a hostile machine-gun nest, Private Mills, with 3 other soldiers, volunteered and made a flank attack on the nest with bombs and rifles, killing 3 members of the crews and capturing 25 others, together with 3 machine guns.

Private, Company D, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
While acting as a runner he volunteered and carried messages through several heavy barrages and under direct enemy fire, always accomplishing his mission,

Second lieutenant, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

Lieutenant Mills asked permission to lead a platoon against strong enemy machine-gun nests which were blocking the advance of the battalion. He not only led his platoon in a daring and extraordinary successful attack, but personally advanced ahead of his platoon and captured 2 machine gun. During the consolidation of the line he fearlessly walked up and down the line under intense machine-gun and artillery fire, establishing strong points and encouraging his men.

Private, Company B, 307th Infantry, 77th Division. Knowing that he faced certain death, Private Millsap displayed the highest gallantry and devotion to duty by 4 times carrying messages across a field swept by machine-gun fire. He was killed while performing this hazardous service. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Joe Millsap.

Private, Company D, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.

With the aid of another soldier Private Milne attacked and captured a machine-gun nest, at the same time killing and capturing several of the enemy. He later organized a support line by assembling the scattered members of 1 of the companies of his regiment and a platoon of the machine-gun company, forming them into a combatant force.

MILNER, JACK W. (97365). Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Alexander City, Ala.

B—Alexander City, Ala.

G. O. No. 131, W. D., 1918.

MINALGA, FRANK (41138) Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R-New Haven, Conn. B-Russia. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

MINARDI, GUISIPPE (545342). Naar Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918.

R—South Amboy, N. J.

B—Italy.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Mincey, George A.
At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Ogeechee, Ga. B—Ogeechee, Ga. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

MINER, ASHER_ awarded.

MINER, DONALD At Ormont Farm, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Jersey City, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*MINGLE, CLAUDE L. (1306628)... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept 29, 1928. R-Knoxville, Tenn.
B-Blount County, Tenn.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MINNIGERODE, FITZHUGH L. Near Verdun, France, Oct. 23-24, 1918. R—Washington, D. C. B—Oatlands, Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also awarded. Minnis, John A.

Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918.
R-Montgomery, Ala.
B-Montgomery, Ala.
G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

*MINTER, PAUL B. (113934)... Near Sergy, France, July 26, 1918. R-Monticello, Ga. B-Monticello, Ga. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*Minton, Charles Armand______ In the Bois-de-Naza, near Binar-ville, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Flushing, N. Y. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

MINTZ. FORNEY B. (1707533).

Near Binarville, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R-Mill Branch, N. C.

B-Mill Branch, N. C.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company II, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

Sergeant, Company 11, 1676 Innanty, 426 Division.

After his company had sustained heavy losses in a severe engagement with the enemy, and he himself had been seriously wounded, he, realizing that he was the only sergeant left in the company, refused to be evacuated and remained on duty for 12 hours, reorganizing his company under heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun fire, thereby showing entire disregard for danger and setting an excellent example of conrage and heroism under fire to his men.

Private, Company E, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

When his company was held up by an enemy machine-gun nest, Private Minalga advanced on the nest from the flank and captured it singlehanded.

Private, Company A, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. During the engagement he set an example to the other members of his company by his gallant conduct. After the company was ordered to withdraw, he voluntarily returned to the position his company had held and throughout the night assisted in evacuating the wounded.

Corporal, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George Mincey.

Colonel, 109th Field Artillery, 28th Division.

One of the batteries of the regiment commanded by this officer assigned to an advanced position in direct support of an infantry attack was heavily shelled by the enemy while it was going into action. It being necessary therefore to take another position, he went forward under heavy shellfire and personally attacking the statement of the control supervised the placing of the guns in the new position. He continued his efforts until he received a severe wound that later necessitated the amputation of his leg.

Major, Medical Corps, attached to 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
He voluntarily proceeded under heavy shellfire to an advanced aid station.
For 4 hours he worked unceasingly caring for the wounded and evacuating them. Finding that he could work more effectively without his gas mask, he discarded it so that it would not hinder him in attending wounded men.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
When enemy machine guns suddenly opened fire on both flanks of his platoon, he bravely refused to take cover, but delivered effective rifle fire on the enemy, putting out of action 1 of the machine guns before he was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Jake Mingle.

Lieutenant colonel, 114th Infantry, 29th Division. When his battalion commanders, who had gone forward on a reconnaissance preparatory to an attack, were prevented from returning by heavy shell and machine-gun fire, Lieutenant Colonel Minnigerode personally led his regiment into position under cover. With a soldier he then went forward for a distance of 2 kilometers under artillery and machine-gun fire, found the battalion commanders, and guided them back to their comrades.

Captain, U. S. Marine Corps, attached to 38th Infantry, 3d Division. During the enemy drive he fearlessly reorganized a unit that had lost its officers and held his position against the enemy assault. A short time later he gallantly led 15 men in a counterattack under heavy enemy machine-gun fire. He repulsed the enemy and captured 24 prisoners.

ergeant, Company B, 151st Machine Gun Battalion, 42d Division. He led his section forward, secured his objective, supervised the consolidation of his position, laid his guns personally with ealmess, accuracy, and decision, and continued to direct the operations of his men, all in the face of severe enemy machine-gun and shell fire, until he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, O. J. Minter.

First lieutenant, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
Although suffering with a mortal illness, Lieutenant Minton retained command of his company, and when his line had been temporarily beaten back he personally returned across an area swept by hostile machine-gun fire and rescued a wounded soldier who had fallen within 25 yards of an enemy machine gun. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J. McKim Minton.

Sergeant, Company A, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
Sergeant Mintz, in command of a platoon, worked his way through the enemy rear guard and captured 5 machine guns and an ammunition-carrying party. Although badly wounded when an organized position of the enemy was encountered, he made his way back to request reinforcements and brought with him two German prisoners, from whom valuable information was obtained.

*MITCHELL, ARTHUR (544911)-Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Bessemer, Ala. B—Roekford, Ala. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MITCHELL, CLARENCE In the Bois-Hazois, France, Nov. 1.

R-Cloverport, Ky. B-Cloverport, Ky. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919

MITCHELL, EDWARD J
During the Meuse-Argonne offensive, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—Prescott, Ariz.
B—Roehester, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

B-York, Pa.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

MITCHELL, JOHN Near Beaumont, France, May 27, 1918.

R-Miami, Fla. B-Cineinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MITCHELL, JOHN A.
Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Livingston, Tenn. B-Livingston, Tenn. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MITCHELL, JOHN B. (2383907)

Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 16, 1918.

R—Gary, Ind. B—Natiek, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*MITCHELL, JOHN E_ Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Cedarhurst, Long Island, N. Y. B—Cedarhurst, Long Island, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

MITCHELL, MANTON C.
Near St. Thibault, France, Aug. 5, 1918.

R—Providence, R. I. B—Providence, R. I. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

MITCHELL, WILLIAM...
At Noyon, France, Mar. 26, 1918;
near the Marne River, France,
during July, 1918; and in the St.
Mihiel salient, France, Sept. 12-16, 1918.

B—France.
G. O. No. 120, W. D., 1918.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

MIX, RALPH B, (1747423) ... At Grand Pre, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R—Hudson Falls, N. Y. B—Marinette, Wis, G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919, Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 30th Infantry. 3d Division.

After his gun had been destroyed by shell fire Sergeant Mitchell led his men through the enemy lines to our own. He braved the extreme shelling and machine-gun fire by going to the aid of the wounded, and while withdrawing covered the retreat, effectively holding off the enemy. He was killed in action shortly afterwards.

Posthungusly awarded. Metal researced to widow. Mrs. A. L. Mitchell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. A. L. Mitchell.

Captain, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

Though Captain Mitchell was wounded in the leg by shell fragments just before the opening of the attack, he continued to lead his company, advancing 3 kilometers, to the first objective with the aid of a cane and assisted by runners. His conspicuous courage and fortitude inspired his men to a successful assault against a strongly entrenched position desperately defended by the enemy.

Captain, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.

Leading a platoon in advance of other troops, he encountered and captured

3 German 155's, which were in operation, also taking 6 officers and about 425 men. During the night he organized troops from his own and other divisions and established a formidable piece of front line.

Corporal, Company F, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Although wounded, he promptly took command of his company after all of its officers had been killed and courageously and successfully led it forward in the advance.

Captain, 95th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Seeing 3 enemy planes flying east over Apremont at 2,500 meters, he unhesitatingly attacked the 3 machines, which were in close formation, despite the fact that a fourth, hovering above, threatened to close in and join the enemy formation. He succeeded in shooting down the enemy machine, which proved to be a biplane returning from an important mission.

First lieutenant, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

Hearing cries of distress from a disabled tank, he, assisted by a soldier, advanced in the face of terrific machine-gun and shell fire to the spot. Notwithstanding the fact that the tank was subjected to point-blank fire of artillery, he succeeded in rescuing the badly wounded tank commander and removing him to a place of safety.

Private, Company G, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

Although severely wounded while earrying a message from his battalion head-quarters through an extremely heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, Private Mitchell persevered and successfully delivered the message.

Second lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Displaying utter disregard for his personal safety, he led his plateon through an extremely heavy machine-gun and artillery barrage and destroyed several enemy machine-gun nests. He was later killed while making a reconnais-

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. John Mitchell.

Majer, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.
The attack battalion having been held up by heavy machine-gun fire while attempting to cross the Vesle River, Major Mitchell, who was in command of the support battalion, went forward through heavy machine-gun fire and encouraged and assisted the advanced troops to cross the river. He was severely wounded in the leg while directing these movements, but he refused to be evacuated and continued in the attack, remaining with the attack battalion until the evening of Aug. 5.

Brigadier general, Chief of Air Service, 1st Army.

For displaying bravery far beyond that required by his position as Chief of Air Service, 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, setting a personal example to the United States aviation by piloting his airplane over the battle lines since the entry of the United States into the war, some instances being a flight in a monoplane over the battle of Noyou on Mar. 26, 1918, and the back areas, seeing and reporting upon the action of both air and ground troops, which led to a change in our aviation's tactical methods; a flight in a mono plane over the bridges which the Germans had laid across the Marne during July, 1918, which led to the first definite reports of the location of these bridges and the subsequent attack upon the German troops by our air forces; daily reconnaissances over the lines during the battle of St. Milliel salient, Sept. 12 to 16, securing valuable Information of the enemy troops in the air and on the ground, which led to the excellent combined action by the allied air services and ground troops particularly in this battle.

Private, Company F, 312th Infantry, 78th Division. While carrying a message through heavy shell and machine-gun fire to an advanced platoon he found 2 wonnded men, whose injuries he dressed. Upor returning from his mission he asked for and received permission to take food to the wounded men. He subsequently made 2 trips through intense fire, carrying them back to shelter, MOAN, RALPH T. (69071) Near Riaville, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—East Machias, Me. B—East Machias, Me. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*Mobley, Lotus N. (240329) Near Trugny, France, July 23, 1918. R—Cedar Rapids, Iowa. B—Hartwell, Ind. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

Modrow, Perry F. (1379158)..... Near Romagne, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—East St. Louis, Ill. B—East St. Louis, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Newark, N. J. B—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

4, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MOLIK, JOSEPH (41870) Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

MOLLER, WILLIAM G ._ At Riaville, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R-Champaign, Ill. B-Dewey, Ill. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

Molloy, Joseph A.
Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918.
R—Lowell, Mass.
B—Charlestown, Mass.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Molsberry, Howard C.

In the vicinity of le Thiolet, France,
June 6-7, 1918.

R—Ambridge, Pa.
B—Plymouth, Iowa.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

MOLTER, HENRY C. (214901) Montfaucon, France, Sept. Near Montfaucon, Fran 28, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Monahan, Edward V. (1782513) Near Moirey, France, Nov. 10, 1918. R—Centralia, Pa. B—Centralia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Monahan, Francis J. (2004824)

Near Samogneux, France, Oct. 12,

R—Indianapolis, Ind. B—Indianapolis, Ind. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

102444°-27-30

Mechanic, Company K, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

Mechanic Moan, who was detailed as a runner, made several trips carrying important messages across terrain swept by constant fire from machine guns, suppers, trench mortars, and artillery. His disregard for personal safety and devotion to duty in the prompt delivery of messages contributed greatly to the expense of the action. the success of the action.

Sergeant, Company F, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

At imminent peril to his own life Sergeant Mobley and two companions extinguished a fire in an ammunition dump caused by a bursting shell, thereby preventing the explosion of the dump and saving the lives of a large number of men who were in the vicinity.

Sergeant, Company L, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
Sergeant Mobiley displayed exceptional courage in dashing into field under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and carrying to safety a wounded man.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to triend, Mrs. R. A. Page.

Private, medical detachment, 124th Field Artillery, 33d Division. He was wounded while serving at the battalion aid station under heavy shellfire, but he insisted on continuing at work until compelled to go to the rear against his will.

Sergeant, Battery E, 42d Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps, Having been severely wounded early in the German attack on Suippes, ho continued to direct the firing of his gun crew for 8 hours under intense shell fire, remaining on duty until all the ammunition had been expended and orders to withdraw had been received.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

After passing through a heavily bembarded area, he learned that a soldier of his platoon had been wounded and had fallen in the shelled area. He at once volunteered and went back for him, assisted in bringing him to a place of safety, and later helped to carry him through another shelled area to the first-aid station.

Sergeant, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Although severely wounded in an attack on an enemy machine-gun position Sergeant Molik continued to direct his platoon in the advance until late in the afternoon, when he was ordered to be evacuated for his wounds.

Second lieutenant, 102d Infantry, 26th Division. He displayed remarkable courage and judgment by organizing a platoon of men who had become detached from their various units. With this detachment he wiped out a machine-gun nest, opening the way for further advance into the town of Riaville. He maintained his position in the front line throughout the action, although subjected to heavy fire from all arms.

First lieutement, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Lieutemant Molloy was leading his plateon through a heavily gassed area when a large shell struck in the middle of his column, killing 15 men and wounding a like number. He himself was badly shocked, but immediately set to work administering to the wounded despite the darkness, terrific shelling, and the necessity of wearing a gas mask. He aided practically all of the wounded, single-handed, and secured their transportation to the rear.

First lieutenant, 2d Engineers, 2d Division. He courageously took command of and efficiently directed the advance of an infantry unit when all its officers had been killed or wounded.

Sergeant, first class, Company D, 1st Gas Regiment.

Sergeant Molter volunteered and led a detachment to recover ammunition from a dump which was under fire and liable to explode at any minute. Working under a heavy gas attack, he succeeded in removing the dump to a place of safety.

Sergeant, Company E, 314th Infantry, 79th Division.

Wounded in the face by a machine-gun bullet he refused to be evacuated, but continued to lead his platoon in a successful attack with the bullet still in his flesh. After securing first-aid treatment next morning he learned that his company was advancing again, whereupon he returned and led his platoon in an assault on the Cote Romagne.

Private, Company M, 116th Infantry, 28th Division. He left shelter and exposed himself to direct enemy machine-gun fire to aid a wounded man, and while so engaged was himself seriously wounded.

MONGEAU, HENRY J. (58464) At Seicheprey, France, Mar. 28, 1918. R—Cherry Valley, Mass. B—Canada.

G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1924.

*Monk, Francis L. (3138521) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R-Benson, Utah. B-Murray, Utah. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

MONROE, CHARLIE T. (2463911) ____ At Mont de Sanges, France, Sept.

24, 1918. R-Meyersville, Va. B-Meyersville, Va. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Monroe, David E______ South of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R-Marion, S. C. B-Marion, S. C. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

lands, Dec. 7, 1899. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1925.

Monson, John J. (1707736)

Near Binarville, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Montag, Bernard William.
Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918.
R—Toledo, Ohio.
B—Oshkosh, Wis.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Richmond, Va. B—Danville, Va. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Montee, Jesse A Near Cunel, France, Oct. 11-Nov. 11, 1918.

R—Superior, Wis.

B—Rock Valley, Iowa.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Montgomery, Charles G. (1490849). Near Attigny, France, Oct. 27, 1918. R—Goodlett, Tex. B—Texas.

G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company D, 111th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division. During an intense hombardment he volunteered to leave cover and assist in carrying a litter supporting a wounded officer. He was himself killed while engaged on this self-sacrificing mission.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Philip Monahan.

Corporal, Company L, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

This soldier was a member of a patrol consisting of an officer and 4 men, who, with great daring, entered a dangerous portion of the enemy trenches, where they surrounded a party nearly double their own strength, drove off an enemy rescuing party, and made their way back to our lines with 4 prisoners, from whom valuable information was taken.

Private, Company A, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

He crawled out into an open field where another soldier lay severely wounded, under fire from machine guns and snipers, and dragged him to the shelter of a wall, where he dressed his wounds. In so doing he was himself wounded. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to half brother, Chris W. Anderson.

Private, Headquarters Company, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.
Private Monroe, in the absence of his platoon commander, took charge of a platoon of Stokes mortars, directing the work of the men under heavy shell fire. Although the shelling was so intense that guns were at times buried, Private Momoe and his men worked unceasingly in placing them back into action. He himself was buried by the explosion of a shell, but on being dug out continued to direct the work of the men and encourage them by his fearless example.

Second lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
His platoon having been halted by machine-gun fire, he advanced alone against the nest and captured the gun and crew. Although wounded in this encounter, he returned to his platoon and led them on to its objective. His gallant conduct had a marked effect upon his men.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, T. J. Monroe.

Private, Company A, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army.
When the command of which he was a member was held up in the crossing of the Rio Grande de Cagayan by rifle fire from a well-intrenched enemy, and being without boats or rafts with which to cross, Private Monroe with 5 other members of his company volunteered to swim the river. Displaying great gallantry and with utter disregard for his life, he swam the river in the face of heavy rifle fire, returned on a raft, secured arms and ammunition, crossed a second time, and took part in an attack which drove a superior force of the enemy from their trenches and the town occupied by them, thereby making possible the further advance of his company.

Private, first class, Company A, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. In order to obtain ammunition and rations, Private Monson, with another soldier, accompanied an officer in an effort to reestablish communication between battalion and regimental headquarters. They were attacked by a small party of Germans, but drove them off, killing I. When night came, they crawled unknowingly into the center of a German camp, where they lay for 3 hours, undetected. Finally discovered, they made a dash to escape. In order to protect the officer, Private Monson deliberately drew the enemy fire to himself, allowing the officer to escape. Private Monson succeeded in getting through and delivering his message the next morning.

Corporal, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Corporal Montag and 3 comrades, Privates McIntyre, Messinger, and Wood, captured a machine gun which was holding up the company of marines, killing the entire crew. To accomplish this hazardous and daring work it was necessary for them to expose themselves to the fire of this gun. Even though Corporal Montag and Privates McIntyre and Messinger were wounded during the advance, the party continued forward and succeeded.

First lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. When the advance of his company was held up, Lieutenant Montague voluntarily led a group of men in a flankling movement against a withering machinegun fire, and under a heavy artillery bombardment entered and took the town of Landreville, capturing about 150 prisoners.

Second lieutenant, 61st infantry, 5th Division.
Lieutenant Montee displayed high qualities of leadership, repeatedly reconnoitering advanced positions under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire, and leading patrols into enemy territory, thereby facilitating the advance of his battalion. On one occasion, when the battalion had been nearly surrounded by hostile machine guns, he went to the rear and successfully brought up reinforcements. Later, while acting as battalion adjutant, he accompanied the assaulting waves in all attacks, and by his utter disregard for danger assisted in maintaining order among the attacking troops and establishing lines.

Private, Company I, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
Private Montgomery volunteered and carried a message from battalion headquarters through the enemy's fire to our support line and guided a combat group into position, in absolute disregard of his personal safety. He was caught in a heavy barrage and was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, H. I. Montgomery.

Monula, Nick (2337984) Near Grand Ballois Farm, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa.

B—Serbia. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R—Summerton, S. C. B—Ridgeway, S. C. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

R-Knoxville, Tenn. B-Joppa, Tenn. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

10, 1918.

R—Rockford, Ala. B—Rockford, Ala. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*MOORE, CHARLES J oore, CHARLES J.
On the Andon River, France, Oct.
14, 1918.
R—Lampasas, Tex
B—Lampasas, Tex.
G. O. No. 20, W., D. 1919.

MOORE, CLAYTON H. (1450720). Attack on Hilsenfirst, France, July 6, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—Denver, Colo.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

MOORE, EDWARD RUSSELL .. Near Thiaucourt, France, Oct. 9,

1918. R-Columbia, Mo. B-Audrain County, Mo. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

Moore, Elgin J. (2193755) ___ Near Beauclair, France, Nov. 4-11, 1918.

R—Winslow, Ariz. B—Las Lumas, N. Mex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MOORE, FRED F. North of Flirey, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-Stewart, Minn. B-Stewart, Minn. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*Moore, Frederick P., Jr... Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Bellevue, Pa. B—Rochester, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

During a heavy gas and shell bombardment he repeatedly volunteered and delivered messages over routes other than his own when the runners assigned to those routes had been killed or wounded.

Captain, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the fighting of July 19-21, 1918, near Soissons, France, he voluntarily exposed himself to fire repeatedly in order to get information and direct operations, and was killed while leading a battalion to the attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. W. R. Mood.

Captain, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Captain Moody was in command of his company on the left flank of the assault-Captain Moody was in command of his company on the left liank of the assaulting battalion, when withering machine-gun fire from an old factory building held up the advance of the entire left flank. Realizing the gravity of the situation, he took 2 squads and led them in an attack on the machine-gun positions over ground swept by machine-gun ad shell fire. After a personal encounter, in which he used his pistol and hand grenades, the machine guns were silenced. From there he started toward another machine-gun post, but was mortally wounded before reaching it, dying on the field.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry G. Moody.

Private, Company F, 322d Infantry, 81st Division. He voluntarily returned through heavy artillery fire to a position formerly held by his company and rescued a wounded man.

Captain, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.
Captain Moore went forward under heavy artillery fire, reorganized his men, who were in scattered units, after they had laid bridges across the Andon River. After being severely wounded, he gave instructions to his subordinates for carrying on the work.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Charles J. Moore.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.
During the attack on Hilsenfirst, France, July 6, 1918, while carrying a wounded soldier through machine-gun fire to shelter he was wounded, but by unusual pluck he brought his comrade to safety, and, realizing the scarcity of stretchers, insisted on others being carried to the rear and himself walking.

Supply sergeant, Company F, 353d Infantry, 89th Division. During the advance through the woods, Sergeant Moore fearlessly exposed himself while directing his men in the capture of machine-gun nests. In one instance he alone captured a machine gun with a well-thrown grenade and then, putting this gun into action, inflicted further losses on the fleeing enemy. His utter disregard of personal danger and his high qualities of leadership were an inspiration to his men and contributed greatly to the success of his platon in this operation.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ruth Moore.

First lieutenant, pilot, 8th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
He, with First Lieut. Gardner Philip Allen, observer, took advantage of a short period of fair weather during generally unfavorable atmospheric conditions to undertake a photographic mission behind the German lines. Accompanied by two protecting planes, they had just commenced their mission when they were attacked by 8 enemy planes, which followed them throughout their course, firing at the photographic plane. Lieutenant Moore, pilot, with both flying wires cut by bullets, a landing wire shot away, his elevators riddled with bullets, and both wings punctured, continued on the prescribed course, although it made him an easy target. Lieutenant Allen was thus enabled in the midst of the attack to take pictures of the exact territory assigned, and he made no attempt to protect the plane with his machine guns. Displaying entire disregard for their personal danger and steadfast devotion to duty, the 2 officers successfully accomplished their mission.

Sergeant, first class, Company C, 314th Field Signal Battalion, 89th Division. From the 4th to the 11th of November, while continually under heavy shell fire, Sergeant Moore laid and maintained lines of communication within his area with utter disregard for his personal safety.

devotion to duty, the 2 officers successfully accomplished their mission.

Captain, 355th Infantry, 89th Division.
Wounded in the left shoulder early in the morning while in command of his company, he continued to lead and handle it during the entire day in an efficient and gallant manner under fire. He refused to take time to have his wound attended to until late that night and after his command had intrenched under fire on large and under fire and was safe.

Captain, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. During an intense bombardment he left shelter and exposed himself constantly in a wood swept by shell fire while encouraging and directing the movement of his company. He was killed by shell fire while on a personal reconnaissance. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Frederick P. Moore, jr.

Moore, Harold C. (2262347).

Near Mount Des Ailleux, France,
Sept. 26, 1918.

R-Upland, Calif.
B-Morrill, Kans.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Rochester, Pa. B—Warren, Pa. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

MOORE, JAMES EDWARD .... South of Cunel, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Kenova, W. Va. B—Norfolk, Va. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

2, 1918. R—Ridgway, Mont. B—Spanish Peaks, Colo. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

MOORE, JOHN CARROLL. Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1919.

Moore, John D. (8599) Near Somme-Py, France, Oct. 2-9, 1918.

R—Haddonfield, N. J. B—Haddonfield, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Moore, John H Near Cutry, France, July 18, 1918. R—De Kalb, Tex. B—De Kalb, Tex. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Canton, Ill. B—Canton, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-Austin, Tex.
B-San Marcus, Tex.
G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1919.

Moore, Walter (1850005)

Near Brancourt, France, Oct. 8, and near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

9, 1918. R—Alexandria, Va. B—Prince William County, Va. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

MOORE, WILLIAM B ... ORS, WILLIAM B.
At Bouresches, France, June 6, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—Waco, Tex.
G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1913.

Sergeant, Company C, 348th Machine Gun Battalion, 91st Division.

Although wounded by the same shell which mortally wounded his platoon commander, he went to his company for assistance, returned through a heavy shell fire, and helped to earry his commander to a place of safety. He did not report his own wound, or receive medical attention until the officer had been cared for.

Corporal, Company G, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

With an automatic rifle team, he occupied a house in an advanced position west of Fismette on the night of Aug. 12, the loss of which would have jeopardized his company's position and hindered the military operations then taking place. The enemy shot a flare into the house, setting fire to it, but Corporal Moore and a companion, under machine-gun and sniper fire in a brilliantly lighted room, extinguished the flames.

Second lieutenant, 38th Infautry, 3d Division.

Although severely wounded in the head by a machine-gun bullet, Second Lieutenant Moore continued in command of his platoon and by his courageous conduct repulsed a strong enemy counterattack against the line held.

Corporal, Company E, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

During an attack, when his platoon encountered enemy wire, Corporal Moore calmly went forward and alone proceeded to cut a passage through the wire. While performing this work, he was subjected to the fercest fire of enemy machine guns and grenades, which wounded over half the platoon. He continued in this work until he accomplished his purpose.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 313th Infantry, 79th Division.

rist neittenant, chapiain, 313th liminity, 9th Division.
Though wounded on Sept. 26, 1918, he remained with the attacking lines of his regiment, ministering to the dying and aiding the wounded. After entering an enemy trench with a group of men, a grenade was thrown in their midst, and, in utter disregard of personal safety, he grabbed the grenade to throw it from the trench. It exploded just after leaving his hand, seriously wounding him in several places.

Private, first class, section No. 554, Ambulance Service. During this period Private Moore evacuated the wounded in an advance post under shell and sniper fire. On the nights of Oct. 6 and 7 he drove an ambulauce to points beyond the advanced posts to carry in the wounded under intense shell and machine-gun fire. He also assisted the litter bearers in exposed positions in earrying the wounded from the lines to the dressing Second licutenant, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.

While courageously leading his section in the face of intense fire near Cutry.
France, on July 18, 1918, he was knocked down by a shell explosion, but continued his leadership as soon as he regained consciousness and personally reconnoitered the area in advance to find a less dangerous route. He succeded and thereby made it possible for his men to go forward, but he himself was killed in the undertaking.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. S. L. Moore.

Sergeant, Company B, 124th Machine Gun Battalion, 31st Division. He led his section of 2 guns to the aid of an Infantry company. Failing in his attempt to establish an advantageous position, he alone took his gun 100 yards in advance of the line, exposed to violent machine-gun and artillery fire, and, setting it up in an open field, silenced the fire of enemy machine-gun gungar with both lower losses and the second sec gun snipers who had been inflicting heavy losses on our troops.

Sergeant, Company H. 112th Infantry, 28th Division.

As 1 of a group which was attacked by an overwhelming force of enemy, Sergeant Moore assisted in the defense of a crossing over the Vesle River and made possible the retirement of about 20 of his comrades. He continued against great odds to hold his position and inflicted heavy casualties upon the enemy, finally retiring under orders, fighting his way through heavy machine-gun, rifle, and artillery fire. His exceptional disregard for personal safety, resourcefulness, and bravery were an inspiration to all his comrades. Sergeant Moore was severely gassed in this fight and died shortly thereafter. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William T. Moore.

Captain, 132d Machine Gun Battalion, 36th Division.
Captain Moore, although wounded by shrappel, refused to go to the rear, and proceeded to reorganize portions of 3 Infantry platoons whose officers had become casualties, thus protecting the right flank of the 141st Infantry. Ho went to the rear only after he had been severely gassed.

Private, Company I, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

During the action of his company at Brancourt, he went out alone and attacked an outpost containing 1 officer and 8 men, capturing the entire party and turning them over as prisoners. On the following day he advanced alone 50 yards in front of his company to attack an enemy sniper who was allowing another the foregraph of the company to attack an enemy sniper who was placing an effective fire on our lines.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
On June 6, 1918, he volunteered and took a truck load of ammunition and material into Bouresches, France, over a road swept by artillery and machinegun fire, thereby relieving a critical situation.

MOORE, WILLIAM E. (1517995) ... Near Heurne, Belgium, Nov. 4, 1918.
R—New Boston, Ohio.
B—Greenup County, Ky.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Mooreland, Thomas Archie (1312068)
Near St. Martin-Riviere, France,
Oct. 17, 1918.
R—Concord, N. C.
B—Henrietta, N. C.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

MOORHEAD, REYNOLDS C.______In the Bois-de-Manheuelles, France, Nov. 9, 1918.
R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1920.

Moorman, Hugh B. (54619)

Near Cantigny, France, May 27, 1918.

R-Sparta, Tenn.

B-Sparta, Tenn.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

MORAN, PATRICK J.... Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15,

Near Thiatcourt, France, 1918.
R—Nashville, Tenn.
B—Louisville, Ky.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

MORAN, RUSSELL (127276)______ Near Somme-Py, France, Oct. 4-5, 1918. R-Utica, N. Y. B-Lowville, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Могенелр, Певвект (106401).... Near Very, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. В—Van Wert, Ohio. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R—Indianola, Ill. B—Indianola, Ill. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

*Morey, Frank C. (2805914)...... Near Forct Venelieres, France, Sept.

13, 1918. R—May, Okla. B—Tucson, Ariz. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Morgan, David R. At Chaudun, France, July 19, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Kingston, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D. 1923.

Private, Company D, 145th Infantry, 37th Division. He displayed exceptional personal bravery when, with 1 other soldier, he went to the assistance of a comrade who had been attacked and wounded by a patrol of 8 Germans, rescuing the wounded man and putting the enemy patrol to flight.

Sergeant, Company B, 55th Infantry, 7th Division.
While leading a patrol in front of our lines, Sergeant Moorefield and his patrol Vhile leading a patrol in front of our lines, Sergeant Moorefield and his patrol came under machine-gun and rifle fire, and 1 of his men was severely wounded. He crawled forward with his patrol until within 20 paces of an enemy gun, when, upon raising his head slightly, he saw the German who was feeding the annumition to the gun. He shot the man through the head with his rifle and wounded another. When the German gun nearest him jammed he captured it and another near by, together with 3 prisoners. He jumped into the emplacement, cleared the jam in the gun, and turned it on the enemy guns on the right, silencing them. He then sent his patrol and the prisoners back into our lines, covering their retreat with 1 of the captured guns. captured guns.

Private, first class, Company K, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
He volunteered to go forward with another soldier to attack a machine-gun emplacement which was holding up a part of our line. Advancing over open ground under heavy fire, these 2 men destroyed the enemy position, capturing 3 prisoners and allowing a resumption of the general advance.

First lieutenant, 324th Infantry, 81st Division. Lieutenant Moorhead exposed himself to terrific fire from 3 directions while assisting Pvt. Thomas M. Moss carry a wounded officer to a place of Sergeant, Company K, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

During an enemy raid on his treuch position Sergeant Moorman was wounded in the arm early in the engagement. He refused to be evacuated and personally directed the defense of the trench. He exposed himself to artillery and rifle fire and killed 3 Germans with his rifle.

Private, 81st Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Passing from 1 gun to another, at all times exposing himself to great danger, carrying ammunition and encouraging his comrades, he showed great devotion to duty. When his company commander had become seriously wounded he left his place of shelter and carried him to a first-aid station.

Private, Battery E, 12th Field Artillery, 2d Division.

During a violent enemy counterbarrage Private Moran, with Pvt. Harley S. Edwards, remained on duty for 14 hours repairing the telephone line from their battery position to the battalion post of command, 250 meters away. Within this period the wires were cut by shellfire more than 20 times, but these 2 soldiers, displaying remarkable coolness and disregard of danger, promptly mended all breaks and maintained constant communication between the battalion and the battery commanders.

Sergeant, Company D, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. He led forward 2 reorganized squads of machine gunners, during an intense shelling, in order to protect an open flank on which a counterattack was imminent. Entirely exposed, he placed his guns in a most effective position, resisting until the enemy had been thrown back, although severely wounded in the combat.

Corporal, 96th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Although he was wounded, he refused to go to the rear, but remained on duty throughout the 2 days' action, during which time he distinguished himself in grenade fighting at close range, organizing the flank of his company and holding it against 3 counterattacks, and killing or capturing all the members of a hostile patrol.

Private, Company M, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
As a battalion runner, he constantly exposed himself during a six-hour bombardment to maintain liaison. After passing repeatedly through the enemy barrage to deliver important messages, he volunteered to accompany or lead a reconnaissance patrol to investigate enemy activities which he had noticed while on his missions of liaison and obtained vanuable information for his commander.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Steven E. Morey.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

While still suffering from a former attack of gas, he was again overcome by gas fumes after 36 hours of work among the wounded men in the front lines and was sent to the dressing station. Refusing to remain away from the front line, he again made his way to the elements in the advanced positions and under intense enemy fire searched for wounded men, applied first aid, and directed their removal to places of shelter. This work he continued until severely wounded and carried from the field. Near Vau 12, 1918. R—High Point, N. C. B—Moore County, N. C. G. O. No. 133, W. D. 1918.

Morgan, Francis M.

During the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Nov. 1-11, 1918.

R.—Ravenswood, W. Va.

B.—New Martinsville, W. Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D. 1919.

MORGAN, GEORGE II. (145668)...... Near Suippes, France, July 15, 1918. R—St. Paul, Minn. B—Sioux City, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MORGAN, HANS E. (2023257) _ Near Sergy, France, Aug. 1, 1918. R—Cherry Grove, Mich. B—Cherry Grove, Mich. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Morgan, John H. (107912)...... Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Vanceburg, Ky. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Morgan, Vern A Near Beaufort, France, Nov. 4, 1918. R—Council Bluffs, Iowa. B—Council Bluffs, Iowa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MORISON, JAMES H. S.
Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, R—Cumberland Gap, Tenn. B—Ewing, Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Camden, N. J. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MORPHEW, JOHN E. (2216646)_ In the offensive against the St. Mihiel salient, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Trousdale, Okla.

B—Gillham, Ark.

G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

MORRIS, CHALMER R. (549979)_ Near Gland, France, June 17, 1918, and near Jaulgonne, France, July 22, 1918.

R—Washington, D. C.

B—Greenville, Ind.
G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

Oct. 30, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Marinette, Wis.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company L, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Private, Company L. Hath Hamery, 30th Division.
While his company was consolidating its position, he crept out in full view of the enemy and took up a position in a shell hole 50 yards from the enemy's lines. He remained there throughout the day without food or water and sniped at and killed 10 of the enemy. His deadly aim kept down the observation from the German lines and enabled his company to carry on the work of consolidation.

First lieutenant, 353d Infantry, 89th Division. Although severely wounded, he maintained command of 2 platoons throughout the offensive, personally leading patrols through occupied enemy territory and breaking up enemy resistance on the flanks, which were holding up the advance of his neighboring units.

Private, Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.
While on duty as a runner, carrying a message to his battery, he fell wounded before reaching his destination, but in spite of suffering severe pain he crawled the remainder of the distance on his hands and knees and delivered the message.

Private, Company B, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.

After all the other members of his automatic-rifle squad had been wounded and evacuated and he himself wounded 3 times, Private Morgan remained at his post, operating his automatic rifle against a machine-gun nest until his supply of ammunition was exhausted. He then turned his rifle over to another squad before being evacuated.

Corporal, Company D, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

All of his superiors having been killed by a nest of machine guns, Corporal Morgan took command of his platoon, and in an extremely difficult attack, wiped out a nest of 5 machine guns. The true name of this soldier is Harry J. Morgan.

First lieutenant, 355th Infantry, 89th Division.

Although he was wounded early in the engagement by shrapnel, Lieutenant Morgan, after receiving first-aid treatment, immediately returned to his company and led it throughout the day. After taking the town of Beaufort he pushed on with his command to its objective through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, 40 per cent of his company becoming casualties.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 117th Infantry, 30th Division. First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 117th Infantry, 30th Division. After being knocked unconscious into a shell hole and, although suffering acutely from the shock, he rejoined his company and continued to care for the wounded in the open and under intense shellfire. His respirator baving been blown away by the exploding shell, this mission was rendered much more precarious by enemy gas shells. He remained at his first-aid station through an intense barrage, which killed several of the stretcher bearers and helpers at this point, evacuating the wounded with great rapidity until he was severely wounded and forced to be evacuated.

Sergeant, Company  $\Lambda$ , 4th Infantry, 3d Division. After his plateon had captured a German fieldpiece in the woods near Mont St. Pere and returned to the town, Sergeant Moritz voluntarily remained hehind with a wounded comrade in a woods infested by enemy snipers, and after nightfall brought the wounded man to a place of safety.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Sick, gassed, and stunned by shells, he remained at his post on duty under heavy fire and bravely assisted in the succoring of soldiers who had been injured, near Vaux, France, July 1, 1918.

Sergeant, Company C, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
This soldier showed utter fearlessness and bravery of a high order throughout the drive. He took 2 machine-gun rests single handed, in both cases killing the gunnersand taking the other members of the crews prisoners. He took 35 prisoners during the first day, entering dugouts alone and disarming the courants. the occupants.

First sergeant, Company C, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
On June 17, after an attempt to cross the Marne in a boat failed, due to its sinking, Sergeant Morris, with 2 others, swam the Marne River, penetrated the German line, and returned with valuable information. On July 22 he advanced in front of the lines through a wood, exposing himself to heavy enemy fire in order to maintain communication with the organization on his Second lieutenant, pilot, 104th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

Unable to complete a photographic mission, owing to motor trouble, Lieutenant Morris, with his observer, made a reconnaissance behind the German lines. They dispersed a battalion of enemy troops, and, although twice attacked by enemy patrols, drove them off and in each case brought down I enemy plane. They remained in the air until their motor failed completely.

Morris, Effingham B., Jr Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27,

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Ardmore, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Morris, Harlan D. (2383980) Near Cunel, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Sulphur Springs, Ind. B—Snyder, Ind. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Morris, Hubert C. (2387689)..... Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Nov.

5, 1918. R—Humboldt, Tenn. B—Bowling Green, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MORRIS, JOHN P. (1243170)

At Les Grands Bois-Chateau-deDiable, France, Aug. 10, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

Morris, Thomas II. (3111287)...... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 30, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Scranton, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Morrison, Hugh J. V. (1211782)_____ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29,

R-Poughkeepsie, N. Y. B-Flatbush, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Captaiu, 313th Infantry, 79th Division.

Leading his battalion in attack, Captain Morris was painfully wounded in the leg, but continued in command during the four days' action that followed. By his persistence in remaining, despite his severe wound, he set an example which contributed largely to the success of the operations.

Sergeant, Company H, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

Advancing under intense artillery and machine-gun fire, Sergeant Morris displayed marked coolness and disregard of danger in personally clearing the right flank of his company of dangerous snipers. In so doing he was severely wounded, but he nevertheless reorganized his detachment and held the position.

Sergeant, Company II, 61st Infantry, 5th Division. Advancing alone, Sergeant Morris attacked a machine-gun nest, capturing the entire crew, and preventing surprise fire on an exposed flank of his company.

Corporal, Company H, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

After his organization had been compelled to retire in the face of a strong enemy attack, he made a reconnaissance of the bed of the Vesle River, and, wading through water shoulder deep, under heavy machine-gun fire, made five trips, carrying wounded from the north bank to a dressing station south of the Private, first class, Company I, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

Although severely wounded in the thigh, he continued to carry messages from the line to battalion headquarters, exposed at all times to terrific machine-gun

Major, 360th Infantry, 90th Division.

During darkness he led his battalion in an attack under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. Upon reaching a hill he exposed himself to heavy fire to reconnoiter personally the enemy position, and then, although wounded by a machine-gun bullet, heroically led his battalion in their advance, refusing to be evacuated, inspiring his men by his personal courage.

Corporal, Company L, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.

On the morning of Sept. 30, 1918, when he volunteered to accompany an officer of his company in the rescue of a wounded man of his battailon who had been on patrol. Proceeding under intense and accurate fire to a point 400 yards beyond his outpost, he met a member of the patrol who stated that the wounded man was about 100 yards farther out and close to the hostile lines. With splendid courage, he proceeded to the point indicated, in company with his officer, being constantly subjected to the heaviest fire, and found the soldier, who had died from his wounds. Returning in safety to his own lines, he exchanged shots with the enemy, 1 of whom he killed.

Private, Company K, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

Private Morrison, with 3 other soldiers, went out into au open field under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in carrying back to our lines 4 seriously wounded men.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
Sergeant Morrison drove a motor cycle through intense artillery fire and assisted in the rescue of a wounded soldier under machine-gun fire, driving back with him under intense bombardment to the dressing station.

Second lieutenant, 322d Field Artillery, 83d Division.
As liaison officer between the Infantry and Artillery he exemplified in the highest degree the spirit of bravery, devotion to duty, and self-sacrifice. He crawled beyond the front line in the face of intense machine-gun and artillery fire, with a telephone strapped on his back, in order to direct the preparatory fire of the Artillery. On the following day he accompanied the advance Infantry battalion in the attack, and under the most difficult circumstances established and maintained hisison with the Artillery. In the faithful performance of these duties this gallant officer lost his life.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Harley J. Morrison.

Second lieutenant, 326th Battalion, Tank Corps. Preceding his tanks on foot, Lieutenant Morrison captured a machine-gun nest. Though he was twice wounded, he continued in action for 2 days thereafter.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Very, France, Sept. 28, 1918, Licutenant Morrison is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: During the attack on Charpentry and the Bois-de-Montrebeau, he led a platoon of 5 tanks, directing his tanks on foot, 400 yards in advance of the Infantry, under intense fire. Three of his tanks were put out of action by artillery fire, but he continued in action with the remaining 2 until dark, when he directed the work of rescuing the crews.

R—Kalamazoo, Mich. B—Comstock, Mich. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Morrison, Otho K. Near Cunel, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Gatesville, Tex. B—Gatesville, Tex. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

MORRISON, WILLIAM L. In the Champagne-Marne offensive, July 16, 1918, and the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Boulder, Colo. B—Boulder, Colo. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Morrow, Howard H. (1285169) ... Near Bois-de-Consenvoye, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Washington, D. C.

B—Baltimore, Md.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Morrow, William M.
At Claire-Chenes, north of Mont-faucon, France, Oct. 20-21, 1918. R.—Algonac, Mich. R—Algonae, Mich.
B—Niles, Mich.
G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.
Distinguished-service medal Also awarded.

MORSE, DANIEL A. (2669942). Service rendered under the name, Daniel Moskowitz.

*MORSE, GUY E. Near Vilcey-sur-Trey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Kansas City, Mo. B—Canada. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

MORSE, WARREN B. (72199) At Epieds, France, July 22–23, 1918. R—Somerville, Mass. B—Somerville, Mass. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923

Morton, Lawrence A. (2339313)..... Near Les Evaux, France, July 10, 1918. R—Jeannette, Pa. B—Jeannette, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Moscow, Lonnie J. (1210233). Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Watertown, N. Y. B—Ogdensburg, N. Y. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company A, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. He displayed marked bravery in repeatedly carrying messages to the front lines over terrain swept by intense artillery and machine-gun fire. Still under heavy fire, he assisted wounded soldiers he found in exposed positions. His heroism was an inspiration to those near him.

First lieutenant, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

Licutenant Morrison displayed exceptional courage and leadership when, being cut off by the enemy with his battalion command and a small detachment from battalion headquarters, he led patrols and drove off enemy machine gumers who had infiltrated to within striking distance of the group. On Nov. 10 he led his company against the fortified heights of Juvigny, driving back the enemy for more than a kilometer.

Captain, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
On July 16, while the members of his patrol acted as a covering detachment he entered an enemy dugout and captured a prisoner, thus securing valuable information. On Čet, 9 he led a combat patrol into the enemy lines and succeeded, under heavy fire, in putting 2 machine guns out of action, thus enabling his own company and one of another regiment to advance.

Private, Company C, 302d Engineers, 77th Division. He and another soldier had become separated from their detachment and were forced to take shelter for 5½ days. He rescued a wounded soldier from exposure to machine-gun and shell fire, and later attacked a machine-gun nest in his direct front. In the attack he killed 2 of the enemy with hand grenades and subsequently returned to our lines, assisting the wounded comrade to safety.

Private, first class, Company F, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. Going forward from his own lines through terrific machine-gun and artillery fire, Private Morrow rescued and brought to safety a wounded comrade. In the action of the next few days he was so severely wounded that he died shortly afterwards. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Grace A. Payne.

Colonel, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. On Oct. 20, 1918, when the Claire-Chenes had been taken by the troops of his command and a hostile counterattack had forced them back over the ground gained in the morning's fighting Colonel Morrow at once took personal command of the battalion engaged in the operations, reorganized it, and with distinguished gallantry and inspiring example, led his men to a victorious counter attack, drove the enemy from the woods, secured its possession, and consolidated it. On Oct. 21 he again displayed the same qualities of leadership and personal gallantry in the successful assault on Hill 299.

Private, Company F, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

Second lieutenant, observer, 135th Aero Squadron, Air Service. He, with First Lieut. Wilbur C. Suiter, pilot, fearlessly volunteered for the perilous mission of locating the enemy's advance unit in the rear of the Hindenburg line. Disregarding the hail of machine-gun fire and bursting antidenburg line. Disregarding the hall of machine-gun fire and bursting anti-aircraft shell, they invaded the enemy's territory at low altitude and accom-plished their mission, securing for our staff information of the greatest impor-tance. These 2 gallant officers at once returned to the lines and undertook another reconnaissance mission, from which they failed to return. Lieu-tenant Morse's body was found and buried by an Artillery unit. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Ernest Morse.

Private, Company E, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
When his organization under heavy fire was forced to retire to rectify the line, it was discovered that several severely wounded men could not be moved, and volunteers were called for to remain with the wounded until reinforcements arrived. The duty involved was deemed almost certain death. With great courage and devotion to his comrades be elected to remain and for several hours cared for the wounded under intense fire; he continued his care, after being badly wounded until evacuated, his splendid courage proving an inspiration to his comrades.

Private, first class, Company II. 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

After being badly wounded, he continued to perform his duties as runner at a relay post on the front line under heavy machine-gun fire.

Corporal, Company C, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

In the attack on the Hindenburg line, Corporal Moscow was an advanced seout for his platoon. The platoon was temporarily halted by machine-gun fire from a section of the enemy trench in their immediate from. Corporal Moscow rushed through the heavy enemy fire to the trench and at the point of his rifle compelled 12 of the enemy to surrender. He then signaled for the platoon to advance.

Moseley, Gaines Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, Near St. Edenic, France 1918. R—Aiken, S. C. B—Aiken, S. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Moseley, James A. Rear Suippes, France, July 15, 1918. R—Glen Ridge, N. J. B—Raleigh, N. C. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*Mosher, Henry E Near Cantigny, France, May 28, Near 1918.

R-Falconer, N. Y. B-Falconer, N. Y. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

MOSKOWITZ, DANIEL (2669942) __ Rear Ronssoy. France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Passaie, N. J. B—Long Island, N. Y. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

Moss, Thomas M. (1859049) In the Bois-de-Manhuelles, France, Nov. 9, 1918.

R—Macon County, N. C. B—Cullasaja, N. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MOTLEY, ROBERT E Near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 31-Aug. 7, and near Verdun, France, Oct. 14-16, 1918. R—Virden, Ill. B—Pittsfield, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D. 1919.

*Mottern, Virgil C. (1330229) Near Mazinghiem, France, Oct. 19,

R—Jonesboro, Tenn. B—Jonesboro, Tenn. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Moyer, Ralph (1635729).... Near Bois-de-St. Remy, Sept. 12, 1918. France,

R-Willard, Kans. B-Argentine, Kans. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

MOYNAHAN, TIMOTHY J ... Near Cierges, France, Sept. 28-30, 1918.

R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Ireland.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. As commander of an assault company, Captain Moseley displayed exceptional courage in carrying his line forward during a heavy artillery and machine-gun barrage.

First lieutenant, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
When 2 others had failed, 1 killed and the other wounded, Lieutenant Moseley left his shelter during a most intense enemy artillery bombardinent, searched for and located a wounded corporal of his platoon, bringing him a distance of more than 400 yards to safety.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Anna Moseley.

Private, Company G, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.
After his company had been forced to withdraw from an advanced position under severe machine-gun and artillery fire he went forward and rescued wounded soldiers, working persistently until all of them had been carried to shelter.

Captain, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

He displayed heroic conduct and utter disregard of his own safety while successfully directing the consolidation and defense of the position taken by his command. After succeeding in the accomplishment of his task he was struck by enemy fire and killed.

Medal presented to father, Stiles Burt Mosher. Posthumously awarded.

Private, Company F, 108th Infantry, 27th Division. He exhibited exceptional bravery by leaving shelter and going out into an open field under heavy machine-gun and shell fire to rescue wounded soldiers.

Private, first class, Company C, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
As a runner he displayed exceptional courage and devotion to duty in frequently volunteering and carrying messages through dangerous zones in addition to his regular duties. Though lame as the result of an accident, he carried a number of inessages through a heavy barrage until he was severely wounded by a bursting shelf. by a bursting shell.

Private, Company I, 324th Infantry, 81st Division.
With utter disregard for personal saftey, he went forward under intense machinegun fire to rescue an officer who had been mortally wounded.

Corporal, Company M, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.

When the enemy was counterattacking, having succeeded in planting machine guns behind a smoke screen, he advanced with utter disregard of personal danger and jumped into an enemy machine-gun next where there were about 15 Germans. Single handed he killed the gunner and loader and engaged the remainder of the Germans until he received help from his platoon.

First lieutenant, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

Relizing the need of medical attention at the front, he went beyond the scope of his duties as dentist by advancing with the Infantry and establishing and maintaining a dressing station with the leading elements of his command. For 7 days, from July 31, to Aug. 7, he safely evacuated many patients by his prompt and fearless action. He again volunteered and went forward in the attack on Oct. 14-16, and on the latter date carried a message back to the supply officer, requesting food for the men. Although wounded and badly gassed, he accomplished his mission, refusing evaucation until the food was started for the lines.

Sergeant, first class, Company C, 105th Field Signal Battalion, 30th Division. He lost his life while personally laying a telephone line over exceedingly dangerous ground, under continuous artillery fire which had caused a great loss among the runners. He attempted the laying of this line in order to give his men a rest in a place of safety.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George P. Mottern.

Private, Company D, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.
Although suffering painfully from a severe shoulder wound, he refused to reveal his condition, but courageously remained on duty until the termination of hostilities, 7 days later.

Private, Company F, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

Although painfully wounded while cutting wires under terrific shellfire, he refused to be evacuated and continued at his work until a lane had been opened and his platoon had passed through. He then joined his platoon and engaged in the battle until he became so weak from his wounds that he had to be sent to the rear.

Lieutenant colonel, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.
Displaying remarkable personal courage and leadership, he personally led his battalion, without support on either flank, through terrific artillery bombardment, in the face of direct machine-gun fire and enfilading fire from 1-pounder guns on the right, capturing his objective on the ridge cast of Cierges and repelling 4 bostile counterattacks.

MOYSE, HERMAN. Near Cierges, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 31, 1918. R—Baton Rouge, La. B—St. Gabriel, La. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

JOSIAH B .. At Frapelle, France, Aug. 17, 1918. R—Lawrence, Kans. B—Manhattan, Kans. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*MUDGETT, BRYAN Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12-13, 1918. R—Carlsbad, N. Mex. B—Odessa, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R-Milwaukee, Wis. B-Austria-Hungary. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Reading, Pa. B-Reading, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service medal also awarded

MULHOLLAND, EMMETT PAUL. Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Fort Dodge, Iowa. B—Gilmore City, Iowa. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MULLIGAN, JAMES J. (368584) Near Bois-de-Ormont, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R-Mount Vernon, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Mullins, Ray H. (544924)... Near Crezancy, France, July 15, R—Peoples, Ky. B—Egypt, Ky. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Mullins, Sam (1995623)______ Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, R—East Alton, Ill. B—Columbus, Miss. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. After advancing through 5 stages of artillery barrage and machine-gun fire, he led a patrol of 5 men forward to capture 2 machine guns which were endangering the success of the operation. Although seriously wounded in the chest and foot by machine-gun fire, he would not consent to being taken to the rear until the guns had been captured.

First lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 5th Division. He displayed notable courage and determination by leading his company to its objective through a heavy enemy barrage of high-explosive gas shells. Although gassed and wounded in the leg by a shell fragment, he remained in command of his company until it was relieved.

Second lieutenant, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
On several occasions, during the advance of Sept. 12, he outmaneuvered enemy machine guns, capturing both guns and crew. On the night of Sept. 12-13 he led a patrol of 2 squads through the German lines, advancing over 1,000 yards to the front of the line of resistance, capturing a German battery, 1 noncommissioned officer, and 7 men. He then fought his way back through the enemy's lines, losing but 1 prisoner before meeting the advancing America.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Zetha De Berry Mudgett.

Private, first class, Company F, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.

Private Mueller, a runner, successfully maintained liaison between his company, which formed the liaison group with another division, and regimental headquarters, promptly carrying numerous messages across an area under heavy fire.

Captain, 314th Infantry, 79th Division.

As regimental adjutant he displayed the utmost disregard for personal danger in assisting his regimental commander in maintaining liaison with the front lines. After being painfully wounded and gassed by a bursting gas shell, this officer refused to be evacuated, but remained on duty, carrying orders to the front line and bringing back valuable information, until he was ordered to the rear.

First lieutenant, 2d Infantry, U. S. Army. At the risk of his life, he voluntarily exposed himself to a heavy hostile artillery and infantry fire in a successful attempt as a sharpshooter to silence a piece of Spanish artillery at the battle of Santiago.

Sergeant, Company G, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

He led his platoon against a machine-gun nest and continued to his objective after heing wounded. He was instrumental in capturing 3 prisoners and 1 machine gun.

Second lieutenant, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.
After having been severely wounded in the leg he continued to direct his men under terrific artillery fire in the attack against 2 enemy machine guns. Due to his initiative and gallantry the enemy position was captured.

First lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.

Lieutenant Mullen on Oct. 14, under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire personally led an attack on enemy machine-gun nests, capturing 3 machine guns and numerous prisoners. On Nov. 7 he attacked and captured an enemy machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his company, taking machine guns and 16 prisoners.

Private, Company I, 114th Infantry, 29th Division.
Private Mulligan volunteered to carry a message from the firing line to the rear over a route commonly known as the "Valley of Death" under heavy machine-gun and shell fire. During the journey he was severely wounded in the thigh and leg, but delivered his message. Instead of waiting for treatment, Private Mulligan hopped and crawled back to the firing line with his

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

After his gun crew had been bombed out of the emplacement by the enemy coming from the rear, Sergeant Mullins continued, with the aid of one man, to fire his gun, even after his hand had been wholly shot off.

Private, Company H, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
When certain units of his company were halted by heavy enemy fire, he was sent to them successively, and displaying marked personal bravery and leadership carried them forward under heavy fire. He led 2 squads forward under heavy fire and flanked a machine-gun emplacement which had blocked his company's advance. In this undertaking he was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Jim W. Mullins.

1918.

R—Uxbridge, Mass. B—Whitinsville, Mass. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

MULTER, WALTON L. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 5, 1918.

R-Kingston, Pa. B-Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MUNCASTER, JOHN H.

Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Charleston, S. C.

B—Canada.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Munro, George N... Near Cunel, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Buena Vista, Ga. B—Buena Vista, Ga. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

July 20-23, 1918. R—Easthampton, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

MUNROE, WILLIAM A. (1303)

Near Sergy, France, July 28 to Aug.

2, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Saginaw, Mich. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

*Murdoch, Robert H.
At Sergy, France, July 29-31, 1918, and at St. Thibaut, France, Aug.

6-12, 1918. R-Wilkes-Barre, Pa. B-Wilkes-Barre, Pa. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

MURNANE, STANLEY T. (914902) ___ RNANE, STANLEY T. (914902)

Near Brieulles, France, Nov. 4-5, 1918.

R—St. Paul, Minn.

B—St. Paul, Minn.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RPHY, ALBERT R. (1243115)... At Fismes and Fismette, France, Aug. 10-13, 1918. R.—Philadelphia, Pa. B.—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

MURPHY, EDWARD (552340)... North of Mezy, France, July 22 1918. R.—New York, N. Y. B.—Ireland. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company D, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. While the 1st Battalion of his regiment was making an attack to regain ground from the enemy in the outpost zone along the Vesle River, Private Mulrain continued to advance when he discovered that 3 enemy machine guns occupied the high ground in front of him. With great courage and utter disregard for his own safety he continued to go forward in the face of concentrated enemy machine-gun fire, thus helping materially to force the enemy to evacuate his machine-gun emplacement, though himself killed by a machine-gun bullet.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Bernard Mulrain.

Private, 75th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He voluntarily went forward for a distance of 800 meters under heavy shellfire and rescued a wounded soldier who had been left there the night before when the advance patrols had been withdrawn.

Major, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.

After the loss of all his company commanders, Major Muncaster advanced at the head of his battalion, leading the men from a very disadvantageous position to the capture of a near-by hill held by the enemy. In the counter-attack which followed he not only commanded the men of his battalion personally, but assisted in the defense of the position.

Captain, 5th Train Headquarters and Military Police, 5th Division.
Organizing a company composed of men who had become separated from their own organizations, Captain Munro led them with exceptional skill and bravery in an attack, materially aiding in the advance. In the course of the assault this officer was killed by machine-gun fire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. George P. Munro.

Private, Company K, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. Private Munroe, acting as a runner, carried messages through heavy artillery fire with absolute featlessness until killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Dolina F. Munroe.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
He voluntarily left his aid station and went to the field of action to deliver first aid to men in the most advanced positions. He tended the wounded under the most intense machine-gun and shell fire, and successfully carried a large number to places of comparative safety. His courage and cheerfulness under such hazardous circumstances did much to keep up the spirits of both the wounded whom he served and the men fighting in that vicinity.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 47th Infantry, 4th Division. Accompanying his battalion in the attack on Sergy, he advanced for more than a mile under heavy shellfire, and as soon as the southern half of the town had been taken he established his dressing station, maintaining it during the 3 days of fighting under constant and severe bombardment. When his battalion went into action at St. Thibaut this faithful officer again displayed heroic devotion to duty by working in his dressing station under the most trying conditions for 6 days while the town was bombarded with gas and high-explosive shells. high-explosive shells.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. N. Ophelia Murdock.

Private, Company D, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.

When 3 of the boats supporting a pontoon bridge across the Meuse River were destroyed by artillery fire, he voluntarily waded into the stream under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and held up the deck of the bridge until new boats were launched and placed into position.

Private, medical detachment, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

He volunteered to rescue 5 wounded men who had become detached from their company and were unable to rejoin it because of their injuries. By fearlessly passing back and forth through enemy fire he succeeded in this undertaking.

Private, Company L, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Private Murphy advanced ahead of his platoon exposed to heavy machinegun and trench-mortar fire and attacked 2 enemy gunners who were operating a trench mortar. He killed 1 and forced the other to flee. His action enabled his platoon to continue its advance with slight loss.

Corporal, Company D, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
When his platoon was nearly surrounded by a superior force of the enemy, he held off the enemy by his rifle fire until his comrades could withdraw, he himself being severely wounded while covering their retreat.

R—East livington, N. Y. B—Hastings, N. Y. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Murphy, James A. (52663)

In front of Mount Sec, northwest of Toul, France, Mar. 19, 1918.

R—Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.

B—Detroit, Mich.

G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

MURPHY, JAMES J. (1706791)
In the Forest of Argonne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Murphy, John D.
Near Epieds, France, July 22, 1918.
R.—Natick, Mass.
B.—Natick, Mass.
G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1925.

1918.
R—Detroit, Mich.
B—Detroit, Mich.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

MURPHY, JOHN J. (141498) Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 31, 1918. R—Bntte, Mont.

B—England.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Микрич, Јонн Р. (1210234)... Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R.—New York, N. Y. B.—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

MURPHY, MICHAEL S. (1203546) ...... East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Cohoes, N. Y. B—Cohoes, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

MURPHY, RAY E. (143488)_______ Near Sommerance, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Bedford, Ind. B—Indiana. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—New Britain, Conn. B—New Britain, Conn. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

MURPHY, WILLIAM (88887)
Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July
29, 1918.
R-New York, N. Y.
B-New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

*Murphy, William M. (1285586) _____ Near Verdun, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
Although wounded in the shoulder by a shell fragment on the morning of July 23, he continued to care for the wounded of his company. When sent to the rear for treatment, he refused to be evacuated but returned to his company.
This exertion caused his collapse.

Sergeant, Company B, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
With his patrol leader he cut and crawled through 12 strands of wire in front of an enemy listening post, and with coolness and nerve killed 1 of the sentinels who was firing at the patrol leader.

Corporal, Company K, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.
While his company, with 2 battalions of the 308th Infantry, were surrounded by the enemy in the Forest of Argonne, Corporal Murphy rushed through a severe machine-gun and shellfire for a distance of 75 yards and carried a severely wounded comrade to a place of safety.

Major, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division.
Major Murphy led a small daylight patrol to reconnoiter the enemy's outpost line. Encountering machine-gun fire, he sheltered his patrol and alone went forward in the face of continuous fire to reconnoiter the town of Epieds. Assuring himself of the strength of the enemy, he returned over the same route, reporting to his brigade headquarters information of the greatest value.

First lieutenant, 356th Infantry, 89th Division.
Lieutenant Murphy and 4 soldiers flanked a machine-gun nest of 3 guns, only to be fired on directly at 30 yards. Charging the guns, they met hand to-hand resistance, but repulsed the enemy, capturing the guns. Lieutenant Murphy was wounded twice, and 3 of his men were killed.

Private, first class, Battery F, 148th Field Artillery.
Private Murphy displayed a remarkable example of heroism by carrying 2 wounded men from the gun pit after being seriously wounded himself, when a German shell exploded within a few fect of the piece which was being loaded, setting fire to several boxes of powder and to the eamouflage covering of the pit. After carrying the wounded men to safety, he returned to the pit, closed the breech of the piece, verified its laying, and fired it, preventing what probably would have been a very serious explosion. He was quickly carried to the aid station, where it was found that he had suffered serious burns from the terrific heat, besides being wounded in several places by shell fragments.

Corporal, Company C, 107th Infantry, 27th Division. Corporal Murphy exposed himself to heavy machine-gun and rifle fire to rescue a wounded man who lay in front of our lines. By grawling from shell hole to shell hole he was able to accomplish the rescue in spite of the heavy enemy fire.

Private, Company B, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line he left shelter, went forward under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, and succeeded in rescuing a wounded soldier, thereby exhibiting great bravery and gallantry. In performing this act he was wounded.

Sergeant, Battery Λ, 150th Field Artillery, 42d Division.
When the powder dump near his gun was blown up by enemy fire and the fuse boxes were on fire, Sergeant Murphy, regardless of personal danger from an explosion, went into the fire, extinguishing it. He thereby saved his gun from becoming unserviceable and kept it in action.

Sergeant, Company I, 64th Infantry, 7th Division.
Sergeant Murphy went forward to the aid of a wounded comrade who was lying about 125 feet in front of the enemy's firing line. Under direct fire of rifles, machine guns, and artillery he applied first aid and took the man back into our trenches to a place of safety.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
As a company runner he repeatedly crossed open ground swept by rifle and machine-gun fire. He volunteered to carry messages out of turn, and though longer and safer routes were often available, he chose the shortest, exposing himself continually to expedite the delivery of important messages. He displayed equal bravery in subsequent operations. When his platoon leader was mortally wounded he organized a carrying party to take the officer back to the dressing station through heavy shellfire.

Private, Company H, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. In the Bois Consenvoye, east of the Meuse River, when his platoon was stopped he voluntarily advanced in the face of direct machine-gun fire and was killed. His gallant conduct was a great inspiration to his comrades, who, following his example, captured the machine-gun nest, approximately 100 prisoners, and several machine guns.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Estelle Schmeiger.

MURRAY, CHARLES I .... During the advance upon Bouresches, France, June 6, 1918.

R—Sewickley, Pa.

B—Sewickley, Pa.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

R—Columbia, S. C. B—Saint George, S. C. G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1918.

Murray, James A (89435) Near Meurcy Ferme, France, July 30, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

*Murray, Kenneth P. Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R-Mt. Vernon, N. Y. B-Mt. Vernon, N. Y. G. O. No 27, W. D., 1920.

MURRAY, ROBINSON.
Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918,
R—Cambridge, Mass.
B—Boston, Mass.
G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

Murray, Wilfred L. (125709)

Near Fleville, France, Oct. 6, 1918.

R—Warren, Ill.

B—Winslow, Ill.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Knoxville, Tenn. B—Ogden, Utah. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Muse, Ezra M. (553231) At Chateau-Thierry, France, May 31, to June 4, 1918.

R—New Brookland, S. C.

B—Nelson, S. C.

G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

*Mutic, Eli (94961). Near Sedan, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Hungary. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Myers, Claude B. (46730)

Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4 to 11, 1918, and south of Sedan, Nov.
5 to 7, 1918.

B.—Fargo, N. Dak.
B.—Fargo, N. Dak.
G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

Myers, Demarr E. Near Bayonville, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Steubenville, Ohio. B—Steubenville, Ohio. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He displayed conspicuous bravery and efficiency during the advance upon Bouresches, France, on the night of June 6, 1918. Having been shot through both arms by machine-gun fire and being no longer able to advance, he refused assistance and walked to the rear alone.

First lieutenant, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.

Throughout the 5 days of battle, near Soissons, France, July 18–22, 1918, his conduct was marked by exceptional initiative and bravery. He organized Infantry and machine-gun units and voluntarily led them in successful attacks against enemy machine-gun nests.

Private, Company B, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

While on duty as a runner, he repeatedly crossed a field swept by heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire. Although wounded by enemy fire he continued on his hazardous duty. Discovering 5 severely wounded men lying exposed to terrific fire he bravely made his way to them, dragged 2 of the men to safety and assisted others in resetting the 3 remaining men. He was again wounded while so engaged and was carried from the field. The bravery and devotion to duty displayed by Private Murray greatly strengthaged the morelle of the men of his battelian. ened the morale of the men of his battalion.

First lieutenant, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Lieutenant Murray led his platoou in flank attack against a superior attacking force of the enemy. His fearlessness when exposed to great danger sustained the morale of his men. He continued in this attack until all but 3 of his men were killed or wounded. His conduct was an important contributing item to holding of the position against the repeated onslaughts of the enemy. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. P. J. Murray.

First lieutenant, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. Lieutenant Murray alone attacked an enemy observation post held by 10 of the enemy. He later organized a detachment of scattered men and filled a gap in our lines.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division.
Corporal Murray voluntarily went forward and made his way to the enemy front lines to locate hostile artillery firing at short range on our batteries.
While on this mission he rescued a wounded comrade and carried him to safety.

First lieutenant, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. Lieutenant Murrian, acting as regimental intelligence officer, went out with another officer and 9 soldiers to establish an advance outpost. Near the front line they were caught in a German barrage; both officers were wounded, 2 soldiers killed and 4 wounded. As soon as he regained consciousness, he gave first aid to the other wounded, and then proceeded with a sergeant to establish the advance post and communication by telephone with the regimental post of command.

Sergeant, Company B, 7th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
While commanding a machine gun in a building which had been struck 3 times, he remained at his post, though told he might leave, because he had a better field of fire from this building than could be obtained elsewhere.

Private, Company K, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

Private Mutic was a member of a patrol sent out to silence machine-gun nests which were holding up the battalion's advance. When the officer leading the patrol fell, mortally wounded, he attempted to go to the officer's assistance, despite heavy fire from machine guns only 100 yeards away, and was himself killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to cousin, Mrs. Stella Walker.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

At Vaux, July 1, 1918, established under heavy shell fire an advance dressing station for the treatment and evacuation of men wounded in the first waves of the assault.

Sergeant, Company D, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the operations of Oct. 4 to 11, 1918, Sergeant Myers carried messages through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. During the operations of Nov. 5 to 7, 1918, he was in command of the platoon which maintained liaison between the First and Second Brigades. While performing this duty he single-handed captured 2 enemy prisoners.

Private, 82d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Exposing himself to enemy fire, Private Myers, with another soldier, courageously advanced ahead of their platoon and captured 5 machine guns and 14 prisoners.

MYERS, IRWIN (1375647) ___ Near Romange, France, Oct. 30, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Humphrey, Nebr. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

MYERS, LOUIS W. (554137)______ Near Le Rocq, France, July 14-15, 1918. R-Fort Worth, Tex. B-Waco, Tex. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

MYERS, OSCAR B.
Near Cierges, France, Sept. 28, 1918.
R.—Mount Vernon, N. Y.
B.—Mount Vernon, N. Y.
G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

MYERS, WILLIAM R. (1449934)

Near Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Lawrence, Kans.

B—Carbondale, Kans.

G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

B-Sweden. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

MYHRUM, MELVIN (2152651)
Near Brieulles, France, Oct. 7, 1918.
R—Fosston, Minn.
B—Fosston, Minn.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Mzik, Charles (1519493)... Near Eyne, Belgium, Nov. 2, 1918. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

NACHTMANN, LUDWIG J. (1784830)____ Near Damvillers, France, Nov. 9, _ 1918. R—Bustleton, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

NAEGLE, HANS MAURICE. Villemontry, France, Nov. 10, Near 1918. R—Toquerville, Utah. B—Moroni, Utah. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

NAGAZYNA, JOHN JAMES_____

In the attack on Tigny, France, July 19, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Cohoes, N. Y. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

Private, first class, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

When the advance of his company had been stopped by machine-gun fire, Private Myers, alone and on his own initiative, advanced into the fog under intense fire, and, with a total disregard for personal safety, captured the gun and its entire crew.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division. Facing heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, he crawled beyond the Infantry front lines to a crest overlooking the enemy position. Working under continuous fire, he made a panoramic sketch of hostile positions, which proved of great value in directing our Artillery fire.

Corporal, Company D, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. He repeatedly exposed himself to the terrific enemy shell fire in carrying messages and rendering first aid to the wounded.

First Lieutenant, 147th Aero Squadron, Air Service. Sent on a particularly hazardous mission, he harassed and routed enemy troops. He then climbed higher to look for German planes. With two other officers, he encountered 9 Fokkers, protecting a reconnaissance machine, flying in one of the most effective formations used by the enemy. Outmaneuvering the hostile planes, the 3 officers succeeded in routing them. After a quick turn, he dived at the reconnaissance machine and crashed it to the Sergeant, medical detachment, 137th Infantry, 35th Division.

Early on the morning of September 28, Sergeant Myers was wounded in the shoulder by a machine-gun bullet. In spite of his wound he continued, under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, to render first aid to the wounded until wounded a second time by a shell fragment.

aptain, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division. While his battery position was being heavily shelled by the enemy artillery, Captain Myhrman remained constantly with his men, ordering them to safety and caring for a wounded man. After his battery had been placed in position he conducted his own reconnaissance and prepared his own firing data, with no regard for the danger to which he was exposed from heavy enemy shell fire.

Private, Company K, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

The patrol of which Private Myhrum was a member was under constant and exacting machine-gun and rifle fire. After the officer in charge had been wounded and the patrol scattered he returned to his company and voluntarily acted as guide for stretcher bearers to bring in the wounded officer. Being unable to locate him, Private Myhrum remained and searched, during which time he was twice wounded. He led a second group of stretcher bearers to the spot where the officer was finally located, and then assisted in carrying him to the rear before reporting for treatment. carrying him to the rear before reporting for treatment.

Corporal, Company K, 145th Infantry, 37th Division.

In full view of the enemy and under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire Corporal Mzik, with 2 other men, swam the Escaut River and assisted in the construction of a footbridge. The construction of this bridge aided materially in the later successful operations of American troops in this vicinity. Corporal Mzik was killed in the performance of this act.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Nettie Bagavia.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. Although seriously wounded, he remained at his post and continued to direct the fire from his section under heavy shellfire until carried away by first-aid men.

First sergeant, Company F, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. Sergeant Nadeau remained on duty throughout the battle of the Marne, July 15-19, although seriously wounded, and rendered valuable assistance in sustaining the morale and managing the troops in the line.

Private, 17th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Private Naegle and a companion went out ahead of the line and silenced a machine gun which threatened to hold up the advance of his company.

Gunnery sergeant, 96th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

During a critical time in the assault against Tigny, when his company had suffered heavy losses, he set such an example of personal bravery and determination as to inspire his men to success. At a time when it seemed impossible to advance any farther his fearlessness in moving up and down his lines to steady his men encouraged them to go forward against heavy odds and take and hold their objective.

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. Rear Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918. NAGOWSKI, ALOIZY (1215123).

R—Cleburne, Tex. B—Cleburne, Tex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

NAIMAN, HERMAN A. (2716) Near Soissons, France, July 18-20,

R—Gilead, Nebr. B—Gilead, Nebr. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*NALLE, JAMES B. At La Tuilerie Farm, France, July 22-23, 1918. 22-23, 1916.

R—Washington, D. C.

B—Albemarle County, Va.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

NAREWOUCHEK, TROFEM (2338824).... Near Mont St. Pere, France, July 22, 1918. R.—Philadelphia, Pa.

B-Russia.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Narveson, Palmer O. (2157848)..... Near Bellicout, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R.—Twin Lakes, Minn. B.—Twin Lakes, Minn. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

NASH, ARCHIE C. (198956)... Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Nation, James (1629729)
On Hill 272, near Fleville, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R.—Duncan, Ariz.
B.—Thatcher, Ariz.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

*NAUGHTON, FRANCIS X. (1246140) . In the Argonne sector, France, Oct. 1, 1918. R—Harrisburg, Pa. B—Harrisburg, Pa. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

NAY, ORIN E. (181321) Near Bethincourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Kansas City, Mo. B—Wheeling, Mo. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

NEAL, GEORGE W. (181165) . Near Bethincourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Bulger, Pa. B—Bulger, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company H, 108th Infantry, 27th Division. He left shelter, went forward under intense machine-gun fire, and carried a wounded officer to a place of safety. In accomplishing this mission he was severely wounded.

Sergeant, Company L, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
Sergeant Nail, in charge of a patrol, successfully flanked a machine-gun nest of several guns which was holding up the advance of his company and captured four German officers and 108 men. The success of the assault was largely due to the energy and good judgment of Sergeant Nail.

Private, medical detachment, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

He displayed unusual courage and devotion to duty by remaining with the first wave of the attack during the 3 days of severe fighting and continuing under constant and heavy fire to give first aid to the wounded and assisting in the rescue of injured men.

Major, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
While making an inspection of the 2 leading battalions of the regiment on the night of July 22, 1918, Major Nalle entered La Tuilerie Farm and found it occupied. As his party was leaving the farm persons were heard approaching, and, fearing that his men might fire upon friendly troops, he stepped from behind the wall and challenged the party. He was immediately fired upon and killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Gladys F. Nalle.

Sergeant, Company F, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Leaving his place of safety, he made his way across an open field exposed to machine-gun fire and assisted in the rescue of 3 wounded comrades.

Sergeant, Company II, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
When he and 2 soldiers, separated from the rest of the company, were fired upon from 3 directions he attacked and demolished a machine-gun nest by himself and then reduced a second hostile position. Though wounded and slightly gassed, he refused to be evacuated and continued the advance.

Private, first class, Headquarters Company, 102d Infantry, 26th Division He displayed remarkable coolness and courage under violent bombardment when he voluntarily repaired telephone lines and rendered great assistance in maintaining communication. Although wounded, he continued his work until ordered evacuated by his commanding officer.

Private, Company K, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
While his company was attacked by greatly superior numbers of the enemy Private Nash continued to operate his automatic rifle, even after having been wounded 3 times in the chest. After the attacking force had been driven off he refused the use of a litter in favor of a comrade whom he thought more seriously wounded than himself.

Private, Company C, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
The squad of which Private Nation was a member was directed to attack an enemy machine-gun position. During the attack all the other members of the squad were killed or wounded. He alone rushed the position, captured the gun, and killed 4 of the crew.

Private, sanitary detachment, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
While mess was being served a shell exploded, killing 9 men and wounding
20. Private Naughton, although severely wounded in the chest with shell splinters, I leg blown nearly off, and bleeding badly, refused help until the others had been attended to. Skilled in first aid, he instructed others how to adjust a tourniquet and rendered other assistance to the wounded, finally permitting his own wounds, which subsequently caused his death, to be attended after all others were cared for.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Timothy Naughton.

Corporal, Company A, 1st Gas Regiment.

Voluntarily leaving shelter, Corporal Nay and another soldier made their way, through terrific enemy barrage of artillery and machine-gun fire, to the aid of wounded comrades, carrying them to first-aid stations and administering treatment.

Sergeant, first class, Company A, 1st Gas Regiment.
Voluntarily leaving shelter, Sergeant Neal and another soldier made their way through a terrific enemy barrage of artillery and machine-gun fire to the aid of wounded comrades, carrying them to first-aid stations and administering treatment.

Nealls, John J. (1200903).

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Avoca, Pa.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

NEEL, ROLAND H .....

East of Saint-Die, France, Aug. 17,

1918. R-Macon, Ga. B-Macon, Ga. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Neelon, Raymond V. (1658251)..... Near Imecourt, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R-Medway, Mass. B-Medway, Mass. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

NEELY, JAMES (2705815) _. Near Cicrges, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

NEESE, HARRY L. (1305811) Near Premont, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Swansea, S. C. B— Swansea, S. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

NEIBLING, HARLOU P. At Browville, France, Sept. 2, 1918, and near Fort du Marr, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—Minneapolis, Minn.
B—Huron, S. Dak.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

NEIGGEMANN, HENRY J. (2852568) During the St. Mihiel offensive, Sept.

14, 1918.

R—Streator, Ill.

B—Streator, Ill.

G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

R—Santa Barbara, Calif. B—Holden, Minn. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Neill, Henry Wheaton...
At Frapelle, France, Aug. 19, 1918.
R-White Springs, Fla.
B-Greenville, S. C.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

5, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company C, 102d Field Signal Battalion, 27th Division.

During the operations against the Hindenburg line he, while in charge of telephone communication between battalion headquarters and forward positions, pnone communication between natitation neadquarters and forward positions, accompanied the advancing Infantry forward, established his advance post, where I of his assistants was killed by shellfire and he himself wounded, and under constant bombardment kept the telephone lines in operation, remaining at his post for 9 hours, until wounded a second time. When completely exhausted he turned over his apparatus to the man sent to relieve him. His extreme gallantry, courage, and bravery afforded a magnificent example to the combat troops who witnessed it.

Second lieutenant, Coast Artillery Corps, observer, 99th Aero Squadron, Air

Service.
Licutenant Llewellyn acting as pilot, and Licutenant Neel acting as observer, carried on successful liaison with the Infantry during the attack on Frapelle.
They fiew over the enemy lines at an altitude of only 400 meters, firing on and disconcerting the enemy, and thereby giving courage and confidence to the American forces. Despite heavy fire from 15 antiaircraft machine guns and several batteries of antiaircraft artillery they performed their work efficiently. Their airplane was struck by a number of machine-gun bullets, laft which out the yudder and elevater control wires and caused the judder. efficiently. Their airplane was struck by a number of machine-gun bullets, 1 of which cut the rudder and elevator control wires and caused the rudder to jam. The broken control wire was held and operated by Lieutenant Neel, under direction of Lieutenant Llewellyn. Running the machine together in this manner they continued their liaison work until the plane began to become unmanageable, when, in spite of its damaged condition, they brought it back to their airdrome.

Sergeant, Company F, 319th Infantry, 80th Division.

Taking command of 2 platoons after their commanders had become casualties, be attacked a machine-gun nest, taking 2 guns and 146 prisoners. Later, after repulsing 2 strong counterattacks, he alone crawled out and captured a prisoner with a machine gun, which he at once set up to strengthen his position.

Private, Company F, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.

After his platoon had withdrawn about 50 yards to an established line, a wounded conrade was seen lying ahead in the position which they formerly occupied. The enemy had just launched a strong counteratack, but Private Neely, with another soldier, volunteered to go to the assistance of the wounded man. In the face of terrific fire of enemy artillery and machine guns and the fire of their own comrades, who were resisting the attack, Private Neely succeeded in bringing his man to a place of safety.

Private, Company C, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

When the advance of his company was held up by a machine-gun emplacement, he went forward with 2 other soldiers and attacked the enemy position. He shot both of the enemy gunners, showing marked personal bravery under

First lieutenant, Field Artillery, attached to 2d Balloon Squadron, Air Service. While Lieutenant Neibling was making an aerial reconnaissance from a balloon he was repeatedly attacked by enemy planes, 2 of which dived at the balloon and opened fire with incendiary bullots. With great coolness he fired at 1 of them with his pistol and took a picture of the plane with his camera. When the balloon took fire, he was forced to jump, but he took 2 more pictures on the way down in spite of being fired upon. He reascended as soon as a new balloon could be inflated. On September 26 this officer was again attacked while conducting a reglage, but, hanging from the basket with one arm, he fired his pistol at one of the enemy planes, and jumped only when his balloon burst into flames. He immediately continued his mission in another balloon. his mission in another balloon.

Corporal, Company D, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.
Corporal Neiggemann, with 4 other men, voluntered to cross a valley to the woods opposite and silence machine guns which had held up the advance of his company. In the face of heavy enemy fire this small group accomplished its mission, thus enabling the company to cross the valley without further loss. Corporal Neiggemann was severely wounded in the performance of Corporal, Company A, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps.

After aiding in rescuing the wounded from his tank, which had been struck by a shell, Corporal Neil, with Pvt. Robert F. Wisher, dismounted machine guns from the tank and operated them against the enemy until these were put out of action. They then secured rides and hand grenades and organized the company tracks which they activated at his dark with the company tracks and the second control of actions. an attack on the enemy trenches, which they captured and held until depletion of their numbers forced them to fall back. Later they joined Australian troops and fought with them throughout the remainder of the day.

Second lieutenant, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.

He displayed great courage, tenacity, and devotion to duty when, although severely wounded early in the attack and suffering great pain, he retained command of his platoon and directed its movements until its objective was

Corporal, Company L, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

In the face of heavy machine-gun and grenade fire he went forward, with 3 other soldiers, and brought back 5 seriously wounded men to a point where they could be given first-aid treatment. He showed bravery and coolness in effecting the rescue, in which he was himself wounded.

1918.

R-Wheeler, Kans. B-St. Francis, Kans. G. O. No. 21, W. D. 1919.

NELSEN, ADOLPH (2152402)

Near Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug.
9, 1918.

R—Soldier, Iowa. B—Soldier, Iowa. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

°NELSON, ARTHUE E. (198200)..... Near Vaux, France, July 1, 1918. R—Albert Lea, Minn. B—Kenosha, Wis. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

NELSON, BERNARD (100595) ... Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Centerville, Iowa. B—Centerville, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Flat City, Alaska.
B—Denmark.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

10, 1918. R—Greenriver, Utah. B—Thistle, Utah. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

Nelson, Herbert W. (1896562) Near Xon Hill, France, Sept. 13, 1918. R—Alton, R. I. B—Providence, R. I. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Milton, N. Dak. B—Roseau, Minn.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

*Nelson, Oscar B At La Tuilerie Farm, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R-Ottumwa, Iowa.

B-Sweden. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company M, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
In an attack on Cote Dame Marie the 126th Infantry was held up, owing to intense enemy machine-gun fire. Private Neitzel volunteered as a member of a combat patrol which cut through the enemy lines, captured 10 machine guns, killed and captured 15 of the enemy, and forced a large number to surrender, clearing that part of the Cote Dame Marie of the enemy, thus enabling the regiment to continue their advance.

Private, Company II, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

Although severely wounded, he, on his own initiative, went out in advance of his lines, armed with an automatic rifle, and mopped up a machine-gun nest in which there were 3 guns. He killed 4 of the enemy crew and brought the other 2 Germans back as prisoners. He set an example of heroism and devotion to duty, performing this service under heavy artillery and machinegun fire.

Sergeant, first class, Company C, 1st Field Signal Battalion, 2d Division. Under heavy bombardment, while sick, he went to maintain communication with an attacking battalion of the Infantry and was killed in this heroic action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James C. Nelson.

Sergeant, Company D, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

During the attack on Hill 288, when the assault wave was held up by machinegun fire, Sergeant Nelson volunteered and led 2 squads to silence these guns. He cut his way through strong barbed-wire entanglements, advanced up a very steep slope in the face of direct machine-gun fire, entered the trench, and killed or wounded the entire crews of the 2 guns, making it possible for the battalion to advance.

Second lieutenant, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
Lieutenant Nelson led 8 soldiers in an attack on a machine gun that was inflicting severe losses in his company. Two of his detachment were killed and 2 wounded before he reached the machine gun nest; with the remaining 4 he attacked, captured the gun, killed 5 Germans, including 1 officer, and took 11 prisoners.

Private, Company F, 1st Gas Regiment.

Displaying remarkable perseverance and daring, Private Nelson, a runner, made his way 300 yards through a heavy barrage with a message for the commander of a Stokes nortar platoon. Later he volunteered to lead 4 wounded men back through the barrage to an aid station. On the way he met 3 other wounded soldiers, 1 of whom had been severely gassed and was unable to walk. Private Nelson earried this man to the dressing station, knowing that his clothes were saturated with mustard gas.

Corporal, Company A, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
When his platoon was held up by machine-gun fire from the front Corporal Nelson, with I other, advanced in front of the line and captured the gun with its crew. Their action enabled his platoon to continue the advance.

Private, Company F, 1st Gas Regiment.
He volunteered, with another soldier, to attack a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance. They advanced against very heavy machine-gun fire and captured the position, killing 2 Germans and routing the remainder of the gun crew.

Private, first class, Company C, 320th Machine Gun Battalion, 82d Division. In the face of heavy machine-gun and shellfire he went abead of his own lines and, with the aid of another soldier, carried back a wounded infantryman, who had fallen far in advance of our lines while on a patrol. Private Nelson displayed marked personal bravery and coolness under fire.

Corporal, Company H, 58th Infantry, 4th Division.

On the morning of the 18th, Corporal Nelson was wounded in the hip by a piece of shrapnel. A few hours later he was wounded in the arm by a bullet. He refused to be evacuated, but continued forward in the attack. On the 19th he was wounded in the left knee. Inspite of his wounds this noncommissioned officer continued with his organization throughout the campaign.

First lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.
Lieutenant Nelson alone attacked 2 enemy machine guns, killing 2 of the enemy and capturing 19.
Oak-leaf cluster.
Lieutenant Nelson is awarded a bronze oak leaf for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action at La Tuilerie Farm, France, Oct. 16, 1918:
Accompanied by 6 soldiers, this officer advanced 600 yards beyond his own lines through heavy fire from enemy artillery, machine guns, and rifles, and captured 2 more machine guns, killing, capturing, or dispersing their crews. Still later in the day he led his company in an attack on Chatillon Hill and took his objective, but in so doing received wounds which caused his death. His coolness, courage, and utter disregard for his own safety were a source of great inspiration to his men.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Jacob Nelson.

*Nelson, Severt J. (2384980) Near Cunel, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Ellsworth, Iowa. B—Morris, III. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

*NESSELSON, NATE T. (1247301)_ Rear Fismes, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R—Bradford, Pa. B—Bradford, Pa. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

NETTE, WILLIAM J. (1217198) Near Montzeville, France, Sept. 14, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Neuberger, Harry H.
At Courbon, France, July 14-15, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—Far Rockaway, N. Y.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

NEVINS, CHESTER D. (96887) Near Sergy, France, July 28, 1918. R—Moundville, Ala. B—Moundville, Ala. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*NEWBOLD, CLINTON V. P Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Akron, Ohio.
B—Norwood, Pa.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Newcomer, Francis K.
Near Fismes, France, Aug. 5, 1918.
R—Pittsburgh, Pa.
B—Byron, Ill.
G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

Newell, Alexander (551266)

Near Chateau-Thierry, France,
July 15, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Newhall, Stephen K. (378126) Near Bois-de-Etrayes, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Billerica, Mass. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Newlin, Elmer L. (1243678)
At Fismette, France, Aug. 10, 1918.
R-Chester, Pa.
B-Trainer, Pa.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

1, 1918, R—White Hall, Ill. B—Roodhouse, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company M, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

Leading his platoon in the face of murderous machine-gun fire from his front and flanks, Sergeant Nelson reached his objective after taking 4 enemy machine-gun nests and killing and capturing many prisoners. He then continued ahead of his men, and alone cleaned out some houses in the woods, which we received but he many transfer.

which were occupied by the enemy.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Andrew M. Nelson.

Second lieutenant, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

When the right platoon of his company was held up by machine-gun fire, Lieutenant Nelson, alone and in the face of direct fire, attacked the guncrew, killing the gunner and capturing 2 prisoners. After reaching his objective he was wounded but refused to be evacuated and continued to direct the operations of his company. When an enemy counterattack forced a withdrawal of his company, he ordered the men who were assisting him to the rear to leave him. He later died of wounds.

Posthurantly awarded Medal presented to mother. Mrs. Theodora Nelson

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Theodore Nelson.

Private, first class, Company C, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
Private Nesselson repeatedly exposed himself to heavy enemy fire in order to deliver messages from his company to the battallon commander. In the performance of this mission it as necessary for him to cross the Vesle River, which was constantly swept by enough machine-gun fire. He volunteered to carry a message after others had been killed in the attempt and continued to perform this perilous duty until he was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, M. Nesselson.

Private, first class, Battery B, 104th Field Artillery, 27th Division. When a continuous bombardment had set fire to the camouflage covering of a large ammunition dump of 75-millimeter shells and exploded 9 of the shells, he, utterly disregarding his personal safety, left a sheltered position and ran to the dump and, with the aid of 3 other men, extinguished the fire, not only saving the ammunition but also preventing the exact locating of the dump by the enemy.

First lieutenant, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division. He volunteered and assisted another officer in driving an ambulance, making 3 trips to Greves Farm under the most intense shell fire. He continued to assist in the evacuation of the wounded even after being gassed.

Sergeant, Company F, 167th Infantry, 42d Division. Crossing 500 yards of ground swept by intense machine-gun and artillery fire, he went to the rescue of a wounded soldier. He carried the wounded man back to our lines, inspiring by his example all who saw his heroic act.

First lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

After the loss of many of his men and in the face of machine-gun fire, near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he led and directed his command to successful attack, although he himself was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. C. V. P. Newbold.

Lieutenant colonel, 4th Engineers, 4th Division.
He made a reconnaissance along the south bank of the Vesle River in advance of the front lines for the purpose of selecting a bridge site. He then led a small party of Engineers, assisting in the work of removing the German entanglements and constructing a footbridge across the Vcslc River, completing this work in the face of fire of great intensity. His coolness and personal bravery afforded an inspiring example to the men of his command.

Private, Company G, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Leading a squad of 9 men, he fearlessly passed through an enemy barrage, captured 5 machine guns and 33 prisoners, and recovered a sergeant of his company who was helpless from wounds, all under violent artillery fire, near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 15, 1918.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 113th Infantry, 29th Division. After being scriously wounded, Private Newhall volunteered and carried a message through a heavy barrage to his company commander. He refused to be evacuated until his message had been delivered to the proper officer.

Private, Company C, Illth Infantry, 28th Division.
Having heard that 2 wounded comrades were lying in advance of the line immediately north of Fismette, Private Newlin and 2 other members of his company volunteered to go through machine-gun and rifle fire to bring them in. In their first attempt all were wounded and driven back, but in critical the injuries the target are second fire and resided the wounded spite of their injuries they advanced a second time and reached the wounded men. Their courageous effort, however, was unfortunately in vain, as their comrades had been killed.

Private, Company C, 21st Machine Gun Battalion, 7th Division. He acted as runner during offensive operations and under severest enemy bar-rages, and carried important messages to and from the front lines.

Newton, Isaac M. (1316085) Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Kerr, N. C. B-Kerr, N. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Nichols, Harley N. (241533)

Near Charpentry, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R-St. Louis Park, Minn. B-Kingman, Kans. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Nicholls, Harold O. (36238)

Near Griscourt, France, Aug. 11,
1918, and near Avocourt, France,
Oct. 1 and 9, 1918.

R—El Paso, Tex.
B—Galveston, Tex.
G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

Nicholson, William J
Near the Bois-de-Beuge, Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Washington, D. C.
B—Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.
Distinguished-service medal also

awarded.

Nickels, Charles E. (156943)...... Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, Oct. 5-7, 1918. R—Boerne, Tex. B—Boerne, Tex. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

*Nickerson, Simeon L. (60347) Near Epieds, France, July 23, 1918. R—Middleboro, Mass. B—Middleboro, Mass. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

*NICKLES, EDWARD E. (199025) Near Verdun, France, Oct. 24, 1918. R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Charlestown, Mass. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

NICKOVICH, ROBERT (324403)

At Vladivostok, Siberia, Nov. 17 and 18, 1919.

R—Acme, Wyo.

B—Montenegro.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Near Juvigny, north of Soissons, France, Aug. 30, 1918. R—Sparta, Wis. B—Sparta, Wis. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919. NICOL, ALEXANDER L...

Corporal, Company II, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
With another soldier he attacked and destroyed 2 enemy machine-gun posts 200 yards in advance of our lines. While the other soldier stood guard at the entrance of a dugout, he entered it and brought out 75 German soldiers and 3 officers, who were taken back to our lines as prisoners.

Sergeant, Company C, 345th Battalion, Tank Corps.
While making an attack with 4 other tanks, Sergeant Nichols's tank was struck by an enemy shell, which put it out of action. He continued to fire on a machine-gun nest until it was apparently destroyed, when he, with his driver, dismounted and started to the nest, wherefrom they were fired on by the German gunners. They killed the 2 gunners and disabled the guns, and then drove the gunners from another gun. Under the protection of another tank, they started to our own lines, 1,500 meters away. On the way back they encountered 2 Germans with antitank rifles and captured the rifles. Sergeant Nichols and his driver were under heavy machine-gun and artilley for throughout the operation. artillery fire throughout the operation.

Sergeant, first class, 7th Balloon Company, Balloon Service, 1st Army.

On Aug. 11 Sergeant Nicholls volunteered and ascended for the purpose of making an observation. He continued with his work until the balloon was set on fire by attacking enemy planes. On Oct. 1 he remained on duty until his balloon was fired by incendiary bullets, and again on Oct. 9, while on duty with another observer, he remained with his balloon under attack until it was set on fire by enemy planes and he then refused to jump until his companion had escaped.

Brigadier general, 157th Infantry Brigade, 79th Division.

He established and maintained his brigade post of command on an exposed elevation near the Bois-de-Beuge, in order that he might effectively direct the attack of his brigade upon the Madeleine Farm and its surrounding woods. Realizing the importance of increased artillery support, he personally visited the division post of command behind Montfaucou to seek such support. In his absence the brigade pest of command open to enemy observation was swept by a concentration of enemy machine-gun fire and artillery fire. In the face of this terrific fire General Nicholson, with great coolness and with complete disregard for his own safety, rode forward on horseback to his brigade post of command to issue orders for the renewed attack upon the Madeleine Farm, supervising the formation for attack, and by his brave and gallant example inspired the men of his command with renewed courage and determination, which enabled them to reach their objective and hold it against repeated enemy counterattacks. repeated enemy counterattacks.

Sergeant, Company D, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.

Advancing ahead of the Infantry, he made several reconnaissances of the town of St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France; and, iu spite of the danger, exposed to machine-gun and artillery fire of our own and enemy guns, he procured and returned with valuable information.

Sergeant, Company D, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
Sergeant Nickerson, Corpl. M. J. O'Connell, and Pvt. Thomas Ryan volunteered to cross an open field in front of their company, in order to ascertain the location of enemy machine guns. While engaged in this courageous enterprise they were shot and killed. The heroic self-sacrifice of these 3 men saved the lives of many of their comrades who would have been killed had the company attempted to make the advance as a whole.

Posthumously awarded. Meda presented to brether, Horse E, Nickerson. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Horace E. Nickerson.

Sergeant, Company B, 101st Field Signal Battalion, 26th Division.
At a time when the telephone lines were badly needed he remained without shetter for several hours testing out the lines until a shell burst in his vicinity, wounding him. He died from the effects of the wound in an few hours. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Elizabeth M.

Private, first class, Company B, Replacement Battalion, American Expeditionary Forces, Siberia. For extraordinary heroism in action at Vladivostok, Siberia, Nov. 17 and 18, 1919. In answer to a call to save women and children who had been unavoidably entrapped in the rallroad station by the fire from contending forces of Russian Government and insurgent troops, he boldly entered the zone of fire and rushed to the station which was being fired upon from 3 sides by machine guns, rifles, and field pieces, and assisted in bringing back through the fire-swept zone a number of women noncombatants.

First lieutenant, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
After heing severely wounded, Lieutenant Nicol directed the orderly retirement of his company and organized it under heavy fire of artillery and machine guns. At great personal risk he made several trips forward to bring in wounded men. Throughout the entire action he fearlessly exposed himself to fire in order to encourage and cheer his men. His energetic and faithful work furnished an example of calmness and courage to the men under his command.

Sergeant, Company A, 111th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division.
Sergeant Nicol displayed conspicuous courage and leadership in keeping the guns of his section in action under heavy shell fire, covering the advance of the Infantry. His section was caught in a hostile barrage, by which 2 of his men were killed and 5 wounded. Sergeant Nicol led the rest of the section to shelter and then returned under shell fire and rescued the wounded and decline. and dead bodies.

1918.

R—Lake Benton, Minn. B—Ilull, Iowa. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

*NIGHTINGALE, HARRY M. (68128)..... Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Auburn, Me. B—New Brunswick. G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1919.

*NILES, JULIUS.
Near St. Milhiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—Denver, Colo.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Nims, Willie Harrison (1311282).... Near Montbrehain, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Fort Mill, S. C. B—Fort Mill, S. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

NIXON, GEORGE R .. Near Domevre-en-Haye, France, Aug. 28, 1918, and near Malan-court, France, Sept. 28, 1918 R—Indianapolis, Ind. B—Dayton, Ohio. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

NIXON, LONNIE H.
Near Fossoy, France, July 15, 1918.
R—Eugene, Oreg.
B—Anson, Tex.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Noble, Alfred Houston.... In the Bois-de-Belleau, June 6-8, 1918. R.—Federalsburg, Md. B.—Federalsburg, Md. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918. France, *Noble, Clarence G. Near St. Gilles, France, Aug. 3, 1918. R—Soperton, Wis. B—Reedsville, Wis. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Noble, Earl S. (42413)______ Near the forest of Argonne, France. Oct. 9, 1918, R—Bird City, Kans.
B—Bird City, Kans.
G O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

26, 1918. R—Seattle, Wash. B—Snohomish, Wash. G. O. No, 39, W. D., 1920.

Corporal, Company H, 53d Infantry, 6th Division.
Corporal Nielsen was in a detachment of 50 soldiers who were attacked by a hostile raiding party composed of 300 storm troops. Although wounded, he maintained his position under the heaviest bombardment and refused to leave his post until the enemy was repulsed.

Corporal, Company F, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

Leading his squad forward to attack an almost impregnable machine-guunest, he continued to press on when only 2 of his squad remained until he himself fell mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Martha Nightingele

First lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.

While leading his platoon across an open space in front of a wood he was confronted by a sudden and terrific fire from German machine guns, which killed several of his men. Wishing to make a flank attack, and finding it difficult to pass the orders along, he rose up and started to the front wave of his platoon to give the necessary orders, but was killed before he could get the flowledge started. get the flank attack started.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Jules Niles.

Sergeant, Company F, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

During the drive across the St. Mihiel salient, he led a group of 25 men through a severe machine-gun fire and into the woods occupied by the enemy. There he charged a machine-gun nest single handed and captured the gun. The gun crew attempted to escape by entering a near-by dugout, but Sergeant Nimmo followed them into the dugout alone and captured the entire crew.

First sergeant, Company G, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. After all his company officers had been wounded, Sergeant Nims, though himself wounded in the leg by shell fire, assumed command, and led his company with remarkable dash through heavy machine-gun fire. Using a stick as a crutch, he continued forward until the objective was reached and the position consolidated, when he consented to go to the rear for treatment.

First lieutenant, Field Artillery, attached to 3d Balloon Squadron, Air Service. On August 28, Licutenant Nixon was locating active enemy batteries from his balloon and was attacked several times by enemy planes, but refused to descend until one had set fire to the balloon. On Sept. 28, while he was on a reglage mission, 5 enemy planes fired at him. He remained in the basket until the balloon was a mass of flames, and 1 of the enemy aviators followed him to the ground, firing at him. Despite his narrow escape he immediately reascended.

Captain, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. He fearlessly led a counterattack through an intense barrage, inspiring his men to success by his personal example.

Private, sanitary detachment, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Seeing 5 of our men lying wounded on the enemy side of the street in the town of Fismette, Private Nixon voluntarily attempted the rescue of them, despite the fact that the enemy was puring a deluge of machine-gun fire on the location. He organized a counterattacking force and repeatedly exposed himself in attacking the nest, finally succeeding in his mission of rescuing the wounded.

First licutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
He was conspicuous for his judgment and personal courage in handling his company in attacks against superior numbers in strongly fortified machine-gun positions. His fortitude and initiative enabled his command each time gun positions. H to achieve success.

First lieutenant, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
He voluntarily exposed himself to heavy shell fire in placing his men under cover during a heavy bombardment. While assisting a wounded soldier he was struck by a shell and killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John H. Noble.

Corporal, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After 4 members' of his automatic-rifle squad had become casualties in an effort to get their automatic rifle into action against a machine-gun nest, Corporal Noble fearlessly exposed himself, set up the rifle, and silenced the machine gun just as another enemy machine gun on the flank opened fire and killed him.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Janie Berry.

First lieutenant, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
Lieutenant Noble gallantly led his men under heavy fire in an attack through barbed-wire entanglements on the enemy positions before Bois-de-Cheppy.
His conduct had a marked moral effect upon his men and he continued lead ing the attack until killed by enemy fire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Elmer J. Noble.

NOBLE, GEORGE B ... BLE, GEORGE B.
East of Sergy, northeast of ChateauThierry, France, July 28, 1918.
R.—Portland, Oreg.
B.—Leesburg, Fla.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

NOEL, HENRY M

East of Belleau Wood, France,
July 20, 1918.

R.—St. Louis, Mo.
B.—Webster Groves, Mo.
G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

NOLAN, DENNIS E ... Near Apreniont, France, Oct. 1, 1918. R—Akron, N. Y. B—Akron, N. Y. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also awarded. NOLAN, VINCENT ALBERT

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 5-9,

R-Livingston, Mont. B-Livingston, Mont. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

NOLTE, WILLIAM VERMONT.....

Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—Hartford City, Ind.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

NORRIS, ELMER C. (1251007)__ Rear Fismes, France, Aug. 28, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Woodsfield, Ohio. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Norris, Elmer L. (57052) Near Exermont, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Bigprairie, Ohio. B—Bigprairie, Ohio. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

Norris, Ravee

Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France,
Oct. 14-16, 1918.

R—Birmingham, Ala.
B—Luthersville, Ga.
G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Norris, Sigbert A. G. Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-England. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Norris, Steve G (2267070) Near Very, France. Sept. 26, 1918. R—Colton, Calif. B—Greece. G. O. No. 44, W. D 1919

First lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division. He gave proof of unhesitating devotion and energy during the offensive operations of Sergy, brilliantly leading his platoon to the assault in disregard of all danger. While charged with the support and protection of a reconnaissance danger. While charged with the support and protection of a recommissance in no man's land he gave the best example of calmness, decision, and courage under intense machine-gun fire. Wounded in this action, he refused to be evacuated and remained in command of his platoon until ordered off the field by his major.

Second lieutenant, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

Discovering a German machine-gun nest which was inflicting severe damage upon his battalion, he led 12 men to the right flank of the nest and charged it up a steep hill under fire from other guns. He and his men wired out this center of resistance and made possible the advance of his company. Although wounded himself, he personally took command of large numbers of men of the company, after his captain and other platoon commanders had been killed or wounded, and advanced with them to the company's objective and held it

Brigadier general, 55th Infantry Brigade, 28th Division. While the enemy was preparing a counterattack, which they preceded by a terrific barrage, General Nolan made his way into the town of Apremont and personally directed the movements of his tanks under a most harassing fire of enemy machine guns, rifles, and artillery. His indomitable courage and coolness so inspired his forces that about 400 of our troops repulsed an enemy attack of two German regiments.

Pharmacist's mate, third class, U. S. Navy, attached to 18th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. During the operations at Blanc Mont Ridge he repeatedly went through intense machine-gun and shellfire to administer first aid to officers and soldiers who were wounded, and lying in exposed positions.

Hospital apprentice, first class, U. S. Navy, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
He rendered exceptional assistance to his wounded comrades by continually giving first aid to them under machine-gun fire.

Private, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
With three other soldiers he charged and captured a battery of three .77 field pieces which, protected by machine guns, were firing point blank on the position held by his company. This deed enabled his company to continue the advance.

Private, Battery E, 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division.
Although severely burned by gas, he refused to be evacuated, voluntarily remaining on duty for 2 days, repairing telephone connections day and night over shell-swept areas from the battery position to the observation post. He worked faithfully, maintaining adequate telephone service, until condend to the reservice. ordered to the rear.

Corporal, Company C, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. Corporal Norris, an automatic rifleman, crept about 600 yards ahead of the line held by our troops and after locating 2 enemy machine guns, he opened fire and succeeded in destroying 1 of the enemy guns and forcing 2 of the enemy to surrender. He then turned the captured gun on the enemy to such effect that his company was able to advance with slight loss.

Major, 167th Infantry, 42d Division. During the attack on the Cote-de-Chatillon, Major Norris personally led his battalion through the intense artillery and machine-gun fire. Although the attack led through a dense forest, he maneuvered his battalion with such success that liaison was maintained at all times between the units of his command and with the units on the right and left flank, and a successful attack made upon a position considered almost impregnable. He was warmed definished the light and the successful attack made upon a position considered almost impregnable. He was wounded during this attack.

wounded during this actack.

Second lieutenant, observer, 11th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

Deeming it impossible to catch their own formation, Lieutenant Norris, with Lieut. William Waring, pilot, attached themselves to a formation from the 20th Squadron and engaged in a 35-minute fight with 30 enemy aircraft. Five of the 20th Squadron were lost and the observer of 1 of the remaining planes seriously wounded. The wounded man had fallen in a position which had made the control of the machine difficult. Lieutenant Norris immediately motioned for his pilot to take a position between the enemy formation and the crippled companion in order to protect it, and continued to fight off the enemy planes until our lines were crossed.

Corporal, Company G, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
He voluntarily preceded his company in searching woods for the purpose of locating enemy snipers, who were eausing numerous casualties. He also made numerous trips under artillery and machine-gun fire to maintain liaison with adjacent units. When his company was making its first advance under heavy shellfire, this soldier took the place of a rifle sergeant's section and kept this unit intact during the advance.

NORSTRAND, CARL JOHANNES .. At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Roscommon, Mich. B—Norway. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

Norton, Earl D. (293917).... Near Vaux, France, July 1, 1918. R.—Guilford, Conn. B.—Guilford, Conn. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Norton, Everette C. (1455266)..... Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Moran, Kans. B—Moran, Kans. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

NORTON, FRANK B. (1911299)

At Cornay, France, Oct. 9-10, 1918.

R—Altoona, Pa.

B—Philadelphia, Pa.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Columbus, Ohio. B—Marblehead, Ohio. G. O. No. 123, W. D., 1918.

NORTON, JAMES A. (112415)... Near Juvigny, France, north of Soissons, Sept. 4, 1918. R—Columbia, S. Dak. B—Houghton, S. Dak. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Norton, John H... At Sergy, France, July 29-30, 1918. B—Springfield, Mass. B—West Springfield, Mass. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Central Falls, R. I. B—Central Falls, R. I. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Norton, Robert William
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 11, 1918.
R—East Bloomfield, N. Y. B—Newark, N. J. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Norton, William M. (47708)

Near Seicheprey, A brasuville sector,
France, Mar. I, 1918.
R—Hardy Ark.
B—Hardeman County, Tenn.
G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

Sergeant major, 1st Battalion, 5th Regiment, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. When his presence was not demanded in the performance of the normal duties of his office, he volunteered to rescue wounded men from a field swept by machine gun fire, and continued this heroic work with the aid of other volunteers until all had been recovered.

Private, Company H, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
While Private Norton, an automatic-rifle gunner, was advancing during the attack a shell fragment struck a bag of hand gronades which he was carrying on his hip, resulting in an explosion which shattered his left leg. Despite the on his high testing in an exposion which state et al. Despite the severe would, he crawled forward toward a shell hole, where the remainder of his squad had taken refuge, and, with his remaining strength, threw his automatic rifle to the men in the shell hole. His injuries necessitated the amputation of his leg.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 139th Iufantry, 35th Division. After being wounded by a machine-gun bullet, he refused to be evacuated to the rear, but continued in his duties for 2 days thereafter, and only stopped when weakened by the loss of blood.

Sergeant, Company M, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.

After fighting for 6 hours, he volunteered to accompany 15 other soldiers and an officer on a night patrol of Cornay, which was held by many enemy machinegun posts. The party worked from 11 o'clock at night till next morning, clearing buildings and dugouts of the enemy, capturing 65 prisoners and 2 machine guns. With 6 others Sergeant Norton volunteered and entered a dugout where 23 prisoners were captured. He was wounded while leaving the town, but he refused to go to the aid station until the prisoners had been delivered at brigade headquarters.

First lieutenant, 27th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Lieutenant Norton, as flight commander, led a patrol of 8 machines, the first large American formation to encounter a large German patrol. His command gave battle to 9 enemy battle planes driven by some of the leading aces of the German Army. Although both of his guns jammed at the beginning of the German Army. Although both of his guns jammed at the beginning aces of the fight and were therefore useless, he stayed with the formation, skillfully maneuvering his machine to the best advantage. He was attacked by enemy planes at 4 different times, but skillfully avoided them or dived at them. His continued presence was a great moral help to his comrades, who destroyed 2 of the enemy planes. On July 23, 1918, this officer died of wounds received in action July 20, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Frank Norton.

Private, medical detachment, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
Private Norton, on his own initiative, went forward twice in advance of the front line, bringing in wounded under heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Wagoner, Company A, 107th Ammunition Train, 32d Division.

During a heavy enemy bombardment a shell burst near 2 ammunition trucks that were being unloaded at a dump, blowing up I truck and setting fire to the other. Disregarding the warning of bystanders he rushed forward, threw off the burning cushions and cover on the truck, and backed it to a place of safety. His conspicuous bravery was the means of saving a large quantity of ammunities. nition.

Captain, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. Captain, 47th Iniantry, 4th Division.

When the company on the left of his own had fallen back, leaving a gap through which the enemy was approaching for a counterattack, Captain Norton, with the remains of 2 squads, formed an automatic-rile post and successfully covered the withdrawal of the remainder of his command to a stronger line of resistance. Though his small group was almost annihilated by hostile fire, he held this position until the arrival of reinforcements, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mabel C. Norton.

Sergeant, Company I, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.
While leading his platoon toward the Vesle River, Sergeant Norton encountered extreme machine-gun fire. Exposing himself to determine the exact location from which this fire was being made, he was scriously wounded, but he continued to direct the fire of his men, even after he was no longer able to move with them. His action greatly aided his platoon to advance and join the remainder of the company.

Captain, 39th Infantry, 4th Division. Ouring the action in the Bois-de-Foret, France, Captain Norton, with another officer, braved the hazardous fire by going out into no man's land and capturing 20 Germans at the point of his pistol. Although be lost 2 of the enemy during the encounter, he personally conducted the remaining back to the lines.

ergeant, Company I, 18th Infantry, 1st Division. Finding himself in a dugout surrounded by Germans, and in which a hand grenade had been thrown, he refused to surrender, made a bold dash outside, killed 1 of his assailants, put the others to flight, and resumed his duty with his company. with his company.

*Norwat, Arthur (1710316)..... Near Revillon, France, Sept. 14-15, 1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Plymouth, Pa. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1926.

*NOTTINGHAM, MARSH W. 1550025) .... Near Roncheres, France, July 31, 1918.

R—Indianapolis, Ind. B—Coldwater, Mich. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Nourse, William II. (67308)..... Near Bouresches, France, July 20, 1918.

R—Hyde Park, Mass. B—Bangor, Me. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Nowak, John M. (274797) Near Fismes, France, Aug. 4, 1918. R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Milwaukee, Wis. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

NowLin, George A. (152355).

Near Suippes, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill.

B—Jackson County, Mich.

G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

Noves, Stephen H. Near Chatel-Chehery, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Newport, R. I.

B—Newport, R. I.

G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

Nubel, Herman (1707128) Near St. Pierremont, France, Nov. 4, 1918. R—Elmhurst, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Nunley, Lewis (551694).
Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918.
R-Hulette, Ky.
B-Lawrence County, Ky.
G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

*NUTT, ALAN_ Near Forges, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Cliffside, N. J. B—Cliffside, N. J. G. O. No. 140, W. D., 1918.

*Nutting, Lester Herbert______ Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918.

R—Washington, D. C. B—Goodman, Mo. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company M, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

On Sept. 14 he advanced ahead of his company and with an automatic rifle single handed silenced an enemy machine-gun nest, capturing the gunner. On the following day, after having assumed command because of the fact that all officers had become casualties, he assembled 13 men and led them in a charge against superior forces of the enemy, recapturing a trench which shortly before had been taken by the enemy.

Oak-leaf cluster. For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Moulin de l'Homme Mort, France, Oct. 1, 1918, Sergeant Norwat is awarded an oak-leaf cluster: When enemy machine-gun fire had checked his attempt to reach companies which had been surrounded by the enemy, Sergeant Norwat sprang upon the parapet, in full view of the enemy, and opened fire with an automatic rifle. He continued with this heroic work until he fell mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Alfred Norwat.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division. He volunteered and carried messages through the intense shelling before tele-phone communications were established. While leading a party to an obser-vation post Corporal Nottingham was killed by shellfire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Otis W. Nottingham.

Sergeant, Company C, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
Being on special duty, Sergeant Nourse followed his company in the attack.
Upon discovering a strong machine-gun nest pouring a destructive fire into the second wave of his battalion, Sergeant Nourse, sending 2 men to the tlanks, advanced alone, rushed and cleaned out the nests with hand granades and bayonet.

Sergeant, Company K, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
After being severely wounded, Sergeant Nowak refused to go to the rear for first aid, but bravely continued in the advance. While he was helping to reform his company under a fleavy machine-gun barrage shortly afterwards he was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. John M. Nowak.

First sergeant, Battery E, 42d Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps.
This soldier displayed great bravery and devotion to duty during the action of his battery at the opening of the German attack at Suippes. The firing position was under heavy fire, and the members of the battery widely separated when orders to fire were received by his battery. He personally succeeded in quickly organizing the firing sections at their posts. On several occasions he earried severely wounded infantrymen long distances to dressing stations. He assisted in repairing damage to exposed telephone lines under heavy shrapnel fire, and with his battery was the last man to leave the firing receiving. position.

Captain, pilot, 12th Aero Squadron, Air Service. Use volunteered under the most adverse weather conditions to stake the advance lines of the 82d Division. Disregarding the fact that darkness would set in before he and his observer could complete their mission, and at the extremely low altitude of 150 feet, he proceeded amid heavy antiaircraft and ground machine-gun fire until the necessary information was secured. On the return, due to darkness, he was forced to land on a shell-torn field and proceeded on foot to headquarters with valuable information.

Corporal, Company L, 307th Infantry, 77th Division. He advanced under heavy machine-gun fire to a position on the flank of his companyls sector, located a machine-gun nest, and opened fire on it. He remained in this position in the face of fire from a 1-pounder gun.

Corporal, Company G, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Corporal Nunley advanced in the face of intense machine-gun fire and single handed attacked an enemy machine-gun position, killing the crew and returning with the gun to our lines. Later he led 9 men in a flank attack on the enemy and eaptured 25 men.

First lieutenant, pilot, 94th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While on a petrol he encountered and unhesitatingly attacked 8 Fokker planes. After a few minutes of severe fighting, during which he displayed indomitable courage and determination, this officer shot down 1 of the enemy planes. Totally surrounded, outnumbered, and without a thought of escape, he continued the attack until he was shot down in flames near Drillancourt.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Robert II. Nutt.

Private, 96th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He voluntarily advanced 200 yards beyond the front lines to locate enemy machine-gun nests, signaling back their positions to the other members of his detachment, who immediately destroyed them. He was killed in returning to our lines Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Robert H. Nutting.

NYB, WILL P. Near Samogneux, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R-Radford, Va. B-Wythe County, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

OBENOUR, GEORGE G. (545349) Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Williamsburg, Pa. B—Drab, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

OBERMEYER, HERMAN (551706)_ Charteves, France, July 22, Near

R—Washington, D. C. B—Washington, D. C. G. C. No. 22, W. D, 1920.

*O'BRIEN, CHARLES_______ Near La Cendriere Woods, near the Aisne Canal, France, Sept. 6, 1918. R—Nanticoke, Pa. B—Nanticoke, Pa. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*O'Brien, Cornelius J. (568759) ..... Near Ville-Savoye, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—Butte, Mont. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

O'BRIEN, JOHN F.
Near Vierzy, France, July 18, 1918.
R-Brooklyn, N. Y.
B-Morris, Minn.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

O'Brien, Joseph P. (110117) Near Bouresches, France, July 18, 1918. R—Providence, R. I. B—Providence, R. I. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

O'BRIEN, THOMAS A. (1897357)______ East of St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

O'BRIEN, WILLIAM H. J.
Near La Trinity Ferme, France,
July 14-15, 1918. R-New Haven, Conn. B-New Haven, Conn. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

4, 1918. R—Battle Creek, Mich. B—Port Huron, Mich. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*O'CONNELL, MICHAEL (60376) Near Epieds, France, July 23, 1918. R.—Boston, Mass. B.—Ireland. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, 116th Infantry, 29th Division. He advanced without assistance upon a machine-gun nest and drove the crew from the gun.

Private, first class, Company A, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Three times, under terrific enemy fire, he carried messages to battalion and regimental headquarters. After the company had withdrawn he voluntarily returned to the position his company had held and throughout the night assisted in evacuating the wounded.

Corporal, Company I, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

His company being temporarily halted by machine-gun fire from the front,

Corporal Obermeyer, with 1 man, advanced ahead of our lines through beavy machine-gun fire, attacked an enemy post and captured 8 prisoners. Due to his act of daring, the company was able to continue its advance.

First lieutenant, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.
Lieutenant O'Brien led his platoon forward toward the La Cendriere Woods under heavy shellfire. When wounded in the left leg, one of his men urged him to stop and have the wound dressed. He answered, "Never mind that; they can't stop us," and led his platoon through the woods to the bank of the Aisne Canal, where, while placing his nice in position, he was struck again and killed. His dauntless courage presented an inspiring example to the men of his platoon. of his platoon.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. M. O'Brien.

Private, Company D, 4th Engineers, 4th Division. While engaged on the construction of a bridge over the Vesle River he voluntarily left shelter during intense fire and carried one of his wounded officers through a heavy machine-gun and artillery barrage to a dressing station.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Kate Mullins O'Brien.

Private, 67th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. His company being held up and subjected to a severe machine-gun fire, Private O'Brien, having ascertained the location of the machine gun, alone and single handed crawled into the enemy's lines, came upon the machine-gun crew from the rear, surprised them, and compelled their surrender. His gallant and courageous action enabled his company to advance.

Sergeant, Company D, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.

Advancing ahead of the Infantry, he made several reconnaissances of the town of St. Etienne-a-Arnes, and, in spite of the danger, exposed to machine-gun and artillery fire of our own and enemy guns, he procured and returned with valuable information.

Private, Company A, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. Although severely wounded, Private O'Brien advanced in front of the line under terrific machine-run fire and snecceded in rescuing a wounded comrade and carried him back to a place of safety. After receiving first-aid treatment, he again went forward and returned with the body of a company officer.

Sergeant, Company  $\Lambda$ , 325th Infantry, 82d Division. He assumed command of his platoon and successfully led it forward until it was held up by severe enemy machine-gun fire. He then went forward himself and sileneed the hostile machine gun with hand grenades, being wounded in the performance of this gallant act.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division. During the entire night of July 14-15 and throughout the following day he was continually exposed to high explosives and gas shells in caring for the wounded, even after he had been painfully wounded, by the fragment of a shell.

Private, Battery C, 60th Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps.
In an effort to rescue a comrade who had been severely wounded, he ran with a litter into an area under heavy shell fire. He succeeded in getting the wounded soldier on the litter, but before he could carry him out of danger another shell burst directly under the litter, killed the wounded soldier and severely wounding Private O'Connell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary O'Connell.

Corporal, Company D, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
Corporal O'Connell, Sergt. Simeon L. Niekerson, and Pvt. Thomas Ryan volunteered to cross an open field in front of their company in order to ascertain the location of enemy machine guns. While engaged in this courageous voidheered to cross an open held in front of their company in order to ascertain the location of enemy machine guns. While engaged in this courageous enterprise they were shot and killed. The heroic self-sacrifice of these 3 men saved the lives of many of their comrades, who would have been killed had the company attempted to make the advance as a whole.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Patrick O'Connell. R—Dorchester, Mass. B—Dorchester, Mass. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

O'CONNOR, HARRY GROVER (2414680). Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R-Wayland, N. Y. B-HIOrnell, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

O'CONNOR, JAMES (91120) Near Landres, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

O'CONNOR, JOHN HENRY. In the attack on Montrebean Woods, Sept. 28, 1918.
R—Winfield, Kans.
B—Franklin County, Ky.
G. O. No. 28, W. D., 1921.

*O'CONNOR, THOMAS P. (89678)_____ Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 31, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

O'DANIEL, JOHN W Near Bois-St. Claude, in the St. Mihiel salient, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Newark, Del. B—Newark, Del. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

O'DELL, EDGAR H. (2147883)... At Varennes, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—York, N. Dak. B—Houlton, Me. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

ODELL, JULIUS DONOVAN (2258469) ... Service rendered under the name, Julius O. Yuill.

*O'DONNELL, PAUL J___ Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Wilmington, Dcl. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 123, W. D., 1918.

OFFINGER, EARL C. Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 29, R—Springfield, Mass. B—Greenfield, Mass. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*O'FLAHERTY, COLMAN E Near Very, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Mitchell, S. Dak. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 28, W. D., 1921.

Sergeant, Company C, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
Encountering strong machine-gun nests while leading his platoon forward, he ordered his men to take cover while he advanced alone, flanked the nest and killed 2 of the enemy gunners, thereby enabling his platoon to resume the advance.

Sergeant, headquarters detaehment, 78th Division.
He volunteered and went from his division headquarters to one of the regiments in line to obtain much-needed information and to arrange for liaison. He covered the distance of 6 kilometers through shell fire three times before the unit was found, and, while returning with the information, was seriously wounded by a shell, which mortally wounded 2 companions. He gave water and first aid to the 2 men and dragged himself down the road until he met a soldier, whom he sent for an ambulance. After reaching the hospital without the knowledge of the attendants and delivered the information to his division headquarters in person. quarters in person.

Corporal, Company I, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After his entire squad had been either killed or wounded while attacking an enemy machine-gun nest, Corporal O'Connor continued the combat single handed and liveling killed 2 of the paper classed the reaching series. handed, and, having killed 3 of the enemy, silenced their machine gun, which was enfilading his battalion. He then carried 3 of his comrad s from their exposed position to safety.

Major, 137th Infantry, 35th Division.

By his personal example, leadership, and courage under most severe fire, he was a source of inspiration to his command and a very great factor in the successful attack.

Private, Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After his platoon had moved from an open field to the cover of the wood he returned to the field under heavy machine-gun fire to rescue a wounded comrade and was killed at the side of the man he tried to save.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mether, Mrs. J. Fitzpatrick.

Second lieutenant, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.
After being severely wounded in the head early in the action he continued in command of his platoon, leading his men for several hours until forced to give in to complete physical exhaustion, thus displaying most exceptional courage, determination, and devetion to duty.

Private, Company K, 137th Infantry, 35th Division.

In the face of heavy machine-gun fire he entered a building alone and captured 16 prisoners and 4 machine guns. He used an automatic rifle and hand grenades during his advance to the building, fire from which was checking our advance.

Sergeant, Company M, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

Private, first class, Company M, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.

After fighting for 6 hours Private Odenwald volunteered to accompany 15 other soldiers and an officer on a night patrol of Cornay, which was held by many enemy machine-gun posts. The party worked from 11 o'ctock at night until the next morning at clearing buildings and dugouts of the enemy, capturing 65 prisoners and 2 machine guns. With 6 others, Private Odenwald volunteered and entered a dugout, where 23 prisoners were captured. Ho was wounded while leaving the town, but he refused to go to the aid station until the prisoners had been delivered at brigade headquarters.

Second lieutenant, observer, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
His formation was attacked while flying to bomb Dun-sur-Meuse by 7 enemy planes. With the first spurt of enemy fre he was fatally wounded. With his last strength he opened a deliberate and destructive fire on 1 of the enemy planes, driving it down out of control. He died before his antagonist struck the ground.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Adie O'Dennell.

Captain, Company G, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.
While leading his company under heavy shell and machine-gun fire he received severe arm wounds. He was obliged to return for treatment to a first-aid post and advised to go to the rear. Refusing, he returned to his lines, reorganized his company, and formed their position before evacuated.

First lieutenant, chapiain, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
Chapiain O'Flaherty displayed conspicuous gallantry in administering to the wounded under terrific fire, exposing himself at all times to reach their side and give them aid. In the performance of this heroic work he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to cousin, Miss Mary O'Flaherty.

Ogden, George (1241102)

Near Montblainville, France, Sept.
27, and near Baslieux, France,
Nov. 2-9, 1918.

R-Philadelphia, Pa.
B-Wilmington, Del.
G O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Ogden, Ira C. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 9-10,

R—San Antonio, Tex. B—San Antonio, Tex. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

OGLE, EDWARD W. Jr. (1763065)...... Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—East Orange, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

O'HAGAN, THOMAS P. (89495) Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 14-15, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-Ireland.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

R—Fort Themas, Ky. B—Judyton, W. Va. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

OKE. RUSSELL (2388587) Near Chatcau Charmois, France, Nov. 9, 1918. R-Canada.

B-Canada.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

O'KEEFE, DANIEL J. (2290557) Near Epinonville, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R—San Francisco, Calif. B—San Francisco, Calif. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

B-Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

O'KELLEY, GROVER CLEVELAND...... In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 6-8, 1918.

R—Blountsville, Ga. B—Planter, Ga. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.

Corporal, Company H, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.

Corporal, Company H, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. While acting as battalion scout, Corporal Ogden succeeded in driving away the crews of 2 enemy machine guns by sniping. Operating 1 of these guns himself and a sergeant the other, they materially assisted in repulsing an enemy counterattack. On another occasion, while leading a patrol of 10 men on the Vesle River, Corporal Ogden succeeded in getting on the flank of the enemy and by rifle fire forced about 100 to retreat from a trench in disorder, inflicting many caspatites. Later be succeeded in getting in the rear of the enemy positions, remained in hiding until night, and then returned with valuable information relative to the enemy positions.

Captain, 141st Infantry, 30th Division.

Due to casualtics among field officers, Captain Ogden was placed in command of the support line. On the afternoon of Oct. 10 an advance was ordered, and he requested permission to accompany the front line. He was placed in command of the front line of the regiment and advanced with it at 4.30 p.m. Regardless of personal danger, he crossed areas swept by machine-gun fire, and was killed in action shortly after he had reported as having reached the objective. the objective.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ira C. Ogden.

Private, Company H, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.

Acting upon his own initiative, Private Ogle, ou 3 different occasions, risked his life by going in front of his lines and assisting the wounded comrades to a place of safety.

First sergeant Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After successfully conducting a raiding patrol and returning safely to his lines, he immediately went back to the scene and, exposed to unusual machine-gun and artillery fire, searched for and carried to safety a severely wounded com-rade who was lying 100 yards from the enemy's wire. On the following day he carried a severely wounded comrade to safety across an open field in spite of the terrific and especially directed machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company F, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. He volunteered and led a liaison patrol through thick woods known to be strongly held by enemy machine guns. After being severely wounded, he brought back 4 prisoners and valuable information.

Sergeant, Company L, 61st Infantry, 5th Division. He volunteered and led a hisison patrol through thick woods known to be strongly held by enemy machine guns. After being severely wounded, he brought back 4 prisoners and valuable information.

Captain, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

Captain O'Keefe personally led a group of automatic riflemen in an attack against a number of the enemy who were attempting to cut off the assaultagainst a number of the enemy who were attempting to cut off the assaulting wave. By his skillful leadership and gallant conduct he succeeded in defeating the enemy party. In the performance of this duty Captain O'Keefe was wounded in the leg by a machine-gun bullet. In spite of his wound this officer continued to expose himself to heavy machine-gun fire while directing the movements of his company until wounded a second time by a high-explosive shell. Twice wounded, he refused to be evacuated until ordered to the rear.

Corporal, Company B, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

When half of his platoon were on a hillside under heavy machine-gun and sniper's fire he effectively covered the withdrawal of his detachment with his automatic rifle.

First sergeant, Company M, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
After all the officers of 2 of the companies of his battalion had become casualties Sergeant O'Keefe rallied the mea, who had become disorganized under the machine-gun fire, and led them forward toward the objective, displaying marked courage and leadership.

Corporal, Company H, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
He voluntarily advanced alone into the woods to destroy an enemy machinegun nest, and in a single-handed pistol fight with 8 of the enemy succeeded in killing 4 Germans before he himself was killed in this unequal combat Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Margaret G. Beutel.

Sergeant, 80th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. In the attack upon the enemy machine-gun positions in the woods, Sergeant O'Kelley led his platoon with great courage. During the advance the assault section came under cross fire of enemy machine guns and all were killed or wounded.

Oct. 15, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

OLANSON, ARTHUR W. (1785546)...... Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 29,

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Sweden. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

27, 1918. (R—Canton, Kans. 18—Canton, Kans. 19—Canton, Kans.

OLDS, ARTHUR. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 2-3, 1918.

R-Millington, Mich. B-Millington, Mich. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

OLDYNSKI, CHARLES (51305) Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Shainokin, Pa. B—Russia. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

*O'LEARY, JOSEPH A. (1379337) ______ Near Epinonville, France, Oct. 7, 1918.

R—East St. Louis, Ill. B—East St. Louis, Ill. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

OLEJNIK, FRANK (2338100).

Near Gland, France, July 21, 1918.

R—Indiana Harbor, Ind.

B—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

OLIPHANT, DAVID A. (914141)_ At Romagne, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Ashland, Ky. B—Scotland. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

OLIVER, MACK O. (5783) West of the Meuse, France, Oct. 11.

R—Winston-Salem, N. C. B—Winston-Salem, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*OLLRICH, HARRY J. (262315) During the advance across the River Ource and from Cierges to Fismes. France, July 31 to Aug. 4, 1918. R—Mount Clemens, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

OLSEN, ERIC S. (64751) ____ SEN, ERIC S. (64751)

At Chavignon, France, Feb. 23, 1918.

R—New Britain, Conn.

B—Sweden.

G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918

Olsen, Fred (2266496) Near Eclisfontaine France, Sept. 27

1918.
R—El Centro, Calif.
B—Santa Barbara, Calif,
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

Even after being warned of the danger of attempting to get through the murderous fire and after he had seen all the other battalion runners killed or wounded on the same mission, Corporal O'Kelly willingly volunteered and started with a message to regimental headquarters. When he had gone but a short distance he managed to reach his destination, after which he was taken to a hearth. taken to a hospital.

Sergeant, Company K, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.
Sergeant Olanson, with his company commander, outflanked a machine-gun nest which was holding up their advance, shot I German noncommissioned officer who tried to escape, and captured 2 priloners, the other occupants fleeing. The reduction of this machine-gun nest made it possible for the flank of the battalion to advance.

Sergeant, Company I, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.
Sergeant Oldfield was in charge of his platoon when it was subjected to heavy enemy machine-gun fire, causing numerous casualties. By his word and example he held his men in line as a unit until nightfall, when they intrenched. Next day when the tanks appeared he led the charge upon the machine guns which were holding up the advance. Inspired by his gallantry, his men went forward and cleared out the guns and assisted in the capture of Charpentry, with many prisoners.

Sergeant, 18th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. After all the runners had been wounded, Sergeant Olds volunteered to act as runner and made several trips through machine-gun and artillery fire.

Private, first class, Company H, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

Private (First Class) Oldynski advanced ahead of his squad through heavy machine-gun fire and engaged in a hand-to-hand fight with an enemy sergeant, whom he killed. He killed 2 others of the enemy before the other members of his squad arrived and assisted in the capture of remaining enemy soldiers with their guns.

Corporal, Battery F, 124th Field Artillery, 33d Division. He left shelter and volunteered as a stretcher bearer, making frequent trips to and from gun positions under heavy fire until he was killed by an enemy Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Robert O'Leary.

Corporal, Company B, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Assisting his platoon commander and one other comrade, Corporal Olejnik went forward, attacking and capturing an enemy machine gun and 8 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company A, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.
By his energy, initiative, and courage he located several machine-gun nests and captured 9 prisoners and an anti-tank gun when sent out with 3 other soldiers to locate the enemy positions.

Sergeant, Company H, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
After having been severely wounded by shrapnel, he refused to leave the lines, realizing the urgent need of men. After being relieved, he walked to the dressing station, despite his weakness from loss of blood and his painful suffering from the wound.

Private, Company E, 125 Infantry, 32d Division.

Many times daily during this advance Private Ollrich displayed an entire disregard of personal danger in the earrying of messages through enemy barrages. Later, in the fighting near Fismes, when it became necessary to send an important message to the commanding officer of the battalion, although Private Ollrich had been on constant duty night and day for 4 days, he attempted to deliver the message but was killed while crossing a shell-swept zone.

Postburgusly awarded. Medal presented to fether, Happy Ollrich.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry Ollrich.

Sergeant, Company F, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
He was a member of a working party on the night of Feb. 28, 1918, well out in front of the advance post. His party encountered a violent barrage of the enemy which protected enemy assault troops. He helped to fight off the German troops, and walked back and forth twice under the enemy's and our own barrage to collect his men. When he heard that his lieutenant was in trouble, he walked back again to his rescue, where the barrage had at first overtaken him. overtaken him.

Sergeant, Macline Gun Company, 364th Infantry, 91st Division. With 2 other soldiers, Sergeant Olsen volunteered and went 300 yards beyond our outpost lines, through heavy shell fire, to bring in a wounded private of his regiment. The mission was promptly and successfully accomplished.

OLSEN, HAROLD (1907902)

In the Meuse-Argonne offensive,
France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Attleboro, Mass.
B—Norway.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

OLSEN, JOSEPH ENOCH

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 3, R-Heyburn, Idaho. B-New York Mills, Minn. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

OLSON, JOHN O. (44279)_ Near Bois-de-Fontaine, France, May 11, 1918. R—Valparaiso, Nebr. B—Valparaiso, Nehr. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

O'MALLEY, GEORGE P....

Near Mametz, Belgium, Aug. 26, 1918. R—Cleveland, Obio. B—Cleveland, Obio. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

O'NEAL, JAMES LEE (542093)__ Near Cierges, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—California, Mo. B—Jefferson City, Mo. G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

O'NEAL, MIKE (554076)

Near Cierges, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Jeffersonville, Ind.

B—Jeffersonville, Ind.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

O'NEIL, FRANK P.
Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France,
Sept. 12, 1918.
R—Dorchester, Mass.
B—Dorchester, Mass.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

O'NEILL, JAMES T. (1261315)
At Fismes, France, Aug. 10, 1913.
R—Aldan, Pa. B—Phoenixville, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919

O'NEILL, RALPH A...

Near Chateau-Thierry, France,
July 2, 1918.

R.—Bethlehem, Pa.
B.—Mexico.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company K, 327th Infantry, 82d Division. Assisted by another soldier, Corporal Olsen crawled far in advance of our lines under terrific machine-gun and shell fire and brought back a severely wounded

Private, 77th Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Division. While his plateon was following the advance of an Infantry plateon which had become separated, Private Olsen was seriously wounded in the foot by machine-gun fire. At the edge of heavy brushwood a company of German Infantry was encountered, and Private Olsen, who had been forced to fall some distance behind rushed forward as best he could and set up his tripod, acting as loader until the enemy was repulsed.

Private Company I, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.

He was a squad leader in the second platoon. After reaching his objective he displayed extraordinary qualities of leadership in organizing scattering squads of Company I and placing them in advantageous positions in spite of severe machine-gun fire and artillery bombardment. His disregard of danger and fine leadership were an inspiration to his comrades.

Private, first class, Company L, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He displayed conspicuous bravery by going from the front line to an advanced post and rescuing, unaided, a wounded comrado in the face of heavy machine-

Private, first class, Company A, 13th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. Accompanying another soldier, Private Olson left shelter and went forward 100 meters over territory swept by shells and machine-gun fire, and carried a wounded man to safety.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 7th Sussex Regiment, British Expeditionary Forces.

Under intense enemy machine-gun and rifle fire be went to the rescue of wounded British soldiers, dressed their wounds, and assisted in carrying them to places of comparative safety. While thus engaged one of the stretcher bearers in the rescue party was killed and another wounded. These men Captain O'Malley also assisted in carrying to the British dressing station.

Private, Company L, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

When machine-gun and rifle fire was so heavy that his company commander would not order a runner out, Private O'Neal volunteered and earried messages from the regimental post of command to his company, making numerous trips under heavy machine-gun and shell fire during the day and night.

Sergeant, Company C, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Having been seriously wounded during an attack, Sergeant O'Neal refused to leave the field until be had led his men to cover and reestablished his guns for action, inspiring the other members of his plateon by his courage fortitude.

Captain, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
When the advance of his battalion was held up for nearly 2 hours, Lieutenan.
O'Neill, with 4 other soldiers, made an attack on the enemy, and although subjected to direct fire, he succeeded in silencing 2 of their machine guns and enabling his battalion to proceed farther.

Private, 110th Ambulance Company, 103d Sanitary Train, 28th Division. Under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he voluntarily made 5 trips to ascertain the condition of a bridge over the Vesle River, to make sure it was safe for the passage of ambulances. Later, when the bridge became impassable for vehicles, he crossed the bridge on foot and brought back food and medical supplies.

Second lieutenant, 147th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Lieutenant O'Neill and four other pilots attacked 12 enemy battle planes.
In a violent battle within the enemy's lines they brought down 3 German planes, 1 of which was credited to Lieutenant O'Neill.
Oak-leaf clusters (2).

Oak-leaf clusters (2).

A bronze oak-leaf cluster is awarded to Lieutenant O'Neill for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action: On July 5, 1918, he led 3 other pilots in battle against S German pursuit planes near Chateau-Thierry, France. He attacked the leader, opening fire at about 150 yards and closing up to 30 yards range. After a quick and decisive fight the enemy aircraft fell in flames. He then turned on 3 other machines that were attacking him from the rear and brought 1 of them down. The other 5 enemy planes were driven way. driven away

A bronze oak-leaf cluster is also awarded to Lieutenant O'Neill for the followoronze oak-leal cluster is also awarded to Lieutenant O'Neill for the following act of extraordinary beroism in action near Fresnes, France, July 24, 1918: Lieutenant O'Neill, with 4 other pilots, engaged 12 enemy planes discovered hiding in the sun. Leading the way to an advantageous position by a series of bold and skillful maneuvers, Lieutenant O'Neill shot down the leader of the hostile formation. The other German planes then closed in on him, but he climbed to a position of vantage above them and returned to the fight and drove down another plane. In this encounter he not only defeated his opponents in spite of overwhelming odds against him but also enabled the reconnaissance plane to carry on its work unmolested.

R—Staunton, Va. B—Staunton, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

OPPENHEIM, ARLIE C. (58091)
Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Lake Park, Ga.
B—Statenville, Ga.
G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

ORCUTT, IVER (2290586). Near Preny, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

Rear Preny, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

B—Mazomanie, Wis.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

ORD, RALPH EDWARD (1243700) West of Fismette, France, Aug. 10, 1918.

R—Dravosburg, Pa. B—Dravosburg, Pa. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

O'ROURKE, CORNELIUS (749542)

Near Vieville-en-Haye, France,
Sept. 14, 1918.
R—New Haven, Conn.
B—Ireland. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

O'ROURKE, JAMES II. (1746552) Near Vieville-en-Haye, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R.—Lakewood, N. J. B.—Camden, N. J. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

O'ROURKE, JOHN P. (976737)

Near Blanc Mont Ridge, France,
Oct. 3-9, 1918.

R—Elk Point, S. Dak.

B—Cleveland, Ohio.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

ORR, EDWARD .. In the Toul sector, France, Aug. 28,

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

ORTIZ, CONCEPTION (2229829) H., CONDIFTION (222323).

Near Romagne, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Eagle Pass, Tex.

B—Eagle Pass, Tex.

G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company II, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Wounded by a shell fragment, he returned to his platoon and engaged in handto-hand fighting, after having his wound dressed. Wounded 2 days later by a machine-gun bullet, he again returned to the firing line, after receiving first aid, and led a successful charge against an enemy position. His personal heroism was an inspiration to his men. He was killed while consolidating a position his platoon had just taken.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John O'Neill.

rivate, Company C, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. While repulsing an enemy counterattack in the Bois-des-Rappes, Private Oosterbann, a gunner, was so badly wounded that he could no longer fire, but lay beside his gun for 18 hours without medical attention, under heavy machine-gun fire, encouraging the remainder of his squad until the attack

Major, 116th Infantry, 29th Division. Although painfully wounded, Major Opie continued in command of his battal-ion, successfully leading it to its objective. During the action Major Opie displayed rare courage and valor, refusing relici until the new objective was consolidated.

Corporal, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the attack on this date, Corporal Oppenheim assisted his platoon commander in pushing forward the attack against strong enemy resistance. Later, when the advance of his platoon was lalted by machine-gun fire, he, with 3 others, advanced ahead of our lines and silenced the enemy machine gun. Due to his gallantry, his organization was enabled to continue the advance. Later in the engagement, he was seriously wounded and evacuated to the hospital.

Private, Company E, 56th Infantry, 7th Division.
When it was rumored that several of the front-line companies had been forced to withdraw, he volunteered and went over the entire front during the night, reporting back the exact location of each unit. His mission was accomplished under shrapnel fire and gas, but he succeeded where many other runners had failed.

Sergeant, Company C, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Sergeant Ord, with another soldier, voluntarily left a place of safety and crawled through heavy machine-gun and shellfire to the aid of a comrade who had fallen wounded during the withdrawal of their company from an exposed position, carrying him 75 yards across an open area to shelter.

Sergeant, Company A, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. Seeing 2 wounded comrades lying exposed to heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, he went out in disregard of all danger to himself and brought them in, 1 at a time, to a shelter place, thus inspiring his men by his great dash and courage.

Private, Company D, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

After being twice wounded he captured 2 prisoners and took them to the battalion headquarters.

Private, Medical Detachment, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
With utter disregard for his personal safety, he worked untiringly under heavy shellfire and gave aid to the wounded. He lost his life while advancing in front of his company to give aid to some wounded.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Harry T. McNeil.

First lieutenant, pilot, 12th Acro Squadron, Air Service.
Lieutenant Orr, flying with Lieut. Phil A. Henderson, Infantry, observer, on an unprotected reconnaissance mission, encountered a patrol of 8 enemy pursuit planes near the American balloon line. The patrol was sighted just as one of them dived on the balloon with the intention of destroying it. Without hesitation, Lieutenant Orr attacked this plane and followed it to within 50 meters, firing his single f.ont gun against the double guns with which the German plane was equipped. In the meantime Lieutenant Henderson engaged the other 8 planes, which attacked from the rear. After a violent combat, all of the enemy planes were driven off. On Sept. 14, 1918, Lieutenant Orr was accidentally killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, E. K. Orr. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, E. K. Orr.

Private, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

On the morning of Oct. 11 he made numerous trips across a valley which was swept by continuous and terrific machine-gun fire, carrying messages of great importance from his company in the front line to his battalion post of command. After having successfully and fearlessly carried many messages he lost his life while performing the hazardous duty.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Linardo Ortiz.

ORTT, HORACE F. (1377601)

In the Very-Epinonville Valley, northwest of Verdun, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Dixon, Ill. B—Bridgeport, Pa. G. O. No. 5, W. D., 1920.

OSBORN, MORTON (558182) _____ Southeast of Bazoches, France, Aug. 7-9, 1918. R—Load, Ky. B—Greenup County, Ky. G. O. No. 137, W. D., 1918.

OSBORNE, HARRY (39424)

Near Medeah Ferme France, Oct.
3, 1918.

R—Elizabeth, N. J.
B.—Elizabeth, N. J.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*OSBORNE, WEEDON EDWARD.....

During the advance on Bouresches,

France, June 6, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

OSMOND, FRANK W. (1782740) Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Parkesburg, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

OTTE, FRED (1243371)

Diemes and Fismette, France, At Fismes and Aug. 9-13, 1918. R-Fairmount City, Pa.

B—Germany. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1920.

*Otto, William Herman......At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Joliet, Ill. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

OVERMEYER, GEORGE J. (129725)

Near Chatean-Thierry, France,
June 20, 1918, and near Vierzy,
France, July 18, 1918.

R—Hartford City, Ind.
B—Upland, Ind.
G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

*Overton, John Williams Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918. R—Nashville, Tenn. B—Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No, 22, W. D., 1920

Private, Battery C, 123d Field Artillery, 33d Division. He volunteered to carry an important message to a position under heavy enemy fire, realizing in advance that he was exposing himself to unusual dangers in this undertaking. He continued in his task until killed by an emeny shell. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, R. K. Ortt.

Sergeant, Company H, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Wounded in the head and shoulder, he rejoined his platoon as soon as his wounds had heen dressed and remained with it until the command was relieved, displaying rare qualities of leadership and judgment under heavy machine-gun and rifle fire.

Corporal, Company F, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Corporal Osborne, together with 4 other men, charged a machine-gun nest containing 3 heavy machine guns, capturing the 3 guns and 20 prisoners.

Lieutenant, dental surgeon, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He voluntarily risked his life during the advance on Bouresches, France, on June 6, 1918, by helping to carry the wounded to places of safety, and while engaged in this difficult duty was struck by a shell and killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Osborne

Fisher.

Corporal, Company A, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps.
Corporal Osmond was on duty as gunner in a tank whose track was broken by a direct hit from an enemy shell. Because of the heavy machine-gun fire it was impossible to repair the track, but Corporal Osmond, accompanied by another soldier, left the tank, picked up some rifles, and, crawling through the trenches and brush to the rear of the machine-gun position, killed 4 of the enemy crew. They then returned to the tank and assisted in repairing the track under heavy shellfire.

Private, Company A, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

For 4 days, during the most intense fighting, he acted as runner between his battalion headquarters at Fismes and troops in Fismette. He made many trips across the Vesle River under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, and when the bridge had been destroyed he continued his trips by swimming the river, which contained wire entanglements.

Second lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

Lieutenant Otto led a force of 30 men, stormed the strong enemy position in the town of Vauxcastille, capturing 230 prisoners and 15 machine guns. He personally attacked and killed 2 of the enemy machine gunners. Upon two different occasions he attacked machine-gun nests single handed, killing or capturing the crow. His wonderful courage inspired his men to this removable in the control of the courage inspired his men to this removable in the control of the courage inspired his men to this removable in the control of the courage inspired his men to this removable in the courage inspired his men to this removable in the courage inspired his men to this removable in the courage inspired his men to this removable in the courage inspired his men to this removable in the courage markable victory against overwhelming odds.

Corporal, 45th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supremo proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Martha Otto.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 15th Field Artillery, 2d Division.

On June 20 he was in charge of an observation post which was bombarded by gas shells. In spite of the fact that the other observers were overcome by the gas, he remained at his post and continued to transmit observation to the Artillery battalion commander. On July 18 this soldier was on liaison duty in the Infantry and advanced with the third wave of the attack. He successfully carried a message through 2 enemy barrages to the Artillery commander, thus giving proof of his courageous devotion to duty.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
While valiantly leading his platoon in an attack against the enemy, under severe machine-gun and artillery fire, he was mortally wounded. His courageous conduct had a great moral effect upon his men and helped to insure the success of the attack.

Postburguely, awaded. Mada presented to fetter. Jestelly 10.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Jesse M. Overton.

*Overton, Macon Caldwell Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 2-10, 1918.

R—Union Point, Ga. B—Union Point, Ga. G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1919.

*Owens, Dewey (553718)______ Near Chatcau-Thierry, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Point, La. B—Point, La. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Near Les Evaux, France, July 13, 1918. OWENS, FRANK A.

R—Charlotte, N. C. B—Charlotte, N. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

OWENS, GILBERT (40769). Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3-5, 1918.
R—Tyrone, Pa.
B—Tyrone, Pa. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

OWENS, JOHN J At Fismette, France, Aug. 12-19, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa.

B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922. *Owens, John T Near Verdun, France, November 4, 1918.

R—Hartford, Conn. B—Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Owens, Teddy (2220281)

During the St. Mibiel offensive, France, Sept. 14, 1918.

R—Fort Towson, Okla.

B—Janc, Va. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

*PACCHIASOTTI, AMEDEA (543239).... Near Cierges, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R-McKees Rocks, Pa. B-Italy. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

*PACKARD, WILLIAM L. (1769) Near Exermont, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Paris, Tcx. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PACKETT, JOHN W. (1309469).

Near Ponchaux, France, Oct. 7, 1918.

R—Lenoir City, Tenn.

B—Loudon County, Tenn.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

For repeated acts of extraordinary heroism in action near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 2-10, 1918. When his battation was halted by severe fire, Captain Overton attacked and reduced 1 strong enemy machine-gun nest, and moving forward, captured 1 field piece which was firing point-blank at his company. He was wounded the next day, but he refused to be evacuated, and continued to lead his command with skill and conrage throughout the engagement. On Oct. 8, after occupying St. Eticine without casualties in his company, Captain Overton went through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire to establish liaison with another company, his conspicuous gallantry inspiring his men to repel 2 strong counterattacks. to repel 2 strong counterattacks.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near St. Georges, France, Nov. 1, 1918, Captain Overton is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: He displayed remarkable courage in leading his company under heavy artillery fire and silencing 5 machine-gun nests. He then personally undertook to guide a tank forward against machine-gun positions and while so doing was seriously wounded by a German antitank sniper.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Margaret Overton. Oak-leaf cluster.

Corporal, Company B, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Corporat, Company B, Sth Magnine Gun Battahon, 3d Division. While the enemy was attempting a crossing of the River Marne, he set his gun in position under heavy fire, losing some of his men in the exploit. He assisted the wounded to safety, after which he returned to his gun. When a shell struck his gun and disabled it, he secured another gun and placed it in position. This time all his men had become casualties, and, aided by a runner, he manned the gun. In attempting to repair it after another hit he was libbed. killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, S. E. Owens.

First lieutenant, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
After several unsuccessful attempts had been made to get patrols across the Marne River at night, Lieutenant Owens, with 2 soldiers, crossed in daylight and remained on the enemy side throughout the day.

Sergeant, Company M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Suffering from 3 severe scalp wounds, Sergeant Owens remained with his company and for 2 days performed his duties under intense artillery and machinegun fire, until sent to the hospital completely exhausted.

First lieutenant, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.
While occupying the town with his company, and although it was continuously under shellfire, machine-gun fire, and deluged with gas, he displayed the highest order of courage, resolution, and leadership in holding the town against repeated attacks for 6 days, and though badly gassed remained with it until the company was relieved.

Second lieutenant, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.

After locating 3 machine-gun positions, Lieutenant Owens put 1 of them out of action with an automatic rifle by killing the gunners and forcing the carriers to abandon the gun. He was killed by machine-gun fire while reorganizing his company after a local counterattack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Julia A. Owens.

Bugler, Company D, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.
Bugler Owens, with 4 other men, volunteered to cross a valley to the woods opposite and silence machine guns which had held up the advance of his company. In the face of heavy enemy fire this small group accomplished its mission, thus enabling the company to cross the valley without further loss.

He was killed in the performance of this act.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Clementine Owens.

Private, Company M, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
When his company was halted by heavy machine-gun fire from the front, Private Pacchiasotti exposed himself to heavy fire and advanced to attack the enemy position. He was killed in the attack, but his example so inspired his comrades that they continued on and captured the enemy machine-gun

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Orsela Pacchiasotti.

Private, medical detachment, 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division. In going to the aid of a wounded comrade Private Packard was himself mortally wounded, but continued on his self-sacrificing mission till he was too weak from loss of blood to continue his work, dying shortly afterwards. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. C. J. Altere.

Corporal, Company I., 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

He volunteered and carried a message to battalion headquarters under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, although he had seen many of his comrades fall in attempting the same mission.

R-Knoxville, Tenn. B-Spartanburg, S. C. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

R—Easthampton, Mass. B—Wilkinsonville, Mass. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Page, Charles C. (1210458) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No.*46, W. D., 1919.

PAGE, KENNETH B. (2939) At Bois Brule, near A France, Apr. 10, 1918. R—Springfield, Mass. B—Springfield, Mass. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918. Apremont,

G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*Paisley, John C. In the Belleau Wood, France, June 21, 1918. R—Gibsonville, N. C. B—Guilford County, N. C. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

Palardy, Charles W. (1813807).... Near Dainvillers, France, Nov. 10, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Canada. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

ALVA W. (1457832). PALMER, South of Exermont, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Platte City, Mo.

B—Putnam County, Mo.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

PALMER, DONALD D. (252135) ... Near Cicrges, France, Aug. 2, 1918. R—West Allis, Wis. B—Green Bay, Wis. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919. Sergeant, Company M, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

Taking command of his platoon after its commander had been seriously wounded, Sergeant Padgett led it with remarkable daring through heavy machine-gun fire and captured 6 machine-gun nests. Wounded by a machine-gun bullet, he continued on to the objective, using his rifle as a crutch, and directed the consolidation of the new position

Private, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the entire 5 days of the advance he fulfilled with exceptional efficiency the difficult and hazardous duties of liaison agent between the infantry and the tanks. Subjected throughout the action to the direct fire of the enemy machine guns and antitank artillery, he demonstrated the highest type of courage and devetion to duty.

Private, Cempany D, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

During operations against the Hindenburg line he crawled out through the murderous fire and rescued a wounded comrade, carrying him to the nearest dressing station.

Oak-leaf cluster. For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near St. Souplet, France, October 15, 1918, Private Page is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: He was sent ahead with a scout worn with the distinguished-service cross: He was sent ahead with a scout patrol of 6 men, when they were suddenly fired upon. One of their number was killed and 4 others, including Private Page, were wounded. With one leg blown off and the other hanging by a fragment of flesh, he stimulated the greatest confidence in his companions by his words of encouragement while being placed on a stretcher. He died from the effects of his wounds shortly after reaching the hospital.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Anna L. Page.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. He displayed conspicuous gallantry during the action of April 10, 1918, in run-ning through heavily shelled area to rescue an officer who had fallen mortally wounded, and at great personal risk carrying him to dressing station.

First lieutenant, pilot, 88th Acro Squadron, Air Service.
Richard C. M. Page, first lieutenant, pilot, Air Service: John I. Rancourt, first lieutenant, observer, 88th Acro Squadron, 103d Field Artillery. For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, Aug. 9, 1918. These officers were detailed to fly without escort on a visual reconnaissance over the enemy's lines. They were attacked by 6 enemy battle planes 1,800 meters over Fismes. The Americans unhesitatingly fought this superior number of the enemy. Lieutenant Rancourt was 3 times seriously wounded in the legs above the knees, we he comprised to operate his packing was and shed down enemy. Lieutenant Rancourt was 3 times seriously wounded in the legs above the knees, yet be continued to operate his machine gun and shot down 1 of the enemy planes. In spite of the fact that his clevator controls on 1 side had been shot away, Lieutenant Page skillfully maneuvered the plane throughout the combat and piloted it safely back to his airdrome.

Corporal, Company A, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
Single handed he attacked a German machine-gun emplacement. Although wounded in the leg, when a machine gun was trained upon him, he boldly attacked it with hand grenades and drove off the crew.

First lieutenant, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
While leading his platoon against a machine-gun nest, Lieutenant Paisley encountered several enemy spies, who attempted to give him orders and contuse his men. He killed the officer in charge and several of the men and then continued in the attack. Later in the day he was hit by a 37-millimeter shell and instantly killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John W. Paisley.

Corporal, Company F, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. He went to the aid of a wounded conrade about 200 yards in advance of our lines through sniper and machine-gun fire and brought him safely to cover. He was wounded while returning on his self-appointed mission.

Private, first class, Company K, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.
When his battalion commander asked for a volunteer to carry a message to the battalion commander on the right, Private Palmer voluntcered and carried the message through an area exposed to intense machine-gun and artillery fire. By his utter disregard for his own personal safety and example of bravery he inspired all those near him.

Corporal, Company C, 107th Field Signal Battalion, 32d Division.
He was a member of a detachment stringing telephone wire far in advance of the front lines through the heaviest artillery fire. When connection was established at a point within 100 yards of the German line and before the American advance was begun, he volunteered to remain there until our troops had advanced far enough to establish the advance regimental post of command that the latest Williad action to dark make according to the property of the property o His devotion to duty under conditions of great danger assisted immeasurably in maintaining unity of action between the front lines and regimental post of command, and his utter indifference to his own safety made easier the capture of a strong enemy position.

PALMER, HARRY H. (2267656) ______ Near Eclisfontaine, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Los Angeles, Calif. B—Garden Plain, Kans. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

PALMER, JOSEPH A.....

Near Fismes, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—Zanesville, Ohio. B—Zanesville, Ohio. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

PALMER, LESTER E. (68130) Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Dover, Me. B—Canada.

G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

5, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

PALMER, WILLIAM W. In the region of Doulcon, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Bennettsville, S. C. B—Warrenton, N. C. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

PALUBIAK, GUS W. (1387944). Near Forges Woods, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R-Chicago, Ill. B-St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Pamaranski, John (1828967) Near Bois-des-Ogons, France, Oct. 10, 1918.
R—Pittsburgh, Pa.
B—Poland.

G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

Papadakis, Christ (733237) At Romagne - sous - Montfaucon, France, Oct. 14-15, 1918. R—Mulkeytown, Ill. B—Greece. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Pappas, Paul J. (2659513)

Near Argonne Forest, France, Oct.
12, 1918. R—Niles, Ohio. B—Turkey. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

102444°--27---32

Private, first class, Company K, 364th Infantry, 91st Division. Responding to a call for volunteers, Private Palmer, with 5 others advanced 400 yards beyond their front to bring in wounded comrades. They succeeded in rescuing 7 of their men and also in bringing in the dead body of a lieutenant while exposed to terrific machine-gun fire.

Second lieutenant, 15th Field Artillery, observer, attached to 88th Aero Squad-second lieutenant, 15th Field Artillery, observer, attached to 88th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

Louis G. Bernheimer, first lieutenant, pilot; John W. Jordan, second lieutenant, 7th Field Artillery, observer; Roger W. Hitchcock, second lieutenant, pilot; James S. D. Burns, deceased, second lieutenant, 165th Infantry, observer; Joel H. McClendon, deceased, first lieutenant, pilot; Charles W. Plummer, deceased, second lieutenant, 101st Field Artillery, observer; Philip R. Babcock, first lieutenant, pilot; and Joseph A. Palmer, second lieutenant, 15th Field Artillery, observer. All of these men were attached to the 88th Aero Squadron, Air Service Air Service.

Air Service.
For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, Aug. 11, 1918. Under the protection of 3 pursuit planes, each carrying a pilot and an observer, Lieutenants Bernheimer and Jordan, in charge of a photo plane, carried out successfully a hazardous photographic mission over the enemy's lines to the River Aisne. The 4 American ships were attacked by 12 enemy battle planes. Lieutenant Bernheimer, by coolly and skillfully maneuvering his ship, and Lieutenant Jordan, by accurate operation of his machine gun, in spite of wounds in the shoulder and leg, aided materially inthe victory which came to the American ships, and returned safely with 36 valuable photographs. The pursuit plane operated by Lieutenants Hitcheock and Burns was disabled while these 2 officers were fighting effectively. Lieutenant Burns was mortally wounded and his body jammed the controls. After a headlong fall of 2,500 meters, Lieutenant Hitcheock succeeded in regaining control of this plane and piloted it back to his airdrome. Lieutenants Mccontrol of this plane and piloted it back to his airdrome. Lieutenants McClendon and Plumner were shot down and killed after a vigorous combat with 5 of the enemy's planes. Lieutenants Babcock and Palmer, by gallant and skillful fighting, aided in driving off the German planes and were materially responsible for the successful execution of the photographic mission.

Private, Company F, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

After 3 of his platoon had been killed and 6 had been wounded, Private Palmer crawled forward to a shell hole and killed I gunner in the nest. Subjected to a hand-grenade bombing, he made his way to another shell hole and from there shot another of the enemy crew, after which he rushed the nest and captured the remaining gunner and machine gun.

Sergeant, Company H, 305th Infantry, 77th Division. With 2 other soldiers Sergeant Palmer volunteered to crawl out under enemy machine-gun fire in an effort to locate 3 members of the platoon who were maxime-gun he in an each to toate 3 members of the placoon who were missing after an unsuccessful attack on enemy machine-gun rests. Finding the body of 1, they located another, who lay helplessly wounded, by calling out his name. As a result, they drew increased fire from the enemy, but they courageously crawled 25 yards farther toward the hostile positions and succeeded in carrying back the wounded man through the machine-gun fire to our lines.

First lieutenant, pilot, 94th Aero Squadron, Air Service. He enconntered 3 enemy planes (Fokker type). Despite their numerical superiority, he attacked and in a decisive combat sent 1 down in flames and forced the others to retire.

Corporal, Company H, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. He advanced alone on his own initiative, in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, and destroyed a nest of German machine guns. His brave action allowed his company to resume the advance.

Corporal, Company B, 320th Infantry, 80th Division.
When his platoon was held up by an enemy machine gun, which had caused many casualties in the platoon, Corporal Pamaranski advanced to within bombing distance of the gun, killed 1 and captured 2 of the enemy, together with the machine gun.

Private, Company H, 6th Infantry, 5th Division. For more than 48 hours he earried litters with wounded or administered, alone, first aid to wounded while under continuous artillery and machine-gun fire. He continued his work until forced to stop from exhaustion.

Private, Company M, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.
When his company withdrew from their position, Private Pappas, with 1 other soldier, saw the enemy forming for a counterattack, and, without thought of their danger, refused to withdraw, but held this part of the line for several hours by the efficient use of an automatic rifle, subjected to withering machinegun fire during the entire time.

PARADIS, ALBERT D. (551481) Roar Mezy, France, July 15, 1918.

R—New Bedford, Mass.

B—New Bedford, Mass.

G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

Paradis, Arthur (68972).

Near the Belleau Wood, France,
July 18-24, 1918.

R-Nashua, N. H.
B-Lowell, Mass.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

PARADISE, ROBERT C.
In the vicinity of Boureuilles,
France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—England. B—New Orleans, La. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

B-Italy. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Parcell, Charley N. (1817718)

Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 5, 1918.
R-Rockymount, Va.
B-Rockymount, Va.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

PARENT, JOSEPH C. (134757) At Seicheprey, France, Apr. 20, 1918. R—Webster, Mass. B—Webster, Mass. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*Pariser, Harry (1707038)______ Southwest of Binarville, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 5, W. D., 1920.

Parissi, Guiseppe (2337996) Near Crezancy, France, July 14-15, 1918.

R-Olean, N. Y. B-Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Near Bony, France, Sept. 29-30, 1918. PARKE, IRA S. (405912).

R-New York, N. Y. B-Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

Parker, Charles W. Near Ardeuil, France, Sept. 29-Oct. Near Ardeuil, France, Sept. 1, 1918.
R.—Woodland, N. C.
B.—Menola, N. C.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company H, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Private Paradis earried numerous messages for his company commander across an area swept by heavy machine-gun fire.

His courage when exposed to unusual danger enabled his battalion commander to obtain accurate information of the action.

Private, Company B, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
Private Paradis volunteered as a runner and carried messages through heavy concentrations of machine-gun fire. Single handed he penetrated an enemy outpost and killed all of the Germans who were on guard there.

First lieutenant, 12th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
As pilot, 12th Squadron, he was assigned the duty of locating the Americar front lines during the first two hours of the Argonne offensive. Unable to locate the line at the usual altitude maintained at such a time, he flew dowr locate the line at the usual altitude maintained at such a time, he flew down to the dangerous altitude of 50 meters, secured the important information sought and discovered our lines held up by a strongly held nest of enemy machine guns. Noting the exact location of the nest upon his map he flew back to division headquarters and reported the exact location of our lines, as well as that of the enemy machine-gun nest. With his plane riddled by enemy bullets, one control shot away, he returned to the lines, discovered the enemy nests had not been destroyed and that they were inflicting heavy casualties upon our troops. In the face of concentrated enemy fire and at tacked by 4 enemy planes he went down, his plane barely skimming the tree tops, and deliberately fired over 400 rounds into the enemy nests, thus eausing the enemy gunners to abandon their guns and positions and enabling the troops of his division to resume their advance. Again gaining altitude the troops of his division to resume their advance. Again gaining attitude he discovered and destroyed by his fire an enemy signal station, signaling unmolested, 2 kilometers north of the lines. This act was performed at an altitude of 50 meters amid a storm of protection fire from enemy antiaireraft

Private, Company D, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
Fighting with rare courage at Epieds, he bayoneted several Germans, and then, discovering 2 machine gunners in a tree, he crept through the wheat fields alone and killed them. Later he made several trips from Epieds to a dressing station in the woods, traversing a road under constant shell and machinegun fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Louis Paradiso.

Private, Company D, 317th Infantry, 80th Division.
Carrying messages for the platoon commander to squad leaders, under heavy enemy fire, Private Parcell greatly aided the advance of his platoon. Although twice wounded in the face by shrapnel, he continued his duties until ordered to the dressing station.

Private, Company G, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
While his company was suffering severe losses from an enemy machine gun,
Private Parent, unaided, crawled forward and silenced the gun.

Private, first class, Battery B, 102d Field Artillery, 26th Division. For faithfulness and great coolness in the execution of his duty on Apr. 20, 1918, when, although severely wounded in the head and left leg, he continued, under heavy shellfire, to repair the telephone lines and succeeded in reestablishing communication.

Corporal, Company L, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

After being wounded in the chin by a shell fragment, he refused to go to the rear for treatment, but continued leading his men in action and exhibiting a brilliant spirit of courage and devotion to duty. He was killed Oct. 4, 1918, while again leading his squad in the attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Abraham M. Pariser.

Private, first class, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
Throughout the night of July 14-15, during the height of the offensive German bombardment, Private Parissi carried messages through woods made almost impassable by fallen trees.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Private Parke, a machine gunner, although wounded 3 times during the attack on the Hindenburg line, refused to leave the field, and set a splendid example for his comrades.

Second licutenant, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.
Severely wounded in the foot Sept. 29, Lieutenant Parker remained on duty and ably commanded his platoon until Oct. 1, 1918.

1918.

R—Detroit, Mich. B—Leominster, Mass. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Near Medean Ferme, Fra 8, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

PARKER, HUGH C... Near Bois-des-Ogons, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R—Mount Landing, Va. B—Mount Landing, Va. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

8, 1918.

R-Greenville, Tex. B-Greenville, Tex. G. O. No. 21, W D., 1919.

PARKER, JOHN H ... At Seicheprey, France, Apr. 20, 1918. R—Green Ridge, Mo.

B—Tipton, Mo.
G. O. No. 127, W. D., 1918, and G. O.
No. 56, W. D., 1922.
Distinguished-service medal also

awarded.

Parker, Samuel I Near Exermont, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Monroe, N. C. B—Monroe, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

PARKER, WILLIAM E. (2993207)

At Bois-de-Manheulles, France,
Nov. 9-11, 1918.

R-Verona, N. C.
B-Verona, N. C.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Lexington, N. C. B—Davidson County, N. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, 80th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He voluntarily joined an officer and with him attacked and silenced a strong machine-gun nest menacing the left flank of the line. He held the position in the face of strong opposition until he was fatally wounded by a sniper. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Esther J. Parker.

First lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

Gased several times and his gas mask and pistol clip shot from his belt while going through a barrage, he continued to lead his company forward to its objective. He continually took and held first-line positions and repulsed several counterattacks. When the commanding officer of his battalion was cut off by the enemy he organized the battalion and held off repeated counterattacks, the while greatly authurs began and lighting on 2 sides. attacks, the while greatly outnumbered and fighting on 3 sides.

First lieutenant, 320th Infantry, 80th Division.
While his platoon was being held up by machine-gun fire and the casualties were becoming very heavy, Lieutenant Parker erawled forward to within bombing distance of the enemy, and by killing I and capturing 2 of the enemy with their machine guns, he enabled his platoon to continue its advance.

Private, Company G, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. In addition to his duties as runner, he volunteered and assisted in cleaning out many dugouts. At one dugout he was attacked by a number of Germans; he counterattacked with grenades, capturing 10 prisoners and 2 light machine guns.

Colonel, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

During the engagement at Seicheprey he went out in a withering hostile barrage to inspect his lines. Repeatedly he climbed upon the firing step of the trench, and, standing there with his back toward the enemy and with shell splinters falling about him, he talked to his men in such cool, calm terms as to reassure them and brace them up so that when he left they were in a cheerful state of mind and in better condition to ward against attack. Oak-leaf clusters (3).

Oak-lear clusters (3).

A bronze oak leaf is awarded to Colonel Parker for the following act of extraordinary heroism: On July 21, 1918, near Trugny, France, he made a personal reconnaissance over a front of about 2 kilometers on horseback in the face of enemy fire and determined the strength of the German forces to insure the most advantageous approach for his troops to attack. Several times he was an inspiring figure to his men under a heavy artillery barrage and concentration of machine-gun fire.

tration of machine-gun fire.

A bronze oak leaf is also awarded to Colonel Parker for the following act of extraordinary heroism: On July 25, 1918, on the road through La Fere Wood, between Beuvardes and Le Charmel, France, a battalion just coming into the line was halted, awaiting orders. Subjected suddenly to an intense artillery concentration, the men, who had only such cover as was afforded by the shallow ditches along the road, were thrown into some confusion. At that moment Colonel Parker came down the road on horseback. Immediately appreciating the situation, he twice rode down the line and back again at a slow walk, stopping to talk with the men; and thus by his fearless personal exposure to and disregard of danger he promptly steadied the troops and prevented probable disorder at an important juncture.

sonal exposure to and disregard of danger he promptly steaded the troops and prevented probable disorder at an important juncture.

A bronze oak leaf is also awarded to Colonel Parker for extraordinary heroism in action near Gesnes, France, Sept. 29, 1918. During the attack on the village of Gesnes he displayed great gallantry and fearlessness in leading and directing his front line with utter disregard for personal safety and urged his men forward by his personal example, all under heavy machine-gun, high-explosive gas-shell, and shrapnel fire. He was abreast of his front line until he fell, twice wounded, but thereafter remained in active command for a period of five house, when he was religiously by the liquitenant colonel of his regulation. five hours, when he was relieved by the lieutenant colonel of his regiment.

Second lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

With total disregard for his own personal danger, he advanced directly on a machine gun 150 yards away while the enemy were firing directly at him and killed the gunner with his pistol. In the town of Exermont his platoon was almost surrounded, after having taken several prisoners and inflicted heavy losses on the enemy, but, despite the fact that only a few men of the platoon were left, continued to fight until other troops came to their aid.

Private, Company E, 323d Infantry, 81st Division.
Private Parker gave proof of unhesitating devotion to duty and disregard for personal safety by continually volunteering and carrying messages to various units, crossing zones swept by machine-gun and heavy artillery fire.

Sergeant, Company A, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Severely wounded in the abdomen while in charge of a detail carrying up trenchmortar ammuntion, he refused to be evacuated, advancing 500 yards until his left arm was blown off by shellfire. Refusing to be carried in a stretcher, which he said was needed for more severely wounded men, he walked 2 kilometers to the first-aid station.

PARKHILL, OAKLEY L
In the Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct.
13-Nov. 11, 1918.
R-Abbetsford, Wis.
B-Thorp, Wis.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Parkin, Harry D.
At Hill 378, the Borne du Cornouiller,
France, Nov. 4, 1918.
R.—Pittsburgh, Pa.
B.—Pittsburgh, Pa.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

6, 1918. R—Somerset, Ky. B—Pulaski County, Ky. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

PARRIS, WORDEN W. At Berzy-le-Scc, France, July 21, 1918. R-Washington, D. C. B-Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

Parrisii, Grady (97137)

Near Cote-de-Chatillon, France,
Oct. 16, 1918.

R—Daleville, Ala.
B—Daleville, Ala.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Parrott, Roger S.
On Patian Island, P. I., July 4, 1909.
R—Dayton, Ohio.
B—Dayton, Ohio.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1924.

Parsons, James K.
Near Cuisy, France, Sept. 27-Oct.
11, 1918.
R-Birmingham, Ala.
B-Rockford, Ala.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded

PASCHAL, PAUL C In the Bois-d'Aigrement, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Goldston, N. C.

B—Siler City, N. C.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Passafiume, Joseph (1706135).
In the Algorine Forest, Figure, Sept. 29-30, 1918.
R-Buffalo, N. Y.
B-Italy.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.

On Oct. 13, in company with another lieutenant, he was wounded by the explosion of a shell. Regardless of his own wound be administered first aid to his companion and earlied him to a first-aid station. After he was evacuated to the field hospital, Lieutenant Parkhill refused to be evacuated to the service of supplies hospital, and on Oct. 18 returned to duty with his company. During the period Oct. 25 to Nov. 11 he repeatedly exposed himself to enemy fire while reconneitering and leading his company.

Major, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

For extraordinary heroism in action at Hill 378, the Borne du Cornouiller, France, Nov. 4, 1918, while in command of one of the assaulting battalions of the 316th Infantry. Leading the attack, Major Parkin received 4 wounds from enemy machine-gun fire, but declined to be evacuated, remaining with his command in the position be had captured, temporarily assigning active command of his battalion to his senior captain. Later, learning that this officer had been killed, Major Parkin, despite intense suffering from his wounds, again assumed active command, and under a terrific enemy concentration of artillery and machine-gun fire, defended the position with great bravery and gallantry against counterattacks by vastly superior numbers of the enemy forces. His undaunted courage greatly inspired the men of his command, raising their morale to a great pitch.

Sergeant, 18th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinacy beroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, N. R. Parmley.

First lieutenant, 2d Infantry Brigade, 1st Division.
While serving as an aide on the brigade staff he went through machine-gun fire and artillery bombardment with heroic fearlessness to obtain vital informa tion from the front lines for the division commander.

Sergeant, Company G, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.
After his platoon commander had been severely wounded and his platoon had suffered heavy escualties he quickly reorganized the remainder of the platoon and personally led it in the attack on Cote-de-Chatillon. By his daring acts, eoolness, and good judgment he broke up a heavy enemy counterattack on his front, thereby saving his men and being an example of exceptional heroism and devotion to duty.

Second lieutenant, 2d Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
During the attack on the More stronghold he commanded with great gallantry and coolness a mountain-gun detachment. In the face of enemy fire the mountain gun was dragged to and held by block and tackle within a few yards of the hostile position, from which place he directed a heavy fire on the enemy, and replaced his gunner when the latter was severely wounded. When the assault on the enemy's position took place and the gun commanded by Lieutenant Parrott could no longer be fired, he took command of the men in his immediate vicinity, gallantly leading them forward, and engaging the charging enemy in a hand-to-hand combat.

Colonel, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.
Having volunteered to take command of a hattalion whose commander had been wounded, Colonel Parsons was knocked down by hostile shellfire, but he succeeded in rallying his men and kept them well organized, so as to withstand the heavy fire of the enemy. On the following day he assumed command of the regiment and commanded it in successful attacks, refusing to be evacuated after being so severely gassed that he was unable to see.

Major, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. During the intense artillery bombardment preceding the German drive of July During the intense artillery bombardment preceding the German drive of July 15, when the wounded were so numerous that it was impossible to eare fot them in the dressing stations, Major Paschal voluntarily gave up his dugour for the use of the wounded and exposed himself to the heavy fire for 10 hours. After crossing the Marne this officer placed himself in the front line, in spite of the severe artillery harrage, in order to direct the attack, capturing 2 strongly fortified farmhouses and advancing his line for a distance of 4 kilometers. After gaining the position he remained on duty for 2 days without food, despite the fact that he had been wounded and gassed.

Private, Company G, 30, th Infantry, 77th Division. He was detailed as a member of a team of runners, 4 teams having been sent to the battalion companies with a message regarding the attack of Sept. 30. On account of the extreme darkness and the fact that the companies had changed positions, all the runners except Private Passafume reported back, being unsuccessful in the mission. He continued on, however, reaching the company to which he had been sent, and thinking that the others may have been unsuccessful, found all the other companies, obtaining a signed receipt of the message. He then found his way back and reported to his battalion commander.

PATARCITY, ADAM (1280804)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 12, 1918.

R—Trenton, N. J.

B—Austria-Hungary.

G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

PATCH, JOSEPH D.
Near Chaudun, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Lebanon, Pa.
Ariz. B—Fort Huachuca, Ariz. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

PATE, JOSEPH B.

In the Meuse-Argonne offensive,
France, Sept. 28, 1918.
R—Chattanooga, Tenn.
B—Maryville, Tenn.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

PATON, NOEL E. (8669)

Near Woel, France, Sept. 14, 1918.

R—Fayetteville, N. C.

B—Bethel, N. C.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

PATRICK, WILLIAM E. On the Meuse River, France, Nov. 1-11, 1918.

R—Boston, Mass.

B—Cambridge, Mass.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*PATTEN, JAMES H. (1235825)

Near Conde-en-Brie, France, July 17, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Locust Grove, Md.
G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

Sept. 28, 1913.
R—Toledo, Ohio.
B—Ohiowa, Nebr.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

*Patterson, Alfred B., Jr_____ In the region of Moiry, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Wilkinsburg, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

PATTERSON, EARL H. (1253777). Near Apremont, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Wilkes-Barre, Pa. B—Wilkes-Barre, Pa. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Patterson, Frederick W. McL. .... Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 28-29, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—England. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

PARTERSON, ROBERT P. Near Bazoches, France, Aug. 14, 1918. R—Glens Falls, N. Y. B—Glens Falls, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Bugler, Company F, 114th Infantry, 29th Division.

He held his position in the face of an enemy counterattack, silenced with his pistol 1 machine-gun nest, and, unaided, brought in 3 prisoners from another.

Major, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

The leading battalion having encountered heavy resistance and his battalion having been ordered to pass through the leading battalion, Major Patch, because so many of his officers and men had been killed or wounded, with the greatest courage, coolness, and efficiency, personally led the assault of his battalion on the final objective. As a result of his fearlessness and leadership the objective was carried and he was severely wounded.

Major, 371st Infantry. 93d Division. Major Pate having been ordered to place his battalion in position to cover a gap Agir Pate naving been ordered to place his pattanen in position to cover a gap in the line, preparatory to leading the assault that day, and having first sent out 2 patrols which failed to accomplish their mission on account of darkness and heavy enemy fire, did make with only 1 French interpreter, a personal reconnaissance under heavy machine-gun fire, traversing the whole front of the gap, locating it accurately, and returning with the information necessary for the intelligent issue of orders for the assault.

Sergeant, Company A, 344th Battalion, Tank Corps. while on a reconnaissance patrol under heavy machine-gun fire he was seriously wounded and ordered to the rear. Refusing to seek safety, he crawled to the assistance of 2 comrades whom he had seen disappear under a burst of shrapnel, and with 1 arm useless attempted to render aid while he was himself suffering from loss of blood.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. During this period Chaplain Patrick constantly exposed himself to the enemy fire while giving first aid to the wounded and assisting in their evacuation.

Corporal, Company D, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.

He was an example to the men of his platoon when they were under fire for the first time, near Conde-en-Brie, France, July 17, 1918. He continually circulated among his men, encouraging and cautioning them. Mortally wounded by shrapnel, he refused to be evacuated, but stayed with his platoon until he died, with a last word of encouragement on his lips.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to uncle, Simon P. Moffett.

Captain, 147th Infantry, 37th Division. Captain Patten was seriously wounded in the shoulder while leading his com-pany, but after being tagged for evacuation at the dressing station his insistent request for permission to return to his command was granted, and he continued to lead his company until the division was relieved.

First lieutenant, pilot, 93d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While on a patrol with 2 other machines, he attacked an enemy formation of 7 planes (Fokker type) that were protecting a biplace plane. They destroyed the biplace and 4 of the Fokkers, forcing the remaining 3 to retire. Oak-leaf cluster.

Oak-lear cluster.

A bronze oak leaf, for extraordinary heroism in action in the region of Moiry, France, Oct. 23, 1918. He led a formation for the purpose of protecting our bombing planes, the accompanying planes being obliged to return, due to engine trouble. Despite this fact, Lieutenant Patterson proceeded on the mission alone. He sighted an enemy patrol of 9 machines (Fokker type) and attacked them, driving 1 down.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, A. B. Patterson.

Corporal, Battery D, 109th Field Artillery, 28th Division. while acting as a runner for the battalion, he constantly exposed himself to shellfire. While taking a message to the battalion commander at Apremont he was wounded, but, regardless of his own suffering and danger, endeavored to carry a comrade, who was mortally wounded, to a place of safety. He then delivered the message before he would allow his wounds to be dressed.

Major, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. After being severely wounded in the left leg, he continued throughout the night to exercise command of his battalion at a critical time. He refused medical aid until the morning of the 29th and was evacuated by order of the regimental commander.

Captain, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.
Captain Patterson, accompanied by 2 noncommissioned officers, made a daring daylight reconnaissance into the enemy lines. He surprised an enemy outpost of superior numbers and personally destroyed the outpost. Later he again had an encounter with another outpost, during which several of the enemy were killed or wounded and 1 member of his patrol wounded. The enemy advanced their outposts, and Captain Patterson covered the retreat of his patrol, during which he dropped into a depression and feigned being killed in order to escape capture. Here he lay until he was able to escape to his lines under cover of darkness.

11, 1918. R—Georgia. B—Forsyth, Ga. G. O. Noe 27, W. D., 1920.

Patton, George S., Jr.

Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—San Gabriel, Calif.
B—San Gabriel, Calif.
G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

*PAUL, EDWIN (1212002) ___ Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—White Plains, N. Y. B-England. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

PAUL, HUBERT C. (2019049)_____

Near Kadish, Russia, Sept. 27-28, R—Detroit, Mich. B—Alton, Ill. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

*PAUL, JOHN (8165)_ Near Fismes, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R—Paterson, N. J. B—Paterson, N. J. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

PAULEY, WILLARD E.

At Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 2, 1918. R—St. Albans, W. Va. B—St. Albans, W. Va. G. O. No. 107, W. D., 1918.

*Paulson, Arthur (560703)_ Near Briculles, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Cadillac, Mich. B—Cadillac, Mich. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

PAUSTIAN, HERMAN G. (3085394) Near Verdun, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R—Kansas City, Mo. B—Scott County, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-Milwaukee, Wis. B-Russia. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Captain, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Captain Pattillo personally led his company in attack upon the enemy position, exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire in order to advance his forward units. Although twice wounded, he refused to be evacuated, but remained where he fell, continuing to urge his men forward.

Lieutenant colonel, Tank Corps.

He displayed conspicuous courage, coolness, energy, and intelligence in directing the advance of his brigade down the valley of the Aire. Later he rallied a force of disorganized Infantry and led it forward behind the tanks under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire until he was wounded. Unable to advance farther, he continued to direct the operations of his unit until all arrangements for turning over the command were completed.

Private, Company L. 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Private Paul fearlessly ran in front of a tank under heavy machine-gun fire in order to drag a wounded officer out of the path of its advance. Shortly after, although himself severely wounded, he again exposed himself to heavy fire in order to render aid to a wounded corporal. While bandaging the corporal's leg he was hit by a shell fragment and killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Eugene Paul.

Private, 337th Ambulance Company, 310th Sanitary Train, attached to the 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia).

Acting as stretcher bearer to 2 companies of infantry in action against the Bolsheviks, Private Paul for 2 days and nights made his way through swamps and forests to administer first aid and carry wounded to the dressing station. His work at all times was accomplished under sweeping machinegun and intense artillery fire, making it necessary for him to crawl on his hands and knees for long distances.

Private, first class, section No. 524, Ambulance Service. After driving his ambulance continuously for a period of 15 hours Private Paul voluntarily left his post and went 4 kilometers in advance for wounded, traveling a road subjected to heavy machine-gun and shell fire. He was instantly killed by a shell after returning with these wounded men and carrying them to a dugout. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John S. Paul.

Private, 15th Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Showed the greatest determination and courage at Bois-de-Belleau, on June 2, 1918, when he maintained communication between the firing line and his head-quarters by visual signaling. Knocked down twice, he remained at his post in the open for several hours under heavy shellfire.

Sergeant, Company A, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.
While fearlessly exposing himself by walking along the front line, in order to convey orders to his platoon, Sergeant Paulson was shot 3 times through the stomach. He nevertheless refused to go to the rear until he had conducted the platoon to its new position, and then declined assistance, walking 500 yards under fire to the dressing station. Upon arriving there, he insisted on sitting up, saying that the stretchers were needed for others. He died shortly afterwards, having exhibited exceptional qualities of leadership, courage, and devotion to duty.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Anna Paulson.

Private, Company D, 316th Infantry, 79th Division. He advanced ahead of his battalion during a heavy barrage, trying to locate a small group of Americans who had become lost. For 2 days and nights he carried messages from 1 shell hole to another, having no food or water during that period. His work was carried on under intense bombardment at all times, but with great courage he remained at his task, killing at least 2 enemy snipers.

Supply sergeant, Company M, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
As supply sergeant of his company, he voluntarily and fearlessly led a platoon of his company in an attack on St. Amand Farm at the Soissons-Paris Road, of his company in an attack on St. Amand Farm at the Soissons-Paris Road, spurring his men on to their objectives under intense machine-gun fire. His company officers having been killed, wounded, or called to higher units, he assumed command of his company, frequently exposing himself to heavy enemy fire during its reorganization and preparation for a renewal of the advance. On July 20-21 he again led his company in the assault, inspiring his men by his utter disregard of personal safety, maintaining constant liaison with his flanks and with his battalion commander, refusing repeatedly to be evacuated, although severely and painfully wounded by shrapnel, until relieved on July 22 by a commissioned officer.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

He displayed exceptional valor and devotion to duty by constantly attending the wounded under machine-gun and artillery fire. He continued his task until mortally wounded while rendering first aid to a wounded soldier under the direct observation of an enemy machine gunner. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James R. Payne, *PAYNE, FEANCIS W.
Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
R—Charleston, W. Va.
B—Charleston, W. Va.
G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

Near Longuyon, France, Sept. 16, 1918

R—Belmont, Mass. B—Cambridge, Mass. G. O. No. 123, W. D., 1918.

*PAYSON, CARL F. (261851)...

Near Cierges, northeast of ChateauThierry, France, Aug. 1, 1918.

R.—Monroe, Mich.
B.—Paulding, Ohio.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

*Peabody, Marshall G. Near Moulin-de-Charlevaux, in the Forest d'Argonne, France, Oct. 4-5, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

R-Waeo, Tex. B-Gatesville, Tex. G. O. No 37, W. D., 1919.

PEACOCK, RAYMOND F. (1244410)_ Near Fismette, France, Aug. 10, 1918. R-Norristown, Pa. B-Bryn Mawr, Pa. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

PEADEN, ALBERT JOHN (1878105)...... Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Farmville, N. C. B—Pitt County, N. C. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

PEARCE, PERCY R.
At Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, At Berzy-le-sec, France, 1918.
R—Newark, N. J.
B—Newark, N. J.
G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

*PEARCE, ZENO W. (155524) Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Oekland, Calif. B—Olympia, Wash. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

PEARSON, HARRY L (1403333)_ Near Ferme La Folie, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R—Decatur, Ill. B—Tupelo, Miss. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 26th Infautry, 1st Division.
While in charge of an ammunition-earrying party near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he showed the highest degree of courage in taking ammunition to the front lines through artillery and machine-gun fire, and was killed while engaged in this duty

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James M. Payne.

Sergeant, Company A, 372d Infantry, 93d Division. Having found a machine gun hidden in a brush which was causing serious casualties to his company, he crept up, killed the gunners with his rifle, and captured the gun.

First lieutenant, observer, 20th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Starting on a very important daylight bombing mission with 5 other planes, as observer he went on alone when the other 5 planes were forced to turn back. On crossing the German line, he was attacked by 3 enemy planes. Using his guus to keep the enemy at bay, he went on, reached his objective, and dropped his bombs on the railroad junction, cutting the line. On the way back 4 more planes joined in the attack, but, keeping them at bay with his gurps he received the allied line. guns, he reached the allied lines.

Sergeant, Company D, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
During a heavy bombardment he located a position in which his platoon would be less exposed to the intense shelling, and, returning, he collected his men and led them to this new location without a casualty. In the course of this exploit he was severely wounded, but directed his platoon to the place of protection after falling from exhaustion. He died on his way to the hospital.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J. J. Payne.

Sergeant, Company C, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

During the attack made by the company on the village of Cierges, Sergeant Payson was mortally wounded in the head by a machine-gun bullet. He succeeded in keeping on his feet, however, and with the attacking wave, encouraging them, and by his strong will power he instilled in them all the spirit of fearlessness.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Minnie Timberecond lieutenant, 306th Machine Gun Battalion, 77th Division.

While commanding a detachment of his battalion operating with a battalion of the 308th Infantry, Lieutenant Peabody, although badly wounded, con-tinued to personally direct the fire and operation of his machine guns, which were continuously meeting and shattering the repeated hostile attacks and defending the entire Infantry deachment in its exposed and precarious position. While appelled in the continuously meeting the property of the prope position. While crawling in a severely wounded condition to a machine gun in a most exposed position, he was killed by enemy machine-gun fire. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Alexander M. Peabody.

Sergeant, Company K, 141st Infantry, 36th Division.

All the officers of his company being killed, he took command and led the company into action, capturing 62 German prisoners who were occupying and directing a fire against our troops from 6 machine-gun nests.

Corporal, Company F, 111th Infantry, 28th Division. Being the only member of his detachment who knew how to operate an enemy machine gun, he volunteered to go forward in the attack near Fismette, in spite of just having been so badly wounded in his left shoulder that his left arm was partially useless. He participated in the assault and with one arm operated a captured German machine gun against the enemy until he was again wounded.

Private, Company M, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

While delivering a message, Private Peaden was scriously wounded by a bullet which entered his cheek and passed through his lower right jaw, but he refused to be evacuated, and continued on duty until the following day. Upon reporting to the aid station he was evacuated to the hospital, where the wound was found to be so serious that he was compelled to remain there for several weeks.

First lieutenant, 2d Infantry Brigade, 1st Division. During a violent attack from artillery and machine guns at Berzy-le-See, France, July 21, 1918, while serving as liaison officer he fearlessly exposed himself, exceeding the demands of duty to assist in reforming units that had been disseminated in battle and directing them to effective positions.

Private, Company C, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
When volunteers were called for by his company commander, Private Pearce volunteered and rescued wounded comrades from a barrage. Disregarding danger to himself, he continued the performance of these heroic deeds until Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Joseph G. Pearce.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.
While under heavy fire Private Pearson volunteered and, accompanied by another soldier, reseued a wounded comrade from an exposed position, carrying him to the first-aid station.

* PEARSON, VARLOURD (1449077)... Near Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R.—Manhattan, Kans. B.—Dadeville, Ala. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Pease, Liberty (101022)

In the Foret-de-Fere, near Nesles, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 26-Aug. 2, 1918. R—Farragut, Iowa. B—Farragut, Iowa. G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

PEATROSS, JAMES L. Near Bantheville, France, Nov. 2, R-Rome, Mo. B-Stokes County, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

PEAVY, JOE B. Near Cornay, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Hamilton, Ga. B—Greenville, Ga. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*Peck, Myron H.
At St. Etienne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R-Montelair, N. J.
B-Racine, Wis.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Peck, Robert H.
Near Liny-devant-Dun, Fontaine,
Murvaux and Brandeville, France, Nov. 6-8, 1918.

R—San Diego, Calif.

B—San Francisco, Calif.

G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

PEDERSEN, INGVALD O. (540099)_ DERSEN, INGVALD O. (340039).
Near Fossoy, France, July 14-15, 1918.
R—Pittsburgh, Pa.
B—Portland, Oreg.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Pederson, William J. (3125361)

Near Oches, France, Nov. 4, 1918.

R—Becker, Minn.
B—Santiago Minn.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Pedro, Jerome C. (41168)

Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct.
3-9, 1918.

R.—New Bedford, Mass.
B.—New Bedford, Mass.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*PEGG, DONALD A. (11076)___ Near the Bois-des-Ogons Sept. 30, 1918. R—Arlington, N. J. B—Indianapolis, Ind. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919. France.

PEGUES, JOSIAH J Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Nov. Neil Bull-sd. 7, 1918. 5, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Quincy, Ill. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

PELKEY, EDWIN (2278753) _. Near Cierges, France, Aug. 2, 1918. R—Reno, Nev. B—Canada.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919,

Sergeant, Company I, 137th Infantry, 35th Division.
Though wounded 3 times by shrapnel and machine-gun bullets, he refused to be evacuated and continued to lead the advance of his platoon, remaining in command for several hours, until he received a fourth wound, which proved Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, C. I. Pearson.

Private, Company E, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

During the advance of his regiment in the Foret-de-Fere, by his voluntary, authorized, and untiring efforts in carrying wounded, both by day and by night, under the most severe and dangerous circum tances, and especially when the town of Sergy was under bombardment, July 31, 1918.

Major, 353d Infantry, 89th Division. Though he had been wounded the day before and was so weak from exposure that he could hardly talk, Major Peatross remained with his battalion and led it in assault on enemy machine-gun nests north of the Bois-de-Barricourt. Under his personal direction, without artillery support, the machine-gun nests were flanked and the day's objective reached in spite of the most determined resistance.

Second lieutenant, 327th Infantry, 82d Division. Although his command was nearly surrounded and enemy machine guns were pouring an incessant fire on them, Lieutenant Peavy directed the fire of his men, after having been seriously wounded. He remained during the advance, refusing first aid until those about him needing attention were properly cared for.

Captain, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
While in command of this battalion, holding part of the line in St. Etienne, Captain Peck personally conducted a reconnaissance, after patrols had preyiously failed, in order to establish liaison with the troops on his right. He lost his life during this reconnaissance.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. M. H. Peck.

olonel, 11th Infantry, 5th Division. Colonel, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.

Throughout the successive attacks on Liny-devant-Dun, Cote 292, Bois-du-Chenois, Fontaine, Murvaux, Bois-du-Corrai, and Bois-de-Brandeville, he exhibited conspicuous gallantry, stimulating his command to a high state of enthusiasm and creating a superb morale. Placing himself in front of the leading waves, h personally led his men to the a-sault. Accompanied by 9 men, he attacked a battery of enemy artillery near La Maisonette Farm, forcing the abandonment and subsequent capture of the battery. Under his skillful leadership his regiment captured numerons prisoners, 6 pieces of artillery, 3 antiaircraft guns, 150 machine guns, and vast quantities of ammunition and supplies. nition and supplies.

Private, Headquarters Company, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. He volunteered and carried a message over a heavily shelled route, and although wounded in the execution of this task he accomplished the mission.

Private, Company H, 307th Infantry, 77th Division. Exposing himself to heavy machine-gun fire, Private Pederson crossed an open field 300 yards wide and rescued a severely wounded comrade.

Private, Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
As a runner Private Pedro displayed the utmost disregard for personal danger in carrying messages from his regimental commander to all parts of the line under heavy shell fire, setting a splendid example of courage and devotion to duty, until he was seriously wounded.

Private, medical detachment, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. While engaged in administering first aid under terrific machine-gun fire, Private Pegg voluntarily went to an especially dangerous position to care for a wounded soldier, and in so doing was himself killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George A. Pegg.

First lieutenant, 95th Aero Squadron, Air Service. On account of heavy clouds and mist, Lieutenant Pegues became detached from his formation. While endeavoring to find it, he came upon 8 hostile planes which were maneuvering to attack 4 of our planes. With great courage and skill he passed through the formation and attacked its leader, dispersing the formation and preventing further attack.

Private, Company C, 107th Field Signal Battalion, 32d Division. He was a member of a detachment stringing telephone wire in advance of the front lines through the heaviest artillery fire. When connection was estab-lished at a point within 100 yards of the German line and before the American issued at a point within 100 yards of the German fine and before the American advance was begun, Private Pelkey volunteered to remain there until our troops had advanced far enough to establish the advance regimental post of command at that place. His devotion to duty under conditions of great danger assisted immeasurably in maintaining unity of action between the front lines and regimental post of command, and his utter indifference to his own safety made easier the capture of a strong enemy position. PELLEGROM, HOWARD H. At Bolshieozerka, Russia, Apr. 2, 1919.

R-Grand Haven, Mich. B-Grand Haven, Mich. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Near

France, Nov. 4, 1918. R-Waverly, N. Y. B-Waverly, N. Y. G. O. No, 1, W. D., 1919.

Pennington, Edgar (2218090)...... Near Bantheville, France, Oct. 23-24, 1918. R-Mangum, Okla.

B—Sunset, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

PERCY, WILLIAM J. (1284290) _ Near Ronsoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Niagara Falls, N. Y. B—Niagara Falls, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

28, 1918. R—Etiwanda, Calif. B—Etiwanda, Calif. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PERKAUS, FRANK (40295). RANCS, FRANK (40229).

Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Perkins, Byron R. (155533) Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Springfield, Mass. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

PERKINS, EARL H. (1388545) __ offensive, In the Meuse-Argonne France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

PERONACE, ANTHONY (2338196) ___. Near Gland, France, July 21, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Italy. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Perry, Seth E. (1316548) Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Okisco, N. C. B—Pasquotank County., N. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Personett, John E. (42098)

At Hill 272, near Fleville, France,
Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Lenora, Kans. B—Lenora, Kans. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920. PERSONS, JOHN C. At St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 8,

R—Tuscaloosa, Ala. B—Atlanta, Ga. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Second lieutenant, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia). Lientenant Pellegrom exposed himself to direct enemy observation and fire to go forward 200 yards in advance of our lines and drag a wounded medical attendant to a place of safety.

First lieutenant, observer, 120th Infantry, 168th Aero Squadron, Air Service. As an observer in a De Haviland-4 plane, he flew an Infantry contact mission over the line of the 7th Division. Because of exceedingly adverse weather conditions, he disregarded the danger of fire from the ground and crossed the lines at 1,000 feet altitude. While thus flying he was wounded in the shoulder by an explosive bullet fired from the ground. Disregarding his wound, he came down to an altitude as low as 500 feet. After securing the desired information, he wrote out his message with great effort and dropped it to the division.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
Private Pennington demonstrated the highest bravery and devotion to duty in giving first-aid treatment to wounded men under terrific bombardment of gas and high-explosive shells. Going over the top with his company, he attended wounded men and directed their evacuation until he became expensely and had to be sent to a hospital. hansted and had to be sent to a hospital.

Sergeant, Company E, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
After having been wounded in the face and legs, he led a patrol, under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, against an enemy machine-gun nest and succeeded in capturing 1 gun and 15 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company H, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.

Assisted by another sergeant, and leading a combat group across an open valley under constant hostile fire, he completed the capture of 4 machine-gun nests and 3 prisoners.

Supply sergeant, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. Sergeant Ferkaus volunteered to go about 350 yards in advance of our lines to locate the enemy and secure other information. He made the trip through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire and secured the information, but was wounded while returning to our line. When ordered to the dressing station by his commanding officer, he helped others who were more seriously wounded than himself to reach the station. Private, Headquarters Company, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.

When volunteers were called for by his company commander, Private Perkins volunteered and rescued wounded comrades from a barrage. Disregarding danger to himself, he continued the performance of these heroic deeds until

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Eula B. Chamber-

Sergeant, Company M, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
With 3 other soldiers he, on his own initiative, crawled across an open field, subjected to intense artillery and machine-gun fire, flanking 3 machine-gun positions which were holding up our advance. This mission was successful, 7 Germans being killed by the patrol and 23 captured.

Private, Company B. 4th Infantry, 3d Division. With his platoon leader and 1 other soldier, he captured an enemy machine gun and 8 prisoners.

Corporal, Company K, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

When a portion of his company was threatened with a counterattack and he had seen I runner killed in an attempt to reach them from company head-quarters with orders to fall back, he volunteered for the dangerous mission. While crossing an open field under heavy fire, he was mortally wounded. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary E. Perry.

Sergeant, Company C, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. Although severely wounded at the beginning of the attack, he refused to be evacuated, but continued to direct his platoon in the advance. In an attack on an enemy machine-gun position, after all other members of his group were killed or wounded in the attack, he alone rushed the position and captured the gun and crew. This permitted the further advance of the company.

Captain, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. Captain, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. While serving as adjutant, 47th Infantry, he was instructed by his regimental commander to deliver a message to the brigade commander. The telephone lines to the rear having been destroyed, he proceeded under intense enemy fire through a narrow pass, accompanied by a corporal and private of his regiment. Exposed to constant enemy fire, he had reached a place of safety when he learned that the corporal had been hit by enemy fire. Immediately returning, he earried the corporal to a dressing station in a storm of machine-gun and rifle fire from the enemy lines, thus saving the soldier's life and in utter disregard for his own safety, *PETERS, HERBERT N.
Near Les Huit Chemins, France,
Sept. 12-14, 1918.
R.—Sabinal, Tex.
B.—Sabinal, Tex.

G. O. No. 140, W. D., 1918.

10, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*Petersen, Leonard (1472728)
Near Baulny, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Kansas City, Kans.
B—Kansas City, Kans.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

*Petersen, Theodor (1232). Near Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918. R—Minneapolis, Minn. B-Denmark. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924.

*Peterson, Albert C. (278805)..... Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 15, R-Stacy, Minn. B-Burt, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PETERSON, DAVID McK... Near Luneville, France, May 3, 1918. R—Honesdale, Pa. B—Honesdale, Pa. G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

PETERSON, GEORGE I

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 3-7, 1918.
R—Paxton, Ill.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*PETERSON, HELMER (2101106)_. Near Tuilerie Ferme, France, Nov. 4, 1918.
R—Decorah, Iowa.
B—Decorah, Iowa.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Peterson, Holgar (1709115)_____ Near Charlevaux, France, Oct. 3-7, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y. B—Spencer, Iowa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Jamestown, N. Dak. B—Jamestown, N. Dak. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

R—Center, Nebr. B—Fremont, Nebr. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919,

Captain, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.

As commander of the support company of his battalion, Captain Peters displayed courage and leadership by rushing 2 platoons into position to protect the right flank of the hattalion which had suddenly become exposed. Under his personal leadership, in the face of intense machine-gun and shell fire, a number of enemy machine-gun nests were stormed and enemy combat groups dispersed. Serious danger to the advancing line was thereby averted. This gallant officer was killed shortly afterwards in a raid on the enemy. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Nettie Peters.

Private, Company I, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
When the advance of his platoon was held up by an enemy machine gun, Private Peters, on his own initiative, flanked the position, killed the gunner, and captured the rest of the crew, thereby allowing the platoon to advance.

Private, 140th Ambulance Company, 110th Sanitary Train, 35th Division. Serving as a litter-bearer, he voluntarily left cover and exposed himself to intense artillery fire to rescue wounded men lying in the open. Mortally wounded, he continued to assist in the rescue of wounded comrades till he fell exhausted. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Helen Petersen.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.
After being mortally wounded he gave detailed instructions to other wounded soldiers and gave first gas tests in order to save the lives of the men about him. He died the same night. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. J. A. Petersen.

Corporal, Company II, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
When his platoon was held up by a heavy flanking machine-gun fire, Corporal
Petersen advanced alone ahead of the platoon, on his own initiative, and successfully cleaned up the machine-gun nest with hand grenades and captured the machine gun.

Private, Company B, 307th Infantry, 77th Division. He sacrificed his life in fearlessly going out in the face of machine-gun fire and attempting to rescue another soldier who had been mortally wounded. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Louis C. Peterson.

Captain, 94th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Leading a patrol of 3, he encountered 5 enemy planes at an altitude of 3,500 meters and immediately gave battle. Notwithstanding the fact he was attacked from all sides, this officer, by skillful maneuvering, succeeded in shooting down 1 of the enemy planes and dispersing the remaining 4.

shooting down 1 of the enemy planes and dispersing the remaining 4. Oak-leaf cluster.

A bronze oak leaf is awarded to Captain Peterson for extraordinary heroism in action near Thiaucourt, France, on May 15, 1918. While on a patrol alone he encountered 2 enemy planes at an altitude of 52 meters. He promptly attacked, despite the odds, and shot down 1 of the enemy planes in flames. While thus engaged he was attacked from above by the second enemy plane, but by skillful maneuvering he succeeded in shooting it down also.

Pharmacist's mate, third class, U. S. Navy, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He was directly responsible for the saying of several lives while obliged to care for the company's wounded alone. On succeeding days he traveled from one side of the company sector to the other, through artillery and machine-gun barrage, hunting and caring for the wounded.

Private, Company E, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. He displayed exceptional bravery in carrying important messages to the rear through heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun barrages, keeping his commanding officer informed as to the situation at all times. Theless in his efforts, he was instrumental in the success of the operation.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Jonas J. Akre.

Corporal, Company G, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
While leading a scouting party, Corporal Peterson encountered an enemy patrol and displayed exceptional courage and leadership in killing the officer and two soldiers who composed it. He repeatedly volunteered for dangerous patrol work with great bravery and aggressiveness until he was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Catherine Peterson.

Sergeant, Company A, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.
Discovering the enemy making a counterattack to the left flank of his platoon Sergeant Peterson immediately organized a combat group of 25 men, and though greatly outnumbered by the Germans he succeeded in routing them, inspiring his men by his disregard of personal danger, He was severely wounded later in the day, but he refused to go to the rear until he had reorganized his platoon an hour and a half later.

Private, first class, Company D, 114th Machine Gun Battalion, 30th Division. Severely wounded while operating a machine gun under shell fire, he refused to leave his post until he was removed by his comrades against his protests.

Peterson, Solomon (2261095)

During the Argonne of France, Sept. 26-29, 1918.

R-Mosby, Mont.

B-Atlanta, Kans.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919. offensive,

PETERSON, VAN WALKER (1386508). Near Bois-de-Chaume, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—River Junction, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PETERSON, WALTER O. L. (284497) Near Romagne, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Menominee, Mich. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Peterson, William C....

At Chateau-Thierry, France, June R—Crystal Lake, Ill. B—Crystal Lake, Ill. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

Petit, Charles L.
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 27, 1918.
R.—Clarc, Mich.
B.—Hemlock, Mich.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Petrach, Emil H. (1098720)_____ Near Preny Ridge, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Youngstown, Ohio. B—Austria. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*PETREE, HARRIS E. Near Marville, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Washington, D. C. B—Lincoln, Kans. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Northeast of Exermont, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Minneapolis, Minn. B—Greece. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Petrovic, Joseph F. (126059) Near Fleville, France, Oct. 5-7, 1918. R—Joliet, Ill. B—Joliet, Ill. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

PETTY, ORLANDO H.

At Lucy-le-Bocage, during the attack on the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 11, 1918.

R—Roxborough, Philadelphia, Pa. B—Harrison, Ohio.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1925.

*Petty, Willard D. (1386691)...... Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R-Joliet, Ill. B-Pearl, Ill. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company I, 362d Infantry, 91st Division. He repeatedly led patrols in successful attacks on enemy machine-gun emplacements, displaying calmness and keen judgment. After being wounded he insisted on remaining in command of his platoon.

Sergeant, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
When the company guarding the flank was on the verge of retreating in disorder, Sergeant Peterson avoided the perflous situation by jumping to the front and holding the badly shaken troops in their positions on the line.
His quick action during the terrific fire was responsible for the safety of the entire line.

First Sergeant, Company II, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
Because of casualties among officers, Sergeant Peterson was placed in command of the second wave, which he led with exceptional bravery and leadership. When it became isolated in a fog he crawled forward by himself to acertain the character of troops which were seen a kilometer to the front, and upon finding that they were hostile immediately established liaison with adjacent units and straightened out his line, after breaking up several enemy machinegum pests. gun nests.

Second lieutenant, Infantry, attached to 5th Regiment, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Killed in action at Chatcau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Fred Peterson.

Second lieutenant, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

After being seriously wounded in the assault against strong enemy positions in the Bois-de-la-Reine, Lieutenant Petit stumbled on at the head of his command until compelled to turn over the command to a sergeant on account of his condition. After this he remained in a shell hole under a terrific concentration of machine-gun and artillery fire, encouraging his men as best he could, and aiding to the utmost of his ability by sniping the enemy with the rifle of a soldier wounded more severely than himself.

Bugler, Company G, 56th Infantry, 7th Division. Under heavy and deadly machine-gun fire he carried messages to and from his company. After all other means of communication had been ent off he volunteered and carried many important messages through artillery fire, thus establishing liaison with the rear. He was later wounded while passing through a barrage.

First lieutenant, pilot, 139th Acro Squadron, Air Service.
After having become separated from his patrol, Lieutenant Petrce encountered 7 enemy planes. He alone attacked this enemy group and continued in combat against these great odds for over 1 hour, when he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Frank Petrce.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Sergeant Petrimean led his machine-gun section through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire to an exposed position in order to engage an enemy machine and artherly free to an exposed position in order to engage an enemy machine gun which was causing heavy casualties to his battalion. He was killed during the attack. Sergeant Petrimean had previously performed gallant service while keeping his machine-gun section in action during a heavy enemy bombardment at Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Cleanthis Petrimean.

Corporal, Battery D, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division.

When a shell burst near his gun, throwing him across the train of the piece and killing or wounding all of the section but himself and 1 other cannoneer, Corporal Petrovic and the latter succeeded in repairing the piece and continued the rolling barrage until it became impossible to fire the gun again. Two days later, under almost identical circumstances, he and one other soldier continued at their post, after the other members of the crew had been wounded, and continued to serve the piece until the completion of the barrage.

Passed Assistant Surgeon, U. S. Navy, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

While he was treating wounded under bombardment of gas and high-explosive shells, he was knocked down and his gas mask torn by a bursting gas shell, but he disearded his gas mask and continued his work. Later, when his dressing station was demolished by another shell, he helped carry a wounded officer through the shellfire to a place of safety.

Private, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Showing utter disregard of personal danger, he went to the rescue of his wounded platoon leader, who lay in a zone covered by heavy enemy machine-gun fire, being himself mortally wounded in the attempt. Private Petty volunteered to attempt the rescue, which cost him his life, after two of his comrades had been killed and another wounded in similar trials.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to son, Howard Wayne Petty.

PFEIL, CLARENCE W. (2427055). III., CLARENCE W. (242/055).
In the Meuse-Argonne offensive,
France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Sandusky, Ohio.
B—Sandusky, Ohio.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

PHELPS, GLENN.

Near Villers-sur-Marne, France,
July 15, and Aug. 7, 1918, and near

Chatel-Chehery, France, Oct. 27-30, 1918. R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Lutesville, Mo. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*PHILBLAD, HARRY W. At Blane Mont, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Knoxville, Ill.

B—Knoxville, Ill.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

PHILLIPS, CHARLES Vierzy, France, July 18-19, Near 1918. R—Martins Ferry, Ohio. B—Helena, Mont. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Phillips, Clifford F.
Near Bolshieozerke, Russia, Apr. 2, 1919. R-Falls City, Nebr. B-Gage County, Nebr. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

*PHILLIPS, DEWEY (263473) Near Sergy, France, July 31, 1918. R—Saginaw, Mich. B—Saginaw, Mich. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

First sergeant, Company L, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

After he had seen an officer and 13 men of his company fall from the fire of enemy machine guns and snipers, Sergeant Petrifoy advanced alone, and, after crawling about 50 yards in advance of his company, he shot a sniper from a tree and drove off the crews of 2 machine guns located near by. His action permitted the further advance of his company.

Supply sergeant, Supply Company, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

In response to a call from the attacking battalion for ammunition he drove a combat wagon in broad daylight into the front-line positions near Fere-en-Tardenois, and delivered the ammunition required by his comrades on the front.

Private, Company K, 327th Infantry, 82d Division.

Assisted by another soldier, Private Pfeil crawled far in advance of our lines under terrific machine-gun and shell fire and brought back a severely wounded comrade.

Corporal, Company E, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Corporal Phelan voluntarily left the assaulting wave of his company, and, single handed, captured or killed the entire crew of a concealed machine-gun position, which was delivering a terrific and accurate fire upon his courades from the right flank. His timely and gallant act drew the fire of the machine gun from his comrades until they were able to find shelter and saved the lives of many of the assaulting wave.

Corporal, Company M, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.

After fighting for 6 hours Corporal Phelan volunteered to accompany 15 other fter fighting for 6 hours Corporal Phelan volunteered to accompany 15 other soldiers and an officer on night patrol of the town of Cornay, which was held by many machine-gun posts. The party worked from 11 e'clock at night till next morning in clearing buildings and dugouts of the enemy, capturing 65 prisoners and 2 machine guns. With 6 others, Corporal Phelan volunteered and entered a dugout, where 23 prisoners were captured. He was wounded while leaving the town, but he refused to go to the aid station until the prisoners had been delivered at brigade headquarters.

First lieutenant, observer, 5th Balloon Company, Air Service.
While regulating artillery fire from his balloon, Lieutenant Phelps, with another observer, was attacked by 3 enemy planes and forced to jump after his balloon had been set on fire. On 4 other occasions his balloon was sent down in flames, after being attacked by superior numbers of the enemy, but on each occasion he resumed his work just as soon as another balloon could be obtained. be obtained.

Corporal, 78th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He advanced alone on 2 machine-gun nests, which he captured, killing several of the crew with his pistol. Two hours later he again went forward with 2 other soldiers, and while attacking another machine-gun nest, he was killed by shrapnel. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emma Philblad.

Private, Company A, 4th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division. On July 18, 1918, he twice drove a light truck loaded with ammunition through Vierzy and up the road directly in the rear of the position occupied by his company, this road being under heavy shell fire at all times. On the morning of the 19th of July he returned over the same route with rations and ran his truck under machine-gun fire to within 50 yards of the trenches. On the return trip his truck was hit by a shell and destroyed, whereupon he borrowed another truck and returned.

First lieutenant, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in north Russia). With a few men and 2 Lewis guns he held the enemy counterattack for an hour, until reinforcements arrived. He constantly encouraged and inspired his men by the example of heroism he set, refusing all aid when seriously wounded, to avoid weakening his small effective force.

Posthmously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ann® Kathryn Phillips.

Private, first class, Company K, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
While his company was waiting orders, after having reached the crest of Hill 212, he voluntarily left his place and went for a message when an approaching runner was seen to fall, too badly wounded to reach the company. This act was done voluntarily and under the direct fire of the enemy's machine guns, as well as the terrific bombardment to which the hill was then subjected. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Phillips.

Private, Company K, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
Private Phillips was a member of a patrol sent out to silence machine-gun nests which were holding up the battalion's advance. When the officer leading the patrol fell, mortally wounded, he went to his assistance in the face of heavy fire from machine guns only 100 yards away, remaining in this position until nightfall, though himself seriously wounded.

PHILLIPS, OCEA V. (145606)...
Near Suippes, Frauce, July 15, 1918.
R—Duluth, Minn.
B—Augusta, Minn.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

R-Gaffney, S. C. B-Cherokee County, S. C. G. O. No. 133, W. D. 1918.

R—Greeneastle, Pa. B—Charleston, W Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Phillips, Sylvester (1038936)______ Near Greves Farm, France, July 14,

R—Des Moines, Iowa. B—Chisholm, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Mobridge, S. Dak. B—Greece. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PHIPPS, GEORGE T Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Evansville, Ind. B—Waverly, Ky. G. O. No. 71, W. D. 1919.

R-New York, N. Y. B-Italy. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

19, 1918. R—North Bergen, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Pickering, Woodell A.

In the Champagne sector, France, Sept. 26-Oct. 1, 1918.
R-New York, N. Y.
B-Walla Walla, Wash.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PIERCE, CHESTER O. (550846) Near Moulins, France, July 15, 1918. R—Carthage, N. Y. B—Gardiner, Me. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920. First licutenant, pilot, 50th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Lieutenant Phillips, pilot, accompanied by Lieut. Mitchell H. Brown, observer, while on a reconnaissance for the 78th Division, attacked an enemy balloon and forced it to descend, and was in turn attacked by 3 enemy planes (Fokker type). The incendiary bullets from the enemy's machines set the signal rockets in the observer's cockpit after. Disregarding the possibility of going down in flames, Lieutenant Phillips maneuvered his plane so that his observer was able to fire on and destroy 1 enemy plane and drive the others away. He then handed his fire extinguisher to Lieutenant Brown, who extinguished the flames. They completed their mission and secured valuable information.

Sergeant, Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.

After all telephone communication had been severed on account of heavy enemy shellfire, Sergeant Phillips volunteered and carried a very important message through an extremely heavy hombardment. Although wounded while carrying out his mission, he refused medical attention until the message had been delivered.

Private, Company F, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
When his company was about to reach its objective, a sunken road, the company was sweet by enfilading fire from several hostile machine guns. Upon his own initiative this soldier jumped down the bank, mounted his automatic rifle in the center of the road in the face of the enemy's fire, and opened fire, sweeping the parapets of the hostile positions with well-directed fire. His act resulted in the capture of the 30 Gemans occupying the post.

First sergeant, Company B, 316th Infantry, 79th Division. During the entire 4 days of action he exposed himself to the dangers of artillery and machine-gun fire, assisting in every way possible to insure the success of the advance. He made repeated trips to the rear, and either urged his comrades forward or led them up to their positions. So strenuously did he labor during the entire action that at the end of the fourth day he was so exhausted from strain and shell shock that he was taken from the field.

Private, Battery E, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

He was acting as telephone operator at a guu in a detached position when all the crew became casualties. With another soldier he courageously continued to fire the piece under the heaviest bombardment until it was struck by a shell and he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Phillips.

Sergeant, Company L, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.
He rendered excellent service on patrols, and, by volunteering his services for an expedition into the German lines, he captured several machine guns and rendered great assistance to the wounded by giving first aid in the absence of medical personnel.

First lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Remaining on duty after his right elbow had been shattered by a machine-gun bullet, he personally led a company to the left and front, covering a flank that was entirely exposed. Being then placed in command of a battalion, he led a successful attack upon a strong enemy position, showing marked ability as a leader and inspiring his men by his bravery.

Private, Headquarters Company, 319th Infantry, 80th Division.

For 2 days and 2 nights he repeatedly exposed himself to heavy shellfire in directing and maintaining the battalion relay runner service. He rendered valuable service in carrying messages over fire-swept areas, directing wounded soldiers to the first-aid station, and locating anew aid station when severe bombardment necessitated its removal.

Sergeant, Company C, 312th Infantry, 78th Division. Sergeant, Company C, Jean Imantry, Nati Division.

During the operations of Oct. 17 he went through a heavy machine-gun and artillery fire to carry a wounded private of his platoon from an exposed position to a place of safety. A short time after he carried a wounded officer of his company across an open space of 80 yards and a stream, subjected to machinegun and sniper's fire, to a place where he could be removed by stretcher bearers.

Corporal, Company F, 310th Infantry, 78th Division. When machine-gun fire had held up the advance of his company, and all had entrenched themselves in places of safety, Corporal Piazzani noticed a wounded man about 250 yards in front of the line. Voluntarily and without hesitation he went to the side of the wounded man and rendered first aid. Upon his return he advised the stretcher bearers, enabling them to safely bring this man in, thereby saving his life.

Lieutenant colonel, 369th Infantry, 93d Division. He repeatedly exposed himself to intense shell and machine-gun fire, establishing observation stations and giving able coursel to subordinate officers. On 2 occasions he advanced under heavy fire beyond the assault lines to make personal reconnaissance and establish advance posts.

First sergeant, Company F, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. Sergeant Pierce led a counterattack against the enemy, who were deployed to attack. He fearlessly exposed himself to heavy enemy fire and by effective fire of his platoon forced the enemy to retire in disorder. He later took up a position which he held successfully against repeated attacks by the enemy. burg line, in France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Springfield, Mass. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

R-Buffalo, N. Y. B-Derby, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

R-Holdenville, Okla.
B-Watchwax, Tex.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Pierce, Thomas L.
Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 11-14,

R-West Baldwin, Me. B-Portland, Me. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R-Malta, Idaho. B-Clear Creek, Idaho. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

R-Dayton, Ohio.
B-Ulysses, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Pierson, Ward W______ Near Etraye, France, Nov. 8-9, 1918.

R—Somerton, Pa. B—Radeliffe, Iowa. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Pigman, Van Buren (2387456) North of Vieville-en-Haye, France, Sept. 16, 1918. R-Hindman, Ky. B-Ivis, Ky. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

*Pilcher, Luther W.....At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Chipley, Fla. B—Dothan, Ala. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

PILKERTON, ALVIN W ..... Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918.

R-Greensboro, Ala. B—Greensboro, Ala. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918.
R—Baltimore, Md.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PINE, HARRY W ... Near Haumont, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Jackson, Miss. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company C, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
While a member of a Lewis gan squad which attacked a superior force of the enemy, Private Pierce was severely wounded in the ankle. He refused to be evacuated, and although wounded so that he was hardly able to walk, he continued on in the advance, inflicting severe casualties on the enemy, until he was killed by enemy fire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Edward F. Pierce.

Private, first class, Company D, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

He left shelter, went into an open field under heavy machine-gun and shell fire, and dragged a woun-led soldier to safety. This courageous soldier was killed while advancing with his company later in the action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George Pierce.

Private, first class, Company C, 105th Field Signal Battalion, 30th Division. After the signal detachment of the 118th Infantry had suffered severe casualties and were no longer able to aid in maintaining lines between the 118th and 117th Regiments, Private Pierce rendered valuable services by keeping up the entire line of communication, working day and night under constant and sweeping artillery fire. Almost uninterrupted service was maintained between the regiments, owing in great part to his untiring energy.

Major, 325th Infantry, 82d Division.

Although suffering from a machine-gun bullet wound, he refused to go to an adid station, but remained in personal command of his battalion during the action. Upon receiving 2 other wounds 3 days later this officer again refused assistance, and remained with his command until the afternoon, when he was again severely wounded. He permitted himself to be evacuated only after he had given his successor detailed instructions and information.

First lieutenant, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
Lieutenant Pierce valiantly led his platoon in the attack on enemy positions before Very and Eclisfontaine. The following day he again led his platoon through ravines and approaches covered by enemy machine-gun fire, in the attack on the Bois-de-Baulny. He was killed by enemy fire while leading his men in this attack.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Fred Linden.

Corporal, Battery A, 322d Field Artillery, 83d Division.
When the telephone communications had been cut off he made 4 trips as a runner through severe artillery barrage and machine-gun fire, maintaining liaison between Artillery and Infantry.

Major, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. He displayed the highest courage and leadership reconnoitering the enemy's position under heavy shell and machine-gun fire. He was killed while in the performance of this act. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Harriet A. Pierson.

Sergeant, Company G, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.
Sergeant Pigman, with 2 others, rushed an enemy machine-gun nest, captured the gun, and killed the crew. He later exposed himself to heavy fire while leading a patrol which captured 3 other machine guns and forced 9 of the enemy to surrender.

Sergeant, 20th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, Jnne 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Modal presented to brother, W. D. Pilcher.

Pharmaeist's mate, third class, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
While he was dressing the injuries of a wounded soldier under heavy shellfire he was himself severely wounded in 2 places, but he refused to treat his own wounds until he had taken care of his patient.

Captain, Medical Corps, 2d Sanitary Train, 2d Division.

After a withdrawai of the line had been made, he voluntarily crossed an open field under heavy fire to a small wood, where he located a number of wounded men, whose injuries he dressed, and directed their evacuation without further casualties.

Second lieutenant, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Lieutenant Pine led a patrol of 8 men in an attempt to gain entrance into the town of Haumont, which was stubbornly held by the enemy. Working his way through the rear outposts, he encountered an enemy patrol near the entrance, attacking and defeating it. He then proceeded through the entire town, capturing and returning with 2 prisoners, as well as obtaining valuable information. able information.

PIRINOLI, MIKE (1645874) ___ Near St. Juvin, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Sebastopol, Calif. B—Italy. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

PIRTLE, JAMES J.
In the Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct.
4-5, 1918.
R—Carlisle, Ind.
B—Carlisle, Ind.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

6, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Turkey.

G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Pitts, William A. (98433) Near Sergy, France, July 31, 1918. R—Anniston, Ala. B—Carrollton, Ga. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

*PLASSMEYER, ALBERT J. (1952505)__ Near Brabant-sur-Meuse, France, Oct. 22-23, 1918.

R-Zelienople, Pa.
B-Pittsburgh, Pa.
G. O. No 71, W. D., 1919.

3-9, 1918. R—Ellis, Kans. B—Ellsworth, Kans. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

PLATT, ABNER H .. Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R-West New Brighton, N. Y.

B—San Francisco, Calif. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1920

*Platt, Chester Erastus______At Chateau-Thierry, France, June

6, 1918.

R—La Fayette, Ind.

B—Stockwell, Ind.

G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

PLATT, JONAS HENRY...

Near the Bois-de-Belleau, ChateauThierry, France, June 6, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y.
B—Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 15, W. D. 1919.

Near Chery-Chartreuve,
Aug. 14, 1918.
R—Green Bay, Wis.
B—Green Bay, Wis.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

PLAUMAN, HERMAN (261709)... Near St. Gilles, France, Aug. 3, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Romeo, Mich. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company K, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
When the advance of his company was halted by machine-gun fire Sergeant Piovano crawled to an exposed position and opened fire on the enemy, although a target for the fire of several enemy machine guns. He killed several of the enemy with rifle fire and so disorganized the enemy that his organization was able to advance with slight loss.

Private, Company E, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
When his company had suffered heavy easualties and been withdrawn he went out with another soldier in advance of our lines and under machine-gun fire to rescue the wounded. His companion shot down, he continued his work, though constantly exposed to heavy fire, carrying back 2 wounded men and the soldier who had started out with him.

First lieutenant, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.
Throughout the engagement in the Bois-du-Fays Lieutenant Pirtle led his men with absolute disregard for his personal safety. He walked up and down the lines under intense enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, encouraging his men and consolidating his position. His courageous example contributed greatly to the success of the operation in which his organization was engaged. He continued in action until severely wounded in the knee and was carried from the field.

Private, Company C, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division. When 3 infantrymen were buried by a shell explosion near Chateau-Thierry June 6, 1918, he fearlessly left shelter in face of heavy shelling and rescued them.

Private, first class, Company M, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.
Being informed that a wounded man was lying in no man's land, Private Pitts immediately volunteered, and, with Sergeant Collins, went to his aid. The intense fire of the enemy necessitated crawling the entire distance. While on the return trip the wounded man was hit by a machine-gun bullet and instantly killed, but these 2 men brought in the dead body, crawling with great difficulty over the shell-torn ground.

Private, first class, Battery E, 322d Field Artillery, 83d Division.
Though mortally wounded and gassed, he continued his work as telephone operator and linesman, repairing telephone lines and remaining on duty until ordered to be evacuated. His example of heroism and fortitude inspired ordered to be evacuated. His example of heroism and fortitude inst those working with him. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Albert J. Plassmeyer.

Captain, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. He repeatedly led his battalion against machine-gun nests, through terrific enemy bombardment, until his objectives were attained. During the process of the attack, when his men were being cut down by hidden fire, he personally located the gun and shot the gunner. His gallant example to his troops was an important factor in the success of the attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Andrew Platner.

Captain, 106th Machine Gun Battalion, 27th Division.
Captain Platt, while moving forward in the attack with machine-gun units, encountered a number of stragglers in a sunken road. He organized these men into a company and led them in attacking waves. Later he personally led a patrol which located and silenced enemy machineguns which were firing from a flank position.

Corporal, 45th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Lettie C. Platt.

First lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Seriously wounded in the leg early in the engagement, he continued to direct the operations not only of his platoon but of another. He charged and drove off the crew of an enemy machine gun, supervised the disposition and digging in of a large part of his company, and yielded command only when exhausted from real resulting of blend of the company. from pain and loss of blood.

Cook, Battery B, 121st Field Artillery, 32d Division.
When the gun crews of the platoons in the woods were forced to withdraw on account of the intense enemy shelling, a wounded man was left behind.
Noticing this, Cook Platten rushed into the woods, despite the continual shelling, and brought the man to safety.

Private, first class, Company H, 128th Infantry, 32d Division. After having just returned from a hazardous trip through heavy shellfire, he volunteered and earried a message to his company commander. As he was about to complete his mission the company commander was mortally wounded by a shell. After administering first aid, he reported back to his battalion commander, who, upon noticing that I of the runner's fingers was missing, ordered him to the rear for treatment. PLEMONS, RUSSELL L. (1309472) __ Mons, Rossell L. (13094221 Near Ponchaux, France, Oct. 7, 1918. R—Lenoir City, Tenn. B—Roane County, Tenn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*PLIMPTON, CHESTER H. At Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

Sept. 27-Oct. 10, 1918. R-Hartford, Conn. B-Hammonton, N. J. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Plummer, Charles W_____

Near Fismes, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—South Dartmouth, Mass. B—New Bedford, Mass. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Plummer, George, Jr. (1286157) South of Soissons, France, July 18-25, 1918. R—Bethesda, Md. B—Mount Ephrim, Md. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

PLUSH, LEWIS C Near Romagne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Pomona, Calif. B—Sumner, Mo. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Poe, Neilson Rear Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md.

B—Baltimore, Md.

G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

Pohl, George И. (302697)_ Near Juvigny, north of S France, Aug. 28, 1918. R—Mount Clemens, Mich. B—Mount Clemens, Mich. G O. No. 1, W. D., 1926. of Soissons.

Corporal, Company L, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
After seeing 2 other soldiers killed while attempting to carry automatic-rife ammunition through a beavy artillery and machine-gun barrage, Corporal Plemons volunteered for this dangerous mission and successfully accomplished it.

First lieutenant, Company F, 21st Engineers. Lieutenant Plimpton exposed himself to heavy artillery fire in order to direct the repair of a railroad track over which ammunition was delivered to the batteries. The enemy made a determined effort to destroy the line of comnunication and subjected the locality to intense and accurate bombardment for a number of hours. The gallantry displayed by this officer was an important factor in the successful completion of the mission assigned to him. He was killed by concussion of a large-caliber shell as his work was nearing completion.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. George A. Plimpton.

Captain, 39th Infantry, 4th Division. On duty as regimental adjutant, Captain Plumley left a place of safety, and going forward under heavy fire assisted in reforming the assault battalion, which had lost most of its officers and was becoming disorganized. During the following days he repeatedly crossed areas which had been subjected to heavy gas bombardments, and as a result became almost blind and greatly weakened by gas poisoning. He refused to be evacuated, however, and remained on duty throughout the night, rendering valuable assistance to the regimental commander, who had just taken command.

Second lieutenant, 101st Field Artillery, observer, 88th Aero Squadron, Air

Second lieutenant, 1918t Field Artillery, observer, sett Acto Equation, in Service.

Louis G. Bernheimer, first lieutenant, pilot; John W. Jordan, second lieutenant, 7th Field Artillery, observer; Roger W. Hitchcock, second lieutenant, pilot; James S. D. Burns, deceased, second lieutenant, 165th Infantry, observer; Joel H. McClendon, deceased, first lieutenant, pilot; Charles W. Plummer, deceased, second lieutenant, 101st Field Artillery, observer; Philip R. Babcock, first lieutenant, pilot; and Joseph A. Palmer, second lieutenant, 15th Field Artillery, observer. All of these men were attached to the 8sth Aero Squadron, Air Service.

For extraordinary, heroism in action near Fismes, France, August 11, 1918.

neutenant, 1sth Field Arthlery, observer. All of these men were attached to the 8sth Aero Squadron, Air Service.

For extraordinary heroism in action near Fismes, France, August 11, 1918. Under the protection of 3 pursuit planes, each carrying a pilot and an observer, Lieutenants Bernheimer and Jordan, in charge of a photo plane, carried out successfully a hazardous photographic mission over the enemy's lines to the River Alsne. The 4 American ships were attacked by 12 enemy battle planes. Lieutenant Bernheimer, by coolly and skillfully maneuvering his ship, and Lieutenant Jordan, by accurate operation of his machine gun, in spite of wounds in the shoulder and leg, aided materially in the victory which came to the American ships, and returned safely with 36 valuable photographs. The pursuit plane operated by Lieutenants Hitchcock and Burns was disabled while these 2 officers were fighting effectively. Lieutenant Burns was mortally wounded and his body lammed the controls. After a headlong fall of 2,500 meters, Lieutenant Hitchcock succeeded in regaining control of this plane and piloted it back to his airdrome. Lieutenants McClendon and Plummer were shot down and killed after a vigorous combat with 5 of the enemy's planes. Lieutenants Babcock and Palmer, by gallant and skillful fighting, aided in driving off the German planes and were materially responsible for the successful execution of the photographic mission. photographic mission.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry W. Plummer.

Private, Company L, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. He distinguished himself by volunteering 3 times to carry messages through _heavy shellfire after all runners had been killed or wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Kate Plummer.

First lieutenant, 49th Aero Squadron, Air Service. He was a member of a patrol of 7 machines which attacked 17 enemy Fokkers. After shooting down 1 of the enemy, this officer returned to the fight and shot down another.

Second licutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the attack of his organization, after he had been severely wounded, Licutenant Poe refused to be evacuated, but rejoined his organization and went forward to the attack through heavy enemy fire. The company commander being killed, Licutenant Poe took command of the company and continued to direct it until the day's objective was reached. Although suffering great pain, he remained with his organization for more than 24 hours efter he was wanted. hours after he was wounded.

Corporal, Company G, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
He was severely wounded during the first stage of the advance, but he remained with his company until the objective was gained. He then went to the rear, where his wound was dressed, and he was ordered to a hospital. When his evacuation was delayed by lack of ambulances, this soldier decided to return to the front line, where he reported to his commanding officer and volunteered to assist in carrying wounded to a dressing station. During the remainder of the operation, in spite of his wounds, he continued to assist in bringing the wounded in from a field constantly swept by machine-gun fire.

Poillon, John J. (1783996)_____ Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Milford, Pa.
B—Milford, Pa.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Polaska, Edward P. (322951).....In Shkotovo and Suehan campaign, Siberia, May 20, 1919, to July 20,

R—South Bend, Ind. B—Saginaw, Mich. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

July 15, 1918.

R—Old Mines, Mo.

B—Old Mines, Mo.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

POLLARD, RUSSELL (1967745) ... At Bois-Frehaut, France, Nov. 10, 1918.

R—Anadarko, Okla. B—Annona, Tex. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

POLLEY, BRITTON ... Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Circleville, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Pollinger, Frank J. (1683693)_____ Near Charlevaux, France, Oct. 3-7,

R-Worcester, Mass. B-Worcester, Mass. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Mangum, Okla. B—Llano, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

POORE, BENJAMIN A ... e France, RE, BENJAMIN A
At Bois-des-Septsarges, France,
Sept. 27, 1918, and at Bois-du-Fays,
France, Oct. 11, 1918.
R.—Fitchburg, Mass.
B—Center, Ala.
G, O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service medal also

awarded.

France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Durham, N. C.
B—Sampson County, N. C.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company C, 311th Machine Gun Battaliou, 79th Division.
Although engaged as company clerk, when the platoon to which he was attached was required to advance over a heavily shelled territory, Corporal Poillon volunteered and carried messages from his company commander to the platoon, the journey being made under the most hazardous conditions and under Private, first class, Headquarters Company, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. He volunteered and went forward to recover the trail of a 37-millimeter gun, despite the great danger of heavy machine-gun fire; he succeeded in recovering and dragging it back to our lines.

Sergeant, Company D, 31st Infantry.

He commanded a platoon of his company during the entire period and led it in 5 different engagements. Hardships were undergone which tested discipline severely, through all of which Sergeant Polaska maintained perfect control, held his platoon at a high state of efficiency, and displayed extraordinary skill in handling it while actually in action, notably at Sitsa, Siberia, June 26, 1919, and at Kazanka, Siberia, July 3, 1919.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
After seeing many of his comrades killed or wounded in attempting the samo mission, Corporal Politte went forward under heavy shell and gas bombardment and repaired telephone lines.

Corporal, Company H, 365th Infantry, 92d Division.
During the assault at Bois-Frehaut, Corporal Pollard, a rifle grenadier, conducted his squad skillfully in firing on hostile machine guns until his rifle was broken. He then used his wire cutters with speed and skill under heavy shell and machine-gun fire. Although wounded in his right arm, he continued to cut the wire with his left hand, and assisted his men in getting through it until ordered to the dressing station a second time by his company commander. mander.

First lieutenant, Field Artillery, observer, 99th Aero Squadron, Air Service. Lieutenant Polley was assigned to a mission to find line troops of the division to which his squadron was attached. Weather couditions made flying almost impossible, a second plane assigned to the mission returning on that account. Flying at an altitude of 25 meters over enemy lines, he encountered and defeated 3 enemy patrols, gathering and delivering to his division headquarters most valuable information.

Private, Company A, 110th Engineer, 35th Division.

When the Infantry attack was held up by direct fire from an enemy concrete machine-gun emplacement, Private Polley, who was a member of a wire-cutting detail, charged the emplacement with 1 Infantry soldier, capturing 2 guns and 2 prisoners and enabling the advance to continue.

Private, Company G, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
During the period of 4 days, when his battalion was surrounded by the enemy and after his squad leader had been wounded, Private Pollinger took command of the squad, although he himself was suffering from a wound received 4 days previous. His indomitable courage and perseverance upheld the spirit and morale of his men under such trying circumstances and he continued to direct their movements until forced out of action by a second wound wound.

First lieutenant, 103d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Having been separated from his patrol, he observed and went to the assistance of an allied plane which was being attacked by 13 of the enemy. Against great odds Lieutenant Ponder destroyed I enemy plane and so demoralized the remaining that both he and his comrade were able to return to their lines.

Brigadier general, 7th Infantry Brigade, 4th Division.
At Bois-des-Septsarges on Sept. 27, General Poore personally re-formed his disorganized troops, who were falling back through lack of command and because of severe casualties. Under heavy fire, he led them to the lines, and presented an unbroken front to the enemy. Again on Oct. 11, in the region of Bois-du-Fays, he gathered together troops who were taking refuge from hostile fire, and turned them over to the support commander.

Private, Company C, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
He was wounded in action between St. Quentin and Cambrai, France, and after having his wounds dressed, he was unable to locate his company. He returned, however, to the front line, and fought throughout the day, locating and returning to his own organization after dark.

102444°-27-33

*Poplin, Daniel C. (2339323) Near Roncheres, France, July 29, 1918.

R—Charlotte, N. C. B—Charlotte, N. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

PORTER, CHARLES PULLMAN.
In the region of Epieds, France,
July 16, 1918.
R—New Rochelle, N. Y.
B—Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

PORTER, CHAUNCEY W. (2202524)...... North of Flirey, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Chambers, Nebr.
B—Brainard, Nebr.
G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

PORTER, CLARENCE R. (1867839) ear Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Pickens, S. C. B—Pickens, S. G. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PORTER, EARL W.
Near Lassigny, France, Aug. 9, 1918.
R—Atlantic, Iowa.
B—Atlantic, Iowa.
G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

*PORTER, ERNEST WASHINGTON (108602) _

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918. R—Newark, N. J. B—Rutherford, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

PORTER, JAMES E. (42309). Near Sommerance, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

2, 1918.
R—Dowagiac, Mich.
B—Dowagiac, Mich.
G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

PORTER, RAY E.

Near Rembercourt, France, Nov.
1-2, 1918.
R-Fordyce, Ark.
B-Fordyce, Ark.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

PORTER, VINCENT C. (1520649)..... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 26-Oct. 1, 1918. 20-0ct. 1, 1913. R—Canton, Ohio. B—Elwood City, Pa. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919,

Private, Company H, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. He repeatedly carried messages between his own and another company across an open field swept by heavy machine gun and sniper fire and was killed while on 1 of these missions Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Poplin.

Second lieutenant, pilot, 147th Acro Squadron, Air Service.
While on patrol he observed 2 enemy planes (Fokker type) about 1,000 meters above him. He immediately maneuvered to obtain height and a position for attack. The enemy turned and Lieutenant Porter gave chase and attacked from below, destroying 1 and forcing the other to retire.

Oak-leaf cluster Oak-leaf cluster.

A bronze oak leaf, for extraordinary heroism in action in the region of Foret-de-Fere, France, July 24, 1918. While leading a patrol he attacked an enemy formation of 12 planes (Fokker type). He engaged 1 enemy and sent it down out of control. One of his guns jammed, and while he was repairing the gun 2 of the enemy planes got behind him. Unable to repair the gun aud only to fire a single shot, he turned to attack, destroying second plane, and remained in the fight until the enemy retired.

Bugler, Company B, 355th Infantry, 89th Division.

He charged a machine gun alone with an automatic pistol, killed 1 man, captured another, and drove the remainder of the enemy platoon back along their trench, thereby enabling his platoon to advance.

Private, Company D, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
While his company was making an attack on the Hindenburg line, he continued a covering fire with his Lewis gun. In spite of 2 wounds from which he was suffering, he remained with his gun until his comrades had succeeded in crossing the line.

Second lieutenant, Air Service, U. S. Army, attached to French Army.
IIe, with First Lieut. Charles Raymond Blake, pilot, while on a reconnaissance expedition at a low altitude and beyond the enemy lines, was attacked by 5 German battle planes. Although wounded at the beginning of the combat, he shot down I of the enemy machines and by cool and courageous operation of his gun, while his pilot skillfully maneuvered the plane, fought off the others and made possible a safe return to friendly territory.

Private, 23d Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

While taking cover with the remainder of his gun erew from a heavy artillery barrage, Private Porter answered a call for volunteers to combat an enemy aeroplane. Upon reaching his gun he was instantly killed by an aerial bomb; Posthumously awarded. Medial presented to father, Ernest W. Porter.

Sergeant, Company C, 16th Jufantry, 1st Division.

During the attack on Hill 272, Sergeant Porter, with 4 men, exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire in order to attack an enemy machine gun which was causing heavy casualties among his company. Although all his men were either killed or wounded, he succeeded in capturing the gun. Due to his gallantry, his company was able to continue the advance.

Second lieutenant, 147th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
He, with 4 other pilots, attacked 12 enemy aircraft (type, Pfalz) flying in 2 groups well within the enemy lines. As soon as the enemy planes were sighted, he maneuvered to get between them and the sun, and with great difficulty gained the advantage. While 3 of the other American officers dived on the lower formation, he and Second Lieut. John II. Stevens engaged the upper formation in a bold and brilliant combat, 2 planes of which they crashed to the certh.

First lieutenant, 34th Infantry, 7th Division. He led his company in a successful assault on a ridge of high ground, taking several strong points and machine gun nests and numerous prisoners. He held this position for 30 hours without food or water against 2 enemy counterattacks until relieved.

Corporal, Company C, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.

Through he was acting as company clerk, throughout the drive west of the Meuse River he volunteered for service as a runner and also took charge of the delivery of rations under constant shellfire in a highly exposed position. He performed valuable service in giving first aid to wounded, and at one time carried a wounded soldier much heavier than himself up a hill through shell and machine-gun fire.

Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 107th Infantry, 27th Division. During the thick of the fighting against the Hindenburg line, Corporal Posser voluntarily went forward to locate friendly troops, and in doing so he was obliged to pass between two strongly fortified enemy nests, from which a deadly fire was pouring. Despite this obstacle, he communicated with the infantry and returned to his position.

Postmoy, ALEXANDER (541717)

Near Fossoy, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Detroit, Mich.

B—Russia. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Postula, John I. (1389506)...... Near Bois-des-Forges, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Clarion, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

POTTER, WALTER (1977989) ____ At Bois-d'Harville, France, Nov. 10, 1918. R—Jenkins, Ky. B—Dayton, Tenn. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

26, 1918. R-Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y B-France.

G. O. No. 107, W. D., 1918

POTTER, WILLIAM J. Near Eclisfontaine, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Scranton, Pa. B—Scranton, Pa. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1920.

Powell, George W. (1282737)...... Near Verdun, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Camden, N. J. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Powell, James T. (1247276).
Near Fisnnette, France, Aug. 9, 1918.
R—Bradford, Pa.
B—Bradford, Pa.
G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

POWELL, ROBERT E. (1246331) Near Fismette, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Corporal, Company F, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. After being seriously wounded by machine-gun fire, he remained on duty at his observation post at the river edge, so that the enemy could not cross unobserved.

Sergeant, Company II, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
When the advance of his platoon was held up by enemy fire, he advanced alone against a machine-gun nest and killed the crew. He brought back the enemy machine gun and the platoon was able to renew the advance. He showed marked personal bravery under heavy fire.

First sergeant, Company D, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.
When all the officers of his company had become casualties and the morale of the men was sinking, Sergeant Potter assumed command, and after reorganizing the company successfully led it in repelling several vicious hostile counterattacks. During the action he was wounded in the shoulder, but he refused to go to the rear until he was ordered to do so by the officer sent to relieve him.

Captain, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
Organizing his units just before entering the town, he advanced under heavy machine-gun and rifle fire, captured the town with numerous prisoners, and from his new position silenced several enemy machine guns. On the morning from his new position silenced several enemy machine guns. On the morning of Oct. 18, while he was in command, the 105th Infantry Battalion advanced about 300 yards and was stopped by intense machine-gun fire. His coolness and complete indifference to danger inspired his men to further advance despite the heavy machine-gun fire from the strongly held position in a sunken road immediately in the battalion's front, which position was promptly captured, together with numerous prisoners and machine guns.

Private, Company L, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. He volunteered and crawled out in the face of heavy enemy fire to attack a machine-gun nest. He killed the 4 members of the enemy crew, inspiring the men serving with him by his example of heroism.

First lieutenant, 20th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

A formation of 8 Liberty bombing planes, while on a daylight bombing mission on Dun-sur-Meuse, was attacked by a force of enemy planes three times its number. Lieutenant Potter saw that the observer's guns of the leading machine were inactive, while its pilot exerted great effort to control his machine. Under conditions demanding greatest courage and determination Lieutenant Potter flew in close to the leader so as to protect him from the rear. This position he held under ever-increasing enemy attack, and in face of the fact that his leader continued on into Germany. The conditions became more desperate, still Lieutenant Potter hung on, until his leader was finally able to make a turn about to the allied lines. On landing it was found became note despetate, sin Lieutenant Forter Indig on, that his leader was finally able to make a turn about to the allied lines. On landing it was found that the observer of the leading machine had been killed and had fallen and jammed the controls, making a turn impossible. Lieutenant Potter, by his courage and disregard of danger, saved the life of his leader and brought his machine safely back to our lines.

Captain, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

After being painfully wounded by a shell fragment during the night, Captain Potter refused to go to the rear and organized his company for an attack and Potter retrised to go to the rear and organized his company for an attack and led it in the advance under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, freely exposing himself and cheering his men by his presence until he was a second time wounded through the lungs, even then refusing to be evacuated until the company was organized and properly turned over to his successor for another attack which was then impending.

Sergeant, Company B, 111th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division. After all the men of his section except himself and 2 other soldiers had been killed or wounded, he took charge of a machine gun and remained in an iso-lated position for 4 days, keeping his men constantly in action and inflicting many easualties on the enemy.

Corporal, Company C, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
When a platoon of his company was held up by sniper fire, he, undaunted, voluntarily crawled through holes in walls and over roofs, located the enemy sniper, and killed him, enabling the platoon to proceed without further loss. Later in the engagement, when reinforcements and ammunition were needed, he volunteered and swam the Vesle River under machine-gun fire.

Regimental supply sergeant, Supply Company, 112th Infantry, 28th Division. While regimental supply sergeant, Supply Company, 112th Infantry, he voluntarily participated in the attack and displayed high courage and determination during the battle, assisting after the village had been captured in removing the seriously wounded across a narrow bridge swept by heavy shell and machine-gun fire. On the evening of Aug. 9, he voluntarily entered the most dangerous parts of the company's position and by his coolness and indifference to danger inspired the men of the command with new courage when they were sorely beset by the enemy, who had gained access to the village. Learning that an enemy patrol had entered a near-by building from the rear, he plunged into the building in complete darkness, dispatched 4 of the enemy, thus retaining possession of the building the loss of which would have placed the command in a precarious position.

*POWELL, TOM (2649392) ___ Near Beaume, France, Nov. 8, 1918. R—Hawkinsville Ga. B—Hawkinsville, Ga. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

POWELL, WILLIAM H. (1319097)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Oxford, N. C. B-Oxford, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Orange, N. J. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919. POWER, LLEWELLYN (1210299) _

1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Powers, Ralph E_____

At Ust Padenga Russia, Jan. 20-23, 1919. R—Amherst, Ohio, B—Mogadore, Ohio. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

R—West Depere, Wis.
B—Oneida Reservation, Wis.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.

Pozzi, William (72534) Near Belleau, France, July 21, 1918. R—Springfield, Mass. B—Italy. G. O, No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Prager, Benjamin (1244151) Near Fismes, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Pratt, Jesse W. (541923) Near Cierges, France, Oct. 11 and 24, 1918. R—Vanderbilt, Pa. B—Vanderbilt, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Pratt, John (95285)

Near Cheveuges, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R—Toledo, Ohio. B—Toledo, Ohio. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919,

Private, Company II, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.

Private Powell repeatedly carried messages under severe enemy fire to the various units in the vicinity of his company until he was killed while in the performance of his duty.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mether, Mrs. Eliza Fountain

Powell.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Private Powell took charge of 4 other soldiers who had become separated from their platoon and led them forward toward the objective. Attacking a machine-gun nest, they captured 7 prisoners and a Maxim gun, which they immediately put into action and fired 2,000 rounds at the enemy. They then continued to advance under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company L, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
While his company was occupying trenches on the outskirts of Albert, France, he, on his own initiative, left shelter and, creeping forward, worked his way through the town, though subjected to snipers who had been firing on our

Corporal, Company D, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

During the operations against the Hindenburg line Corporal Power, with 4 other soldiers, left shelter and went forward into an open field under shell and machine-gun fire and Succeeded in bandaging and carrying to our lines 2 wounded men.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

After being wounded he received treatment at a first-aid station, from where he was consigned to the hospital. Throwing away his evacuation ticket, he returned to the front line, where he acted as runner until the company was relieved, when he was removed to a hospital.

Sergeant, Company E, 30sth Infantry, 77th Division.
After 4 men had been killed or wounded, while attempting to deliver a message from the company commander to the rear, Sergeant Powers volunteered and carried the message through area swept by machine-gun fire with no regard for his personal safety.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, 310th Sanitary Train, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia).

While his dressing station was burning as a result of having been struck by a while his dressing station was burning as a result of naving been struck by a shell, Lieutenant Powers successfully evacatated all his patients, numbering 40. He then moved to a new location and continued to work for two days under shellfire until this dressing station, too, was struck and he himself mortally wounded, whereupon he gave orders that the other wounded should be removed first and that he be left until the last.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. H. W. Powers.

First lieutenant, medical detachment, attached to 308th Infantry, 77th Division. When notified that his colleague, Capt. James M. McKibben, had been wounded, Lieutenant Powless immediately went forward to his assistance. He crossed an area subjected to intense machine-gun and constant artillery fire, reached his colleague, whose wound proved to be fatal, and after dressing his wounds had him carried to the rear. Lieutenant Powless was scriously wounded while performing this service.

Posthumously awarded. Meda presented to widow. Mrs. L.A. Powless.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. J. A. Powless.

Corporal, Company G, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. He voluntarily left his trench and ran through heavy shellfire to the aid of a wounded soldier and earried him to safety.

Sergeant, Company E, 111th Infantry, 28th Division. Sergeant, Company E., 11101 Hagnery, 2801 Division.
On his own initiative and under heavy fire he led an automatic-rifle squad to a house far in advance of our lines and by purposely exposing himself at a window drew fire from an enemy machine gun, thus disclosing its position and enabling his squad to destroy it. After being wounded he refused to be evacuated until he had visited another portion of the line and assured himself that the position was well consolidated.

Sergeant, Company G, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

Though his platoon had been reduced by casualties to only 3 squads, Sergeant Pratt led it to the objective, and despite an intense artillery and machine-gun barrage succeeded in capturing a machine-gun nest which was enfliading his flank, killing the entire crew. On October 24, after all the officers of his battalion had become casualties, Sergeant Pratt assumed command and by daring leadership pushed forward the attack, successfully consolidating the captured position and holding it against repeated hostile counterstacks. counterattacks.

Corporal, Company L, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
While engaged as a runner Corporal Pratt saw 2 comrades lying wounded several hundred yards away. Despite the fact that the vicinity was being heavily shelled, he crawled out across the open field and administered first aid to both men, after which he carried them 1 at a time back to a dressing station.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

PRATT, LESTER L

In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 11, 1918.

R—Bellefontaine, Ohio.

B—Bellefontaine, Ohio.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

PRATT, ROBERT M. (2021896)

Near Enitsa, Russia, Oct. 17, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Ashton, Mich. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

PRAUSE, CARL W. T. Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Charleston, S. C. B—Charleston, S. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Prescott, Lee O. (2302171)

At St. Gilles, near Fismes, France,
Aug. 4, 1918 R—Lansing, Mich.
B—Spicerville, Mich.
G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

PRESCOTT, FLOYD W. (2302159)_. At St. Gilles, near Fismes, France, Aug. 4, 1918. R—Lansing, Mich. B—Leslie, Mich. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

Presley, Albert C. (2285324)

Near Eclisfontaine, France, Sept. 27,

1918 R—Grants Pass, Oreg. B—Rogue River, Oreg. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Hurricane, Utah. B—Albion, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Howe, Ind. B—Ontario, Ind. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Preston, John T., Jr. (198648)...... During the operations of Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 18-21, 1918. R-Mauville, R. I. B-Manville, R. I. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918,

Second lieutenant, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
He was untiring and fearless at all times in the performance of his duties as liaison officer. Under heavy fire he made 3 exceptionally hazardous trips with messages of vital importance when other means of communication had failed, volunteering for this service.

Assistant surgeon, U. S. Navy, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Although he had been wounded under the left eye, almost blinded by gas fumes, and his dressing station wrecked by shellfire, he remained at his post, working under the most trying conditions until all the wounded had been safely evacuated.

Corporal, Company M, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in north Russia).

In an attack on an enemy strong point Corporal Pratt led his Lewis gun crew in a gallant dash in the face of enemy fire, 80 yards ahead of the other members of his platoon. His section delivered an accurate and enfilading fire, which forced the enemy to retire. This act enabled his company to capture the entire enemy position.

Second licutenant, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
While leading his company in attack Licutenant Prause was wounded by shellfire, but he remained for 3 days thereafter, without medical aid, directing the steady progress of his command, in the face of the enemy's determined resistance.

Private, Headquarters Company, 120th Field Artillery, 32d Division. He with other soldiers made frequent trips to maintain telephone communication between battalion and regimental headquarters during a destructive enemy bombardment. All other lines had been destroyed. As this line was used by both Infantry and Artillery for a communication with the rear, it was of the utmost importance that it be maintained.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 120th Field Artillery, 32d Division. He with other soldiers made frequent trips to maintain telephone communication between battalion and regimental headquarters during a destructive enemy bombardment. All other lines had been destroyed, and as this line was used by both Infantry and Artillery for communication with the rear it was of the utmost importance that it be maintained.

Private, Headquarters Company, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
Sergeant Presley, with a patrol of 4 other men, went out to reduce what was thought to be a sniping post; they discovered upon arriving nearer that it was a machine-gun nest and attacked it by a series of short rushes. The attack resulted in the capture of 25 prisoners and 2 machine guns.

Private, Company K, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
He volunteered and went to the assistance of a wounded comrade who was seen making his way to our lines, exposed to machine-gun and sniper fire which infested the woods at our direct front.

Second lieutenant, Field Artillery, observer, 99th Aero Squadron, Air Service. Becoming separated from his protecting planes while on a photographic mission, Licutenant Preston continued alone, and, although he was attacked by 7 enemy planes (type Fokker), he drove them off and secured numerous photographs

Oak-leaf clusters (2).

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Remonville, France, Oct. 30, 1918, Lieutenant Preston is awarded one oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with his distinguished-service cross: He successfully accomplished his mission in spite of encounters with 4 separate enemy formations, one of 38 machines, another of 6 (type Pfalz), another of 7 (type Fokker), and a formation of biplanes. He shot down one of the enemy and returned with valuable information.

Information.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Cunel, France, Oct. 5, 1918, Lieutenant Preston is awarded a second oak-leaf cluster: While on a photographic mission Lieutenant Preston and his pilot were attacked by 7 enemy planes (type Fokker) and driven back to our own lines. They almost immediately returned to the same locality without the protection of battleplanes and continued to take photographs until attacked hy 5 machines (Pfalz type). They opened fire on this formation and brought down 2 of them and drove the others away and then returned with photographs of great importance. importance.

Sergeant, 2d Field Signal Battalion, 1st Division.
Attached to headquarters of the 1st Division as dispatch rider during the operations of Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 18-21, 1918, he courageously and unlesitatingly passed through areas under steady artillery bombardment to carry messages whose delivery was of vital necessity to the success of the attack.

PRETE, FRANK P. (1375582)

Near Bantheville, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R-Chicago, Ill. B-Italy. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

PRETTY, JAMES LEWIS.....

In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 17, 1918. R-Salt Lake City, Utab. B-Marshfield, Mo. G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

*Pretty, Saunders P. (549279)....... At Launay, near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 15, 1918. R.—Cincinnati, Ohio. B.—Louisville, Ky. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

Near Ecli 28, 1918. R—Geyser, Mont. B—Bay City, Mich. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

PRICE, EDWARD H ... Rear Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Louisville, Ky. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

PRICE, EDWARD J ... Near the Bois-de-Chaume, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R-Minneapolis, Minn. B-Duluth, Minn. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Ada, Kans. B—Ada, Kans. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

PRICE, THOMAS F. (1560327). Rear Hill 272, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Abingdon, Va. B—Asheville, N. C. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Findley, Ohio. G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

10-12, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Blue Island, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Battery B, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division.
Sergeant Prete 3 times passed through a heavy enemy barrage and machinegun fire while guiding a combat trainforward to an advanced artillery platoon.

Private, 23d Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, on June 17, 1918, he and a comrade left shelter and went 200 yards in the open under fire of the enemy and carried a wounded Infantry soldier back to his lines, thereby demonstrating heroic and voluntary disregard of self to save one who could not help himself.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. Private (First Class) Pretty fearlessly exposed himself to machine-gun and artillery fire in order to keep up communication between exposed machinegun positions. His work enabled the quick and accurate changing of our fire during a critical period of the action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Lena Pretty.

Private, first class, Company D, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.

A combat group had worked its way far ahead when the remainder of the line was held up by heavy bursts of machine-gun fire and the order to dig in and hold the position was given. Private Prevost volunteered to carry the message through heavy machine-gun fire to the combat group, which was still advancing. He delivered the order and returned with information which enabled the battalion to make dispositions for the capture of the line of enemy machine-gun nests and the saving of the combat group.

First lieutenant, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.

At the head of his command he charged and captured a machine-gun nest-defending the southeastern approach to Cheppy and was the first to enter the town. With his company of about 40 men he captured 4 guns and 154 pris oners. On the following day he led his men through direct artillery fire with only 2 casualties, due to his desterity of command. Later he was seriously wounded, but continued with his company until physical exhaustion prevented his going farther.

First lieutenant, 124th Machine Gun Battalion, 33d Division.
Upon learning that a counterattack had been launched against the battalion on his right flank, Lieutenant Price took his platoon into action in advance of the Infantry and broke up the counterattack. There being no officers present with the Infantry unit to which he was attached, he assumed command, reorganized it, and led it forward, designating targets and ranges and going up and down the line to direct the operation.

Private, Battery F, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers, Private Price, with 8 other soldiers, manned 2 guns of a French battery which had been deserted by the French during the unprecedented fire after many casualties had been inflicted on their forces. For 2 hours he remained at his post and poured an effective fire into the ranks of the enemy.

Private, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
He volunteered and led a patrol of 4 men against an enemy machine gun which was inflicting severe losses on his ranks. He successfully accomplished the silencing of the gun.

Second lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division. While in command of an important post near Badonviller, France, on May 26, 1918, he displayed courage, judgment, and devotion to duty in heroically defending his position against a large force of the enemy, continuing to perform his duty after having been badly gassed. Died May 29, 1918, as a result of the gas poisoning. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emerson Priddy.

First lieutenant, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Acting on his own initiative, he led a patrol of 3 which penetrated the enemy line and after killing 3 Germans returned with 3 prisoners, 1 machine gun, and 1 automatic rifle. When the commander of the company on his left was killed, Lieutenant Pride assumed command and consolidated the position, repulsing 2 counterattacks in which the enemy lost 75 dead and wounded and 10 prisoners.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 358th Infantry, 90th Division. He disregarded personal danger by going 600 yards beyond the front lines and with the aid of a soldier carried back a wounded man to shelter. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Wilma Priest.

1918.

R—Athens, Pa. B—Lawrenceville, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

PROCTOR, HAROLD F. (210586)

Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R—Amesbury, Mass.
B—Westfield, Mass.
G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Catlettshurg, Ky. B—Montgomery, W. Va. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Iola, Ill. B—Iola, Ill. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

PRUITT, PINK S. (1309035)

Near Vaux-Andigny, Molain Ribeauville, France, Oct. 17, 1918.

R—Rossville, Tenn.
B—Rossville, Tenn.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*PRYOR, JOHN P.
During the Meuse-Argonne offensive, near Exermont, France, Oct. 4-6, 1918.
R-El Paso, Tex.
B-Alexandria, Va.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Puchajda, Edward (1245040)... North of Courlandon, France, Sept. 6-7, 1918. R—Carnegie, Pa. B—Carnegie, Pa. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

Pulker, Howard C. (254037) Near Suippes, France, July 14-15, 1918.

R—Sharon, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

Pullen, Daniel D.
In the Bois-de-Cuisy, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Skagway, Alaska. B—La Push, Wash. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

Pullono, Clemente R. (2469867)... Near Cunel, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Italy.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

PURCELL, HOMER (41882).

Near Hill 272, north of Fleville,
France, Oct. 11, 1918.
R—Oklahoma City, Okla.
B—Dallas, Tex.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Sergeant, Company D, 14th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. Though he was greatly fatigued from walking 30 kilometers in an effort to locate his company, from which he had become separated, Sergeant Pritchard organized a squad of men, who had also become separated from their organizations, and advancing with them for more than 9 kilometers, took up a position in advance of the infantry and directed effective machine-gun fire against the enemy, breaking up a hostile counterattack, until an enemy shell demolished the gun. Though he was severely wounded and suffering much pain, he conducted his squad back to Thiaucourt before permitting himself to be evacuated.

Private, Headquarters Troop, 26th Division.

Accompanied by another soldier, Private Proctor made his way far into the enemy lines to determine the location of an enemy emplacement which was holding up our advance. Having cut enemy telephone cables, he approached the nest from the rear and captured the entire personnel of the stronghold, consisting of 1 officer and 39 men.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
Throughout the 5 days of the attack near Soissons, France, July 18-22, 1918, he carried messages through artillery and machine-gun fire and took water and ammunition to his platoon over ground then under heavy bombard ment.

Corporal, Company C, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

After a daring dash with his platoon across open ground swept by machinegun fire, he saw an enemy machine-gun crew preparing to open fire upon the flank and rear of his position. Single handed he attacked, using enemy grenades, and drove the crew into a digout. Bombing the entrance of the dugout, he effected the capture of 4 German officers, 64 men, and 4 heavy machine guns. With remarkable gallantry this soldier removed an obstacle that critically threatened a success already gained.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. At imminent peril to his own life, Sergeant Pruitt and two companions extinguished a fire in an ammunition dump, caused by a bursting shell, thereby preventing the explosion of the dump and saving the lives of a large number of men who were in the vicinity.

Private, first class, Company I, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

At the starting of the attack Private Pruitt was painfully wounded in the arm. Disregarding his sufferings, he continued with the advance of his company, remaining with them throughout the day, until the objective was reached.

Captain, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.

Attacked by Spanish influenza he refused to leave his command for medical treatment because of the heavy casualties among the officers of the battalion to which his company was attached. Captain Pryor remained with his command, participating in the heavy fighting around Exermont and Hill 240, inspiring his men through his conspicuous bravery and indomitable will until he collapsed upon the field of battle, and was carried from the field, dying while en route to the hospital.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to aunt, Mrs. A. P. Krause.

Private, Company H, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

Private Puchajda repeatedly exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire in order to carry messages to his company commander across an area raked continuously by enemy fire. He accomplished his mission and maintained communication after several other runners had been killed in the attempt.

Private, Battery C, 42d Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps.
He, a chauffeur to whom no regular duty during the engagement had been assigned, voluntarily assisted in carrying wounded French and American soldiers to safety under severe bombardment. At one time he gave aid to a severely wounded soldier who was carrying a message to the battery commander, assisting him in performing his mission. When orders to withdraw were received he continued valiant services.

Lieutenant colonel, Tank Corps. Colonel Pullen displayed conspicuous gallantry and leadership in directing a tank attack on the Bois-de-Cuisy, after which he rallied a force of disorganized infantry, leading it forward in the face of violent machine-gun fire and occupying the ground which had been taken by the tanks.

Private, Company C, 319th Infantry, 80th Division.
Seeing the enemy mounting a gun which when operated would sweep his platoon at close range, Private Pullono shot the gunner just as he was about to open fire. He also shot another German who attempted to fire the gun, after which he charged the position and captured the remainder of the crew.

Sergeant, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After his platoon had suffered heavy casualties, Sergeant Purcell led the remnants up Hill 272 under heavy machine-gun fire and surrounded a heavy trench mortar which was defended by 2 machine guns. In the encounter he personally shot down the noncommissioned officer in charge of the enemy gun. 7 of the enemy crew were captured and 4 were killed.

*PURCELL, WARREN B. (1098636) Near Preny, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Weikert, Pa. B—Weikert, Pa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Purpom, Thomas M. (2297238)

Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9-11,
1918.

R—Sparks, Ga. B—Sparks, Ga. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

*PUIDTY, ROBELL (1348297)
Near Sedan, France, Nov. 7, 1918.
R—Hanceville, Ala.
B—Blount County, Ala.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Marshfield, Wis. B—Shawano, Wis. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Purrington, Alden Clifford...... Near Bois-d'Aigremont, France, July 15, 1918. R.—Haydenville, Mass. B.—Haydenville, Mass. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

R-Minneapolis, Minn. B-Hickman, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Putman, Harry P. (1204804)_____ Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R-Fort Johnson, N. Y. B-Fort Johnson, N. Y. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

*Putnam, David E_____ Near Lachaussee, France, Sept. 12, R—Boston, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*Pyles, Adam II. (95180)_______ Near St. Georges, France, Oct. 15,

R-Lancaster, Ohio. B-Hocking County, Ohio. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

23, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Tuxedo Park, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

PYRAH, GEORGE W. (660663). Near Sommerance, France, Oct. 15, R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

QUICK, ARTHUR H. (125229)

At Villers-Tournolle, Cantigny Sector, France, May 1, 1918.

R-Kansas City, Kuns.

B-Kansas City, Kans.

G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

Sergeant, Company F, 56th Infantry, 7th Division.
Sergeant Purcell courageously led his half platoon against an enemy machinegun nest, capturing it, killing several of the enemy, and taking 6 prisoners.
He was later killed in action.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Minnie Purcell.

Corporal, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. Corporal, Company 1, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. Voluntarily assuming the duties of runner, after he had seen many others fail in attempting to get through the unusually heavy fire, Corporal Purdom repeatedly passed through the fire and aided materially in the success of the entire operations. When the supply of first-aid material had become exhausted he again went through, returning with sufficient bandages to care for the wounded, who could not, at that time, be removed.

Private, Company K, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
He was a member of a patrol sent out to silence machine-gun nests which were holding up the battalion's advance. When the officer leading the patrol fell mortally wounded, he attempted to go to the officer's assistance, despite heavy five from machine guns only 100 yards away, and was himself killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William T. Purdy.

Sergeant, Company A, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
Upon returning with his patrol after a reconnaissance of the enemy's line, Sergeant Purdy was calling the roll of his men and collecting their hand grenades when the pin of one of the grenades became disengaged. Seeing that the grenade could not be thrown away without injuring some of the men, Sergeant Purdy called on them all to run, while he picked up 3 of the grenades, and bending over held them against his stoniach. The grenade exploded, killing Sergeant Purdy instantly, but his presence of mind and self-sacrificing act saved the lives of his comrades.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Esther Purdy.

Second lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
When the German barrage preceding their drive of July 15 was at its worst, he volunteered to go through the barrage in Bois-d'Aigrement to secure hand grenades for the defense of a wooded rayine after the forward grenade dump was blown up. This was at a time when it seemed impossible for any human being to get through the barrage. Throughout the entire engagement he volunteered to lead a number of patrols, both to the front and flanks.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 360th Infantry, 90th Division. He voluntarily carried a wounded soldier from an exposed position under intense enemy shellfire for a distance of 400 yards to the dressing station. He then immediately returned to the position and helped to dig out men who had been buried by the explosion of a shell.

Private, Company H, 105th Infantry, 27th Division. He exhibited exceptional bravery in voluntarily leaving shelter, going forward under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and bringing back to our lines several wounded comrades.

First lieutenant, 139th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

After destroying 1 of the 8 German planes which had attacked bim, he was turning to our lines when he saw 7 Fokkers attack an allied biplane. Ho attacked the Germans and saved the biplane, but was himself driven down, shot through the heart.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. F. H. Putnam.

Private, first class, Company L, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
Seeing his comrades either killed or wounded, immediately after seeking shelter, Private Pyles, undeterred, continually volunteered and carried messages over territory covered by violent artillery fire, incessant machine-gun fire, and accurate sniping until he was killed by this heavy fire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Pyles.

First lieutenant, 103d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While protecting 3 planes on a photographic mission, he attacked and drove off 5 enemy machines (type Fokker). Later another German formation of 7 (type Fokker) was encountered, but despite the odds Lieutenant Pyne swung up into the midst of the enemy and scattered them, diving on 1 of the Fokkers and sending it crashing to the ground.

Private, Company F, 117th Engineers, 42d Division.
Private Pyrah and 3 other soldiers were detailed to cut wire in advance of the Infantry during an attack on the enemy lines. While carrying out the mission they were fired upon by a machine gun at close range, which killed 1 and wounded another. He fired into the enemy nest, wounded the gunner, and disabled the gun; then charged the group with his bayonet and captured 3 prisoners.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division. He displayed distinguished bravery in leaving his shelter during a heavy bombardment and going to the assistance of a wounded man who was lying exposed in the open.

QUICK, JOHN HENRY....

At Bouresches, France, June 6, 1918. R—Charles Town, W. Va. B—Charles Town, W. Va. G. O. No 119, W. D., 1918.

QUINN, HENRY E. (57664)

At Cantigny, France, May 29, 1918.

R—Swartz, La.
B—Anniston, Ala.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

QUINN, JIM. NN, 41M.
Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Memphis, Tenn.
B—Mayfield, Ky.
G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

QUINN, JOHN (1039034) .. NN, JOHN (1039034).
Near Greves Farm, France, July 15, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

QUINN, JOHN J. Near Bantheville, France, Oct. 23, 1918.

R-Annapolis, Md. B-Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Quiri, Robert (1762998) Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. Near Th. 18, 1918. R—Syraeuse, N. Y. B—Amsterdam, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-Russia.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

RABORN, JOHN (540752) Near Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 21, 1918. R—Augusta, Ga. B—Spread, Ga. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

RACHEK, JOHN. At Trugny, France, July 22, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Austria.

G. O. No. 130 W. D., 1918.

*RADEVICK, RADOVAN (2338005)_____ Near Grand Ballois Farm, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Montenegro. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

RAFALSKY, NISEL (1286789)
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 9-12, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md. B—Russia. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1919.

RAFFINGTON, CHARLES S. (5885).... At Lucy, France, June 2-3, 1918, R-Hutchinson, Kans. B-Phillipsburg, Kans. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Sergeant major, Headquarters Company, 6th Regiment, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He volunteered and assisted in taking a truck load of anununition and material into Bouresches, France, over a road swept by artillery and machine-gun fire, thereby relieving a critical situation.

Private, Company F, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

In response to a call for volunteers to penetrate a heavy enemy barrage and obtain definite information concerning tanks and conditions of enemy front line, he accomplished his mission to the imminent peril of his life.

Sergeant, Company I, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
He volunteered and accompanied a patrol which was sent out for the purpose of eapturing prisoners. Crawling through no man's land, he came upon 2 Germans occupying an outpost. In the struggle that ensued the enemy was overpowered, but the exploit brought forth a destructive fire of rifles and rifle grenades from the enemy, through which Sergeant Quinn successfully maneuvered back to his lines, bringing his captives with him.

Second lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

With a small platoon he attacked and captured a fortified French farmhouse in an open field. He so courageously and skillfully handled his men that this German strong point, held by 100 men and 5 machine guns, was promptly captured.

Sergeant, Battery F, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers, Sergeant Quinn, with 8 other soldiers, manned 2 guns of a French battery which had been deserted by the French during the unprecedented fire after many casualties had been inflicted on their forces. For 2 hours he remained at his post and poured an effective fire into the ranks of the enemy.

First lieutenant, 139th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

While patrolling the lines Lieutenant Quinn, with I other pilot, sighted and attacked 4 enemy machines (type Fokker). Several additional enemy planes joined the first 4 and, notwithstanding his great odds, he sent 1 machine crashing to the earth. Motor trouble forced him to drive straight through the enemy formation, and although followed and his machine badly damaged, he was able to outmaneuver and escape from his adversaries.

Sergeant, Company F, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.

Leading a patrol under heavy fire, he was able to protect an unprotected portion of his line until the next unit could take it over. He was at all times an inspiration to his men, continually exposing himself to danger, while assuring their safety and comfort. After having his legs blown off and receiving offer wounds, he gave all necessary information to his successor before allowing himself to be carried away. He died soon after reaching the dressing station.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles A, Quiri.

Private, first class, Company A, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
When the advance of his battalion was checked by heavy machine-gun fire Private Rabinowitz, with 2 other soldiers, went forward under heavy fire to reconnoiter the enemy positions. By effective rifle fire they drove the gunners from 2 machine-gun nests into a dugout near by, which they captured, together with 35 prisoners, including 3 officers.

Private, Company A, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
While making his way to a first-aid station, after being wounded in 5 places by machine-gun bullets and shrappel, he encountered 2 Germans. His own rille having been shot away, Private Rabora picked up a rille lying near by and shot 1 of the Germans, and in a bayonet duel with the other German killed him also, after he himself had been wounded again during the encounter.

First lieutenant, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.

Although he had been twice wounded, he refused to be evacuated, and continued on duty with his company during the attack and capture of Trugny under heavy fire until he was incapacitated by a third wound.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
During an intense shell and gas bombardment, he repeatedly volunteered and carried messages and assisted in caring for the wounded at great personal risk. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Gavio Radevick.

Sergeant, sanitary detachment, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

For extraordinary heroism in action near Verdun during the drive in which this regiment took part in the vicinity of the Meuse. He displayed great courage and presence of mind in attending to the wounded, not only of the organization to which he was attached, but also of those in adjoining organizations. The exceptionally valuable service performed by this soldier was done under heavy shell and machine and fire. under heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Private, medical detachment, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
During the day and night of June 2-3, 1918, he exposed himself to severe and continuous fire beyond the call of duty in order to bring aid to wounded engineers and marines.

RAFTER, EDWIN J. (1205410) _____ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

*Ragsdale, Irving Le Nois..... Near Beaufort, France, Nov. 4, 1918, and near Laneuville, France, Nov.

6, 1918. R—Portland, Oreg. B—Carthage, Mo. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

RAIBLE, JOSEPH C., Jr.
Near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 5, 1918. R—Hannibal, Mo. B—Hannibal, Mo. G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

RAIKOVICH, MATO (45749)
South of Soissons, France, July 21, R-Woodlawn, Pa.

B-Austria. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

Nov. 2, 1918. R—Akron, Ohio. B—Ryan, W. Va. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

RALEIGH, WALTER J. (258303)

Near Juvigny, nerth of Soissons,
France, Sept. 4, 1918.

R.—Menasha, Wis.
B.—Menasha, Wis.
G. O. No. 137, W. D., 1918.

R—Avoca, Nebr.
B—Weeping Water, Nebr.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1921.

RALSTON, SAMUEL J. (57507)_ At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

RAMPSCH, JOHN (43095) ... Soissons, France, July 19, Near 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Russia. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Waterboro, Me. B—Hiram, Me. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1926.

Corporal, Company L, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
This soldier while in command of a flank detachment of which all the members except himself were killed or wounded remained alone at his post during the entire night, and by his constant rifle fire defeated several attempts of enemy groups to develop an attack on the left of his organization, thus enabling his company to reorganize and consolidate their position. His indomitable courage and devotion to duty set an inspiring example to the men of his company and battalion.

Second lieutenant, 356th Infantry, 89th Division. Advancing across open ground under intense machine-gun and artillery fire on Nov. 4, 1918, Lieutenant Ragsdale killed an enemy machine gunner with his Nov. 4, 1918, Leater has again crossed an open field under terrific machinegun fire, killing 2 enemy gunners who were retarding the advance. On Nov. 6, during an intense shell and gas bombardment of Laneuville, he repeatedly exposed himself while assisting the wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Reina V. Ragsdale.

First lieutenant, 147th Aero Squadron, Air Service First fieltenant, 147th Aero Squaeron, Air Service.
Lieutenant Raible and 3 other pilots, at an altitude of 4,700 meters, attacked an enemy formation of 8 battle planes flying at an altitude of 5,000 meters. The German machines dived on them and Lieutenant Raible engaged 2 in combat. In a hard fight, lasting 5 minutes and finishing at an altitude of 3,000 meters, he shot down 1 of the attacking party and drove off the other.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Private Raikovich assisted in carrying a machine gun forward through intense enemy machine-gun and artillery fire. Placing his machine gun in action, he delivered an effective fire which caused the enemy to abandon the counterattack.

Private, Company C, 309th Machine Gun Battalion, 78th Division. During the 5 days of operations he worked without hesitation carrying messages through constant shellfire and acting as guide for ration parties, his information at all times proving most valuable and accurate.

Private, first class, Company A, 107th Ammunition Train.
During a heavy enemy bombardment a shell burst near 2 ammunition trucks that were being unloaded at a dump, blowing up 1 truck and setting fire to the other. Disregarding the warnings of bystanders, Private Raleigh rushed forward, cranked the engine of the burning truck and assisted in backing it to a place of safety while others extinguished the fire. His conspicuous bravery was the means of saving a large quantity of ammunition.

First lieutenant, 148th Aero Squadron, Air Service. First lieutenant, 148th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

Having engine trouble, he signaled his flight commander, left his formation, and started for the lines. Shortly afterwards his engine picked up and he decided to rejoin his formation. He found 3 of them engaged with 7 Fokker biplanes over Bourlon Wood. Seeing that 1 of our machines was hard pressed and in distress, Lieutenant Ralston instantly went to its assistance and drove 1 Fokker down into the clouds below. He followed directly behind the enemy machine and, as they came out of the clouds at a height of 3,000 feet, opened fire again on this Fokker at 15 yards range. The enemy machine made 1 complete spiral and crashed northeast of Bourlon Wood. Four more Fokkers now attacked Lieutenant Ralston, but he managed to get back in the clouds and return safely to our lines, as did the rest of his flight. flight.

First sergeant, Company F, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
He assumed command of a plateen of his company, efficiently leading it in the initial attack and inspiring his men to reach their objective, where they dug in. 2 runners having been wounded in an attempt to carry back a message calling for the lengthening of our artillery fire, he obtained permission to leave his plateon, voluntered to carry the message, and successfully delivered it to his regimental commander through a heavy German counterbarrage, the passage of the American barrage, and continuous and intense machine-gun fire, by which he was wounded. He repeatedly refused to be evacuated to the rear, though a serious counterattack was in progress, remaining at regimental backguarters until his recovery. ing at regimental headquarters until his recovery.

Sergeant, Company G, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

During offensive operations near Soissons he was severely wounded in the neck, but continued to lead his platoon until forced to retire from loss of blood.

Corporal, Company D, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. Under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire he displayed exceptional bravery in locating machine-gun nests.

Nov. 2, 1918.

R—Cedar Vale, Kans. B—Cedar Vale, Kans. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

RAMSEY, HENRY (2260593)...

During the Meuse-Argonne offersive, France, Sept. 26-29, 1918.

R—New Bedford, Mass.

B—Virgie, Ky.

G. O. Nos. 2 and 46, W. D., 1919.

R—Grove City, Pa. B—Butler Co., Pa. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

RANCOURT, JOHN I.

Near Fismes, France, Aug. 9, 1918.

R-Providence, R. I.

B-Port Henry, N. Y.

G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

RAND, GEORGE E.
In Bois-de-Barricourt, France, Nov. 2, 1918. R—Vasselboro, Me. B—Detroit, Me. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Penn Yan, N. Y. B—Penn Yan, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RANDLES, HAROLD J_____In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June

6, 1918. R—Rochester, N. Y. B—Rochester, N. Y. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

RANSOM, WARREN A.
Near Missy-aux-Bois, G.
France, July 18, 1918.
R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923. Chaudon,

*Ranson, John O...At Ardenil, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R—Huntersville, N. C. B—Huntersville, N. C. G. O, No. 21, W. D., 1925,

Sergeant, Company G, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Sergeant Ramsey was leading the first section of a combat platoon when it encountered machine-gun fire of such intensity that the entire advance was threatened. Realizing the gravity of the situation, he stepped out into the open ahead of his men in order to direct them more effectively, inspiring them by his bravery. He was seriously wounded a few minutes later.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Tillman Howard Ramsey.

First sergeant, Company F, 362d Infantry, 91st Division. For 3 days he kept his men well organized, and when he was gassed and se-verely wounded in the chest, insisted that other men more seriously wounded than he be removed from the field before he would permit anyone to assist him to the dressing station.

Oak-leaf eluster. Oak-leaf cluster.

For extraordinary heroism in action near the Scheldt River, Belgium, Oct. 31, 1918, Sergeant Ramsey is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with the distinguished-service cross previously awarded, which award is published in General Orders, No. 2, War Department, 1919: When the advance of the front line was held up by fire from a machine-gun nest 300 yards to the front. Sergeant Ramsey, with 2 others, crossed the open field in the face of fire from enemy artillery, machine guns, and snipers. Charging the nest, they killed 2 of the crew, wounded 2 others, and captured 5, together with the Corporal, Company M, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.

During the attack east of Chene Tondu, when his organization was held up by a strong counterattack, Corporal Ramsey, in command of an automatic rifle squad, kept up harassing fire on the enemy from a position which was under heavy enemy fire. 4 members of his squad were disabled and I gun put out of action, but he, single handed, kept up a constant fire with the I remaining gun. His heroic conduct was a material factor in the successful repulse of the enemy.

First lieutenant, 103d Field Artillery, observer, 88th Aero Squadron, Air Service. Richard C. M. Page, first lieutenant, pilot, Air Service. John I. Rancourt, first lieutenant, observer, 88th Aero Squadron, 103d Field Artillery. For extraordinary heorism in action near Fismes, France, Aug. 9, 1918. These officers were detailed to fly without escert on a visual reconnaissance over the enemy's lines. They were attacked by 6 enemy battle planes 1,800 meters over Fismes. The Americans unhesitatingly fought this superior number of the enemy. Lieutenant Rancourt was 3 times seriously wounded in the legs above the knees, yet he continued to operate his machine gun and shot down 1 of the enemy planes. In spite of the fact that his clevator controls on one side had been shot away, Lieutenant Page skillfully maneuvered the plane throughout the combat and piloted it safely back to his airdrome.

First lieuteant, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
He led his plateon in the face of terrific machine-gun fire, capturing 4 machine guns and their crews, thereby facilitating the advance of the command. Over half of his men were either killed or wounded before reaching the ob-

Sergeant, Company A, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.

When the advance was held up by enemy machine-gun fire, Sergeant Randall volunteered and led his platoen, which consisted of only 8 men, under heavy enemy fire, in a successful attack on a machine-gun nest, outflanking and putting same out of action, thereby enabling his company to continue advancing. advancing.

Private, Company L, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

Accompanied by an officer and 3 other soldiers, he made a reconnaissance of the River La Selle, the journey being made under constant heavy machinegun fire. To secure the desired information it was necessary to wade the stream for the entire distance.

Corporal, 80th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. In delivering messages, he voluntarily chose the most direct route, although it was through a machine-gun harrage, to deliver information which prevented the bombardment of positions that had just been occupied. He took the path of danger to save his comrades.

Second lieutenant, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division.

1le accompanied Maj. John A. Crane, Field Artillery, on a reconnaissance of the enemy's position under intense enemy rifle, machine-gun, and artillery fire; the mission accomplished, Major Crane was seriously wounded while some distance in rear of Lieutenant Ranson and in plain view of the enemy gunners. Lieutenant Ranson returned at once to Major Crane, carried him to a place of comparative shelter, and, despite the heavy enemy fire, sought and found a medical officer, whom he led to the wounded officer. Again leaving shelter he secured a litter and with the assistance of two French soldiers carried the wounded officer to a place of safety.

First lieutenant, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.
When his company was held up by an enemy machine-gun nest Lieutenant Ranson volunteered and led his platoon in an attack on the position and while attempting to carry out his mission was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. John O. Ranson.

*RAPP, FRED N. (572451) _____ In the Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 6, 1918.

R—Alexandria, S. Dak. B—Clarke County, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918,

R—Gloversville, N. Y. B—Gloversville, N. Y. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

1918.

R-Reidsville, N. C. B-Rockingham County, N. C. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

*Rasmussen, Axel______At Rocquencourt, France, May 4, 1918.

R—Sherwood, Oreg. B—Denmark. G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

RASSMUSSEN, CARL (2250434)

Near the Bois-de-Brieulles, France,
Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Edinburg, Tex.
B—Louisa, towa.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

R-Manchester, Conn. B-Manchester, Conn. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

RATH, HOWARD G. Between Chambley and Xammes, France, Sept. 13, 1918.
R—Los Angeles, Calif.
B—Ackley, Iowa.
G. O. No. 123, W. D., 1918.

Near 1918. R—Oakland, Calif. B—Austria. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

RAWLINSON, JOHN W. (2246030) _______At Quinnemont, France, near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Kingsville, Tex. B—Corpus Christi, Tex. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

*RAY, JOHN. Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Raleigh, N. C. B—Hendersonville, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RAY, LEE M. (556193) Near St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 5,

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

RAYKMAN, ROY (145213) ... Near the Cote-de-Chatillon, France, Oct. 26, 1918. R—Clam Falls, Wis. B—South Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919, Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 59th Infantry, 4th Division.

While exposed to an exceptionally heavy barrage in the Bois-du-Fays, Corporal
Rapp left his shelter and went to the aid of a seriously wounded comrade. He was killed by a fragment from a high-explosive shell while in the per-formance of this gallant mission.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Sarah C. Rapp.

Sergeant, Company G, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.

With complete disregard for his own safety he attacked singlo handed 2 enemy machine-gun nests, killing or capturing the crews. The gallantry and devotion to duty thus displayed greatly inspired the men of his regiment.

Sergeant, sanitary detachment, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Going forward to establish an aid post, Sergeant Rascoe, finding that the advance had already started, took his position in the front line, and, exposed to terrific fire, cared for the wounded until the medical department was brought up. Later, while bringing up rations, he encountered shellfire and, atthough wounded and knocked down, he quickly regained his feet and completed his mission.

attacks by the enemy.

Major, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. the proceeded to his post of command in spite of heavy bombardment in order to save important papers, and while thus engaged was killed by shellfire May 4, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Severin Rasmussen.

Private, Company B, 39th Infantry, 4th Division. Private Rassmussen, a company runner, volunteered and made 2 trips from the post of command of his own regiment to that of the regiment adjoining his own, passing each time more than a thousand yards under intense enemy machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, sanitary detachment, 101st Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. Although wounded in 3 places by machine-gun bullets, he followed the attack and continued his duty, thereby inspiring his comrades.

Second licutenant, observer, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service. Second neutenant, observer, 9th Acro Squadron, Air Service.
While acting as leading observer of a flight of 3 planes he was attacked by 15 enemy planes. In spite of the fact that his formation was surrounded by an enemy five times as large, he carried out successfully his mission and bombed his objective. In the return running fight he and his pilot continued the unequal fight and succeeded in returning to their airdrome with valuable information.

Private, Company C, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. With 2 other soldiers, he, on his own initiative, led a charge on an enemy machine-gun nest, and, although severely wounded, pressed forward, wounding 3 and capturing 3 of the enemy.

Private, Company K, 106th Infantry, 27th Division.

After assisting in repulsing a strong enemy counterattack, Private Rawlinson, with 2 other soldiers, became separated from his company, due to the heavy fog. Seeing a superior force of the enemy in a trench, they unlessitatingly attacked, and after killing and wounding several of the enemy, they captured numerous prisoners and brought them back to our lines.

Captain, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. Establishing his first-aid station in the front line, he advanced with the Infantry.

He continued on with the troops, caring for the wounded until he himself was so badly wounded that he was evacuated. He died from his wounds a few days later.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. John E. Ray.

Corporal, 39th Infantry, 4th Division. Corporal Ray, clerk of headquarters, volunteered and delivered important operations messages to the French regiments attacking on the left flank of the 39th Infantry. He made his way for about 1½ miles through heavy artillery, machine-gun, and sniping fire parallel to the enemy's line, located the French headquarters, and delivered the message in time to stop flanking

Sergeant, Battery A, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.
During a heavy bombardment of his ammunition train, when 1 man and 12 horses were killed and several men wounded, he displayed coolness and quick judgment in cutting loose the dead horses and straightening out the train. He then returned through the shell fire and searched in the darkness until he found all the wounded,

RAYMOND, FRANK H. (281485) ... Near Romagne, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Freemont, Mich. B—Kent City, Mich. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

24, 1918.

R—Newton Center, Mass.

B—New Bedford, Mass.

G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

RAYNER, IRA C. (2131428).

Near Nonsard, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Hollandale, Miss.

B—Durant, Miss.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

REA, LEONARD E. Blane Mont, France, Oct. Near Bl 4, 1918.

R-Auburn, N. Y. B-Auburn, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

R—Penns Grove, N. J. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

READ, ROSS E. (155611)_______ Near Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918.

R—Portland, Oreg. B—Turner, Oreg. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

REAM, BERTRAM LEE (108607) In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 17, 1918.

R—Elizabethtown, Pa.
B—Elizabethtown, Pa.
G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RED, HAROLD D. (1375415). Near the Bois-de-Bantheville, France, Oct. 30, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Abilene, Tex. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company M, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

In an attack on Cote Dame Marie, the 126th Infantry was held up, owing to intense machine-gun fire and grenades. Corporal Raymond volunteered as a member of a combat patrol which cut through the enemy lines, captured 10 machine guns, killed and captured 15 of the enemy, and forced others to surrender. They cleared that part of the Cote Dame Marie of the enemy, enabling the regiment to continue their advance.

First lieutenant, 27th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

He piloted 1 machine in a formation of 3 which was escorting 3 reconnaissance planes over enemy territory. On account of motor trouble, he was unable to keep up with his companions, and while thus detached was attacked by an enemy machine. In spite of the condition of his engine and his presence far within the German lines, he vigorously attacked the German plane and destroyed it, after which he succeeded in rejoining his patrol.

Sergeant, Company G, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

Although under fire for the first time and very ill with a high fever, Sergeant Rayner took charge of the platoon, after the platoon leader had been killed, and effectively directed it for 2 days, in spite of his physical condition, refusing to be evacuated until in a state of collapse.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He retained command of his platoon after receiving a severe wound, which rendered him unable to move without assistance, and would not leave the line until ordered by his commanding officer.

Private, Company K, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. Acting as a company runner, Private Reach voluntarily carried numerous messages under heavy machine-gun fire, displaying marked courage and devotion to duty.

Sergeant, Company C, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.

Sergeant Read led the advance of his platoon through heavy enemy fire in the attack against a strongly held enemy position. Although cut off from his company he continued to advance until mortally wounded. Prior to the performance of the above act he distinguished himself by volunteering to conduct and conducting ration details over routes exposed to heavy artillery

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emma Mary Read.

Private, Company D, 1st Engineers, 1st Division. He voluntarily went forward over an area swept by machine-gun fire to the aid of a wounded comrade who was entangled in barbed wire. He worked in a perilously exposed position until he extricated his companion and carried him to safety.

Private, Company B, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He and a comrade left shelter and went 200 yards in the open under fire of the enemy and carried a wounded Infantry soldier back to his lines, thereby demonstrating heroic and voluntary disregard of self to save one who could not help himself.

Sergeant, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. During the advance of the 43d Company of Marines Sergeant Reath, with great coolness and devotion to duty, attacked an enemy machine-gun nest killing 3 of the enemy and capturing the 2 remaining members of the gun crew, thus enabling his company to continue the advance. This heroic deed was performed by Sergeant Reath under intense enemy machine-gun fire, and greatly inspired the members of his company.

Posthumously awarded, Medal presented to father, Theodore W. Reath.

Sergeant, Company C, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.

On the night of Nov. 7 he risked his own life in heavy artillery fire, going from shell hole to shell hole helping his wounded comrades. On Nov. 10 he distributed rations to the men of his company under shell and machine-gun fire.

Corporal, Battery A, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division.
Under heavy shellfire he crawled 200 meters to a shell hole in order to draw a sketch of the enemy's position.

Corporal, Company M, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

He twice volunteered to carry messages from company headquarters to the battalion post of command through heavy machine-gun fire and artillery barrage. He assisted in gathering the elements of the company together after the assault. He volunteered for every dangerous duty and in broad daylight, in full sight of the enemy, dragged wounded to places of shelter.

REDICK, FRED C ... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 26,

R-Wooster, Ohio. B-Wooster, Ohio. G. O. No. 59, W. D. 1919.

*REDWOOD, GEORGE B. At Seicheprey, France, Mar. 28, 1918, and at Cantigny, France, May 29,

R—Baltimere, Md. B—Baltimere, Md. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

REECE, BRAZILLA CARROLL ______In the Bois-d'Ormont, France, Oct.

The Bois-d of Ment, France, Com-23–28, 1918.

R—Butler, Tenn.

B—Butler, Tenn.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

REED, CECIL E. (2201115) ... Barricourt, France, Nov. 2, 1918. R—Stratton, Nebr. B—Waverly, Nebr. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

*REED, EDGAR F. (2386954) Bois-des-Rappes, France, Oct. 14-16, 1918, and at Aincreville, France, Oct. 31 and Nov. 2, 1918. R-Kokomo, Ind. B-Nevada, Ind. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

REED, EUGENE B

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Danbury, Conn. B—South Norwalk, Conn. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

REED, GEORGE (1518646)
At Eyne, Belgium, Nov. 1, 1918.
R—Norwalk, Ohio.
B—Chicago Junction, Ohio.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

*REED, GLENN M. (2181356) Near Beney, France, Sept. 13, 1918. R—Grant, Nebr. B—Shenandoch, Iowa. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

REED, RAYMOND E. (1214619). Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Medina, N. Y B—Ridgeway, N. Y. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

REED, WASHINGTON. Near Pont-a-Mousson, France, Sept. 25, 1918. R—Wayne, Pa. B—Smithfield, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919,

Captain, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.
Severely wounded in the head and leg while leading his company, he refused to go to the rear, though he was ordered to do so by the battalion commander and attending surgeon, continuing in the attack and inspiring his men by his conspicuous bravery.

First licutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

With great daring he led a patrol of our men into a dangerous portion of the enemy trenches, where the patrol surrounded a party nearly double their own strength, captured a greater number than themselves, drove off an enemy rescuing party, and made their way back to our lines with 4 prisoners, from whom valuable information was taken.

Oak-leaf cluster. He is also awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with the distinguished-service cross, for the following act of extraordinary heroism: At Cantigny, France, May 29, 1918, he conducted himself fearlessly to obtain information of the enemy's action. Although wounded, he volunteered to reconnoiter of the enemy's faction. Although wounded, he volunteered to recommented the enemy's line, which was reported to be under consolidation. While making a sketch of the German position on this mission he was under heavy fire, and continued his work after being fatally wounded until it was completed. The injuries sustained at this time caused his death.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Francis T. Redwood.

First lieutenant, 102d Infantry, 26th Division. In leading his company through 4 successful actions he was twice thrown violently to the ground and rendered unconscious by bursting shells, but upon recovering consciousness he immediately reorganized his scattered command and consolidated his position. On several occasions, under heavy enemy machine-guu fire, he crawled far in advance of his front line and rescued wounded men who had taken refuge in shell holes.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 147th Field Artillery, 32d Division. While stationed in an observation post which was heavily bombarded with gas and high-explosive shells he assisted in carrying to the rear through this heavy fire another member of the party who was seriously wounded, it being possible to proceed only by going from one shell hole to another. After accomplishing this mission he returned to his post of duty under the same severe fire.

Private, first class, Company E, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
When the advance of his platoon was held up by severe machine-gun fire, Private Reed left cover, advanced across open ground, and opened fire on the enemy nest with ride grenades. After twice returning to obtain more gren ades, he succeeded with a well-directed shot in driving the enemy crew from the nest, whereupon they were killed by other members of his company.

Sergeant, Company E, 61st Infantry, 5th Division. On Oct. 16 he made his way through the German line, carrying a wounded companion. Although wounded and burned by mustard gas, he remained on duty, refusing to be evacuated. On Oct. 31 he volunteered and materially assisted in the holding of Aincreville while the defense was organized. On Nov. 2 he received a wound from which he later died, but he remained at his post acting as sniper for 4 hours.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Jane Reed.

Pharmaeist's mate, second class, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Divi-During a bombardment he four times crossed an area heavily shelled and subjected to machine-gun fire to render assistance to his comrades.

Cook, Company G, 145th Infantry, 37th Division.
After the remainder of his company had withdrawn, he crossed the Scheldt River alone, under terrific machine-gun and artillery fire, and rescued a wounded comrade.

Sergeant, Company B, 355th Infantry, 89th Division.
He voluntarily left shelter and passed through a heavy barrage to assist a wounded comrade who was unable to reach shelter by himself. As a result of this heroic action, he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Milton II. Reed.

Private, first class, Company F, 108th Infantry, 27th Division. With great courage he went through heavy machine-gun and shellfire to the rescue of 2 wounded soldiers, whom he carried to our lines after dressing their injuries.

Second lieutenant, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
Wounded severely in the knee while leading his company in action, he refused first aid and continued to his objective 500 yards away. Here he organized the position under intense shelifire and flank infiltration by the enemy When ordered to withdraw he used the stretcher which had been sent for him to carry back a dead soldier of his company.

*REES, JOHN (2258473).

Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Ellensburg, Wash.

B—Denmark.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

REESE, HAROLD L ... Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Mahanoy City, Pa. B—Centralia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Reese, John D. (1481842)

At Roche, France, Oct. 27, 1918.

R—Farwell, Tex.

B—Josephine, Tex.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Butte, Mont. B-Hutchinson, Minn. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

R—San Saba, Tex. B—Hillsboro, Tex. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

*Reeve, Charles B. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 3-9, 1918. R—Plymouth, Ind. B—Plymouth, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

REEVES, DACHE M ... EVES, DACHE M.
North of Avocourt (Meuse), France,
Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Atlanta, Ga.
B—Bloomingdale, Ga.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

B—Centre, Ala.
B—Centre, Ala.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

1918. R—San Diego, Calif. B—Ravana, Miss. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

R—Duryea, Pa. B—Duryea, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*REGAN, JOHN M... Near Cierges, France, Aug. I, 1918. R.—Boise, Idaho. B.—Silver City, Idaho. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company M, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

He fearlessly red his platoon in the face of a murderous fire in an attack on a machine-gun nest, and by his personal example contributed largely to the success of the attack by his platoon.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Paul K. Johansen.

First lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
During the unprecedented artillery bombardment preparatory to the great German offensive of July 15 Lieutenant Reese maintained haison between different signal units by visiting the positions during the bombardment. It seemed utterly impossible for runners to venture through this fire, yet Lieutenant Reese voluntarily led a detail through the barrage, and thus established communication, also encouraging his men to greatest efforts.

Private, Company L, 142d Infantry, 36th Division. Though he was suffering from illness and had been told to go to the rear, he for 3 days remained on duty as a runner, and, when almost exhausted, went forward with his company in attack, voluntarily accompanying a liaison patrol on a dangerous mission.

Sergeant, Company F, 316th Engineers, 91st Division. tergoant, Company F, Stoth Engineers, 918t Division. The volunteered to accompany an officer and 3 other soldiers on a reconnaissance patrol of the city of Audenarde. Entering under heavy shellfire, the party reconnoitered the city for seven hours, while it was still being patrolled by the enemy, advancing 2 kilometers in front of our own outposts and beyond those of the enemy.

Private, first class, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. He displayed exceptional courage in repeatedly crossing an area swept by machine-gun and shellfire to carry messages to battalion headquarters after other soldiers had been killed or wounded in attempting the same mission.

First lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

After his battalion commander had become a casualty, he assumed command and showed exceptional dash and skill in attack. When his battalion had been halted by heavy machine-gun fire, he commanded and led a charge through an open field, gaining his objective. It was during this charge that he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, C. A. Reeve.

First lieutenant, 9th Aero Squadron, Air Service

First lientenant, 9th Aero Squadron, Air Service While performing an important aerial mission in his balloon, he was attacked by enemy airplanes. He hung from his basket under fire from enemy machine guns until the balloon burst into flames, when he jumped.
He reascended as soon as another balloon could be inflated, although the air was strongly patrolled by the enemy. On Oct. 23, near Gesnes (Mouse), he was in the basket with another observer when a circus of 15 enemy airplanes made an attack from above. He remained in the basket until forced to invent This efficies though extractions here researching account planes made an attack non above. He remained in the basket than forced to jump. This officer showed extraordinary heroism by reascending as soon as another balloon could be made ready. Two hours later, while engaged in locating enemy batteries from his balloon, he was again attacked and the balloon burst into flames, forcing him to jump once more. In spite of these experiences this officer continued his mission in another balloon.

Colonel, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
On the opening day of the St. Milliel offensive Colonel Reeves placed himself at the head of the assaulting battalion and personally led the advance from the inception of the attack until the fourth objective was reached. He was constantly exposed to artillery, machine-gun, and rife fire, and, by his total disregard for personal danger, furnished an inspiring example to his men. On the following day he rallied a battalion of another regiment which had become disorganized and was retreating. Under heavy artillery fire, he reorganized it and sent it forward again at a critical juncture in the attack.

Corporal, 96th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. When a hand grenade was hurled into a group composed of himself and 5 other soldiers Corporal Reeves risked his life to save his comrades by picking up the grenade and throwing it out of the trench. It exploded a few yards from his hand, seriously wounding him in the face and head.

Corporal, 16th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Acting in the capacity of section leader, he rendered great assistance to his platoon and company commanders during an attack, and led his section in advance until he fell mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Frederick J. Regan.

Second lieutenant, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.

Mortally wounded by enemy fire while leading his platoon, he remained at the head of his men until he collapsed. He set an example of coolness and fortitude to his command, encouraging them by word and action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Timothy Regan.

R—Martinez, Calif. B—Martinez, Calif. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

REICH, LOUIS B.
Near Cierges, France, Aug. 1, 1918.
R.—Fort Atkinson, Wis.
B.—Rome, Wis.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Reid, George B. (145284)

Near Suippes, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Minneapolis, Minn.

B—Minneapolis, Minn.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

REID, THOMAS C.
Near Moulin, France, July 15, 1918.
R—Demopolis, Ala.
B—Hatfield, Mo.
G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

*REID, WILLIAM R.
Near Chateau-de-Diable, France,
Aug. 27, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*REIFIN, ABE (58040) Near the Meuse River, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Russia. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

REILLEY, CHARLES R. (2273734)

At Audenarde, Belgium, Nov. 1, and Nov. 10, 1918.

R-Jumbo Town, Colo.
B-Victor, Colo.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

REILLY, ARCHIBALD F. (89499)

Near Landres - et - St. Georges,
France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R-Richmond Hill, Long Island,
N. Y.
B-Morris Park, Long Island, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company K, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
Corporal Reggiardo voluntarily went forward with a squad of men to combat hostile machine-gun nests which had held up the advance of our companies. After the squad leader had heen killed, he took command, and directing a heavy fire of automatic rifles and rifle grenades, he drove back the advance German posts and cleared the way for the further progress of his company.

First lieutenant, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
Lieutenant Reich voluntarily went forward and exposed himself in order to draw the enemy machine-gun fire, so as to locate their position. He succeeded in ascertaining their positions, and while returning to his front line he was hit and severely wounded by a shell fragment; but, refusing to be evacuated, he returned to his organization and remained in action throughout the engagement.

Private, Company A, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
Engaged as runner, he constantly carried messages through a sector which was under intense shell and machine-gun fire and infested with sniper fire.

Corporal, Battery A, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.
While acting as gunner during the firing of a barrage, he was shot through the arm by an enemy machine gun from an airplane, but continued to fire his gun throughout the barrage. He was then evacuated in an exhausted condition.

Corporal, Company I, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.
When his platoon was held up by machine-gun fire, Corporal Reid fearlessly led them forward and captured machine gun and prisoners. Helater organized and consolidated the position won.

Captain, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
During a strong enemy attack on his company sector, Captain Reid fearlessly exposed himself to heavy fire in order to direct the fire of his men. He personally led two counterattacks upon the enemy, hreaking up their attack and forcing them to retire. Due to this gallantry, his company, notwithstanding its heavy losses, decisively defeated an enemy grenadier regiment and forced it to retire across the Marne.

First lieutenant, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.
Lieutenant Reid, while on duty as battalion adjutant, voluntarily led a small patrol into woods held by the enemy to ascertain the source of heavy machine-gun fire which stopped the advance of his hattalion. In the performance of this courageous act he was killed by enemy machine-gun fire. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William J. Reid.

Private, Company H, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
Private Reifin displayed exceptional courage in volunteering and going over open ground through direct artillery and machine-gun fire. Upon returning he again volunteered to pass through the same heavy fire in order to establish liaison between his platoon and company. He lost his life in attempting this hazardous mission.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Fannie Reifin.

Sergeant, first class, Company F, 316th Engineers, 91st Division. On Nov. 1 Sergeant Reilley voluntarily accompanied a patrol into the city of Audenarde, when it was still occupied by the enemy, obtaining important data on destroyed bridges and attacking an enemy patrol three times their number. He also captured a German spy while the latter was attempting to escape. On this same day he forced a sniper to cover, thus saving the life of his captain, who was about to be fired upon. On Nov. 10 he swam the Escaut River, braving the fire of enemy snipers on the opposite bank, and tied a rope to an enemy barrel bridge, thereby making a crossover for the infantry.

Captain, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Wounded and ordered to the rear, he nevertheless remained with his men in an exposed and dangerous position, which it was necessary to hold, near Villerssur-Fere, France, on July 27 to Aug. 1, 1918. His presence and example held his company fast against continuous fire.

Private, Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Private Reilly, with I other soldier, went to the aid of a wounded comrade who was lying about 50 yards in advance of our lines, in plain view of enemy gunners and snipers, and carried him through machine-gun and shellfire to a place of safety.

Corporal, Company G, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After being wounded Corporal Reilly remained with his squad and continued to lead it in action until he was again seriously wounded 2 days later.

in the fight.

July 15, 1918. R—Spring City, Pa. B—Knoxen, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

REINHOLDT, ROLAND R.
Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—St. Lonis, Mo.
B—St. Louis, Mo.
G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

REITER, CHARLES (1245045) ... Near Apremont, France, Oct. 1, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Duluth, Minn. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

REITERMAN, FRANK (53557) -Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Louisville, Ky. B—Hungary. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

Oct. 22, 1905.
R—Windsor, Conn.
B—Indian Territory.
G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

Renick, Fred A. (9412)

Near Beauvois, France, Apr. 4, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—Sullivan, Mo.
G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

10-29, 1918.

R-Princess Anne, Md. B-Princess Anne, Md. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Sigourney, Iowa. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Watertown, N. Y. B—Watertown, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

RETTMAN, LOUIE (545460)

Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918.
R—Hutchinson, Minn.
B—Hutchinson, Minn.
G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

REVELS, JAMES F. (2021610)

Near Oborzerskaya, Russia, Sept. 16, 1918.

R—Detroit, Mich.

B—Mt. Carmel, Pa.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

Corporal, Company D, 21st Machine Gun Battalion, 7th Division.
During a heavy barrage of high-explosive and gas shells Corporal Reilly assisted an officer to give first aid to a wounded officer and 2 soldiers after the platoon had withdrawn from that position. He went to the rear for medical aid and passed through the barrage the second time as he returned.

Private, Company I, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. He carried messages during a heavy German barrage until he was seriously wounded, when he showed great fortitude, his one thought being that his message must be delivered.

Captain, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.

Sent forward with 2 platoons on a reconnaissance mission, he encountered the enemy in force, but effected the capture of 13 Germans, including an officer. He then held the position he had seized for 3 hours, although subjected to fire that rendered three-fourths of his men casualties, until French tanks arrived, when, with the remnants of his platoons, he attacked and captured machine-gun nests inaccessible to the tanks. The stubborn resistance of anomy attacks which he preprinting was one of the deciding factors. ance of enemy attacks which he maintained was one of the deciding factors

Sergeant, Company H, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Sergeant Reiter and a companion exposed themselves to heavy machine-gun fire and advanced in front of our lines to assist a wounded soldier to a place of safety. In the attack on Ilil 244, on Oct. 8, 1918, after the officers had become casualties he assumed command of a unit and displayed unusual ability and leadership, until severely wounded.

Sergeant, Company E, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
As leader of a platoon he attacked a machine-gun nest, captured several guns, and held his position against vigorous counterattacks.

Second lieutenant, 22d Infantry, U. S. Army.
While commanding the leading troop of the advance guard of an expedition against Dato Ali, upon locating Ali's cotta, which was occupied by hostile Moros, Lieutenant Remington comageously dashed forward, leading his men, and engaged the enemy at point-blank range. In a pistol and rific duel he succeeded in killing Ali with his pistol, but not until 1 of Lieutenant Remington's own men had been killed by rifle fire from Ali. He then disposed his command, which in a brisk fire fight killed the remaining members of the band of Moros.

Private, first class, section No. 598, Ambulance Service.
On Apr. 4, 1918, he was ordered to drive his ambulance to a dressing station.
The road over which it was necessary to pass was under continuous shell-fire. On his way to the dressing station he received a slight wound. In spite of the wound, which was dressed at a dressing station, he resumed his post, and on the return trip a shell struck his car seriously wounding him and killing his passenger.

Corporal, Company I, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. During the advance of the 3d Battalion Corporal Renshaw was placed in charge of the battalion liaison group. He not only managed the group with skill, but repeatedly carried messages through shell and machine-gun fire. Although several times gassed during the succeeding operations, he continued his duties, showing utter disregard for his personal safety.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 109th Infantry, 28th Division. For 3 days, July 15-18, 1918, before St. Agnan, France, he went without sleep in order to care for the wounded and performed his work fearlessly without shelter under continuous bombardment.

Captain, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
Although his wrist was shattered and he was suffering from severe machinegnn wounds, he continued to direct operations for several hours, refusing to be evacuated until all the other wounded had received attention. After reaching the dressing station, although suffering intense pain, he gave full tactical information to his successor.

First sergeant, Company B, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

After company officers had become casualties, Sergeant Rettman reorganized the remnants of the company and took and held an important position against strong enemy attacks. His company commander having been left wounded in advance of the new line, Sergeant Rettman exposed himself to heavy fire in order to carry him to shelter.

Bugler, Company I, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia).

In the performance of this duty he passed through dense woods, exposed to artillery and rifle fire. Throughout the action he carried numerous messages to the flanks, always selecting the shortest route regardless of the dangers involved.

102444°-27-34

REX, NEWTON (1521455)______ Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Bowling Green, Ohio. B—Wells County, Ind. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

REXROTH, HARRY J. (2276437)_____

Near Audenarde, Belgium, Nov. 1-4,

1918. R—National, Wash. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

REYNOLDS, CLEARTON H.
Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R.—Garden City, Long Island, N. Y.
B.—Provincetown, Mass.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

REYNOLDS, EUGENE C. (2669321)

At Quinnement Farm, near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R-Brooklyn, N. Y.
B-Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

REYNOLDS, FRANK J. (2686) ______At Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918.

R—Lee, Mass. B—Lee, Mass. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

REYNOLDS, JOHN N ynolds, John N.
In the region of Verdun, France,
Oct. 10, 1918.
R-Washington, D. C.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

R—Berryville, Va. B—Kingston, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

RHEA, JAMES C. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

B—Hamburg, Iowa.
G. O. No. 120, W. D., 1918.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

Pueblo of Baccor, Cavite, Dizzon, P. I., Dec. 31, 1901. R—Delaware, Ohio. B—Delaware, Ohio. B.—Delaware, Ohio. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

Corporal, Company F, 146th Infantry, 37th Division. Leading a patrol of 12 men from his own and another company, he encountered 35 of the enemy in a ravine. Under a terrific enfilading fire from 7 machine guns, he led an attack on the enemy in which 5 of the latter were killed and 15 captured, together with the 7 machine guns.

Private, first class, 364th Ambulance Company, 316th Sanitary Train, 91st Division.

Division. He repeatedly showed utter disregard for his safety, in establishing and maintaining liaison between advanced dressing stations and battalion aid stations, and in searching the battle fields for wounded, passing over areas under heavy fire from enemy artillery, machine guns, and snipers. On Nov. 4, he entered the town of Audenarde while it was under terrific bombardment, made a thorough search for wounded, and later accompanied ambulances back into the terrific passing the property of the research the research of the research back into the town to evacuate the wounded.

Captain, pilot, 104th Aero Squadron. Air Service.
Although weather conditions made flying exceedingly dangerous, Captain Reynolds, with his observer, started on a mission to determine the position of the front-line troops of the division to which his squadron was attached.
Flying at an altitude of 25 meters, they encountered and defeated 3 enemy patrols and gathered and delivered to division headquarters very valuable information.

Private, Company K, 106th Infantry, 27th Division.

After assisting in repulsing a strong enemy counterattack, Private Reynolds, with 2 other soldiers, became separated from his company, due to the heavy fog. Seeing a superior force of the enemy in a trench, they unhesitatingly attacked, and after killing and wounding several of the enemy, they captured numerous prisoners and brought them back to our lines.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the fight at Cantigny, France, on May 28-30, 1918, while acting as a stretcher bearer, he constantly and fearlessly exposed himself to artillery and machine-gun fire to succor the wounded, frequently on his own initiative, when he might have remained in security himself.

Major, 1st Army Observation Group, Air Service. He proceeded over the cheiny lines without benefit of protection planes on a mission of great urgency. He flew about 12 kilometers over the lines, when he was suddenly set upon by 14 hostile planes. He fought them off and succeeded in downing 1 of the enemy. He continued his flight with his badly damaged plane and concluded his mission.

Oak-leaf cluster. A bronze oak leaf for extraordinary heroism in action in the region of Grand bronze oak leaf for extraordinary neroism in action in the region of Grand Pre, France, Oct. 29, 1918. While on a mission he was suddenly set upon by 6 enemy aircraft. Although in the German territory, without protection and in danger of being cut off in the rear, he entered into combat with the hostile aircraft. He succeeded in shooting down 2 of the enemy and dispersing the rest of the formation. With his machine severely damaged he continued until he had completed his mission.

Private, first class, Company II, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. He was killed near Villers-sur-Fere, France, on July 30, 1918, when he went out alone in the face of enemy machine-gun fire in a heroic effort to capture an enemy machine-gun nest.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Mary O'Donnell.

Captain, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. After Captain Reynolds had been severely wounded by a shell, he managed ther Capasin rely local and been severely woulded by a supreme effort to regain sufficient consciousness to acquaint his successor with the necessary information for the continuance of the struggle. His courage, under such great agony, set a most wonderful example for his men.

Colonel (Cavalry), Chief of Staff, 2d Division.

Colonel Rhea, with Licutenant Le Pelletier de Woillemont, French Army, voluntarily undertock an important reconnaissance under hazardous circunstances during the Masif Blanc Mont operations at a time when accurate information concerning our advanced positions was greatly needed and could not be obtained from other sources. In an automobile, whose conspicuous appearance drew the concentrated fire of enemy artillery and machine guns, they proceeded I mile across open ground to the town of St. Etienne, where our troops were in contact with the enemy. Under fire these 2 officers reconnitered the front lines, locating the position of the enemy, as well as that of the French units on the flank, and returned across the open with complete, reliable, and timely information of the highest military value in subsequent operations. operations.

Captain, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army.

He gallantiy and fearlessly led an attack on a superior body of insurgents with 2 men of his troop, killing 2 of the enemy and wounding 2, including their leader, and dispersing the remainder.

RHODES, NELLUS A
At Fismette, France, Ang. 9, 1918.
R—Meadville, Pa.
B—Meadville, Pa.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

RHODES, ROBERT A. (254216)

Near Chateau-Thierry, France,
July 20 and 22, 1918.

R—St. Joseph, Mo.
B—Aurora, Ill.
G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918,

RICE, ELMER V. (548068)__ E, ELMER V. (948085)
In the Bois-d'Aigremont, France,
July 15, 1918.
R—Alidland, Mich.
B—Kinde, Mich.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

RICE, GEORGE D At Bayan, Lake Lanao, Mindanao, P. I., May 2, 1902.
R—Medford, Mass.
B—Malden, Mass.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.

RICE, JAMES T. (570794)

Near the Bois-du-Fays, France,
Sept. 29, 1918, and in the Bois-deMalaumont, France, Oct. 11-13, 1918.

R—Seattle, Wash.
B—Carter County, Ky.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Paintsville, Ky. B—Paintsville, Ky. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

RICE, MATTHEW GEORGE (89240) _ At Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

RICE, WILLIAM M. (1284782)
In Consenvoye Woods, France, Oct.

9, 1918. R—North East, Md. B—Principio Furnace, Md. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Richards, Calvin D.

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Morganfield, Ky.

B—Morganfield, Ky.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
When the town had been taken by his battalion in the morning and was being held at night against terrific counterattacks in which our troops were engaged most of the time in desperate hand-to-hand combat, Lieutenant Rhodes, most of the time in desperate hand-to-hand combat, Lieutenant Rhodes, although a member of the battalion intelligence section, went into the most dangerous places and by his splendid courage bolstered the morale of the other members of the command, who were being hard pressed by enemy troops who had gained entrauce to the town. Learning that the enemy was coming through the back of a building, he bravely entered it, killing 4 of the enemy, and retained possession of the building. With 5 or 6 stragglers, he crossed and recrossed a street swept by hostile machine-gun fire and prevented the enemy from filtering through a hole which they had blown in the wall of the building. His courageous actions were an inspiration to his comrades in the desperate fighting.

Private, Company M, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
East of Belleau Wood he continually carried messages under heavy machinegun fire while acting as a runner. On July 22, near Epieds, he crossed an open gap swept by machine-gun fire in order to deliver an important message, and later was a voluntary member of a patrol which rescued wounded with the first few delivered recitions. under fire from advanced positions.

Second lieutenant, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division. He was wounded soon after the advance began, but refused to have his wound dressed for fear it would delay the movement. He bravely continued to lead the section until he fell from exhaustion.

Private, Company L, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. During the intense artillery fire preceding the German attack of July 15, after another runner had been sent with a message from the battalion post of command and had been unable to get through the wood, which was being heavily bombarded, Private Rice volunteered for this seemingly impossible mission and successfully accomplished it. Throughout the night he declined to take cover, but continued to search for wounded men, exposing himself to the bearingt fire. heaviest fire.

Chaplain, 27th Infantry, U. S. Army. With utter disregard for his personal safety he administered to the wounded under heavy fire of the enemy.

Private, first class, Company C, 8th Field Signal Battalion, 4th Division. While at work with a group of men maintaining telephone communication, Private Rice went out under heavy fire and carried to shelter a comrade who had been wounded by a bursting shell, returning immediately and repairing breaks in the line. During the action in the Bois-de-Malaumont, he repeatedly exposed himself to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire in order to maintain telephone lines for the Infantry, displaying remarkable courage.

Captain, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the advance Oct. 1-8 Captain Rice was severely gassed, and, although suffering greatly from the effects, he remained with his company for 4 days, after which he was forced to evacuate on account of temporary blindness.

Corporal, Company A, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

While acting as runner he delivered a message from the regimental commander to the commander of the assault battallon, crossing a level field swept by intense machine-gun and artillery fire, and though severely wounded returned with a message to the regimental commander who stated that all the runners had been killed or wounded and that he desired to send another message to the battalion commander. Private Rice promptly volunteered to carry the message and in accomplishing his mission was again wounded; notwithstanding which fact he again crossed the fire-swept zone and delivered a return message to the regimental commander. Private Rice was then carried from the field.

Corporal, Company E, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
Seeing a good position in advance of the lines, Corporal Rice took his automatic rife and crawled through machine-gun fire to this place, where he established an automatic-rifle post and called on his squad to follow him. An enemy counterattack was eventually broken up at this point and the line was thereby advanced to a more advantageous position.

Second lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

While defending a hill, Lieutenant Richards, with 7 machine gunners, beat off an enemy attack of greatly superior numbers, after a sharp hand-to-hand encounter with pistols and grenades. Although his small force suffered 4 casualties, he still continued to defend the hill, an important tactical point for his division.

RICHARDS, ELMER PRESTON (284865)...
Near Xammes, France, Sept. 18,1918.
R—Moundville, Mo.
B—Windsor, Ill.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*RICHARDS, JAMES N. C.
Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Riverton, Va.
B—Pertersburg, Va.
G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

*RICHARDS, SAMPSON (97564) __ Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oet. 14, 1918. R—Sanger, Calif. B—England. G. O. No. 131, W. D., 1918.

RICHARDS, THADDIS R. (1307008)..... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Maryville, Tenn. B—Pickens County, Ga. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Clifton Station, Va. B-Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

RICHARDSON, CHARLES E. (71000) ..... East of Belleau, France, July 21, R-Wakefield, Mass. B-Medford, Mass. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

RICHARDSON, CHARLES M. (1247262) ... At Fismette, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R—Bradford, Pa. B—State Line, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

RICHARDSON, JAMES M.
Near Grand Pre, France, Oct 6, 1918.

R-Nashville, Tenn. B-Memphis, Tenn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-Woodville, Miss. B-Woodville, Miss. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

R—Laurens, S. C. B—Hodges, S. C. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*RICHMAN, HENRY C. (52301) Near Vaux, France, July 1-2, 1918. R—Laporte, Ind. B—Daleville, Ind. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company D, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.
Knowing that on account of the intense shelling it would be impossible to supply the men in the front line with rations, Private Richards, in a wounded condition, procured a quantity of rations and carried them to the line through heavy shell fire, and personally distributed to each man a portion.

aptain, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Displaying valorous leadership throughout the attack on July 18, 1918, near Soissons, France, he was killed while charging enemy machine guns at the Soissons, France, he head of his command.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. James N. C. Richards.

Corporal, Company H, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

When his platoon had become scattered during an attack and his platoon commander had been killed, Corporal Richards, although himself seriously wounded, reorganized the platoon under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and turned the platoon over to the next in command ready for the assault before he permitted himself to be evacuated, thereby setting to his associates an example of utter disregard for danger and remarkable coolness and courage in the face of the enemy.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, William Richards.

Bugler, Company B, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

During the very thickest of the fighting Bugler Richards, assisted by another soldier, attacked 2 enemy machine-gun positions, killing the gunners and capturing the guns, thus allowing the further advance of his company.

First lieutenant, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

Leading his platoon in attack, Lieutenant Richards was subjected to fierce and devastating fire of enemy artillery and machine guns. Although he himself was wounded and 90 per cent of his platoon made casualties, he continued to press forward until he was felled by machine-gun fire after reaching the foremost position of the entire action.

Private, Company I, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. Under the leadership of an officer, he and Private Joseph R. Huntley charged a machine-gun nest, captured 2 guns and killed or captured 12 men.

Sergeant, Company C, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
Sergeant Richardson volunteered to go out in the open with a comrade, under hostile machine-gun fire, to rescue a wounded soldier. As they were earrying the latter to shelter he was again struck by a machine-gun bullet and killed, and the companion, also being wounded, was dragged to safety by Sergeant Bisbacters.

Second lieutenant, pilot, 1st Aero Squadron, Air Service.

He undertook an Infantry contact patrol mission under weather conditions which necessitated flying at an altitude of only 100 meters. Near the front lines machine guns opened an effective fire on his plane, and he was wounded in the foot, but he continued on the mission until the front lines of the American troops were located and his observer had written out a report for the division commander.

Major, 306th Machine Gun Battalion, 77th Division.
When the advance on the Tannerio by a company of the 308th Infantry was being held up by a heavy hostile fire, Major Richardson, then commanding the 306th Machine Gun Battalion, which had a platoon of machine guns supporting the attack, seeing that the attacking troops were wavering on supporting the attack, seeing that the attacking troops were wavering on account of an inexperienced leader and under a heavy hostile fire, with great gallantry and the utmost disregard of personal danger, took command of the company and led it through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire to its objective, which was captured and later consolidated by a skillful disposition of machine guns under his direction.

Captain, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.

Although badly gassed duning the night of Sept. [28, he nevertheless remained in command of his company and with utter disregard of personal danger twice led it in the attack on successive days and was not evacuated until completely exhausted on Sept. 30, 1918.

Wagoner, Supply Company, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Wagoner Richford was severely wounded by a shell fragment while driving a wagon containing rations and other supplies for his regiment over a heavily shelled road, but, disregarding his wounds, remained in charge of his wagon until the mission had been accomplished.

Private, Company M, 23d Iufantry, 2d Division. He moved through heavy woods alone under heavy machine-gun fire, flanking dugouts, from which 12 German prisoners were taken. In the action of July 16–19, 1918, near Soissons, France, showing the same fearless qualities, he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Clara Boram.

RICHMOND, CHARLES H. Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 5, 1918.

R—Boston, Mass. B—Charles County, Md. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Cleveland, Tenn. B-Cleveland, Tenn. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

29, 1918. R—Kansas City, Mo. B—Kansas City, Mo. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

RICKET, HARRY C. (95597)

At Chateau-de-la-Foret, near Villerssur-Fere, France, July 28-29, 1918. R—Columbus, Ohio. B—Spring Hill, Kans. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

R—Belvidere, N. C. B—Gates County, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*RIDDLE, LAWRENCE SCOTT (2661994). At Bois-de-Chaume, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Mattoon, Ill. B—Mattoon, Ill. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*RIDEOUT, PERCY A ... At Cierges, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Concord Junction, Mass. B—Ashburnham, Mass. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918. Corporal, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. With the aid of one other soldier, Corporal Richmond located and captured a machine-gun nest of 4 guns.

Private, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He unhesitatingly went through the heaviest machine-gun and artillery fire, dressing and carrying wounded. Disregarding his own safety, he refused to take rest or food while there were wounded needing attention.

Private, 139th Ambulance Company, 110th Sanitary Train, 35th Division.
After the Infantry had been withdrawn he voluntarily remained in an advance dressing station with wounded men, whose condition made it impossible to remove them, and worked alone for several hours caring for these men under heavy shell and machine-gun fire until he himself was wounded by a bursting shell which killed 2 of his patients.

First lieutenant, 94th Acro Squadron, Air Service. e attacked an enemy Albatross monoplane, and after a vigorous fight, in which he followed his foe into German territory, he succeeded in shooting it down near Vigneulles-les-Hatton Chatel.

which he followed his foe into German territory, he succeeded in shooting it down near Vigneulles-les-Hatton Chatel.

Oak-leaf clusters (7).

One bronze oak leaf is awarded Lieutenant Rickenbacker for each of the following acts of extraordinary heroism in action: On May 17, 1918, he attacked 3 Albatross enemy planes, shooting 1 down in the vicinity of Richecourt, France, and forcing the others to retreat over their own lines. On May 22, 1918, he attacked 3 Albatross monoplanes 4,000 meters over 5t. Mihiel, France, He drove them back into German territory, separated 1 from the group, and shot it down near Flirey. On May 28, 1918, he sighted a group of 2 battle planes and 4 monoplanes, German planes, which he at once attacked vigorously, shooting down 1 and dispersing the others. On May 30, 1918, 4,000 meters over Jaulny, France, he attacked a group of 5 enemy planes. After a violent battle, he shot down 1 plane and drove the others away. On Sept. 14, 1918, in the region of Villecy, he attacked 4 Fokker enemy planes at an altitude of 3,000 meters. After a sharp and hot action, he succeeded in shooting 1 down in flames and dispersing the other 3. On Sept. 15, 1918, in the region of Bois-de-Wavrille, he encountered 6 enemy planes, who were in the act of attacking 4 Spads, which were below them. Undeterred by their superior numbers, he unhesitatingly attacked them and succeeded in shooting 1 down in flames and completely breaking the formation of the others. On Sept. 25, 1918, near Billy, France, while on voluntary patrol over the lines he attacked 7 enemy planes (5 type Fokker, protecting 2 type Halberstadt). Disregarding the odds against him, he dived on them and shot down 1 of the Fokkers out of control. He then attacked 1 of the Halberstadts and sent it down also.

First lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.

In covering the right flank of his company he led his platoon across a pontoon bridge which was broken by artillery fire before the entire command had crossed. Without hesitation he proceeded to lead his men under direct machine-gun and minenwerfer fire, routing a large detachment of the enemy, capturing 8 Germans, 5 machine guns, and 2 minenwerfers, and successfully covering the crossing of the remainder of the company.

Cook, Headquarters Company, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
During a bombardment so intense as to drive all other kitchens out of the village. When his stove had to be taken to the rear, he improvised a fire in the ground and continued his work until ordered to leave. He carried water from a spring, which was repeatedly shelled, when others would not approach it. Unaided, of his own volition, he conducted a first-aid station for wounded and exhausted men at his kitchen. Constantly in extreme personal danger from machine-gun fire from low-flying airplanes and bombardment by high explosive shells, he devoted himself entirely to the needs of others and made possible the care of several hundred wounded, exhausted, and hungry men.

Private, Company F, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
When the position of his company had become untenable, because of enemy machine-gun and artillery fire Private Riddick, with another soldier, the sole survivors of a Lewis machine-gun team, covered the retreat of their company. Clinging to their advanced post throughout the day, they took up the advance with the company at dusk that evening.

First sergeant, Company I, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Sergeant Riddle, with 4 other soldiers, flanked an enemy machine-gun position, killed 3 of the crew and captured 1, together with the guns. He was sub-sequently killed while leading a small group of men in an attack on an enemy machine-gun nest.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Lillie L. Riddle.

First licutenant, Company D, 1st Gas Regiment.

He made an extended reconnaissance in advance of the outposts, fearlessly exposed bimself to enemy machine-gun fire, and was several times knocked down by exploding shells. The information he secured was valuable to the Infantry, giving them knowledge of the exact location of machine-gun nests. During the action this officer directed the laying of the smoke barrage from an exposed position, remaining at his station throughout the operation, in spite of severe shell and machine-gun fire, and continuing to display the highest courage until he was killed by shellfire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Helen P. Rideout.

R-New York, N. Y. B-Springfield, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

RIDLEY, JAMES A.
Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29-30,
1918, and near Mazinghien, France, Oct. 19, 1918.

R-Murfreesboro, Tenn. B-Murfreesboro, Tenn. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

RIECK, JAMES G. (1040).

Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July Near Villers-sur-Fere, Fran 27, 1918. R—Delaware, Ohio. B—Bowdle, S. Dak. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R-Meriden, Conn. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

RIEGER, JAMES E. Near Charpentry, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R-Kirksville, Mo. B-Peoria, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Riggio, Stephano (1688585)

Near Septsarges, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Rockland, Me. B—Italy. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

RIGGLE, GEORGE (1979810)_ Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Sellersburg, Ind. B—Sellersburg, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Oct. 14, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Colson, Ky.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Near St. Juvin, France, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

RILEY, CHARLES R. (1709722) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Binghamton, N. Y. B—Oswego, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*RILEY, LOWELL H.

At Ville-Savoye, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, Aug. 7, 1918. R—Orange, N. J. B—Orange, N. J. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

RILEY, RAYMOND W. (57550).

Near Soissons, France, July 19, Néar 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

During the final attack on Soissons, Lieutenant Ridgely, advancing in front of his assault waves, alone charged a machine-gun position which was delivering a punishing fire on our troops. He killed both gunners and captured the

First lieutenant, 113th Machine Gun Battalion, 30th Division.

Taking command of his company, after the company commander and second in command had been wounded, Lieutenant Ridley led his men through an intense artillery barrage and assisted in reducing 11 enemy machine-gun nests, capturing 150 prisoners and several machine guns, which were successfully put in operation against the enemy. Near Mazinghien, France, on Oct. 19, he led his company forward to advanced positions under terrific artillery for inspired his men by his company for the property of the artillery fire, inspiring his men by his coolness and bravery.

Private, medical detachment, 166th Infantry, 42d Division. Severely wounded while doing first-aid work, be declined to go to the rear, but dressed his own wound and continued to advance with his battalion, treating the wounded and assisting in their evacuation until he was sent to the hospital 12 hours later.

First lieutenant, 102d Infantry, 26th Division. When the advance of his company was temperarily held up by machine-gun fire in front of Bouresches he went ahead alone and, although hit 3 times by machine-gun bullets, he continued to urge his men forward, and by his example of fearlessness and grit inspired them to successful attack.

Lieutenant colonel, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.
He commanded the battalion which had, with conspicuous gallantry, captured Vauquois Hill and the Bois-de-Rosignel, and which was later held up for some hours in front of Charpentry by severe artillery and machine-gun fire.
He placed himself in front of all his men, and thus starting them forward led them to the attack with such speed and dash that a large number of the enemy were cut off and captured.

Private, Company K, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.
While his company was halted by machine-gun and sniper fire from the front and both flanks. Private Riggio moved forward to outflank the enemy sniping posts. He was wounded in the execution of his mission, but he managed to make his way back and reported the information he had obtained.

Private, Company D, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
With 8 other soldiers, comprising the company headquarters detachment, he assisted his company commander in cleaning out enemy dugouts along a canal and capturing 242 prisoners.

Private, first class, Company M, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
When the advance of his platoon was held up by machine-gun fire he went forward alone, killed 1 and captured 5 of the enemy machine-gun crew, and succeeded in silencing 2 machine guns, thus permitting his platoon to continue their advance.

Private, Company II, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

Private Rigo exposed himself to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire in crossing the Aire River on several occasions to deliver important messages to the commander of the attacking force. He then carried wounded from exposed positions to shelter across the Aire River.

Sergeant, Company I, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. When his company was halted by machine-gun fire which threatened to wipe out his entire number, Sergeant Riley led a patrol and charged the nest, and was successful not only in cleaning out the stronghold but in enabling his company to command a more favorable position.

Second lieutenant, 58th Infantry, 4th Division.
Lieutenant Riley maintained an observing station for his battalion commander for 2 days, although subjected during the whole of this time to intense artillery bombardment. He obtained valuable information as to the movements of the enemy, which was used in directing artillery fire. While engaged in this very important and hazardous work he was killed by shellfire. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Abram M. Riley.

Private, Company F, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

He showed absolute disregard for the safety of his own life by advancing upon a machine gun which was holding up his platoon, and finally putting it out of action after being wounded himself.

G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*RINDEAU, ARTHUR J....

At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918.

R-Southbridge, Mass. B-Saratoga, N. Y. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

RINEBOLD, WILLIAM J. (8168) ______ Near Fismes, France, Aug. 8-9, 1918.

R—Athens, Pa. B—Superior, Wis. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

B—Saluda County, S. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Fulton, Kans. B—Paola, Kans. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

RIPPETOE, GROVER C. Near Soissons, France, July 18-22, R-Charleston, W. Va. B-Clay County, W. Va. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

RISCHMANN, EDWARD (2412427) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 23,

R-Newark, N. J. B-Newark, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*RISMILLER, CHARLES C. (571132) Near St. Thibaut, France, Aug. 5, 1918.

R-Leesport, Pa. B-Leesport, Pa. G. O. No. 5, W. D., 1920.

1918.

R-Stratford, Tex. B-Dallas, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*RITZERT, CHARLES T. (1953948)
Near Courmont and St. Martin,
France, July 31-Aug. 4, 1918.
R—Chicora, Pa.
B—St. Joseph, Pa.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

RIVEL, THOMAS M. (1778977) ..... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 28-30, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa.

B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company C, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Having heard that 2 wounded comrades were lying in advance of the line inmediately north of Fismette, Corporal Riley and 2 other members of his company volunteered to go through machine-gun and rifle fire to bring them in. On their first attempt all were wounded and driven back, but in spite of their injuries they advanced a second time and reached the wounded men. Their courageous effort, however, was unfortunately in vain, as their comrades had been killed.

Gunnery sergeant, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Alma R. Bernier.

Private, first class, section No. 524, Ambulance Service. He volunteered and acted as guide for ambulances going to the most advanced points for the wounded. He made 9 trips over a road subjected to heavy shell and machine-gun fire and was severely wounded by a shell fragment on his last trip.

Corporal, Company II, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
Seeing a wounded comrade lying helpless in a most exposed position in front of our lines, he unhesitatingly braved the murderous fire of machine guus and snipers by going forward to his rescue. Ite succeeded in bringing in the wounded man after be had seen a stretcher bearer instantly killed in attempting the same mission.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ernest C. Rinehart.

First lieutenant, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Lieutenant Ringer personally led his company through beavy artillery and machine-gun fire in an attack upon a strongly fortified position until he fell mortally wounded. His gallantry and personal leadership were material factors in the successful attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ida Ringer.

First lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. After all the other officers of his company had been killed near Soissons, France, July 18-22, 1918, he took command, attacked a machine-gun nest, and captured the gun with its crew. Gassed and suffering from shell shock, he refused to quit his post until the company was relieved.

Private, Company I, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
He was a member of an assaulting party which stormed and captured the citadel at Grand Pre. He scaled the wall and alone entered a dugout, from which he captured 45 Germans, guarding them until assistance arrived.

Private, medical detachment, 4th Engineers, 4th Division.

He went forward exposed to intense rifle, machinegun, and artillery fire and assisted a seriously wounded comrade to a place of safety, thus saving his life. In the performance of this gallant act Private Rismiller was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Maggie Yeager.

Private, Company M, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.

While on an outpost near the Vesle River, he volunteered to accompany Corpl. John S. Weimer in rescuing a wounded soldier who had been left by members of a patrol in a shell hole some distance to the front. Under fire from machine guns and snipers, Private Ritchie and Corporal Weimer proceeded to the shell hole and found the wounded man, who was unable to walk. Suggesting that the 3 of them in a group would make a more conspicuous target for the enemy, Private Ritchie offered to run ahead to draw the enemy fire while his coursele assisted the wounded man. He made his way hook fire while his comrade assisted the wounded man. He made his way back to shelter under continuous machinegun and sniper fire, while Corporal Weiner carried the wounded soldier to safety.

Private, Company G, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

Throughout the battle to force passage of the Ourcq River and capture the heights beyond, Private Ritzert, a stretcher bearer, worked day and night evacuating wounded under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. On Aug. 4, under violent shellfire opposite Mont St. Martin, he made repeated trips between the firing line and dressing station until he was killed by a shell. Post hungally awarded. Medal presented to fother Adom Proprie Bit and Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Adam Francis Ritzert.

Sergeant, headquarters detachment, 79th Division. While acting as a division observer Sergeant Rivel remained constantly on duty for several days in a building on the heights of Montfaucon. While in this building portions of it were destroyed by direct artillery hits, and hospital shelling was such that other observers located in the same building withdrew to a safer place. He, however, remained constantly at his post of duty and obtained important information. RIVERS, TOM (2169507) Near the Bois-de-la-Voivrotte, France, Nov. 11, 1918. R—New Castle, Ala. B-Opelika, Ala. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*RIVES, JOHN S. (1315603)_ Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Lincoln, Tenn. B-Lincoln County, Tenn. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Fort Washington, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

ROACH, JAMES J
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Boston, Mass.
B—Boston, Mass.
G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

ROBART, RALPH W... Near Belleau Wood, France, July 20, 1918. R—Arlington, Mass. B—Wakefield, Mass. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

ROBB, WINFRED E_______ Throughout the advance across the River Ourcq, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 26-Aug. 2, 1918.
R—Des Moines, Iowa.
B—Nebraska.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*Robbins, Carl (324314) At Posolskaya, Siberia, Jan. 10, 1920. R—Concord, Tenn. B—Blount County, Tenn. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Robbins, Charles A. (1746061)... Near Bois-de-Grand For France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—South Manchester, Conn. B—South Manchester, Conn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919. Fontaine, *Robbins, William E. (1314788)_____ Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Wilson, N. C. B-Wilson, N. C. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*ROBERGE, JOSEPH H. (1748922)_ Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 18, 1918. R—Manchester, N. H. B—Canada.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

BERGE, PHILIP (110649).

Near Belleau, France, July 18, 1918.

R—Danielson, Conn.

B—Oscoda, Mich.

G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Saxapahaw, N. C. B—Alamanee County, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company G, 366th Infantry, 92d Division.

Although gassed, he volunteered and earried important messages through heavy barrages to the support companies. He refused first aid until his company was relieved.

Private, Company E, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

Showing marked personal bravery, he repeatedly crossed shell-swept areas, subjected to heavy machine-gun fire, to deliver important messages, Wounded in the head by shrapnel, he bound up the wound and continued his work of maintaining liaison until he was killed by machine-gun fire. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Florence Rives.

Wagoner, 110th Ambulance Company, 103d Sanitary Train, 28th Division. Because of the destruction from shellfire of 10 of the 13 ambulances of his company, he worked for 48 hours driving through a shell-swept and gas-infested area, thereby making possible the evacuation of the wounded.

First lieutenant, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.

As Lieutenant Roach and an Infantry captain were making a reconnaissance under enemy fire both of them were wounded by machine-gun bullets. Disregarding his own wound, Lieutenant Roach secured assistance for his wounded companion and then organized his platoon and the infantrymen work by for a companion and the organized his platoon and the infantrymen work by for a companion and the proparators. After social paths all his gards near by for an expected hostile counterattack. After seeing that all his guns were in position and his men under cover from the increasing enemy fire, though he was weak from loss of blood, he assisted in carrying the wounded captain to the aid station.

Second lieutenant, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.

After being painfully wounded by machine-gun fire, the leader lost, this officer assumed command of the company and galantly led it to its objective. He immediately reorganized his command and while energetically engaged in this work he was sent to the rear for treatment.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.
During the pursuit of the enemy by the 168th Infantry across the River Ourcq, he distinguished himself by his bravery under fire. During all of this time, and particularly during the operations near Sergy, he showed the greatest coolness under severe artillery fire in attending and carrying the wounded and dying, and in every way ministering to the needs of the men of his regiment.

Sergeant, Company M, 27th Infantry. When his platoon was attacked in the night by an armored train, he climbed up on the engine of the armored train in the face of pistol and machine-gun fire and hurled a grenade into the cab, which rendered the engine incapable of further operation, losing his life by his gallant conduct.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Alice Robbins.

First sergeant, Company D, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
Although severely wounded, he continued to advance with the company until the objective was reached, and then returned to the rear only when ordered to do so by his commanding officer. He then assisted in the removal of the wounded to a dressing station.

Private, Company A, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

During an attack by his regiment, Private Robbins was wounded in the leg.

Having dressed his own wound, he continued to advance with his Lewis gun and ammunition until he was killed by shellfire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Tom Robbins.

Private, Headquarters Company, 309th Infantry, 78th Division. He displayed remarkable courage in laying and repairing a telephone line under such intense artillery and machine-gun fire that the line was ultimately abandoned. He was killed in action Oct. 28, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Louise Roberge.

Private, Company D, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. He showed absolute disregard of personal danger while acting as litter bearer, bringing in wounded from his own and other companies under heavy machinegun and artillery fire. While carrying a stretcher, which bore a wounded soldier, he received a wound which put out 1 of his eyes, yet he continued until the wounded man had been taken to the dressing station.

First sergeant, Company D, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
With 8 other soldiers, comprising the company headquarters detachment, he assisted his company commander in cleaning out enemy dugouts along a canal and capturing 242 prisoners.

ROBERTS, ARTHUR S. (1785375). Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 28-30, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Fredericksburg, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

10 the Bois-de-Beneau, France 6 and 8, 1918.

R—Cleveland, Ohio.

B—Kansos City, Kans.
G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

ROBERTS, CHESTER A. (1491227). Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Cleburne, Tex. B—Cleburne, Tex. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Oct. 25, 1918. R—Altoona, Pa. B—Huntington, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Wausau, Wis. . B—Racine, Wis. . G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—South Manchester, Conn. B—Rouses Point, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.

*Roberts, James H South of Soissons, France, July 18,

R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

ROBERTS, LEO D. (559000)

Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 12, 1918.

R—Bellefontaine, Ohio. B—Harper, Ohio. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

ROBERTS, SEWELL K. (1317576)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29,
1918.

R-Rockwood, Tenn. B-Rockwood, Tenn. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Robertson, Angus (1204123) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 25, 1918.

R-Yonkers, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

ROBERTSON, ARCHIBALD G .... Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 12, 1918

R—Staunton, Va. B—Staunton, Va. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Private, Headquarters Company, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. While acting as a division observer, Private Roberts remained constantly on duty for several days in a building on the heights of Montfaucon. While in this building portions of it were destroyed by direct artillery hits and hospital shelling was such that other observers located in the same building withdrew to a safer place. Private Roberts, however, remained constantly at his post of duty and obtained important information.

First lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He showed rare courage in repeatedly leading his platoon to an attack against an impregnable machine-gun position. Severely wounded and having lost the greater part of his men, he remained in action and persisted in requesting reinforcements with which to renew the attack.

Sergeant, Company L, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
He led an automatic-rifle team of 7 men in an attack on an enemy machinegun nest, advancing 150 yards under heavy machine-gun fire to within 50 yards of the enemy position, from which point he directed the fire of his team with such skill that the enemy surrendered, resulting in the capture of 4 officers, 112 men, and 17 machine guns.

Second lieutenant, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

His platoon suffered heavy casualties and he himself was gassed in the advance on Hill 260. Being the first to reach this hill, he observed that the enemy were forming for a counterattack. Displaying coolness and quick judgment he organized all the available men in his vicinity and launched a vigorous attack upon the enemy, who were routed. The daring and leadership of this officer enabled the support to reach Hill 260 without further fighting.

Corporal, Company G, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
Although wounded in the left hand and forearm, he remained with his platoon throughout the attack and rendered valuable assistance in silencing enemy snipers by his effective rifle fire.

Corporal, Company B, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.
Three times wounded in action, he nevertheless continued in the attack under heavy enemy fire from artillery and machine guns, thereby sctting the men of his command an example of exceptional bravery and devotion to duty.

Sergeant, Company K, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.
Sergeant Roberts displayed marked courage and self-sacrifice, when, after being wounded in the arm, he refused to leave the battle field and continued to perform his duties as platoon sergeant until he was wounded in the knee 2 days later and had to be carried from the field.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Peter Roberts.

Private, 51st Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Private Roberts, armed with an automatic rifle, crawled through a wire entanglement and disabled 1 machine gun with a hand grenade and forced the crew of a second gun to surrender. His action enabled his company to pass through the entanglement without scrious loss.

Porthuments awarded Madel presented to mather these Flischeth Costs.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Goetz.

Sergeant, Company A, 11th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.
After the infantry had fallen back 200 meters under heavy fire, Sergeant Roberts stayed at his I remaining machine gun and operated it until the Infantry had reestablished its position, capturing a German machine gun and 3 prisoners.

Private, Company H, 119th Infautry, 30th Division.

Advancing alone against 2 enemy positions in succession, he killed the machine gunners with hand grenades, allowing our advance to continue. Severely wounded, he refused to be evacuated until ordered to the rear by his company commander.

Sergeant, Company E, 105th Infantry, 27th Division. Although suffering intense agony from the effects of a severe gassing, he continued in command of his platon during a most terrific shelling. By administering first aid to a wounded comrade he was instrumental in saving his life, although risking his own by removing his gas mask to render more valuable treatment. He continued to assist the wounded until he collapsed.

Second lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. Although wounded by shell fire early in the attack, he refused to go to the rear but continued to lead his platoon to the objective, where, under heavy machine-gun fire, he prepared his position for the enemy counterattack and held it throughout the night, remaining with his platoon until it was relieved the following day.

ROBERTSON, JAMES FERGUSON.....

In the capture of Bouresches, France, June 6, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—New Zealand. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

*ROBERTSON, MALCOLM T. (88640)—At Bois Coles, north of the River Ourcq, near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 30, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

ROBERTSON, RAYMOND D. (569255).... West of Fismes. France, Aug. 5, 1918. R—Berkeley, Calif. B—Valley Ford, Calif. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

ROBINS, EMMETT W. (486867). Near Vieville-en-Haye, France, Oct. 20, 1918. R—Wichita, Kans. B—Rich Hill, Mo. G. C. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

ROBINS, JOSEPH (1212534) ___ Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*Robinson, Arthur A..... Near Chery-Chartreuve, France, Aug. 16, 1918.
R—Flushing, N. Y.
B—Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Madison, Wis. B-Baraboo, Wis. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*Robinson, Caldwell C._____At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Hartford, Conn. B—Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

ROBINSON, FRANK N. (549412) Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Newton Center, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

ROBINSON, HENRY (2856888)______ Near Fey-en-Haye, France, Sept. 12,

R—Valley City, N. Dak. B—Bloomington, Ill. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920. ROBINSON, JOHN J. (540549)___

At Cunel Heights, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Manchester, N. Y. B—Black Rock, N. Y. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

ROBINSON, JOHN M. (551291)

Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918, and south of Cunel, France, Oct. and solution of Curies, Fr 11, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

First lieutenant, 96th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Divi-

He displayed marked courage and resourcefulness in the capture of Bouresches, France. With 1 platoon of his company on the night of June 6, 1918, in the face of heavy machine-gun barrage, he entered the town and heroically withstood vigorous attempts of superior forces to dislodge him.

Private, Headquarters Company, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. In the absence of his plateon commander, who had gone to an advanced position for observation, and after his section sergeant had been wounded and evacuated, he assumed leadership of his Stokes mortar crew; when called upon by his platoon commander for Stokes mortar fire to repel an assault by the enemy, who were advancing 100 yards away, he with his crew responded so effectively as to repulse the enemy with heavy losses. He was killed by the account of the second of t killed by an enemy shell while consolidating a position and rallying his men to repel the assault.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Dr. Victor A. Robertson.

Sergeant, Company F, 4th Engineers, 4th Division. Sergeant Robertson was a member of a small detachment of engineers which went out in advance of the front line of the Infantry through an enemy barrage from 77-millimeter and 1-pounder guns to construct a footbridge over the River Vesle. As soon as their operations were discovered machine-gun fire was opened up on them, but, undaunted, the party continued work, removing the German wire entanglements and successfully completing a bridge which was of great value in subsequent operations.

Private, Company F, 64th Infantry, 7th Division.

Private Robins, with 4 other soldiers, was on duty in an observation post when a German patrol 15 or 20 strong attacked with a machine gun. His 4 companions being immediately killed or wounded, Private Robins, with great coolness and courage, remained at his post and returned the fire with such good effect that the enemy broke and fled, leaving 2 dead and the machine gun behind.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the thick of the fighting against the Hindenburg line Sergeant Robins voluntarily went forward to locate friendly troops, and in doing so he was obliged to pass between two strongly fortified enemy nests, from which a deadly fire was pouring. Despite the fact that he was badly wounded, he communicated with the Infantry and returned to his position.

Second lieutenant, 305th Field Artillery, 77th Division. Lieutenant Robinson, assisted by Corporal Johnson, of the same battery, res-cued the body of an officer from a flaming ammunition dump which was under Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Florence E. Robinson.

First licutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
Under a screen of dense fog and the smoke of a heavy barrage, the Germans set up a machine gun within 30 yards of the flank of Licutenant Robinson's company. The Germans opened up a deadly fire as the fog lifted, but Licutenant Robinson attacked the position with grenades and drove off the enemy. He then turned the gun on the advancing Germans, completely breaking up their counterattack.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. C. L. F. Robinson.

Sergeant, Company A, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

During the heavy enemy artillery bombardment which preceded the German offensive of July 15, 1918, Sergeant Robinson showed great bravery by voluntarily receiping worlds. tarily rescuing wounded men under severe fire.

Private, Company A, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
Private Robinson, with Corporal Kach, successfully attacked a German machine-gun nest from the flank, killing 7 Germans, wounding 1, and capturing 3 machine guns.

Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

After 3 other runners had been wounded in attempting to carry a message to a platoon in advance of the front line, Corporal Robinson volunteered for this hazardous mission, and, passing 400 meters under direct machine-gun fire of the enemy, succeeded in reaching the platoon and notifying it to withdraw before our artillery barrage began to fall.

Sergeant, Company G, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
During the enemy offensive Sergeant Robinson held an advanced lookout post exposed to heavy artillery fire in order to warn his platoon of the approach of the enemy. In the Argonne, on Oct. 11, he led several members of his company in advance of our lines and rescued several wounded comrades.

Robinson, Oliver Thomas (1319236)... Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. Near Vaux-Andigny, Fra 10, 1918. R—Waterford, Miss. B—Waterford, Miss. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Sept. 10, 1918. R—Green Bay, Wis. B—Green Bay, Wis. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

ROBINSON, WILLIAM F. (42872)
Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
R—Staples, Minn.
B—Staples, Minn.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

ROBINTON, CHARLES H. (1203329) ... Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Ilion, N. Y. B—Lawrence, Mass. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Near Monthols, France, 1918.

Helpstaff, Ariz.

B-Beallesville, Pa.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

R-New York, N. Y. B-Ireland. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Rochfort, James J. (1386502)...... Near St. Hilaire Woods, France, Nov. 9, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

ROCHKIND, WILLIAM (1699283) Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B-Russia. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

ROCKEY, KELLER EMRICK
At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Stone Harbor, N. J. B—Columbia City, Ind. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

ROCKWELL, JOHN C. (39672)

South of Soissons, France, July 18,

R-Rockwell Springs, N. Y. B-Rockwell Springs, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company A, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.

Although severely wounded, he displayed remarkable coolness in extricating his platoon from an extremely dangerous position under terrific shell and machinegun fire, thereby saving it from almost certain annihilation. Being wounded a second time, he refused to go to the rear until ordered to so so by his company commander.

First lieutenant, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.

The 3d Battalion, 306th Infantry, having relieved another regiment in a position in front of Mont-Notre-Dame, it was reported that wounded members of the organization relieved were in the Bois-de-Chandriere in front of the position occupied by the 3d Battalion. Lieutenant Robinson, together with a non-commissioned officer and a private of his battalion, volunteered to search the wood and proceeded on his bazardous mission, crossing an open field, a distance wood and proceeded on his hazardous hission, crossing an open held, a distance of 600 yards, under direct observation of the enemy and under a concentration of heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire. Finding several wounded men he assisted them to return to their own lines, undoubtedly saving their lives. The extraordinary heroism and soldierly devotion to duty displayed by Lieutenant Robinson greatly inspired the men of his battalion.

Corporal, Company F, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He displayed the highest type of bravery in rescuing 3 wounded comrades from the hands of the enemy under violent artillery and machine-gun fire.

Private, Company A, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.

During operations against the Hindenburg line, he went forth in the face of unusually heavy machine-gun fire to aid a wounded comrade. He administered first aid, and, while shielding the man from the enemy fire, he received a severe wound in the back. Despite this wound, he struggled back to safety, bringing his courseless with the control of bringing his comrade with him.

Captain, 372d Infantry, 93d Division. Although he was severely wounded, he remained with his battalion for 2 days, continuously under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, encouraging his men and inspiring them by his example. He led them to the attack until he collapsed from the effects of his wound.

Private, Company L, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

Private Roehford, with another soldier, volunteered to cross a level open space for 600 yards swept by converging machine-gun fire to deliver a message to the front line, undeterred by the knowledge that 6 other soldiers had been wounded in a similar attempt. Crawling from one shell hole to another, he succeeded in reaching the front line and delivering the message.

Sergeant, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

With utter disregard of personal danger, he advanced alone and attacked a machine-gun nest which was inflicting heavy casualties on his company. Exposing himself to heavy fire, he killed 2 of the gun crew and routed the others, allowing his company to resume the advance.

Corporal, Company I, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
While leading a reconnaissance patrol of 8 men, Corporal Rochkind encountered severe machine-gun fire which forced him to take cover. While attempting to move his patrol to another place during a lull in the firing 1 man was killed and another wounded. Placing his men under cover, he alone ventured forth to the aid of the wounded man, who was lying exposed to the enemy fire, placing him on his back and carrying him to safety.

Second lieutenant, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps. Second neutenant, sorts, Battanon, Tank Corps.

Lieutenant Rock was in charge of a tank when it was struck by 3 shells from a German trench mortar, which set fire to the tank and knocked the track off. He assisted in extricating the wounded men from the tank and carrying them to the only available cover. In attempting to put an enemy machine gun out of action with his pistol he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William D. Rock.

Captain, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He performed distinguished service by bringing up supports and placing them in the front lines at great personal exposure, showing exceptional ability and extraordinary heroism. He was indefatigable and invaluable in carrying forward the attack and organizing and holding the position.

Private, Company G, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

Jerome Buschman, sergeant; John Rockwell, private; William F. Rockwell, private; Alfred Shimanoski, private; and Watzlaw Viniarsky, private; all of Company G, 9th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action south of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. They conspicuously distinguished themselves by attacking a party of more than 60 Germans and, in an intense and desperate hand-to-hand fight, succeeded in killing 22 men and capturing 40 men and 5 machine guns.

*ROCKWELL, MEARL COLIN-Rear Torcy, France, June 4, 1918. R—Holly, Colo. B—Coolidge, Kans. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

*Rockwell, William F. (39674)..... South of Soissons, France, July 18,

R-Rockwell Springs, N. Y. B-Rockwell Springs, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*Rockwood, Richard B..... Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 26,

R-Wurtsboro, N. Y. B-Wurtsboro, N. Y. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

RODA, MARVIN (2366608).....

At Vladivostok, Siberia, Nov. 17 and 18, 1919.

R—San Francisco, Calif.

B—Quigley, Mont.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

RODEN, THOMAS (551174) Near Romagne, France, Oct. 20, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

*Rodgers, Alexander, Jr...... Near Gercourt, France, Sept. 26 and 27, 1918.

R—Washington, D. C.

B—Washington, D. C.

G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

1918. R—Bassett, Nebr. B—Spokane, Wash. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Rodgers, John Wiley______At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918.

R—San Diego, Calif. B—Equality, Ill. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

RODGERS, MARTIS SANDERS.....

Near the Champagne sector, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Gordo, Ala.
B—Pleasant Grove, Ala.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Argenta, Ill. B—Cedar Rapids, Nebr. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, Headquarters Company, 6th Regiment, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. As a member of a raiding patrol, he displayed great courage and dovotiou by fearlessly entering extremely dangerous areas and obtaining information imperatively necessary to the success of subsequent operations.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Katie M. Rockwell.

Private, Company G, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

Jerome Buschman, sergeant; John Rockwell, private; William F. Rockwell, private; Alfred Shimanoski, private; and Watzlaw Viniarsky, private; all of Company G, 9th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action south of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. They conspicuously distinguished themselves by attacking a party of more than 60 Germans and, in an intense and desperate hand-to-hand fight, succeeded in killing 22 men and capturing 40 pages and 5 machine guis. men and 5 machine guns.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Rock-

Second lieutenant, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.
Intrusted with an important message from the brigade commander to an Infantry unit, he fearlessly crossed a shell-swept area, delivered the message, and, while returning with reply, was mortally wounded by a shell fragment. With great effort, notwithstanding his wound, he delivered the reply to the message and fell unconscious, dying shortly after.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. W. E. Rockwood.

Sergeant, Company B, Replacement Battalion, American Expeditionary Forces, Siberia

In answer to a call to save women and children who had been unavoidably entrapped in the railroad station by the fire from contending forces of Russian Government and insurgent troops, he boldly entered the zone of fire and rushed to the station which was being fired upon from 3 sides by machine guns, rifles, and fieldpieces and assisted in bringing back through the fireswept zone a number of women noncombatants.

Sergeant, Company G, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

After his company had suffered heavy casualties and all officers either killed or wounded during the attack on Hill 299, Sergeant Roden reorganized his company and took a position which he held against repeated attack by a superior enemy force. He fearlessly exposed himself to the fire of the attacking party in order to encourage his men and better direct their fire on the enemy, who were repulsed, several of the enemy being taken prisoners. On the following night he voluntarily led a patrol into the enemy lines, captured 4 of the enemy, and returned with valuable information.

First lieutenant, 319th Infantry, 80th Division. On the night of Sept. 26 and during the following day he repeatedly led his detachment in the face of heavy artillery and machine-gun fire in repairing telephone lines between regimental headquarters and front-line battalions. After reestablishing these lines innumerable times, and after they were broken After reestablishing these lines influinterable times, and after they were broken beyond repair, with materials at hand, he, with one of his runners, voluntarily and under intense machine-gun and shell fire carried messages to the front-line elements of his regiment. Later, in action near Cunel, in the Bois-des-Ogons, Oct. 4-12, 1918, severely gassed, he refused to be evacuated, working continuously without sleep for 4 days, keeping lines of communication over to the front, and contracted pneumonia which caused his death on Oct. 23, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Col. Alexander Rodgers.

Private, Company L, 363d Infantry, 91st Division. When intense fire of enemy machine guns had held up the advance of 2 of our companies and the enemy threatened to close in on our troops, he accompanied a squad of men forward to a point where he could most effectively use his automatic rifle. After the squad leader and 2 men had been killed, he remained at his post and forced the advance German posts to retire, making possible the continuance of the progress of our companies.

Sergeant, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Elsie Moore.

Gunnery sergeant, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Even after being wounded, he volunteered and led a patrol into no man's land and succeeded in returning with 4 wounded comrades. After his platon commander had been wounded, he assumed command and led the men through most trying and difficult conditions until a second wound forced his removal to the rear.

Private, Company M, 130th Infantry, 33d Division. Although suffering painfully from an infected hand, he acted as stretcher bearer; while his company was in action he made five trips to the dressing stations, a total distance of about 25 miles, and was under shellfire at all stages of his journey. ROGERS, ALAN Near La Palletta Pavillon, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

ROGERS, BENJAMIN F....

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Gresham, Ore. B—Big Prairie, Mich. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*Rogers, Fred (96361)

Northeast of Chateau-Thierry, at Croix Rouge Farm, France, July 26, 1918. R-Ensley, Ala. B—Bessemer, Ala. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

*ROGERS, HARRY Near Binarville, France, Oct. 2-6, 1918.

R-Liberty, Mo. B-Carthage, Mo. G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1924.

R—Evanston, Ill. B—Newport, R. I. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Rogers, Verne E_____ Near Avillers, France, Sept. 13, 1918. R—New Athens, Ohio.
B—Blissfield, Mich.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

ROGERS, WILL (40462). Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Limon, Colo. B—Springfield, Mo. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Rohan, Edgar A. (71217)______ Near Belleau and Epieds, France, July 20-23, 1918.

R—Worcester, Mass.

B—New Durham, N. II.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

ROLAIN, RAY C. (275031)

At Juvigny, France, Aug. 31, 1918.

R—Rhinelander, Wis.

B—Rhinelander, Wis.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

ROLFE, ONSLOW S. Near Fossoy, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Concord, N. H. B—Concord, N. H. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

Roneri, Vincenzo (1247694) Near Chatel-Chehery, France. Oct.
7, 1918.
R—Big Mine Run, Pa.
B—Italy.
G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

Second licutenant, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.
Having taken command of his company after the company commander and second in command had been wounded, Licutenant Rogers personally undertook a reconnaissance of the front line. Crawling forward alone under intense rifle and machine-gun fire for 200 yards to within 30 yards of an enemy machine-gun nest, he was seriously wounded in the knee, but applying a tourniquet to his leg be succeeded in crawling back to his company. Here he resumed command, and though suffering intense pain, gave instructions for repelling an expected counterattack, directing that no man be taken from the firing line to carry him to the rear. For 7 hours after being wounded he remained with his command, inspiring his men by his fortitude and courage remained with his command, inspiring his men by his fortitude and courage.

Pharmacist's mate, second class, U. S. Navy, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He left his shelter and went beyond our most advanced positions, giving first aid to the wounded under machine-gun and shell fire until all had been cared for and evacuated.

Sergeant, Company D, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.
After being wounded in the head he continued his advance on the enemy with his platoon until more severely wounded. He died as a result of his injuries.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. J. T. Rogers.

Second lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

He was in command of a detachment comprising part of 2 battalions which were cut off and surrounded by the enemy in the Argonne Forest, France. During the days of the isolation from friendly troops, he was on the exposed flank without food. Although under a heavy concentration of fire from enemy machine guns and snipers, by his personal example of calmness he kept his men in order and helped repel counterattacks. This intrepid officer was killed in action Oct. 6, 1918.

was killed in action Oct. 6, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to uncle, S. D. Rogers.

Private, Company C, 344th Battalion, Tank Corps.

Acting as a runner, Private Rogers, upon learning that there was a scarcity of tank drivers, begged permission to drive a tank. Permission being granted, he drove his tank well in advance of the Infantry until the officer in command of his tank became wounded by enemy fine. Private Rogers left the shelter of his tank and crawled to other tanks of his company, carrying messages from his wounded officer. This duty was performed in the face of heavy artillery, machine-gun, and rifle fire, and was carried ou until Private Rogers was severely wounded. The coolness, devotion to duty, and fearlessness displayed inspired the men of his company to still greater endeavors.

Second lieutenant, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. When a section of his platoon was being held up by machine-gun fire, he directed an attack on the nest, while he and a corporal attacked from the opposite side. driving out and capturing 3 of the enemy.

Private, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After a machine gun had caused great losses in his company, Private Rogers, with 3 other soldiers, made an attack on the gun, which was lodged in a deep ravine. After his companions had been killed or wounded, he continued with the attack and succeeded in silencing the gun.

Private, Company A, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. After receiving several wounds he took charge of an automatic rifle and continued in action for 3 days.

Sergeant, Company L, 127th Infantry, 32d Division. He attacked a machine-gun nest single handed after the 4 soldiers accompanying him had been wounded. He killed the operator of 1 gun and captured the remainder of 2 gun crews and both guns.

Captain, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

During the heavy enemy bombardment preceding the second battle of the Marne, Captain Rolfe, regimental intelligence officer, voluntarily carried an important message, in full view of the enemy, across an open field to the support and reserve battalions for the purpose of bringing up reinforcements.

Private, Company D, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
Responding to a call from a noncommissioned officer, Private Roneri exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire to go 200 yards in advance of our lines and assist in carrying a wounded man to a place of safety. While in the performance of this act, he was exposed to machine-gun fire from 2 directions directions.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*Roos, James J ... Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Butfalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

ROOSE, THOMAS W. W.

Near Torcy, France, July 18 to 20, 1918. R—Charlestown, Mass. B—England. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE, Jr. Near Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Oyster Bay, L. I., N. Y. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1920. Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

1918. R—Wilmington, N. C. B—Wilmington, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

RORTY, JAMES H. (10398) _ Near Sommerance, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Middletown, N. J. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Unaka, N. C. B—Unaka, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Rose, Harold W. (2276440) .....

Near Very, France, Sept. 28-Oct. 4, 1918 and at Audenarde, Belgium, Nov. 4, 1918. R—Oakland, Calif. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company K, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
After having successfully passed through an extraordinary heavy barrage of gas and high-explosive shells, he volunteered and carried a message to the front-line detachment, which up to that time had been cut off from all communication with the company.

First lieutenant, Air Service, balloon section, 1st Army.
On July 22, near Ansauville, with Lieutenant Ferrenbach, he was conducting an important observation. At an altitude of 800 meters he was several times attacked by enemy planes, but refused to leave his post until his balloon was set afire, and only then after he had seen that his companion had safely jumped. While descending, his parachute was almost hit by the falling balloon. He insisted upon returning to his post and was in the air again as soon as another balloon could be inflated. On Sept. 26, while adjusting artillery fire, his balloon was attacked by 3 enemy planes (Fokker type). At imminent peril of his life he stuck to his post until 1 plane dived directly at his balloon. He would not leave the basket until his companion, Lieutenant Montgomery, had jumped to safety.

First lieutenant, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

During the forcing of La Selle River he made personal reconnaissances of the territory, under terrific machine-gun fire, before leading his men in attack. Advancing to a farm which was strongly fortified by the enemy, he scattered his men about the buildings, from which a deadly fire was pouring, and, advancing alone into the building, captured nearly 200 Germans at the point of his pistol. He was killed in attack the following morning.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. James S. Roos.

Regimental sergeant major, Headquarters, 52d Infantry Brigade, attached to 3d Battalion, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.

On July 20 he crossed an open space, under direct observation and fire of the enemy, to assist a wounded comrade to shelter. Two days previous he made a reconnaissance along the advancing front line, exposed to rifle, machinegun, and artillery fire, to make sure that orders had been carried out.

Major, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

After the completion of a raid Major Roosevelt exposed himself to intense machine-gun, rifle, and grenade fire while he went forward and assisted in rescuing a wounded member of the raiding party. At Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he personally led the assault companies of his battalion, and although wounded in the knee he refused to be evacuated until carried off the field.

First lieutenant, 22d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While on a bombing mission with 5 other pilots his patrol was attacked by 18 enemy planes (type Fokker). Three of his comrades were immediately shot down, but he continued in the fight for 30 minutes and destroyed 2 Fokkers which were attacking the other 2 members of his patrol. With his plane hadly damaged and himself wounded, he succeeded in shooting down another Fokker just before 1 of his guns was put out of action. By skillful maneuvering he shook off the rest of the Fokkers and reached his lines 15 miles away, in safety. lines, 15 miles away, in safety.

Private, section No. 647, Ambulance Service, with French Army. He was relieved from duty as a mechanic in order that he might serve as aid on cars during the Argonne offensive. While engaged in evacuating wounded from the culvert not far from enemy outposts, fragments of a shell pierced his clothing, and although he was suffering from shock he repeatedly ran ahead in the dark to guide the car over a road partly destroyed by shells and still under enemy machine-gun fire. Returning with relief cars, he again served as guide and as stretcher bearer until the evacuation was completed.

Private, Company K, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
During an attack by his regiment he was carrying a message from his platoon commander to company headquarters. On the way he met an enemy partol and, although alone, immediately opened fire upon them, continuing to fire, after being wounded in both legs, until the enemy had been completely routed.

Private, first class, 364th Ambulance Company, 316th Sanitary Train, 91st

Division.

During the offensive in the Forest of Argonne this soldier displayed unusual courage and devotion to duty in driving a motor cycle for his commanding officer and also in performing liaison service. He repeatedly showed utter disregard for his own life by riding through areas and over roads that were being heavily shelled by the enemy. He was for 3 days and nights without rest and with very little food. When his motor cycle was disabled by shellfire, he continued on foot and delivered a message as he collapsed from exhaustion. On Nov. 4 he drove a motor cycle with his commanding officer into the town of Audenarde to search for wounded, faithfully performing his duty where the streets had been blown up and timbers from bombarded buildings were falling around him.

*ROSELL, WILLIAM E. (2061784) __ During the Meuse-Argonne offen-sive, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Chicago, 1ll. B-Sweden.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.

ROSEN, HARRY (43851). Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1929.

Rosen, Theodore...

In the Grande Montagne sector, north of Verdun, Nov. 4, 1918.
R.—Philadelphia, Pa.
B.—Carmel, N. J.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

ROSENBERGER, GEORGE V. (2411026)... Near Vieville-en-Haye, France, Sept. 25-26, 1918. R.—Bloomsbury, N. J. B.—Bloomsbury, N. J. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Rosenfeld, Merrill Near Verdun, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1919.

*Rosenwald, John P_______ During the action at Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918. R-Minneapolis, Minn. B-Yellow Bank, Minn. G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

Rosio, William (555288).

Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918.

R—East Mauch Chunk, Pa.

B—Keeseville, N. Y.

G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

Roskoski, Frank J. (1717519) Near Ville-Savoye, France, Aug. 18, 1918. R—Bronx, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Roskowski, John (155680) Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B-Austria G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

Ross, Carl G. R. East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29,

1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*Ross, Cleo Jerson Near Brabant, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Titusville, Pa. B—Titusville, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company B, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
With 3 other soldiers he charged and captured a battery of three .77 fieldpieces which, protected by machine guns, were firing point blank on the position held by his company. This deed enabled his company to continue the advance.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Petronella Rosell.

Sergeant, Company K, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After all officers of his company had been killed or wounded, Sergeant Rosen took command and reorganized the company under fire. He then left a patrol of 6 men through heavy fire in an attack on an enemy machine-gun nest. With the assistance of other members of his patrol he forced 18 of the enemy to surrender.

First lieutenant, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.
While on a reconnaissance with 2 other officers, Lieutenant Rosen drew fire from a machine-gun uest in order to allow the other 2 officers to escape. A few minutes later he and 2 runners were sent into the Bois d'Etraye in order to locate the left flank. Lieutenant Rosen again came under close-range fire of the enemy. The runner, who was some yards in rear, escaped, but Lleutenant Rosen, who had been terribly wounded by a hand grenade, unable to move or resist by further fighting, was taken prisoner.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 311th Infantry, 78th Division. Private Rosenberger, with another soldier, had advanced to an exposed position, and then were administering first aid to a wounded man, when suddenly surrounded and captured by a party of the enemy. While being taken toward the German lines, Private Rosenberger and his companion attacked their captors and succeeded in freeing themselves, at the same time capturing 2 Germans, whom they brought to battalion headquarters, together with the wounded man.

First lieutenant, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

During the various offensives of this regiment in the vicinity of the Meuse River, he displayed the greatest of bravery and coolness. He met his death while leading a group that silenced an enemy machine gun menacing his right flank Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Israel Rosenfeld.

First lieutenant, medical detachment, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division. He twice entered the quarry of Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, under heavy shellfire, during the action at Pexonne, France, on Mar. 5, 1918, in order to care for the wounded. Died May 6, 1918, of wounds received in action. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. J. P. Rosenwald.

Corporal, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
Corporal Rosio commanded 1 of the 2 machine guns at the railroad bridge.
He exposed himself to heavy machine-gun and artillery fire in order to effectively direct the fire of his guns against the enemy infantry crossing the Marne River. This was done with such effectiveness that many of the enemy boats were sunk and assault halted at the Marne River bank. Later, after his gun was disabled, he made a reconnaissance of the enemy lines and returned with valuable information.

Sergeant, Company F, 302d Engineers, 77th Division.
He voluntarly plunged into the Vesle River to rescue some soldiers who had fallen into the water with full packs while crossing a footbridge and were in danger of drowning. In order to see he removed his gas mask, and as a result was severely gassed.

Private, Company C, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
When volunteers were called for by his company commander, Private Roskowski volunteered and rescued wounded comrades from a barrage. Although wounded in the performance of these heroic deeds, he continued until killed by shellfire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Julia Provok.

First lieutenant, 105th Infantry, 27th Division. When his company was held up by an enemy machine-gun post, he advanced alone against it and succeeded in putting it out of action, exhibiting great bravery and gallautry, which was a splendid example to all ranks.

First lieutenant, 8th Balloon Squadron, Air Service.

He was engaged in an important observation, regulating artillery fire, when his balloon was attacked by enemy planes. One of the planes dived from a cloud and fired at the balloon, setting fire to it, and although he could have jumped from the basket at once he refused to leave until his companion, a student observer, had jumped. He then leaped, but it was too late for the burning balloon dropped on his parachute. He was dashed to the ground from a height of 300 meters and killed instantly.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, E. M. Ross.

Ross, Douglas R. (61925)... Near Vaux, France, July 16, 1918. R—Hull, Mass. B—Hull, Mass. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

R—Savanna, Ill. B—Savanna, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

France,

1918. R—Stockton, Calif. B—Petaluma, Calif. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Ross, Leo L. (2257223).

Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Santa Barbara, Calif.

B—Arkansas City, Kans.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Ross, Lloyd D. In the salient du-Feys, France, Mar. 9, 1918. R—Red Oak, Iowa. B—Adair County, Iowa. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Norway. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

ROTH, PAUL KRUSA Near St. Thibaut, Bazoches, France, Aug. 10, 1918.
R—Brooklyn, N. Y.
B—Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Private, first class, Company K, 101st Infantry, 26th Division. He killed 2 of the enemy who were attempting to establish a machine-gun position in a railroad station and captured their machine guns. Later, the same day, when snipers were working in a ravine near the American line, he, with 2 other soldiers, went forward to drive them back. One of his comrades was killed, but he, with great daring, attacked the Germans, killing 1 and wounding another.

Corporal, Company B, 5th Ammunition Train, 5th Division.

When an enemy shell struck some pyrotechnics stored in the ammunition dump of his organization, he directed and assisted in the removal of inflammable material and placing the fire under control. Through his colness and courage the destruction of a large quantity of near-by ammunition was approiced. avoided.

Major, Medical Corps, attached to 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
While under heavy bombardment and working in an area saturated with gas, Major Ross showed extreme gallantry and efficiency in caring for the more dangerously wounded, removing his mask at times during the attack to better ascertain the extent of the wound. It was while thus acting that he was severely gassed.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 363d Infantry, 91st Division. At a distance of less than 200 meters from the enemy he set up and directed the fire of his guns, exposed during the whole operation to direct enemy fire. He killed 1 gunner and, while searching for the gun on his flank, was himself killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Carrie W. Ross.

Corporal, Company D, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.
When the advance of his battalion was held up by an enemy machine-gun nest, Corporal Ross, in company with an officer, crossed the enemy wire, took the position, and captured 4 prisoners and 2 machine guns. On the same day, accompanied by 2 other soldiers, he captured 3 machine guns and 98 prisoners. and 26 prisoners.

Major, 168th Infantry, 42d Division. He displayed notable gallantry on Mar. 9, 1918, in leading a command of untried men in company with French troops in a successful raid on enemy trenches in the salient du-Feys, France. By his heroic conduct he inspired both his own men and the men of our ally participating in the operation. Oak-leaf cluster.

Oak-leaf cluster is awarded Major Ross for the following acts of distinguished service: The courage, resolution, and resource of Major Ross as battalion commander made possible the successful capture of Hills 288, 242, and Cote-de-Chatillon, France, Oct. 14, 15, and 16, 1918, which was accomplished only after the most desperate fighting through wire and trenches against a resolute and determined defense involving frequent and bitter counterattacks. His brilliant and determined leadership was an example and inspiration to the entire command.

Captain, 319th Infantry, 80th Division.

His company being halted by enemy machine-gun fire, he secured 2 hand grenades and rushed alone for an enemy machine-gun nest, throwing his grenades and compelling the surrender of the gun crews. Returning to his company, he directed the fire upon the remaining machine-gun crews, which were causing heavy casualties in his company, silenced the enemy guns, and resumed the advance with minimum lesses. The soldierly courage displayed by Captain Ressire greatly inspired the members of his company. by Captain Rossire greatly inspired the members of his company.

Corporal, Company G, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

During the 5 days that his battalion was cut off and surrounded by the enemy and throughout these 5 days of hunger, suffering, and enemy attacks Corporal Rossum commanded an advanced outpost in a position exposed to each hostile onslaught. He was subjected constantly to fire from snipers, machine guns, trench mortars, and hand grenades. By his high courage, personal example, and inspiring leadership he defeated all attempts of the enemy to force his post back, and by so doing aided materially in the defense of his section of the line.

First lieutenant, 357th Infantry, 90th Division. Lieutenant Rote displayed daring in rushing machine-gun emplacements in the path of his platoon. Single handed he captured crews and emplacements of enemy machine guns.

First lieutenant, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.
Constantly exposed to a terrific concentration of enemy machine-gun and shell fire, without regard to his own safety, he voluntarily and unassisted rescued 5 badly wounded men of his regiment, carrying each man upon his back for a distance of 150 yards, at all times under observation of the enemy occupying the town of Bayoches. His heroic conduct served as an impressive example to every man of his regiment.

*ROTHWELL, ROBERT (1039047)...... Near Greves Farm, France, July 15,

R-New York, N. Y. B-England. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Grande, France, June 29 and Oct. 28, 1918. R—Witherbee, N. Y. B—Chateaugay, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

ROUNDS, HAROLD E. (62269) Near Vaux, France, July 20, 1918. R—Malden, Mass. B—Ilyannis, Mass. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

In connection with the operations in Cuba in May, 1898.
R—Union, W. Va.
B—Virginia.
Q. O. Na. 202 W. ROWAN, ANDREW S G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922, *Rowan, Charles R.... Near Apremont, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Altoona, Pa. B—Altoona, Pa. G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

ROWAN, ROBERT P. (1286988)

Near Samogneux, France, Oct. 9,
1918.

R—Greenville, Va. B—Russellville, Ark. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Near 1918.

R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Allegheny County, Pa. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

Rowe, George (1211444) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Ossining, N. Y. B—Ossining, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Rowe, Guy I _____ East of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Danville, Vt.

B—Peacham, Vt.

G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Corporal, Company A, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

After his company had been halted by machine-gun fire from the front, Corporal

Roth advanced ahead of his organization to a position exposed to heavy enemy fire, and opened fire with an antomatic rifle on the enemy nest. He continued this fire until killed by the heavy fire directed on him from the enemy machine-gun nest.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Max Roth.

Corporal, Battery F, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers, Corporal Rothwell, with 8 other soldiers, manned 2 guns of a French battery which had been deserted by the French during the unprecedented fire after many casualties had been inflicted on their forces. For 2 hours he remained at his post and poured an effective fire into the ranks of the enemy.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Thomas Rothwell.

Corporal, Company M, 60th Infantry, 5th Division. On June 29 he was driven out of his post by hand grenades and machine-gun fire. After the grenades had exploded he reentered his post under machine-gun fire and drove the German gunners away with his automatic rifle. On Oct. 28 he located several machine-gun nests and a battery of field artillery and returned with information which made it possible to destroy them.

Private, Company L, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
Private Rounds, Corpl. Austin J. Kelley, and Pvt. John J. Grady penetrated the enemy's lines in the face of machine-gun fire, captured a machine gun and its crew, and returned with valuable information concerning the enemy's positions.

Private, 103d Ambulance Company, 101st Sanitary Train, 26th Division. While assisting a wounded Infantry soldier under heavy shellfire he was severely wounded in the face. Although his injury was more serious than that of the man whom he was attending, he carried the latter to an aid station, after which he voluntarily returned and assisted in first-aid work, inspiring his compages by his compage. rades by his example.

Captain, 19th Infantry, U. S. Army.
At the outbreak of the Spanish-American campaign Lieutenant Rowan, under disguise, entered the enemy lines in Oriente, crossed the island of Cuba, and not only succeeded in delivering a message to General Garcia, but secured secret information relative to existing military conditions in that region of such great value that it had an important bearing on the quick ending of the struggle and the complete success of the U. S. Army.

First lieutenant, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. Being familiar with the ground over which an attack was to be made, he volunteered to leave his own company in the reserve and lead another company which was without officers. The enemy attacked before our own operations were begun, and he was wounded by a machine-gun bullet. Exemplifying in the highest degree the spirit of self-sacrifice and devotion to duty he remained with his command for an hour and a half until the hostile attack was repulsed.

He has since died from the wounds received in this engagement. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, R. M. Rowan.

First sergeant, Company D, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.
In the absence of a commissioned officer and under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he succeeded in reorganizing the units of his command, and by his fearless example greatly increased the morale of his company. He successfully led them to the attack until he was killed by shellfire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Clara Oxford.

Corporal, Company A, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

After being painfully wounded, this soldier continued to lead his squad against a machine gun and silenced it, thereby saving his company many casualties.

Corporal, Company E, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

With an automatic-rifle team, he occupied a house in an advanced position west of Fismette on the night of Aug. 12, the loss of which would have jeopardized his company's position and hindered the military operations then taking place. The enemy shot a flare into the house, setting fire to it, but Corporal Rowbottom and a companion, under machine-gun and sniper fire in a brilliantly lighted room, extinguished the flames.

Sergeant, Company I, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

Although seriously wounded, he continued to lead his platoon in operations against the Hindenburg line, refusing to be evacuated until ordered to the rear by his commanding officer.

Major, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

For 14½ hours on July 15, 1918, he held his battalion in an advanced and exposed position on the Marne, east of Chateau-Thierry, France, although violently and persistently attacked on his front and on both flanks by greatly superior

102444°-27-35

*Rowley, Joseph C. (1746465) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 25, 1918.

R—Port Norris, N. J. B—Port Norris, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Roy, John W. (72797) In the Belleau Wood, France, July 18 and 19, 1918. R-Worcester, Mass. B-Worcester, Mass. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

ROYSTER, THOMAS H. Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Tarboro, N. C. B—Granville County, N. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Rogers, Ark. B-Little Rock, Ark. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*RUANE, EDWARD T. (1203458)______ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Cohoes, N. Y. B—Cohoes, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

RUANE, MICHAEL (89694) Near Villers-sur-Fere, Aisne, France, July 31, 1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Ireland. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Indianapolis, Ind. B-Louisville, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Lebanon, Mo. B-Bosworth, Mo. G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

DDOCK, ALEXANDER L. (2384986)...
Near Bois-de-Juvigny, France, Oct.
12, 1918.
R—Chester, Pa.
B—Beech Tree, Pa.
G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

RUDOLPH, EDWARD W. (2395940) Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Joplin, Mo. B—Lyndon, Kans. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

RUDOLPH, ERNEST E. (1630524) Near Varennes, France, Sept. 26, Near 1918. R—Denver, Colo. B—Keyesport, Ill. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Rudolph, Martin C.
At Vieville-en-Haye, France, Sept.
12, 1918, and near Cunel, France,
Oct. 21, 1918. R-Moultrieville, S. C. B-Carlstadt, N. J. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company M, 311th Infantry, 78th Division. Sergeant, Company M, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

Assisting his company commander in organizing positions and liaison, he showed great bravery and devotion to duty. Although wounded in the first combat with the enemy, he continued with his work, declining to be evacuated. While patrolling between outposts he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Stultz Rowley.

Bugler, Company H, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. He displayed notable bravery in delivering messages through violent shellfire. At one time, after 3 other runners had been killed and a fourth wounded, he passed over the same route, undaunted, to carry a message vitally necessary to the successful operation of his company.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
When casualties during the offensive of July 15, 1918, had become so great that it was necessary to work in the open, Lieutenant Royster exposed himself to the severe fire for 10 hours, dressing and caring for the wounded.

Major, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

For three days near Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918, he withstood German assaults under intense bombardment, heroically exposing himself to fire constantly in order to command his battalion effectively, and, although his command lost half its officers and 30 per cent of its men, he held his position and appropriate a break in the line at that point. prevented a break in the line at that point.

First sergeant, Company B, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line Sergeant Ruane, with an officer and 2 other sergeants, occupied an outpost position in advance of the line, which was attacked by a superior force of the enemy. Sergeant Ruane assisted in repulsing this attack and in killing 10 Germans, capturing 5, and driving off the others. The bravery and determination displayed by this group was an inspiration to all who witnessed it.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Ruane.

Private, Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
He went to the rescue of 2 wounded men over ground so swept by machine gun fire that 2 men had been killed and I wounded previously in the attempt, and succeeded in carrying the 2 wounded men safely to shelter.

First lieutenant, 304th Engineers, 79th Division While reconnoitering to locate the Avocourt-Malancourt Road he was held up by an enemy machine gun on the parapet of a trench running parallel to the road. He proceeded ahead of the 2 German gunners. He proceeded ahead of two men of his platoon and personally disposed

First lieutenant, 27th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Outnumbered and handicapped by his presence far behind the German lines, he and 3 flying companions fought brilliantly a large group of enemy planes, bringing down or putting to flight all in the attacking party, while performing an important mission near Luneville, France, on June 13, 1918.

Supply sergeant, Company M, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
Having been left behind to care for the equipment of the company and, seeing the difficult position in which the company had been placed, and noticing that a large number of his comrades were being evacuated because of wounds, Sergeant Ruddock joined the company and assisted in pushing the advance to its objective. He remained until the remnants of the command had been ordered back out of range of friendly artillery. He was mortally wounded on Nov. 10, after routing out 2 machine-gun nests.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Alexander M. Ruddock.

Private, Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. He successfully carried messages through terrific artillery and machine-gun fire and was twice wounded while performing the mission.

Corporal, Company C, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.

Acting voluntarily, Corporal Rudolph and 2 other soldiers went out under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and attacked an enemy machine-gun nest, killing 4 of the crew and capturing 11 prisoners, together with the machine gun.

Captain, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.

When an enemy machine gun suddenly opened fire on his company Captain Rudolph signaled the platoon on his right to execute a flanking movement, while he advanced alone toward the gun. He killed the enemy gunner with his pistol and captured the remainder of the crew. He then ordered the eaptured gun carried along in the advance, and 200 yards farther used it successfully in silencing another enemy machine gun which was holding up his company. Captain Rudolph was severely wounded by a hand grenade on Oct. 21, but refused to go to the rear, and remained with his company for 12 hours, inspiring his men to hold an important position against a superior force of the enemy.

RUE, LAWRENCE E. (1388860). Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R-Chicago, Ill. B-Mills Springs, Mo. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

RUGE, EDWIN __ Near Flirey, France, Aug. 4, 1918. R—Atlanta, Ga. B—Apalachicola, Fla. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

RUGGERO, PETRO (2429475) Near Hill 272, near Fleville, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Italy. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Oct. 23, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md.

B—Cumberland, Md.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RUHL, LUTHER (43057)_ Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Hugo, Okla. B—Hugo, Okla. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

RULAND, HENRY F. (2240721)

Near Vilcey-sur-Trey, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Brenham, Tex.

B—Brenham, Tex.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

RULE, EDGAR J. (170058). Near Courbon, France, July 14-15, 1918.

R—Boone, Iowa. B—Boone, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Rumbaugh, Ernest R. (1521961)..... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R-Holmesville, Ohio. B-Holmes County, Ohio. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

RUMBERGER, HAROLD P. (1787239) Near Bois-de-Mont, France, Sept. 1918.

20, 1916. R—Waynesboro, Pa. B—Carlisle, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RUMMELL, LESLIE J. MMELL, LESLIE J...
In the region of Moirey, France,
Sept. 29, 1918.
R.—Newark, N. J.
B.—Newark, N. J.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

*Rundquist, Oscar A. (280648). Rear Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Big Rapids, Mich.
B—Big Rapids, Mich.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919. Sergeant, Company E, 132d Infantry, 33d Division. He had led his platoon to its objective when orders were recieved to shift the line in preparation for a hostile counterattack. He thereupon opened fire with an automatic rifle and remained behind, under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, until the last man of his platoon had reached the newly designated line.

Corporal, Company K, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

First lieutenant, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

In an early morning raid Lieutenant Ruge charged up an exposed hillside and single-handed captured an enemy machine-gun position. This officer further distinguished himself near Champigneulle, France, Oct. 16, 1918, while reorganizing the 1st Battalion, 326th Infantry, under heavy fire and leading it to the attack.

Private, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Private Ruggero, single handed, charged an enemy machine gun, killing the operator and capturing the gun.

Private, Company A, 110th Machine Gun Battalion, 20th Division.
Under a heavy artillery barrage, Private Ruhl displayed great bravery in rescuing and bringing to shelter a wounded comrade.

Sergeant, Company F, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. After his platoon commander had become a casualty, Sergeant Ruhl reorganized his platoon under heavy fire and led it forward in a successful attack against a machine-gun nest, killing or capturing the crew and taking the gun. Upon reaching his objective, he organized his platoon for defense and held his position against counterattacks.

Private, 357th Ambulance Company, 315th Sanitary Train, 90th Division. With another soldier Private Ruland left the shelter of a wood and went forward to rescue a soldier who had fallen wounded on a hill under constant machine-gun and shellfire. While they were carrying him back on a litter he was again wounded and the litter was struck twice by machine-gun bullets, but they succeeded in carrying him back to safety, thereby saving his life.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.
Sergeant Rule, who was in charge of a telephone detail, fearlessly repaired lines under heavy fire of gas and high-explosive shells until the lines were cut beyond repair, when he volunteered and carried messages through the bombardment.

Corporal, Company H, 146th Infantry, 37th Division. Corporal Rumbaugh, with an officer and noncommissioned officer, advanced 200 yards beyond the objective of the patrol in the face of heavy machine-gun fire and captured three 77-millimeter field-pieces and 2 light machine guns.

Private, Company B, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.
Failing to reduce a machine-gun nest with his rifle, he returned, procured an automatic rifle, attacked the nest the second time, and successfully reduced it.

First lieutenant, 93d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Lieutenant Rummell, leading a patrol of 3 planes, sighted an enemy biplane which was protected by 7 machines (Fokker type). Despite the tremendous odds, he led his patrol to the attack and destroyed the Di Nash plane. By his superior maneuvering and leadership 4 more of the enemy planes were destroyed, and the remaining 3 retired.

Sergeant, Company I, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

Though mortally wounded early in the assault, he continued to lead his men in an attack on German machine-gun nests that were holding up the advance of the American troops. With marked coolness and bravery he encouraged his men until the objective had been reached, shortly after which he felt dead from hear of the od. dead from loss of blood.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Olaf Rundquist.

RUNNELLS, ERNEST P. (3273) ______ At Wadonville, France, Sept. 25, 1918. R-Concord, N. H. B-Concord, N. H. G. O. No. 137, W. D., 1918.

*Hunning, Tilmer A.
Near Verdun, France, Oct. 12, 1918.
R.—Viroqua, Wis.
B.—Cashton, Wis.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

RUNYAN, EDGAR A. (45988)

North of Exermont, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R-Black Rock, Utah. B—Laurens, 10wa. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

Ruppel, William (732099)

Near Fontaine, France, Nov. 8, 1918.

R—Cincinnati, Ohio.

B—Caldwell, Ohio.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Rusch, Ernest J. G.

In the Meuse-Argonne offensive,
France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Neenah, Wis.
B—Germany. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

RUSSELL, THOMAS N.....

Near Blanc Mont Ridge, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Vallejo, Calif.

B—Denver, Colo.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Russell, William H. (2021902).....

Near Boismeozerki, Russia, Apr. 1, 1919. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Canada. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

RUTHERFORD, JAMES E. (1897287). Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Somerville, Mass. B—Somerville, Mass. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

RUUSULEHTO, VAINO (548069)_____At Madeleine Farm, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Finland. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

Private, 101st Ambulance Company, 101st Sanitary Train, 26th Division. He assisted in establishing a dressing station in a dugout in an advanced position. When it was destroyed by shell he worked unceasingly in the open under fire from enemy machine guns and snipers, caring for the wounded. He remained at his post for several hours after his station had been ordered closed, permitting neither his own exhaustion nor the enemy fire to deter him from aiding the wounded.

Second lieutenant, 114th Infantry, 29th Division While advancing on an enemy position under direct machine-gun fire, he was seriously wounded but remained with his platoon until he died. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry Running.

Sergeant, Company A, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Sergeant Runyan assumed command of a platoon after all other sergeants of the platoon had become casualties and led it through several successive attacks. Although wounded in the head by a machine-gun bullet he refused to go to the rear for medical attention but remained in command of the platoon until his company was relieved.

Sergeant, Company G, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Sergeant Rupholdt held his post on the bank of the Marne until nearly his entire platoon had been annihilated and he himself wounded. After being carried a short distance to the rear he continued to direct the defense of the position until killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, August Rupholdt.

Sergeant, Company D, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
While in command of a flask platoon of the battalion, Sergeant Ruppel overcame 3 enemy machine-gun groups and personally led the flanking patrol when his platoon was held up by enemy machine-gun fire.

First lieutenant, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

Although previously wounded several times Lieutenant Rusch steadfastly remained in command of his platoon of machine guns and gallantly led it forward into position through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire to support his Infantry, which had been held up by enemy fire. By his timely action, his skill in the location of his guns and the direction of their fire, and his absolute disregard of personal danger, he quickly caused the withdrawd of the enemy machine guns, thus enabling his Infantry to advance from its precarious position where it was suffering heavy losses from direct fire of enemy machine guns and artillery. machine guns and artillery.

Pharmacist's mate, second class, U. S. Navy, attached to 2d Battalion, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He gave proof of remarkable courage and disregard for personal safety by remaining at his post for 3 days under heavy shellfire and rendering first aid to the wounded, even when his dressing station was hit by a large shell.

Corporal, Company M, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia). Corporal Russell assumed command of a Russian machine-gun crew, in addition to his own, and held his position for 10 hours against determined attacks of a greatly superior force. When the enemy fire was so severe as to cause the Russians to temporarily leave their gun, he himself took charge of the gun and continued the fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William Russell.

Master engineer, Company D, 105th Engineers, 30th division.
He commanded a platoon of engineers, following the first wave of the Infantry for the purpose of clearing a road for the artillery. Under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he directed the work with exceptional ability, at one time leading his platoon in advance of the Infantry. By organizing covering parties and utilizing 2 automatic riflemen, who had become separated from their own unit, he kept his platoon intact, capturing 35 prisoners and cleaning out 3 machine-gun nests in the course of his operations. While making a reconnaissance ahead of his platoon he personally took 9 Germans, after wounding their officer. As a result of his skillful leadership and gallant conduct his mission was successfully carried out.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 325th Infantry, 82d Division. At a critical moment during a hostile counterattack, Private Rutherford single-handed mounted a machine gun, under heavy enemy fire, and operated it at close range against the advancing enemy, repulsing the counterattack by his bravery.

Corporal, Company L, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

Accompanied by a comrade, Corporal Ruusulehto volunteered to attack an enemy machine-gun position, the fire from which was enfilading the position held by his platoon. During the attack his comrade was killed, but Corporal Ruusulehto, by a flank movement, reached the position, killed 2 members of the crew, and forced 2 others to surrender.

RYAN, C. WILLIAM

Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Wathena, Kans.

B—Severance, Kans. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Ryan, John Edward
Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4,
1918.

R—Galveston, Tex. B—Galveston, Tex. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RYAN, OSCAR H. (1496095)

Near Fanburg, France, Nov. 8, 1918, and at Villemontry, France, Nov. 10, 1918.

R—Cuero, Tex.
B—Cuero, Tex.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

RYAN, RICHARD J ... Across the River Ourcq, near Villerssur-Fere, France, July 28, 1918. R—Watertown, N. Y. B—Canada. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*RYAN, THOMAS A. (60535) Near Epieds, France, July 23, 1918. R—Boston, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Hartford, Conn. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

R—Topeka, Kans. B—Topeka, Kans. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

*RYKUS, WILLIAM (549282) At Launay, near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 15, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

RYLEY, NORRIS W. (136426)____ Near Seicheprey, France, Apr. 20, and 21, 1918.
R—Norwich, Conn.
B—Mystic, Conn.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

*Ryman, Herbert D. Near St. Gilles, France, Aug. 17, 1918.

R—Mount Pulaski, Ill. B—Vernon, Ill. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. Being severely wounded, Lieutenant Ryan lod his platoon through heavy shell and machine-gun fire, holding his command intact and capturing or destroying several machine guns.

Private, Headquarters Company, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division.

Maintaining a telephone line 3 kilometers long over a period of 8 days, he was under a terrific bombardment during the whole period, keeping communication under circumstances which called for the greatest courage and determination. He had no relief and was at one time without rations for 48 hours.

Corporal, 18th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He requested and obtained permission to lead his company's advance. In performing this task and providing for the safety of his men he fell, wounded through the leg.

Corporal, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

On Nov. 8 Corporal Ryan went on a patrol through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire and returned with valuable information of the enemy. On Nov. 10 he remained on post in a building after half of it had been demolished by shellfire, and after being relieved of this duty helped to dig men from the débris of other houses which had been destroyed by the shells.

Captain, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. Capitain, floth mantry, 42d Division.

Three times wounded on July 28, 1918, in the attack across the River Ourcq, near Villers-sur-Fere, France, and up the heights beyond, in which he led his company forward in the face of extremely heavy fire from machine guns and artillery, he refused to be evacuated and remained with his company until it was withdrawn. They reached their objectives and made their stand because of his fine spirit and unflinehing determination.

Private, Company D, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

Private Ryan, Sergt. Simeon L. Nickerson, and Corpl. M. J. O'Connell volunteered to cross an open field in front of their company in order to ascertain the location of enemy machine guns. While engaged in this courageous enterprise they were shot and killed. The heroic self-sacrifice of these 3 men saved the lives of many of their comrades, who would have been killed had the company attempted to make the advance as a whole.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Ryan

Sergeant, Company A, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

He was in command of a platoon advancing under heavy artillery bombardnient, machine-gun and rifle fire. Though severely wounded, he continued to lead his platoon, pushing on with his men until he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Rebecca Wand.

Major, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Major Ryder took command of the front-line units and reorganized them under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. Although wounded in the early operations, he remained in command and directed the attack until all objectives had been taken.

Oak-leaf cluster Onx-lear cluster leaves a warded Major Ryder for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Fleville, France, Oct. 9, 1918: In the attack on Hill 272, after all his runners had been killed or wounded while trying to establish liaison with the front-line companies, he advanced alone and personally directed the action of his command although under direct fire from 2 enemy machine guns. He later personally led the final assault on Hill 272, thereby making possible the success of the entire attack.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Private Rykus repeatedly ran through enemy machine-gun and rifle fire with important messages. Being twice wounded in these missions, he died from the effects thereof.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mollie Rykus.

Private, first class, Battery B, 103d Field Artillery, 26th Division.

All wire communications having been destroyed, 2 of the 3 guns of his battery also destroyed, and 50 per cent of the men of the battery killed or wounded, and several runners having been killed or wounded in attempting to carry messages to the battalion post of command, Private Ryley voluntarily and repeatedly crossed an exposed field a distance of 700 yards under terrific machine-gun and artillery fire, and again repeated his hazardous task on Apr. 21, 1918, and on each occasion accomplishing his mission. His heroic conduct was an inspiration to every man of his regiment. conduct was an inspiration to every man of his regiment.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division. While administering first-aid to a wounded soldier he was himself mortally wounded. Refusing aid, he assisted in rendering first aid and directing the treatment of 3 other soldiers. Though weakened by loss of blood, he showed utter disregard for his personal danger, refusing to accept treatment until the other wounded had been cared for.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Cora Belle Ryman.

RYMER, CHARLES B. (1452467)_ Near Very, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—Chattanooga, Tenn.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919

RYPKEMA, HANNES (2147198)

Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 14, 1918.
R—Hinckley, Minn.
B—Renville, Minn.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

SACK, WILLIAM (280641).

Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Big Rapids, Mich.

B—Keno, Mich.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

SACKETT, DAYTON Near Soissons, France, July 22, 1918; near St. Milliel, France, Sept. 12-15, 1918; near Hill 212, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Greenfield, Tenn. B—Clarksburg, Tenn. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SADKOWSKI, FRANK (1898379) ... Near Eply, France, Sept. 4, 1918. R—Keyport, N. J. B—Russia. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

SADLER, GEORGE W. DER, GEORGE W.
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 9–16, 1918.
R.—Laneview, Va.
B.—Laneview, Va.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*SAGER, GAIL H. (1214099). Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Clarington, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

St. George, Emery GEORGE, EMERY.
Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918.
R—Plymouth, Mass.
B—Plymouth, Mass.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*St. George, Raymond (61320)...... Near Bois-de-Wayrille, France, Oct.

2, 1918. R—Worcester, Mass. B—Worcester, Mass. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

St. James, Leonard (263298). Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Bay City, Mich. B—Whittemore, Mich. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

R—Deer Park, Wis. B—Deer Park, Wis. G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1919.

SALE, LARRY (1596196).

In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R-Homer, La
B-Claiborne Parish, La.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Bugler, Company F, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.

He was a member of a liaison group who worked their way 1,000 yards in advance of their first wave. Surrounded by machine-gun fire, they were forced to take refuge in a trench. Bugler Rymer worked his way along the trench to a clump of woods, where he captured a German officer alone. Assisted by 2 other soldiers, he later killed an enemy machine gunner and took 23 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company A, 320th Machine Gun Battalion, 82d Division. He went in advance of his section and unassisted captured and sent to the rear 13 German prisoners. With the aid of 2 infantrymen he later captured 28 more prisoners, under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. When his platoon commander had been killed and more than three-fourths of his platoon, had become casualties he reorganized the remainder of the platoon and continued the attack.

First sergeant, Company I, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
Assuming command of his company after all the officers had become casualties, Sergeant Sack skillfully maneuvered it in an attack on enemy machine-gun nests which were hindering the advance. He was severely wounded early in the engagement, but he continued to lead and encourage his men until he received a second wound, which rendered him a cripple for life.

First lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. On July 22 Lieutenant Sackett continued in the fight until he had taken and in July 22 Insertement Sackett continued in the light until he had taken and consolidated the objective assigned him, despite the fact that he was wounded early in the action. On Sept. 12 he was wounded in the first day's fighting, but continued to command his company, refusing to be evacuated until the corps' objective was reached. On Oct. 9 he fearlessly walked across an open space before allowing his troops to cross to ascertain whether or not it was subjected to promy fine. He was seriestly wanted while and the middle of the property that the middle of the control o to enemy fire. He was seriously wounded while on this mission.

Corporal, Company E, 325th Infantry, 82d Division. Under heavy fire from machine guns, and although seriously wounded, he continued to advance within the enemy's lines. By words of encouragement he urged his men to follow. By his brave leadership an enemy outpost defended by 2 machine guns and 6 riflemen was captured.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

Throughout this period Chaplain Sadler, regardless of his personal safety, gave first aid and assisted in the evacuation of the wounded from the field under heavy machine-gun, shell fire, and gas.

Corporal, Company D, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

Upon being wounded in the hand, he bandaged the wound himself and immediately returned to the firing line. He then picked up an automatic rifle, and, advancing alone toward machine-gun nests which were holding up his company, was killed after proceeding only a short distance.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Gail H. Sager.

First lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. On duty as assistant regimental signal officer, he continually exposed himself during the terrific enemy bombardment preceding the attack of July 15, repairing wires and endeavoring to keep the lines in operation.

Private, Company G, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

In the performance of his duties as scout, Private St. George displayed unusual courage in locating and charging machine-gun nests. After being mertally wounded, he insisted that those who stopped to aid him continue their advance to capture nests. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary St. George.

Private, first class, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. He repeatedly crossed an open area, 500 meters wide, under intense machine-gun fire in carrying messages to battalion headquarters. On one of his trips he came upon a wounded soldier, whom he took to the aid station, after administering first aid to him.

First lieutenant, Infantry Headquarters, 80th Division. First leutenant, Infantry Headquarters, 80th Division.
Lieutenant Sakrison, with a group of observers and signalmen, was in charge of the forward observation post. When the Infantry advanced, he followed closely with his telephone lines and established another post on Hill 274.
Though he was several times buried by bursting shells, he continued to make reports over the telephone until he was seriously wounded. After walking to a dressing station and securing first aid he returned to his post through heavy shellfire and continued to transmit important information for 3 hours until relieved.

Private, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After all the platoon runners had been killed or wounded, he volunteered and carried an important message through heavy machine-gun and artillery barrage.

SALIK, ALEXANDER (281089) ALEXANDER (281084).

Near Juvigny, north of Soissons,
France, Aug. 28, 1918.

R—Grand Rapids, Mich.

B—Russia.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*Sanborn, Eastman M Near the town of Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Downers Grove, Ill. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Sanborn, Joseph Brown.

Near Gressaire Wood, France, Aug.
9, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill.

B—Manchester, N. H.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service medal also

awarded.

R—Jamestown, N. Y. B—Titusville, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SANDERFER, PAUL C. (1316865).
Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Trenton, Tenn. B—Union City, Tenn. G. O. No. 37, W. D. 1919.

SANDERS, JOSEPH D. (156868)

Chaten-Thierry, France, June 3 and 13, 1918.
R—Hoisington, Kans.
B—Van Buren, Ark.
G. O. No. 23, W. D. 1919.

SANDERS, NATHAN P. (40598)

Near Soissons, France, July 18-25, 1918.

R—Weatherford, Okla. B—Barnett, Okla. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

Sanders, Pleas (546605) Near Cunel, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Brownsville, Ky. B—Brownsville, Ky. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Sanderson, Earl II, (64777)

At Chavignon, Chemin-des-Dames sector, France, Feb. 28, 1918.

R—Worcester, Mass.
B—Springfield, Mass.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

SANDFORD, WILLIAM (104280)_ Near the Ripont River, Champagne, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

*Sandh, Robin (1633477)_______ Near Montfaucon, France, Oct. 3, Near 1918.

1918. R—Gill, Colo. B—Arcadia, Nebr. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

Sergeant, Company K, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
Sergeant Salik, regardless of wounds and of mustard-gas burns previously received, rejoined and advanced with his company in the attack and assisted in re-forming a plateon after it had suffered severe casualties.

First lieutenant, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

For extraordinary heroism in action while leading his company in an attack upon the enemy under heavy machine-gun and shell fire. Although badly wounded during the advance he proceeded with his men, his command suffering heavy losses; being again wounded he retained command until exhausted by loss of blood and fully incapacitated. While making his way to the dressing station he was again wounded, and upon arrival at the dressing station yet again. His courage, coolness, and great fortitude and devotion to duty inspired his men to heroic efforts.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William J. Sanborn.

Colonel, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

Immediately after a forced march of 25 miles Colonel Sanborn's regiment was ordered into a critical engagement. Hurrying to the front, he personally led his forces through a heavy and concentrated shellfire and started the attack at the exact allotted time. After launching his attack he established his post of command in a shell hole and directed the battle to a successful termination. The courage and fearlessness of Colonel Sanborn, despite his advanced age of 62 years, were remarkable to all under his command. Colonel, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

Captain, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

After having been severely wounded he continued to advance with his command until ordered to leave the field by his regimental commander.

Major, 13th Field Artillery, 4th Division.
Twice gassed, he declined to be evacuated and continued in active command of his battalion. Having been advised and knowing that failure to be evacuated would probably result in his death, he nevertheless continued until he fell from his saddle in a state of total collapse. His fortitude and spirit of self-sacrifice were conspicuous.

Sergeant, Company M, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

Although wounded by enemy machine-gun fire, he continued to lead his platoon forward until he fell from weakness caused by loss of blood. He even then continued to advance by erawling until his strength entirely failed him.

Corporal, Company D, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
In command of an important outpost, Corporal Sanders exposed himself to rile and shell fire to better observe the movements of the enemy. He was knocked unconscious by a shell burst, but returned to his post immediately upon regaining consciousness. On June 13 he carried a wounded officer through an intense barrage to a dressing station.

Corporal, Company L, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

He gave proof of utter fearlessness and courage during the whole 7-days' offensive. On July 18 his company was stopped by an exceptionally well-located machine gun, making advance impossible until it was silenced. He on his own initiative crept upon the gun, killed the gunner, and captured 4 others of the crew. He then turned the gun and operated it on the retreating Germans

Sergeant, Company F, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

He attacked an enemy strong point covered by machine-gun fire. Although severely wounded, he continued to direct his platoon from a shell hole until the objective was reached.

Corporal, Company F, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
He was a member of a working party on the night of Feb. 28, 1918, well out in front of the advance post. The party encountered a violent barrage of the enemy, which protected enemy assault troops. He helped to fight off the German troops and walked back and forth under the enemy's and our own barrage to collect his men. When he heard his lieutenant was in trouble he walked again to his rescue where the barrage had at first overtaken him.

Private, medical detachment, 369th Infantry, 93d Division.
Under direct and close-range fire of several enemy machine guns he crawled to exposed positions to dress the wounds of officers and men.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
Private Sandh repeatedly carried messages to front-line platoons through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. While en route to an exposed machine-gun position, under heavy fire of the enemy, he was killed by a shell fragment.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Sarah Sandh.

*Sanford, Luman K. (1551372) _____ Near Chateau-Thierry, France, Near Chateau-Thierry, July 14-15, 1918. R—Endicott, N. Y. B—Lake Arier, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Santarsiero, Guiseppe (2411222)...... Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 26, R-Trenton, N. J. B-Italy. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SAPLIO, SAM (1244810) Near Fismette, France, Aug. 10-12, 1918. R-Marion, W. Va. B-Italy. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*SAPP, AMBERS (730957) Near Frapelle, France, Aug. 17, 1918. R—Nepton, Ky. B—Fleming County, Ky. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

SARGENT, JESSIE W. (44417) GENT, JESSIE W. (4441)

Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Crown, W. Va.

B—Frenchburg, Ky.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

SARTAIN, GEORGE W. (547762)

Near Jaulgonne, France, July 26, 1918.

R-Washington, D. C.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SARTAIN, JAKE C. (2236537)

Near St. Marie Farm, France, Sept. 18, 1918.

R.—Atlanta, Ga.

B.—Greenville, Ga.

G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

8-9, 1918.
R.—Garfield, N. J.
B.—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SATTLER, WILLIAM N. (1389862) At Bois-de-Foret, France, Oct. 6-13, 1918. R—Chicago, III. B—Chicago, III. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*SAUER, JOSEPH (1708815) _ Near Binarville, France, Oct. 2, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company F, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Private Sandman, with a comrade, advanced as a scout across an open space which was covered by heavy machine-gun fire from the enemy. This advance was made in order to locate the position of the enemy machine guns and draw their attention while the rest of the platoon advanced on the flanks.
Private Sandman signaled the location of the German guns to his comrades, and he had advanced more than 200 yards through the murderous fire when he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mina Sandman.

Private, Battery F, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

During a heavy shelling he continued to repair broken telephone lines, which were constantly being severed by shell fire, until he was killed by an enemy

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Rev. Luman E. Sanford.

Private, Company M, 311th Infantry, 78th Division. He rushed ahead of his company and, single-handed, flanked a machine-gun nest, which was causing losses to his company, killing the gunners.

Private, Company C, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Without fear or thought for his personal safety, he sought out enemy snipers posted in trees and killed a number of them. Later, with Sergt. John W. Thompson, he attacked an enemy machine-gun nest, killed the crew, and turned the gun on the enemy, operating it with deadly effect on the Infantry and machine-gun positions, killing the gun erews and capturing 10 machine guns.

Private, Headquarters Company, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
He displayed great coolness and courage under a heavy enemy barrage when he unhesitatingly went forward to destroy enemy wire entanglements and continued this extremely hazardous work until killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Rufe Sapp.

Second lieutenant, 11th Field Artillery, 6th Division.
Under heavy shellfire, disregarding his own safety, he remained on duty, superintending the unloading of ammunition until he was mortally wounded.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Bradley V. Sargent, jr.

Corporal, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
When enemy machine-gun fire was eausing losses to our line, Corporal Sargent went forward in broad daylight under fire and silenced the machine gun by killing the gunner. His action enabled his unit to continue the advance.

Corporal, Company K, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
He gave aid to 3 wounded comrades during a heavy bombardment and, after 4 unsuccessful attempts, finally succeeded in carrying them to a dressing station.

Sergeant, first class, Company A, 315th Engineers, 90th Division.

As Sergeant Sartain was successfully directing the crection of barbed-wire entanglements under heavy shellfire he heard cries for help from the direction of the enemy's lines. He immediately went out to investigate, and upon finding a soldier of another organization lying wounded carried him to our lines, twice passing through enemy machine-gun fire in accomplishing this heroic act.

Sergeant, first class, Company A, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.

His platoon commander and only other sergeant being wounded, Sergeant Sarti assumed command of his platoon, although himself wounded. He made a reconnaissance of the position his platoon was to occupy under heavy shell fire, and, returning, conducted it to the new position without the loss of a single man, and remained with it for 48 hours.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
Corporal Sattler was in charge of all runners at advance post of command of the regiment. The area was beavily gassed. Although so badly gassed that his eyes were swollen shut and his voice affected, he refused to be evacuated but continued on duty. On Oct. 10, when all runners were killed, wounded, or gassed, he repeatedly carried many important messages in order to maintain communication. to maintain communication, Corporal, Company F, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. He volunteered in the face of heavy enemy machine-gun fire to deliver a message to a platoon sergeant who was leading an attack on enemy machine-gun nests. He was wounded in one leg just as he started and was wounded in the other leg before reaching the sergeant, but did, by calling aloud, deliver the message verbally and accurately.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Joseph Sauer.

SAUERS, ROY M. (2193727)

Near Tailly, France, Nov. 4, 1918.

R—Stuart, Nebr.

B—Hooper, Nebr.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

TOM W Near the Bois-de-Remieres, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Portland, Oreg.

B—Wyoming, Ohio.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SAUNDERS, EUGENE F. (1285175) Near Beis-de-Censenvoye, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Washington, D. C.

B—Washington, D. C.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SAUNDERS, THOMAS D. (156126). At Jaulny, France. Sept. 12, 1918. R—Cheyenne, Wyo. B—Medicine Bow, Wyo. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

*Saunders, William H______ In the Toul sector, France, May 25, 1918. R—Dalzell, S. C. B—Claremont, S. C. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

1918.

R—Boston, Mass. B—Medford, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SAVAGE, ARTHUR V Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SAVAGE, ERNEST S ... Near Grimaucourt, France, Nov. 11, 1918.
R—Council, N. C.
B—Council, N. C.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

SAWEUR, ILLIAN (551289) Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Shenandoah, Pa. B—Poland.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, first class, Company B, 314th Field Signal Battalion, 89th Division. He was in charge of a wire-laying detail between Tailly and Beauclair. Over a road swept by heavy shellfire he carried the line forward and in constant repair to the support of a battalion of the 355th Infantry.

First lieutenant, 327th Battalion, Tank Corps. He coolly exposed himself to enemy fire by standing on the parapet of a trench and directing his men in the work of getting the tanks forward.

Private, first class, Company F, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. He carried a wounded comrade through a terrific machine-gun and artillery harrage to a place of safety, and thereby saved his life, although risking his own in the exploit.

Corporal, Company A, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.

He and another soldier, who were acting as wire cutters with the first line of Infantry, fought their way forward in advance of their units and were the first men to enter Jaulny while it wassweept by machine-gun fire, infested with snipers, and still occupied by rear-guard detachments of the enemy. After capturing 8 Germans in a dugout they searched the caves in the tewn and took 55 additional prisoners.

Captain, 12th Aere Squadron, Air Service.

The artillery of the 26th Division desiring its batteries to be adjusted upon objectives in front of the division, Captain Saunders volunteered to make the objectives in front of the division, Captain Saunders volunteered to make the attempt, although the weather was most unfavorable to flying. After flying two hours amid heavy antiaircraft fire and having adjusted the fire of 3 batteries his plane was hit and disabled. Returning to his airdrome he secured another plane and returned to the enemy line to complete his mission. After another hour in the air he was again forced on account of motor trouble to return to the airdrome. Obtaining a third plane he again returned to the lines, the weather conditions forcing him to proceed for a considerable distance behind the enemy lines and at low altitude. Flying thus for an hour his plane was hit by antiaircraft fire and badly damaged. With one control shot away, and his propeller likewise injured, he still continued to adjust, always at low altitude and under constant enemy fire, until his mission was successfully and insproperer likewise indices, it is concentrated to adjust, aways at low altitude and under constant enemy fire, until his mission was successfully accomplished. The heroic conduct of Captain Saunders served as a splendid example of soldierly devotion to duty to the men of his squadron. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, W. L. Saunders.

Private, sanitary detachment, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. He displayed remarkable courage in going out under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, giving aid to wounded soldiers and carrying them back to the dressing stations.

First lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
In the darkness he charged a machine gun which had been brought across the Marne by the Germans to cover their crossing during the night, but was completely surrounded and killed just as he reached the gun.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles S. Savage.

First lieutenant, 316th Machine Gun Battalion, 81st Division.
Although so sick from gas that he could hardly move, and womiting lieuvily into his gas mask, he successfully conducted the fire of his machine-gun platoon in the face of heavy shrappel, gas, and machine-gun fire. He received no medical attention until late in the afternoon after the attack was over.

Corporal, Company A, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
Upon his own initiative, Corporal Savitsky led his squad in the face of heavy machine-gun fire in order to silence enemy machine guns which were endangering our position. Through his skill and courage several machine-gun nests were surrounded and silenced and 20 prisoners captured.

Private, Cempany C, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. On two separate occasions during the battle of the Marne, Private Saweuk went over the top alone, returning with 12 prisoners the first time and 8 the second.

Sergeant, Company K, 115th Infantry, 20th Division.

In the advance on Rechene Hill he showed great courage and judgment in leading his platoon and wiping out several machine guns that were holding up the advance. He was killed while gallantly leading his platoon against the last of these.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Jesse W. Saxon.

Private, Company E, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
When his plateon was forced to take shelter from the intense fire, Private Scandel, with another soldier, having located the source of the fire, crawled forward 200 yards, capturing a nest containing 2 guns and 5 of the enemy. When his companion had started to the rear with the prisoners, Private Scandel continued forward, rushing frem shell hole to shell hole and outflanking a second nest, taking 1 gun and 3 prisoners.

SCANLAN, ANTHONY (42842).

Near Soissons, France, July 21, 1918.

R—Lost Creek, Pa.

B—Ireland. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*SCANLON, HORACE B. Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SCANLON, JAMES E.
Near Limey, France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R—Boswell, Ind.
B—Boswell, Ind.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

SCANLON, RAYMOND (60856)__ In the Bois-de-Belleu north of Verdun, France, Oct. 25, 1918. R—Waltham, Mass. B—Waltham, Mass. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

Schabinger, Andrew C. (1387453) ..... At Hamel, France, July 4, 1918. R—Washington, Ill. B—Washington, Ill. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

SCHAD, ALBERT P. (1245668) Near Montblainville, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

*Schaffner, Fred C_____

In a shell bombardment, Apr. 13, 1918. R—Rock Island, Ill. B—Kewanee, Ill. G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R-Toledo, Ohio. B-Benton Harbor, Mich. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

SCHALLERT, EDWARD I. (1633084) ... At Madeleine Farm, France, Oct. 10-13, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—St. Louis, Mo.
G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

SCHENCK, ALEXANDER P.

In the region of Doulcon, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Plainfield, N. J. B—Greensboro, N. C. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

*SCHENCK, GORDON L.

In the Argonne Forest, near Binarville, France, Oct. 3 to 7, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y.
B—Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Sergeant, Company F, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Although severely wounded, he displayed exceptional courage and leadership by reorganizing his battalion under fire when all of its officers had been killed or incapacitated by injuries.

Second lieutenant, 106th Infantry, 27th Division. Gathering about 40 men from various units in a forward trench, he organized them into an attacking party and led them forward under heavy machine gun fire, repulsing an enemy counterattack. While in the performance of this exploit he was mortally wounded, but, attempting to push forward with his men, he called out: "Go on fighting! Never mind what happened to me.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. John L. Scanlon.

First lieutenant, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Although wounded himself, he went to the rescue of another officer who had fallen in an exposed position. With marked bravery he passed through heavy enemy fire, and reaching the other officer, carried him to safety.

Sergeant, Company F, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

Sergeant Scanlon, while advancing in command of a liaison group, was halted by machine-gun fire from the front. Alone, he dashed ahead of his men toward the enemy position. He wounded 2 of the enemy and captured the gun. Upon being rejoined by his men he continued the advance.

Corporal, Company E, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Although severely wounded in the arm at the beginning of the engagement, he continued forward as squad leader, exhibiting great gallantry and setting an inspiring example to his men.

First sergeant, Company L, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

With a detail of 16 men, Sergeant Schad attempted the mission of cleaning up a machine-gun nest which was enfilading the Montblainville Road. Leaving his men in a sheltered position where a counter fire could be directed upon the enemy gun, he advanced alone, located the nest, killed 2 of the crew with hand grenades, put the others to flight, and destroyed the gun.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Le Chene Tondu, France, Oct. 4, 1918, First Sergeaut Schad is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be worn with 4 he distinguished-service cross: On his own initiative he took forward a platoon to fill a gap left in the attacking platoons on account of casualties. Leaving his platoon to cover the road, he advanced alone upon a machine-gun nest, killed the entire crew with hand grenades, and captured the gun. He then held the position until the advance was taken up the following morning.

Pharmacist's mate, third class, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

After having been gassed himself in the gas-shell bombardment of Apr. 13, 1918, he courageously helped in the treatment of more than 100 cases of gas casualties, disregarding his own condition until overcome. Died Apr. 18, 1918. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emma Schaffner.

Private, medical detachment, 147th Infantry, 37th Division.
Seeing 2 men fall wounded, Private Schairer immediately went to their assistance, unmindful of the extreme danger that he was exposed to, and after dragging the men to a shell hole administered effective first aid. A few days later he was killed in the performance of his duties.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Schairer.

Private, medical detachment, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Although wounded in the thigh on Oct. 10, he continued to render first aid to the wounded under enemy fire until wounded a second time by a machinegun bullet in the arm.

First lieutenant, pilot, 49th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

He was one of an offensive patrol of 6 planes that attacked and engaged in combat 17 enemy machines (Pokker type). While he was engaging I of the enemy he observed a comrade about to be sent down by an enemy plane that had maneuvered to an advantageous position. He immediately left off the combat he was engaged in and shot down the plane, thereby saving the life

Second lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

While his battalion was surrounded by the enemy, Lieutenant Schenck, by his heroic conduct, while repulsing frequent enemy attacks, inspired his command. Fearlessly exposing himself to fire, he seized his rifle and ran to the top of a bank in front of his company's position where he was able to throw hand grenades at the enemy until killed by an enemy shell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles N. Schenck.

SCHERMERHORN, CHARLES EARL.... Near Cornay, France, Oct. 9-10, 1918. R.—Troy, N. Y. B.—Troy, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Schiani, Alfred In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 13, 1918. R.—Newark, N. J. B.—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

France,

SCHIDE, CLARENCE C...

Near Bois-d'Ormont, France, Oct. 12, 1918.

R.—Mason City, Iowa.

B.—Charles City, Iowa.

G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

7, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Schlesinger, Albert (1526010)

At Bois-Dommartin, near Beney,
France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Cincinnati, Ohio.
B—Rumania.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

1918. R—Jersey City, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1926.

SCHMIDT, FERDINAND A. (2407360)..... Near Talma Farm, France, Oct. 22, 1918.

R-Newark, N. J. B-Newark, N. J. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SCHMIDT, RUSSELL A. Near Cumiercs, France, Oct. 8, Near 1918. R—Council Bluffs, Iowa. B—Council Bluffs, Iowa. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

*Schmitt, Edward F. (1703461)____ Near Mont Notre Dame, France, Sept. 10, 1918. R-Buffalo, N. Y. B-Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Schmitz, Charles (40214)

Near Tilly, Marie Louise sector,
France, Apr. 14, 1918.

R—Saginaw, Mich.
B—Trenton, Pa. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
After successfully driving off the enemy his attacking force was counterattacked and surrounded. The officers in charge decided to surrender to the greatly superior numbers, but he, refusing to do so, made his way to our lines through deadly enomy fire, although severely wounded while doing so.

Private, 18th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Severely wounded at the beginning of the attack, Private Schiani, an automatic rifle carrier, continued to advance, carrying two pouches of ammunition until he fell unconscious.

Corporal, Company H, 305th Infantry, 77th Division. With 2 other soldiers, Corporal Schick volunteered to crawl out under enemy machine-gun fire in an effort to locate three members of the platoon who were missing after an unsuccessful attack on enemy machine-gun nests. Finding the body of 1, they located another, who lay helplessly wounded, by calling out his name. As a result they drew increased fire from the enemy, but they courageously crawled 25 yards farther toward the hostile positions and succeeded in carrying back the wounded man through the machine-gun fire toward the machine-gun fire the machine-gun fir to our lines.

Second lieutenant, 114th Infantry, 29th Division.
Although severely wounded, Lieutenant Schide continued to lead his platoon over open ground and subjected to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire until he received a second wound, which necessitated his removal from the field in a critical condition.

Bugler, Machine Gun Company, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After having received a wound in his knee by a machine-gun bullet, and a shell wound in the face, he continued his duties as runner until ordered evacuated by his company commander.

Sergeant, Company G, 147th Infantry, 37th Division.

On the night of Oct. 11, 1918, at Bois-Dominartin, near Beney, France, he volunteered to recover the body of an American officer who had been killed while leading a raiding party, the hody being left about 50 paces in front of the enemy positions. With a patrol of 6 men he proceeded on his mission, meeting heavy rifle and machine-gun fire. Ordering his men to retire, he, with 1 man of his patrol, covered the retirement, which was successfully accomplished: Although severely wounded, he continued his covering fire with automatic rifle and grenades, unassisted, and eventually reached his own lines. own lines.

Cook, Company K, 114th Infantry, 29th Division. He volunteered to take hot food to the front-line troops, who had not received hot food for 3 days. After traveling 4 kilometers, he was fatally wounded by a bursting shell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William Schmelz.

Private, Company B, 312th Infantry, 78th Division. When his company's advance had been held up by intense machine-gun fire, he crawled through a barrage of hand grenades and at the point of his bayonet held 19 of the enemy in a dugout until assistance arrived. Before performing this courageous act he was slightly wounded.

Captain, 108th Field Signal Battalion, 33d Division. Captain, 108th Field Signal Battalion, 33d Division.

With a detail of 5 men, Captain Schmidt was engaged in attempting to lay a telephone line across the Meuse River, when they were discovered and attacked by a superior force of the enemy. Even after being wounded 3 times, Captain Schmidt continued the unequal struggle, killing 1 and wounding 3 of the enemy, until all his ammunition was exhausted and all of his men severely wounded. Believing himself to be mortally wounded, he advanced into the enemy's lines and gave himself up in order to save the lives of his men. He was recaptured by our forces later in the day.

Private, first class, Company L, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.

Voluntarily accompanying an officer and noncommissioned officer of his battalion in a search of the Bois-de-Chandriere for the survivors of a battalion which had been relieved from its position in the line, he crossed an open field under terrific enemy fire, a distance of 600 yards, under constant observation of the enemy, sought and found several survivors, and led them back to his own lines. The heroic and soldierly conduct of Private Schmitt and his devotion to his comrades greatly inspired the men of his battalion. Private Schmitt was later killed in action while gallantly fighting with his battalion in the Argonne Forest.

Postburgusly awarded. Medal presented to father, William Schmitt.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William Schmitt.

Private, Company I, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

On Apr. 14, 1918, during an attack on his company by superior forces, he advanced single handed against 5 Germans who had taken cover in a shell hole and killed or wounded all of them with an automatic rifle, *SCHNEIDER, JOHN G., Jr Near the Forest of Argonne, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—St. Joseph, Mo. B—St. Joseph, Mo. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

R—Versailles, Ky. B—Versailles, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SCHOEN, KARL J Near Ancerville, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R-Indianapolis, Ind. B-Indianapolis, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SCHOLES, WILLIAM (1386755)

At Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 10, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 140, W. D., 1918.

Schooley, Harry T. (1736688)

Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 25,

1918.

R-Laurel, Md. B-Laurel, Md. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SCHRADER, EDGAR A. (198706) At Berzy-le-See, France, July 18-21, 1918.
R—Vacaville, Calif.
B—Oldshasta, Calif.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Schreech, George Walter_____ Near Bayonville, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R-Indianapolis, Ind. B-Kansas, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Schroedel, John C. (2159955)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, Near 1918, R—Sherburn, Minn. B—Hinckley, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Schroth, Raymond A. (1746136)..... Near Grand Pre, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Trenton, N. J. B—Trenton, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SCHUCHART, FRANK (2057101). Near Juvigny, France, Aug. 30, 1918, and in the Argonne Forest, France, And in the Argonne Fores
Nov. 8, 1918.
R—Belmont, Wis.
B—Liberty, Wis.
G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Schueren, Dan E., Jr______ Near Barricourt, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Although he was painfully wounded, he continued to advance with his command until he was wounded a second time.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John G. Schneider.

First lieutenant, 359th Infantry, 90th Division. Lieutenant Schoberth continued to lead his platoon after being wounded in the arm by a machine-gun bullet. He set an excellent example for his platoon by his courage and disregard for personal danger. This gallant officer was later killed by a shell fragment.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Anthony Schoberth.

First lieutenant, 139th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While leading a patrol of 3 machines he sighted 9 enemy planes (Fokker type) and immediately attacked them. Although greatly outnumbered, he destroyed 1 of the planes and put the others to flight. He was killed in action
Oct. 29, 1918, and has been officially credited with destroying 7 enemy aircraft.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Maurino Estelle Schoen.

Sergeant, Company C, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
When the advance of his platoon was suddenly halted by intense machine-gun fire at close range, wounding his platoon commander and other platoon sergeants, Sergeant Scholes showed splendid devotion to duty by personally manning a machine gun in the advance position and maintaining fire until the rest of the platoon had reached shelter.

Corporal, Company L, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

After his platoon had fallen back under heavy shellfire, Corporal Schooley made a personal reconnaissance of an enemy machine-gun nest through a heavy barrage, killed 1 of the enemy gunners, and drove off the others with hand grenades, thereby enabling his platoon to resume its position.

Private, 2d Field Signal Battalion, 1st Division.
Attached to headquarters of the 1st Division as dispatch rider during the operations at Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 18-21, 1918, he courageously and unhesitatingly passed through areas under steady artitlery bombardment to carry messages whose delivery was of vital necessity to the success of the attack.

Corporal, 82d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He volunteered and went forward to reconnoiter a ravine infested with hostile machine-gun and artillery positions, returning with several prisoners.

Private, Company B, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
During operations in the region of Bellicourt Private Schroedel, unassisted, attacked an enemy stronghold and captured 2 machines and 5 prisoners.

First sergeant, Company E, 314th Infantry, 78th Division. He was directed to lead an attack against an enemy machine-gun nest which le was directed to lead an attack against an enemy machine-gun nest which was impeding the progress of his company. Reaching a point within 50 feet of the stronghold, he ordered an attack, and 6 Germans near the gun sought to surrender until they saw the strength of his force, now reduced through casualties to 2 or 3 men. The enemy was then reinforced by 20 men and launched a severe counterattack, which forced Sergeant Schroth to abandon his attack. After ordering his men to safety, he remained at his post alone, fighting against the superior forces until he drove a prisoner back to our lines at the point of his enapty pistol. Despite his desire to provide safety for his patrol, he was the only survivor to return from the mission.

Private, Company L, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
During the attack near Juvigny Private Schuchart, while acting as runner, repeatedly exposed himself to severe enemy artillery and machine-gun fire. After the attack he voluntarily joined in the work of clearing the field of wounded under a heavy enemy fire. On Nov. 8, while carrying an important message, he was severely wounded in the left leg. He stopped in a shell hole, dressed the wound himself, proceeded to deliver the message, and did not report for treatured. report for treatment.

Sergeant, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division.

Sergeant Schueren, acting as liaison agent with an assaulting infantry battalion, on his own initiative took command of a platoon of infantry when its leader was wounded. He ordered the advance resumed and under his leadership machine-gun nests that threatened to hold up the advance of the entire battalion was finally and silvaged on the lianced of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged on the silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion was finally as a silvaged of the entire battalion. battalion were flanked and silenced.

SCHULTHEIS, BERNARD (264586)
Near Terny-Sorny, north of Soissons,
France, Sept. 1, 1918.
R—Flint, Mich.
B—St. Louis, Mich.
G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

Schultz, Arthur (284565)...

Near Juvigny, north of Soissons,
France, Aug. 30, 1918.
R—Neenah, Wis.
B—Menasha, Wis.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*Schultz, Charles (1389693)

Near Forges, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill.

B—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Schultz, Fred M. (44376)

Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Mount Clemens, Mich.

B.—Mount Clemens, Mich.

G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

SCHULTZ, GEORGE F. (3535520)

Near Sedan, France, Nov. 7, 1918.
R—New Buffalo, Mich.
B—Michigan City, Ind.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

R—Tompkinsville, N. Y. B—Germany. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Aug. 16, 1918. R—Cedar Rapids, Iowa. B—Cedar Rapids, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SCHUMACHER, MAX (1136293)

At Clery-le-Petit, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R—Brenham, Tex. B—Brenham, Tex. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

SCHUMAKER, FRANCIS X Near Heurne, Belgium, Nov. 3, 1918. R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Dayton, Ohio. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SCHURTER, ALPHIA (489438) ___ Hottlett, Allema (459485) In the lower Suchan Valley, Siberia, July 5, 1919. R—Hilltop, Kans. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

SCHWARTZ, ADOLPH (545204). Service rendered under the name, Frank Brown.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. When the infantry was advaucing in a position exposed to cross fire, he volunteered and carried a message to the advancing troops, informing them that a machine-gun barrage laid down on the enemy emplacements was friendly fire from a unit not in their support and acting without orders to cover their advance. He delivered the message, returned across an open field swept by enemy machine guns, and thereby made it possible for the infantry unit to advance 400 meters and gain its objective.

Sergeant, Company I, 128th Infautry, 32d Division.
He displayed great courage and coolness during an attack in going forward under heavy fire and firing upon machine-gun emplacements. Later, when a retirement was ordered, he remained in advance of the line to carry back the wounded, in spite of heavy fire from artillery and machine guns.

Private, Company II, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
While his platoon was being held up by machine-gun fire, he braved the hazardous fire by going forward and driving out the crew, after which he captured the gun. He died from wounds received in the exploit.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Charles Schultz.

Corporal, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Leading his squad through a heavy barrage and against violent machine-gun fire, he attacked an enemy field gun which had been holding up the progress of our tanks. He disabled the gun crew and took 15 prisoners, after which he personally captured a machine gun and killed its operator. Although wounded himself, he assisted 2 wounded members of his squad to the firstaid station.

Private, Company E, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. While accompanying his company as liaison agent in the advance, he attacked single handed a machine-gun nest which was delivering a heavy fire, killed the gunner, and caused many other casualties among the enemy. His act also caused other enemy machine gunners to withdraw and saved his com-pany from a very dangerous flanking fire.

Private, Company C, 302d Engineers, 77th Division.
He and another soldier had become separated from their detachment and were forced to take shelter for 5½ days. He rescued a wounded comrade from exposure to machine-gun and shellfire and later attacked a machine-gun nest in his direct front. In the attack he killed 2 of the enemy with hand grenades and subsequently returned to our lines, assisting the wounded comrade to

Private, first class, section No. 583, Ambulance Service. When many French and American drivers had been killed or wounded during an intense bomburdment on a dressing station, he immediately went to their assistance, but received wounds himself which will make him a cripple for

Private, Company I, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
When the advance of his company was held up by enemy machine-gun fire, Private Schumacher, with his platoon commander and another soldier, advanced in front of the line and attacked a machine-gun nest, killing 2 gunners and taking 8 prisoners, thereby enabling the company to advance and establish a brigade bridgehead.

First lieutenant, 148th Infantry, 37th Division.

In the face of terrific machine-gnn and artillery fire, he gave valuable assistance in the construction of a log bridge over the Scheldt River, which enabled his battalion to cross and establish itself in its objective. He remained with his company after being wounded until he was forced to be evacuated.

Private, first class, Company D, 31st Infantry.

Although mortally wounded he continued to advance with his platoon and assisted them by fire action until ordered to stop by his automatic rifle sergeant.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Murial Schurter.

Sergeant, 8th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Tillie Schwab.

Private, first class, Company B, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. He displayed the greatest devotion to duty, loyalty, and courage by repeatedly volunteering, night and day, to carry messages under the heaviest machine-gun and shell fire from his hattalion commander to the company commanders, thereby maintaining efficient liaison at all times.

Corporal, Company A. 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

remained with them until they were evacuated.

SCHWARZWAELDER, CHRISTIAN ALLEN. Near Vieville, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R.—Lake Mahopac, N. Y. B.—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Schwegler, John W. (1210086) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Schwer, Henry G. (2158708)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29-30, 1918. R-Fairfax, Iewa. B-Falmouth, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SCHWING, FRED (1248737)_____ Near Montblainville, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Warren, Pa. B—Warren, Pa. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Schwing, James Albert______ Near Montbrehain, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Spartanburg, S. C. B—Augusta, Ga. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Near Imecourt, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Mount Oliver, Pa. SCIALABBA. B—Italy. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SCIALABBA, JOSEPH (2338403). Near Cunel, France, Oct. 13, 1918. R—Butler, Pa. B—Italy. G. O. No. 89, W. D. 1919.

Scionti, Louis (558045)

Near Bazoches, France, Aug. 9, 1918.

R—Boston, Mass. B—Italy. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Sclafoni, Anthony (1203426) Near Ronssey, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Scoby, Otis C. (915416)_____ Near Brieulles, France, Nov. 2-4, 1918.
R—St. Francis, Kans.
B—St. Francis, Kans.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Scort, Albert E. (61565) In Trugny Woods, northwest of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 23, 1918, during the Aisne-Marne offensive R—Brookline, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company I, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Private Schwartz, carried numerous messages over routes swept by heavy machine-gun and artillery fire. Due to his personal heroism when exposed to heavy fire, his company commander was able to maintain communication with the battalion at all times during the attack.

First lieutenant, 21st Machine Gun Battalion, 7th Division. Lieutenant Schwarzwaelder remained in an exposed place administering first aid to a wounded officer and 2 soldiers throughout a heavy barrage of gas shells and high explosives after his platoon had withdrawn from the position. He had the wounded men removed to a less exposed place and

Sergeant, Company C, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Sergeant Schwegler went forward from a front-line trench in daylight for a distance of 60 yards through enemy machine-gun and snipers' fire and brought back a wounded soldier to shelter.

Private, Company B, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

During an attack by his regiment he was wounded, but continued his work as stretcher bearer throughout the night, refusing to be evacuated while able to render assistance to his comrades,

Private, first class, Company I, 112th Infantry, 28th Division. Despite a concentration of enemy machine-gun and rifle fire, Private Schwing, together with Sergeant Small of his company, left the protection of the trenches, and in full view of the enemy advanced across an open space for a distance of 75 yards, rescued a wounded soldier and carried him to shelter. The bravery and devotion to duty thus displayed greatly inspired and encouraged the members of their command, inciting them to still greater endeavers. endeavors.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Erhart Schwing.

First licutenant, Company F, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
With 2 soldiers he attacked a machine-gun nest of 4 guns and about 40 Germans. By the efficient use of grenades and automatic rifles the Germans were forced to surrender, thereby allowing the company to continue the advance.

Corporal, Company K, 319th Infantry, 80th Division.
He crawled 300 yards alone, outflanked a machine gun, killed 4, and captured 3 of the crew. Although wounded by a shell fragment, he refused to ge to the rear.

Private, Company C, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

From an exposed outpost position, during a strong enemy counterattack, Private Scialabba opened fire on the advancing enemy with a captured machine gun. When the machine gun jammed, he picked up a light Browning gun and used it with the same deadly effect until the magazines were exhausted, whereupon he resorted to rille fire. This gallant seldier was killed in action 2 days later.

Posthurantly awarded. Medal presented to brother. Peter Scialabba. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Peter Scialabba.

Sergeant, Company F, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers to destroy a hostile machine gun, Sergeant Scionti, with 2 other soldiers, boldly went forward through machine-gun fire and accomplished this mission.

Private, Company A, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
While the advance against the Hindenburg Line was at its height Private Sclafoni, seeing a Lewis gunner exposed to the enemy, ran to his assistance.
On the way he was seriously wounded, but continued on, reaching the position and using his body to shield the gunner while the latter poured a fire into the enemy. He was wounded 3 times, finally losing consciousess, but, after his wounds were dressed, he insisted on leaving the field unaided.

Sergeant, Company F, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.

While making a daylight reconnaissance of the Canal Est, he was at all times in full view of the enemy's snipers and machine guns. Unmindful of the danger, he continued on to the successful accomplishment of his mission. On the merning of Nov. 4 he aided materially in the construction of a pontoon bridge across the Canal Est, under heavy shell fire, thus enabling the Infantry to cross and capture commanding heights on the east bank of the Meuse.

Private, Company H, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

Private Scott, an automatic rifleman, voluntarily posted himself on an exposed flank to cover a means of approach of an enemy attacking party. Absolutely alone, he opened fire on the enemy, killing and wounding many and fully stopping the flank attack before he himself was killed by a sniper's bullet. By his heroic act he saved the company a great many easualtics and assured the maintenance of the perilous position.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Stewart C. Scott.

*Scott, Edward W. (1211829) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Westchester, N. Y. B—Elberon, N. J. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

SCOTT, JOHN S. (52429) -Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—New Eagle, Pa. B—Glassport, Pa. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

SCOTT, MILTON R.

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4,

1918.

R—La Monte, Mo.

B—La Monte, Mo.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

3, 1918. R—lone, Wash. B—Denver, Colo. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Scudellari, Pietro (43314) Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Springfield, Mass. B—Italy. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

July 14-15, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SEAGRAVES, CHARLES (541692) ___

At Fossoy, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Nashville, Tenn. B—Akersville, Ky. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*SEAGRAVES, VICTOR L. (1455903) _____

Near Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Oskaloosa, Kans. B—Jefferson County, Kans. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

SEAMON, ALEXANDER R..... Near Charpentry, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Deming, N. Mex. B—Rolla, Mo. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

5, 1918. R—Greeley, Colo. B—Cheyenne, N. Dak. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

First sergeant, Company L, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
He assumed command of his company after all the officers had become casualties, though he himself had been shot through the arm, and led it into effective combat. After being wounded a second time he refused to go to the rear, but continued to advance until he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emily A. Scott.

Private, Company A, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. When that portion of the line of which he was a part was violently attacked on July 20, 1918, near Soissons, France, he held his post and repulsed the enemy.

Gunnery sergeant, 17th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

After being severely wounded he continued to assist in consolidating the position of his platoon, later placing himself in an exposed position in order to gain good observation for sniping enemy machine-gun positions.

Private, Company L, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

Although himself severely wounded, he assisted in caring for wounded comrades, refusing aid until all others had received treatment. In the performance of his duties he carried a message through an area which was under heavy machine-gun fire and constant haud-grenade bombing.

Private, Company G, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Knowing that the enemy had captured a wounded member of his company, Private Scudellari with 2 others advanced across dangerous ground to a barn, where they routed the enemy captors and carried back their comrade to safety.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

After being badly gassed, he continued to carry messages through heavy gas and high-explosive shell bombardment to the front line.

Sergeant, Company F, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
During the intense artillery bombardment preceding the second battle of the Marne, Sergeant's Segraves volunteered to reestablish broken liaison with his company post of command. While carrying messages he was twice captured by groups of the enemy, but each time he escaped, killing 5 of his captors. On returning to his platoon's position and finding that every member of it had been killed or captured, he organized a group of 100 men from his own and other companies, and closed the breach of 500 meters in the line. Shortly afterwards he went out alone and, locating an enemy machine gun, captured the entire crew single handed.

Sergeant, Company B, 1st Battalion, scout platoon, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.

Sergeant Seagraves voluntarily formed and led a patrol against an enemy machine-gun nest which was causing many casualties in his battalion and captured I of the guns. With utter disregard for his personal safety, he advanced alone on another gun of the nest, but was severely wounded by the intense fire in the performance of this heroic act.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Patrick Seagraves.

Sergeant, Company K, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

Although scriously wounded during the advance near Croix Rouge Farm, he nevertheless continued in the attack under heavy enemy fire from artillery and machine guns, thereby setting to the men of his command an example of exceptional bravery and devotion to duty.

First lieutenant, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.

With a combat patrol, Lieutenant Seamon passed through our own weakened harrage and through a heavy enemy barrage, penetrating the enemy line to a depth of about 2 kilometers, entering the environs of Charpentry and capturing a German headquarters detachment of a dozen officers and men, together with valuable artillery maps showing the location of enemy batteries. Returning to his command, he organized his men and advanced again against a heavily manned and fortified machine-gun nest near Charpentry-Eclisfon-taine Road, meeting his death in the advance. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, W. H. Seamon.

Private, medical detachment, Company G, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. He displayed exceptional courage and devotion to duty by rendering first-aid to wounded soldiers under the most hazardous circumstances, many times braving machine-gun-swept fields in the performance of his duty.

SEAVER, ARTHUR F In the region of Etain, France, Sept. 16, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

SEAY, MILO B. (547509)_ Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918, R—New York, N. Y. B—Columbia, S. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*SECOR, JOHN H. (1764412)
Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16, 1918.
R—Pearl River, N. Y.
B—Newark, N. J.
G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

1918. R—Stamford, Conn. B—Greenwich, Conn. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

SEELER, WILFRED (1321) ______ Southwest of Fismes, France, Aug. 5, 1918. R-Detroit, Mich. B-Canada.

SEELINGER, HARRY R
At Nantillois, France, Oct. 5, 1918.
R—Norfolk, Va.
B—Erie, Pa. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

SEIBEL, HERMAN F. (1979778). Near Bellieourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Sellersburg, Ind. B—Sellersburg, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SEIBERLING, PAUL A Near Madeleine Farm, France, Oct.

16, 1918.

R—Jonesboro, Ind.

B—Jonesboro, Ind.

G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

SEIDEL, THOMAS (284662) ... Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Neenah, Wis. B—Greenwood, Wis. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

Seiders, Clifford M. (1781957)..... Near Malancourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Easton, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Seiders, Walter H. (42083)_____ South of Soissons, France, July 20, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Easton, Pa. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920,

First lieutenant, pilot, 20th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
With his squadron he started on a bombing raid. The formation was broken up because of various troubles to the machines. He and his observer, Lieutenant Stokes, continued on and joined a formation of another bombing squadron. After crossing the lines their plane was struck by an antiaircraft explosive shell, throwing the machine out of control. When Lieutenant exposive such, throwing the machine out of control. When Lieutenant Seaver gained control of the machine it had fallen away from the protection of the other planes. With their crippled plane and missing motor they continued until they reached their objective, when their motor died completely. An enemy plane attacked, but Lieutenant Stokes kept him off until his machine coasted to their own lines.

Corporal, Company I, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

Although wounded, he continued to perform his duties as runner, and after having his wounds dressed immediately returned to duty.

Sergeant, Company M, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.
Having been painfully wounded in the foot, he remained with his platoon and went over the top with it in the advance near St. Juvin. He gallantly assisted his platoon commander in the attack until he was again wounded and rendered unable to advance farther. His example of bravery and devotion to duty furnished an inspiring example to the other members of the platoon, many of whom were under fire for the first time.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John J. Secor.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After reaching his objective, Sergeant Sedusky took command of scattered groups, reorganized them, and prepared the position for defense. Although under fire from 3 directions, he fearlessly exposed himself to this fire in order to direct the defense of the position. On Oct. 9, north of Exermont, this noncommissioned officer fearlessly led his section through machine-gun fire to position on Hill 272.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. During the forward movement of the 1st Battalion, 125th Infantry, a large number of the company to which he was attached were wounded while crossing an open field. At this point the artillery fire was accurate and intense, but he disregarded all possibilities of personal injuries and remained upon the field until he had administered first aid to all his fallen comrades.

First lieutenant, 317th Infantry, 80th Division. During an attack made by 2 companies of the 3d Battalion, 320th Infantry, from During an attack made by 2 companies of the 3d Battallon, 320th Infantry, from the Bois-du-Fays, Lieutenant Seelinger with his medical detachment accompanied the troops and opened a first-aid station in an old cellar, with no overhead cover, remaining there under an intense barrage of enemy high-explosive shell and shrapnel fire until ordered to retire, working continuously from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. caring for the wounded with great devotion and rare bravery. His coolness and utter disregard for his own safety under terrific enemy fire encouraged the wounded and raised the morale of his men to a high pitch.

Private, medical detachmet, 55th Infantry, 7th Division.
When an officer and part of 1 platoon had been cut off from the company,
Private Seibel made 2 attempts to find them, going through a heavy barrage.
He was successful the second time and administered first aid to the wounded officer while under a heavy shell and machine-gun fire.

Private, Company D, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
With 8 other soldiers, comprising the company headquarters detachment, he assisted his company commander in cleaning out the enemy dugouts along a canal and capturing 242 prisoners.

Second lieutenant, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
Lieutenant Seiberling, with a comrade, exposed himself to heavy enemy machine-gun fire in crawling forward in advance of our lines to rescue a wounded soldier. The wounded man was lying in a shell hole about 100 yards in advance of our lines. The rescuers were subject to enemy machinegun fire from the time they left our lines until they returned.

Private, Company G, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. With 2 other soldiers he rushed a machine-gun position near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, killed the crew, and captured the gun in order to make the advance of his platoon possible.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 314th Infantry, 79th Division. Advancing ahead of his platoon in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, Private Seiders entered alone a ruined building and discovered 13 of the enemy. He shot I who resisted capture and made prisoners of the remaining 12, bringing in with him 3 light machine guns. Later in the same day he captured 10 of the enemy and 5 machine guns.

Private, first class, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. After 3 others had been killed in the attempt, Private Seiders voluntarily earried a very important message to advance line positions. He passed over terrain exposed to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and delivered his message. The delivering of the message was vitally important to the success of the operation.

SEIGLER, WILLIAM (2667022)

Near Ivoiry, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa.

B—Philadelphia, Pa.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

R—McArthur, Ohio. B—Fincastle, Ohio. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Selby, Harry J.... Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Ivory, Md. B—Ivory, Md. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

Selfe, Carter C. (54750) Near Cantigny, France, May 27, 1918.

R—Castlewood, Va. B—Castlewood, Va. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

Sell, Herman M. (1700766)

In La Cendriere Woods, near Vaux-cere, between the Vesle and Aisne, France, Sept. 6, 1918

R—Seaford, N. Y

B—Brooklyn, N. Y.

G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

SELLERS, CECIL G. Near Longuyon, France, Sept. 16, 1918.

R—Memphis, Tenn. B—Dyersburg, Tenn. G. O. No. 123, W. D., 1913

R—Sparta, Mich.
B—Jackson, Ohio.
G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

SELLERS, JAMES MCB. At Bouresches, France, June 6, 1918. R—Lexington, Mo. B—Lexington, Mo. G. O. No. 126, W D, 1918.

SELLERS, WILLIAM EDMOND (1311712). Near Brancourt, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Chesterfield, S. C. B—Chesterfield, S.C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

SELTZER, MAX (44355) Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Russia. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Sembertrant, Frank (2262922)_____ Near Waereghem, Belgium, Oct. 31, _ 1918.

R—San Francisco, Calif. B—San Francisco, Calif. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company A, 146th Infantry, 37th Division. He repeatedly volunteered and carried messages under heavy enemy hombardment until he was severely wounded.

Private, 48d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
After being struck in the leg by shrapnel, he continued to act as stretcher-bearer for 2 days and nights under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, carrying wounded comrades to the first-aid station.

Captain, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Captain Selby led his battalion in the attack through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire until killed by a machine-gun bullet. On one occasion he opened fire upou an enemy machine-gun nest with his pistol, thus drawing its fire while others made a successful flank attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John W. Selby.

Corporal, Company K, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

During an enemy attack on his position Corporal Selfe, although subjected to most terrific artillery bombardment and heavy machine-guu fire, held the position and conducted the fire of his squad until all the members had become casualties. Although he was severely wounded, he took the 1 remaining automatic rifle and rushed to the assistance of a near-by automatic ritle post where the enemy was about to penetrate our lines. Although again wounded, he refused to be evacuated until after the enemy had been repulsed. His gallant conduct was a material factor in the successful defense of the position.

First sergeant, Company A, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.

First sergeant Sell volunteered to deliver a message of great importance to his battalion commander after 6 runners, who had been sent with the same message, failed to return. He voluntarily crossed 600 yards of open field swept by shell and machine-gun fire, reached his destination, accomplished his mission, and returned to his company with information of vital importance.

First lieutenant, pilot, 20th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Starting on a very important bombing mission with 5 other planes, as pilot he went on alone when the other 5 machines were forced to turn back. On crossing the enemy lines he was attacked by 3 enemy planes, but continued toward his objectives, while his observer kept them at bay. In the face of this hostile opposition the objective was reached and their bombs dropped. On the way back 4 more planes joined in the attack, but fighting them off they reached our lines with valuable information after a fight lasting 38 minutes.

Private, first class, Company E, 38th Infantry, 3d Division. He carried numerous messages over routes swept by enemy rifle and machine-gun fire. Due to his individual heroism when exposed to heavy fire, his platoon commander was able to learn of the plan of action at a very important time during the powerful enemy offensive across the Marne.

First lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
On June 6, 1918, at Bourcsches, France, at a critical period of the attack he was selected to transport a message, of the extreme importance of which he was cognizant. In order to execute this mission he had to pass through a heavy artillery bombardment of high-explosive and gas shells. Although seriously wounded while making the trip, he successfully executed his mission.

Sergeant, Company I, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
While his platoon was advancing, he on his own initiative rushed ahead of the line and, flanking an enemy machine-gun post, shot 1 of the crew and bayonoted the other. His action saved his platoon from heavy casualties.

Corporal, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

In the attack launched along the Aire River, Corporal Saltzer, single handed, silenced an enemy machine gun that was causing casualties in his company. He was severely wounded on Oct. 9 while leading his squad in an attack on an enemy strong point.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 363d Infantry, 91st Division. Having set up his gun in the open, near the enemy wire, at a range of less than 200 meters from the enemy, and in the face of direct machine-gun fire, Private Sembertrant oflered a most stubborn resistance to the enemy, despite the fact that his sergeant had been killed and his gun damaged by the heavy fire. He continued until 1 gunner had been killed and the fire from another gun silenced.

102444°-27-36

SEMMES, HARRY HODGES

Near Xivray, France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R-Washington, D. C.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SEMPLE, FRANK J. (2941349)
Near Grand Pre, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Rochester, N. Y. B—Rochester, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SENAY, CHARLES T

Near Ploisy, south of Soissons,
France, July 19, 1918.

R—New London, Conn.
B—Norwich, Conn.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

SERNA, MARCELINO (2195593) ___ Near Flirey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Fort Morgan, Colo. B—Mexico. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

29, 1918. R—Oakland, Calif. B—Oakland, Calif. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

SETTLE, FRANK J. (129306)

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 12, R—Blue Creck, W. Va. B—Blue Creck, W. Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Brule, Wis. B—Ashland, Wis. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Sewall, Sumner Near Menil-la-Tour, France, June 3, Near Menil-la-Tour, France, June 3, Near Landres-t-St. 1918 and near Landres-et Georges, France, Oct. 18, 1918. R—Bath, Me. B—Bath, Me. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Sexton, Fred (54830) South of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Oneida, Tenn. B—Point Rock, Tenn. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

*SEXTON, FRED H. Non Molleville Farm, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R—Union, S. C. B—Union, S. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Captain, Tank Corps.

During the operations along the Rupt de Mad, Captain Semmes's tank fell into the water and was completely submerged. Upon escaping through the turret door and finding that his driver was still in the tank, he returned and rescued the driver under machine-gun fire.

Oak-leaf cluster. For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Vauquois, France, Sept. 26, 1918, Captain Semmes is awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: He left his tank under severe rifle fire and personally reconnoitered a passage tor his tank across the German trenches, remaining dismounted until the last tank had passed. While so engaged, he was severely wounded.

Private, Company I, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.
Under heavy machine-gun fire, Private Semple, a battalion runner, volunteered to carry an important message to a detachment on the extreme flank after seeing 2 runners killed by machine-gun fire while endeavoring to deliver the same message. He was successful in his mission.

Captain, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. He displayed inspiring courage and leadership under heavy fire during the capture of Ploisy and while reorganizing units and lepelling a counterattack.

Private, Company B, 355th Infantry, 89th Division. He displayed exceptional coolness and courage in single-handed charging and capturing 24 Germans.

Second lieutenant, 372d Infantry, 93d Division.

Although he was on duty in the rear, he joined his battalion and was directed by his battalion commander to locate openings through the enemy's wire and attack enemy positions. He hastened to the front and cut a large opening through the wire in the face of terrific machine-gun fire. Just as his task was completed he was so severely wounded that he had to be carried from the field. His gallant act cleared the way for the rush that captured the enemy positions. positions.

Private, first class, Battery E, 12th Field Artillery, 2d Division. While acting as No. 1 of the fourth piece, Private Settle continued in the service of his piece under a heavy and well-directed enflading fire. When a shell wiped out the entire gun crew of the first section, at a word from his executive officer he sprang to assume the duties of gunner of the first piece. He assisted in carrying the dead and wounded and acted in his new capacity until the Infantry attained their objective.

Corporal, Company F, 7th Engineers, 5th Division. He swam the Meuse River with a cable for a pontoon bridge under direct machine-gun fire. Later he carried a cable for another bridge over the Est Canal across an open field covered by enemy machine guns. Here he was wounded by a machine-gun bullet, but returned carrying a message of great importance.

First lieutenant, 95th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
On June 3 Lieutenant Sewall, with 2 other pilots, attacked a formation of 6 hostile planes. Though his companions were forced to withdraw because of jammed guns, he continued in the fight for 15 minutes and succeeded in sending 1 of his adversaries down in flames. On Oct. 18 while on a volunsending for instances are such in hands. On our lawnine on a voint tary patrol he saw an American observation plane being attacked by a German machine (type Fokker), accompanied by 8 other hostile planes. He immediately attacked and destroyed the Fokker and was in turn attacked by the other 8 planes. By skillful maneuvering he evaded them and escorted the observation plane back to our lines. Oak-leaf cluster.

Lieutenant Sewall is also awarded an oak-leaf cluster for the following a of extraordinary heroism in action near Rocourt, France, July 7, 1918: He fearlessly attacked a formation of 5 enemy planes (type Fokker), and separating I from the group, pursued it far behind the enemy's lines, and sent it down in a crash, following it to within 30 meters of the ground in spite of severe fire from a machine gun, rifles, and antiaircraft guns, bullets from this proceed through the adotting. from which passed through his clothing.

Sergeant, Company L, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. Sergeant, Sexton exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire while leading his platoon in an attack on a machine-gun position near Missy-aux-Bois. Although wounded in the leg by a machine-gun bullet, he continued to command the platoon until again wounded on the following day.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Eldora Sexton.

Second lieutenant, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.

During the thickest of the fight in the attack on Molleville Farm, Lieutenant Sexton alone set out to locate enemy machine-gun positions. While on this mission he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J. T. Sexton.

SEXTON, FRED LEO Near Bayonville, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Osage, Iowa. B—Osage, Iowa. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*Seymour, Quincy R. (2186863)..... In the Bois-de-Barricourt, France, Nov. 2, 1918. R.-Rantoul, Kans. B.-Rantoul, Kans. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

SHADRICK, BART L. (2218529)______ Near Fey-en-Haye, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Sapulpa, Okla. B—Columbia, Mo. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

SHAHAN, WINFIELD F. (1458127)

In the Meuse-Argonne offensive,
Sept. 26-28, 1918, and near Exermont, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-Marion, Kans.
B-Marion, Kans.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Shallenberger, Hugh D. Jr. Near Preny Ridge, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Vanderbilt, Pa. B—Vanderbilt, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*SHAMANSKI, WALTER A. (41222) _____. At Vaux, France, July 1, 1918. R-Mount Carmel, Pa. B-Mount Carmel, Pa. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

SHANAHAN, EDWARD T. (91142). NAMAN, EDWARD 1. (31142)
Near Sergy, and Seringes, France,
July 28, 1918.
R—Manville, N. J
B—Liherty, Wis.
G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1918.

1, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

R-Concord, N. C. B-Albemarle, N. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*Shanklin, Almeron W... Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Rome, Ga.
B—Rome, Ga.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Oct. 7-20, 1918.

R—Signal Mountain, Tenn.

B—Fall River, Tenn.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, 82d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Exposing himself to enemy fire, Private Sexton, with another soldier, courageously advanced ahead of their platoon and captured 5 machine guns and 14 prisoners.

Private, Company F, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
With another soldier, Private Seymour advanced more than 150 yards over an open space swept by fire from 30 enemy machine guns, for the purpose of drawing the fire of these guns, while the remainder of his company attacked them from the flanks. His self-sacrificing act cost him his life, but enabled his compandes to capture the hostile position.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James O. Seymour.

Private, Company E, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
When a part of his company was held up by machine-gun fire this soldier, with the aid of 2 others, flanked 2 machine guns, killed the gunners, and captured the guns, thereby allowing the company to advance without delay or losses. Later on in the same advance he crept up to a German machine-gun emplacement, rolled over the parparet onto the gun crew, putting gun and gunuers out of action.

Corporal, Company M, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.

Corporal Shahan, regimental liaison noncommissioned officer, with great courage constantly exposed himself to heavy enemy machine-gun and shell-fire for 3 days in maintaining liaison between his regimental headquarters and the companies in the front line. On Sept. 29 he attacked, single handed, an enemy machine-gun nest killing several of the enemy and taking 1 prisoner. While making his way back to his lines he was fired upon by another German machine gun, which wounded him in the right arm, and was at the same time attacked by his prisoner. In spite of his wound, he killed the German with his pistol and reached his lines in safety.

Private, Company A, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

After his company had taken shelter from the enfilading machine-gun and trench-mortar fire of the enemy, Private Shahwood, with 2 other soldiers, crawled to the aid of wounded comrades, thus saving the lives of at least 2, while exposed to terrific fire of the enemy.

Second lieutenant, 56th Infantry, 7th Division.

Although twice wounded by machine-gun fire while leading his men in an attack on Preny Ridge, under heavy machine-gun fire, Lieutenant Shallenberger continued in the advance until he was killed by the explosion of a shell. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, H. D. Shallenberger.

Private, first class, Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. At Vaux, July 1, 1918, having entered a cellar to install his telephone, he was attacked by 11 of the enemy, of whom he killed 2 and took 9 prisoners, single handed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Joseph Shamanski.

Sergeant, Company I, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. In the face of violent artillery and machine-gun fire near Sergy and Seringes, France, on July 28, 1918, he selected a squad of men and rushed a machine gun that had been harassing his company with its fire. He reached and captured the gun and killed the crew.

Corporal, Company I, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Seeing the commanding officer of an adjacent unit fall from a wound, Corporal Shane left his place of safety and made his way through the continuous rain of machine-gun bullets to the side of the wounded officer. After a severe struggle he managed to drag him to a place of safety.

Corporal, Company K, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. When the advance of his company was held up, he volunteered to go forward with another soldier, to reduce a machine-gun emplacement. Advancing in front of our lines, these 2 soldiers attacked the enemy position, destroyed it, and captured 3 prisoners. Corporal Shankle was killed in action shortly afterwards.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Brooks B. Shankle.

First lieutenant, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.
Forbidding his men to leave their place of safety, Lieutenant Shauklin went forth in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, located and sighted his 37-millimeter gun, receiving wounds which proved fatal.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Walton Shanklin.

Sergeant, Company K, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

Throughout the engagement he led his platoon with great bravery and distinction, participating constantly in the severe fighting of that period, despite a painful wound in the hand and another in the arm, received the first day of the engagement. He gave unsparingly of his strength while helping others in addition to his own work until his company had been relieved. He dropped unconscious from exhaustion and the effects of his wound soon after turning over his platoon to the second in command.

*SHANNON, JAMES A.

Near Chatel-Chehery, France, Oct.
5-6, 1918.

R-Duluth, Minn.
B-Granite Falls, Minn.
G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

R-Newport, Ky. B-Newport, Ky. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

1918.
R—Wilmette, Ill.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SHAPIRO, ELI R. (1390878)

Near Forges, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B-Russia. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SHARKEY, CHARLES WESLEY (794962)
During the St. Milliel offensive,
Sept. 12, 1918.
R.-Cleveland, Ohio.
B.-Maysville, Ky.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*SHARP, DON E. (17106)______ During the Aisne-Marne offensive, July 31, 1918. R—Saginaw, Mich. B—Gladwin, Mich. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

SHARP, JAMES H
Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France,
Oct. 3-9, 1918.
R-Moorhead, Minn.
B-Moorhead, Minn.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SHARP, ROBERT E... Near Estrees, France, Oct. 6-7, 1918. R—Chattanooga, Tenn. B—Bloomingport, Ind. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Sharp, Thomas V. (732603)______ Near Regnieville, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R-Wichita, Kans. B-Osawatomie, Kans. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

SHARRAR, OLIVER (1911362)

At Cornay, France, Oct. 9-10, 1918.

R—Fertigs, Pa. B—Venango County, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SHARTLE, ALBERT J.
Near Bethincourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
He voluntarily led an officers' patrol to a depth of 3 kilometers within the enemy lines. As a result of his exceptional bravery and skill in leading this patrol in its contact with the enemy, vital information was obtained at a critical period of the battle, to which much of the success of the next few days was due. The information thus secured was followed up by an attack the next morning, which this officer personally led and wherein he was fatally wounded. His superb leadership and personal courage furnished the necessary inspiration to an exhausted command.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. James A. Shannon.

Private, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Private Shannon heroically worked alone, exposed to heavy enemy fire, in helping wounded to shelter. He carried water for wounded exposed to sniping fire. When himself severely wounded he refused attention, directing that other wounded be removed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John T. Sullivan.

First lieutenant, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Although seriously wounded in the head by shrapnel, he went forward to rectify the position of our troops, who were occupying the ground on which our barrage was scheduled to fall. Through a perilous fire he brought the line back to a new position.

Corporal, Company D, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

After having been severely wounded, he continued to lead his squad during the entire attack, which lasted several hours, and he remained until his objective had been reached and his squad sheltered.

Private, first class, Company C, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. After being shot in the right arm, he continued to advance and, by the effective use of his pistol with his left hand, alone captured 20 Germans and 2 machine guns.

Private, medical detachment, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
Though he had been twice wounded he continued to render first aid to the wounded men of his command until killed by enemy fire. His splendid example of high courage and coolness under intense enemy machine-gun and artillery fire and his unselfish devotion to duty inspired his comrades to great endeavors.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Samuel Sharp,

First lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. He volunteered and made several reconnaissances through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire. When the flank of his organization was dangerously exposed, he volunteered to get assistance. He brought up several companies, thus saving the flank from annihilation. He carried several important messages through extremely heavy machine-gun and artillery fire.

Second lieutenant, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. Second neutralit, 1744 mantry, 30th Division.

Acting as battalion gas officer, Lieutenant Sharp volunteered to carry an important message to 1 of the companies after 3 runners had been killed in attempting to do so. He succeeded in making the trip through heavy shell and machine-gun fire and returning safety. Next morning, upon his own request, he was permitted to join one of the attacking companies and was severely wounded while leading a plateon to its objective.

Private, Company F, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
Having located an enemy machine-gun nest, Private Sharp, accompanied by another soldier, was advancing on the nest under fire when the German gunners threw up their hands and yelled, "Kamerad." They continued toward the nest and when they were within 15 yards of the position the enemy again opened fire, killing Private Sharp's companion, thereupon Private Sharp dashed straight at the enemy emplacement, shooting I gunner, bayoneting 2 others, and capturing 4, together with 3 machine guns.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Belle C. Sharp.

Corporal, Company M, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.

After fighting for 6 hours, Corporal Sharrar volunteered to accompany 15 other soldiers and an officer on a night patrol of Cornay, which was held by many enemy machine-gun posts. The party worked from 11 o'clock at night until next morning at clearing buildings and dugouts of the enemy, capturing 65 prisoners and 2 machine guns With 6 others, Corporal Sharrar volunteered and entered a dugout where 23 prisoners were captured. He was wounded while leaving the town, but he refused to go to the aid station until the prisoners had been delivered at brigade headquarters.

First lieutenant, 315th Machine Gun Battalion, 80th Division. He gave proof of courage and unhesitating devotion to duty when he rallied a platoon of infantry held up by intense fire from a machine gun directly to the front. This officer led the platoon against the hostile strong point, captured it, and fell severely wounded. SHASKAN, SAMUEL (282956). Near Juvigny, France, Aug. 28, 1918. R—Chicago, Inl. B—Russia. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

SHAW, ANDREW A. (73108)

At Givry, France, July 20, 1918.

R—Cummington, Mass.

B—Cummington, Mass.

G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

*SHAW, CHARLES A.

During the St. Mihiel offensive,
France, Sept. 12-13, 1918.
R—Pattonsburg, Mo.
B—Pattonsburg, Mo.
G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

SHEA, RICHARD O'B. At Chateau-Thierry, France, June

6, 1918. R—Wosterly, R. I. B—Norwich, Conn. G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

SHEA, WILLIAM A. (556292) ... M. WILLIAM A. (50022).
Near Cuisy, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—Niagara Falls, N. Y.
B—Holyoke, Mass.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SHEAFF, DONALD RAMSAY _______In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 6, 1918. R—Colorado, Tex, B—Colorado, Tex. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

SHEARER, MAURICE E. In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 25, 1918. R—Indianapolis, Ind, B—Marion County, Ind. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

SHECKART, GROVER C. (1787329)...... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Hershey, Pa. B—York County, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SHEDLEWSKI, JOHN F. (258348)__ DLEWSK, JOHN F. (208488)
Near Juvigny, north of Soissons,
France, Sept. 4, 1918.
R—Menasha, Wis.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

R—Utahville, Pa. B—Chestenfield, Pa. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

SHEEN, HENRY H ... DEN, HENRY II.

Noar Dasmarinas, P.I., Aug. 19, 1900.

R—Norfolk, Va.

B—Quincy, Mass.

G. O. No. 118, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service medal also

SHEERAN, JAMES J. Near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

awarded.

Private, Headquarters Company, 128th Infantry, 32d Division. Going out from the front line through barbed-wire entanglements, under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, Private Shaskan brought back to safety a wounded soldier.

Private, Company I, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
When he on his own initiative led a group of 7 men under a severe rifle and machine-gun fire through a gap in the enemy's wire in an effort to silence a hostile machine gun which had been taking heavy toll of his comrades. Six of the 7 men in his party having been killed or wounded, he continued to advance, killing or wounding the erew and putting the gun out of section. His splendid courage and leadership were an inspiration to his comrades.

First lieutenant, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.

He personally led his platoon under heavy machine-gun fire into the undamaged enemy wire, so inspiring his platoon that, regardless of heavy losses, the machine-gun nest was neutralized. He was killed 1 minute after his platoon had accomplished its mission.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father. Philip Show.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Philip Shaw.

Passed Assistant Surgeon, U. S. Navy, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

At Chateau-Thierry, France, on June 6, 1918, he displayed extraordinary heroism treating the wounded while under heavy bombardment. He showed utter disregard of his personal safety in order to succor others.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.

Although painfully wounded by machine-gun fire, he placed himself in an exposed position between 2 machine guns, and by the uso of his glasses directed the fire of a heavy machine-gun barrage on the enemy. He remained in this exposed position for 2 hours, and his were the only guns which remained in action under the sweeping fire of the enemy.

Corporal, 80th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, on June 6, 1918, in delivering messages he voluntarily chose the most direct route, although it was through a machine-gun barrage, to deliver information which prevented the bombardment of positions that had just been occupied. He took the path of danger to save his Major, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He displayed conspicuous courage, going forward at the head of his command during the attack. Personally going along the front line after the objective had been reached, he encouraged his men and directed the repulse of a counterattack by the enemy. During the encounter his battalion took over 200 prisoners and 19 machine guns.

Sergeant, Company C, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

After his commanding officer had been wounded and taken from the field, Sergeant Sheckart reorganized 2 platoons of his company and led them into a thick woods against strong machine-gun nests. He advanced alone against a machine-gun crew, killed the officer in charge, and took 4 prisoners. He continued to lead his men during the advance of that day, in spite of a wound in the foot, which caused his evacuation in the evening.

Private, first class, Company A, 107th Ammunition Train, 32d Division.
During a heavy enemy bombardment a shell burst near 2 ammunition trucks that were being unloaded at a dump, blowing up 1 truck and setting fire to the other. Disregarding the warnings of bystanders, Private Shedlewski rushed forward and essisted in throwing the burning cushions and cover off the truck and backing it to a place of safety. His conspicuous bravery was the means of saving a large quantity of ammunition.

Sergeant, Company II, 58th Infantry, 4th Division.
Sergeant Shedlock, when the officers of the company became casualties, took command, reorganized the scattered groups into a platoon, and personally led them across the Vesle River, in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, and drove the enemy from their position on the railroad embarkment 500 yards beyond the river. He defended his position under the heavy fire and attacks of the enemy.

Captain, 46th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers.

For extraordinary heroism in connection with operations against an armed enemy near Dasmarinas, Philippine Islands, Aug. 19, 1900. Captain Sheen at the imminent risk of his own life succeeded in saving the life of a brother officer from drowning while the detachment under his command was attempting to great the laws. Private and offsets a survivise of the command was attempting to great the laws. Private and offsets a survivise of the laws. ing to cross the linus River and effect a surprise upon a rendezvous of a ladrone band in the vicinity.

First lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
After being severely wounded, near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he displayed remarkable fortitude and exemplary poise by continuing to direct the operation of his platoon under violent machine-gun fire,

First lieutenant, 356th Infantry, 89th Division.

SHINGLE, JOHN BENJAMIN (1249376).... Near Fismes, France, Aug. 6, 1918. R—McVeytown, Pa. B—McVeytown, Pa. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

SHINN, LEON P.
Near Flirey, France, Sept. 12, 1913.
R.—Newark, Ohio.
B.—Huron, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Nov. 1, 1918. R—Platteville, Wis. B—Montport, Wis. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Shipman, Harold L. (1213824)_____ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Bnffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

SHIPMAN, STEPHEN V. (278336)
In the woods north of Cierges, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France,
Aug. 1, 1918. R—Bangor, Mich.
B—Benton Harbor, Mich.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

SHIPP, BEVERLY A Near Cornay, France, Oct. 9-10, 1918. R—Cordele, Ga. B—Columbus, Ga. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SHIRLEY, WALTER L. Near Bois-de-Bantheville, Franco, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—Jackson, Mich.

B—New Carlisle, Ohio.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

SHIVELY, GEORGE J. (9141)______ Near Soissons, France, July 21, 1918. R—Brookville, Pa.
B—Brookville, Pa.
G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

SHIVELY, HARVEY H. (1320864)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918, and near Becquigny, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Spray, N. C.
B—Floyd County, Va.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Shoemaker, Lonnie O. (1491234) .... Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Childress, Tex. B—Hillsboro, Tex. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

SHOENER, WILLIAM M. (1551350). Near Chateau-Thierry, F Near Chateau-Thierry, July 14-15, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Pringsburg, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919. France,

SHOLETTE, EDGAR M. (1210275) _____ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, R-Ogdensburg, N. Y. B-Ogdensburg, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919, Mechanic, Company M, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.

Prior to the attack of his battalion, Mechanic Shingle exposed himself to heavy enemy fire while making a reconnaissance of the Veste River, which was some 300 yards in advance of the line held by his company. He later guided his company to a suitable position from which a crossing was made without delay and without many casualties.

He continued to lead his platoon until the third objective had been reached, after being wounded in the leg during the first 20 minutes of the advance.

Captain, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

During the attack his organization was held up by machine-gun fire from the front. Captain Shipley exposed himself to heavy fire in order to make a flank attack on the enemy. Armed with a rife, he courageously attacked a machine-gun position, which resulted in the capture of the gun and 28 prisoners. During the period from Nov. 1 to 7 he led a battalion in its attack on the Bois Hazois and Bois L'Epasse, and led a detachment which captured the strongly defended town of L'Etanne. His valiant conduct had a marked moral effect upon his man. upon his men.

Private, Company B, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line Private Shipman, a Lewis gunner, exhibited great courage and dash when a party of about 40 German prisoners, seeing their guards killed by German snipers while going to the rear, seized rifles and opened fire on the Americans. Private Shipman rushed forward with his Lewis gun and put the entire group out of action. During the engagement he also silenced 3 enemy machine-gun positions.

Private, Company C, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
After his company had entered the woods north of Cierges he and another soldier maneuvered around a machine-gun which was causing many casualties in the company and reached a shell hole after crossing an open space that was swept by hostile fire. From here they killed the crew of the machine-gun, captured the gun, and turned it on the enemy.

First lieutenant, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
After successfully driving off the enemy, his attacking force was counterattacked and surrounded. The officers in charge decided to surrender to the greatly superior numbers, but lieutentant Slipp, refusing to do so, made his way to our lines through deadly enemy fire, although severely wounded while doing

First lieutenant, 126th Infantry, 32d Division. Going forward to the outpost line on a reconnaissance mission, he was wounded, but upon receiving first-aid treatment, returned to his position within 30 yards of the enemy, and although under heavy fire, continued his observations until he had obtained the desired information.

Private, Section No. 585, Ambulance Service.
During the fighting near Soissons, France, July 21, 1918, he drove his ambulance through shellfire and continued on after his car was badly shattered until he had delivered his patients to a dressing station, when he fainted from serious wounds in his left arm and both legs, the existence of which he had concealed when the ambulance was his when the ambulance was hit.

Private, 2d Battalion, Intelligence Section, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Near Bellicourt, Private Shively, with an Australian soldier, captured 42 of the enemy, including 2 officers. On Oct. 9, near Becquigny, he accompanied another soldier in penetrating the enemy's outpost line and captured 2 enemy machine gunners, putting the gun out of action.

Corporal, Company L, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.

Although he was severely gassed, he continued in the attack until his company had reached its objective and organized the new position, when he was ordered The exposure to which he voluntarily submitted resulted in his to the rear. death. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, E. J. Shoemaker.

Cook, Battery F, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division. Leaving his own work, he went to the assistance of the wounded, remaining in the field throughout the entire night, giving first aid and carrying wounded comrades to places of safety.

Sergeant, Company D, 107th Infantry, 27th Division. He went out into the open field under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in carrying back to our lines a wounded soldier.

SHOMAN, MAURICE (60429)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 27, 1918.

R—Plymouth, Mass.

B—Russia.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SHORE, LAUREL (280799)

Near Ivoiry, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Evart, Mich.

B—Osceola County, Mich.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

*SHORT, ABE (551605) _____ Near Romagne, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Aurora, Ark.
B—Houston, Okla.
G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

SHOULTS, EDGAR (2183705) ______ Near Remonville, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R-Perryville, Mo. B-Perry County, Mo. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SHOWERS, WILLIAM LESTER (4606952)... Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4-6,

R—Fort Branch, Ind. B—Fort Branch, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Shroy, Daniel D. (1193798)

Near Courbon, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Middletown, Pa.

B—Middletown, Pa.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SHRUM, JOHN E. (46717) Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Greenwald, Pa. B—Derry, Pa. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

SHUEY, PERRY R. (105433) .. Near Fleville, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Lebanon, Pa. B—Lebanon, Pa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

SHUGG, WILLIAM R. (407355) __ East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Rutherford, N. J. B—Rutherford, N. J. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

*SHULL, LAURENS C. Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R.—Sioux City, Iowa. B.—Sioux City, Iowa. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company D, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

After killing many of the enemy, he was left alone in a shell hole with no more ammunition. Finding himself surrounded by a sudden counteratack of the enemy, he grabbed a light machine-gun and held off the enemy until he was rescued by his comrades. The fire from his gun was decidedly instrumental in overcoming the counterattack.

Corporal, Company I, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
He displayed utter disregard for personal danger in repeatedly carrying messages across an area 1,000 meters wide which was being subjected to heavy artillery and machine-gun fre. In carrying messages between company and battalion headquarters he repeatedly passed through German barrage.

Sergeant, Company II, 33th Infantry, 3d Division.
Sergeant Short courageously led his platoon through a terrific barrage and silenced a machine-gun position which was enfilleding the attacking lines. He was killed later in this action.

Oak-leef cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918, Sorgeant Short is awarded an oak-leaf cluster: Although seriously wounded, he continued in command of his group during the battle of the Marne and succeeded in destroying 3 boats loaded with Germans.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary J. Short.

Private, Company F, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
When the position of his company had become untenable because of enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, Private Short, with another soldier, the solo survivors of a Lewis machine-gun team, covered the retreat of their company. Clinging to their advanced post throughout the day, they took up the advance with the company at dusk that evening.

Corporal, Company B, 354th Infantry, 89th Division. In command of a combat group, he led his men in a bayonet charge on an enemy stronghold, capturing many machine guns and killing or capturing the entire crews of the guns.

Private, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Private Showers, a runner, displayed exceptional courage in carrying messages for 3 days under shell and machine-gun fire.

Private, Headquarters Company, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division. He repeatedly volunteered and carried messages over areas heavily bombarded with gas and high-explosive shells until he was gassed and forced to go to an aid station.

Private, Company D, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Private Shrum, although wounded, delivered an important message for his platoon commander. In order to accomplish this mission, it was necessary for him to cross an area swept by enemy machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company B, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
After his platoon commander had been killed and the organization had suffered 50 per cent casualties, he reorganized the platoon by gathering stray squads from both flanks and the front. This work completed, he led the platoon forward, under intense artillery and machine-gun fire, to positions in advance of the Infantry to withstand a counterattack. He displayed absolute fearlessness under heavy fire, inspiring the men with him by his example of heroism. of heroism.

Private, Company C, 102d Field Signal Battalion, 27th Division.

After the commander of the Infantry platoon to which he was attached as a visual-signal man had been killed he took command of the platoon and exhibited remarkable gallantry and leadership in leading it into effective combat.

Second lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
He led his platoon with brilliant courage in 2 attacks and was badly wounded in the third, when, with equal vigor, he advanced against a machine-gun Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, D. C. Shull.

Second lieutenant, 360th Infantry, 90th Division.
This officer saved the lives of wounded men in his command by going into no man's land under severe shellfre in plain view of the enemy, giving them first-aid treatment and assisting them back to shelter

Shumate, Carson L. (58128) _____At Seicheprey, France, Mar. 28 and 29, 1918. R—Bluefield, W. Va. B—Bluefield, W. Va. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

*Shumate, John W. (52189) Near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918.
R—Charleston, W. Va.
B—Montgomery County, Va.
G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

SHUPP, ROY F. Rear Gland, France, July 21, 1918. R—New Bern, N. C. B—Kresgeville, Pa. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SIADE, JOSEPH (1290177)_____At Molleville Farm, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R-Norfolk, Va. B-Syria. G. O. No. 28, W. D., 1921.

Oct. 10, 1918. R—Roanoke, Va. B—Blacksburg, Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SIEBERT, ERNEST T. (3400)

Near Trugny, France, July 23, 1918.

R—Newton, Mass.

B—Newton Center, Mass.

G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

SIEBERT, WALTER (274261)
Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 16, 1918.
R—Shepley, Wis.
B—Gresham, Wis
G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Sieg, Robert E. Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-5, 1918. R—Hooper, Nebr. B—Lundy, Mo. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

SIELOFF, THEODORE H. (2021616) ......

At Verst 444, near Emtsa, Russia, Nov. 4, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Poland. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Siemering, William H. (1106054)..... Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Le Sueur, Minn. B—Le Sueur, Minn. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Siers, Frank (52316)

Near Chateau-Thierry, France,

June 6, 1918.

R—Nebo, W. Va.

B—Nebo, W. Va.

G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

Sigg, Charles F. (204355)

Near Montblanc, France, Oct. 8, 1918, R-West Park, Ohio. B-Germany. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

He was a member of a patrol consisting of an officer and 4 men who, with great daring, entered a dangerous portion of the enemy trenches where they surrounded a party of nearly double their own strength, captured a greater number than themsolves, drove off an enemy rescuing party, and made their way back to our lines with 4 prisoners, from whom valuable information

Private, first class, Company M, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
After his platoon was practically wiped out and had been withdrawn near Chateau-Thierry, France, on June 6, 1918, he continued forward to his objective and remained throughout the night under heavy fire in hope of keeping the ground gained until reinforcements came up, and was later killed in action

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John W. Shumate.

First lieutenant, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. After crossing the Marne, with the leading platoon of his company, Lieutenant Shupp, with 2 companions, made a surprise attack on an enemy machine-gun emplacement and succeeded in taking 1 gun and 8 prisoners.

Private, first class, Headquarters Company, 116th Infantry, 29th Division. Private Stade remained in the face of heavy enemy machine-gun fire to administer first aid to a wounded officer, showing utter disregard for his personal safety. He later carried the officer through a heavily fire-swept zone to a place of shelter.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

After his platoon commander had become a casualty, and while he was suffering from gas poisoning, he led his platoon forward and reported to his company commander, after which he fell from exhaustion.

Corporal, 103d Ambulance Company, 101st Sanitary Train, 26th Division. He voluntarily rescued a wounded soldier who was lying on a shell-swept road by carrying him 300 yards on his back. Although wounded in the shoulder by a shell fragment, he courageously stuck to his task until it was successfully accomplished. His courageous act was an inspiration to his men.

Sergeant, Company F, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
Locating an enemy machine-gun nest, Private Siebert advanced on it alone, and by accurate fire from his automatic rifle killed or wounded the members of the crew, thereby saving his company heavy casualties.

Private, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He unhesitatingly went through the heaviest machine-gun and artillery fire, dressing and carrying wounded. Disregarding his own safety he refused to take rest or food while there were wounded needing attention.

Corporal, Company I, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia).

During an enemy attack, when he was fired on from the rear, Corporal Sieloff moved his gun to an exposed position and delivered effective fire on the enemy. Although exposed to enemy fire from two directions, he held the enemy in check until his gun had become disabled, when he dismantled it, replaced the broken parts, and renewed his fire, repulsing a strong force of the enemy.

Corporal, Company C, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

Leading a daylight patrol across an exposed hillside through terrific artillery and machine-gun fire to locate enemy machine guns, Corporal Sielsky secured valuable information and carried it back to the battalion commander. While leading a similar daylight patrol 4 days later, he was seriously wounded in 2 places by machine-gun fire after displaying inspiring bravery and devicin to day. and devotion to duty.

Private, first class, Company G, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
Although one of his hands was disabled, he left a sheltered position against the advice of his companions and went through heavy shell and machine-gun fire to the aid of a wounded comrade, bringing the latter to a place of safety.

Private, Company M, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

After being wounded in the arm and back, he continued his duties of bearing messages and collecting information, and was severely wounded while attempting to establish liaison with a neighboring company.

First sergeant, Company A, 2d Ammunition Train, 2d Division.
He was in charge of a convoy of trucks loaded with artillery ammunition, of which our batteries were in urgent need. The site selected for the dump was under very heavy shellfire, but Sergeant Sigg, drawing his convoy up in sections, directed the unloading throughout the rain of shells, which were exploding on all sides of his machines.

Sikivica, Pit (107661) Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Johnstown, Pa. B—Austria. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

SILL, FREDERICK D ... Near Ponchaux and Geneve, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Albany, N. Y. B—Cohoes, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SILLMAN, ROBERT H. Before Manila, P. I., Aug. 13, 1898. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Peoria, Ill. B—Roodhouse, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Silva, Louis J. (2263395)

Near Very, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Hayward, Calif.

B—Alameda County, Calif
G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

SILVER, HENRY SPRAGUE .. Near Exermont, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Charlotte, N. C. B—Morganton, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Том (736111) Near Fontaines, France, Nov. 6, 1918. R—Comer, Ga. B—Athens, Ga. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SILVERBERG, MORRIS (2671459). Rear Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Russia.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Silverman, Hyman (2383446)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 27, 1918.

R—Chelsea, Mass.
B—Boston, Mass.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SILVERTHORN, MERWIN H.
Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Minneapolis, Minn.
B—Minneapolis, Minn.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SILVESTER, LINDSAY McD...
In the Bois-d'Aigremont, France,
July 15, 1918.
R—Norfolk, Va.
B—Norfolk County, Va.
G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, section 647, Ambulance Service.
Following the advance of the Infantry, he caused his car to be lifted across a mine crater by some infantrymen, and proceeding for 3 kilometers down a road heavily bombarded with gas and high-explosive shells, he evacuated wounded from a culvert only 400 yards from enemy outposts. On the return trip his ear was struck by splinters from an exploding shell which pierced the clothing of his aid and caused fresh wounds to one of his patients. After transferring his wounded across the crater to another car, he succeeded in driving it over a road almost destroyed by shellfire to a newly established dressing station in Sommerance. He continued to operate his car for 12 hours until he was relieved, having at all times displayed unhesitating courage and devotion to duty. age and devotion to duty.

Private, Company D, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

During an attack made by his platoon on an enemy machine-gun nest, 2 automatic rifles were destroyed in his hands. Private Sikivica fell back to the supporting company, borrowed an automatic rifle, and killed 2 of the enemy machine gunners.

First lieutenant, 105th Engineers, 30th Division.

He performed the difficult task of laying the tape for the jumping-off line and also for the support line, on the night preceding the attack of Oct. 8. Despite the fact that 1 battalion had changed its line on Oct. 7 and that he had to face a continuous fire of artillery, trench mortars, and machine guns, he performed a mission which would have been extremely difficult even under normal conditions. While returning to headquarters, he carried his wounded orderly through a heavy barrage of machine-gun and artillery fire until secitorace could be preceived. until assistance could be procured.

Sergeant, Astor Battery, U. S. Army. He gallantly took part, until disabled by a Spanish bullet, in a charge on the enemy's breastworks, volunteers having been called for by the brigadier general commanding.

Private, first class, Battery C, 124th Field Artillery, 33d Division.
During heavy enemy shellfire, when the other members of his section were all wounded or engaged in first-aid work, he alone served his piece and kept it firing. Two days later, when the chief of his section was wounded, he took command of the section and followed the barrage.

Private, Company B, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.

After the advance of his platoon had been held up by machine-gun fire, Private Silva, with a noncommissioned officer, attacked 1 machine gun and put it out of action. This act resulted in the enemy abandoning 2 other machine guns and permitted the advance of his platoon.

First lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
He led a patrol into the woods under a severe artillery and machine-gun fire to establish liaison with the units on the left flank. He continued on his mission after three-fourths of his patrol had been killed or wounded, and succeeded in bringing valuable information to his battalion commander.

Corporal, Company H, 11th Infantry, 5th Division. Corporal Silver, single handed, captured and destroyed a machine gun which was operating on the flank of his company, making progress impossible.

Private, Company G, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

Private Silverberg, a stretcher bearer, displayed extreme courage by repeatedly leaving shelter and advancing over an area swept by machine-gun and shell fire to rescue wounded comrades. Hearing that his eompany commander had been wounded, he voluntarily went forward alone and, upon finding that his officer had been killed, brought back his body.

Private, first class, Company E, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

When enemy shellfire had ignited an ammunition dump, Private Silverman assisted in removing the ammunition from the blazing dump. Several of his comrades were seriously wounded by exploding shells, and he himself was hit in many places by hand-grenade explosions, but he continued until the greater part of the explosives were noved to safety. He then assisted in removing his wounded comrades before submitting to treatment for his recorded. wounds

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Lieutenant Silverthorn carried an important message to his battalion commander and returned with instructions at a critical time through heavy machine-gun and shell fire.

Major, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

During the intense bombardment preceding the German drive of July 15, when the wounded were so numerous that it was impossible to care for them in the dressing station, Major Silvester voluntarily gave up his dugout for the use of the wounded and exposed himself to heavy fire during the 10 hours' terrific bombardment. After leading his command across the Marne this officer directed the reduction of a number of machine-gun nests and advanced his lines 4 kilometers despite the determined resistance.

SIMAS, MANUEL (2266516) __ Near Eclisfontaine, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—San Jose, Calif. B—Portugal. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SIMMONS, SAMUEL S.
At Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3, 1918.
R—Lancaster, Pa.
B—Lancaster, Pa.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SIMON, FRANK J.___ Near St. Georges, France, Nov. 1, 1918.
R—Cleveland, Ohio.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 46, W D, 1919

Simon, Louis C., Jr____ In the region of Hadonville-les-Lachaussee, France, Sept 16, 1918
R—Columbus, Ohio.
B—Columbus, Olio.
G O No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Simoni, Aristeo V. Near La Chene Toudu, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Italy. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*SIMPSON, ALBERT B. Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 27-28, 1918. R—Atlanta, Ga. B—Eelbeck, Ga. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

R—Bee Cave, Tex B—Velasco, Tex. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

SIMPSON, CHARLES E. (1811496) Near Verdun, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R—Great Bend, Pa. B—Great Bend, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SIMPSON, HARRY P. (1550407)

Near Le Charmel, France, July 28, R—Covington, Ga. B—Covington, Ga. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company C, 364th Inf ty, 91st Division.

After being wounded by a manning qun bullet early in the afternoon he remained in action and, without making his wound known, willingly offered and held a very dangerous outpost until late the next morning, when he was ordered to the hespital.

Private, 116th Ambulance Company, 104th Sanitary Train, 29th Division. As a stretcher bearer he gave proof of great courage and unhesitating devotion to duty under heavy shellfire by assisting 3 wounded soldiers to a place of safety, he himself being wounded while so doing. After receiving first aid he returned to the shell-swept area and continued in the work of rescuing the wounded. wounded.

Private, 78th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. With 2 other soldiers, Private Simmons volunteered and attacked a machine gun next in advance of his front line, killing the entire crew. Later, with another soldier, he went into an enemy dugout and captured 40 prisoners. He also carried 3 messages through the enemy barrage.

Sergeant, 76th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Advancing with 2 other men alongside of a tank, in front of his company, Sergeant Simon encountered terrific enemy fire. After cutting their way through the wire the men in the tank and the men following Sergeant Simon were killed and he was wounded. Undaunted by his wound, he continued on alone, encountering and capturing 6 of the crew of the enemy machine gun in a dugout.

Posthumously awarded Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Margaret Simon.

First lieutenant, 147th Aero Squadron, Air Service. While on a protection patrol for American observation planes from the 99th Aero Squadron, Lieutenant Simon was fired upon by 3 Halberstadt biplane fighters. Regardless of his personal danger, he immediately engaged the enemy, although alone, drawing them down and away from the observation planes, which continued their important work unmolested. Lieutenant Simon continued fighting the 3 Halberstadts fiercely in spite of the odds against him. He finally succeeded in getting on the tail of one, and, after firing a short burst at close range, the enemy plane fell out of control. The remaining 2 planes quickly broke off the combat and headed east with motors full on. Oak-leaf cluster.

Oak-leaf cluster.

Lieutenant Simen is awarded an oak-leaf cluster, to be wern with the distinguished-service cross awarded him Oct. 23, 1918: Lieutenant Simen and 2 other pilots encountered 9 (Fokker type) enemy planes, which were protecting an observation plane (Rumpler type). He attacked the lower formation of 4 planes alone and drove them off. He next dived at the observation plane and sent it crashing to the ground in flames.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Upon learning that there were 6 wounded men in front of our lines Chaplain Simoni asked for 2 volunteers, and, with the aid of these men, successfully brought the wounded men to our own lines through a terrific machine-gun and grenade fire.

First lieutenant, 11th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.

Though he was wounded, he remained with his company and by skillful arrangement of his machine gun covered a retirement of the infantry. Next day he was again wounded, and although urged by the surgeon to go to the rear, this gallant officer replied that there was too much work yet to be done at the front. He left to rejoin his command, and had gone about half the distance when he was killed by a high-explosive shell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Robert N. Simpson.

Private, Company B, 321st Machine Gun Battalion, 82d Division.
While his company was covering with machine-gun fire a temporary withdrawal of the Infantry, before a hostile counterattack, he secured an abandoned German machine gun and operated it until his own company, as well as the Infantry, had returned safely. He remained at his post until his ammunition was exhausted and was the last one to leave the position. Through his bravery and skill the advance of the enemy was checked, and our own forces were able to organize a fresh counter dash attack.

Private, Company A, 310th Machine Gun Battallon, 79th Division.
With 2 other soldiers, he voluntarily left a place of safety, went forward 40 meters under machine-gun fire in plain view of the enemy, and rescued another soldier who had been blinded by a machine-gun bullet and was helplessly staggering about.

Sergeant, Battery B, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

After his commanding officer and 32 members of his battery had been wounded by a bomb from an enemy plane, Sergeant Simpson, himself wounded, assisted in the evacuation of the wounded, after which he remained until his piece was placed in a new position before he retired for treatment.

18, 1918. R—Ready, Ky. B—Ready, Ky. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

SIMPSON, JOSEPH M.
Near Foret Vencheres, France,
Sept. 14, 1918.

R—San Antonio, Tex. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

SIMPSON, RICHARD LYLE
Near Preny, France, Oct. 29, 1918.
R—Louisville, Ky.
B—Ekron, Ky.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Simpson, Roy Hobson.

In the attack on Bois-de-Belleau,
France, June 12, 1918.
R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

SIMPSON, THOMAS G.

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*Sims, George D. (1312562)_____ Near Montbrehain, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Sumter, S. C. B—Sumter County, S. C. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

SINATRA, MARION (51803)

Near Chateau-Thierry, France,
June 6, 1918. R—Boston, Mass. B—Italy. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Sinclair, Paul K. (1312393)_____ At Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Camden, S. C. B—Camden, S. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Sinclair, Wilbert W_______ Near Beaumont, France, Nov. 10,

R-Roxbury, Mass. B-Tyngsboro, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919. *SINER, EARL R. (1756625)____

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Pawtucket, R. I. B—Pawtucket, R. I. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company I, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
During the assault near Soissons, Sergeant Simpson, although severely wounded continued in action for several hours, leading a group of men beyond and back of an enemy machine-gun emplacement in order to flank it and make the Infantry advance at this point possible. He succeeded, but while energaged in this courageous duty he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Simpson.

Captain, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
He took command of a platoen that had become separated from its command, reorganized it, and showed marked personal courage in leading it forward under heavy fire. He called for volunteers and then led them in an attack upon a machine-gun nest that had been holding up our advance. With 2 men he charged the nest, captured the gun, and killed the crew.

Second lieutenant, 56th Infantry, 7th Division.

In charge of a patrol, Lieutenant Simpson had located the exact position of the enemy and was withdrawing, when he discovered that I man was missing. Although wounded himself, he went back, finding that the man had been killed and was entangled in the enemy's wire. Unable to recover the body and being wounded the second time, he covered the withdrawal of his patrol and returned with his execut. and returned with his report.

Private, Company A, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After being wounded Private Simpson returned to the line and continued to carry messages with absolute disregard for his own safety until he was wounded the second time.

Private, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He carried a message from battalion to company headquarters directly across the face of enemy fire. Shot through the chest he continued running and called out, "I must deliver this message," struggling forward for 50 feet more in his heroic effort to carry out his mission before falling.

Second lieutenant, 107th Infantry, 27th Division. He went out into the open under heavy machine-gun fire and succeeded in carrying back for a distance of about 25 yards a wounded officer and a wounded soldier.

Private, Company M, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
While assisting his automatic-rifle squad in a most advanced position Private Sims and those about him were seriously wounded by shrapnel. Realizing that his wounds were fatal and that his comrades might be saved, he insisted that the stretcher bearers attend to the others. It is unusual heroism was instrumental in saving the lives of his fellow soldiers even at the cost of his own.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Willie C, Sims.

Private, Company A, 13th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.
While acting as a runner he showed exceptional bravery in carrying messages through a heavily shelled and gassed area. After being wounded in the hand he made 12 trips from Frapelle to his company headquarters at Chapelle St.

Private, Company K, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Rushing through rifle and machine-gun fire for a distance of 75 meters, Privato Sinatra rescued a wounded comrade; and, while carrying him to safety, was himself scriously wounded. He continued on with his comrade, however, until he reached cover, adminstering first aid to the other man before attending to bis curry wound. to his own wound.

Corporal, Company M, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
When the advance was checked by fire from enemy machine guns and snipers in a sunken trench, Corporal Sinclair, crawling and jumping from 1 shell hole to another, under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, opened fire with his automatic rifle and silenced both the machine-gun post and the snipers.

Private, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He, alone, reconneitered the position of enemy machine guns which were holding up the advance of his company across the Meuse. After he had located them he silenced the fire of 2 guns, thus making possible the continuance of his company's advance.

Private, first class, Company G, 310th Infantry, 78th Division. While his company was on outpost duty Private Siner crawled out from a trench under heavy enemy fire, to rescue a wounded comrade and was instantly killed by a bursting shell just as he had reached the wounded man.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Lillie C. Siner.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
On Oct. 15, though severely wounded, he refused to be evacuated and continued to perform his duties as platoon runner under difficult and dangerous conditions. On Oct. 18 he exposed himself to heavy machine-gun and artillery fire in order to carry water to other members of his platoon, in the performance of which task he was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J. D. Singleton.

SIRMON, WILLIAM A
Near Clemery, France, Aug. 16, 1918.
R—Crichton, Ala.
B—Bluffsprings, Fla.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-Russia.

SISSON, CHARLES N. Near Cornay, France, Oct 9, 1918. R—Jacksonville, Ala. B—Jacksonville, Ala. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

SITTLER, EDWARD (2855903)
In the Bois-de-Bantheville, France,
Oct. 24, 1918. R-Merna, Nebr. B-Wheaton, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Skiff, Clayton B. (1247001) ___ At Chatel-Chehery, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Spartansburg, Pa. B—East Branch, Pa. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

SKOGSBURG, VIVIAN (2061931) ..... Near Forges Woods, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Highland, Iowa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

SKRYPECK, ANDY (1340) ______ Southwest of Fismes, France, Aug. 5, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Austria. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

SLADEN, FRED W Near Ferme de la Madelaine, France, Near Fermice as Maderanic, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Omaha, Nebr. B—Lowell, Mass. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

SLAGSVOL, OSCAR T Near St. Gilles, France, Aug. 3, 1918. R—Eau Claire, Wis. B—Eau Claire, Wis. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SLATE, JOSEPH W. (198864)_ Near Exermont, France, Oct. 2-11, 1918. R—Crockett, Calif. B—San Francisco, Calif. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919

Captain, 325th Infantry, 82d Division.
At an imminent risk of his own life he rescued another officer by carrying him at night through enemy fire and under heavy machine-gun fire for 300 yards to a place of safety, where he dressed the wounds of the disabled officer.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. He was on duty with a detachment of his regiment which was cut off and surrounded by the enemy in the forest of Argonne. During this period he was without food, but he continued to assist and give first aid to the wounded, exposing himself to heavy shell and machine-gun fire at the risk of his life, until he was completely exhausted.

Captain, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.

When the advance was checked on the outskirts of Cornay because of the exhaustion of the troops and machine-gun fire from the town, Captain Sisson, who had been in action several hours, took charge without orders, and started 2 patrols into the town. One was driven back by the machine-gun fire, but this gallant officer personally led the other and succeeded in capturing 2 machine guns and their crews, and 112 prisoners, completely cleaning out the town. Throughout this operation he displayed great bravery and coolness under the most trying eigenystances. under the most trying circumstances.

Private, Company C, 341st Machine Gun Battalion, 89th Division.
Although himself severely wounded in the leg by shellfire, he did not report for medical attention until he had given first aid and assisted in carrying other wounded soldiers to the first-aid station, a distance of 6 kilometers. After all his comrades had received attention he had his own wounds dressed and was appropriated to the heavitel. evacuated to the hospital.

Private, Company A, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
When his company was stopped by enemy machine-gun fire Private Skiff crawled forward alone, climbed a steep hill under intense fire, and put a hostile machine-gun nest out of action. In the performance of this gallant exploit Private Skiff was mortally wounded and died on the way to the hospital. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Maude Skiff.

Sergeant, Company L, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

Although seriously burned by a phosphorus shell, he continued in command of his platoon, leading it forward 8 kilometers to its objective, directing the mopping up of the territory and the consolidation of the new position. His example was an inspiration to his men. When, on orders from his company commander, he started to walk to the rear to receive medical attention, he fell unconscious.

Private, medical detachment, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
During the forward movement of the 1st Battalion, 125th Infantry, a large number of the company to which he was attached were wounded while crossing an open field. At this point the artillery fire was very accurate and intense, but he disregarded all possibilities of persenal injury and remained upon the field until he had administered first aid to all his fallen comrades.

Brigadier general, headquarters 5th Infantry Brigade, 3d Division. Although almost exhausted from 48 hours of continuous duty without rest of only kind, General Staden, upon learning that the front line was held up by enemy machine-gun fire, proceeded to the advanced position through 3 kilonters of severe artillery fire. Upon arrival he found that the battalion commander had been killed and the unit badly disorganized and intermingled. He personally reorganized the troops under the terrific machine-gun and shell fire, recommitted the enemy's positions, and launched the advance anew. While engaged in this perilous mission he fainted from exhaustion, but upon height revised refused to be accurated and continued in the work of reorgan. being revived refused to be evacuated, and continued in the work of reorganizing and stabilizing the line at this critical period. Due to his efforts the action was carried to a successful conclusion in the face of apparently insurmountable difficulties.

Second lieutenant, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
Commanding the battalion patrols, Lieutenant Slagsvol was engaged continuously throughout the day in making reconnaissances under heavy fire.
Although wounded, he preceded the battalion into the enemy's position and continued to perform his duties until he was overcome by exhaustion.

Corporal, Company C, 2d Field Signal Battalion, 1st Division. He volunteered and maintained a telephone line which ran through thick undergrowth and barbed-wire entanglements to an advanced observation post. Despite heavy artillery and direct machine-gun fire, Corporal Slate kept the line in operation for many hours without relief.

Captain, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.

After being wounded in a previous action, Captain Slate led his command in the face of unusual machine-gun fire, repeatedly exposing himself to prevent his units from becoming scattered and strengthening and holding his line until again severely wounded.

*SLATER, NORMAN C. (2942033) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 17, 1918.

R—Bainbridge, N. Y. B—Novemburg, N. Y. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

SLAY, JOHN R. (2179328) Near Barricourt, France, Nov. 2, 1918.

R—St. Louis, Mo. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SLICKLEN, ARTHUR C. (89592)

Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July

28-29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

France, Nov. 6, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Chicago, Ill.

G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922

SLOAN, OZRO L. (38793)______ Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Cartwright, Tex. B—Cartwright, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*SLOAN, WILLIAM E. (1449259) Near Varennes, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Wichita, Kans. B—Rush County, Kans. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

*SLOVER, LUKE E., Jr. (2411118) Near Vieville-en-Haye, Sept. 24-25, 1918. R—Keyport, N. J. B—Old Bridge, N. J. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

SLOVER, ROBERT .... Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Coal Creek, Tenn. B—Coal Creek, Tenn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SLUSHER, ERNEST W. Near Charpentry, France, Sept. 29-30, 1918. R-Kansas City, Mo. B-Dover, Mo. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*SLYKE, ALFRED G. (108185)....

Near Mont Blanc, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Amsterdam, N. Y. B—Amsterdam, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.

SMALL, EARL R. (1248735) Near Monthlainville, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Sheffield, Pa.

B—Forest County, Pa.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Private, Company II, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.

Although wounded by a shell fragment, he refused treatment, volunteering his services as a litter bearer for other wounded. Next day he accompanied his platoou in the attack. After heavy fighting for some hours under terrific machine-gun fire, a withdrawal was ordered, Private Slater remaining in advance with an automatic rifle squad to cover the withdrawal. Being on of the last to go back, he was killed by shellfire on his way to the new position. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Effic Hinman.

Sergeant, Company G, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.
After having been severely wounded by a machine-gun bullet, he continued in the attack with his platoon until ordered to the rear.

Private, first class, Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Under a severe bombardment of artillery and heavy machine-gun fire, Private nder a severe bombardment of artillery and heavy machine-gun ine, Frivate Slicklen voluntarily went forward three times and brought wounded comrades back to safety, after helping to disperse enemy snipers and grenadiers that had been threatening the left flank of his company. On the following day with the troops leading the attack on Meurcy Farm, under a deadly machinegun fire from front and flank, he displayed the greatest coolness and courage until wounded four times and carried from the field.

First licutenant, Signal Corps, Signal Officer, 1st Infantry Brigade, 1st Division. He displayed the highest qualities—courage, fearlessness, and leadership—in the handling of his section in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. On Nov. 6, 1918, with utter disregard for his own personal safety, he successfully ran com-munication lines from headquarters, 1st Infantry Brigade, to the headquarters munication incorrect measurements, ist imanity brigate, to the headquarters of the 16th and 18th Infantry Regiments, keeping the brigade commander in constant touch with the commanding officers of these regiments. Arriving at the headquarters of the 18th Infantry and finding a shortage of equipment and men, he personally directed the running of communication lines to the front-line battalion at the imminent risk of his life through heavy shell and machine-gun fire. The lines were successfully laid under most hazardous circumstances, Lieutenant Slingo working all the while under direct observation and shellfire of the enemy. His courageous action at a most trying moment was an inspiration to all and assisted materially in the success of this operation.

Private, Company C, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
When his platoon was under heavy shellfire and threatened by an enemy counter attack, Private Sloan collected in the vicinity a number of soldiers separated from their organizations and led them to reinforce Lis platoon in the first line. While so engaged he was seriously wounded, but continued on determine his above what completely achieved. duty with his platoon until completely exhausted.

Mechanic, Company I, 137th Infantry, 35th Division.
He continued to advance with his platoon after having been severely wounded and personally guided a tank to an enemy machine-gun nest whose location he had learned. In the course of this extraordinary duty he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Cora D. Sloan.

Private, first class, Company B, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
On the night of Sept. 24, Private Slover repeatedly carried messages between his company and battalion headquarters through a heavy barrage. He also took the place of a wounded litter bearer and assisted in bringing in wounded under shellfire. He was later killed in action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Luke Slover.

Corporal, 49th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Corporal Slover assisted in preparing an emergency force of about 30 men, leading them in attack against greatly superior numbers of the enemy, who were preparing a surprise attack against an unprotected portion of our lines. His leadership and daring resulted in the complete success of the exploit.

Major, Medical Corps, attached to 140th Infantry, 35th Division.

Although severely gassed, he continued on duty until he collapsed twice, and was carried each time to a dressing station. Advised to go to the field hospital for treatment, he waited until he had partially recovered and then returned to duty in the field, working continually among the wounded and exposing birmelf to heatile five. himself to hostile fire.

Sergeant, 77th Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

When the Germans attacked his machine-gun detachment at a close range, ammunition was dropped between the gun and the enemy. Although the enemy was bombing the gun position with hand grenades, he went forward and secured the ammunition and then opened fire and routed the enemy, who had already injured 3 of his crew with grenades. Postburnously awarded. Medal presented to father, William Slyke.

Sergeant, Company I, 112th Infantry, 28th Division. In the face of a concentration of enemy machine-gun and rifle fire, Sergeant Small, together with Private Schwing, of his company, voluntarily left the shelter of the trenches constantly under the observation of the enemy, advanced across open ground a distance of 75 yards, rescued a severely wounded soldier, and carried him to shelter. The bravery and devotion to duty thus displayed inspired and encouraged the members of their command, inciting them to still greater and over the property of the command. them to still greater endeavors.

SMALL, LYLE H. (2853942) __ Near Vilcey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Mazon, III. B—Mazon, III.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*SMALLEY, JOHN W. (2222182) Near Vilcey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Drumright, Okla. B—Summitville, Ind. G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

SMALLYON, EDWARD H. (362648)...... Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R-Hartford, Conn. B-Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SMART, PAUL II. During the attack on Marcheville-en-Woevre, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Newton Highlands, Mass. B—Nova Scotia. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

SMEAD, BURTON A. Nov. 1-6, 1918.
R—Denver, Colo.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMECK, JAMES (112905) ... Near Sergy, France, July 31, 1918. R—Reading, Pa. B—Reading, Pa. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

SMIDT, WILLIAM F. (1211198)

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

R—Goshen, Ind. B—Goshen, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, ALBERT L. (2265542). 711, Allert L. (226542). Near Eclisfontaine, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R.—Fillmore, Calif. B.—Fillmore, Calif. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, ALBERT M.

At Selzo, Russia, Sept. 21, 1918.

R-Kalamazoo, Mich.

B-Peoria, Ill.

G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.

SMITH, ANSLEY (42109) __ H, ANSLEY (42103)

Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R—Danville, Ala.

B—Massie, Ala.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*SMITH, BENJAMIN B. (1314600) ... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Ash, N. C. B-Ash, N. C. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company M, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.

Private Small, with another soldier, volunteered to outflank an enemy machine-gun nest, and under most harassing fire captured the gun and 11 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company M, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.

He displayed great heroism and disregard of personal danger in attacking an enemy machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his group. Assisted by another soldier, he flanked the gun, shot 1 of the crew, and drove off the others, but was himself killed in the performance of this courageous act Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, A. J. Smalley.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. Given a message to send by buzzer, he found that all his wires had been de-stroyed. He immediately started through the bombardment and safely delivered the message, although nearly surrounded by the enemy.

Second lieutenant, 101st Field Artillery, 26th Division.

During the attack on Marcheville-en-Woevre. Lieutenant Smart volunteered to run back with a message to the rear through a dense enemy concentration of high-explosive shell and gas, after all of the Infantry and Artillery runners had been either killed or wounded in attempting this same mission. Lieuter that the activities of the form with the attacking units. nad been either killed or wounded in attempting this same mission. Lieutenant Smart was acting as Artillery liaison officer with the attacking units of the 102d Infantry. When the Infantry still met enomy resistance at Marcheville and all communications to the rear had been cut by the heavy enemy barrage laid down in rear of the attacking force, Lieutenant Smart, at the risk of his own life, ran through the barrage to a forward telephone station, communicated the situation to the Artillery commander and then ran back through the same barrage and rejoined and remained with the Infantry commander.

Major, division adjutant, 89th Division. Upon his own request, Major Smead was assigned to the hazardous duty of conducting the divisional advance message center. He was constantly exposed to fire, going to the front line for information when it could not be otherwise obtained.

Private, first class, Company B, 149th Machine Gun Battalion, 42d Division. He displayed extraordinary heroism in the performance of his duties as runner, and when another runner had been mortally wounded trying to reach company headquarters he volunteered for and accomplished this mission, passing through intonse artillery and machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company H, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

Although suffering from a most painful wound, Sergeant Smidt refused to be evacuated, but continued to lead his platoon in their assault against the enemy. The advance being halted by intense enemy machine-gun fire, he personally rushed upon an enemy machine-gun nest and with bombs put the machine gun out of action, thus enabling his platoon to resume their advance. Again stopped by enemy machine-gun fire, he again attacked an enemy nest, but was seriously wounded in the attempt and evacuated to the hospital. His indomitable bravery and utter disregard for his own safety greatly inspired the men of his company.

Private, 75th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division, He rushed a hostile machine-gun nest single handed, killing 3 of the crew and capturing the remainder. While taking his prisoners to the rear, this gallaut soldier was killed by enemy artillery fire.

Postumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Jennie Smiley.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
With 2 other soldiers Private Smith volunteered and went 300 yards beyond our outpost lines through heavy shellfire to bring in a wounded private of his regiment. The mission was promptly and successfully accomplished.

First lleutenant, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russiz). While leading his platoon in an attack on a strong enemy position, he was severely wounded in the side. Concealing his condition from the men, he continued to direct his platoon, fearlessly exposing himself to fire throughout the action which followed an unsuccessful attack.

Sergeant, Company C, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Severely wounded early in the morning, he refused to relinquish command of his platoon, but led its attack to its final objective, remaining in command until after nightfall, when he was ordered to an aid station.

Private, Company A, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
After being wounded twice in making attacks with his own organization, he joined Australian troops and attacked with them, being wounded a third time before he consented to be evacuated.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William M. Smith.

SMITH, CALLIE A. (1311386) Near Montbrehain, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R-Rock Hill, S. C. B-York County, S. C. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

1918.
R—Akron, Ohio.
B—Martinsville, W. Va.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, CHARLIE E. (1309595) __ R—Copperbill, Tenn.
B—Oak Park, N. C.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, CLARENCE W. (262188)

Near Cierges, northeast of ChateauThierry, France, July 31, 1918.

R.—Flint, Mich.
B.—McArthur, Ohio.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

SMITH, DALTON (1319720) ... Near Mazinghien, France, Oct. 19, 1918.

R—Macon, N. C.

B—Macon, N. C.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, DANIEL R. (43340) Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Reading, Pa. B—Germany. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

SMITH, DWIGHT F....In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 8, 1918. R—Stowe, Vt. B—Stowe, Vt. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

*SMITH, EBEN A. (547459).... Near Crezancy, France, July 16, 1918. R-Waterloo, Iowa. B-Tyrone, Iowa. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, EMERSON R. (2339975)

Near Le Charmel, France, July 26, 1918.

R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Dayton, Ohio. G. O. No. 28, W. D., 1921.

SMITH, FORD D. (568844)_____ Near Ville-Savoye, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R-Antioch, Calif. B-Wyandotte, Mich. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, FRED (737107)... Near Vieville, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Spring Valley, Ohio. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, FRED E. (41183) ___ Near Fauburg, France, Nov. 8, 1918. R—Syracuse, N. Y. B—Baldwinsville, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company G, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. When his company was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, he voluntarily accompanied an officer and assisted him in flanking a machine-gun post and driving out the gunners with grenades and pistol.

Sergeant, Company F, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.
While leading a reconnaissance patrol sent out to locate enemy machine-gun nests he was severely wounded. Lying helpless where he fell, he disregarded his own wounds and continued to direct his men. Through his courage and fortitude many enemy machine guns were located and subsequently destroyed.

Private, first class, Company L, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Although severely wounded in the leg by machine-gun fire, he continued to advance with his platoon, securing the rifle of a dead soldier when his own was struck by shrapnel and rendered unserviceable.

Corporal, Company E, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

He was seriously wounded in the arm by machine-gun fire during the advance on the heights north of the River Ourcq. After receiving first aid he crawled slowly forward in the face of hostile fire and assisted in giving first aid to a lieutenant who had been severely wounded, and then, with his one available arm, assisted in carrying the officer to the rear.

Private, Company B, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.

Acting as a scout, Private Smith fearlessly advanced ahead of his company under heavy fire and sent back all obtainable information to the company commander. While standing erect in the open and directing effective riflo fire at the retreating enemy he was seriously wounded.

Sergeant, Company H, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Sergeant Smith led 3 squads against an artillery position which was holding up the advance of his company by direct fire. After suffering heavy casualties, he with 2 others charged the enemy position. Due to his courage and leadership four 77-millimeter guns were captured and 50 of the enemy forced to surrender.

Captain, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He was conspicuous for his gallantry and energy in conducting attacks against superior forces in strongly fortified machine-gun positions. Under heavy machine-gun fire he fought until incapacitated by wounds.

Sergeant, Company I, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Although knocked down by the explosion of a shell, Sergeant Smith immediately got up and rendered valuable assistance to his platoon leader in conducting the movement of the platoon through the most intense shellfire. He was subsequently killed in action.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Kate Bronson.

Private, first class, Company M, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
Engaged as runner. Private Smith carried an important message through heavy shell and machine-gun fire, completing his mission, although so badly gassed that immediate removal to a hospital was necessary.

Corporal, Company D, 4th Engineers, 4th Division.
Leaving a sheltered position, he exposed himself to an intense artillery barrage to rescue a wounded officer. He carried him across the Vesle River to where he could obtain aid in taking him to a dressing station. He displayed utter disregard of personal danger while under heavy fire.

Corporal, Company K, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

While advancing in the assault line, he spied a German about to open fire with a machine gun, which would have taken in enflade his entire platoon. He killed the German with a single rifle shot. The other 3 of the machinegun crew fled, but he pursued them alone, cut them off from the rear and captured, single handed, 16 of the enemy in one group. His quick decision, excellent marksmanship, and absolute fearlessness were of the greatest value in overcoming the enemy's resistance.

Sergeant, Company M. 11th Infantry, 5th Division.

After being gassed and shot through the shoulder early in the merning, be continued to lead his platoon throughout the day, refusing to return to the firstaid station for treatment.

Private, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

In the absence of officers Private Smith took command of 2 platoons and led them with great fortitude and bravery. When 1 of his men was wounded, he made his way alone through heavy shell and machine-gun fire, brought the wounded man to our line, and applied first aid

102444°-27-37

R—Denver, Colo. B—Boulder, Colo. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

*SMITH, HAMILTON A Near Soissons, France, July 19-22, 1918.

R-Millen, Ga. B-Greenwood, Fla. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

SMITH, HARFORD D. (1284328). Near Sivry, France, Oct. 18, 1918. R—Cambridge, Md. B—Cambridge, Md. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, HARRY L.

Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R—Lucedale, Miss.

B—Mobile, Ala.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

3, 1918. R—Waynesburg, Pa. B—Waynesburg, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*SMITH, HEARL (1460802) Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Willow Springs, Mo. B—Newport, Tenn. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, HENRY M..... Near Malancourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R-Greensburg, Pa. B-Jeannette, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, HERBERT REEVES (6502919) ... At Ojo de Agua, Tex., Oct. 21, 1915. R—Tampico, Ill. B—Tampico, Ill. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1924.

SMITH, HORACE L., Jr. Near Charpentry, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Petersburg, Va. B—Richmond, Va. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, HOWARD G. In Bois-de-Romagne, France, Oct.

15, 1918. R—East Lansing, Mich. B—Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.
Private Smith was a member of a machine-gun crew firing at close range from a shell hole in an open field when their gun became disabled. Thereupon he and 2 other soldiers advanced with pistols upon the enemy machine-gun nest at which they had been firing and captured it, with 3 guns and 9 prisoners. Putting 1 of the captured guns into immediate action against the enemy, they enabled the infantry to advance with a minimum of casualties. This soldier was killed next day when he went out from cover to warn some comrades that they were in the line of fire from his gun.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Jessie Smith.

Colonel, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. He spent the greater part of his time in the front lines to encourage and direct his command, without sign of fear for his personal safety, and by his courageous leadership inspired his officers and men to effective combat. He was killed while directing an attack on a machine-gun emplacement.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Hamilton A. Smith.

Corporal, Company C, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
He volunteered and led an automatic-rifle crew forward, silencing a machinegun nest which was holding up the advance of his company. He worked bis way forward through a barrage from 4 machine-gun nests, killing all the occupants of 2 nests and forcing the others to withdraw, thus permitting his company to advance.

First lieutenant, 13th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.

Leaving his shelter in a shallow machine-gun emplacement, accompanied by 1 soldier, Lieutenant Smith ventured forth through a most intense fire to the aid of a wounded officer, and assisted in carrying him to a distance of 170 yards to safety.

Second lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Lieutenant Smith led the advance elements of his regiment during an advance of 8 kilometers through the German lines, and, with extraordinary skill and courage, reduced several enemy strong points. In addition he captured 50 prisoners and a large amount of material.

Sergeant, Company F, 140th Infantry, 35th Division.
Having been mortally wounded while rushing a machine-gun nest, Sergeant Smith continued faithfully to perform his duties and calmly directed the movements of his half platoon until he died on the field.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Monroe Smith.

Captain, 314th Infantry, 79th Division.

Although painfully wounded while leading a platoon of his company against strong machine-gun nests, Captain Smith continued the advance until all the machine guns in his immediate front were silenced and the crews killed or taken prisoners. He continued on duty until ordered to the rear by his regimental commander.

Sergeant, first class, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

When the detachment of which he was a member was treachcrously attacked at night by a hostile Mexican force of approximately 5 times its strength and the senior line noncommissioned officer of the detachment and 2 other men killed, Sergeant Smith, although suffering from 3 wounds, took command, and by his coolness, personal bravery, and qualities of leadership so encouraged the detachment and organized its defense that the greatly superior force of Mexicans was driven off and the detachment saved from probable application. annihilation.

aptain, 1st Engineers, 1st Division. while repairing roads, a large ammunition dump was set on fire by an enemy shell. Captain Smith, with a party of his men, extinguished the flames and rescued a large quantity of ammunition and supplies, despite the threatened explosion, which would have destroyed the entire dump and blocked traffic at an important crossroad for hours.

First 'ieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

11e was wounded early in the engagement, but he declined to be evacuated, although he was suffering much pain. He bril lantly led his platoon in a charge on 4 machine-guns, which he captured, together with many prisoners, and was instrumental in clearing the Bois-de-Romagne of the enemy under terrific machine-gun fre. Throughout the action his leadership, courage, and determination inspired the greatest confidence. When he was partly overcome by the loss of blood, he volunteered to guide 60 prisoners back over a shell-swept area, and refused medical treatment until the prisoners were delivered at battalion headquarters.

Sergeant, Company E, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
For extraordinary heroism in action during the forcing of a passage of the River Ourcq and the capture of the heights beyond, near Cierges, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 31, 1918. Sergeant Smith captured a machine gun single-handed and after being wounded while so doing reorganized his platoon before being taken back for first aid.

SMITH, JACOB C тп, Jacob C... At San Juan, Cuba, July I, 1898. R—Rushville, Ind. B—Taylorsville, Ky. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.

SMITH, JOE (556655) Near Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 10-13, 1918. B—Center Point, Ark. B—Montgomery County, Ark. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, JOHN E. (53922) .... Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Norman Park, Ga. B—Hoschton, Ga. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

*SMITH, JOHN F_____

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Cineinnati, Ohio.
B—Youngstown, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, JOSEPH W...

Near St. Baussant, northeast of St.

Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-Austin, Tex.

B-Meridian, Tex.

G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

SMITH, LEROY W. (1311153)

Near St. Martin-Riviere, France, Oct. 17, 1918.

R—Cades, S. C.
B—Williamsburg County, S. C.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, LOUIS S. (1783200) Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27, 1918.
R—Dalton, Pa.
B—Shultzville, Pa.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, MARTIN E. (1390962) ____ Near Conservoye, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Washington, Mich.
G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, MARTIN M. (1214761) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29-30, 1918.

R—Batavia, N. Y. B—Batavia, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, MAXWELL E. (279478) Near Gesnes, northwest of Verdun, France, Oct. 3, 1918.
R—Ionia, Mich.
B—Ionia, Mich.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-Vox, Ky. B-Whitley County, Ky. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, NAT R. (2258138)

Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Ostrander, Wash.

B—Kelso, Wash.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Saddler sergeant, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army.
Sergeant Smith, with utter disregard for his personal safety and while exposed to a heavy fite of shell and small arms from the enemy, deliberately cut the fence or obstruction consisting of 4 or 5 strands of barbed wire on top of an almost perpendicular bank, thus enabling Troop A, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army, to advance and take the position to which ordered.

Private, Company C, 39th Infantry, 4th Division.

Acting as battalion runner, Private Smith repeatedly carried messages over a route swept by machine-gun and artillery fire. It was necessary to send runners night and day in order to maintain communication with the front lines. He volunteered out of his turn for this dangerous but all-important work.

Sergeant, Company G, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
On his own initiative he took command of his company near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, when all its officers and its first sergeant had been killed or wounded, and carried forward successfully its part in the day's attack.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 5th Regiment, U.S. Marine Corps, 2d Divi-

During a heavy enemy counterbarrage Private Smith was engaged as a runner. In the execution of his duty he displayed exceptional bravery, earryingnessages through intense shellfire, falling severely wounded after his fourth journey.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. George T. Knox.

First licutenant, 166th Infantry, 42d Division. Finding that his platoon would be under heavy fire of enemy machine guns while crossing the Rupt de Mad, Licutenant Smith, rather than permit the advance to be delayed, unhesitatingly plunged into the stream, crossed it under heavy fire, ascertained the exact location of the enemy, brought his platoon through the river by a protected route, and with it flanked and eaptured 6 machine guns and 19 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company F, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Immediately after the starting of the attack Sergeant Smith collapsed from gas but realizing his extreme need of a compass in the dense fog and having gas our reanzing his extreme need of a compass in the dense log and naving the only 1 of the company he struggled along by his company commander, indicating the proper direction with his hands, being unable to talk. He refused evacuation, and voluntarily led a patrol to establish liaison with his right flank, being subjected to annihilating machine-gun fire during the entire exploit.

Sergeant, Company I, 314th Infantry, 79th Division. Sergeant Smith advanced alone and silenced a machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance of his section.

First sergeant, Company G, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
When his company was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, he showed marked personal bravery in working his way to the rear of the enemy emplacement. He opened fire upon the enemy from the rear, who then surrendered to him. He returned to his own lines with 2 officers and 15 men as prisoners.

Sergeant, Company G, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
He exhibited exceptional gallantry and ability in leadership when, after being severely shell shocked, he continued to direct the steady advance of his platoon under intense maehine-gun and shellfire, with utter disregard for his personal safety. He continued with his platoon until the morning of Sept. 30, when he collapsed as the result of shell shock and was evacuated to the rear.

Sergeant, Company D, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
In an attack on German strong points, Sergeant Smith was wounded early in the action by a shell fragment, but after dressing his wound himself he immediately rejoined his organization. Upon hearing that his company commander had been killed, he reported this fact to the regimental post of command, and although he was urged to go to the rear for medical aid, he again went forward and assumed command of the company, remaining in charge until the following morning. His courage and disregard for danger were an inspiration to his men and a thorough demonstration of his loyalty and devotion to duty.

Sergeant, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
During an advance of his company, terrific machine-gun fire was encountered, the enemy being strongly entrenched in a ravine. With a patrol of 10 men, Sergeant Smith attacked the position, but lost several of his men in the first encounter. With the remaining few he continued and silenced the first encounter. fire of the enemy.

Sergeant, Company K, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.
He successfully led his patrol, in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, being a point direct, in order to make better reconnaissance, and, although severely wounded, continued to lead his patrol.

1918.

R-Grand Rapids, Mich. B-Grand Rapids, Mich. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, RAYMOND R. (559162)

Northeast of Cunel, France, Oct.

12, 1918.

R—Burlington, Iowa.

B—Burlington, Iowa.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, ROBERT O.
Near the Meuse River, France, Nov.
6-11, 1918.
R—Denver, Colo.
B—De Beque, Colo.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R-Gorham, Me. B-Dayton, Me. G. O. No. 95. W. D., 1919.

SMITH, SAMUEL T.

Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Conway, Ark.
B—Conway, Ark.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, SIDNEY (3129935)... Near Binarville, France, Oct. 2-8, 1918. R—Blaine, Mont. B—Pearl, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Near Chateau-Thierry, June 6, 1918. R—New Britain, Conn. B—New Britain, Conn. G. O. No. 107, W. D., 1918.

SMITH, TOM H. (2221079)_ In the Bois-de-Consenvoye, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—Shamrock, Okla.

B—Weatherford, Tex.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, WALLACE W. (2294204)_ Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 28 to Oct. 1, 1918, R.—Corvallis, Oreg. B.—Turkey. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919,

Sergeant, Company K, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

After his platoon had been stopped and disorganized by machine-gun fire,
Sergeant Smith, with another soldier, reorganized the platoon and led it in a charge on an enemy machine-gun nest, capturing it, together with I officer and 20 men.

Private, first class, Company B, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
During a heavy artillery barrage on the night of Oct. 13, 2 men having been killed next to him and 1 severely wounded, he, disregarding his personal safety, carried the wounded man through the barrage to the company head-quarters; knocked down by a shell splinter and severely bruised, he continued with the wounded man to a first-aid station.

Corporal, Company C, 11th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.

During a heavy bombardment after a shell had struck his machine gun, knocking it and his squad completely out of action, Corporal Smith assembled 3 men from another squad and obtaining another gun again took up position on the line and remained throughout the action, as the front was at that time thinly held and in constant danger of counterattack. The prompt initiative and splendid courage on the part of this soldier not only inspired and encouraged his men, but aided materially in the success of the action. action.

Captain, 117th Field Signal Battalion, 42d Division.
While under heavy shellfire on Mar. 17, 1918, in the vicinity of Fort de Manonviller, France, he showed prompt initiative and courage in conducting to shelter a party of 65 men who were constructing and repairing communicating lines. After making them secure he went out under fire and brought in a wounded soldier who was lying exposed in the open.

First lieutenant, Dental Corps, attached to 356th Infantry, 89th Division.

After all the medical officers of the battalion had been wounded, Lieutenant Smith for 6 days efficiently performed the duties of a medical officer, repeatedly moving his first-aid station forward and administering to the wounded under perilous shellfire. After earing for the wounded, he personally searched the field of action for further casualties.

First lieutenant, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Lieutenant Smith was a member of a group of several officers and soldiers, who, armed only with pistols, were cut off from the battalion headquarters by the fire of 3 enemy machine guns. Being unable to reach the enemy with pistol fire they were in danger of annihilation when Lieutenant Smith with great daring, dashed from cover through the machine-gun fire and returned with a platoon of Infantry, with which he successfully attacked the enemy machine guns and thereby saved the lives of the party. In accomplishing this feat Lieutenant Smith was wounded in the leg by a machine-gun bullet, hut he continued in action, refusing to be evacuated.

Mechanic, Company B, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
While carrying a message to the battalion commander in the Bois-de-Consenvoye, he was caught in an artillery barrage and severely wounded. Greatly exhausted, he refused medical attention and continued with the message until he reached the battalion headquarters.

First lieutenant, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division.
When his platoon had been caught in an enemy barrage and all the cannoneers except 2 had been killed, he made repeated trips into the shelled area to remove the wounded to a place of safety. He refused any treatment for 4 wounds which he had received until all of his men had received medical

Private, Company H, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
When his company had been cut off from communication he, though seriously wounded, refused to seek shelter. He participated in several attacks with courage and aggressiveness, using his rifle very effectively and encouraging his comrades. When relief came he walked back to the dressing station, so that medical attention could first be given to the more seriously wounded.

Corporal, Company H, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After having been severely wounded, he remained with his platoon, encouraging and urging on men in the absence of their platoon sergeant, who had been

Private, Company C, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. He was with 20 men in the front line, and for 40 hours they had been without food, the heavy bombardment preventing ration details from reaching them. As the men were losing their strength and morale, this soldier voluntarily went through heavy shellfire to procure food, making repeated trips till all the men were supplied. the men were supplied.

Private, Company I, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

Although twice wounded, he stayed out in front under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire and helped to take back within our lines wounded comrades who otherwise would have fallen into the hands of the enemy.

SMITH, WARDE B.
Near Cierges, France, July 21 to
Aug. 7, 1918.
R—Frankfort, Ohio.
B—Frankfort, Ohio.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

*SMITH, WILLARD L... Near Remenauville, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R--Worcester, Mass. B--Worcester, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SMITH, WILLIAM F. (1243621) _____ Near Fismette, France, Aug. 10, 1918.

R—Chester, Pa.
B—Essington, Pa.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

SMITH, WILLIAM OLIVER. North of Haudiomont, France, Nov. 9-10, 1918. R-Raleigh, N. C. B-Liberty, Mo. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

SMITH, WILLIAMSON ALFRED (1311036) —
East of the La Selle River, France,
Oct. 17, 1918.
R—Stanfield, N. C.
B—Stanley County, N. C.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

SMITHHISLER, PAUL A. (1538321)
Near Heuvel, Belgium, Nov. 2, 1918.
R—Cleveland, Ohio.
B—Mount Vernon, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Paris, Tex. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

July 23, 1918.

R—Reno, Nev.

B—Carters, Calif.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SNIDER, JAMES J. (1391401) In the Bois-de-Foret, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill.

B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919,

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 125th Infantry, 32d Division. Maintaining dressing stations close to the advanced lines, under heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire he continued day and night to render first aid and to evacuate the wounded. On Aug. 2 his aid station, due to withdrawals of the first ty to take a more advantageous position, was left in advance of the front line. With a score of severely wounded men to evacuate, Lieutenant Smith remained at the advance of position for 6 hours under intense enemy fire until all patients had been given every possible care and carried to a place of safety. His coolness, courage, and devotion to duty saved the lives of many men.

First lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
He was killed while gallantly assisting in maintaining liaison between the troops advancing on the open ground to the west of Bois-du-Four and those in the woods. It was due to his fearless example while leading his men that the line was held intact at this point.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, F. B. Smith.

Private, Company B, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
When the attack of his company was held up by fire from a hostile strong point,
Private Smith, with 2 other men, voluntarily cut their way through enemy wire entanglements under heavy fire, reached their objective, and engaged the enemy in hand-to-hand combat. During the latter action 6 of the enemy were killed and the attacking line was enabled to advance to the new position.
Private Smith was mortally wounded, his heroic action costing him his life.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Minnie Smith.

Sergeant, Company D, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. After his platoon commander had become a casualty and all the machine guns of his section had been put out of action by shellfre, Sergeant Smith collected the few remaining men of his section, armed them with rifles and pistols, and voluntarily led them against an enemy machine-gun nest which was checking the advance of the battalion. Despite intense machine gun and shell fire, he made a flank attack on the nest and reduced it, killing or capturing 12 of the enemy. His marked courage and quick initiative enabled the battalion to resume its advance.

First lieutenant, 318th Machine Gun Battalion, 81st Division.
Lleutenant Smith courageously led his machine-gun platoon in an attack on the afternoon of Nov. 9, and later assisted in organizing a position for defense
On Nov. 10, the enemy launched a strong counterattack and the Infantry withdrew under cover of the machine-gun fire. Later, when attacked by greally superior numbers, Lieutenant Smith defended his position an hour.
Although wounded 3 times, he persisted in his resistance, holding his position until his ammunition was exhausted, when he was taken prisoner by the enemy.

Private, Company E, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
Having become separated from his company in a fog, Private Smith, an automatic rifle gunner, attached himself to company in the attacking wave and continued in the advance. Working his way through heavy machinegun and shellfire he put his automatic rifle into action, poured an enfilading fire on the enemy and aided materially in breaking the hostile resistance at a critical time.

Sergeant, first class, headquarters detachment, 112th Engineers, 37th Division. Under cover of darkness he swam the Scheldt River at a point where it was covered by hostile machine guns and reconnoitered a road for a distance of 500 meters, returning with valuable information.

Private, Company F, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Advancing, on his own initiative, under heavy artillery, snipers', and machine-gun fire, he threw a gronade into a sniper's post, fire from which had held up our advance. His grenade killed the snipers and allowed a renewal of the advance.

Major, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

After part of his battalion had already entered an open field before Les Franquettes Farm, enemy machine guns suddenly opened fire from several points, and at the same time hidden mines in the field were exploded. Major Smyth constantly exposed himself to great personal dauger while getting his men into the best available cover and reorganizing his position. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Hugh N. Smyth.

Private, Company C, 115th Machine Gun Battalion, 30th Division.
Upon learning that his platoon commander and several comrades had been wounded by heavy shellfire, he voluntarily left his dugout and went to their assistance, helping to earry them 500 yards to the dressing station across an open field heavily bombarded with gas and high-explosive shells.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

After 6 runners had been killed or wounded in attempts to get through heavy shellfire with an important message from the regimental commander of the 39th Infantry to the regimental commander of the 59th Infantry. Private Suider, with Private Sidney Holzeman, responded to a call for volunteers and succeeded in delivering the message. While engaged on this mission Private Snider was badly gassed.

Snow, WILLIAM A...

In the Belleau Wood, France, Juue 12-15, 1918.

R-Washington, D. C.
B-Fort Hamilton, N. Y.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*SNYDER, ABOIL E. (2339528) Near Le Charmel, France, July 26, 1918.

R—Alburtis, Pa. B—Alburtis, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SNYDER, JOHN H.

Near St. Mihiel, Briey and Thion-ville, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Reading, Pa.
B—Reading, Pa.
G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

SNYDER, WILLIS P. (113567)

East of Reims, France, July 15, 1918. R—Reading, Pa.
B—Reading, Pa.
G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

R—Detroit, Mich. B—Talbot, Mich. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Solinski, Wactaw (54813) Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Poland.

1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

*Somers, Vernon L. At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Bloxom, Va. B—Bloxom, Va. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

SOMERVELL, BREHON B.

Near Pouilly, France, Nov. 5-6, 1918.

R—Little Rock, Ark.

B—Little Rock, Ark.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

Somes, Russell V. (263260)...
Near Cierges, France, July 31, 1918.
R—Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
B—Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.
G. O. No. 124. W. D., 1918.

Major, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.

In order to consolidate the position of his brigade Major Snow personally led 1 company of his battalion through a heavy barrage. After passing through the barrage he discovered that part of his company had become separated because of the violent fire. He returned through the barrage, and, in so doing was wounded in the neck. After having his wound dressed at the aid station, he refused to go to the rear, but went back and conducted the remainder of the men through the barrage. Despite his wound, he remained on duty for 16 hours until ordered to the rear.

Sergeant, Company H, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
Exposed to intensive artitlery and machine-gun fire, Sergeant Snowden crawled to the crest of a hill and administered to a wounded man, thus saving his life. While so doing he was wounded in the right leg above the knee, but, undaunted, he picked up another more seriously wounded than himself and brought him to a dressing station.

Private, Company I, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Although shot through the stomach with a machine-gun bullet, he continued to the next relay station and arranged for the safe delivery of his message. He died a few minutes later.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to grandfather, Aboil K. Snyder.

Second lieutenant, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Although wounded by machine-gun fire, he refused to be evacuated, and going out into no man's land located several enemy machine guns which were endangering his platoon, and directed the fire of his men with such accuracy that the guns were silenced.

First lieutenant, observer, 1st Army observation group, Air Service. While on a special mission to determine the probable enemy concentration in the back areas he, with his pilot, in spite of almost impossible flying conditions, flew 60 kilometers over the enemy lines at a very low altitude. The unfavorable weather alone would have warranted them in turning back, but they continued on regardless of very active and accurate machine-gun and antiaircraft fire. They returned to our lines only when their mission was successfully completed.

Private, Company D, 150th Machine Gun Battalion, 42d Division. While manning a machine gun against the enemy, and after all his comrades had either been killed or wounded, he remained at his post and in the hand-tohand fight which ensued forced the enemy to retire; and, although wounded, he attempted to carry back his wounded comrades. His supreme courage and devotion to duty were an inspiration to all associated with him.

Private, Battery D, 119th Field Artillery, 32d Division. Having been severely wounded in the knee, Private Socha refused to be evacuated, but immediately returned from the dressing station to his battery position, where he assisted in caring for other wounded men until he was again wounded, inspiring his comrades by his undiminishing courage and cheerfulness in the face of danger.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Agnes Haumschild.

Corporal, Company K, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Sergeant Solinski, although seriously wounded in the thigh by an aerial bomb, took command of his platoon after the death of his commander and gallantly led it forward until he fell unconscious.

Sergeant, Company C, 317th Infantry, 80th Division.
When a friendly airplane had dropped a message in front of our line Sergeant
Solomon, disregarding personal safety, exposed himself to heavy machinegun fire in order to go out and recover the message. The information thus obtained was of vital importance for the successful continuance of the advance.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Maggie A. Somers.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers.

Voluntarily serving on the staff of the 89th Division, he conducted the first engineering reconnaissance of the damaged bridges at Pouilly, where with 2 scouts he advanced more than 500 meters beyond the American outposts, crossing 3 branches of the Meuse River and successfully encountering the enemy.

Sergeant, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

He advanced in front of his lines on the right of Hill 212, under heavy machine-gun fire, and rescued 3 wounded soldiers. Later he went out into an advanced machine-gun position where 3 men had already been killed and rescued the only survivor, who had been blinded by shellfire and could not have been become. not help himself.

SOMNITZ, CARL G. (1387579). At Chipiliy Ridge, France, Aug. 9, 1918.
R—Chicago, III.
B—Chicago, III.
G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

R—Kalispell, Mont. B—Vesta, N. Dak. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

SORENSEN, SOREN C
At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918.
R—Grand Island, Nebr.
B—Denmark.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918

1918.
R—Minot, N. Dak.
B—Denmark.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Sorrow, Louis (1919060) Near Fleville, France, Oct. 13-21, 1918.

R—Bronx, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 147, W. D., 1918.

Soucy, FRED G. (42853)
South of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R—Lewiston, Me.

B—Lewiston, Me.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Soules, James A.
Near Sedan, France, Nov. 6-7, 1918.
R—Dickinson, N. Dak.
B—Terre Haute, Ind.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SPADAFORA, GUISEPPE (1784205) Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Italy.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*SPAFFORD, JAMES H.
At St. Etienne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Baltimore, Md.
B—Baltimore, Md.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Rocky Mount, N. C. B-Greensville County, Va. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R—Marscilles, Ill. B—Italy. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company F, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
When all the runners of his platoon had failed to establish liaison with the platoon on the left he succeeded in getting through with a message. On his return trip he was twice wounded, but dragged himself along the ground and delivered his message before lapsing into unconsciousness.

First lieutenant, 3d Brigade, Tank Corps.
He displayed bravery and leadership of a high order in the advance toward Montfaucon by going out ahead of the engineers, reconnoitering a tank route under fire, and urging the tanks forward. He located the resistance in the Bois-de-Cuisy in advance, later rallying disorganized soldiers and enabling them to hold the Bois-de-Cuisy.

First lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 2d Division.

When the officers of his unit were killed or wounded at Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918, and although he himself had been wounded early in the attack and suffered intensely, he took command, refused to leave his post, and, by heroic courage and resolution in resisting counterattacks, contributed in great measure to the successful defense of his sector.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 364th Infantry, 91st Division. He volunteered and remained with a wounded comrade in a gun position when his division was relieved. He gave all the aid possible and then went some 500 meters through heavy shell and machine-gun fire for further medical assistance and returned with it to his companion.

Corporal, Company B, 307th Field Signal Battalion, 82d Division.

After being on duty continuously for 36 hours, on Oct. 13, 1918, he volunteered to repair telephone lines which had been cut by shellfire. Under extremely heavy bombardment he worked all night repairing breaks in lines and thereby making possible constant communication with 1 of the advanced regiments. On Oct. 21, 1918, after 1 of his helpers had been killed and the other wounded by heavy shellfire, he continued on alone and repaired the telephone lines, displaying unusual bravery and devotion to duty.

Private, Company E, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
When his platoon was held up by a machine gun he, with 2 other privates, who were killed before reaching the emplacement, charged the gun, killed the crew of 5 Germans, and captured their gun.

Second lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Accompanied by another soldier of his platoon, Lieutenant Soules entered the town of Noyers-Pout-Maugis, which was held by the enemy, against murderous machine-gun fire. He routed the gunners, killing 1, thereby saving his company from a harassing flanking fire.

Major, 193d Infantry, 26th Division. Immediately after an enemy barrage was laid down on his assaulting line, Major Southard pushed forward through the halting ranks and, calling on Major Southard pushed forward through the hatting ranks and, ailing on his men to follow, advanced at double time to the storming of Torcy, attaining his objective. He then organized the defense of the town, supervising the work under hazardous artillery, machine-gun, and sniper fire. During the attack Major Southard's forces suffered heavily from casualties, yet he resolutely held his position for 2 days, after which he was wounded while leading an assault upon the heights beyond Belleau.

Private, Headquarters Company, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. He was helping to remove a great many wounded men from a dressing station to a place of comparative safety when a heavy enemy bombardment began. He foreed 4 German prisoners to assist him and repeatedly entered the heavily shelled area, bringing out wounded men.

First lieutenant, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
Seeing a combat patrol suddenly fired upon by an enemy machine-gun nest and hard pressed, Lieutenant Spafford went to its relief, courageously leading an attack on the nest. Although wounded in the arm during the attack, he continued in the action of the attack until he received a second wound, which caused his death.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James Spafford.

Corporal, Company E, 322d Infantry, 81st Division.

Leading his squad against 6 enemy machine guns, during which time he was hit twice by the exacting fire therefrom, he drove the enemy from the stronghold, making possible the further advance of his company.

Private, Company L, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
He was on a patrol with 3 other soldiers when they were fired upon by a hostile machine gun 50 yards in advance of the line. After several hand grenades had been thrown at the machine-gun nest one of the crew was seen crawling away. Private Spamanato killed this man with his rifle and then rushed the nest alone, eapturing the gun and 3 surviving members of the crew, 2 others having been killed by hand grenades.

territory. Through these acts he he men with whom he was associated.

*Spangler, Lewis G. (239734). Near Fossoy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Lometa, Tex. R—Lometa, Tex. B—Sealy, Tex. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Oswego, N. Y. B—Italy. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SPATZ, CARL During the St. Mihiel offensive, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Boyertown, Pa. B—Boyertown, Pa. G. O. No. 123, W. D., 1918.

Bouresches,

*SPAUTZ, MATTHEW (99868)

Near the River Ourcq, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 30, 1918

R—Dubuque, Iowa. B—Dubuque, Iowa. G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

SPEARS, GEORGE W. (1309476)
Near Ponchaux, France, Oct. 7, 1918.
R—Lenoir City, Tenn.
B—London, Tenn.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SPEER, CHARLES EDWARD. Near Vierzy, France, July 18, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Speers, Thomas G. At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R-Montelair, N. J. B-Atlantic Highlands, N. J. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

SPENCER, EDWARD L North of Ardeuil, France, Sept. 30, 1918.

R-Lenoir, N. C. B-Lenoir, N. C. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-Newfoundland. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company K, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

During the intense shelling by the enemy just prior to their offensive of July, 15 he volunteered and carried a message through the heavy fire and returned with an answer.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. J. H. Spangler.

Private, Company K, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

Private Spataro, with hand grenades, broke up an enemy machine-gun nest and took 4 prisoners without assistance. He voluntarily acted as stretcher bearer for a period of 26 hours, performing valiant services until severely wounded.

Major, pilot, 3d Aero Squadron, Air Service.

Although he had received orders to go to the United States, he begged for and received permission to serve with a pursuit squadron at the front. Subordinating himself to men of lower rank, he was attached to a squadron as a pilot and saw conditions and ardnous service through the offensive. As a result of his efficient work he was promoted to the position of flight commander. Knowing that another attack was to take place in the vicinity of Verdun, he remained on duty in order to take part. On the day of the attack west of the Meuse, while with his patrol over enemy lines, a number of enemy aircraft were encountered. In the combat that followed he succeeded in bringing down 2 enemy planes. In his ardor and enthusiasm he became separated from his patrol while following another enemy far beyond the lines. His gasoline giving out, he was forced to land and managed to land within triendly territory. Through these acts he became an inspiration and example to all men with whom he was associated.

Corporal, 79th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He returned to the front lines encouraging his men after being sent to the rear with a severe wound in the advance on Bouresches, France, on June 6, 1918.

Sergeant, Company A, 168th Infantry, 42d Divisien.
During the advance of July 30, 1918, while in command of his platoon, Sergeant Spautz showed extraordinary heroism, leading his men on in the advance, having 3 times been knocked down by enemy shells. After having been wounded by machine-gun fire, he still continued to advance. He was finally killed while doing his utmost to advance.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Michael Spautz.

Corporal, Company L, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
When part of the line had been halted by heavy fire from 3 machine-gun nests, Corporal Spears and Pvt. Thomas G. Cagle, armed only with rifles and bayonets, rushed the nearest hostile position, and, of the erew of 6, killed 3 and put the remainder to flight. Being unable to advance on 2 other guns because of their heavy fire, these 2 soldiers then opened fire with their rifles and forced the remainder of the crew of approximately 12 to abandon the position after 2 of their number had been killed and 2 wounded.

Captain, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

While commanding the 1st Battalion, 9th Infantry, which was held up in crossing a deep ravine by a heavy rifle and machine-gun fire, Captain Speer, with utter disregard for his own safety, although previously wounded while capturing an enemy battery, made a reconnaissance along the front line under heavy rifle, machine-gun, and shellfire to the left flank, where he led his men to the attack, gained the ridge across the ravine, and made possible the advance of the entire line by enflading the enemy's position. After gaining the assigned objective, he encouraged and reorganized his command, which had heavy losses, and made a personal reconnaissance under heavy fire in preparation for a further advance. While leading his battalion in the second attack he was severely wounded. Being unable to walk as a result of his wound, he ordered his men to push forward and remained alone as his men, inspired by his example, drove the enemy from their positions and continued to advance. Captain, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
He accompanied the advance elements, which were constantly under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire during the action. He was continually aiding and cheering the wounded, and particularly distinguished himself by earrying a wounded officer to a dressing station through heavy artillery and machinegun barrage.

Second lieutenant, 371st Infantry, 93d Division. Having been wounded in the leg by machine-gnn fire, he nevertheless continued to remain with his platoon, leading it successfully through an intense barrage of machine-gun and artillery fire to its position. He remained on duty with his command until 2 days later, when his regimental commander ordered him to the rear.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 106th Infantry, 27th Division. During the fording of the La Selle River and the heights beyond, he advanced against a nest of enemy snipers under heavy machine-gun and shellfire and by his courage and bravery succeeded in killing 4 of the enemy.

SPENCER, ERNEST....

Near Thiancourt, France, Sept. 12-15, 1918. R—Toppenish, Wash. B—Toppenish, Wash. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R-Ionia, Mich. B-Sailors Encampment, Mich. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SPENCER, JOHN D.
At Fisnies, France, Aug. 4, 1918.
R—Oshkosh, Wis.
B—Oshkosh, Wis.
G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

SPENCER, LORILLARD ... NCER, LORILLARD
In the Champagne sector, France,
Sept. 26, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SPENCLEY, GEORGE H. (553657)

Near Cunel, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Lovering, Mich.

B—Standish, Mich.

G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

SPESSARD, RUTHERFORD H
Near Ville-Savoye, France, Aug. 6,
1918, and near Bois-du-Fays,
France, Oct. 2, 1918.
R—Newcastle, Va.
B—Newcastle, Va.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Spickerman, Raymond H. (1213385) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Bloomville, N. Y. B—Bloomville, N. Y. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

*Spinney, George F. (60208) North of Verdun, France, Oct. 27, 1918.

R.—Fancuil, Mass.
B.—Brighton, Mass.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

SPITZNAGEL, CHARLES (794968)
In the Bois-des-Rappes, France, In the Bois-des-Rappes, Oct. 21, 1918.

R—Cincinnati, Ohio.

B—Cincinnati, Ohio.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SPIVEY, FRED F. (731815) Near Romagne, France, Oct. 14-18, 1918.

R-Lexington, Ky. B-Booneville, Ky. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Sprague, Almon E. (2192613)

Near Tailly, France, Nov. 4, 1918.

R—Platte, S. Dak.

B—Fayette, Iowa.

G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Private, 81st Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d

Private Spencer repeatedly volunteered and carried messages through intense machine-gun and artillery fire, obtaining valuable information at critical moments.

First sergeant, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After being severely wounded and ordered to the rear by his commanding officer, Sergeant Spencer gathered together about 15 men who were retreating, took them back to the line, and turned them over to the commanding officer of his company.

First lieutenant, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
While leading his company in the attack against Fismes he was knocked down and severely wounded by machine-gun fire. Without regard to his wounds he regained his feet and continued to lead his command until again severely wounded.

Major, 369th Infantry, 93d Division.

Commanding a battalion which was in action for the first time, Major Spencer inspired his men by his own coolness and courage under intense machine-gun fire. He continually exposed himself without regard for personal safety until he was wounded 6 times.

Second licutenant, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

He led his platoon in an attack which stormed and took the strongly prepared enemy positions on the heights north of the River Ourcq, near Villers-surfere, France, on July 28, 1918. He maintained the position thus gained under a fire that lasted for 7 hours. During this entire time he continually circulated among his men, cheering them, and giving the wounded first aid. In order to reach and administer aid to his wounded captain, he passed without cover into an area which was under extremely heavy machine-gun fire and was himself wounded. and was himself wounded.

Corporal, Company A, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.

Although painfully wounded in the back by a piece of enemy shell and tagged for evacuation to the hospital, Corporal Spencley refused to be evacuated, but returned to his gun during 2 enemy counterattacks, during which he stopped by his fire an enemy attack which had reached within 40 render his position. within 40 yards of his position.

Major, 58th Infantry, 4th Division.

During the crossing of the Vesle River Maj. Rutherford H. Spessard, when his battalion commander was killed, immediately assumed command of the battalion without orders and led them across the Vesle River against strongly fortified enemy positions, displaying absolute disregard for his personal danger. On Oct. 2, in the vicinity of the Bojs-du-Fays, Major Spessard exposed himself to intense enemy artillery and machine-gun fire while making observations and directing the movement of his men. He established his battalion headquarters a short distance to the rear of his lines in a position continually subjected to severe enemy artillery fire. in a position continually subjected to severe enemy artillery fire.

Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 107th Infantry, 27th Division. He and his machine gunner pushed forward to a blind trench, which was partially surrounded by machine gunners and snipers, under terrific machinegun and trench-mortar fire and through a heavy smoke screen. He barricaded a sap at the most dangerous position only a few yards from the enemy machine guns, and after killing 4 of the enemy with a rifle was mortally wounded, but continued to hold his position until he died.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Herman Spickerman.

Corporal, Company C, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
While advancing with the first wave, Corporal Spinney, with another soldier, attacked a machine-gun nest and killed 2 of the crew. While attempting to capture the remainder of the crew this gallant soldier was himself killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Freeman Spinney.

Corporal, Company C, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. Corpora, Company C, 1811 Machine Guli Battanon, 3th Division.

He displayed utter disregard for his personal safety in the attack on the Rappes, when his gunner was severely wounded and his leader killed. He then fired the gun himself until he was seriously wounded, when he refused to be evacutated, but remained with his crew, encouraging them and directing their fire until relieved 2 hours later.

Sergeant, Company B, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.

He set a splendid example to his men while in command of a plateon under severe machine-gun fire, personally capturing 2 machine guns.

Private, medical detachment, 355th Infantry, 80th Division.
Under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire he exposed himself fearlessly on the battle field to give first aid to the wounded, showing marked personal valor. When his bandages were expended, he obtained a fresh supply and, under the continuous fire of a sniper, went to the assistance of 20 wounded men, bound up their wounds, and saw that the more serious cases were first carried from the field.

Sprague, Chandler Near Balschwiller, Alsace, Aug. 31, 1918.

R-Baltimore, Md. B-Haverhill, Mass. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

*Springer, Frank (653919)
Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918.
R—Aurora, Ill.
B—Sheboygan Falls, Wis.
G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R-Lancaster, S. C. B-Lancaster, S. C. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

Springs, William H. (42618)
South of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R—Madison County, N. C. B—Greenville, S. C. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Sprouse, Robert (545179)
Near Crezancy, France, July 15-16,
1918.

R—Clinton, Mo. B—Alexander, N. C. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SRYGLEY, ELAM F.... Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct.

8-9, 1918.

R—Nashville, Tenn.

B—Lebanon, Tenn.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

STACKPOLE, EDWARD J., Jr. Near Baslieux, France, Aug. 24, 1918. R—Harrisburg, Pa.
B—Harrisburg, Pa.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Aug. 20, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Germany.

G. O. No. 99, W D., 1918.

*STAEHEII, OTTO_____ North of Cunel, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

STAFFORD, CHARLES (93392) In the St. Miniel offensive, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Marion, Ohio. B—Marion, Ohio. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

STAFFORD, THOMAS J. (275221)

Near Juvigny, France, Sept. 1, 1918.

R—Rhinelander, Wis.

B—Canada.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

STAINS, TRACY R .. Near Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 18, R—Chicago, Ill. B—Falls City, Nebr. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*STAINTON, MARVIN E... Near Verdun, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R.—Laurel, Miss. B.—Laurel, Miss. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919

First lieutenant, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
Upon returning from a raid which he led against enemy trenches, Lieutenant Sprague found 1 of his men was missing. Accompanied by I man, he promptly and voluntarily returned through artillery, machine-gun, and riffefire, found the missing man, who had been wounded, and carried him back to the Aracican line. to the American lines.

Private, Company C, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
When volunteers were called for by his company commander, Private Springer volunteered and rescued wounded comrades from a barrage. Disregarding danger to himself, he continued the performance of these heroic deeds until killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Margaret Springer.

First lieutenant, 148th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Attacking 3 enemy planes (type Fokker) who were driving on 1 of our planes, Lieutenant Springs, after a short and skillful flight, drove off 2 of the enemy and shot down the third. On the same day he attacked a formation of 5 enemy planes (type Fokker) and, after shooting down 1 plane, was forced to retire because of lack of ammunition.

Sergeant, Company E, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After his platoon commander had been wounded Sergeant Springs took command, reorganized, and led the platoon forward through heavy fire to all its objectives, in which attack he was severely wounded. He also rendered galant service before Montdidier and St. Mihiel, during both of which operations he was wounded.

First sergeant, Company A, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Throughout the engagement he encouraged his men by his gallant conduct.
After the company was ordered to withdraw, he voluntarily returned to the position his company had held and, throughout the night of July 15-16, assisted in evacuating the wounded.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 4th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division.

When a platoon was being heavily gassed and under intense artillery and machine-gun fire, he voluntarily left the shelter of his dressing station, proceeded to the line, and rendered invaluable aid to the wounded. On Oct. 9, he again left the shelter of his dressing station, and under intense fire voluntarily went to the assistance of the wounded of the 141st Infantry.

Captain, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.
Directed to advance to a new position, he led his men forward with great gal-lantry. Although painfully wounded in the back and leg by shell fragments, he remained on duty with his men, inspiring them by his courage and coolness to hold a difficult position against repeated attacks by the enemy in force for a period of 24 hours.

Captain, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.

While the vicinity of the regimental command post where he was stationed was under heavy bombardment, Captain Stadle, without thought of personal danger, voluntarily ran outside, through shrapnel and high-explosive shells, and rescued a wounded runner.

First licutenant, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. Lieutenant Stacheli personally led a platoon in the attack of Hill 258. He rushed 25 yards ahead of his platoon and single handed captured 3 of the enemy. His platoon, inspired by his deeds, succeeded in forcing 63 others to enemy. I surrender.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emma Staeheli.

Sergeant, Company D, 166th Infantry, 42d Division. Personally reconnoitering an enemy position, Sergeant Stafford encountered and captured single handed 6 of the enemy.

Private, first class, Company L, 127th Infantry, 32d Division. Locating an enemy machine-gun nest, Private Stafford, upon his own initiative, organized a patrol and led it in an attack on the hostile position, silencing the gun and capturing 18 prisoners, thereby facilitating the advance of his com-

Second lieutenant, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
After being severely wounded at the beginning of the engagement near Berzyle-Sec, France, July 18, 1918, he continued to lead his command forward until he had taken positions assigned to him. He declined medical assistance and did not retire to an aid station until he had seen to the disposition and security of his men.

Second lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
While his battalion was being held up by heavy machine-gun fire he voluntarily led a small detachment of his platoon forward. He advanced far into enemy territory and succeeded in capturing 7 machine-gun nests and 47 prisoners, continuing with his mission until he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. L. Stainton.

STAIR, WILLETT A....

Near Torcy, France, June 4, 1918. R—Minneapolis, Minn. B—Bristol, S. Dak. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

STALCUP, JAMES (1314522)

Near La Haie, France, Oct. 17, 1918.
R—Hartsville, Tenn.
B—Hartsville, Tenn.
G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

STAMBAUGH, ISABELLE.
In front of Amiens, France, Mar. 21,

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Mifflintown, Pa. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

STAMPS, BERNICE B.....

Near Jaulny, France, Sept. 13-15, 1918.

R—New Hebron, Miss. B—New Hebron, Miss. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 28, 1918. STANFIELD, LAWRENCE (1318597)

R—Durham, N. C. B—Alamanee County, N. C. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

STANKUNOS, BENJAMIN G. (2301304)... Near Verdun, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R—Shamokin, Pa. B—Shamokin, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Stanton, Charles, Jr. (1215748)...... Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Elmira, N. Y. B—Troy, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STAPLETON, WILLIAM A. (581321) Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Rush, Ky. B—Rush, Ky. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

STARK, ALEXANDER N., Jr. Near Cote St. Germain, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R-Fortress Monroe, Va.

B—Fort Sam Houston, Tex. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

STARKEY, JOSEPH W. Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Chattanooga, Tenn. B—Tuscumbia, Ala. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

STARLINGS, PAUL N.
At Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, 1918.

R—Annapolis, Md. B—Leitchs, Md. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

STARR, CHARLIE L. (551885)

Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Lamoille, Ill.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Private, Headquarters Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Near Torcy, France, on the night of June 4, 1918, as a member of a railing patrol, he displayed great courage and devotion by fearlessly entering extremely dangerous areas and obtaining information imperatively necessary to the success of subsequent acceptains. to the success of subsequent operations.

Private, Company C, 114th Machine Gun Battalion, 30th Division.
During the attack of the enemy position, Private Staleup, although wounded in the shoulder by a shell fragment, continued to go forward with his section for 7 hours until severely wounded by a trench-mortar shell. Due to his seeond wound, he lost his left arm. The courage and fortitude displayed by Private Staleup enabled his section to reach its objective with all its guns.

Reserve nurse, Base Hospital No. 10, Army Nurse Corps.
While with a surgical team at a British casualty clearing station during the big German drive of March 21, 1918, in front of Amiens, France, she was seriously wounded by shellfire from German aeroplanes.

Chief pharmacist's mate, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Working continually without rest or food, he cared for the wounded under most hazardous conditions. When a counterattack by the enemy seemed imminent, the medical detachment was ordered to the rear, but he willingly stayed with the wounded and assisted greatly in their evacuation.

Color sergeant, Headquarters Company, 120th Infantry, 30th Division. While attached to the regimental intelligence service he was severely gassed, but after receiving first-aid treatment, he insisted on returning to duty. Gassed a second time and relieved for a short period, he personally made a search for wounded men, and, finding a large number, went to the aid station with the state there were treatment to the aid station. and brought stretcher bearers. He continued this work until he was blinded by the effects of the gas.

Private, Company B, 310th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th Division.
With 2 other soldiers, Private Stankunos voluntarily left a place of safety, went forward 40 meters under machine-gun fire in plain view of the enemy, and rescued another soldier who had been blinded by a machine-gun bullet and was helplessly staggering about.

Corporal, Company L, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

Accompanied by an officer and 3 other soldiers, he made a reconnaissance of the River La Selle, the journey being made under constant and heavy machine-gun fire. To secure the desired information it was necessary to wade the stream for the entire distance.

Second lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.

Entering Vilosnes with a patrol, he encountered heavy enemy machine-gun fire. He attacked and killed 4 Germans, took 4 prisoners, and forced those remaining to take shelter in a trench. Although greatly outnumbered, he held his position while the French crossed the River Meuse and took many wisconers. prisoners.

Corporal, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
With the aid of 2 men, he charged and captured a German machine gun.

Major, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.
His battalion being stopped by machine-gun fire in the attack of Nov. 7, 1918, Major Stark personally led it in a renewed attack, and thus succeeded in gaining the Cote St. Germain. Major Stark personally captured a machine gun and 13 prisoners, his personal example of fearlessness encouraging his men to advance against odds.

First lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Wounded, but regardless of danger to himself, he led his men through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire in an attack overwhelmingly successful, in which he received a second wound.

Captain, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. In spite of the fact that returning wounded men informed that it was impossible to take Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, 1918, he led his company forward with courage and determination under steady fire, and thereby gave invaluable aid in the assault in which he knew his command was the last reserve.

Sergeant, Company I, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

During the attack on Hill 253 Sergeant Starr was wounded in the arm by a machine-gun bullet. Disregarding his wound, he continued to lead his platoon through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, until he was wounded a second time.

*STATHAM, GEORGE B. (41442)

Near Tuilerie Ferme, France, Nov.
4, 1918. R—Cordele, Ga. B—Sclma, Ala. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STAVROULAKIS, EMMANUEL (42329)___

South of Soissons, France, July 18,

1918.
R—Estherville, Iowa.
B—Greece.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

STAVRUM, EDWIN R ... VRUM, EDWIN R.
West of Chateau-Thierry, France,
June 6, 1918.
R.—La Crosse, Wis.
B.—La Crosse, Wis.
G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

1918. R-Portland, Oreg. B-Waldport, Oreg. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Steede, Walter J.
In the Forest de Ferc, near Nasies, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 26 to Aug. 2, 1918.
R.—Grand Rapids, Mich.
B.—Grand Rapids, Mich.
G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

STEELE, FRANK S. (96135)_ Near Beuvardes, France, July 26, 1918.
R—Abernant, Ala.
B—Rising Fawn, Ga.
G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

STEELE, RICHARD WILSON. Near Bois-de-Barricourt, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R—Oak Park, Ill. B—Omaha, Nebr. G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1919.

STEELE, WALTER P. (43109) Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Rosiclare, Ill. B—Paducah, Ky. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Stegar, Bernard A. (2219319)..... Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 18, 1918. R-Marlin, Tex. B-Marlin, Tex. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Steimel, William J. (156875) Near Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 12, 1918. R—Debow, Ark. B—Tipton, Mo. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STEIN, FRED C. (262506). Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Atlanta, Mich. B—Coleman, Mich. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Battalion, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. Although he was the only remaining member of his gun crew, he courageously operated his gun until he had put an enemy machine-gun nest out of action. He continued with his heroic work until he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Thomas S. Statham.

Corporal, Company C, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After its leader had been killed, Corporal Stavroulakis took command of a patrol and led it in an attack on a machine-gun position and captured the crew.

and led it in an attack on a machine gun possible for the following Oak-leaf cluster.

A bronze oak-leaf cluster is awarded to Corporal Stavroulakis for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action south of Soissons, France, July 19, 1918: After 2 others had been killed in the attempt, he carried an important message through heavy fire to battalion headquarters. Upon his return he led a patrol in attack on an enemy machine-gun position. Although wounded in both legs, he continued in the attack until the enemy machine gun was captured.

First lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. Lieutenant Stavrum was severely wounded in the left shoul der during the first phase of the attack. In spite of his wound he conducted his platoon to its objective and exposed himself to heavy fire in order to organize his position

Corporal, Company C, 4th Engineers, 4th Division.

He was a member of a platoon ordered to precede the Infantry to construct footbridges across the Vesle River. Enemy sniper, machine-gun, and artillery fire was so intense that 4 attempts of his platoon failed. Acting upon his own initiative, he made his way along the river in the face of the deadly fire, and for 1 hour reconnoitered the enemy's positions, reporting back to his commanding officer with information of the greatest value.

Private, Company E, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.
For extraordinary heroism in action in the Forest de Fere, near Nesles, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 26 to Aug. 2, 1918, during the advance of his regiment in the Forest de Fere, by his voluntary, authorized, and untiring efforts in carrying in the wounded, both by day and by night, under the most severe and dangerous circumstances, and especially when the town of Sergy was under heavy bombardment, July 29-31, 1918.

Corporal, Company C, 167th Infantry, 42d Division. Corporal Steele, although severely wounded in the right shoulder, continued to lead his squad forward through heavy machine-gun fire. Later with a few others took up a position in a sunken road and repulsed an enemy counterattack. His devotion to duty was an excellent example to the entire command.

Second lieutenant, observer, 166th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

While on a bombing raid back of the German line he, accompanied by his pilot, was attacked by 6 German pursuit planes. They were forced to leave the formation in which they were traveling, owing to engine trouble; the enemy began riddling their plane with machine-gun fire. Lieutenant Steele fought them on all sides, and is credited by members of the 11th Aero Squadron, who were flying over him several thousand feet, with having brought down one of his opponents. He was wounded twice in the log and twice in the arm and continued fighting although each time he was hit he was knocked down into continued fighting, although each time he was hit he was knocked down into the observer's cockpit. At last, however, only his tail gun was in working condition, the other 2 having been disabled by bullets, and he sank uncon-scious into the cockpit.

Corporal, Company G, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He advanced alone upon an enemy machine-run nest, shot 3 of the crew and continued his efforts to silence the guns until he was wounded.

Private, Company F, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
When a comrade was severely wounded by machine-gun fire, he went to his rescue, crossing open spaces subjected to intense fire by the enemy. He was wounded as he advanced, but he continued forward and reached the side of his wounded comrade, when he was again hit by a machine-gun bullet and instantly killed. instantly killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Mike Stegar.

Private, Company D, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.

Although wounded in several places by an enemy hand grenade, he refused to go to the rear until his mission was completed. After receiving first aid he again returned to the front line, although the entire line was at that time being subjected to a severe shelling.

Corporal, Company F, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
Corporal Stein charged and captured a strong enemy machine-gun nest and immediately turned the gun on the enemy. He was twice wounded while changing the position of the gun, but continued to operate it under heavy machine-gun fire until he received a third wound in the arm, which made it impossible for him further to operate the gun.

STEINER, GEORGE C. (2312982)

Near Blane Mont Ridge, France,
Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Cleveland, Ohio.

B-Long Island City, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Steiner, John Jefferson Flowers... Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R-Montgomery, Ala. B-Montgomery, Ala. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Highland Park, Mich. B—Seward, Nebr. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STEININGER, ROY H. (5815)

Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct.
4, 1918.
R—Chester, Pa.
B—Mifflintown, Pa.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

31, 1918.

R-Milledgeville, Ga. B-Baldwin County, Ga. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

STENSETH, MARTINUS
Over the Argonne Forest, France,
Oct. 22, 1918. R-Minneapolis, Minn. B-Minneapolis, Minn. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

*Stensson, Carl H... Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Framingham, Mass. B—Framingham, Mass. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Stephens, Joseph W. G.
Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
R-Wicomico Church, Va.
B-Wicomico Church, Va.
G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

STEPHENSON, CARLTON (1319639)__ Rear Catillon, France, Oct. 18, 1918. R—Clayton, N. C. B—Johnston County, N. C. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

STEPHENSON, CHARLES F. (1329349)
At Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Rocky Mount, N. C.
B—Johnston County, N. C.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

STERN, HENRY R ... Near Vieville-en-Haye, France, Sept.

20, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

Sergeant, Company C, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Sergeant Steiner, severely wounded on the battle line with his company, remained on duty until the objective was gained and the position cousolidated.

Major, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
In command of his battalion in the front line, Major Steiner personally conducted a reconnaissance. Exposed to enemy fire, he obtained valuable information after other patrols had failed. An attack was then organized in which 2 machine guns were captured and a dangerous salient climinated.

First lieutenant, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.
When his company commander was seriously wounded he took an automatic rifle from a dead soldier and held off the enemy for 2 hours, defending the wounded officer until assistance could be obtained. Next day while in command of his company he was himself wounded, but continued to urge his men forward, inspiring them by his example under heavy machine-gun fire.

Private, Company C, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After several men of his company had been wounded he repeatedly left cover, exposing himself in an open field to enemy machine gun fire in order to bring in wounded and administer first aid.

First lieutenant, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
Continuing in command of his company, after he had been instructed to go to the rear for treatment for an infected leg, Lieutenant Steinkraus skillfully extricated his company with few casualties, when it became suddenly exposed to intense machine-gun fire from both flanks. Reinforcing his command with stragglers, he organized a strong right flank guard by utilizing captured German machine guns and succeeded in maintaining his position.

First lieutenant, 21st Machine Gun Battalion, 7th Division.
Although wounded by a shell fragment and suffering from the effects of an antitetanic serum, Lieutenant Stembridge continued to lead his platoon through the night of Oct. 31 and the offensive operation of Nov. 1 under, heavy enemy shellfire, encouraging his men by his gallant conduct.

First lieutenant, 28th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
For extraordinary heroism in action Oct. 22, 1918, over the Argonne Forest when he went to the rescue of a French plane attacked by 6 enemy Fokker planes with 12 additional enemy planes hovering in reserve. Attacking the enemy with vigor, single handed, he drove down and destroyed 1 enemy plane and put to flight the remainder. His gallant act in the face of overwhelming odds proved an inspiration to the men of his squadron.

Private, 18th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He displayed great courage in serving as a stretcher bearer during the operations at Blane Mont Ridge. When his helper was wounded he went into an open road swept by machine-gun fire to rescue him and was killed in his open road swept by machine-gair and to rescale initiating was kined in his self-sacrificing attempt. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Christine E.

Stensson.

Captain, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
When necessity arose for a company to advance to an important position in the fighting near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he led his command through a heavily shelled area with conspicuous bravery, reached his objective, and directed his men to a successful attack, until so seriously wounded as to necessitate his evacuation.

Corporal, Company B, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Severely wounded, he remained with his automatic rifle section in an exposed position, covering the withdrawal of his company. Although almost surrounded, he inflicted severe losses on the enemy and held his position throughout the day.

Corporal, Company D, 105th Engineers, 30th Division.

As Corporal Stephenson and his squad were engaged in planking over a shell hole, they were fired on from the side. Locating the course of the fire by a flash, he attacked the enemy position with his rifle, killing 1 German, taking 2 prisoners, and clearing the adjacent shell holes. His quick initiative and bravery saved the lives of his men and prevented an interruption of their work.

First lieutenant, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
During an enemy attack on the position held by his platoon, after being severely wounded in the leg by a machine-gun bullet, he remained in a position subjected to heavy machine-gun fire, and refused to accept aid until after the attack had been repulsed. His deed greatly encouraged his men.

1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Rutherford, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

2, 1918. R—Albion, N. Y. B—Lynchburg, Va. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

STEVENS, LEVI..... Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Alpena, Mich. B—Trenton, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STEVENS, MATT (263344) _____ Throughout the advance across the River Ourcq and to Fismes, France, on the south bank of the Vesle River, July 3t to Aug. 8, 1918.

R—St. Johns, Mich. B—St. Johns, Mich. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Chester, Pa. B—Chester, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1928 R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Ephraim, Utah. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1926.

STEVENSON, MAURICE S. Near Exermont, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Kansas City, Mo. B—Milwaukee, Wis. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*STEWART, ALPHEUS E. (2211347) East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—San Antonio, Tex. B—Fairview, Tex. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1919.

Stewart, Bert L. (40851) Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3. 1918.

R—Idaville, Ind. B—Osgood, Ind. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

STEWART, CLARENCE L. (553370)

At Chateau-Thierry, France, May 31 to June 4, 1918. R—Verona, Pa. B—Wilkinsburg, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

STEWART, DAVID B., Jr. (57297)
On Hill 240, near Exerniont, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Rochester, N. Y. B—Gloucester, Mass. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

*Stewart, George L. (2339380) Near Nesles, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Bluefield, W. Va. B—Otey, Va. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919,

Second lieutenant, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division.
While leading his platoon in attack, Lieutenant Stevens fell mortally wounded, but refused to be taken to the dressing station until he had directed the advance of his platoon and assured himself that it would not be checked.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Phoebe J. Stevens.

Second lieutenant, 147th Acro Squadron, Air Service.
He, with 4 other pilots, attacked 12 enemy aircraft (type Pfalz), flying in 2 groups well within the enemy lines. As soon as the enemy planes were sighted he maneuvered to get between them and the sun, and with great difficulty gained the advantage. While 3 of the other American officers dived on the lower formation, he and Second Lieut. Kenneth L. Porter angaged the upper formation in a bold and brilliant combat, 2 planes of which they crashed to the earth.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Effic Stevens.

First lieutenant, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

Commanding a small detachment, he charged and captured a strong enemy machine-gun nest, his personal activity and courage aiding greatly in the success of the exploit. Although wounded and under heavy fire, he organized a position from which his detachment could effectively turn the captured gun on the enemy.

Private, Company E, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

Private Stevens was a runner for his company and was engaged day and night in carrying messages throughout machine-gun and artillery fire. He did his work without fear or hesitation, thereby keeping constant liaison with higher authority. During times not so occupied he administered aid to the wounded, crawling to stricken comrades at imminent risk of his own life, through areas swept by machine-gun fire. Through disregard of danger he was the means of saving many wounded men.

Sergeant, Company C, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
Sergeant Stevenson and another soldier voluntarily went through heavy machine-gun fire to carry an important message to an advanced unit. Attracted by the cries of a wounded soldier while they were returning they went to his assistance, and, in doing so, Sergeant Stevenson was mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Doris Stevenson.

Corporal, Company F, 319th Infantry, 80th Division.
He voluntarily left shelter and crawled in the open under heavy machine-gun fire to the aid of a wounded soldier. While trying to dress the latter's injuries he was killed by a machine-gun bullet.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John G. Stevenson.

Second lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He displayed splendid devotion to duty by twice passing through a terrific artillery and machine-gun barrage in order to transmit important orders from his brigade commander to the assaulting battalion, and while in the performance of such duty was seriously wounded, but refused to be evacuated before he had made his report.

Private, Company G, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Private Stewart, having been wounded in the head, advanced with fearless disregard for his own personal safety against an enemy machine-gun nest and succeeded in putting it out of action by bombing the gunners. He was killed immediately thereafter by an enemy machine-gun fire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John H. Stewart.

Corporal, Company M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After his officer had been wounded by shellfire, Corporal Stewart, suffering from seven wounds about the knee, from the same shell, took command of his platoon, led it in the assault to the objective, and established it in line.

Private, Company B, 7th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
As a motorcycle rider he worked steadily for 24 hours without rest. He was struck by shrapnel, which wounded him in the neck, back, and in both legs, but he continued on duty in spite of these injuries.

Corporal, Company D, 23th Infantry, 1st Division.
Corporal Stewart exposed himself to heavy fire to advance 100 yards in advance of his company in order to locate enemy machine-gun positions. Coming suddenly upon an enemy machine-gun nest, he forced 12 of the enemy to surrender and then continued his reconnaissance.

Sergeant, Company I, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

After he had seen several of his comrades fall in the attempt to accomplish the mission, Sergeant Stewart volunteered to carry an important message through a heavy shell and gas bombardment.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Stewart.

*Stewart, Kirby P. Near Chatel-Chehery, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—Bradentown, Fla. B—Lake City, Fla. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Near Bussy Farm, France, Sept. 29,

1918.
R—Columbia, S. C.
B—Fort Motte, S. C.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Stewart, Warren C. (1286772)

Near Verdun, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R—Baltimore, Md.

B—Washington, D. C.

G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

R—Akron, Ohio. B—Waynesburg, Pa. G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1918.

*STIER, VICTOR (2041538)_____

At Nijnigora, Russia, Jan. 19, 1919. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

*STIFENELL, LUCH (1250625)____ Near Peterghem, Belgium, Oct. 31, 1918. R-Norristown, Pa. B-Norristown, Pa. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

STIFF, WILLIAM C. Near Fessoy, France, July 14-15, 1918.

R—Plymouth, Pa. B—Bloomsburg, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

STILLWELL, FRANK (125397).

Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R-Kansas City, Kans.

B-Kansas City, Kans.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*STINE, RALPH W. Near Forges, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Paxton, III. B—Paxton, III. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

STINER, WILLIAM J. (550906)

Near Moulins, France, July 15, 1918, and near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

STINSON, JAMES K. (199291) At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Newark, N. J.
B—Canada. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.

Leading his platoon in an attack through an open valley which was swept by enemy machine-gun fire from both flanks, he displayed marked heroism in continuing in command of his men after being himself severely wounded, inspiring them by his courage till he fell mortally wounded by a second machine-gun bullet.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. J. M. Stewart.

Private, Headquarters Company, 371st Infantry, 93d Division. Although severely wounded, he continued to carry telephone material forward through a heavy barrage for several hours until overcome by loss of blood and weakness.

Private, sanitary detachment, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. In the Bois-de-Montagne, east of the Meuse, he voluntarily, and at the risk of his life, walked through an opening under direct machine-gun fire to administer first aid to the wounded in an advanced post. During the entire offensive his conduct was instrumental in maintaining the morale of the troops to which he was attached.

Private, Headquarters Company, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
Several times during the night of July 29, 1918, and 3 times during the afternoon of July 30, 1918, he left the shelter of battalion headquarters and went out into an intense bombardment to repair telephone lines connecting battalion and regimental command posts. He had several narrow escapes and was once thrown to the ground by the burst of an exploding shell, yet he continued to explore his investment ways for explain the product of the second of the se to perform his important work after others had failed.

Private, Company A, 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North

When his detachment was almost surrounded, Private Stier went forward to a machine-gun position and opened fire on the enemy, checking their advance and allowing his comrades to withdraw. He was wounded in the jaw with a rifle bullet. He continued to fire at the enemy until ordered to the rear. He then, while under direct fire, dismantled his gun, and while going to the secondary position he received a second wound, which caused his death. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John N. Stier.

Private, Battery C, 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division.
Mortally wounded, yet realizing the need of every effective at the piece to continue its operation, he refused help from his comrades, and while lying on the ground cheered the members of the gun crew and urged them to maintain their fire, until he was removed to a dressing station by a stretcher bearer. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Pauline Stifenell.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

The observation post of his regiment having been destroyed by enemy shell-fire and a number of men wounded, Captain Stiff volunteered to go to the aid of the wounded men if a guide were furnished. The offer was declined as it was thought to be too hazardous an undertaking, the entire zone being swept by intense enemy machine-gun and artillery fire. Captain Stiff insisted upon making the attempt, and in company with Corporal Blankenship of the Headquarters Company, started on his mission despite the protests of officers and men acquainted with the terrain. Under terrific enemy fire they made their way to the outpost position, found the wounded men whose wounds they dressed, and led the disabled men to places of shelter.

Sergeant, Battery A, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division. When his section of a platoon had been caught in an enemy barrage and all cannoneers of the platoon had been either killed or wounded, Sergeant Stillweil made repeated trips into the shelled area to remove the wounded. He assumed command of the platoon after the commanding officer had been evacuated and skillfully performed the duties involved therein.

First lieutenant, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

During the progress of the attack, Lieutenant Stine led a squad which wiped out 6 machine-gun nests and put the crews of 5 others to flight. At the last nest he met stubborn resistance and was instantly killed by a sniper while advancing upon it at close range.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Minnie Stine.

Private, first class, Company F, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
During the enemy offensive of July 15, Private Stiner exposed himself to intense artillery and machine-gun fire while guiding the support platoons of his company to the front line. On Oct. 9, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, with 4 others, he led an attack on an enemy trench and succeeded in capturing 39 prisoners and 8 machine guns,

Private, first class, Company C, 101st Field Signal Battalion, 26th Division. He showed exceptional coolness and courage in voluntarily laying and repairing telephone lines under a violent bombardment. Later, when all other wires had been cut, he succeeded in tapping in on lines and putting through a call for a barrage.

R—Denver, Colo. B—Scotland. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

*STOCKTON, FRANK R. (96634)_____At La Musard Farm, near Landreset-St. Georges, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R-New Decatur, Ala. B-New Decatur, Ala. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

STOCKTON, JAMES R._____ Near Blanc Mont Ridge, France, Oct. 3, 1918.
R—Jacksonville, Fla.
B—Duval County, Fla.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1924.

Stoker, Alexander (731362)

Near Bois-de-Chatillon, France,
Nov. 5, 1918.

R—LaFayette, Ga.
B—LaFayette, Ga.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Reidsville, N. C. B—Reidsville, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Stone, Alexander II.

Near Brabrant, France, Oct. 8, 1918.
R—Fredericksburg, Va.
B—Fredericksburg, Va.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STONE, BERNARD (1451493). RE, BERNARD (1401439).
At Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—Cleveland, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STONE, EDWARD R. Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3-10, 1918. B-Spencer, Mass.
B-Spencer, Mass.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service medal also

awarded.

STONE, ELLSWORTH A.
Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 11, 1918.
R-Woodhaven, Long Island, N. Y.
B-Lyun, Mass.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

STONE, JAMES E. (1789441) Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 29-Oct. 1, 1918. R-Owensboro, Ky.
B-Madisonville, Ky.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STONE, OTIS L. (73271)
Near Epieds, France, July 23, 1918.
R—Stoneham, Mass.
B—Medford, Mass.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.
Corporal Stirling was directing the fire of his machine-gun crew at close range from a shell hole in an open field when their gun became disabled. Thereupon he and 2 other soldiers advanced with pistols upon the enemy machine-gun nest at which they had been firing and captured it, with 3 guns and 9 prisoners. Putting 1 of the captured guns into immediate action against the enemy, they enabled the Infantry to advance with a minimum of casualties.

Private, Company E, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

This soldier, while acting as litter bearer, went through deadly artillery and machine-gun fire to the aid of some wounded soldiers, disregarding warnings as to the danger in so doing. After administering first aid to one of the wounded, he carried him toward our lines, and had almost reached a place of safety when he was killed by machine-gun fire, having given proof of the highest devotion to duty, courage, and self-sacrifice.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Rev. J. I. Stockton.

Captain, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
While directing his platoon in the attack under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, Captain Stockton, although severely wounded, displayed exceptional bravery and coolness in remaining in command and leading his men, refusing to be evacuated until forced to do so through loss of blood.

Sergeant, Company A. 6th Infantry, 5th Division.

Accompanied by another soldier, Sergeant Stoker advanced against an enemy machine-gun unit, which was holding up the advance of his platoon and the company on his left. He completed the capture of the position, killing 3 of the enemy and routing the remaining part of the unit, thereby enabling his platoon to advance to their objective.

First lieutenant, 20th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

After their own formation had been broken up, Lieutenant Stokes and his pilot voluntarily continued on their bombing mission with planes from another squadron. Although their plane was thrown out of control by antiaireraft fire, they proceeded to their objective and dropped their bombs. Their motor then died completely, and they were attacked by an enemy combat plane, but they fought off the attacking machine and reached the Allied lines, where their plane crashed in a forest.

Corporal, Company C, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

After the advance of his company had been stopped by strong hostile machinegun fire, Corporal Stoll, with 3 companions, advanced far ahead of the front line to attack an enemy position located in a large farmhouse. By skillful maneuvering in the broad daylight they covered all entrances to the house and forced the surrender of the entire force of the enemy, numbering 36 men and 2 officers. During the exploit they killed 2 Germans, who attempted to take cover in the cellar.

First lleutenant, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

He personally led his men in attack on machine-gun nests, destroying several of them and capturing many prisoners and several guns. He repeatedly refused to go to the rear with a badly sprained ankle, though ordered to do so by a surgeon.

Private, first class, Company B, 138th Infantry, 35th Division.

In the face of machine-gun fire Private Stone entered an enemy dugout alone, killed 1 German, and captured 6 prisoners and 2 machine guns. Though he was twice wounded, he remained on duty until the last day of the drive. After his wounds were dressed he left the hospital to join his company.

Colonel, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. Colonel, 236 Inlanory, 2d Division.

Throughout the heavy fighting near Medeah Ferme he was at all times in the most exposed position, going over the top with his regiment 4 times in 7 days, after all his battalion commanders had been killed. He repeatedly refused to go to a place of safety during the most severe bombardments, even after being seriously gassed.

Second lieutenant, 326th Infantry, 82d Division. Second netternant, 325th limitary, 82d Division.

Leading his platoon under withering machine-gun and artillery fire, Lieutenant

Stone, although wounded, admirably led his men on until ordered to withdraw. He personally supervised the evacuation of the wounded, and, in taking a new position, he was again wounded. Scarcely able to stand, he remained in the action until ordered to the rear by his company commander.

Sergeant, 314th Ambulance Company, 304th Sanitary Train, 79th Division. While on duty at the ambulance dressing station Sergeant Stone heard the report that there were several wounded men on a wooded hill exposed to enemy machine-gun fire. He volunteered and brought the wounded men in, which necessitated several trips under heavy fire. On many more occasions during the fighting around Montfaucon he exposed himself to the enemy fire in rescuing the wounded.

Corporal, Company K, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
Assisted by 2 comrades, Corporal Stone rushed out in the face of direct and annihilating machine-gun fire and brought in a wounded comrade, who was lying 25 yards in front of his lines.

*Stonecipher, Maniphe (58792) Near Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918.

R-Iuka, Ill. B-Glenmary, Tenn. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*STORM, GEORGE P. (44579)... Near Baulay, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Catasauqua, Pa. B—Catasauqua, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

B—Gum, La. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STOUT, ALBERT II. In Bois-de-Foret, France, Oct. 12,

R—Cairo, Ill. B—Cairo, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919

STOUT, LOUIS A.
Near Noyers, France, Nov. 7, 1918.
R.—Kansas City, Mo.
B.—Stoutsville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

STOUT, PENROSE V ... Near Charnay, France, Sept. 28,1918. R—Bronxville, N. Y. B—Montgomery, Ala. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

STOVALL, WILLIAM H ... In the region of Etain, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Stovall, Miss. B—Stovall, Miss. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

*STOWELL, EARLE B. (71524) Near St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Worcester, Mass. B—East Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

STRAABE, GILBERT (2257230). Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Geraldine, Mont.

B—Norway.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

STRAHM, VICTOR H.

Near Metz, France, Sept. 13, 1918.

R—Bowling Green, Ky.

B—Nashville, Tenn.

G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company M, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

Ho showed remarkable coolness and disregard of danger under heavy bombardment near Cantigny, France, May 23-30, 1918. While directing the consolidation of a new position, a driving fire caused many casualties in his command, but by his example of fortitude he inspired confidence in his men and refused to withdraw to the second line, even when his ammunition was nearly exhausted.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Hattie Stonecipher.

Private, medical detachment, 371st Infantry, 93d Division. With 3 other soldiers he crawled 200 yards ahead of our lines under violent machine-gun fire and rescued an officer who was lying mortally wounded in a shell hole.

Battalion sergeant major, Headquarters Company, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He volunteered and carried a message through violent artillery and machinegun fire. He then assisted in caring for the wounded and sending them to the rear with prisoners. Later, when his battalion had made an advance, Sergeant Major Storm, after finishing his duties at the old post of command, advanced through violent fire to his new station, where he was killed by shellfire while assisting in the consolidation.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Edward Storm.

Corporal, Company E, 325th Infantry, 82d Division. Under heavy fire from machine guns, and although seriously wounded, he continued to advance within the enemy's lines. By words of encouragement he urged his men to follow. By his brave leadership an enemy outpost defended by 2 machine guns and 6 riflemen was captured.

Corporal, Company G, 11th Infantry, 5th Division.

Although on duty with the regimental chaplain, he requested and was granted permission to accompany the first wave. Aided by a fellow soldier, he successfully accomplished the capture of 14 prisoners and their machine guns.

Second lleutenant, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
After the battalion objective had been reached at the north edge of Bois-deForet, Lieutenant Stout's platoon, which was in the front wave, was attacked from the rear by the enemy, who had penetrated the line to the left. Lieutenant Stout quickly changed his position and led his men in a hand-to-hand fight. The hostile force, consisting of 40 men armed with 6 machine guns, was killed or captured, Lieutenant Stout himself killing 3 Germans and capturing 1 machine gun.

Captain, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After the ammunition supply had been exhausted, he displayed exceptional gallantry and leadership in leading this company and I platoon of another in a bayonet charge up Hill 346, capturing this strong point, together with 6 machine guns and 23 prisoners.

First lieutenant, 27th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

While engaged in a solitary patrol of the enemy lines, Lieutenant Stout attacked an artillery regulating machine. He was almost immediately attacked by 5 enemy planes and subjected to infantry and antiaircraft fire, but fearlessly continued the unequal fight until his machine guns were broken and he was shot through the shoulder and lung. shot through the shoulder and lung.

First lieutenant, pilot, 13th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While leading a protection patrol over a day bombing formation his patrol became reduced through motor trouble to himself and 1 other pilot. When the bombing patrol was attacked by 7 enemy planes he in turn attacked the enemy and destroyed 1 plane.

Corporal, Company C, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.

When his platoon was held up by machine guns, Corporal Stowell volunteered with others and charged an enemy machine-gun nest, capturing 2 guns, 1 transh warder, and 18 evinements. trench mortar, and 12 prisoners.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Clara J. Kempton.

Private, Company D, 361st Infantry, 91st Division. He voluntarily and unhesitatingly left shelter under heavy shellfire and without thought of personal danger rendered first aid and carried a wounded comrade to a place of safety.

Captain, 91st Aero Squadron, Air Service. He displayed remarkable courage and skill in penetrating the enemy territory for a distance of 25 kilometers, flying at an altitude of less than 300 meters. His plane was subjected to intense fire from antiaircraft gins in the region of Metz, and he was attacked by a superior number of German planes, 1 of which he destroyed. He completed his mission and returned with information of great military value.

102444°-27-38

*STRAIN, BENJAMIN T. At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R-Greensburg, Ind. B-Newton, Kans. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

STRAIN, JAMES F.
Near Very, France, Sept. 27, 1918.
R—Pittsburg, Kans.
B—Atchison, Kans.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1919.

R—Castlegate, Utah. B—Rockville, Colo. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

R—Adams, Tenn.
B—Robertson County, Tenn.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

STRAUB, ROBERT A. (1702047)

At Bazoches, France, Aug. 14, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

STREB, THOMAS F. (1285690)...... Near Verdun, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

STRICKLAND, CURTIS MIMS (1312553) -Near Brancourt, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Colleton, S. C. B—Colleton, S. C. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

R—Oliver Springs, Tenn. B—Polk County, Ark. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Tell City, Ind. B—St. Meinrad, Ind. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

STROMAN, HENRY H. (2285158)_____At Eclisiontaine, France, near Boisde-Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Tallahassee, Fla. B—Tallahassee, Fla. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, 45th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chatean-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. He gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Anna T. Strain.

First licutenant, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
Although severely wounded himself, he crawled through heavy fire to the side of his commanding officer, and, taking the latter on his back, brought him to safety. He then took command of the company, and, except for a visit to the first-aid station, remained throughout the entire operation.

Private, first class, Company A, 31st Infantry.

After having been wounded he continued to use his rifle throughout the action.

Private, first class, Company L, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

Private Strange and 20 other soldiers, the remnants of 2 platoons, were isolated in a railroad cut under heavy enemy fire, when 75 of the enemy started a counterattack on their position. Possessing the only automatic rifle in the group, Private Strange fearlessly opened fire on the enemy from an exposed position until his automatic rifle jammed and his left arm was paralyzed by a wound. He succeeded in clearing the jam, however, and immediately resumed firing despite his left arm being disabled, driving off the enemy, and breaking up the counterattack through his exceptional fortitude and determination. Shortly afterwards he was again wounded by a bursting shell.

Corporal, Company F, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.
Voluntarily joining a daylight patrol seeking information as to the strength and positions of the enemy which was attacked about 100 yards beyond its own lines by an enemy hostile post of 7 men. The enemy was immediately attacked from the rear, several of the men killed and the survivors scattered. A moment later another enemy post was attacked and in hand to hand fighting Corporal Straub killed I of the enemy and was himself badly wounded. Although unable to walk and under heavy fire from near-by enemy posts, Corporal Straub dragged himself to our lines and gave valuable information as to the disposition of the enemy forces. as to the disposition of the enemy forces.

Private, Company B, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division. He administered first aid to a wounded comrade under heavy maching-gun and artillery fire, and, although wounded himself, he refused evacuation, remaining on duty with the company during the entire action.

Private, first class, Company H, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. In the Bois-de-Consenvoye, east of the Meuse, he operated his automatic rifle on a post enfiladed by direct maching-gun fire during a desperate counterattack by the enemy until the rifle was damaged by the enemy's fire and he himself was wounded. He remained on post continuing to defend same with an ordinary rifle. He was later gassed, and refused to go to the hospital until ordered to do so by his company commander.

Sergeant, Company II, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
While leading his platoon in attack, Sergeant Strickland was painfully wounded in the leg; disregarding his wound, he continued to lead his platoon forward until again very severely wounded by a shell fragment.

Corporal, Company M, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Crawling several hundred feet under deadly rifle and machine-gun fire, Corporal Strickland, with another soldier, Banked a shell hole wherein a number of the enemy were hiding. In this heroic exploit he either killed or captured 14 of the enemy, as well as taking a machine gun.

Corporal, Company G, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

The whole line being held up by heavy fire from an enemy strong point, Corporal Stripling, with marked initiative, led his squad and, despite strong resistance, skillfully flanked and captured his objective, together with 30 prisoners, without the loss of a man.

Private, Company D, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
With 8 other soldiers, comprising the company headquarters detachment,
Private Strobel assisted his company commander in cleaning out enemy dugouts along the canal and capturing 242 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company K, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers, Sergeant Stroman with 5 others advanced 400 yards beyond their front to bring in wounded comrades. They succeeded in resening 7 of their men, also in bringing in the dead body of a lieutenant, while exposed to terrific machine-gun fire.

STROTHER, HAROLD C. (2261605)..... Near Steenbrugge, Belgium, Oct. 31,

R—Ripon, Calif. B—Ripon, Calif. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Calumet, Mich. B—Manistique, Mich. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

*STUART, ARTHUR J. (363941) North of Jaulgonne, near Sergy, France, July 31, 1918. R-Detroit, Mich. B-Canada. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

STUART, GEORGE (1276934)

Near Ravine-de-la-Reine, north of Samogneux, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R—Jersey City, N. J. B—Jersey City, N. J. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

STUBBS, EDWIN J. (89224)

At Menrey Farm, near Villers-surFere, France, Aug. 1, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

STUCKRAD, ARTHUR L. (274269)...... Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Charles City, Iowa. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

STURTEVANT, WALLIS H. (1684164)..... Near Chery-Chartreuve, France, Aug. 10, 1918. R—Fitchburg, Mass. B—Greenfield, Mass. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

SULLIVAN, DAN W. (49375)...

Near Chateau-Thierry,
June 6, 1918.

R—New Orleans, La.
B—New Orleans, La.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918. France,

Sullivan, Edward J. Near Les Eparges, France, Sept. 12, R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SULLIVAN, GROVER C. (1683735) __ At La Besacc, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R—Norwood, N. Y. B—Norwood, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

SULLIVAN, JAMES (1702578) ... R—New York, N. Y.
B—Newport, R. 1.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919. Corporal, Company L, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.

Advancing under heavy machine-gun fire, with the aid of 2 other soldiers he silenced the fire of a strongly fortified machine-gun position which was causing severe losses in his ranks. His action made possible the further advance not only of his own platoon but also the company on his left.

Sergeant, Company L, 314th Infantry, 79th Division.

During an attack and nuder heavy machine-gun fire, Sergeant Strucel showed exceptional courage and devotion to duty by constantly walking up and down the line cheering and encouraging his men. In the performance of this task he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George Strucel.

Cerporal, Company M, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. Although exposed to artillery, machine-gun, and rifle fire, Corporal Stuart attempted to carry a wounded man from within 100 feet of the German line. He was killed while erawling toward his own lines with his wounded comrade on his back.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Sumner B. Stuart.

Corporal, Company K, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.
Under difficult circumstances he led his squad to its objective, although they were greatly outnumbered by the enemy. Single handed, he afterwards killed 6 of the enemy and captured 2 machine guns.

Private, Company A, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After volunteering to proceed in the advancing line as a sniper, by his skill and courage he disposed of 2 enemy machine gunners who were causing heavy losses to the assaulting battalion. While in this position of extreme danger, he was wounded by an enemy sniper, but held his post in spite of great pain and suffering until relieved. Later, as a result of his wound, his arm was amputated.

Corporal, Company F, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
With 2 other soldiers Corporal Stuckrad advanced ahead of their company and rushed an enemy machine-gun nest from the flank, capturing 14 members of the crew and 2 machine guns, and thereby enabling the advance to continue. Carrying the captured guns with them to the objective, they later used them successfully in repelling a hostile counterattack.

Private, first class, Company L, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. With another soldier he volunteered to go out across an open space swept by heavy machine-gun fire, about 150 yards to the front, to rescue 2 wounded soldiers, which he helped to bring back to the line.

Corporal, Company D, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. He voluntarily ran through a terrific shellfire into a burning ammunition dump and rescued a badly wounded and burned comrade. The ammunition was exploded a few seconds after this heroic act was performed.

First lieutenant, pilot, 135th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
He, with Second Lieut. Guy E. Morse, observer, fearlessly volunteered for the perilous mission of locating the enemy's advance unit in the rear of the Hindenburg line. Disregarding the hail of machine-gun fire and bursting anti-aircraft shell, they invaded the enemy territory at a low altitude and accomplished their mission, securing for our staff information of the greatest importance. These 2 gallant officers at once returned to the lines and undertock another reconnaissance mission, from which they failed to return.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, S. F. Suiter.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
During a period of 5 hours and 30 minutes on June 6, 1918, near Chateau-Thierry, France, he carried messages between the commanding officer and platoon leader through constant machine-gun fire, thereby maintaining communication successfully at the imminent risk of his life.

Second licutenant, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
While leading his platoon forward and finding no gap in the enemy's wire, Licutenant Sullivan, although severely wounded, directed his men in entting the wire and encouraged their advance until he fell exhausted from his wounds.

Private, Company L, 306th Infantry, 77th Division. He displayed rare bravery and devotion to duty by remaining on duty after heing seriously wounded during a heavy artillery bombardment and giving first-aid treatment to 5 severely wounded comrades.

Sergeant, Company H, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.

This soldier fearlessly entered a dugout in which he knew there were Germans hiding and single handed captured 20 prisoners.

*SULLIVAN, JERRY (42854) _____ South of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Barry, Vt. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Sullivan, John L. B. (88992)

North of the River Ourcq, July 29,

1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

SULLIVAN, JOHN M. (3484535)

Near the Meuse River, France,
Oct. 5, 1918.

R—Akron, Ohio.

B—Louisville, Ky.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SULLIVAN, JOHN P. (554630)

Service rendered under the name,
John Shannon.

1918.

R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Sullivan, William Q Near Chevieres, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Norwood, Colo. B—Pueblo, Colo. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SUMMERALL, CHARLES P.

BMERALL, CHARLES P
Before Berzy-le-Sec, near Soissons,
France, during the Aisne-Marne offensive, July 19, 1918.
R—Astatula, Fla.
B—Lake City, Fla.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.
Distinguished-service medal also awarded. awarded.

SUMMERS, ALBERT E. (1679686)...... In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 6, 1918. R—Auburn, N. Y. B—England. G. O. No. 71, W. D.,1919.

6, 1918. R.—Tidioute, Pa. B.—Tidioute, Pa. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

SUNDIN, MILTON C. (2202754)

In the St. Mihiel salient, France,
Sept. 12-13, 1918,
R—Denver, Colo.
B—Denver, Colo.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919,

Sergeant, Company F, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
He displayed exceptional courage and initiative by leading his platoon to the attack and capture of a battery of 77-millimeter guns. After the successful accomplishment of this unusual and heroic duty he was killed in action. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Eugene Sullivan.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. For extraordinary heroism in action north of the River Ourcq, July 29, 1918, while advancing against the enemy. No messengers being available, he volunteered to carry messages from the machine-gun company commander to the battalion commander, crossing an open valley swept by machine-gun and shellfire, part of the distance of 200 meters being in water waist deep. This journey accomplished twice within an hour made possible proper liaison between the company and battalion commanders.

Private, Company II, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
On Oct. 5 he twice left his place of shelter and advanced under intense machinegun fire to the rescue of wounded comrades, bringing them back to a place of safety where they could be cared for.

Private, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.

Corporal, Company M, 362d Infantry, 91st Division. Observing that the left flank of the regimental line was unprotected, he voluntarily took out a combat patrol and while so doing encountered 3 machine guns, which were employing effective enfilade fire. Boldly advancing on this position, he silenced the guns.

Private, Battery B, 104th Field Artillery, 27th Division. When a continuous bombardment had set fire to the camouflage covering of a large ammunition dump of 75-millimeter shells and exploded 9 of the shells, he, utterly disregarding his personal safety, left a sheltered position and ran to the dump and, with the aid of 3 other men, extinguished the fire, not only saving the ammunition but also preventing the exact locating of the dump by the enemy.

First lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

After his company commander had been seriously wounded and he himself wounded in the head by a machine-gun bullet. Lieutenant Sullivan continued to lead and encourage his men until wounded the second time. He then continued in command of the company until ordered to be evacuated by his battalion commander.

Major general, U. S. Army. General Summerall, commanding the 1st Division, visited, with great gallantry and with utter disregard for his own safety, the extreme front lines of his diviand with atter disregard for his own safety, the extreme front lines of his division and personally made a reconnaissance of the position in the face of heavy hostile machine-gun and artillery fire, exhorting his men to renew the attack on Berzy-le-Sec, promising them a powerful artillery support, and so encouraging them by his presence and example that they declared their readiness to take the town for him. Due to his great courage and utter disregard for his own safety, the men of his division were inspired to enormous and heroic efforts, capturing Berzy-le-Sec the next morning under terrific enemy fire, and later in the day the division reached all its objectives.

Private, Company II, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
In the face of direct machine-gun fire he left cover and went out 100 yards to rescue a wounded soldier. Dragging the wounded man back to his funk hole, he gave him first aid, and then again exposing himself to enemy fire obtained water for him. He showed utter disregard for personal danger in aiding other wounded men in addition to performing his duties as scout.

Sergeant, Company I, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
Sergeant Summerton, having on his body several aggravated wounds from an enemy grenade and being tagged for evacuation for these, as well as for grippe, when assured that his company was about to attack Chatel-Chehery and that it had lost all its officers, went back to his company and courageously and skillfully led it as the first wave, and while so doing was again wounded.

Captain, 372d Infantry, 93d Division.

During the attack on Bussy Farm and Sechault he courageously led his command under the most intense artillery fire and in the face of a fusillade of machine-gun bullets. Although he was suffering from the effects of gas and had heen twice knocked down by explosion of shells, he remained on duty, and, inspired by his example, his men overcame the strong enemy resistance.

Private, Company L, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Private Sundin, while advancing through wooded territory with 4 other men, was surprised by the fire of 6 machine guns. Though 2 of the party were wounded, Private Sundin, with great daring, worked around the flank of the position and succeeded in routing the enemy machine gunners in time to permit the advance without casualties of 2 plateons operating near by, *Suplee, Howard R. (3111260) North of Verdun, France, at Hill 378, Grande Montagne sector, Nov. 6, R-Philadelphia, Pa.

B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

Supler, John M. (2267899) Near Waereghem, Belgium, Oct. 30,

R—Brawley, Calif. B—Greene County, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—St. George, Staten Island, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SUSTICK, EMANUEL (1698549)
In Boise-de-la-Naza, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Farmingdale, N. J. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

SUTHERLAND, FRANCIS S. (3206525).... In the St. Die sector, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R-Ensley, Ala. B-Canada. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*SUTHERLAND, JAMES (2448847)...... In the Ferest of Argonne, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Scotland. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

neulles, Oct. 27, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

SWAGGERTY, ALLIE (2381943)

At Madeleine Farm, France, Oct.
12, and near Clery-le-Petit, France,

Nov. 2, 1918.
R—Byington, Tenn.
B—Knox County, Tenn.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SWAIN, JACK R. (10391)_ Near Beaumont, France, June 19, 1918. R—Dallas, Tex. B—Chillicothe, Mo. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

SWAN, THOMAS E.

Between the Marne and Vcsle
Rivers, France, July 31 to Aug. 6, 1918. R—Saginaw, Mich. B—England.

G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Rockport, Ind. B—Rockport, Ind. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company I, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

The 316th Infantry, depleted in strength and numbers, attacked from the crest of Hill 378, advancing over the exposed northern siope in the face of terrific machine-gun and artillery fire. Halfway down the slope the thin line was held up by a rain of machine-gun fire from the read leading eastwardly through the Bois-de-la-Grande-Montagne to Reville. Private Suplee offered to subdue the fire, and while advancing single handed to the accomplishment of his mission received a wound from which he died a short while later.

Posthumously awarded. Medai presented to father, Howard R. Suplee.

Private, Company L, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
He received a severe shoulder wound, the same shell blowing the rifle to pieces in his hand. After receiving treatment he continued with the company, working under terrific pain, until ordered by his sergeant to report to the dressing station.

Sergeant, Company G, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

Although wounded by shellfire a few minutes before his company took up the advance, Sergeant Surdez led his platoon through 17 hours of shellfire and by his exceptional example during the advance and consolidation of the new positions encouraged his men to their full duty in action.

Sergeant, Company L, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

He volunteered to advance through thick brush subjected to a heavy machinegun fire to a point within a few yards of enemy emplacements in order to observe the effects of our trench mertars on machinegun nests. He made his observations successfully, though exposed alike to enemy fire and our Corporal, Company I, 321st Infantry, 81st Division.

During a heavy bembardment he maintained liaison between his combat group and his company commander, crossing completely unprotected ground under terrific barrage and supplying his group at the same time with muchneeded ammunition.

Sergeant, Company E, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.
Displaying exceptional devotion to duty and conspicuous courage, Sergeant Sutherland led his platoon up the steep slope of a ravine under murderous machine-gun fire in an attack on a scries of strong enemy machine-gun nests and in so doing was seriously wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to uncle, John Simpson.

First lieutenant, 22d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
On Sept. 28 Lieutenant Swaab, although himself pursued by 2 enemy planes, perceiving 1 of his comrades in distress and in danger of being shot down, dived upon the enemy plane which was directly behind that of his comrade and shot the enemy plane out of control, forcing it to withdraw. His prompt act in going to the assistance of his comrade enabled the latter to escape. On Oct. 27 Lieutenant Swaab and another member of his group engaged in combat with 7 enemy planes. In this encounter, although output percent. om of the state of the combat with 7 enemy planes. In this encounter, although outnumbered, Lieutenant Swaab continued in his attack and succeeded in shooting down an enemy D. F. W. observation plane.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
Being on duty with a platoen which was not to take part in the attack, he asked for and received permission to go over the top with the attacking companies. When the left flank was held up by several machine-gun nests, he alone cleaned out one of the nests, in addition to cleaning out many German machine gunners and snipers. Near Clery-le-Petit, on Nov. 2, this soldier again voluntarily accompanied attacking troops, crawling 300 yards under heavy fire and bringing down three machine gunners out of trees.

Private, first class, Section No. 647, Ambulance Service.

He went to the rescue of wounded men who were exposed to shellfire as a result of an accident to their ambulance. Being able to approach only to within 300 yards of the wrecked car on the road, he took a stretcher and crawled along a ditch to reach them. He then returned and recovered the body of a third man who had been killed in the accident.

Captain, chaplain, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

During the heavy fighting near the Ourcq River this officer was in the front lines at all times, under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire throughout the day and night, comforting and aiding the wounded. On one occasion he crossed a field 200 yards wide under violent shellfire to minister to 2 soldiers who had been mortally wounded. In the operations near Mont St. Martin he continually went back and forth over the crest of a hill during heavy artillery fire to care for the wounded.

Major, 7th Engineers, 5th Division. He demonstrated commendable judgment in locating the site of a pontoon bridge and personally supervising the construction of the bridge; although under constant shellfire, he remained in charge for 36 hours, insuring the complete success of the exploit and the crossing of the division east of the Meuse.

*SWANGER, IRA V. (2151933)_____At Marcheville, France, Nov. 10, 1918.

R—Persia, Iowa. B—Persia, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

SWANSON, ADOLPH (2850023)

Near Les Huit Chemins, France,
Sept. 29, 1918.

R.—Grant, Iowa.
B.—Sweden.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Swanson, Carl E. (2162063)_____ Near Brieulles, France, Oct. 9-12, 1918.

R—Grove City, Minn. B—Sweden. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SWANSON, CLAYTON E. (107398)
Near Mont Blanc, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Jamestown, N. Y. B—Jamestown, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1918.

SWARTS, RALPH E. Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, Oct. 3-9, 1918.

R—Arkansas City, Kans.

B—Arkansas City, Kans.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

SWEARINGEN, WILLIAM H. (3027210)_ EARINGEN, WILLIAM II. (2012/12/10)... Near Cote-de-Morimont, France, Oct. 26—Nov. 10, 1918. R.—Eldda, N. Mex. B.—Jasper County, Mo. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SWEENEY, BERNARD F., Jr. (1784950) __ Rear Brobant, France, Oct. 31, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Sweeney, Patrick (3292912)______ Near Abaucourt, France, Nov. 9, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

SWEENEY, THOMAS JOSEPH (89001)

Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SWEET, WALTER

Near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 25, 1918. R—Lowell, Mass. B—Lowell, Mass. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Swenson, Karl J.

Near Very, France, Sept. 28-Oct. 4, 1918, and near Audenarde, Belgium, Oct. 30-Nov. 3, 1918.

R.—Portland, Oreg.
B.—Assaria, Kans.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

*Swezey, Louis H. (1697965) In the Bois-de-la-Naza, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—Patchogue, N. Y. B—Patchogue, N. Y. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Company F, 130th Infantry, 33d Division.

After showing exceptional bravery and judgment in leading his squad against enemy machine-gun positions, he was mortally wounded. Realizing that he had no chance of recovery, he refused to permit stretcher bearers to take him to the rear, urging them to care for others whose condition was less serious. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Anna Rishel.

Private, Company I, 357th Infantry, 90th Division. He volunteered and aecempanied Chaplain D. Priest in going 600 yards beyond the front line and assisted him in carrying to safety a wounded man.

Private, Company K, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

While attempting to rescue a wounded officer who was lying exposed to terrific machine-gun fire, Private Swanson was killed. For 4 days before his death, in the performance of his duties as stretcher bearer, he rendered invaluable service in administering first aid to the wounded and carrying them to places of safety, working at all times under most perilous fire of artillery and machine guns.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Maria Swanson.

Corporal, Company A, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division.
On learning that a member of his squad was in front of the lines in a heavily shelled position, Corporal Swanson obtained permission to make a search, to find that the man was dead.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 23d Infantry, 2d Division. During the offensive operations of Oct. 3-9 he worked unceasingly in the most advanced stations in the divisional sector, dressing the wounded in the open under terrific machine-gun and shellfire. He took cover only when all wounded had been divested and proported. wounded had been dressed and evacuated.

Private, medical detachment, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.
Hearing a call for help, he went from cover to a position 300 yards distant, and in the face of incessant machine-gun and sniper fire gave first aid to a wounded comrade. He then provided some shelter for the wounded man and limself and remained until dark, at which time he returned to safety, carrying the Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.

On the night of Oct. 31 he made a dozen trips to repair telephone wire broken by the continuous shelling of the area. Early the next morning he was wounded while still in the performance of his duty.

Private, Company D, 322d Infantry, 81st Division. He voluntarily advanced through intense artillery and machine-gun fire into the ruins of Abancourt to locate an enemy machine-gun nest. He was killed by shellfire after having reached a position in the enemy's trenches. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Sweeney.

First sergeant, Company Λ, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
He courageously supervised the carrying of the wounded, his duties exposing him at all times to the continuous fire of the enemy. By his valor and strict devotion to duty all the wounded were safely evacuated.

Gunnery sergeant, 16th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

In the attack of June 25, after his company commander had been removed n the attack of June 25, after his company commander had been removed because of wounds, Sergeant Sweet reorganized the platoon and, leading them forward, rushed a strong enemy emplacement, capturing 2 guns and their crews. After having consolidated his position and established liaison, the enemy opened a harassing trench-mortar fire, during which his platoon suffered heavy casualties. He attacked the nest with the aid of hand grenades and put the gun out of action, killing 2 of the enemy and taking 5 prisoners, with whom he returned to his position.

Captain, Medical Corps, 316th Sanitary Train, 91st Division.
During the drive in the forest of Argonne ho established and maintained a dressing station at Very under almost constant aerial raids and severe shell-fire. During the operations between the Lys and Scheldt Rivers this officer repeatedly showed utter disregard for his own life, maintaining liaison between his own advanced dressing station and the battalion aid stations and searching for wounded on the battlefield while he was exposed to heavy fire from artillery, machine guns, and spipers.

Private, first class, Company G, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

After his company's line had been almost wiped out by enemy machine-gun fire Private Swezey displayed the highest courage and initiative in re-forming a defensive position and reorganizing the scattered groups of men who remained. In performing this important service he moved up and down the mained. In performing this important service he moved up and down the line, under heavy fire from enemy machine guns and trench mortars, in entire disregard for his own safety. This gallant soldler was killed while on a patrol next day Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Louis H. Swezey. SWIFT, HARRY (280257). Near Juvigny, France, Aug. 28, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*SWIFT, JOSEPH ... Near Epinonville, France, Sept. 27, 1918, and near Gesnes, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Safford, Ariz. B—State Center, Iowa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

R— Brentwood, Caif. B— Brentwood, Calif. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

*Swingle, Gray (158265) Near Bois-des-Tailloux, Mar. 28, 1918. R—Springfield, Ohio. B—Hicksville, Ohio. G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918. France, Nov. 2, 1918. R— Centralia, Wash. B— Reynoldsville, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

6, 1918. R— Passaic, N. J. B— Passaic, N. J. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

SYNOTT, PATRICK (1214545) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SYVERSON, GRANNIS I

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 3,1918. R--Minneapolis, Minn. B- White Rock, S. Dak. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—New York Mills, N. Y. B—Three Rivers, Mass. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

R—Sag Harbor, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

*Tabor, Ralph E. (1205416).... East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29,

R—Mechanicville, N. Y. B—Stillwater, N. Y. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1919.

TACK, ABRAHAM T. (540627) Near Hill 299, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R—Sodus, N. Y. B—Netherlands. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company G, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

He twice volunteered and carried messages across open fields swept by machine gun fire after other runners had been killed on similar missions. Returning from his second mission, he saw his company commander fall wounded. Passing through heavy machine-gun fire, he went to his rescue and administered first aid, being himself severely wounded.

First lieutenant, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.

After a machine gun company had in vain attempted for an hour to silence a machine gun which was causing heavy losses to his regiment, Lieutenant Swift, armed only with a pistol, advanced alone upon the enemy position. He killed the crew of 4 men, saving the lives of many of our men and readering a more rapid advance possible. In the attack on Gesnes, while making a during attempt to perform a similar act, Lieutenant Swift was killed by enemy fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, P. P. Swift.

Private, first class, Company B, 14th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. Private Swift, with another runner, received messages to be delivered at 2 different points near Nantillois. En route his companion was killed and Private Swift was severely wounded by enemy shellfire. In spite of his wound, he delivered both messages before submitting to evacuation for his wounds.

Sergeant, Company B, 6th Engineers, 3d Division.

The patrol came under hostile machine-gun fire and Sergeant Swingle was mortally wounded. He gave instructions to the patrol to return to their company commander and ordered them to leave him, as the patrol was under fire and would in all probability be wiped out. Died Mar. 28, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Burt S. Swingle.

Private, Company M, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Although severely wounded, he remained in the action during the offensive operations west of the Meuse, and after the sergeant in charge had been removed he took over his duties as commander of the battalion runners, faithfully performing the task despite his pain from his wounds.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supremo proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Mollie S. Reiley.

Corporal, Company F, 108th Infantry, 27th Division. He displayed exceptional bravery in leaving shelter and going forward under heavy machine-gun fire and bringing back several wounded soldiers.

Private, 66th Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

When our advance Infantry was forced to withdraw, Private Syverson's machine-gun crew refused to withdraw, but calmly set up their machine gun. The gun was upset by a bursting hand grenade, which also injured 2 members of the squad. Despite these injuries, they immediately reset the gun and opened fire on the advancing Germans when 20 feet distant, causing the Germans to break and retreat in disorder.

Private, Company M, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Private Szczepanik displayed remarkable daring in going out alone and locating the hiding places into which enemy soldiers had been driven by our barrage. Through his efforts about 150 Germans were captured before they had chance to come out from cover and man their machine guns. He was wounded while attempting to enter barracks in which several of the enemy had taken refuge.

Private, Company M, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
With a companion he determined the location of a machine gun which had checked the advance of his company, and, advancing ahead of the company, made a sudden rush from the flank, killed, wounded, or captured the entire crew and captured 4 machine guns.

Corporal, Company L, 105th Infantry, 27th Division. During the operations against the Hindenburg line, Corporal Tabor left shelter, went forward under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, and succeeded in bringing back to our lines a wounded soldier. His splendid courage and gallant conduct was a fine example to his comrades. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Nathaniel Tabor.

Private, first class, Company A, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.
Private Tack assumed command of a platoon after its officers had been wounded and led it to its objective. He advanced through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire for a distance of 800 meters and engaged in a hand-to-hand fight that resulted in the defeat of the enemy and the capture of 5 machine guns and 30 prisoners.

TALBOT, ARTHUR_________Near La Roux Farm, France, Oct. 18, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Lyme, Conn. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

R-Cincinnati, Ohio. B-Ripley, Ohio. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

*Tappen, James J. (1708342).... Near Binarville, France, Sept. 28,

R—Stapleton, N. Y. B—Stapleton, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Tarter, Charles M. (51354)
Near Vanx, France, July 1, 1918.
R—Chapman, Kans.
B—Columbia, Ky.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

TAUBERT, ALBERT A
In the Villers-Cotterets Forest, south of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R-Madison, Wis.
B-Madison, Wis.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

TAUGHER, CLAUDE BUCKLEY
At Bayonville, France, Nov. 2, 1918.
R-Wausau, Wis.
B-Wausau, Wis.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Tavano, Antonio J. (1273012) Near Verdun, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Dundee Lake, N. J. B—Croton-on-Hudson, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

TAVENNER, ROBERT L Near Cierges, France, Sept. 29, 1918, and near Olsene, Belgium, Oct. 31, 1918. R-Mount Vernon, Ohio. B-Springfield, Ohio. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

TAWATER, CARL (41245) Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Roscland, Tex.

B—Winchester, Tenn.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R-Rhinelander, Wis. B-Rhinelander, Wis. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

TAYLOR, EWING M.
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 5, 1918.
R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

TAYLOR, HERBERT S. (1459496)...At Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R-St. Louis, Mo. B-England. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919, *TAYLOR, JOHN L. Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Hustonville, Ky.

B—Casey County, Ky.
G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

Being unable to find a suitable target for the 37-millimeter gun of which he was in command, Lieutenant Talbot armed the men of his section with enemy rifles and led a daylight patrol in advance of the lines. He reconnoitered La Roux Farm, exposed to heavy machine-gun fire, and put 2 enemy machine guns out of action, thus enabling our line to advance 1,000 yards without carriew begger. serious losses.

Private, Headquarters Company, 147th Infantry, 37th Division. Volunteering to attempt the recovery of the barrel of a 37-millimeter gun aban-offunceting to attempt the recovery of the barrel of a 37-millimeter gun apartioned the previous day when the gun crew was gassed and when his battalion had retired to a more advantageous position, Private Tamme advanced alone in broad daylight and under observation of the enemy 200 yards in advance of his own lines under intense machine-gun fire, recovered the missing part and returned in safety to his own lines. His conduct was a splendid example of devotion to duty and proved an inspiration to the men of his battalion.

Private, first class, Company D, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
He pushed forward alone against several enemy snipers who were causing many casualties among his comrades. He killed 2 of the snipers, but was killed while attempting to capture the third sniper.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James Tappen.

Sergeaut, Company I, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

When his captain was wounded he went out under violent machine-gun fire to bring the officer to shelter and was severely wounded himself while performing this heroic act.

Private, 66th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He went out in advance of the line of his company into the fire of a machine gun that was shooting at him and captured the gun and its crew.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Lieutenant Taugher with great dash led his platoon in surrounding enemy dugouts in the village of Bayonville before the occupants had time to escape or organize effective resistance, capturing 61 of the enemy; although wounded in the ankle, he refused to be evacuated.

Sergeant, Company D, 111th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division.
He voluntarily left his cover during a heavy bombardment and brought a wounded officer to a place of safety after the litter bearers were killed. He gave all the assistance possible to these wounded men before they died.

aptain, 148th Infantry, 37th Division.

Captain, 148th Infantry, 37th Division.

Without regard for his own safety Captain Tavenner personally conducted a tank in an attack on a machine-gun nest. After several of the tanks had been put out of action and the others had withdrawn, he walked up and down the firing line under heavy machine-gun fire cheering his men, who despite severe losses, fought till all of their ammunition was exhausted. On Oct. 31, he was severely wounded while making a personal reconnaissance of the enemy's realtime. position.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Just as his platoon went over the top Sergeant Tawater and several other soldiers were wounded by a shell which exploded near them. After seeing that the other wounded men were properly cared for, he organized the rest of his platoon and rejoined his unit, remaining on duty all day with his Stokes mortar section in spite of a painful wound in the foot.

Second lieutenant, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.
He displayed marked heroism during the attack on Juvigny and when mortally wounded refused to be evacuated, but continued to advance and gave orders to continue the attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Arthur Taylor.

Major, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

He displayed marked personal bravery in engagements with the enemy at Cantigny and Soissons, in each of which he was wounded, and later, near Exermont, exhibited heroism and able leadership in advancing his machine guns under heavy fire, aiding the advance of the entire battalion, until he was himself severely wounded.

Mess sergeant, Company B, 138th Infantry, 35th Division. Sergeant Taylor, with a small detachment, volunteered to go to the assistance of several men of another company who, cut off from support, were being annihilated by enemy machine gunners and snipers. Pushing forward under fire, Sergeant Taylor alone crawled around to the rear of a building from which an intense fire was coming and returned with 18 prisoners.

Captain, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

Ite assumed command of his battalion upon the death of his major and continued to lead the advance under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, refusing to leave until he had been wounded 5 times. His example was an inspiration to all near him and an important factor in the successful attack made by his regiment.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Caroline Taylor.

TAYLOR, LOUIS II. (1903594).

Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 11, 1918.
R—Westfield, Mass.
B—Southwick, Mass.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

R-Upland, Ind. B-Eaton, Ind. G. O No. 21, W. D., 1919.

9, 1918.
R—Jonesboro, Tenn.
B—Jonesboro, Tenn.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

TAYLOR, THOMAS J Near the Cote-de-Chatillon, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

France, Sept. 26-Oct. 10, 1918. R-Rochester, N. Y. B-Rochester, N. Y. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

*TEACHEY, ROBERT MARSHALL (1319726) Near Ypres, Belgium, Aug. 2, 1918. R—Raleigh, N. C. B—Raleigh, N. C. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 326th Infantry, 82d Division. He repeatedly exposed himself to concentrated machine-gun and artillery fire, crossing the Aire River several times, and administered first aid to wounded men with complete disregard for his own safety.

Private, first class, Battery E, 42d Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps.

No other duties having been assigned to him, Private Taylor volunteered for service as a stretcher bearer, and, working all night under the heaviest shell-fire, he carried wounded American and French soldiers to safety. While taking a severely wounded soldier by automobile to a hospital, a shell hurst near him, wounding him, but he continued on his mission and delivered the wounded man to the aid station.

Sergeant, Company D, 318th Machine Gun Battalion, 81st Division. Displaying inspiring courage, Sergeant Taylor led his section through 3 heavy artilley barrages and directed the mounting of his guns on positions which he had personally reconnoitered under heavy machine-gun fire. At a critical juncture, when the Infantry was held up by enemy fire, he successfully led the nearest Infantry combat group forward in the assault, under cover of fire free his cover many. fire from his own guns.

Second lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
When all the other officers of his company had been incapacitated, Lieutenant Taylor took command and successfully led his men throughout the 5 days' operations, capturing a strongly held position with more than 100 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company H, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Upon learning that an advanced platoon was under heavy enemy machinegun fire from the front and flanks, Sergeant Taylor on his own initiative took a squad of men and an automatic rifle and went to the assistance of the platoon. a squard much and an anothance much and the assistance of the phaton. Despite the heavy fire, he succeeded in compelling the enemy to withdraw from their positions and thereby enabled the battalion to resume its advance. He was later wounded in the leg and arms in attempting to bring up reinforcements across an open space swept by machine-gun fire.

First lieutenant, 95th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

Accompanied by Lieutenant Hambleton, he answered an alert to Lironville and encountered 5 enemy planes in the vicinity of St. Mihiel. As they approached, the enemy turned away. Lieutenant Taylor and Lieutenant Hambleton followed and at Pont-a-Mousson again came up with them, flying, 1 at 1,500 meters, 2 at 2,000 meters, and the remaining 2 above at 2,500 meters. Lieutenant Hambleton attacked the lowest one, firing 20 rounds and forcing it from the formation, while Lieutenant Taylor remained above to protect him and to keep off the other enemy planes. An enemy bullet having shot the cross-section wires of Lieutenant Hambleton's plane away, the splinters from same cutting his cheek and right shoulder, he turned away, the splinters from same cutting his cheek and right shoulder, he turned from combat to ascertain damage to his plane. As the enemy plane was falling Lieutenant Taylor opened fire and immediately brought the German down.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William H. Taylor.

First lieutenant, 3d Balloon Squadron, Air Service.

On Sept. 26, while conducting an important observation, he was twice attacked by enemy planes. He would not jump from his balloon because of the valuable work he was doing for the Infantry, although he was at all times in danger of losing his life from incendiary bullets. On Oct. 3, near Montfancon, he was attacked but refused to leave until his balloon caught fire. Again on Oct. 6, he was attacked and forced down in his parachute. On Oct. 10, while he was conducting an important observation, an enemy hovered over his balloon; he refused to jump until attacked at close quarters. His heroic devotion to duty was an inspiration to the officers and men of his company.

First lieutenant, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Disregarding 2 wounds from shellfire, which he had suffered, Lieutenant Tayntor continued in the advance with his platoon, keeping his men well organized, directing the consolidation of the line throughout the night, and refusing medical attention until all the wounded men in his platoon had received treatment.

Private, Company B, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.

He volunteered to accompany an officer on a daylight patrol to destroy an enemy pill box. With great courage under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, they rushed the pill box, killed or wounded the occupants, and accomplished their mission. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J. H. Teachey.

Private, Company B, 116th Infantry, 29th Division. With 4 other soldiers he attacked 8 German machine guns, capturing them and their crews in spite of determined resistance by the enemy.

First lieutenant, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.
Severely wounded in the back about 11 a.m., Lieutenant Teer continued to command his platoon until 4 p.m., when he was forced to withdraw from action on account of complete exhaustion.

TEEVAN, JOHN (89705)..... Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 31, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Teichler, John (263816)
At Hill 212, near Cierges, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 31, 1918. R—Menominee, Mich. B—Menominee, Mich. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

*Teiseth, Jacob B. (2291197) _____ At Claire-Chenes Woods, France, Oct. 20, 1918. R—Stanwood, Wash. B—Norway. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

TELFAIR, SAMUEL F ... At Brieulles, France, Nov. 4, 1918. R—Raleigh, N. C. B—Raleigh, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

TEMPLE, JOHN H. (1736172)

Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 23, R—Marshallton, Del. B—Newark, Del. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Templeton, Charles K.
Near Nouart, France, Nov. 5, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Superior, Nebr.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

TEN EYCK, WALTON B., Jr. Near Briquenay, France, Oct. 27, 1918. R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*TENLEY, EUGENE H.....

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R-Willcox, Ariz. B-Quanah, Tex. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*TENNYSON, JOSEPH E. (1284045). Near Verdun, France, Oct. 8-24, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md.
B—Baltimore, Md.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

TERNIG, JACOB B. (1389369)

Near Bois-des-Forges, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Luxembourg. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

TERRELL, ALEXANDER W.
Near Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918.
R.—Fort Worth, Tex.
B.—Booneville, Mo.
G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

*Terrell, Hubert P. (1311740) _____ Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. Near Vaux-Andigny, France, 12, 1918. R—Cheraw, S. C. B—Chesterfield County, S. C G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company C, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After his platoon had withdrawn from their position he volunteered and returned to the position formerly occupied in an attempt to reseue a wounded comrade. He crossed a field swept by unusually intensive machine-gun fire, continuing in his attempted rescue until himself wounded.

Sergeant, Company L, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

Sergeant, Company L, 123th mantry, 32d Division.

Although he was himself severely wounded in the attack on the Bois-lesJamblets, yet he attempted to carry in another wounded man, passing through severe machine-gun fire from the front and from the flanks. While doing so he received a second wound, which caused his death.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Edward A. Teichler.

Private, medical detachment, 6th Engineers, 3d Division.
He advanced in the attack with the company to which he was attached and worked constantly under heavy machine-gun and rifle fire searching for wounded and superintending their evacuation. While engaged in this work in the open under machine-gun fire, he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Anna Teiseth.

Second lieutenant, 2d Antiaircraft Machine Gun Battalion He was leading a patrol to reconnoiter a position for antiaireraft machine guns when his group became scattered by intense shellfire. Upon returning to the shell-swept area to look for his patrol he found 1 of the men severely wounded. Making 2 trips through the heavy shellfire he secured the assistance of Private Laurel B. Heath and carried the wounded soldier to safety.

Private, Company I, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.

After his platoon had reached its objective and was forced to retire under perilous machine-gun fire, Private Temple and 2 companions were surrounded by the enemy. His companions were wounded, but he bravely held off the enemy, after which he assisted both his companions to a first-aid cettier. station.

Second lieutenant, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division.

After telephone communications had been destroyed and his runners scattered on other missions, Licutenant Templeton started on a mission of extreme importance from the Infantry to the Artillery. His path lay through a heavy machine-gun and shell fire, and before he reached his destination he was seriously wounded. He succeeded, however, in relaying his message to its destination.

Second licutenant, pilot, 96th Acro Squadron, Air Service.
While engaged on a voluntary bombing mission he was attacked by 7 enemy planes (Fokker type). Although seriously wounded, he maneuvered his plane so skillfully that his observer was able to drive off the enemy planes. In the combat his plane was struck by 25 enemy bullets, some of which exploded the magazines of the observer's guns. In spite of his wounds and the damage to his machine he succeeded in landing safely on a strange field.

Hospital apprentice, first class, U. S. Navy, attached to 49th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Disregarding his own safety, he voluntarily accompanied a small force into action, rendering most valuable treatment to the wounded until killed by a fragment of a shell.

Pesthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Samuel W. Tenley.

Corporal, Company B, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

In several advances during this period Corporal Tennyson led his squad in attacks on machine-gun nests with conspicuous gallantry, always disregarding his own safety and encouraging his men both by words and actions. On Oct. 24, while leading his squad in an attack on a machine-gun nest, he was instantly killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Gertrude Tennyson.

Sergeant, Company C, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

He had just captured and was taking to his platoon commander a German captain, when fire was opened on his platoon from 3 concealed machine guns. Showing great bravery and presence of mind, Sergeant Ternig, who speaks German, ran toward the enemy emplacements, taking his prisoner with him, and called upon the crews to cease firing. Firing stopped and his platoon was enabled to take the enemy position and 30 prisoners without loss.

Second lieutenant, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.
He showed unusual courage in assisting to direct the operations of Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, near Pesonne, France, on Mar. 5, 1918, when that organization was under particularly accurate artillery bombardment. Although wounded himself, he refused first aid and continued on duty until all of the wounded soldiers of the command had been treated.

Corporal, Company I, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

During an advance, when his company came under an enfilading fire from an enemy machine gun, he asked permission from his platoon commander to attempt the taking of the position. Although under heavy fire from this post and from trench-mortar shells, he, with exceptional dash and bravery, attacked the position alone, putting it out of action, killing 2 of the enemy and wounding a third. This soldier was killed the same day while reorganizing and advancing the weakened platoon of which he was then in charge. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Clarence Terrell. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Clarence Terrell.

TERRILL, ELSWORTH O. (1277360) In the vicinity of Hagenbach, Alsace, east of Belfort, France, Aug. 21, 1918.

R-Rahway, N. J. B-Rahway, N. J. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

TERRY, MILO E. Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 26 to 30, 1918.

R-Van Wert, Ohio, B-Van Wert, Ohio, G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Teske, Amos (96367)________Near Ancerviller, France, Mar. 4, 1918.

R—Coal Valley, Ala. B—Cardiff, Ala. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

THACHER, ARCHIBALD G.
At St. Juvin, France, Oct. 14, 1918.
R-New York, N. Y.
B-Boston, Mass.
G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

THACKER, EDGAR (57952)
Near Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918.

R-Vanceburg, Ky. B-Vanceburg, Ky. G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

R—Menasha, V B—Aurora, Ill. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

*THARAU, HERMAN_____

Near Vierzy, France, July 18, 1918. R—Buffalo, N. Y. B—Germany. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

* THARP, LEWIS M... North of Charpentry, France, Sept. 27 and 28, 1918.

R-Winfield, Kans. B-Melrose, Kans. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

THAW, WILLIAM Near Reims, France, Mar. 26, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

THAYER, SIDNEY, Jr.
Near Beaumont, France, Nov. 11, 1918.

R—Haverford, Pa. B—Marion, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

THEBAUD, DELPHIN E .. Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Philippine Islands. B—Alameda, Calif. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

Corporal, Company II, 113th Infantry, 29th Division. When his right hand and arm were badly mangled by the explosion of a grenade during an enemy raid into our lines, he placed his injured hand in his trousers pocket to support it, went over the top with his comrades, and joined in the pursuit of the defeated and retreating Germans, throwing hand grenades with his left hand as he followed them back to their own lines.

Captain, 145th Infantry, 37th Division.

Although severely wounded while leading his company in the assault, he rethough severely wounded while leading his company in the assault, he re-fused to be evacuated and courageously continued in command of his com-pany for 4 days in action under heavy fire of all arms and constantly in contact with the enemy. On Sept. 30 he was again severely wounded, but remained with his company until evacuated in a delicious condition after the company's relief had been completed. By his intrepid conduct and disregard of personal danger he inspired the men of his company and contributed greatly to the success of the operation.

Corporal, Company D, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.
He was a member of a patrol of 5 men on Mar. 4, 1918, near Ancerviller, France, and took a conspicuous part when it encountered an enemy patrol of 11 men, which it attacked and routed, taking 2 prisoners.

Major, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.
While commanding the 2d Battalion in a flank march across the Aire River, Major Thacher, acting with the greatest gallantry and with utter disregard for his own safety, personally made a reconnaissance in the face of heavy hostile machine-gun and shell fire, well in advance of his battalion, thereby saving his command from heavy losses. It was due to his thorough reconnaissance that his subsequent successful attack on this strong hostile position was consummated.

Private, first class, Company H, 28th Infantry, 1st Division. He displayed distinguished conduct as a company runner, passing frequently through Cantigny when it was being heavily shelled and also running through German barrages to deliver messages.

Sergeant, Company I, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
He displayed unusual courage and gallantry in leading his platoon forward under heavy fire from artillery and machine guns. He also gave first aid to the wounded while under fire, and when a retirement was ordered he remained behind to carry back the wounded.

Gunnery sergeant, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

While out with a reconnoitering party to establish liaison with the company on his right Sergeant Tharau captured a machine gun and killed the crew. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Annie Tharau.

First lieutenant, 140th Infantry, 35th Division.
Lieutenant Tharp repeatedly exposed himself to heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun fire in order to maintain communication between company and battalion headquarters.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Walter P. Tharp.

Major, 103d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
He was the leader of a patrol of 3 planes which attacked 5 enemy monoplanes and 3 battle planes. He and another member of the patrol brought down I enemy plane and the 3 drove down, out of control, 2 others, and dispersed the remainder.

Oak-leaf cluster.

A bronze oak leaf is awarded Major Thaw for extraordinary heroism in action near Montaigne, France, Apr. 20, 1918. In the region of Montaigne he attacked and brought down, burning, an enemy balloon. While returning to his own lines the same day, he attacked 2 enemy monoplanes, I of which he shot down in flames.

First lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

After having been wounded he remained with his company until its objective had been reached, refusing evacuation until rendered unconscious by loss of blood.

Captain, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

After the successful attack on 1fill 253, Captain Thebaud was directed to establish liaison with the 30th Infantry. Three runners were sent out, but each returned, stating that it was impossible to reach the 30th Infantry, due to the intensity of enemy fire. Captain Thebaud turned over the command of his company and fearlessly exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire to accomplish the mission. After having proceeded about 300 yards he fell, severely wounded by machine-gun fire. His conduct had a marked effect upon the morale of his men.

THEBERT, WILLIAM F. (51702)

Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France,
Oct. 3-9, 1918.

R-Fort Covington, N. Y.
B-Fort Covington, N. Y.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R—Perry, Okla. B—St. Joseph, Md. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

THEOBALD, CARL G. (2257163).

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 10, 1918.

R—Hinckley, Utah.
B—Hinckley, Utah.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

18-23, 1918. R—Lawrence, Mass. B—Canada. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

*THOETE, CARL G. (155883) _ (1938)
At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918.
R—Santa Barbara, Calif.
B—Lockland, Ohio.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

THOMAS, CARR M. (128384)... Near Chateau-Thierry, July 21-23, 1918. France, R-New Roehelle, N. Y. B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Latimore, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

9, 1918. R—Avoca, Pa. B—Taylor, Pa. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

B-Edgar County, Ill. G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

FRANK B (1201207)Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

THOMAS, FRED. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Hundred, W. Va. B—Hundred, W. Va. G. O. No. 41, W. D., 1919

Private, first class, Company K, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
Acting as battalion runner, Private Thehert carried messages through intense artillery and machine-gun fire. This soldier had been on duty as a runner since June 6, being entrusted with especially important messages because of his fearlessness and reliability.

Sergeant, Company E, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
When his company had been stopped by heavy enemy machine-gun fire, Sergeant Thedinger left shelter for the purpose of interviewing 2 German prisoners. Learning from them the location and strength of the enemy's position, he obtained permission to attack it, and, with a party of 10 vol-unteers, went forward in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, flanking the machine-gun nest, and capturing 40 prisoners and 3 machine guns.

Corporal, 1st Battalion, Intelligence Section, 361st Infantry, 91st Division. While on a liaison patrol, Corporal Theobald and Pvt. Ivan Y. Bailey attacked and captured a hostile machine-gun nest and its entire erew.

Mechanic, Company L, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
During the early part of the action he assisted in the evacuation of wounded under severe artillery and machine-gnn fire. When a wound in the arm made it impossible for him to carry stretchers, he refused to be evacuated, but rejoined his company, went over the top with his comrades, and continued in action with them until wounded in the leg.

Sergeant, first class, Company D, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
Although twice wounded early in the attack at Centigny, France, May 28, 1918, he went over the top with his section and courageously directed its operations for 5 hours under steady fire, refused medical treatment, and led a second advance until killed by a machine-gun bullet.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Leona Thoete Ott.

Sergeant, Battery A, 12th Field Artillery, 2d Division.

With another soldier, Sergeant Thomas voluntarily crossed an area swept by shell and machine-gun fire to establish liaison with the infantry, obtaining valuable information for the battery commander. Two days later, after working in an observatory under constant shellfire, this soldier was wounded, but he refused first aid until other men had been cared for, and went to the recovered upon being sedged to do so the soldier was wounded. rear only upon being ordered to do so.

Private, Company D, 311th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th Division. He was detailed as a runner between the battalion commander and his company. While delivering messages he was severely wounded, but continued in the performance of his duty, refusing aid, until ordered to the rear by his battalion commander.

Corporal, Company A, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
Upon 2 occasions Corporal Thomas, upon his own initiative, went out in advance of his platoon, armed only with a rifle, and attacked machine guns which were endangering his company by enfilleding fire. In the face of fire from these guns he continued to fire on them until he had killed the gunners.

Bugler, Company I, 23d Infantry, 2d Division. Attempting to bring to shelter his captain, who was lying wounded and exposed to fire, near Vaux, France, July 1, 1918, he was himself killed, thereby sacrificing his life in an effort to rescue his commanding officer.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Samuel B. Thomas.

Private, first class, Company C, 102d Field Signal Battalion, 27th Division. When the telephone lines had been destroyed by the advancing tanks, and the enemy had started a counterattack from 3 sides before new ones could be laid, Private Thomas volunteered to carry a message from the Infantry battalion to which he was attached and succeeded in going through intense artillery, machine-gun, and sniper fire to regimental headquarters, delivering the message in time to enable reinforcements to be brought up.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
While endeavoring to reestablish a large company front which had become disconnected, Lieutenant Thomas encountered a large number of the enemy filtering through our lines. By strategic maneuvers he formed a strong resistance, causing heavy casualties on the enemy and forcing their retreat after he himself had been seriously wounded. Oak-leaf cluster

Oak-leaf cluster.

Lieutenant Thomas is also awarded an oak-leaf cluster for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Chateau-Thierry, France, June 25, 1918: He commanded the left flank platoon of his company, which was subjected to heavy fire from enemy machine guns and trench mortars. When further advance in the face of the fire hecame impossible, he went forward alone, located the machine-gun positions, and then organized a flank attack on the emplacements, putting out of action 4 guns, 10 which he himself captured. In this exploit his command suffered 40 per cent casualties and captured 21 prisoners. Reforming the remnants of his platoon, he moved forward through the eremy's barrage and to his objective, which he consolidated and held in the face of 3 counterattacks in 5 hours.

Near Vievine-en-Haye, Fla 1, 1918. R—Cosby, Mo. B—Cosby, Mo. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

THOMAS, JOHN (3105811)______ Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R-Philadelphia, Pa.

B—Greece. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

1918. R—Kershaw, S. C. B—Union County, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Oct. 15, 1918. R—New York, N. Y.

B-Greece. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Thomas, William (1717272) Near Chevieres, France, Oct. 13, 1918. R—Yonkers, N. Y. B—South Wales. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*THOMPSON, CECIL E. (2267689) ... Near Eclisfontaine, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Fellows, Calif. B—Sacramento, Calif. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

THOMPSON, CHARLES W. (1979177).... Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Lynnville, Ind. B—Warrick County, Ind. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

THOMPSON, CLARENCE W. (1039036)... Near Greves Farm, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Van Norman, Mont. B—Belmont, Ohio. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Troy, Ohio. B-Troy, Ohio. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

THOMPSON, EDWARD N. (1204944)...... Near Mount Kemmel, Belgium, Aug. 31, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

THOMPSON, EMMETT (1403376)_ Mont-de-Sanges, France, Sept. 20 to Oct. 1, 1918.

R—Quincy, Ill.

B—La Belle, Mo.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 17th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

When the 10 planes of his group were attacked by a superior number of the enemy, Lieutenant Thomas refused to seek safety in llight, but attacked a superior number of the enemy in order to assist another member of his squadron to escape. In the performance of this act he was shot down and killed by the enemy.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Rupert B. Thomas

Private, Company C, 21st Machine Gun Battalion, 7th Division. Private Thomas acted as a runner during offensive operations and under severest enemy barrages, carrying messages to and from the front lines.

Private, Company F, 316th Infantry, 79th Division. Under terrific enemy fire he advanced alone to the enemy lines and silenced an enemy machine gun, driving the enemy crew to flight. His hravery and devotion to duty enabled the Infantry to resume the advance against the enemy forces with a minimum of losses. His conduct greatly inspired the men with whom he served.

Corporal, Company M, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

After being twice wounded he continued to advance with his automatic-rifle squad, leading his men 100 yards under extremely heavy fire.

Sergeant, Company B, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Sergeant Thomas, after all his officers and first sergeant had become casualties, took command of his company, led them forward under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and retained complete control of the company, although suffering heavy casualties and under trying conditions, until relieved at the close of the day.

Sergeant, Company D, 302d Engineers, 77th Division.

He accompanied an officer on a reconnaissance, searching for possible locations for crossing the Aire River. They crossed open ground subject to shellfire and under direct observation of the enemy. On reaching the river they were exposed to machine-gun and sniper's fire. Both he and the officer failed to return, and their bodies were afterwards discovered in the Aire River, where they had fallen after being killed or wounded by enemy fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to uncle, Thomas Price.

Private, Company K, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.
Engaged on scouting duty, Private Thompson went forward on his own initiative, and located the position of the enemy on our front. After an all-night exploit, he returned with his information. Without rest, he went out in the morning and localted a troublesome machine-gun nest.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles Thompson.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
When his machine gun position on the flank of the line became untenable, he crawled 20 yards in front of the position and opened fire with his rifle, covering the withdrawal of the crew and thereby saving both gun and crew from capture.

Sergeant, Battery F, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.
Responding to a call for volunteers, Sergeant Thompson, with 8 other soldiers, manned 2 guns of a French battery which had been deserted by the French during the unprecedented fire, after many casualties had been inflicted on their forces. For 2 hours he remained at his post and poured an effective fire into the ranks of the enemy.

Sergeant, Company C, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.
Seeing an ignited hand grenade in the midst of his platoon, Sergeant Thompson without hesitation seized the grenade and attempted to throw it from the ditch. When leaving his hand the grenade exploded, seriously wounding him, but his act saved the lives of many of his men.

First sergeant, Company I, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
When the 2 platoons commanded by him met with heavy machine-gun fire, Sergeant Thompson placed his men under cover, and, single-handed, went forward to recomnoiter his objective in the face of heavy shell and machinegun fire.

Corporal, Company L, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.

After others had failed, Corporal Thompson volunteered and took charge of a detail to secure rations. He succeeded in this mission under very dangerous and trying conditions, and, notwithstanding the fact that his detachment suffered numerous casualties, he remained on this duty and continued to supply the company with rations until completely exhausted,

THOMPSON, GEORGE M. (1249878)..... Near Montblainville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Springdale, Pa.

B—Springdale, Pa.

G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

THOMPSON, GEORGE RICHARD....

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, R-Forest Glen, Md. B-Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

3, 1918. R-Columbia, S. C. B-Athol, Mass. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

THOMPSON, JOHN W. (1244631)

Near Le Grande Savart, west
Fismette, France, Aug. 10, 1918. west of R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

THOMPSON, JOHN WILLIAM Near Blanc Mont Ridge, France, Oct. 4, 1918.

R—Middlebury, Vt.

B—Middlebury, Vt.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*Thompson, John W., Jr. (1315445)___ Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Mount Pleasant, Tenn. B-Mount Pleasant, Tenn. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*THOMPSON, LAWRENCE E. (42873)_ Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
R—Minden, W. Va.
B—MeDowell County, W. Va.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Thompson, Orrie (279707)...

In the woods north of Cierges, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, Aug. 1, 1918.

R.—Kalamazoo, Mich.
B.—Bangor, Mich.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

Private, headquarters 2d Battalion, 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division. For 5 hours after he had been severely wounded in the arm Private Thompson maintained liaison between the Infantry and supporting Artillery, repeatedly carrying messages through the terrific fire and, being the only means of communication, greatly aided in the success of the attack. He went to the rear only when ordered to do so by his commanding officer.

First lieutenant, 105th Field Signal Battalion, attached to 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

with another officer and 24 soldiers, he was proceeding to the front line to establish an advance message center, when the detachment was caught in the enemy's counterbarrage. Although seriously wounded himself, he assisted in dressing the wounds of his men and then continued the work of establishing communication until he was forced to be evacuated 2 hours later.

Captain, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

Although painfully wounded, Captain Thompson led his battalion to the outskirts of Vaux-en-Dieulet, the advance being without artillery support and accomplished only by effective rile fire. This officer himself set an example for his men by killing with a rifle 2 German machine gunners at a distance of 500 yards. He was again seriously wounded after reaching the objective while making dispositions for defense against counterattacks.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Eleanor Thompson.

First sergeant, Company G, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
He showed remarkable bravery and disregard of personal danger when with 2 other soldiers he attacked a German machine gun, killed the crew, and then with deadly effect turned the gun upon other machine guns and hostile infantry which were in position near by. The crews of all the other German machine guns were killed, 10 machine guns were captured, and the way cleared for the further advance of the American forces.

Private, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. After locating a machine-gun nest, he destroyed 1 of the guns and returned to our lines with valuable information concerning the location of the nest.

Corporal, Company E, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
With another soldier, Corporal Thompson rushed a hostile machine gun which was firing on his company and killed 2 of the encemy. He then continued to advance close behind the barrage and displayed great hravery in the attack. Shortly before the company's objective was reached he was severely wounded and has since died of his wounds.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J. W. Thompson.

Corporal, Company F, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

In order to ascertain the location of a machine-gun which was inflicting heavy losses upon his platoon, he unhesitatingly went forward and was killed in the performance of this courageous duty. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, P. H. Thompson.

First lieutenant, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

In the course of a successful advance in which 10 of the enemy had been captured, Lieutenant Thompson was severely wounded in the head by a shell fragment, but after regaining consciousness he refused assistance and carefully transmitted all orders and information to the second in command.

The whole was weak from leave the large of bleed, he want to the result united. It ships Though he was weak from loss of blood, he went to the rear unaided, taking with him 10 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company C, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.

After his company had entered the woods north of Cierges he and another soldier maneuvered around a machine gun, which was causing many casualties in the company, and reached a shell hole after crossing an open space that was swept by hostile fire. From here they killed the crew of the machine gun, captured the gun, and turned it on the enemy.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Eliza Thompson.

Second licutenant, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service. While acting as observer of a flight of 3 airplanes they were attacked by a flight of 15 enemy airplanes. Despite the fact that his formation was surrounded of 15 enemy airplanes. Despite the fact that his formation was surrounded by overwhelming numbers of the enemy, he continued his mission and bombed his objective. In the fight which followed Lieutenant Thompson and his pilot fought gallantly, thus enabling another airplane of the flight to return with valuable information of the enemy. In this fight Lieutenant Thompson's airplane was shot down and both he and his pilot were killed when their airplane crashed to the ground.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles E. Thompson.

Private, Company F, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Under intense machine-gun fire during a counterattack following a heavy artillery barrage, Private Thompson, with another soldier, checked the attack for a considerable distance, killing 10 of the enemy, including 2 officers, and keeping off the hostile party with his pistol while loading his rifle with his other hand.

R—Opportunity, Mont. B—Denmark. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Thompson, William Darius.
Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Port Huron, Mich.
B—Midland, Mich.
G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

THOMSON, HAROLD (97836). Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Oct. 16, 1918.

R-St. Anthony, Idaho. B-Salt Lake City, Utah. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

THOMSON, JAMES C. (71608)... Near Bouresches, France, July 20, 1918.

R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Scotland. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

THORF, ABRAHAM (2256896) _ Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Rexburg, Idaho. B—Russia. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

THORNBURG, ZEBULON B. Near Montbrehain, France, Oct. 8-16, 1918. R—Concord, N. C. B—Cabarrus County, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*THORNE, CHARLES E. (139552)______ Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Pierre, S. Dak. B—Omaha, Nebr. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

THORNGATE, GEORGE. Near Romagne, France, Oct. 14–15, 1918.

R—Milton, Wis.

B—North Loup, Nebr.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

THORNHILL, WALTER P. (68634)

Near Bois-de-St. Remy, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—Fairfield, Me.

B—Newfoundland.

G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

Thornley, James R. (64014).

In the Seicheprey engagement,
France, Apr. 20, 1918.
R—Fall River, Mass.
B—Fall River, Mass.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

THORNTON, JOSEPH (737074)

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Glencoe, Ohio. B—Brookside, Ohio. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

THORNTON, ROBERT M. (97692)......
Northeast of Chateau-Thierry,
France, July 26, 1918.
R—Central, Ala.
B—Elmore County, Ala.
G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1918.

Corporal, Company C, 2d Field Signal Battalion, 1st Division. He voluntarily went forward in the face of a most destructive hombardment and kept in repair the telephone line connecting the Infantry and Artillery, thereby assuring the close cooperation between these 2 elements.

Captain, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
By skillfully employing his machine guns he silenced the fire of hostile guns which were holding up the progress of the Infantry. He also led an attack on several nests, with the aid of tanks, and when his objective was reached and his guns placed he returned through the heavy barrage and brought up a platoon of Infantry which had been lost.

Private, Company A, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

On duty as suiper of the assaulting battalion, he assisted a runner who had been mortally wounded, relieved him of his message, and although mortally wounded himself delivered the dispatch to his company commander, dying shortly thereafter. His heroic conduct was an inspiration to his regiment.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Annie Thompson.

Corporal, Company I, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

With 4 other soldiers, Corporal Thomson pushed out on the right flank of his company and by well-directed fire gained fire superiority for our forces, captured 8 of the enemy, including an officer, and drove off a large number of others. His skillful leadership was of material assistance in facilitating the advance of the platoon.

Private, Company C, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.

When wounded in the right arm he refused to be relieved from duty and continued the operation of his automatic rifle with his left hand. Later he volunteered to act as runner, and continued this duty until he fell exhausted.

Supply sergeant, Company B, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

Although badly wounded, he crawled 500 meters under heavy shellfire to deliver important papers to his company commander.

First lieutenant, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Although he was severely wounded on Oct. 8 to such an extent that eating was impossible, he remained as second in command until the night of Oct. 16, when he was again wounded during an advance by his company.

Private, first class, Battery C, 147th Field Artillery.
While on duty with his battery as a lineman, Private Thorne saw a soldier fail wounded by shell fragments. Leaving his shelter, he went through concentrated shellfire to the assistance of the wounded soldier, and in endeavoring to rescue him was himself killed by the explosion of a shell.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Al Thorne.

First lieutenant, 6th Infantry, 2d Division.

Being seriously wounded, Lieutenant Thorngate displayed marked devotion to duty by refusing to go to the rear and remaining in command of his company until next day.

Corporal, Company II, 103d Infantry, 26th Division. Advancing alone and under fire, he captured a machine gun and 8 prisoners.

Corporal, Company C, 102d Infantry, 26th Division. Wounded early in the Seicheprey engagement on the morning of Apr. 20, 1918, he displayed great gallantry and devotion to duty in continuing to urge his men to defend their positions, aiding greatly in the defense of same by climbing a tree and from there shouting out directions as to the enemy's location.

Private, Company L, 11th Infantry, 5th Division. By the effective use of an automatic rifle, he advanced without aid on the intrenched position of the enemy, forcing their surrender, despite severe wounds. He continued to advance and assisted in locating and routing other machinegun nests.

Corporal, Company I, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

After being wounded, he remained in command of his squad and continued to direct the fire of their 2 automatic rifles for more than 2 hours and until he had been wounded 3 more times.

*Thorsen, Edwin B. Near Roncheres, France, July 3, 1918.

R—Ashland, Wis. B—Ashland, Wis. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

THRALL, HARRY (262324) ___ Near Fismes, France, Aug. 8, 1918. R—Dunningville, Mich. B—Dunningville, Mich. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*THRASHER, DANA BRISTOL....

Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—New Haven, Conn. G. O. No. 22, W. D.. 1920.

1918. R—Crossville, Tenn. B—Evansville, Tenn. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

TICKNER, ARTHUR J. (40226) Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Syracuse, N. Y. B—Syracuse, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*Tieman, Frederick A. (1211399).... Near Bony, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Jersey City, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

1918. R—Corona, Ala. B—Alabama. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Old Church, Va. B—Old Church, Va. G O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1n the Bois-de-Bencau, Fra 6 and 8, 1918. R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Kenton, Tenn. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

TILGHMAN, CHARLES H.
Near Nantillois, France, Sept. 28,
1918. R—Easton, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Knoxville, Tenn. B-Inskip, Tenn. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

econd lieutenant, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.

Wounded in the abdomen by a machine-gun bullet, he continued to lead his men in the advance for 100 yards, until he fell from loss of blood, dying later from his wound. His example was an inspiration to his men.

Postlumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Bertha Thorsen.

Private, Company E, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
Private Thrall was called upon to carry a message to battalion headquarters.
This necessitated his passing through an intense artillery barrage. He was severely wounded in the leg by shrapnel. In spite of his wound he struggled on, refusing first aid until the message was delivered.

Private, Headquarters Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Private Thrasher carried numerous messages to front-line platoons, crossing and recrossing areas swept by severe machine-gun and artillery fire. When wounded, he refused medical attention, directing those who came to his assistance to leave him and go forward.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Samuel P. Thrasher.

Sergeant, Company H, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
When all the officers of his company had become casualties, he reorganized the company, extricated it from a dangerous position, and with coolness and courage led the command forward throughout the day. With a few other men he faced heavy machine gun and grenade fire to charge an enemy emplacement.

Private, Company F, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
Although twice wounded, he continued to direct the fire of an automatic rifle squad, after which he led them forward, engaging in a hand-to-hand encounter with the enemy until he dropped from less of blood.

Corporal, Company I, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After his company commander had been wounded and he himself had been shot through the wrist, he assisted the captain to walk forward in the attack. During the advance a shell burst near by and took off the leg of his company commander and again wounded the corporal, who, in spite of his injuries, forced 5 Germans to carry his captain more than 4 kilometers to an aid station, thereby saving his live.

Private, Company H, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

During the attack against the Hindenburg line, when he became separated from from his squad, with utter disregard for his personal safety Private Tieman fearlessly operated a Lewis machine gun, inflicting heavy losses upon the enemy. Later, when it was possible for him to rejoin his company, he assisted in rallying the men to further efforts and aided materially in the victory that was ultimately won. His splendid courage and gallant conduct were an inspiration to all his comrades.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Esther C. Merritt.

Private, Company D, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
He showed exceptional courage when he left his trench in order to obtain a better field of fire for his automotic rifle. He operated the rifle to good advantage until both hands were broken and the gun disabled by a shell fragment. He continued with his company for 2 days after receiving this wound.

Private, Company D, 318th Infantry, 80th Division.
Acting as a scout he repeatedly went forward and by calling and making noises drew machine-gun fire upon himself in order to locate machine-gun nests, which were subsequently put out of action.

Corporal, 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Howard Childs, Joseph A. Dargis, and Alten Benjamin Tilghman, corporals, and Herman L. McLeod, private, Company K, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps. These 4 men were prominent in the attack on enemy machinegun positions in the Bois-de-Belleau on June 6 and 8, 1918, were foremost in their company at all times, and acquitted themselves with such distinction that they were an example for the remainder of their command.

Captain, 315th Infantry, 79th Division. Captain, stoth mentry, 79th Division.

After having been wounded in the head by a piece of high-explosive shell, which slightly fractured his skull and rendered one eye useless, Captain Tilghman insisted on remaining with his command. Throughout the night of constant rain and continual gas attacks, he encouraged his demoralized troops, remaining with them until evacuated on the following morning.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
On Oct. 8, near Monthrebain, although wounded, he took charge of a platoon whose leader had become a casualty, leading it in the advance until he received another wound, which later proved fatal.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, R. M. Tillery.

TILLMAN, FRED A.....

West of Reims, France, June 26, 1918. R—Fayetteville, Ark. B—Fayetteville, Ark. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Timnlin, Archie (2163514)

Near Butgneville, France, Nov. 11, 1918.

R-Blackduck, Minn. B-Barren, Minn. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

6, 1918. R—Leonia, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

TIMOTHY, JAMES S.....

Chateau-Thierry, France, Near June 1-15, 1918. R—Highland Falls, N. Y. B—Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

TINSLEY, WILLIAM S. (2216380). At Apremont, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Britton, Okla. B—Saginaw, Tex. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—St. Louis, Mo. B—St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

TOBIN, RICHARD J. (915468)
At Clery-le-Grand, France, Nov. 1,
2, and 10, 1918.
R—Baltimore, Md.
B—Leavenworth, Kans.
G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

TOBLINI, ANDY (242303)

Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct.
3, 1918.

R—Colver, Pa.
B—Italy.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

TODD, ELMER (105438)... South of Soissons, France, July 20, 1918

R—Tulsa, Okla. B—Tulsa, Okla. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

Second lieutenant, Field Artillery, attached to 260th Squadron, French Air Service.

He aroused the admiration of all the French first-line infantrymen when making le aroused the admiration of all the French inst-line linearity line in west of Refims, France, June 26, 1918. He flew over the enemy lines at an altitude of only 150 meters, in spite of violent machine-gun and antiatircraft fire. Shot down between the lines, with his plane riddled with bullets and his pilot severely wounded, he pieked up his pilot in his arms and carried him through heavy fire more than 200 meters to the French first lines after he himself was wounded in the neck.

Private, first class, Company F, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Voluntarily facing heavy machine-gun fire, he advanced 100 yards ahead of our lines to bring back wounded soldiers. He showed absolute disregard for personal danger in his work of rescue.

Corporal, Company G, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
Corporal Timm, with the assistance of 1 other soldier, captured 3 enemy machine guns and their crews which had held up the advance of his company. He was later killed in action in the Bois-de-la-Reine.
Posthumously awarded. Medai presented to sister, Miss Charlotte Timm.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

In the Bois-de-Belleau, on June 6, 1918, he led his men in a bayonet charge against superior numbers of the enemy, capturing 2 machine guns and 17 prisoners. Wounded in the face by shrapnel, he continued to heroically perform his duties until relieved.

Second lieutenant, Infantry, attached to 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps. 2d Division.

Although weakened by gas poisoning, inflicted while serving with the French in Verdun sector, he declined medical assistance and served with heroic fortitude with the marines. In the operations of June 1-15, 1918, near Chateau-Thierry, he inspired the officers and men with whom he was in action by his fearlessness and fortitude until instantly killed by a high-explosive shell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, P. H. Timothy.

First lieutenant, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
He was severely wounded in the shoulder by a shell fragment at the beginning of the advance on Gesnes, but in spite of his wound he continued to lead his company throughout the advance. He helped to organize the ground against counterattack and remained on duty with his command until the next morning, when he went to the rear only under vigorous protest. Throughout the entire engagement this officer displayed the utmost coolness and devotion to duty under the heaviest fire.

Private, Company I, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.

During a determined enemy counterattack Private Tinsley volunteered with another soldier to locate the source of enemy fire which was causing heavy casualties in his company. Going forward under fire and discovering 7 of the enemy, they opened fire, killing 2, wounding 2, and capturing a machine gun. Their courageous feat materially aided his unit to continue the advance,

First lieutenant, 94th Aero Squadron, 1st Pursuit Group, Air Service.
While on patrol he encountered 7 machines. Despite numerical superiority and the enemy advantage of position, he immediately attacked. After firing a few rounds his guns became jammed. In the midst of a veritable hail of machine-gun fire he repaired the jam and resumed the attack. Although he was severely wounded, he continued until the enemy was forced to retire behind their own lines.

First lieutenant, 103d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While leading a patrol of 3 machines in the region of Vieville, France, July 16, 1918, he attacked an enemy formation of 6 single seaters. He destroyed 2 himself and forced down a third out of control.

Master engineer, junior grade, Company C, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.
On Nov. 1 Master Engineer Tobin reconnoitered a destroyed bridge in advance of our outposts and on Nov. 2 constructed a bridge at the same point while under shellfire. On Nov. 10 he gave valuable aid to wounded men in the face of continuous fire.

Private, Company F, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Private Toblini, together with 4 other men, charged a machine-gun nest containing 3 heavy machine guns and captured the 3 guns and 20 prisoners.

Corporal, Company B, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
Corporal Todd led his squad by crawling from shell hole to shell hole through heavy machine-gun fire for a distance of about 300 yards in advance of the Infantry. Selecting a position, he placed his machine gun so as to bring an enflade fire on a section of enemy trench that was holding up the advance of the Infantry. The fire of his squad was so effective as to cause the enemy to surronder thereby feelilitating the further advance of the attacking but tallion. surrender, thereby facilitating the further advance of the attacking battalion.

"TODD, HAROLD

At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

Todor, SAM (47979) ... At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918. R—Harvey, Ill. B—Austria. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

TOELKEN, JULIUS W. Near Bouresches, France, July 29,

R-Springfield, Mass. B-Suffield, Conn. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

Nov. 1, 1918.
R—Quinter, Kans.
B—Collyer, Kans.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Tomin, Gilmore (732896) Near Reigneville, France, Sept. 12,

R-Lynchburg; Va. B--New Glasgow, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Tomlinson, Raymond W. (398965) ... Near Vaux, France, July 1 to 10, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

*Tompkins, Fred W. (549165) ______. Near Jaulgonne, France, July 23, R—Owosso, Mich.
B—Canada.
G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920

1918. R-Yonkers, N. Y. B-Tompkins Corners, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

B—Birmingham, Pa. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919,

Topic, Frank J. (2850660) Near Bantheville, France, Oct. 23, 1918: B-St. Paul, Minn. B-St. Paul, Minn. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919. II in the

R—Rowley, Mass. B—Newbury, Mass. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919. Tousic, Frank.

Near Suippes, France, Oct. 3-7, 1918, R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919,

Gunnery sergeant, 45th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d

Division Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the snpreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherto untried troops. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Catherine Todd

Private, Company K, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
After 10 others had been killed or wounded in an attempt to deliver a message, Private Todor carried an important message through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and returned with a receipt showing the message had been

Second lieutenant, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. When the advance of his platoon was checked by enemy machine-gun fire he erawled forward alone to a position from which he could fire and killed 3 of the machine-gun crew, after which, with his platoon, he captured the gun and turned it on the foe.

Private, Company I, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
When volunteers were called for to maintain liaison with the assault battalien, during heavy counterbarrage by the enemy, he volunteered and within 2 hours successfully carried out 4 such missions.

Sergeant, Company G, 6th Infantry, 2d Division.
Facing heavy machine gun fire, he alone charged a machine gun which was causing his company many casualties, killed the gunner, and captured the Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Daisy Tomlin.

Mechanic, Company H, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
During the attack on Vaux, Mechanic Tomlinson received a rifle-ball wound in the right knee. Although suffering great pain, he made no mention of his wound. Later during the attack he assisted in the capture of 2 officers and 5 men. During the 9 days that his company continued on duty in the front line Mechanic Tomlinson carried numerous messages to front-line platoons while exposed to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

Private, first class, Company M, 27th Infantry.
When his plateon was attacked in the night by an armored train, he, without thought of his own danger, attempted to board the armored train and was fired upon, wounded, and fell under the wheels of the car, which severed his leg from his body.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Sergeant Tompkins, while leading his machine-gun section in an attack, exposed himself to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and alone advanced in front of our lines in order to select machine-gun positions. Later he was mortally wounded while exposing himself in order to direct his men to cover. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, E. G. Tompkins.

Sergeant, Company L, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

In the face of heavy machine-gun and grenade fire he went forward, with 3 other soldiers, and brought back 5 seriously wounded men to a point where they could be given first-aid treatment. With utter disregard for his personal safety, he displayed courage, coolness, and good judgment in effecting the Private, Company M, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

After having been painfully wounded by shrapnel he refused to go the rear for treatment, but remained at his post until fatally wounded by another shell. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Mathew Tonks.

Private, Company K, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
During the night he made frequent trips with wounded back through a heavily shelled area, setting an example of fearlessness to his comrades. The next day in an advance he carried a stretcher with the front wave, and when the objective was reached went from shell hole to shell hole, under intense enemy fire, giving first aid to the wounded and carrying them to the rear.

Private, Battery C, 101st Field Artillery, 26th Division.
He acted as a runner for the artillery liaison officer and after this officer was returned, wounded, voluntarily remained for 24 hours, acting as a runner for the Infantry, constantly passing through the most intense artillery and machine-gun fire.

Chicf pharmacist's mate, U. S. Navy, attached to the 5th Regiment, U. S. Marino Corps, 2d Division.

With no regard for his own safety, he labored unccasingly in caring for and evacusting the wounded under constant shellfire. His great activity and courage saved the lives of many of his comrades. 08= 1000

*Towne, Eugene W. (1205170)______ Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—Thomson, N. Y. B—New Hampton, N. H. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

TOWNSEND, JAMES B. (1932946). Near Vandieres, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Troy, Ala. B—Troy, Ala. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Bryn Mawr, Pa. B—Bryn Mawr, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Toy, Charles S. (109319)_______At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R-West Roxbury, Mass.
B-Jamaica, Long Island, N. Y.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*TRACY, JAMES F. (155901) _.. Near Exerment, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R—Peoria, Ill. B—Peoria, Ill. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

TRAHERN, ROY D. (2217661)

Near Chatel-Chehery, France, Oct. 7, 1918. R—Wilson, Okla. B—Spiro, Okla. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

TRAVERS, HUGH P., Jr. (2395693).... Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

TRAVERS, PATRICK (90923) Near Sedan, France, Nov. 6, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*TREADWAY, WOLCOTT W. Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R.—Ludlow, Mass. B.—Noroton, Conn. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

B—Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
B—Oxford, Ohio.
G O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Private, first class, Company C. 325th Infantry, 82d Division.

With remarkable brayery he carried an important message through heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun fire. Later, in the same day, he again demonstrated a spirit of self-sacrifice by going out under heavy fire and bringing in a wounded comrade. In so doing he was twice wounded by a sniper.

Sergeant, Company K, 195th Infantry, 27th Division. With 2 other soldiers, Sergeant Towne rushed forward into some hedges and silenced 3 light machine guns which were hindering the advance by flanking fire.

Private, sanitary detachment, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
Private Townsend left Vandieres, went out on the field, which was continually under shellfire, and collected and brought into Vandieres 16 wounded. He remained with them 32 hours, bringing them food and water, adjusting gas masks, and making the wounded comfortable until all had been evacuated.

Private, first class, Section No. 554, Ambulance Service. He drove an ambulance night and day to an advanced dressing station under heavy shellfire. On the night of Oct. 5 he volontarily drove a machine to a place near the lines, over a road raked by machine gun and shellfire, to evacuate a number of wounded whom the litter bearers were unable to bring in Private, first class, Company A, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. Heremained with the wounded under a sudden counterattack by the enemy and with the fire of his rifle prevented their falling into the hands of the enemy. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Samuel Toy.

Sergeant, Company B, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
Without waiting for orders he voluntarily led a patrol against an enemy machine gun which was threatening the advance of our troops and delivering a servere fire into our ranks. By his skillful and courageous efforts the machine gun was captured. He continued to lead his men forward under the severe artillery and machine-gun fire nutl he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James Tracy.

Second lieutenant, 124th Machine Gun Battalion, 33d Division.
Upon their own initiative, Lieutenant Trager, who was on duty as transportation officer, and another officer crossed the Meuse River to reconnoiter a supply route. They were fired on by 2 enemy machine guns, but, disregarding the heavy machine-gun and shell fire, they advanced on the enemy positions and captured the 2 machine guns, together with 31 Austrian prisoners.

Sergeant, Company D, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.

After his platoon had been forced to retire from the crest of the hill beyond Chatcl-Chehery, Screent Trahern exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire and went hack 200 yards toward the enemy to the aid of a severely wounded conrade. Being unable to move the man alone, he called for assistance and later, with the help of another, he carried the wounded man to a place of selfer. to a place of safety.

Private, Company E, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Early on the morning of July 15 he was wounded while the Germans were attempting to force a passage of the Marne, but remained at his post. Later in the day he was again wounded, but refused to leave, and continued on duty until the engagement was over.

Corporal, Company H, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
Without assistance, he advanced on an enemy's sniper post and successfully made prisoners of the entire crew, which included 1 officer, only being able to take the latter after a brief struggle. His action prevented a flanking fire on his platoon and aided greatly in their rapid advance.

Second lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

By exceptional bravery near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918, he aroused the admiration of his command, inspired his men by his example, and carried them forward in the face of heavy fire to their objective before he fell, mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. W. W. Treadway.

First licutenant, 213th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

First licutenant, 213th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While leading a patrol of 4 machines at an altitude of 3,000 meters Lieutenant Treadwell observed 2 American observation airplanes hard pressed by 0 of the enemy. Disregarding the enemy's advantage in number and position he promptly attacked, whereupon the enemy immediately retired. On Oct. 29, 1918, in the region of Bayonville, France, at an altitude of 3,000 meters, Lieutenant Treadwell, attacked, an enemy biplane, killing the observer and following the machine down to within 50 meters of the ground, well within the enemy's territory. The gallantry and devotion to duty displayed by Lieutenant Treadwell greatly inspired the members of his squadron.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Aaron L. Treadwell.

TREKAUSKAS, TONY A. (4259) Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Trerise, Benjamin E. (1708988)...... Near Binarville, France, Oct. 4, 1918, and near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R.—New York, N. Y. B.—Silver City, N. Mex. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

*Trestrail, Frederick J______ North of Verdun, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Jersey City, N. J. B—Jersey City, N. J. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—McComb, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

TRIMBLE, DANA N. (155906). Near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Ipswich, Mass. B—Canada.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

TRIMMER, LEE (44845)
Near Villers - devant - Mouzon,
France, Nov. 7, 1918.
R-Lawrenceburg, Tenn.
B-Lawrenceburg, Tenn.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

TRIPLETT, NATHANIEL C. (1521412)
Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27-28, 1918. R—Akron, Ohio. B—Bandana, Ky. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

TROSKA, CHARLES P. (41845)
South of Soissons, France, July 21, 1918.

R—Genou, Mont. B—Wells, Minn. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

1918. R—Camden, S. C. B—Camden, S. C. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

TROUP, CLARENCE DAVID ... Near Bayonville, France, Nov. 1, Near Bayonville, France, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

R—Harrodsburg, Ky. B—Mercer County, Ky. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

TRUTKO, ALEXANDER (48630) -Near Soissons, France, July 18-22, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Russia. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

Sergeant, Company E, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Voluntarily and single handed he captured a machine gun and killed the crew.

First sergeant, Company F, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

During an attack in the Argonne Forest, Oct. 4, 1918, Sergeant Trerise was wounded in 5 places by shrapnel. Although in need of medical attention, he refused to be evacuated but remained, steadying his men and holding his unit intact. On Oct. 15, after 2 attempts at rescue of a wounded man had failed here devened the outher words are rescued for the result of t unit intact. On Oct. 15, after 2 attempts at rescue of a wounded man had failed, he advanced through heavy enemy fire and brought the wounded man to shelter.

First lieutenant, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.
When the advance of his company was checked by terrific enfilading fire from machine guns, he halted his men, and with great coolness ascended a hill to ascertain the location of the enemy machine-gun nests. He had barely reached the top of the hill when he was killed by an exploding shell.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Harry J. Ralph.

Sergeant, Company K, 145th Infantry, 37th Division.
Volunteering to construct a footbridge across the Scheldt River, Sergeant
Trew crossed the stream in plain view of the enemy under violent machinegun fire and, after the bridge had been completed, returned and led the first detachment of his regiment across.

Sergeant, Company B, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
He volunteered and obtained the consent of his company commander to recover wounded men from an exposed area in front of the line. He went through a violent bombardment in the performance of this duty 3 times and stopped only when he had been severely wounded.

Private, Headquarters Company, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After being relieved from duty as a cart driver at his own request, he volunteered and made individual patrols. He located 2 machine guns by exposing himself and drawing their fire. His exceptional bravery resulted in the destruction of a machine gun and the dispersal of its crew.

Mechanic, Company F, 146th Infantry, 37th Division.

He was a member of a patrol which encountered severe hostile machine-gun fire. He assisted in getting several wounded men to cover and administered first aid until his supply of bandages was exhausted. Returning to company beadquarters across a field swept by artillery fire, be secured more bandages, came back with them to his conrades, and resumed his first-aid work. On the following day he again displayed exceptional courage under machine-gun and shell fire by carrying a wounded officer to safety.

Private, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Private Troska carried a message through a wood occupied by the enemy to a company which had become separated from its battalion. His deed permitted the coordinating of the attacking units.

Oak-leaf cluster. Corporal Charles Troska was awarded an oak-leaf cluster for the following act: For extraordinary heroism in action near Fleville, France, Oct. 11, 1918. In the attack on Hill 272, Oct. 11, 1918, after other runners had been killed in the attempt to deliver a message to 2 attacking companies, he voluntarily carried and delivered the message, thus again effecting the proper coordination of the attack units of the battalion.

First lieutenant, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. Lieutenant Trotter gallantly led his platoon through heavy machine-gun fire in an attack on a strongly fortified enemy position. His platoon suffered heavy casualties, but he pushed forward until shot down near the enemy position.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, T. K. Trotter.

Private, 82d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He volunteered and went forward to reconnoiter a ravine which was infested with hostile machine-gun and artillery positions, returning with several prisoners.

Sergeant, Company I, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After all of his officers had been killed or wounded he assumed command of the company, and with exceptional bravery and courage kept continually pressing on and engaging the enemy.

Private, Company M, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Private Trutko repeatedly carried messages across areas swept by artillery and machine-gun fire. Due in part to his individual gallantry, his eompany commander was able to maintain communication at all times during this operation.

TRYON, JEREMIAH (64107)...... Yon, JEREMAH (GHO!)
During the Seicheprey engagement,
France, Apr. 20, 1918.
R—Saybrook, Conn.
B—Saybrook, Conn.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Farmerville, La. B—Farmerville, La. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

23-27, 1918.

R—Memphis, Tenn.

B—Boonville, Miss.

G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Moultrie, Ga. B—Moultrie, Ga. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Tucker, Royal K
East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29,
1918.

R-Mobile, Ala. B-Upper Alton, Ill. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

TUDURY, HENRY J. (562712)

Near Courchamps, France, July 18-20, 1918. R—Bay St. Louis, Miss. B—Bay St. Louis, Miss. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Clayton, Wis. B—Norway. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R—Omaha, Nebr. B—Omaha, Nebr. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

TULEY, HOMER A. (2019076)

Near Bolshieozerke, Russia, Apr. 2, 1919.

R—Detroit, Mich. B—Dallas, Tex. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

TURANO, JOHN (51578)...
Near Vanx, France, July 1, 1918.
R—Worcester, Mass.
B—Westerly, R. I.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

TURBEVILLE, WILLIAM JAMES (1311040) Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 30, 1918.

R—Lexington, S. C. B—Clerendon County, S. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company C, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

He displayed unusual daring and courage during the Seicheprey engagement on the morning of Apr. 20, 1918, when, under heavy artillery fire, he climbed out of his trench in the front line outo the top and killed a sniper who was pouring a destructive fire into our trenches.

Private, Company I, 356th Infantry, 89th Division.
Private Tubbs accompanied Lieutenant Murphy and 3 other soldiers in a flank attack on 3 heavy machine guns. Fired on directly at 30 yards, they charged the guns, and in the hand-to-hand fight which followed this soldier and 2 of his comrades were killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Howard Homer Tubbs.

Private, Company K, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
Private Tucker bravely volunteered to carry an important message to the battalion commander at a critical juncture, and in attempting to pass through a terrific enemy barrage was instantly killed by shellfire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Sallie N. Tucker.

Sergeant, Company L, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
While being carried unconscious to a dressing station after having been wounded, he regained consciousness, arose from the stretcher, and rejoined his company. Shortly after, a gas shell exploded in a dugout where he and other men were taking cover. Although badly gassed, he again refused evacuation, remaining on duty with the company until it was relieved 16 days

First licutenant, chaplain, 105th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line he displayed remarkable devotion to duty and courage in caring for the wounded under heavy shell and machine-gun fire. The splendid example set by this officer was an inspiration to the combat troops,

Private, Company C, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.
Engaged as runner, he made repeated trips through intense shelling and machine-gun fire. On July 18 he was gassed, but bravely continued with his heroic work until he fell exhausted on the 20th.

Private, Company D, 318th Infantry, 80th Division.
Private Tuftin volunteered for dangerous outpost service within the enemy line. He worked his way behind enemy machine guns; was wounded, but refused to leave his post; and by the skillful use of his automatic rifle assisted in driving the enemy from their entrenched positions. He refused to leave his post until the battalion was relieved.

Second lieutenant, 3d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
During the engagement near Soissons, France, July 18 and 19, 1918, the leadership of his platoon was exceptionally distinctive by reason of his courage, initiative, and presence of mind. While advancing on the second day of the attack he was wounded, but continued with his command until he had given complete instructions to his platoon sergeant and notified his company commander of the disposition of his guns, after which he was compelled to yield command because of weakness from his injuries.

Private, first class, 337th Ambulance Company, 310th Sanitary Train, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia).

Private, first class, Tuley went forward some 200 yards in front of our lines into an area swept by artillery and machine-gun fire to assist in bringing a wounded man to a place of safety.

First lieutenant, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

On the morning of Nov. 1 Lieutenant Tune personally led an attack against an enemy machine-gun nest, killing 1 of the enemy, wounding 1, and taking 4 prisoners. On Nov. 6 he went far in advance of his company and with 2 other men killed a sniper in a building in the village of Marvaux. On Nov. 10 he led the remnants of his company in clearing the Bois-de-Juvigny of enemy detachments. In this action Lieutenant Tune killed 1 of the enemy with a rifle and assisted in the capture of 5 prisoners.

Private, Company I, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

Attempting to bring to shelter his captain, who was lying wounded and exposed to fire near Vaux, France, July 1, 1913, he was himself killed, thereby sacrificing his life in an effort to rescue his commanding officer.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Santo Turano.

Private, first class, Company E, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
Private Turbeville, a battalion runner, displayed exceptional courage and disregard for personal danger in making 3 trips with important messages through heavy enemy machine-gun and shell fire.

TURKOPP, CARL F. (1956265)....

Near Brabant-sur-Meuse, France, Oct. 23, 1918.

R—Columbus, Ohio.

B—Toledo, Ohio.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919. ¥ 11

*Turley, Clarence L. (2258561)
Near Juvigny, north of Soissons, France, Aug. 30, 1918.
R—Pasco, Wash.
B—Marion, Ky.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

TURNER, BEN E.
At Fismette, France, Aug. 27, 1918.
R-Kahoka, Mo.
B-Kahoka, Mo.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*TURNER, CHARLES W... Near Binarville, France, Oct. 6, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Turner, James A.
Near Buzancy, France, Nov. 2-3, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Ludlow, Ky.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

TURNER, JOSEPH W. (1310695) Near Vaux-Andigny, France 11, 1918. R-Enoree, S. C. B-Walnut Grove, S. C. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919. Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct.

TURNER, OTIS E. (2154626).

Near Busigny, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—Belville Island, Iowa.

B—Jasper County, Iowa.

G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1918.

TURNER, RAY C. (935323)

Near Saulx, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Danville, Ill.

B—Danville, Ill.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*TURRENTINE, HERBERT S. (1315188) Near Ypres, Belgium, Aug. 31, 1918. R—Winston-Salem, N. C. B—Mocksville, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

TURRILL, JULIUS SPEAR
In the Bois-de-Belleau, Fra
June 6, 1918.
R-Burlington, Vt.
B-Shelburne, Vt.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, 308th Trench Mortar Battery, 158th Field Artillery Brigade, 83d

Division.

During the offensive operations in the Bossois Bois, Corporal Turkopp, although wounded by shellfire and knocked down by eoncussion, returned to his gun and continued to fire. So great was his exhaustion that it was necessary for him to be supported while doing his work.

Corporal, Company I, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.
In an attack by his company Corporal Turley gave proof of unusual gallantry and courage by fearlessly going out under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire to give aid to and carry back the wounded. He was himself seriously wounded while engaged in this work.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to stepmother, Mrs. Myrtle Turley.

First lieutenant, 112th Infantry, 28th Division.
When the enemy attack, preceded by a very heavy barrage, had broken through and forced a retirement over the Vesle, Lieutenant Turner, himself wounded and under enemy fire from front and flanks, directed the retirement of his men, while he alone covered their withdrawal over the river with an automatic rifle, crossing after the last man was safely over.

First lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
Surrounded by enemy machine guns and smipers and under heavy shellfire, he refused to surrender, but held his position with extraordinary heroism and total disregard for his own life until he and all his detachment were killed

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Josephine Turner.

First lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 4th Division.
Although completely surrounded and his ammunition exhausted, Lieutenant Turner refused to surrender. Assembling his platoon of about 18 men, he made a dash for our lines through the enemy's machine-gun and rifle, fire, and, by taking advantage of all available cover and using grenades and ammunition found on the way, succeeded in joining our troops.

Sergeant, Company B, 10th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.
Sergeant Turner, a runner, repeatedly went out under shell and machine-gun fire to maintain liaison between units, frequently volunteeing for especially hazardous missions. After other runners had been killed be rendered valuable service by repeatedly crossing dangerous areas in order to maintain communications.

First lieutenant, 318th Infantry, 80th Division.

After having been severely wounded during the night of Nov. 2, 1918, he continued in command of his company. Despite his wound, he led his company in the attack the following day, when he was killed by an enemy shell. He set an example of fearlessness and bravery to his men.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to wildow, Mrs. James A. Turner.

Sergeant, Company D, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.
Sergeant Turner volunteered and carried an automatic rifle to an advantageous position far in advance of his own line and maintained an effective fire on the enemy until his gun was put out of action and he was wounded in both hands and forced to retire. Before going to the rear he gave full and valuable information regarding the enemy's position to his officers.

Private, Company M, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
When his platoon was held up by an enemy machine-gun post, Private Turner with another soldier took their automatic rifle, rushed 50 yards through intense fire, skillfully placed the rifle in position, and opened an effective fire.

Private, 101st Ambulance Company, 101st Sanitary Train, 26th Division.
Under intense bombardment, he volunteered to go forward with a sergeant to reseue a number of seriously wounded soldiers. While they were engaged in this heroic work he was wounded and his companion killed by an exploding shell. After receiving first aid he immediately resumed his duties and remained at the front until the advanced station was closed.

Private, Company C, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

After his plateon sergeant and a corporal had been shot while firing an automatic rifle, he ran forward across an open space and picked up the gun, but was instantly killed by sniper fire while attempting to get the automatle gun back into action.

Posthumously awarded: Medal presented to sister, Mrs. J. P. Shaw.

Major, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He displayed extraordinary heroism and set a splendid example in fearlessly leading his command under heavy fire against superior odds. Because of his bravery and initiative every possible advantage in the attack was obtained. TUTTLE, MELLEN F. (67163)...
On Hill 190, near Chatcau-T1 Jrry,
France, July 20, 1918.
R—New Gloucester, Me.
B—Freeport, Me.
G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

TVETEN, HANS L. (2261485) At Gesnes, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Sand Creek, Mont. B—Norway. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

Twiford, Elwood (1314770)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Dare County, N. C. B—East Lake, N. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Twiss, Julius 1. (63386)______At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26,

R—Hartford, Conn. B—Niantic, Conn. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Ucac, Joseph (1707692) Near Binarville, France, Sept. 27, R-Brooklyn, N. Y.

B—Russia. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

ULRICH, WILLIAM
Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 15,
1918. R-New York, N. Y.

B—Germany. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Underwood, David H. (279050)

Near Fismes, France, Aug. 6, 1918.

R—Tecumseh, Mich.

B—Tecumseh, Mich.

G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

UPTON, LA ROY S... Near Soissons, France, July 18-19, 1918.

R—Big Rapids, Mich.

B—Decatur, Mich.

G. O. No., 132, W. D., 1918.

Distinguished-service meda medal also awarded.

*Upton, Thomas A. (71276)______ Near Belleau, France, July 21, 1918. R—Salem, Mass. B—Wales. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

URSPRUNG, RUDOLPH S.

Near Eyne, Belgium, Nov. 1, 1918.
R—Berea, Ohio.
B—Cleveland, Ohio.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Vail, Robert M.
Near Villette, France, Sept. 5, 1918.
R.—Scranton, Pa.
B.—Scranton, Pa.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Vail, William H.

At Stenay, France, Nov. 6, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company B, 103d Infantry, 26th Division. When all of the men of the automatic-rifle team of which he was a member had been wounded he voluntarily advanced alone, attacked a number of enemy machine-gun nests which were nolding up the advance, and forced the enemy to retreat, thereby making possible the continued forward movement of his detachment.

Private, Company K, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.

When his company was under fire from 2 German machine guns, he crept forward alone and put the guns out of action with rifle grenades, capturing single handed 4 Germans and both machine guns.

Private, Company A, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
Having become separated from the remainder of his squad in a heavy fog and being surrounded by several enemy machine gunners, Private Twiford set up, his automatic rifle and within a few minutes killed or captured all of the enemy near him.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

During the counterattack on Marcheville he became separated from his command. Under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire he voluntarily gathered together a few scattered men and organized a point of defense, showing coolness, bravery, and judgment which materially assisted in the success of the counterattack.

Private, first class, Company A, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
Returning to the line after being wounded by a hand grenade the previous day, Private Ucac persistently requested to be allowed to assist stretcher bearers in the removal of the wounded. While performing this heroic mission, constantly subjected to treacherous machine-gun and artillery fire, he was again wounded.

Sergeant major, 2d Battalion, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Accompanied by 3 other soldiers he fearlessly charged into the enemy's lines through intense machine-gun fire in pursuit of a party of Germans and returned with 51 prisoners.

Private, first class, Company B, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
With exceptional courage, Private Underwood went out under heavy fire, from enemy machine guns and snipers and rescued a wounded runner who had strayed into the enemy, slines by mistake.

Colonel, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

His regiment having suffered heavy casualties in its first attack on July 18, 1918, and he having received orders to attack a second time, Colonel Upton re-formed his command and conducted the second attack in person until stopped by darkness. His line being broken by a gap in its center, all of his battalion commanders being killed or wounded, and all of his reserves being in the thinly held line, he established his command post on the extreme front at the right of the gap and remained there for 24 hours under steady and intense artillery bombardment and machine-gun fire, holding his position until his regiment was relieved. His presence and his example of fearlessness inspired his weakened line thus to guard the unprotected flank of the whole advance and beat off a violent counterattack.

Corporal, Company B, 104th Infantry, 26th Division. He voluntarily crossed a zone swept by machine-gun and shell fire to aid wounded soldiers and was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Samuel F. Upton.

First lieutenant, 145th Infantry, 37th Division.
Seeing a wounded soldier lying 150 yards in front of the line, after his company had withdrawn to a more secure position. Lieutenant Ursprung erawled through heavy fire and administered first aid to him. He then picked up the wounded man, carried him across the open, wading a canal through water waist deep, and succeeded in taking him to a place of safety.

Major, 108th Machine Gun. Battalion, 28th Division.

During the crossing of the Vesle River, Major Vail expedited the construction of bridges by his advice and assistance. He personally cut a passageway through enemy barbed wire along the river, and then led his troops through this opening. When the officers of a supporting Infantry company had been killed and the men were falling back in confusion, Major Vail kept his forces Intact 1,200 yards in front of any Infantry support, holding the position until reinforced by an Infantry unit.

First lieutenant, pilot, 95th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Lieutenant Vail while on patrol engaged 4 hostile pursuit planes which were about to attack an accompanying plane. Almost immediately he was attacked by 5 more enemy planes, all of which he continued to fight until he was severely wounded and his plane disabled. He glided to the ground, abandoning the fight only when his machine fell to pieces near the ground.

VALENTINE, AARON F. (2249811)

Near St. Marie Valley, France,
Sept. 15, 1918.

R-Madison, Okla.

B-Kingfisher, Okla.

G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

*Vallely, Francis P. (126276)... At Coullemelle France, Apr. 27, 1918. R-Pratt City, Ala. B-Pratt City, Ala. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

VALLEY, ISAAC (1403725) At Vraincourt, France, July 22, 1918. R—Girard, Kans. B—Girard, Kans. G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

VAN ALLEN, CLARENCE R. (2337012)... Near Bussy Farm, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R-Boston, Mass. B-West Newton, Mass. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

VAN AMBURGH, HUGH C....

Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918. R—Tacoma, Wash. B—Oakesdale, Wash. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

Van Buren, George (43817)...... Near Fleville, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R.—San Francisco, Calif. B.—Hudson, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

VANDER VEEN, THOMAS (573830).... Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 10-13, 1918. R—San Fernando, Calif. B—Holland. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*VAN DUESEN, ROBERT R. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R.—Vineland, N. J. B.—Vineland, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Van Gunday, Ben (2219587).
Near Bois-de-Consenvoye, France,
Oct. 8, and Bois-de-Grande-Montagne, France, Oct. 16, 1918.
R—Wyandotte, Okla.
B—Neosho, Mo.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company A, 344th Machine Gun Battalion, 90th Division. When the advance of an Infantry company was held up by an enemy machine gun located in a tree, he rushed into the open and, mounting his machine gun, killed the gunner and knocked the nest from its position, his exploit being stiffly resisted by direct firing.

First lieutenant, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.

Private, first class, Battery E, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division. Under a heavy bombardment, he voluntarily went to the assistance of other soldiers who had been buried in a dugout by enemy shellfire, and was killed while engaged in this heroic action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, P. T. Vallely.

Corporal, Company M, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.
When, on July 22, 1918, a hand grenade was dropped among a group of soldiers in a trench, and when he might have saved himself by flight he attempted to cover it with his foot and thereby protect his comrades. In the performance of this brave act he was severely wounded.

Private, Company L, 372d Infantry, 93d Division.
This soldier, unassisted, rushed an enemy machine gun, putting it out of action, and capturing 3 prisoners.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 4th Brigade, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

As a motor-cycle dispatch rider he made repeated trips along shell-swept roads and in a gassed area before and during the capture of Vierzy. When Vierzy was still in German hands he dismounted from his motor cycle in front of the town and with great coolness and disregard of personal safety crawled into it and brought back information of great value to his brigade commander.

Private, Company I, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
He continued to advance after being seriously wounded until he fainted from exhaustion. After recovering consciousness he again joined his company and assisted in repelling a counterattack in which he received a fourth wound, remaining on duty until he was ordered evacuated.

Second lieutenant, 15th Field Artillery, 2d Division.
On duty with the Infantry as liaison officer, Lieutenant Van de Graff displayed marked courage in passing through an enemy artillery barrage several times, in carrying information to his battalion commander, and administering aid to wounded men under heavy shellfire.

Private, first class, Company C, 11th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. As company liaison agent he maintained continual contact between his company commander and the battalion post of command, repeatedly exposing himself to artillery, machine-gun, and snipers' fire to deliver important messages. On one occasion it was necessary for him to pass through the German and our own barrages, but he accomplished this mission fearlessly, showing marked personal bravery.

Sergeant, 17th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. With his platoon in a very dangerous position, he volunteered to carry a message from his platoon commander across a machine-gun-swept field. Having successfully accomplished his mission, he returned, and while directing his men to shelter he was severely wounded by a machine-gun bullet. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. R. B. Van Duesen.

Private, first class, Company K, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. He was a member of a combat liaison group which was attacked by liquid fire. Although severely burned, he alone charged the flame thrower and put lim out of action, after which he reassembled his men and continued on duty until relieved.

Private, Company B, 108th Infantry, 27th Division. Private Van Dyne, a runner, displayed notable courage in carrying messages through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

Private, Company F, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

During the entire action he operated his automatic rifle with great effect against extremely heavy odds, aiding the advance of his platoon, killing many of the enemy, and assisting in the capture of many more. He repeatedly exposed himself to draw the enemy fire so that he could better operate his gun.

VAN HART, JOHN A. (1277637) _____At Molleville Farm, France, Oct. 10-25, 1918. R-Elizabeth, N. J. B-Elizabeth, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Van Hoy, James L. (1310696)..... Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—Laurens, S. C. B—Elkin, N. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

NN, JOHN C...
Near Bazoehes, France, Aug. 7, 1918.
R—Columbus, Ga.
B—Valdosta, Ga.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Van Oostenbrugge, Horace B..... Near Villette, France, Sept. 6, 1918. R—Schenectady, N. Y. B—Troy, N. Y. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*Van't Hof, Bernard_____ Northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 28, 1918.
R—Grand Rapids, Mich.
B—Grand Rapids, Mich.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

*VAN VORIS, HOWARD H... Near Waereghem, Belgium, Oct. 30-31, 1918. R—Stites, Idaho. B—Asotin, Wash. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

VAN WAY, CHARLES W....On the Abra River, Abra Province, Luzon, Philippine Islands, Nov. 2, 1900. R—Winfield, Kans. B—Shelbyville, Ind. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

VAN YORX, VICTOR (91288) Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 28, 1918. R-Mount Vernon, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Varner, Andrew H. (1315464)..... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Thomasville, N. C. B—Randolph County, N. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*Varney, Kit R. Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Virginia City, Nev. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

R—Bon Aqua, Tenn. B—Hickman County, Tenn. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company G, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.

Attached to the battalion seouts, he repeatedly went out on dangerous patrols, secured valuable information, assisted in first aid work, carried litters, rations, and water, and voluntarily made numerous trips through artillery and machine-gun fire with important messages.

Private, Company D, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. When his company was caught in a barrage, Private Van Hoy volunteered and carried a message to battalion headquarters under direct observation by the enemy through gas and terrific machine-gun and shellfire.

Second lieutenant, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Lieutenant Vanu concealed the fact that he was wounded and led the advance platoon of his company to their objectives despite heavy losses. He remained with his command, displaying the highest leadership and courage, until he was wounded a second time.

Second lieutenant, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.
Being the only officer with his company, he continued in command for 36 hours after being severely wounded, constantly encouraging his men and setting an example of coolness and heroism. It was only after being wounded a second time that he consented to be evacuated.

First lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.
He directed his platoon so skillfully in attack near Sergy and conducted himself with such bravery and fearlessness that his men captured 6 machine guns from the Prussian Guards and took 25 prisoners, which guns were then used with effect in driving the enemy from their positions.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Kryn Van't Hof.

Second lieutenant, 364th Infantry, 91st Division.

As battalion intelligence officer on the night before the engagement he was As Lattanon intelligence officer on the fight before the engagement he was tireless in his efforts to maintain liaison on the flanks of his battalion. Next day, against the advice of senior officers, he made repeated reconnaissances of the front lines in the face of heavy shell and machine-gun fire. Penetrating beyond the Infantry lines on one of these patrols, this gallant officer was killed by machine-gun fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Gladys Van Voris.

Captain, 33d Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. In action against insurgents.

Private, Company K, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

Though severely wounded in the ankle, he refused to leave the field of battle, and next day made the attack on the heights north of the River Ourcq, remaining with his company until again wounded.

Private, first class, Company D, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. Seeing that a wounded companion had been abandoned by stretcher bearers because of intense enemy shelling, he took 2 enemy prisioners and going out with them for 75 yards through heavy fire rescued the wounded soldier.

Captain, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps. Captain, soils Datalion, Tank Corps.

When a dense fog and a smoke barrage had made visibility so poor that it was difficult to get his tanks into action, Captain Varney personally led his machines on foot several hundred yards in advance of the first wave of infantry in the face of deadly artillery and machine-gun fire. He thus enabled his tanks to maintain their direction and cleared a path for the Infantry, but in accomplishing this heroic task he was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Calista R. Varney Sergeant, Company E, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. After several others had failed in the attempt, he crossed ground swept by heavy enemy fire and established liaison with the British unit operating on the flank, volunteering for the mission.

Sergeant, Company A, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

Although he had been severely gassed and had received a scalp wound from shrapped on Aug. 9, 1918, he refused to be evacuated, and after having his wound dressed continued to command his platoon for 4 days until relieved.

By his hravery and encouragement to his men he exemplified the highest qualities of leadership. qualities of leadership.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Dr. E. M. Vaughan.

VAUGHN, GEORGE AUGUSTUS. Near Cambrai, France, Sept. 22, 1918.

R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

VAUGHT, GLENN (1446055)______ Near Varennes, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Monett, Mo. B—Cassville, Mo. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Vedilago, Joseph (1707556) Near Binarville, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Jamaica, N. Y. B—Italy. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

VEDRAL, ANTHONY (57142)

Near Verdan, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Detroit, Mich.

B—Bohemia.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

VERBEKE, REMI (2150438)
Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Climax, Minn. B—Belgium. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

VERCOE, STANLEY (807295).
Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 13, 1918. R—Gaastra, Mich. B—England. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

VERCRUYSSE, JOSEPH C. (1646636). R. Calif.

R.—Oakland, Calif.

B.—Belgium.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Verdier, William (1260361)

At Fismes, France, Aug. 12, 1918.

R—Bausman, Pa.
B—Wrightsville, Pa.
G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

VER MEHREN, HUBERT (915581) Near Brandeville, France, Nov. 8-10, 1918. R—Omaha, Nebr. B—Arcadia, Iowa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Vernam, Remington de B... Near Buzancy, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R.—New York, N. Y. B.—Rutherford, N. Y. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

VIAL, FRANK A In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 8, 1918. R—Richmond, Va. B—Hanover, Va. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

*Vibbert, Edward T. (242283)... Near Sergy, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 31, 1918. R—Corunna, Mich. B—Broekport, Pa. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, 17th Acro Squadron, Air Service. Lieutenant Vaughn while leading an offensive flight patrol sighted 18 enemy Fokkers about to attack a group of 5 allied planes flying at a low level. Although outnumbered nearly 5 to 1, he attacked the enemy group, personally shot down 2 enemy planes, the remaining 3 planes of his group shooting down 2 more. His courage and daring enabled the group of allied planes to escape. Again on Sept. 28, 1918, he alone attacked an enemy advance plane which was supported by 7 Fokkers and shot the advance plane down in flanes.

Corporal, Company A, 129th Machine Gun Battalion, 35th Division. Accompanied by another soldier, Corporal Vaught went through heavy fire, and by skillful maneuvering located and captured an enemy 77-mm. gun, with part of its crew, which had been checking the advance of our troops.

Corporal, Company A, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

He crawled from his shelter to get an automatic rifle after the members of the rifle team had been killed or wounded, and with this weapon continued in the advance until he was killed by shell fragments.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Grace Vedilago.

Sergeant, Company D, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
Assuming command of the platoon, Sergeant Vedral led it forward to its objective. When he arrived at the line, he found that his company had been cut off by the enemy barrage. He therefore consolidated his position with the few men he commanded and held it for 18 hours under most terrific bombardment.

Private, Company D, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. After receiving a painful wound in the shoulder be delivered a message to his company headquarters. He then had his wound dressed, returned with another message, through shellfire and under direct observation of the enemy and reported for continuous duty. He later voluntarily assisted in driving back a strong enemy patrol and was severely wounded in the encounter.

Private, medical detachment, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division. In a territory swept by the direct fire of 2 German batteries, he displayed fearlessness and devotion to duty in giving first aid to the wounded and carrying them to a place of safety.

Private, Company H, 306th Infantry, 77th Division. He volunteered and carried a message to supporting troops through an intense artillery barrage, displaying courage and persistent devotion to duty. This message was of vital importance in connection with the capture of St. Juvin.

Private, 109th Machine Gun Battalion, 28th Division.
Seeing a wounded soldier in an ambulance which had broken down while crossing a small bridge, in plain view of the enemy and under heavy artillery fire, he went to his rescue and, assisted by another soldier, carried out the wounded man under intense shellfire 11/2 miles to a dressing station.

Sergeant, first class, medical detachment, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.

He showed utter disregard for his own personal danger in giving first aid to the wounded and carrying them to a place of safety under intense machine-gun and shellfire

First licutenant, pilot, 22d Aero Squadron, Air Service.
Successively attacking 2 enemy balloons which were moored to their nests, Licutenant Vernam displayed the highest degree of daring. He executed his task despite the fact that several enemy planes were above him, descending to an altitude of less than 10 meters when 5 miles within the enemy lines. His well-directed fire caused both balloons to burst into flames.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Phillip J. Ross.

Corporal, 83d Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Although exposed to fire constantly from machine guns in the Bois-de-Belleau, France, on June 8, 1918, he repeatedly earlied messages from one post to another. He particularly distinguished himself for bravery by voluntarily passing through a machine-gun barrage to guide a detachment to its position.

Private, Company M, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
When his company was obliged to dig in under heavy fire from all arms within 150 yards of the main German line, he was sent with a message from the company commander to the chief of a front-line platoon. In endeavoring to accomplish his mission this soldier was mortally wounded. Lying on the ground he yelled "Message," attracted the attention of the platoon leader, and with his dying breath delivered the message he hore.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Unice H, Vibbert.

VIDA, FRANK J. (1225539).
Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29-30, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-Hungary. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

VIDMER, GEORGE

Near Zube, France, Sept. 27, and St.
Juvin, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R.—Mobile, Ala.
B.—Mobile, Ala.
G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.
Distribution of the property of the control of the control

Distinguished-service medal awarded.

VIEIRA, HENRY (40856).
South of Soissous, France, July 18, 1918.

R—New Bedford, Mass. B—Bedford, Mass. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

VIERA, JOÉ NICHOLS. Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—Fallon, Nev. B—Providence, R. I. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

VIERBUCHEN, WILLIAM J In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 11, 1918. R—Newark, N. J. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*VIGILETTRE, MICHAEL (1214947) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Rochester, N. Y. B—Italy. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

VINALL, EARL R. (110333)

At Belleau, France, July 18-24, 1918.

R—Meredith, N. H.

B—Peterboro, N. H.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Berkeley, Calif. B—Davenport, Iowa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

VINIARSKY, WATZLAW (39711)
South of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R—Jersey City, N. J. B-Russia. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Vizenor, Lawrence A. (2152197)...... In the Bois-du-Fays, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R-Richwood, Minn. B-Richwood, Minn. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

First sergeant, Company G, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
After all his company officers had been killed or wounded he took command, despite the fact that he, too, had been wounded. He succeeded in capturing part of the Hindenburg line and holding it against several strong counterattacks, remaining with his company and refusing to go to the rear for medical treatment until it was relieved.

Colonel, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.
By his personal presence, example, and determination he repulsed strong counterattacks and drove the enemy from important positions north of Zube. On Oct. 14 he personally directed the attack of his unit and carried it forward to a successful conclusion under heavy machine-gun, rifle, and artillery fire.

Private, first class, Company M, 2th Infantry, 2d Division.
During the attack and advance on July 18, 1918, and after all the runners had been killed or wounded, Private Vieira volunteered to carry messages through heavy machine-gun and shellfire. He succeeded in this undertaking, thereby keeping up vitally important communication with regimental headquarters.

Private, 78th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. After assisting in the capture of 3 machine-gun nests, Private Viera with another soldier, went into a dugout when the occupants refused to come out and captured 40 of the enemy.

Sergeant, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Though he had been wounded by fire from an enemy machine-gun nest, Sergeant Vierbuchen made a reconnaissance, securing information which was largely instrumental in the successful capture of this nest a few hours later.

Private, Company G, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

The voluntarily exposed himself to bring in wounded soldiers belonging to another organization. Throughout the engagement under constant rifle and machine-gun fire he courageously treated the wounded, inspiring the combat troops by his example until killed by a bursting shell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Andrea Vigilettre.

Private, Company B, 103d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division. On duty as a runner, Private Vinall displayed marked courage in repeatedly passing through heavy machine-gun and artillery harrages throughout 5 days of action.

First lieutenant, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
Returning to the company after being treated for a very severe wound in the neck, he commanded his platoon, which had been ordered to fall back because of a violent barrage. He volunteered and went forward to the aid of 2 enlisted men of his platoon who had been seriously wounded. While performing this duty he was again wounded in the knee, but worked his way back to the dressing station, and from there walked a distance of 4 kilometers to the field hospital.

Private, Company G, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

Jerome Buschmen, sergeant; John Rockwell, private; William F, Rockwell, private; Alfred Shimanoski, private; and Watzlaw Viniarsky, private, all of Company G, 9th Infantry. For extraordinary heroism in action south of Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. They conspicuously distinguished themselves by attacking a party of more than 60 dermans and in an interse and desperate hand-to-hand fight succeeded in killing 22 men and capturing 40 men and 5 machine guns.

Second heutenant, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.
Painfully wounded in the hand at 11 a. m. and slightly wounded again in the hip at 4 p. m. Sept. 29, Lieutenant Vinton continued on duty and ably commanded his platoon until evacuated on Oct. 1, 1918.

Private, Company I, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
Private Vizenor was a member of a reconnaissance patrol which encountred Tivate Vizenor was a memor of a reconnaissance patrol which encounters such intense fire from an enemy machine-gun nest that part of the patrol was driven back. Despite the heavy fire, he and another soldier, with an officer, continued forward and secured the information for which they were sent. The officer was mortally wounded, but Private Vizenor and his contrade silenced the machine-gun nest by effective rifle fire, carried the wounded officer to the rear, and reported their valuable information concerning the enemy's position. enemy's position.

---

*Vogel Andrew F. (1829263) ..... Near Bois-des-Ogons, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R.—Pittsburgh, Pa. B.—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

VOGEL, ARTHUR H. (2368061) ... Rear Sitsa, Siberia, June 26, 1919.
R—Heber, Calif.
B—San Diego, Calif.
G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Kingston, N. Y. B-Colony, N. Y. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Voliva, James B. (75091)

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 7, 1918.

R—Pomona, Wash.

B—Pomona, Wash.

G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

VOLK, JOSEPH W. (1750463) R., JOSEPH W. (1704063) Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 22,1918. R—Kingston, N. Y. B—Kjngston, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

VOLLMER, FRANK D.....

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4-6, R—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

VON KREBS, PAUL (558501)
 At Sergy, France, July 29-30, 1918.
 R—Franklin Park, N. J.
 B—Germany.
 G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

VOORHEES, GEORGE C.....

Near Blanc Mont and St. Etienne, France, Oct. 3-10, 1918. R—Lansing, Mich. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

VOSBURGH, FRED. Near Samogneux, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Standish, N. Y. B—Cobleskill, N. Y. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

VOSBURGH, PHILIP DE M. (1211621). In the vicinity of Bony, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—New Brighton, N. Y.

B—Buffalo, N. Y.

G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

North of Cunel, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

VOTAW, LOUIS H. (2228329)
In the Bois-le-Pretre, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Beaumont, Tex. B—Colmesneil, Tex. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

Sergeant, Company C, 320th Infantry, 80th Division.

Crawling on his hands and knees from a place of safety, Sergeant Vogel went to the aid of a wounded comrade, exposed to intense machine-gun fire during the entire exploit. He successfully accomplished his task, but during a later artillery attack he was instantly killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Joseph B. Kenny.

Corporal, Company D, 31st Infantry.

He voluntarily ran a railway locomotive past a cliff three different times to draw the fire of a large force of bandits in order to locate their exact position, so that the bandits could be driven off by machine-gun fire in order to clear the way for a wagon train. On each trip he was subjected to heavy rifle fire, the cap of the engine being punctured in several places, and his Russian assistant slightly wounded.

Private, Company A, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps.

Although severely wounded by a shell splinter during the attack, Private Voigt continued on duty without revealing his wound. During a halt he assisted in mopping up with the Infantry, and again took up the advance, refusing to go to the rear for treatment. When he returned to the rallying point with the crew he was sent to the hospital.

Sergeant, Company F, 128th Infantry, 32d Division.

One of 4 survivors of a platoon of 41 who attacked Hill 269, he, with the 3 others continued on their mission and held the hill for some time without hope o reinforcements.

Private, Company B, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
While engaged as runner, he carried messages to and from advanced positions and, although wounded, continued through the whole afternoon before his wound was discovered. Even then he volunteered to carry an important message to the front lines. While directing his company commander and a number of wounded men through an intense barrage he successfully forded a river four times, showing during the entire operations an utter disregard of pressories sefety. personal safety.

Private, Headquarters Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

As a runner he displayed exceptional courage in volunteering to carry important messages over terrain constantly swept by machine-gun and shell fire.

First sergeant, Company M, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Sergeant Von Krebs displayed exceptional bravery in voluntarily carrying wounded men to safety across shell-swept areas. Later he took charge of 2 platoons, whose officers had become casualties, and reorganized them.
Strengthening these with stragglers from other organizations, he led them all into the attack at a critical moment.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to stepmother, Mrs. Leonie Von

Private, 81st Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d

Division. He displayed remarkable devotion to duty in repeatedly carrying important messages through the most violent artillery and machine-gun barrages with utter disregard for his own safety.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 116th Infantry, 29th Division. In the attack on the Bois-de-la-Grande Montagne, First Lieutenant Vosburgh accompanied the attacking Infantry, exposing himself to heavy machine-gun fire in order to direct the prompt evacuation of the wounded. After being severely wounded he continued in his efforts until his evacuation was forced hy loss of blood.

Sergeant, Company K, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Sergeant Vosburgh exposed himself to direct observation and fire from the enemy in leaving a place of shelter to go to the assistance of a wounded officer. Upon reaching the officer he was hit in the knee by a machine-gun bullet, causing him to fall back into the trench, dragging the officer with him.

First lieutenant, 60th Infantry, 5th Division. His company being held up by machine-gun fire from the front, Lieutenant Vosseler alone rushed 100 yards ahead of his company, exposed to heavy machine-gun fire, and silenced a machine gun. Although knocked down and slightly wounded by shellfire, he went forward and silenced a second gun, thus enabling his unit to continue the advance.

Corporal, Company B, 360th Infantry, 90th Division. Although he was wounded in the body early in the action and later received another wound in the head, he continued at his post as squad leader until the action was over and then went to the rear only upon orders from his platoon commander.

Near Grand Tre, France, 1918. R—Albany, N. Y. B—Middleburgh, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

WADDILL, EDMUND C.

Near Chateau-Thierry, France,
June 6, 7, and 25, 1918, and near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R.—Richmond, Va.
B.—Richmond, Va.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Oct. 15, 1918. R-Mulberry, Ala. B-Mulberry, Ala. G. O. No. 131, W. D., 1918.

Wagner, Donald L. (1789432)..... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Winston-Salem, N. C. B-Winston-Salem, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Wagner, Francis W. (1708042)_____ Near Badonviller, France, June 24, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Osgood, Ind. B—Osgood, Ind. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WAGNER, TONY (40069).

Near Jaulny, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Poland. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Wahler, Richard (2176034) Near Bois-de-Bantheville, France, Oct. 21, 1918. R—Leavenworth, Kans. B— Leavenworth, Kans. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Warte, George T. (2337545) Near Roncheres, France, July 28, 1918. R—Bruce, S. Dak. B—Pipestone, Minn. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WAITE, HOWARD E. (180832)... Near Juvigny, France, Aug. 31, 1918. R-Highland Park, Mich. B-Canada. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

1918 R—Birmingham, Ala. B—Easonville, Ala. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 31th Infantry, 78th Division.

As adjutant of the 3d Battalion he volunteered and personally reconnoitered under fire the temporary front-line positions of his battalion for location and ammunition supply, when he returned to the command post and collected materials and all available men to earry them forward preparatory to the jump off early the next morning. Finding that there were not enough men to carry the needed supplies, Captain Vrooman loaded a wheelbarrow with ammunition and personally wheeled it 3 kilometers under fire to the firing line, where he supervised its distribution. At "H" hour, observing a company in need of assistance he attached himself to it and went over the top to the objective. After the position was consolidated, and knowing the importance of executing liaison between the attacking troops and those in Grand Pre, he went to that town and brought to the battalion command post definite information that our lines had been joined up.

Major, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

During the attack by his battalion near Chateau-Thierry Major Waddill displayed exceptional bravery by advancing in the open under intense shell and machine-gun fire, reorganizing his leading echelons and pressing the attack with the utmost disregard for personal danger. On June 25 he went among his troops during a heavy gas attack, disregarding his own danger in order to protect his men, remaining in the sector and refusing to be evacuated until he had been so badly burned by gas that his face was black. In the Soissons-Reims attack he again displayed marked courage and leadership in personally taking the lead with his battalion and pushing forward the attack until further advance was stopped by darkness.

Sergeant, Company H, 167th Infantry, 42d Division. He was severely wounded in the attack on the Cote-de-Chatillon, but he refused to be evacuated and remained with his platoon under heavy fire, reorganizing it for the counterattack for which the enemy were forming, thereby setting to his men an inspiring example of utter disregard for danger and heroism in the face of the enemy. face of the enemy.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Thomas M. Wadsworth.

Sergeant, 314th Ambulance Company, 304th Sanitary Train, 79th Division. He heard a cry for help while in a dugout having his own wounds dressed. Although it was during particularly heavy shellfire, he immediately went outside and carried the wounded man to shelter. Later that day, when the dressing station caught fire, he made his way into the burning dressing station under heavy shellfire and secured surgical equipment necessary to save a patient's life.

Sergeant, Company C, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. He was found badly wounded in the neck and legs, crawling back to bring up support to his position.

Corporal, Company I, 166th Infantry, 42d Division. When concentrated machine-gun fire was encountered, he maneuvered his squad to a point near the nests, and, although severely wounded, continued to direct his men in silencing the guns.

Private, Company M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

Private Wagner, with 3 other soldiers, volunteered to carry wounded men of other companies from in front of our advanced positions, and carried this work on under violent machine-gun fire while a counterattack was developing.

Private, Company C, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.

After being severely wounded in the hand and face, he continued his duties as stretcher bearer, carrying wounded from the field during the entire afternoon and evening. For 7 days thereafter he remained constantly on duty and during the entire period he worked under an almost incessant rain of shells.

Private, first class, Headquarters Company, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Exposing himself to heavy shellfire, he kept in repair the telephone wire to the front line, succeeding in his mission despite the fact that shellfire was causing repeated breaks while he was thus engaged.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, G. A. Waite.

Private, first elass, sanitary detachment, 126th Infantry, 32d Division. Facing heavy machine-gun fire, he volunteered to go out and administer first aid to wounded soldiers lying on an open field, saving the lives of 5 men and alleviating the suffering of many others. After dark he continued his work until all the wounded had been removed to the rear and their wounds dressed.

First licutenant, 7th Infautry, 3d Division.
Although shot through the arm, Lieutenant Waite with his company charged a machine-gun nest. His attempt being unsuccessin, he reformed his company and again attacked, this time silencing the nest and capturing it.

R—Durant, Okla.
B—Hood County, Tex.
G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Waldo, Antonio (1762180)

Near the Bois-des-Loges, France,
Nov. 1-4, 1918.

R-Canastota, N. Y. B-Camden, N. Y. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

WALDRON, JOSEPH F. (2387671).
In the Beis-de-La-Grande Fontaine,
France, Sept. 16, 1918.
R—New Bedford, Mass.
B—England.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

WALDRON, WILLIAM H
At Tientsin, China, July 13, 1900.
R-Welch, W. Va. H—Weich, W. Va.
B—Huntington, W. Va.
G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.
Distinguished-service medal also

*WALDROOP, WALTER (55383)__ Near Verdun, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Sylva, N. C. B-Maeon County, N. C. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

R—Clarendon, Tex. B—Falkville, Okla. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

WALES, WAPE C. (1197349)

Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R-Weston, W. Va.

B-Upshur County, W. Va.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WALKER, CAROL (2264876). Near Waereghein, Belglum, Oct. 3t, 1918. R—Healdsburg, Calif. B—Healdsburg, Calif. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WALKER, EUGENE P. (914715)

Near Verdun, France, Nov. 4, 1918. R—Reidsville, N. N. B—Reidsville, N. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WALKER, FRED I. Near the Marno River, France, July

15, 1918; R-Kierkersville, Ohio. B-Fairfield County, Ohio. G. O. No. 80, W. D., 1919.

WALKER, HUBBARD J. (1307335)
Near Ypres, Belgium, July 24, 1818.
R—Fruitland, Tenn.
B.—Fruitland; Tenn.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company E, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.

Sergeant, Company 18, 1921 Haantry, sold Division.
After his company commander had been killed, Sergeant Walden took command of that portion of the company near him and, reorganizing the line under heavy fire, continued forward with his men and repulsed an enemy counterattack. He refused to be evacuated until nightfall, when he was no longer

First sergeant, Company C, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.
Taking command of his company after all the officers had been wounded, Sergeant Waldo displayed exceptional courage and leadership in holding an advanced position throughout the night and leading his men in a successful advance postrior timographs and respect and respect the operations of his company against enemy machine guns and by skillful maneuvering of patrols succeeded in reducing the hostile resistance.

Private, first class, Company G, 61st Infantry, 5th Division.
While serving as a company mail carrier; he repeatedly volunteered and carried important messages through machine-gun and artillery fire. Although severely wounded in the head and neck, he continued to accomplish his dangerous missions, refusing medical treatment until ordered to the rear by his company commander. His fearless conduct and devotion to duty inspired and steadied the men of his organization.

Second lieutenant, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army.
For conspicuous gallantry in action at Tientsin, China, July 13, 1900, in rescuing while under a lieavy fire 3 of his men from drowning, all of whom, fully accountered, had fallen into a deep ditch, when Lieutenant Waldron, also fully accoutered, jumped in and saved them.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
Private Waldroop, with an officer and 6 other soldiers, drove off a violent assault of 50 of the enemy after a terrific pistol and grenade fight, thereby holding Hill 269, which was of the utmost tactical importance. During the fighting Private Waldroom was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. E. H. Waldroop.

Sergeant, Company H, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.
While leading his platoon in an advance in the face of heavy machine-gun and shell fire, he was wounded, but refused to go to the rear, continuing his advance until the objectives had been attained.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, W. W. Waldrop.

Private, first class. Company A, 13th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. Accompanying another soldier, Private Wales left shelter and went forward 100 meters over territory swept by shells and machine-gun fire and carried a wounded man to safety.

Sergeant, Company K, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
Without assistance and in the face of heavy fire, he killed an enemy machine gunner and captured his machine gun, which had been pouring a destructive fire on our forces.

Sergeant, Company D. 7th Engineers, 5th Division.
When 3 boats in a pontoon bridge across the Meuse River were destroyed by artillery fire, he volunteered and waded into the river under heavy shellfire and, by holding up the deck until new boats were launched and placed in position, although under great physical strain, permitted the uninterrupted crossing of the Infantry.

Major, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Holding a front of more than 4½ kilometers along the Marne River, Major Walker commanded a front-line battalion, which received the principal shock of the German attack on the French Army Corps front, but inflicted great losses on the enemy as the latter crossed the river. Those who succeeded in crossing were thrown into such confusion that they were unable to follow the barrage; and, through the effective leadership of this officer, no Germans remained in his sector south of the river at the end of the day's action. When I platoon had been cut off by an entire enemy battalion near the river, he sent other units to its relief and captured the entire German battalion, numbering 200 soldiers and 5 officers, including the battalion commander.

Private, first class, Company C, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. He was on duty at a detached automatic-rifle post heavily shelled by the enemy. 2 soldiers were killed and 3, including himself, seriously wounded. Though this was his first experience under fire, he displayed unhesitating devetion by remaining at his post, while, because of his wound, he could use but 1 hand in handling his rifle.

Private, first class. Company K, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
When his platoon had successfully reached its objective, he was dispatched with a message to battalion headquarters, the journey being under intense fire for the whole distance. He not only delivered the message, but while returning assisted many other carriers by directing them to their proper destinations.

WALKER, JOSEPH
Near Blosmes Village, France, July
R—New York, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*WALKER, WILLIS J. (181766)... Near Bezu-St. Germain, France, Sept. 7, 1918. R—Brady, Tex. B—Comanche County, Tex. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

*WALL, EARL L In the Bois-de-Maulamont, France, Oct. 8, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Marshalltown, Iowa.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

WALL, WALTER W. (76005).
Near Soissons, France, July 8, 1918.
R—Winlock, Wash.
B—Winlock, Wash.
G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

LLACE. ANTHONY M. (2383465).... Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918. WALLACE,

R—Bridgeport, Conn. B—Russia. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

R—Roodhouse, Ill. B—Roodhouse, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WALLACE, JOSEPH A. (2257240) _ Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 3, 1918.
R—Battle Ground, Wash.
B—South Harbor, Minn.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

WALLACE, WILLIAM M. (1320330) Near Mazinghien, France, Oct. 19, 1918. R—Othello, N. C. B—Ashe County, N. C. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

*WALLACE, WILLIAM NOBLE Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 8,

R—Indianapolis, Ind. B—Indianapolis, Ind. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

WALLACE, WILLIAM R. (1236515) _ Near Baslieux, Marne, France, Sept.

6, 1918.
R—Delaware Water Gap, Pa.
B—Delaware Water Gap, Pa.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Captain, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

Making his way from the forward observation post through an extremely heavy shelling, he delivered very important information after telephone communications had been cut and after he had been severely wounded.

Private, first class, Salvage Squad No. 1, Quartermaster Corps.
When fire broke out in a wood where a salvage detachment was encamped, seriously endangering the lives of 200 men because of its proximity to a pile of salvaged German high-explosive 155-millimeter shells, he and Sergt. Afton E. Wheeler voluntarily ran to the scene of the fire and attempted to extinguish the flames, fully aware of the grave danger to themselves. They fought the fire with blankets and sticks, but the fire quickly spread to the shells. Both men were killed by the explosion which followed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Stella Walker.

Second lieutenant, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

As battalion scout officer, Lieutenant Wall led a patrol into the wood for the purpose of securing information of enemy units in preparation for an attack. Severe machine-gun fire was encountered, and this officer was wounded, but with 2 soldiers he continued on until he was wounded the second time, securing the desired information.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Jesse J. Wall.

Private, Company E, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
After 12 hours of hard fighting, when Private Wall's platoon had gained its objective, the water taken forward in canteens had become exhausted, and the men were suffering from thirst. Knowing that the chances were against anyone being able to cross the shell-swept territory for water, the platoon commander called for volunteers. Private Wall responded, and, collecting the canteens of his comrades, departed on his precarious mission. Several hours later he returned, utterly exhausted, but bearing with him the canteens filled with precious water. Other men attempting to make similar trips in the same vicinity were either killed or wounded.

Private, Company E, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

After his company had been held up by terrific machine-gun fire, while advancing on Cunel, Private Wallace, with another soldier, went forward in face of the annihilating fire and by flanking the strong point succeeded in capturing 3 prisoners and 2 guns.

Private, first class, Company F, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. He volunteered and located the right flank of Company G and the left flank of Company II, 119th Regiment, under heavy machine-gun fire. He was wounded while on this mission, but returned with the desired information.

Second lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

On Sept. 16, 1918, under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, without regard to his personal safety he led a raiding party from our lines and attacked the Germans at Maribois Farm, and in severe hand-to-hand fighting inflicted severe loss upon the enemy, captured numerous prisoners, and obtained the information for which he was sent. On Sept. 22, 1918, he voluntarily led a second raiding party into Maribois Farm, inflicted great loss upon the enemy in hand-to-hand fighting, captured many prisoners, and obtained the desired information.

Corporal, Company B, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.
While his company was under heavy shellfire he voluntarily, unhesitatingly, and repeatedly left his shelter under heavy shellfire, without thought of personal danger, rendered first aid, and carried wounded comrades to a place of safety.

Private, first class, Company E, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
With another soldier Private Wallace volunteered and rescued a wounded comrade from an exposed position in front of the line, after 2 other men had lost their lives in attempting to do so.

First lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
Lieutenant Wallace, with I comrade, exposed frequently to direct hostile observation and heavy fire, accomplished an exceedingly hazardous reconnaissance of the front lines of his regiment. After having made his reconnaissance, located enemy strong points, and obtained vitally important information, Lieutenant Wallace was killed by hostile fire, but by the delivery of his careful notes and sketches to his commander, his mission was fulfilled. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, H. L. Wallace.

Sergeant, Company G, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.

Although twice wounded by enemy machine-gun bullets, Sergeant Wallace continued to lead his platoon forward through artillery and machine-gun fire. In the hand-to-hand conflict which followed 11 of the enemy were killed or wounded. His devotion to duty was an excellent example to his command.

WALLENMAIER, HERMAN (42580).
Near Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Valley Town, Mont.
B—Salem, Mich.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WALLER, LUTHER HILL North of Vandieres, France, Sept.

15, 1918. R-Montgomery, Ala. B-Montgomery, Ala. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

WALLERIUS, JAMES J. (553715) __ Near Montfaucon, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R-Utica, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

13, 1918 R—Cambridge, Mass. B—East Aurora, N. Y. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

R-Ringwood, Okla. B-Ringwood, Okla. G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

WALSH, CHARLES H. (1211600) Rear Bony, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923

22, 1918.

R—Benkelman, Nebr.

B—Benkelman, Nebr.

G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Walsh, Herbert E. (1208032)..... Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 27-29, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Long Branch, N. J. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

R—Hartford, Conn. B—Rutland, Vt. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

16-18, 1918. R—Boston, Mass. B—Forest Hills, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Walsh, John A_____ Near Chevieres, France, Oct. 13, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Walsh, John R. (63006) In the Belleu Bois, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R-Woburn, Mass. B-Woburn, Mass. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Private, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Although suffering painfully from wounds, he remained with his company during the entire action, and then was evacuated only when ordered to leave by his commanding officer, heing unable to proceed farther because of the loss of blood.

First lieutenant, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
After his platoon had suffered severe losses by machine-gun and artillery fire during the advance, he reorganized it and led it in the attack through heavy fire to its objective. He then exposed himself to heavy artillery fire in order to bring back wounded men who lay in advance of the line, having gone out on a reconnaissance to locate flanking machine-gun positions. He made 4 trips across the fire-swept area to assist the wounded men to shelter.

Sergeant, Company B, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
When an enemy shell struck a dugout, burying 2 soldiers, Sergeant Wallerius, in plain view of the enemy, directed the work of getting the men out under heavy shell and direct machine-gun fire, displaying the utmost fearlessness. This soldier was in command of his platoon for 11 days of action, leading his men with marked ability and conspicuous bravery.

Captain, observer, 91st Aero Squadron, Air Service. While on a reconnoissance under the most adverse weather conditions, which necessitated flying at an extremely low altitude, he with his pilot penetrated the enemy's territory to a depth of 25 kilometers. Attacked by 5 enemy planes, they destroyed 1 and forced the others to retire. In heavy fire from the ground they continued on their mission until it was completed.

Private, Company C, 101st Field Signal Battalion, 26th Division.
Preparatory to establishing telephone communication from the leading elements to the rear, he voluntarily reconnoitered an area swept by heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, locating forward positions in which wires could be strung.

Private, first class, Company I, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.

As a member of a Lewis gun squad be continued to advance with his section although severely wounded by enemy fire. Upon reaching the enemy trenches an intense enemy machine-gun fire killed or wounded every man of his squad. Although Private Walsh was again severly wounded, he continued to operate his Lewis gun until he collapsed and was carried from the fall. the field.

Private, first class, Company C, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. After being severely wounded, he continued to operate his automatic rifle throughout the night.

Sergeant, Company 41, 106th Infantry, 27th Division.

On Sept. 27 Sergeant Walsh assumed command of his company after other officers and noncommissioned officers had been killed or wounded and led it forward through heavy fire to its objective. He then organized his position for defense. He later made a personal reconnaissance in advance of our lines and returned with valuable information. The courageous conduct of this noncommissioned officer was an important factor in the success of the operations of the company.

Sergeant, Company A, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
He displayed remarkable coolness, courage, and devotion to duty under terrific shell and machinegun fire. When surrounded by the enemy, he organized men near him, collected the wounded, and brought them to safety. He was himself wounded, but remained in action until his company was relieved, sourced bours later. several hours later.

Private, Company D, 101st Engineers, 26th Division.

While out on a working party fired on by the enemy he cared for the wounded.

Two days later, when his platoon was ordered to attack, he was the first man over the top. A machine-gun nest delivering a violent enflading fire from the opposite side of a railroad cut, Private Walsh ran across the track alone to put it out of action and fell wounded before the gun.

First lieutenant, Company F, 302d Engineers, 77th Division.

Accompanied by a sergeant, he went in advance of our lines to reconnoiter for locations for crossing the River Aire. After being constantly exposed to heavy shellfire, they reached the bank of the river, where Lieutenant Walsh pushed farther on and was killed by machine-gun and sniper fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Walsh.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.
Private Walsh with another soldier advanced carrying their machine gun to an enemy pill box and outflanked the enemy. For 2 days and nights without food or water he remained in the pill box under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire and rendered invaluable assistance to the Infantry.

WALSH, PATRICK (47712) ... Near Seicheprey, Ansauville sector, France, Mar. 1, 1918. R—Detroit, Mich. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

Walsh, Richard J.

Near Marg, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Long Island, City N. Y. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

17, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Walsh, William J. (1782946)......... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Lackawanna, N. Y. B—Minooka, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Walshe, Robert J. (1286089) Near Molleville Farm, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

LSTON, RAY E. (2258495)...
Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 29-Oct.
3, 1918.
R-Colville, Wash.
B-Bradgate, Iowa.
G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Okemah, Okla. B—Cedar Creek, Mo. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

*Walter, John (1286370) Near Verdun, France, Oct. 10, 1918. R—Germantown, Md. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1919.

Walters, Arthur L. (204377)...... Near Beaumont, France, Nov. 9, Near 1918. R—Wadena, Iowa. B—Wadena, Iowa. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After being wounded in the arm by an enemy sniper, Captain Walsh refused to go to the rear, but continued with his company, encouraging his men by his coolness and courage. He was killed soon afterwards in dislodging a sniper who had been inflicting many casualties among his men.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Michael J. Walsh.

Sergeant, Company I, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

He voluntarily followed his company commander to the first line through a severe barrage, and when the captain was killed he assumed command of a group on his own initiative, attacked a superior force of the enemy, and inflicted heavy losses upon them.

First lieutenant, 372d Infantry, 93d Division.

As regimental intelligence officer, he went each day during the attack on Monthois to reconnoiter and secure direct information. On Sept. 29 he penetrated the enemy lines east of Ardeuil, discovered the location of a machinegun nest which was holding up the advance, and was most daring in accomplishing his mission. Though he was wounded by a machine-gun bullet, he remained on duty.

First lieutenant, Dental Corps, attached to 303d Engineers, 78th Division. Voluntarily acting as battalion medical officer, Lieutenant Walsh, although severely gassed, administered first aid to injured men under heavy shellfre. He worked constantly until all the wounded were removed to places of safety.

Corporal, Company M, 326th Infantry, 82d Division. Advancing under heavy artillery and incessant machine-gun fire for a distance of 200 yards, Corporal Walsh rescued a wounded comrade and brought him safely back to our lines

Sergeant, Company D, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

He volunteered to lead a daylight raid on enemy trenches and was successful in reaching the objective, capturing machine-gun positions and prisoners. Although he was seriously wounded, he earried a wounded comrade to safety through heavy shell fire and immediately returned to direct further attacks on enemy positions, refusing first aid until he was ordered back by his commanding officer.

Corporal, Company II, 314th Infantry, 79th Division.
While leading a scouting patrol 300 meters in advance of his company, he was fired upon from enemy machine-gun points. Several of his patrol were wounded, but after carrying I man to shelter and assisting the others he continued under heavy fire, locating 6 machine-gun nests and shooting the entire crew of 1 of them.

Corporal, Company A, 110th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division. The remained with a wounded comrade and gave him all possible aid under a severe hombardment of high-explosive and gas shells. He later secured assistance and carried the wounded soldier to a first-aid station.

Bugler, Company M, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

Without any thought of personal danger, he repeatedly carried messages over ground swept by shell and machine-gun fire, delivering his messages with the utinost promptness.

Corporal, Company E, 142d Infantry, 36th Division. Corporal Walter volunteered to lead a patrol for the purpose of locating and silencing an enemy machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance. Before reaching the nest all his men had been killed or wounded, but he continued on alone to within a short distance of the nest, ascertained its position, and reported its location so accurately that it was soon silenced.

Private, first class, Company K, 115th Infantry 29th Division.
During an advance on Rechene Hill, after being shot twice in the abdomen, he captured a machine gun by killing 3 of the enemy.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Walter.

Sergeant, Company B, 2d Ammunition Train, 2d Division.
Sergeant Walters was in charge of a convoy of ammunition trucks which was halted in the town. An enemy shell struck the train and set one of the trucks on fire. Although knocked down by the explosion, Sergeant Walters quickly recovered himself and moved his convoy to safety, after which he returned and jumping to the wheel of the blazing truck, drove to a place where it no longer endangered the lives of others, and extinguished the fire, saving both trucks and amminition. trucks and ammunition.

quent operations.

WALTMAN, EMMETT W. (569248)..... West of Fismes, France, Aug. 1918. R-Kellogg, Idaho. B-Rockford, Wash. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

WALTON, ALONZO (1401373)... At Rue Larcher and Pont-d'Auy, France, Nov. 7-9, 1918. R-Bloomington, Ill. B-Normal, Ill. G. O No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Walton, Charles Wayne (9976)... Near Wool, France, Oct. 6, 1918. R-Woodbury, N. J. B-Woodbury, N. J. G. O. No. 127, W. D., 1918.

Walton, Edward A Near Ripont, Marne, France, Sept. 16, 1918, R-New York, N. Y. B-Ridgewood, N. J. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

WALTON, ELMER A. (2339335)

Near Mezy, France, July 8, 1918.
R—Martins Ferry, Ohio.
B—Martins Ferry, Ohio.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WALTON, ROBERT, Jr.
At Cornay, France, Oct. 9-10, 1918.
R—Augusta, Ga.
B—Augusta, Ga.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WARD, FRANK B. (2805234)

Near the Meuse River, France, Nov. 6, 1918.
R—Hardy, Okla.
B—Winfield, Kans.
G. G. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

WARD, FRANK G. (155956)

At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918.

R-Washington, D. C.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*Ward, Galbraith (1703569)--Near Mont-Notre-Dame, Sept. 10, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Newport, R. I. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923. France,

Ward, George B. (1317764)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Fayetteville, N. C. B—Fayetteville, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company F, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

While a member of a patrol in no man's land, in the vicinity of Ancerviller on the night of May 3-4, 1918, he displayed great self-sacrifice in refusing aid and continuing to do his duty after being mortally wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Sam Walters.

Corporal, Company F, 4th Engineers, 4th Division. He was a member of a small detachment of Engineers which went out in advance of the front line of the Infantry through an enemy harrage from 77-millimeter and 1-pounder guns to construct a footbridge over the liver Vesle. As soon as their operations were discovered machine-gun fire was opened up on them, but, undanted, the party continued at work, removing the German wire entanglements and completing a bridge which was of great value in subse-

Private, Machine Gun Company, 370th Infantry, 93d Division. When his company had been separated from their food supply for 2 days, Private Walton twice volunteered, taking a machine-gun cart, and under heavy fire located the kitchen and brought back much-needed food.

Private, first class, Section No. 635, Ambulance Service.

He proceeded to a point within 15 meters of the German line to rescue the surviving member of a small French patrol. He placed the man in his car and was proceeding under fire when his car became disabled. He removed the wounded man under a severe fire to a place of safety. On the same day, in order to quickly evacuate 2 severely wounded men whose only chance of recovery lay in being promptly removed to a hospital, he went fearlessly through barrage on the only road over which he could travel, bringing the wounded men to a hospital alive.

First lieutenant, 369th Infantry, 93d Division.
While acting as adjutant of the 3d Battalion of his regiment he accompanied the battallon commander on a personal reconnaissance, advancing 100 meters in advance of the assaulting lines, where they were met by heavy enemy machine-gun fire. The battallon commander received 6 severe leg wounds; he was carried and dragged under intense fire to a place of comparative shelter by Lieutenant Walton, who assisted a member of the Medical Corps to apply first aid. While so engaged he himself was wounded. The splendid example of courage and devotion to duty greatly encouraged and inspired the men of the regiment.

Mechanic, Company H, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.
Mechanic Walton volunteered and carried a message over territory generally thought impassable during daylight. He accomplished his mission in spite of having been wounded and nearly buried by a shell explosion.

First lieutenant, 328th Infantry, 82d Division.
After fighting for 6 hours, he volunteered to lead 16 men in a night patrol of the town of Cornay, which was held by many enemy machine-gun posts.
The party worked at clearing the town of the enemy from 11 o'clock at night until next morning, capturing 65 prisoners and 2 machine guns. With 3 soldiers, he entered an enemy dugout and captured 23 prisoners.

Private, Company K, 357th Infantry, 90th Division.
When the patrol of which he was a member had sustained severe casualties, he took eommand, extricated the patrol from ambush, and, exposing himself to intense enemy fire, made 3 trips back and forward to recover the dead and wounded.

Private, Company D, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
Even though his normal duties were as orderly for 2 officers, he volunteered for action at Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918, successfully went into no man's land and killed a sniper who was inflicting losses on his detachment, carried messages through machine-gun and artillery fire, and, although twice buried in shell craters, he displayed heroic bravery, coolness, and fearless devotion throughout.

Sergeant, Company M, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.
Voluntarily accompanying an officer and enlisted man of his battalion in a search of the Bois-de-Chandriere for the survivors of a battalion which had been relieved from its position in the line, he crossed an open field under terrifice enemy fire a distance of 600 yards under constant observation of the enemy, sought and found several survivors, and led them back to his own lines. Sergeant Ward was severely wounded in the performance of this hazardous duty and died of pneumonia shortly thereafter.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, H. G. Ward.

Private, Company D, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
When his company was halted by enemy machine-gun fire, Private Ward rushed the hostile position and killed 1 gunner with his bayonet. Later in the engagement he came upon 20 of the enemy in a trench. He bayoneted 3 of these and took the others prisoners. He was severely wounded in the WARD, GEORGE BLAIN (1309976) .... Near Brancourt, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R-Easley, S. C. B-Brickton, N. C. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

R-Gregory Landing, Mo. B-Plymouth, Ill. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

WARD, HERBERT (57104)_ Near Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 19, 1918.

R-Paintsville, Ky. B-Offutt, Ky. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

WARD, JOHN C. East of Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Buffalo, N. Y. B-Elmira, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

WARD, MAHLON C. (1214562)

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Medina, N. Y.

B—Ridgeway, N. Y.

G. O., No. 139, W. D., 1918.

WARD, THOMAS F., Jr. Near Bony, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

*WARD, WILLIAM H., Jr. (1215870)_ Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1948. R—Auburn, N. Y. B—Auburn, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919

*WARE, ARTHUR F_____ In the vicinity of Chatcau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918.
R-Kansas City, Mo.
B-Des Moines, Iowa.
G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

WARE, JAMES V ... RE, JAMES V Near Exermont, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R--Norfolk, Va. B--Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

WARPIELD, ARTHUR H. (557719)

At Sergy, France, Aug. 1, 1918,
R-West Drookfield, Mass.
B-Conway, Mass.
G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

WARFIELD, WILLIAM J.
Near Ferme-de-la-Riviere, France, Sept. 28, 1913. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company A, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Taking command of the company after all officers had become easualties, he reorganized it and led it under hostile shelling and withering machine-gun fire to its objective. He remained in command until painfully wounded on the following day.

Corporal, Company A, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.

After his company had reached its objective and was being subjected to severo fire from an enemy machine-gun nest, he led his combat group of 3 men around the right flank of the company and, under heavy fire, charged the enemy position, capturing 3 guns and 13 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company C, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

After his platoon leader had been wounded, Sergeant Ward reorganized the platoon under heavy fire and led it to its objective. He then led forward a patrol to locate the onemy positions, during which reconnaissance he was wounded by a machine-gun bullet. The ball lodged above the right eye.

After receiving first aid he returned to his unit for duty. During a subsequent attack in the Argonne he was again wounded.

First licutenant, chaplain, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line he voluntarily and at great risk to hinself went forward under heavy shell and machine-gun fire to care for the wounded and to search for the dead. Twice he was ordered off the field of battle by officers, being told each time that it was sure death to remain.
During the entire time his regiment was engaged he remained on the field under fire, displaying a fine example of bravery and courage which was an inspiration to all. inspiration to all.

Private, medical detachment, 314th Infantry, 79th Division.
Under heavy machine-run and artillery fire, Private Ward waded through a swamp, administered first aid to a wounded soldier, and then carried the latter

Private, Company F, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.

During the operations against the enemy lines east of Ronssoy he went out under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in bandaging and beinging back to our line wounded soldiers.

First lieutenant, 106th Infantry, 27th Division.
Severely wounded by enemy fire, he learned that an officer of his company, Lieutenant Boullee, was seriously wounded and lying in a shell hole some distance away. Dragging himself to the side of Lieutenant Boullee, he laboridistance away. Dragging himself to the side of Lieutenant Boullee, he laboriously rendered first aid to the latter, who could not be moved on account of his wounded condition. Refusing to be evacuated to hospital, Lieutenant Ward chose to remain with his brother officer. The enemy having recaptured the territory in which the wounded officers were lying, the American officers remained concealed in their place of comparative shelter for 48 hours, when the enemy was repulsed and the ground regained, when the wounded men wave cast to the rear were sent to the rear. 10

First sergeant, Company M, 108th Infantry, 27th Division, Although severely wounded, Sergeant Ward assumed command of his company after the company commander had become a casualty, displaying great gallantry and bravery in leading them into action. While endeavoring to locate enemy machine-gun nests, he was killed.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William H. Ward, sr.

Sergeant, 49th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Under heavy machine-gun fire, he attempted to establish liaison with an adjoin-ing French unit, during which he was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to aunt, Mrs. Libby Riley.

Captain, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

Captain, 28th Infantry, ist Division.

His company having been repulsed in an attack on a strongly organized position, Captain Ware reformed his company and personally led the 63 remaining members of company in a second attack and in the taking of the enemy position at the point of the bayonet. He then, under heavy fire, prepared the position for defeuse against enemy assault.

Sergeant, Company B, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
He displayed exceptional courage and loyalty by remaining in active command of his section after being wounded twice.

First lieutenant, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.

Although separated with his platoon from the company, he continued to lead a stubborn resistance against enouty machine-gun nests, successfully capturering a gun and killing the crew. Alter having been severely wounded, he still continued in command, refusing relief until his objective was reached.

41.7,

*Waring, William W. Near Dur-sur-Meuse, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R.—Buffalo, N. Y. B.—Franklinville, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Warner, Donald D
From Friauville to Lamorville,
France, Sept. 4, 1918.
R—Swampscott, Mass.
B—Rochester, N. Y.
G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

WARNER, LEO V. RNER, LEO V.
Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918.
R—Loda, Ill.
B—Loda, Ill.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

WARREN, EDWARD R.... Near Fey-en-Haye, France, Sept. 12, 1918 R—El Paso, Tex. B—San Antonio, Tex. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*Warren, Robert F. (2383468)_____ Near Clery-le-Petit, France, Nov. 4, 1918.

R-Syracuse, N. Y. B-Solvay, N. Y. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

WARREN, RUFUS (2244006)_____ Near Bantheville, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Ratcliff, Tex B—Nacogdoches, Tex. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Warthen, Bruce (306756)_____ Near Nervins Ferme, France, July 15, 1918.

R—St. Paul, Minn. B—Omaha, Nebr. G. O. 126, W. D., 1919.

WASCHER, HAROLD A. Near Nouart, France, Nov. 5, 1918. R—St. Cloud, Minn. B—Champaign, Ill. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Washa, James J. (1387491)_____ Near Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 9, 1918. R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Wasilewski, Joseph (1279636)...... North of Verdun, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Passaic, N. J. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, pilot, 11th Aero Squadren, Air Service.
Deeming it impossible to catch their own formation, Lieutenant Waring, with Lient. Sighert Norris, observer, attached themselves to a formation from the 20th Squadron and engaged in a 35-minute fight with 30 enemy aircraft. Five of this squadron were lost and the observer of one of the three remaining planes seriously wounded. The wounded man had fallen in a position which made the control of the machine difficult. Lieutenant Waring immediately placed his machine between the enemy formation and the crippled companion in order to protect it and continued to fly in this place until our lines were crossed and the enemy scouts driven off.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, W. W. Waring.

rivate, Company B, 135th Machine Gun Battalion, 37th Division. In the face of intense machine-gun fire he voluntarily swam the Scheldt River to obtain information regarding the enemy. His successful return with the desired information enabled his company commander to so place his guns that they could be fired with great advantage.

First lieutenant, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service. While on a bombing expedition with other planes from his squadron he engaged in a running fight over hostile territory with a superior number of enemy battle planes from Friauville to Lamorville, France. During the combat he was severely wounded, his right thigh being badly shattered. In spite of his injuries he continued to operate his machine guns until the hostile formation had been driven off and one plane shot down burning.

Captain, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division. Captain Warner, accompanied by a runner, deliberately crossed an open space in order to draw enemy fire and thereby locate hostile positions, securing information which enabled him to maneuver his men into position with a minimum of casualties. He repeatedly visited all parts of his company's position under fire and in so doing was wounded.

First lieutenant, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
Lieutenant Warren led his platoon forward through artillery and machine-gun fire to rescue 6 men who had been cut off from our lines by the enemy. While crossing an open space his platoon was fired upon by enemy machine guns.
Lieutenant Warren advanced ahead of his platoon, calling to his men "Follow until he fell wounded by a machine-gun bullet.

First lieutenant, 315th Engineers, 90th Division. He was in command of a platoon of Engineers and went over the top with the second wave of Infantry. When the first wave was halted by severe machinegun and shell fire early in the action and all its officers killed or disabled he led his men up to the first wave, reorganized the remaining effectives and led them across a valley and up a hill through severe flanking fire from German machine guns. He was knecked down by the explosion of a shell, but undaunted by murderous fire from the front and both flanks, he continued to lead his men on toward their objectives until he was shot down by a machine gun.

Corporal, Company E, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.

He voluntarily left a place of comparative safety and went over open and bulletswept ground to the assistance of a comrade who had been wounded in the advance. While administering first aid he was a continual prey for enemy snipers, but he bravely continued with his mission until killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Rose Warren.

Private, Headquarters Company, 360th Infantry, 90th Division.
Although wounded in the leg and hand, he insisted on advancing with his unit. In addition to his equipment he carried a trench-mortar barrel, the extra weight proving a severe strain on account of his wounds. After receiving 2 more wounds from shrapnel he crawled alone to the dressing station, refusing proffered help. Mechanic, Battery E, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division.

During a severe gas shelling Mechanic Warthen aided a wounded comrade in adjusting his mask before he had placed his own, resulting in his being seriously gassed.

Second licutenant, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division. While commanding an observation party he established a post well in advance of the Infantry, and despite the severe fire to which he was subjected he set up and maintained telephone communications. While thus engaged he was severely wounded by machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company F, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Exposing himself to heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, he single handed silenced 2 enemy machine-gun nests which had been holding up his platoon. On his own initiative he advanced against the first of the enemy posts and killed its crew. He then attacked the second position and took the enemy arms prisoner. crew prisoner.

Private, first class, Company A, 114th Infantry, 29th Division.
Throughout the entire day he passed from the rear to the front line carrying food, water, and supplies to the front. During his return trips he assisted the wounded and once carried a comrade on his back. On every journey he was compelled to pass through terrific shellfire.

Waskiewic, Joseph (559066)..... Near Bois-de-Brieulles, France, Oct.

9-13, 1918.

R—New Bedford, Mass.

B—Thorndike, Mass.

G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*WASS, LESTER S ASS, LESTER S.
In Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 11,
1918, and near Vierzy, France, 1918, and near July 18, 1918.

R—Gloucester, Mass. B—Gloucester, Mass. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

WATERHOUSE, JOHN R. (1389541)_ Near Bois-de-Chaume, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—C'hicago, Ill. B—Fort Wayne, Ind. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*Waters, Floyd E. (41280)______ Near Villemontry, France, Nov. 10, 1918. R—Susquehanna, Pa. B—Susquehanna, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919

Waters, James L. (1386776)..... Near Gressaire Woods, France, Aug. 9, 1918.

R—Antioch, Ill. B—Wankegan, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

WATERS, TALIESIN. Near Baslieux, France, Sept. 6, 1918. R—Nanticoke, Pa. B—Nanticoke, Pa. G. O. No. 7, W. D., 1919.

*WATKINS, EUGENE G. (3114715)_____ Near Verdun, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Bristol, Pa. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R-East Liverpool, Ohio. B-East Liverpool, Ohio. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

*WATKINS, GEORGE F. North of the River Ourcq, near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 23,1918. R—Springfield, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

1918.

R—Atlanta, Ga. B—Carroll County, Ga. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

WATKINS, LEWIS (2816131).... Near Eply, France, Nov. 4, 1918. R-Ullin, Ill. B-Illinois. G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company A, 11th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. As a runner between company and battalion headquarters he crossed heavily shelled areas to deliver important messages. Wounded when crossing an open space, subjected to artillery and machine-gun fire, he refused to be evacuated, but continued the performance of his duties.

Captain, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

In the Bois-de-Belleau when all the officers of his company had become casualties he displayed marked heroism in leading his men forward in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, assisting in the capture of many machine guns. Near Vierzy he fearlessly exposed himself to enemy machine-gun and artillery fire, directing personally the reduction of strong points. He was killed at the head of his men while leading an advance.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, L. A. Wass.

Private, first class, Company II, 132d Infantry, 33d Division. Showing utter disregard for personal danger, he advanced under heavy fire 200 yards farther into the woods than the rest of his platoon, captured 26 prisoners, and brought them back to our lines.

Corporal, Headquarters Company, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

After participating in the action throughout the day and after seeing that his men had shelter for the night, he voluntarily exposed himself to care for the wounded who were lying out in the open.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, John Waters.

Corporal, Company C, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

Showing utter disregard for personal danger he advanced alone in the face of heavy fire for 100 yards in advance of our lines to attack a machine-gun emplacement, the fire from which was causing heavy casualties. He killed the 2 men at the enemy gun, permitting a renewal of the advance of his company. company.

Second lieutenant, 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division. He voluntarily went to the assistance of a large number of wounded soldiers who were in an exposed position waiting aid and continued for several hours to dress their wounds throughout a severe hombardment of gas and high-explosive shells, while hostile airplanes flew low and swept with machinegun fire the line of litters bearing the wounded. After administering aid to 36 wounded men he helped carry them to a place of safety.

Private, Company K, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.

While acting as runner between battalion and regimental headquarters he received severe wounds, but continued on with his mission to his destination, which was reached just before he died. After being wounded he covered a distance of approximately 300 meters to deliver his message.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Harriet Jane Watkins.

Sergeant, Company D, 135th Machine Gun Battalion, 37th Division.

After being twice wounded, Sergeant Watkins continued to lead his section in action against the enemy under severe machine-gun and direct artillery fire. Though he had been ordered to the rear by his platoon commander, he returned to his section as soon as his wounds had been dressed.

Second lieutenant, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

During the storming of the heights north of the River Ourcq, near Villers-surfere, France, July 23, 1918, he was an example of courage and soldiery fortitude. He was continually with the foremost elements of his platoon in the most dangerous areas it had to occupy, both during the advance and during the maintenance of the position gained. His platoon was almost annihilated and he himself was killed and he himself was killed. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Francis Watkins.

Posthumously awarded.

Major, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.

On the night of Oct. 11 Major Watkins led his battalion under heavy shellfire, forded the Aire River, and took up an important position protecting a flank. forced the Aire River, and took up an important position proceening a Balk. On Oct, 14 and 15 he advanced against strongly held enemy positions, penetrating and capturing numerous prisoners and machine guns. He was wounded on both days, but he continued on duty until Oct. 17, suffering intense pain, until he was ordered to the rear. His fortitude and bravery furnished an inspiring example to his men.

Private, first class, Company A, 350th Machine Gun Battalion, 92d Division. Private, first class, Company A, 350th Machine Gun Battalion, 92d Division. He accompanied an Infantry patrol, acting as gunner with a heavy machine gun. When a large party of the enemy had worked around the flank of the patrol and was advancing across a road along which the patrol was withdrawing, he went into action with his gun at a range of less than 100 yards, although the order to withdraw had been given. Displaying exceptional coolness and bravery under heavy rifle and machine-gun fire, he succeeded in dispersing the enemy. He was the last of the patrol to retire. Watres, Laurence H.
Near Baslicux, France, Sept. 5, 1918.
R—Scranton, Pa.
B—Scranton, Pa. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1919.

Watson, Ray E.
Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 5, 1918.
R—Joplin, Mo.
B—Webb City, Mo.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Watts, Kenneth (2857069)

At Andevanne, France, Nov. 2, 1918.

R—Barnes City, Iowa.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*WAY, PENNINGTON H ... A., Farshaddon H., Near Buxieres, France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R—St. Davids, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

AR, EUGENE W
In the vicinity of Chateau-Thierry,
France, June 6, 1918.
R—Hazelton, Pa.
B—Beaver Meadows, Pa.
G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

*WEATHERMAN, HUGH (124281) At Mandres, France, Mar. 1, 1918.

R—Beamen, Iowa.

B—Winston-Salem, N. C.
G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

WEAVER, CHARLES H ... Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918. R—Sebring, Ohio. B—East Liverpool, Ohio. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

WEAVER, JESSE FRANK (1307339)
Near Genove, France, Oct. 8, 1918.
R—Finger, Tenn.
B—Finger, Tenn.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

WEAVER, ROSS E. At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R-Concordia, Kans. B-St. Joseph, Mo. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

WEAVER, WILLIAM G.
Near Cierges, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R—Louisville, Ky.
B—Louisville, Ky.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

WEAVERLING, HAROLD (57324)
South of Soissons, France, July 18-21, 1918.
R—Kearney, Pa.
B—Tatesville, Pa.
G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

Captain, 108th Machine Gun Battalion, 28th Division.
When, under heavy enemy machine-gun fire, he took command of Company D, 109th Infantry, which was without officers and was greatly disorganized in a position to his rear He led the company, together with some of his own men, to the attack, killing a number of the enemy, taking others prisoners, and capturing several machine-gun nests.

Second licutenant, 317th Infantry, 80th Division.

Although severely wounded, Licutenant Watson continued to lead his platoon of the machine gun company with great coolness and disregard of personal danger. When the attacking Infantry dropped back in the face of heavy machine-gun fire, he held his position in front of them until they returned to the attack. to the attack.

Private, Company B, 360th Infantry, 90th Division.

Sent with another runner from battalion headquarters to deliver a message to a front-line company, he made his way through the enemy fire, and when his comrade was wounded delivered the message; then he rescued his wounded companion, carrying him under heavy fire to a dressing station. He then returned to duty. returned to duty.

Second lieutenant, observer, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service. Lieutenant Way, with First Lieutenant Gundelach, pilot, volunteered for a hazardous mission to bomb concentrations of enemy troops. They successfully bombed their objective, but while returning were attacked by 8 enemy planes. Their plane was brought down in flames and both officers killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Eleanor H. Way.

Corporal, 49th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. On June 6, 1918, in the vicinity of Chateau-Thierry with a private he went out into an open field under heavy shell and machine-gun fire and succeeded in bandaging and carrying back to our lines a wounded comrade, Private, Battery C, 5th Field Artillery, 1st Division.

During a heavy enemy bombardment of gas and high-explosive shells, Private Weatherman left shelter for the purpose of putting gas masks on his horses, and while so doing was mortally wounded by a shell fragment. Realizing the character of his wound, he refused medical attention, urging the Medical Corps men to assist other wounded men who could be saved.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Ellen Weatherman.

Second lieutenant, Company C, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
On July 19, 1918, near Soissons, France, when severely wounded he refused to leave his command, but led it forward under heavy fire until his objective was reached.

Private, Company C, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

At the starting of the attack Private Weaver was painfully wounded by machinegun fire. Disregarding his wound, he continued on, and when the company was held up by the extreme fire he voluntarily flanked the enemy position and enabled his contrades to capture the gun. He was evacuated when the objective was reached.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 102d Infantry, 26th Division. He showed complete disregard of personal safety by remaining with the foremost elements and administering aid to the wounded throughout the day under constant artillery bombardment and direct machine-gun and rifle fire from the enemy.

Private, medical detachment, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
From July 15 to 21 he worked continuously among the wounded of his regiment.
never hesitating for the heaviest fire. He volunteered and remained with the unit which relieved his regiment and continued his work with the new unit from July 24-27.

Major, 8th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.

The assault battalion, 7th Infantry, having been halted by heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, Major Weaver personally placed 4 machine guns and the 1-pounder in position and directed their fire in close cooperation with the Infantry. In performing this act Major Weaver was forced to cross 3 times an area exposed to heavy machine-gun fire, in which no less than 50 men had been previously killed or wounded. His heroic efforts enabled the Infantry to advance and insured the success of this operation.

Sergeant, Company E, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

On July 18 Sergeant Weaverling assumed command of his company after all officers had been killed or wounded and led it to the day's objective and consolidated the position taken. On July 19 he was wounded and rendered unconscious. After regaining consciousness at the aid station he returned to his company and again assumed command of it and later of the 2d battalion in the final operations near Berzy-le-Sec. The success of his organization was in a measure due to the devotion to duty and brilliant leadership of this noncommissioned officer.

*WEBB, HARRY L Near Verdun, France, Oct. 8-25,1918. R—Bel Air, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1919.

WEBB, JOHN R ... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Tulsa, Okla. B—Santa Barbara, Calif. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WEBB, MILTON C. (1379161)

Near Romagne, France, Nov. 1, 1918, R—East St. Louis, III.
B—Birmingham, Ala.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Webber, George B. (1391383)

Near Brieulles, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B-Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WEBER, BENJAMIN S. (1705234) ______At Fond-de-Vas, France, Sept. 14, 1918.

Weber, John F.
Near Vieville-en-Haye, France, Sept.
29, 1918; Chevieres, France, Oct.
15, 1918; and Grand Pre, France,
Oct. 25, 1918.
R—South Amboy, N. J.
B—Florence, N. J.
G. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Weber, Nicklous (2153453)...

Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16, 1918.

R—Waterloo, Iowa.

B—Waterloo, Iowa.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

WEBSTER, HARRISON B ... Near Bois-de-Brieulles, France, Sept. 26 to Oct. 12, 1918. R- Castine, Me. B-Castine, Me. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

WEBSTER, TILLMAN (2118125) _ !" Near Ardeuil, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Alexandria, La. B—Alexandria, La. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*WEBSTER, WILLARD M ... Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Houston, Tex. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

WEED, EARL II... Near Soissons, France, July 19-22, 1918. R—Berkeley, Calif. B—Wilton, Iowa. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

WEED, NEWELL P. ED, NEWELL P.

Near Foret-d'Argonne, France,
Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Montelair, N. J.

B—Brooklyn, N. Y.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

In several advances during this period he led his men, regardless of personal danger, capturing a number of machine guns and prisoners. On Oct. 11 he was wounded, but refused to go to the rear. During the advance on Oct. 21 in the Bois-de-la-Grande Montagne the right combat group of his platoon being disorganized by artillery fire and several men killed and wounded, he displayed exceptioual gallantry in reorganizing the remainder of his platoon and in reestablishing liaison with the units on his right, thus relieving a dangerous situation. He was killed on Oct. 25 while leading an attack on a machine-gun nest. chine-gun nest.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Harry L. Webb.

Second lieutenant, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps.
While his crew was engaged in digging out the tank which had become ditched in a shell hole in front of the main Hindenburg line, an enemy machine gun opened fire on them at a distance of 30 yards. Being unable to use his guns on account of his position, Lieutenant Webb crawled forward to the machine gun and killed the enemy gunners with his pistol. His act enabled the men to free the tank, which subsequently aided the advancing Infantry.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 124th Field Artillery, 33d Division. Wounded while administering aid to other men during shellfire, he remained on duty in disregard of his own injury.

First sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
When it appeared evident that his forces would give way under the pressure of the musual enemy fire, Sergeant Webber jumped forward and, taking command of a machine-gun crew, led them into the front line, where he remained for 2 days. He refused evacuation while suffering from a severe gassing, for 2 days. He refused evacuation whi until he finally collapsed under the strain.

Sergeant, Company D, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.

Although severly wounded, he continued to lead his platoon in an attack on enemy machine-gun nests through a sweeping artillery and machine-gun fire until he fell, completely exhausted.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 311th Infantry, 78th Division. On September 29 and the following days Lieutenant Weber remained at his aid station under shell and machine-gun fire, giving medical aid and directing the evacuation of wounded, On Oct. 15 he established an unprotected aid station, and, though slightly gassed, he continued to give first aid to the wounded and direct their evacuation. On Oct. 25 he left his battalion in support and continued to the town of Grand Pre, where he established an aid station, keeping on with his work through heavy bombardment of the town.

Private, Company K, 325th Infantry, 82d Division.

After 3 stretcher bearers had been shot down while trying to bring in a wounded soldier, he advanced in the face of the terrific machine-gun and artillery fire and rescued the wounded man. He then returned to the field and successfully brought the 3 stretcher bearers to our lines.

Major, Medical Corps, attached to 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
After seeing that his personnel was functioning properly, he went fearlessly to positions in the front lines. When stretcher bearers were unable to handle the large number of casualties, he personally took a light German wagon to the front lines and gathered the wounded. His personal bravery was an inspiration to his men throughout his service. He was killed by shellfire on Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Harrison B. Webster.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 371st Infantry, 93d Division.
With 3 other soldiers, Private Webster crawled 200 yards ahead of our lines, under violent machine-gun fire, and rescued an officer who was lying mortally wounded in a shell hole.

First lieutenant, 106th Infantry, 27th Division.

He received a painful wound in the face shortly after leading his company to the attack, but he refused to be evacuated until he suffered additional wounds, which eventually caused his death.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Beulah Webster.

First lieutenant, chaplain, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He displayed exceptional bravery in passing through open fields under heavy fire to the front lines to render first aid and to cheer the wounded.

Captain, Tank Corps. During the operations on the edge of Forct-d'Argonne Captain Weed advanced alone some 300 yards ahead of the tanks and Infantry through heavy machinegun fire in order to reconnoiter a passage for his command. While examining German trenches he was surprised by German infantrymen and was being conducted to the rear when he heard one of his tanks. In spite of the fact that he was unarmed and the Germans threatened his life if he moved, he signaled the tank and made his escape.

Weeks, Mody A. (1342711) Near Brieulles, France, Nov. 3, 1918. R—Crews Depot, Ala. B—Pharas, Ala. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WEEMS, JAMES F. (1307985)
Near Molain, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R-Greenville, Tenn. B—Greene County, Tenn. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

*Wehner, Joseph F. Near Rouvres, France, Sept. 15, 1918. R—Everett, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

*Weigel, Roy (42617) Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—Calhoun County, Ill.
G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

Weik, Irving C. (2264670) Near Waereghem, Belgium, Oct. 31, 1918. R-Oakland, Calif. B—San Francisco, Calif. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Weimer, Herman H. Near the Bois-de-Chaume, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Chicago, Ill.

B—Galena, Ill.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Weimer, John Samuel (2225018)..... Near the Vesle River, France, Aug. 10, 1918.

R—Mount Pleasant, Tex.

B—Waxahachie, Tex.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

8, 1918. R—Alpena, Mich. B—Alpena, Mich. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

WEINER, DANIEL J. (551322).

Near Mezy, France, July 15–19, 1918.

R—Brooklyn, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

WEINMAN, GLEN G. (43179) ... South of Soissons, France, July 20, 1918. R—Columbus, Ohio. B—Columbus, Ohio. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Private, Company F, 7th Engineers, 5th Division.

He showed extraordinary daring and nerve in helping place cables across the River Meuse for a pontoon bridge and later in placing cables across the Est Canal for the same purpose. The position was under direct observation of German machine gunners and snipers.

Corporal, Company F, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Corporal Weeks on the morning of Sept. 30, when 2 enemy machine guns were making a part of the line untenable, advanced across open ground upon 1 of the guns, rushed the position alone, captured the gun and 5 of the enemy, and shot down the sixth, who endeavored to escape. By this gallant act he prevented the enemy from enfilading our position and thereby saved the lives of many of his comrades. In a later advance, while leading his men in an attack upon an enemy machine-gun nest, he was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Weeks.

Private, Company E, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. Having volunteered to carry a message to an automatic-rifle post 100 yards in advance of the line, across a field swept by machine-gun fire, Private Weems continued on his mission, even after being seriously wounded, and delivered the message, thereby facilitating the destruction of machine-gun nests which were hindering the advance. After returning with the answer he insisted upon walking to the dressing station.

First licutenant, pilot, 27th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While on a mission he found an enemy patrol of 8 machines attacking a single American observation machine. He immediately attacked, destroying 1 and foreing another down out of control, his own plane being badly damaged by enemy machine-gun fire. He managed to convoy the American plane to safety. Oak-leaf cluster.

Oak-leaf cluster.

A bronze oak leaf is awarded him for the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Mangiennes and Reville, France, Sept. 16, 1918; Amid terrific antiaircraft and ground machine-gun fire he descended, attacked, and destroyed 2 enemy balloons. One of these balloons was destroyed in flames after it had been hauled to the ground and was resting in its bed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Frank W. Wehner.

Sergeant, Company E, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

He showed entire disregard for his own safety in making several attempts to locate the positions of machine guns whose heavy fire was hindering the advance of his battalion. He was killed while leading a rush upon one of the guns which he had located. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Emma Kemper.

First sergeant, Company I, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
On 2 occasions he passed through an uncut wire entanglement, enfiladed by enemy machine-gun fire, to obtain the assistance of our machine guns to aid in the advance of his company. His entire exploit was under terrific fire of the enemy, but he succeeded in enabling his company to go forward and clean out the opposing machine-gun nest.

First lieutenant, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. He had been wounded in the shoulder and a machine-gun bullet bad pene-trated his steel helmet, but he nevertheless continued to lead his company, creating confidence in his men at a critical moment. Upon being ordered to the rear by his battalion commander, he returned to his company as soon as his wounds had been dressed.

Private, Company M, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
While on outpost duty Private Weimer learned that a soldier from another organization was lying wounded in a shell hole 200 yards away. With another member of his squad Private Weimer voluntarily went through machinegun and sniper fire and carried the wounded man to shelter.

First lieutenant, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
After being seriously wounded in the abdomen Lieutenant Weine displayed remarkable fortitude in organizing his command for the continuation of the attack before consenting to his removal to the rear.

Private, Company G, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Private Weiner displayed the utmost devotion to duty and disregard for personal safety in carrying messages through heavy artillery barrages, thereby enabling his company commander to maintain liaison with units in the rear.

Corporal, Company M, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Corporal Weinman carried an important message through heavy artillery and machine-run fire calling for reinforcements and ammunition. Notwithstanding the fact that 2 previous runners had been killed, he carried out his mission. His individual gallantry contributed materially to the success of the operation.

Weis, Anthony J. (1569828) At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Hammond, Ind. B—Hammond, Ind. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

WEISS, FRED R. (1097204). Near Montauville, France, Oct. 24, 1918

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Russia. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

WEITZENBERG, GEORGE (1228915)
At Neuvilly, France, Sept. 25, 1918.
R—Brooklyn, N. Y.
B—Germany.
G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*WELKER, THOMAS B. (1520540). Rear Cicrges, France, Sept. 28, 1918.
R—Akron, Ohio.
B—Danville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

*Welles, Hallack, Jr... Near Bouresches, France, July 20, 1918.

R—Brookline, Mass. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Welling, Hank Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Trenton, N. J. B—Trenton, N. J. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*Wells, Edward L.
Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4, 1918.
R.—Charleston, S. C.
B.—Charleston, S. C.
G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

Wells, Floyd H. (2158832) Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R—Chester, Iowa.
B—Jolley, Iowa.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Wells, John T. (1315439)... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Watha, N. C. B-Watha, N. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Newark, Ohio. B-Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Private, medical detachment, 103d Infantry, 26th Division. He displayed exceptional courage under violent machine-gun and rifle fire by standing up in the open for the purpose of locating machine-gun nests.

Private, first class, Battery F, 21st Field Artillery, 5th Division.
When shellfire had ignited the powder store of his battery, Private Weiss, in his stocking feet, was the first to enter the dump and single handed pulled numerous boxes of ammunition to safety, despite the danger from explosion and increased enemy shellfire.

Sergeant, Company A, 2d Antiaireraft, Machine Gun Battalion.
He voluntarily ran through violent enemy shellfire to the aid of 2 soldiers of another organization who had been struck by an exploding shell. Finding I dead and the other severely wounded, he administered first aid to the wounded soldier and remained with him until an ambulance could be brought up.

Private, Cempany B, 146th Infantry, 37th Division. Private, Company B, 140th Imanoy, 37th Division.

When his company had become disorganized under intense machine-gun fire,

Private Welker assumed leadership of a group of men and courageously charged a machine-gun nest in plain view of the enemy, losing his life in this heroic attempt.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Norman H. Welker.

First licutenant, 104th Infantry, 26th Division.
Licutenant Welles was seriously wounded in exposing himself to enemy machine-gun fire in order to locate the source. He nevertheless refused to be evacuated but continued in the advance with his men, inspiring them by his Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, M. C. Welles.

First licutenant, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.

After being severely wounded in the side Licutenant Welling refused to be evacuated but continued to lead his platoon in the attack. Throughout the atternoon and evening he remained with his men, inspiring them by his courage and fortitude in spite of intense pain, it being necessary to earry him when a temporary withdrawal of the lice was ready when a temperary withdrawal of the line was made.

Second lieutenant, 2d Machine Gun Battalion, 1st Division.
When the attack was held up by heavy machine-gun fire, he volunteered for the mission and led a platoon of Infantry, reinforced by 4 machine guns, into Exermont. In spite of desperate resistance, he led the attack through the streets, capturing many prisoners and learning from 1 of these the approximate location of machine guns on heights to the north led the 3 remaining members of the command against these. Within 50 yards of the enemy emplacements 1 of his men was killed and Lieutenant Wells was mortally wounded, but he had succeeded in indicating to those in the rear the location of the hostile positions.

the location of the hostile positions.
Oak-leaf cluster.
Lieutenant Wells was awarded an oak-leaf cluster for the following act of extraordinary heroism near Buzaney, France, July 21, 1918: When the advancing lines were checked by the fire of numerous enemy machine guns, Lieutenant Wells skillfully directed the plaeing of one of his machine guns and silenced the hostile guns. While the line was being consolidated this officer, with another, reconneitered beyond the left flank, which was being swept by enfllading fire. Locating a German machine gun, he put it out of action by well-aimed shots from a rifle which he was then carrying. He then pushed on farther, accompanied by asoldier, captured a prisoner and discovered a nest of 8 enemy machine guns located in a trench, whereupon with great daring he brought up a section of guns and opened up an annihilating fire which dispersed the enemy with many casualties.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Edward L. Wells.

Corporal, Company M, 326th Infantry, 82d Division.
With another soldier Corporal Wells advanced several hundred yards ahead of the front line, under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, and rescued a wounded comrade.

Sergeant, Company E. 119th Infantry, 30th Division. Wounded at the start of an advance, he continued in command of his platoon and, engaging in hand-to-hand fighting, bayoneted 3 Germans and captured several others. He displayed marked personal bravery, leading his platoon ably until forced to retire because of less of blood from his wound.

Private, Battery A, 10th Field Artillery, 3d Division.
Engaged in maintaining liaison between the Artillery and the Infantry, he was wounded in the arm while carrying an important message. He completed his mission, however, before securing first-aid treatment and immediately afterwards returned to duty.

Welsh, Edward J. (2409727) ______ Near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 19, 1918.

R—Freehold, N. J. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WENDELL, WILLIAM (2055680) _______ Against hostile Moros on Patian Island, Philippine Islands, July 4, R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.

WENDELS, ANTHONIE (40363) Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Ridgewood, N. J. B-Holland. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Wenell, Carl O. (1240)
At Pannes, France, Sept. 21, 1918.
R—Minneapolis, Minn.
B—Minneapolis, Minn.
G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*Werner, Bernard________At Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918. —Detroit, Mich. B-Switzerland. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

*Werner, George (2444080)... In the Bois-de-la-Naza, Oct. 5, 1918. France, R-Albany, N. Y. B-Albany, N. Y. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

WESCOTT, ALLEN P. (679507)

Near Chevieres, France, Oct. 21, 1918. R—North Castine, Me. B—Portland, Me. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*Wescott, Ira L. (281389) Near Juvigny, France, Aug. 28-30, 1918. R-Grandville, Mich. B-Byron Center, Mich. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Wessel, Leonard, H. F. (366819)____ Near Verdun, France, Oct. 12-14, ___1918. R-West Hartford, Conn. B-Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

WESSELHOEFT, CONRAD__. Near Verdun, France, Nov. 8, 1918. R—Boston, Mass. B—Wilmington, N. C. G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

WEST, BRODIE (1314708) __. Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918 R-Pikeville, N. C. B-Wayne County, N. C. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company B. 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

After having received 7 machine-gun wounds, he refused to go to the dressing station, remaining with his company and rendering valuable aid to both his platoon and company commander.

Sergeant, Troop C, 6th Cavalry, United States Army.

Sergeant Wendell with other men entered a cave occupied by a desperate enemy and in the face of a beavy fire, with utter disregard for his personal safety, aided in forcing the outlaws to abandon their stronghold, which resulted in their destruction by our forces, Private, Company K, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. He went forward ahead of his company against a machine gun that was checking the advance, killed the crew, and captured the gun.

Private, medical detachment, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.

He displayed the highest bravery and self-sacrificing spirit by voluntarily leaving shelter during a heavy hostile bombardment and going to the assistance of several wounded men of another regiment whose position adjoined that of his own organization. Under terrific shellfire he skillfully dressed their wounds and then removed them to a place of safety, thereby saving their lives. Again returning to the shell-swept street, he made a careful reconnaissance for any other casualties which might bave been overlooked.

Sergeant, 43d Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Killed in action at Chateau-Thierry, France, June 6, 1918, he gave the supreme proof of that extraordinary heroism which will serve as an example to hitherte untried treops.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Amil Werner.

Corporal, Company H, 305th Infantry, 77th Division.

With 2 other soldiers Corporal Werner volunteered to crawl out under enemy machine-gun fire in an effort to locate 3 members of the platoon who were missing after an unsuccessful attack on enemy machine-gun nests. Finding the body of 1, they located another, who lay helplessly wounded, by calling out his name. As a result they drew increased fire from the enemy but they courageously crawled 25 yards farther toward the hostile positions and succeeded in carrying back the wounded man through the machine-gun fire to our lines.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Susanna Werner.

Private, Troop C, 2d Cavalry, attached to Company G, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.

Division.

Becoming separated from his own organization he attached himself to an Infantry company. While on a patrol he was wounded 3 times. After the party had been surrounded by German machine guns, he volunteered to carry a message to the company commander, wading across the Aire River in so doing. After guiding a platoon to the relief of the patrol he again made several trips to and from the company post of command, crossing through the river waist deep 5 times after being wounded. He was sent to the rear against his vigorous protests, and after being tagged for evacuation he gave further proof of his devotion to duty and unselfishness by helping carry another wounded soldler 3 miles on a stretcher.

Sergeant, Company M. 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
Sergeant Wescott, as second in command, accompanied a small combat patrol, which successfully attacked an enemy trench held up by 30 of the enemy with machine guns, driving the enemy from the trench and inflicting many casualties. When the patrol leader was severely wounded Sergeant Wescott took command and immediately reorganized the patrol, holding the captured position, despite a severe harassing fire from the enemy until relief came.
Postburnesky avgeld. Media presented to father Leslin D. Wescott. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Leslie D. Wescott.

Private, Company K, 114th Infantry, 29th Division.
He performed his duties as a runner under heavy shellfire for 3 days and nights without rest, and when the relay stations between the battalion and regimental posts of command had been wiped out he continued to carry messages the entire distances between the two posts.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
Captain Wesselhoeft went forward under heavy machine-gun fire to the aid of a wounded soldier. The fire was so heavy that they were compelled to remain in the shell hole until nightfall, when he brought the wounded man to our

Corporal, Company A, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.
When his automatic squad had become lost from the platoon in a heavy smoke harrage, Corporal West advanced alone upon a machine-gun nest which was firing directly from the front, silenced the gun, and returned to our lines with 37 prisoners.

*WEST, CARROLL B. (573878)_ Near the Bois-des-Ogons, France, Sept. 30 and Oct. 2, 1918. R—Milton Junction, Wis. B—Lakemills, Wis. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

WEST, HEDFORD (1449786)_ Near Montrebean Woods, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Salina, Kans.

B—Ogallah, Kans.

G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

*WEST, HENRY_ Near Chateau-Thierry, France, June

25, 1918. R—Watertown, Mass. B—Ware, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WEST, HENRY ARTHUR (2154039) Near Molain, France, Oct. 17, 1918. R—Riverton, Iowa. B—Riverton, Iowa. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

West, James H. (96865) Near Ancerviller, France, Mar. 4, 1918. R-Hokes Bluff, Ala. B-Cherokce County, Ala. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

WEST, JOHN ALBERT.

Near Blanc Mont Ridge, France,
Oct. 2-5, 1918.

R—Cincinnati, Ohio.
B—Cincinnati, Ohio.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WEST, JOHN E. (1285024) Near Verdun, France, Oct. 8-16, 1918. R-Baltimore, Md. B-Belle Haven, Va. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1919.

WEST, ROBERT JOHN. At Liny-devant-Dun and Fontaines,

France, Nov. 6-7, 1918. A Leavenworth, Kans. B-Leavenworth, Kans. B-Leav

WESTERGREN, HARRY ORMAN

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct., 4-6, 1918.

R—Emporia, Kans. B—Clearfield, Kans. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Lincoln, Nebr. B—Grand Island, Nebr. G. O. No. 132, W. D., 1918.

WESTFALL, ALBERT C. (1211181)
Near St. Souplet, France, Oct. 18, 1918.

R-Oneonta, N. Y. B-Scranton, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WESTON, STEPHEN J. (558269) France, STON, STEPHEN J. (508269).
Near Bois-de-Brieulles, France
Sept. 28, 1918.
R—Waterbury, Conn.
B—Waterbury, Conn.
G, O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company B, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division. He displayed exceptional courage and leadership in leading the section forward and maintaining fire on the enemy from an advanced position in the wood, successfully covering the withdrawal of the Infantry to a more secure position. This gallant soldier was killed 2 days later while he was successfully directing his section in breaking up an enemy counterattack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Allen B. West.

Mechanic, Company M, 137th Infantry, 35th Division. Seeing a comrade lying wounded in advance of our lines, he left a shell hole and, exposing himself to heavy unchine-gun fire, went into the open and, assisted by another soldier, carried the wounded man back to safety.

Sergeant, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He unselfishly exposed himself in an effort to bring down an enemy sniper who had wounded several members of his group and was himself killed while in the performance of this self-sacrificing act.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Henry West.

Private, first class, Company L, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
With another soldier he volunteered to go out across an open space swept by heavy machine-gun fire for 150 yards to rescue 2 wounded soldiers. The mission was accomplished successfully.

Sergeant, Company F, 167th Infantry, 42d Division. He was a member of a patrol of 5 men which, on March 4, 1918, near Ancerviller, France, encountered an enemy patrol of 11 men, which it attacked and routed, taking 2 prisoners

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
He voluntarily led a reconnaissance patrol under difficult conditions and secured information necessary to an attack. Three days later, after the command of his company had devolved on him, he continued in action in spite of being severely wounded, leading his men to the objective and refusing to be evacuated until proper disposition had been made.

Sergeant, Company F, 115th Infantry, 29th Division. In the Bois-de-Consenvoyc on Oct. 8, and in the Bois-de-la-Grande Montagne on Oct. 16, 1918, he ably led his platoon with extreme courage and gallantry and by his conduct inspired the men of his platoon to greater effort. This soldier led a detachment against a strongly protected enemy machine-gun nest and successfully took the position under heavy fire.

Lieutenant colonel, 11th Infantry, 5th Division. When his command was halted by heavy fire from an enemy position, strongly vinen his confinant was natived by neavy life from an enemy position, strongly entrenched and supported by a large number of machine guns, he placed himself in front of his men and gallantly led them in person to a successful attack, thereby securing a foothold on the east bank of the Meuse and insuring the safe passage of additional troops. By his disregard for personal danger le set an inspiring example to his men and played a conspicuous rôle in gaining the heights on the east bank of the Meuse held by the enemy since 1914.

Private, Headquarters Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps. 2d Division.

As a runner he displayed exceptional courage in volunteering to carry important messages over terrain constantly swept by machine-gun and shell fire.

Second lieutenant, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. Unaided he reconnoitered enemy machine-gun positions near Soissons, France, July 18-21, 1918. On July 19,1918, with a small party he crossed an area swept by fire and demolished several machine-gun nests that were holding up the advance.

Corporal, Company G, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Undaunted by terrific machine-gun fire, Corporal Westfall went out into the open and rescued a British officer who had fallen wounded. Later, after 2 runners had been killed in trying to locate missing elements of his battalion, Corporal Westfall assumed this task and in performing it 4 times crossed a sunken road, which was continuously raked by enemy machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company I, 47th Infantry, 4th Division.
Sergeant Weston charged an enemy machine gun which was inflicting heavy losses upon our troops and delaying the advance. He wounded the gunner and captured the gun, thereby enabling our advance to continue.

Westphal, Arthur E
Near Fossoy, France, July 15, 1918.
R—West Newton, Mass.
B—England.
G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

R—Shawano, Wis.
B—Shawano, Wis.
G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

R—Reading, Pa. B—Reading, Pa. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

*Whaley, Wellmon P. (2338817).... Near Mont St. Pere, France, July 22, 1918. R-White Castle, La. B-White Castle, La. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Wheat, Harry R.

From Sergy to Mont-St. Martin,
France, between the Ourcq and Vesle Rivers, Aug. 1-6, 1918.
R—Springfield, Mass.
B—New Hampshire.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

*Wheaton. Homer J. (61304)

At Chavignon, Chemin des Dames
Sector, France, Feb. 27, 1918.
R—Worcester, Mass.
B—Pompey, N. Y.
G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

WHEDON, HERBERT S. (64763) ______At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R-Madison, Conn. B-Madison, Conn. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

*Wheeler, Afton E. (207762)_____

Near Bezu-St. Germain, France, Sept. 7, 1918. R—Cambridge, Mass. B—Somerville, Mass. G. O. No. 142, W. D., 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 119, W. D., 1918.

Wheelock, Frank R.
Near Malancourt, France, Sept. 26-30, 1918. R—Scranton, Pa. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Whisenant, Herbert W.
Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R-Austin, Tex. R-Austin, Tex. B-Kyle, Tex. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. In command of a Stokes mortar detachment Lieutenant Westphal displayed marked coolness and leadership under intense enemy shellfire in so separating his guns as to stop the advance of the Germans and prevent their crossing the Marne.

Private, first class, Company F, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.

Private Wetzel, a company runner, repeatedly volunteered for missions so hazardous that no others would attempt them. At all hours of the day and night, over unknown ground, he carried numerous messages in the face of heavy machine-gun and shellfire.

First sergeant, Company D, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
During an enemy counterattack Sergeant Whalen led a small group forward to a shell hole about 50 yards in front of his company position. Although wounded, he kept an automatic rifle in action. At this new position he assisted in breaking up the enemy attack.

Sergeant, Company F, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

Advancing far ahead of his patrol, he encountered an enemy patrol which opened fire on him. Despite the fact that he had been severely wounded, he continued to combat the enemy, killing I and dispersing the others. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Wellmon P. Whaley.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 125th Infantry, 32d Division. During the attack on Aug. 1, 1918, he went forward with the first wave and established a dressing station in an advanced position to render immediate aid to the wounded. On Aug. 5, 1918, at St. Martin, after having been knocked down by the explosion of a shell and while under severe fire and machine-gun fire, he displayed exceptional coolness and devotion to duty in rendering surgical attention to others who had been wounded by the same Corperal, Company G, 101st Infantry, 26th Division.

During a heavy bombardment on the morning of Feb. 27, 1918, 1 of the hand grenades which were being distributed to the men of his company was dropped by accident. Corporal Wheaton, with extreme courage and self-sacrifice, ran to and picked up the grenade in an effort to cast it out of the danger area before it exploded. It exploded, however, before he could throw it away, and he was fatally wounded, dying shortly thereafter.

Pesthumously awarded. Medal presented to aunt, Mrs. Ada S. Pen Eycke.

Sergeant, Company B, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.
During an intermittent barrage, lasting for 2 hours, he placed his men in the best shelter available, but himself remained in observation, refusing to take cover from terrific artillery fire. He was twice buried by exploding shells while succoring wounded.

Ordnance sergeant, Salvage Squadron No. 1, Quartermaster Corps, American Expeditionary Forces.

For extraordinary heroism in connection with military operations against an armed enemy near Bezu-St. Germain, France, Sept. 7, 1918. When fire broke out in a wood where a salvage detachment was encamped, scriously endangering the lives of 200 men because of their proximity to a pile of salvaged German high-explosive 155-millimeter shells, he and Private Willie J. Walker voluntarily ran to the scene of the fire and attempted to extinguish the flames, fully aware of the grave danger to themselves. They fought the fire with blankets and sticks, but the fire quickly spread to the shells. Both men were killed by the explosion which followed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Clarence A. Wheeler.

First lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
He was conspictous for his bravery in remaining in action, although twice wounded, refusing to be evacuated until wounded a third time and then endeavoring to return to his command.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 313th Infantry, 79th Division. Working in areas that were continually being swept by machine-gun, rifle, and shell fire, Captain Wheelock worked voluntarily and unceasingly, giving aid, food, and water to the wounded. Throughout the entire operations he showed utter disregard for his own safety, being knocked down many times by shell explosions. For 2 nights he worked as a stretcher bearer, carrying patients to places of safety after giving them medical attention during the day.

Private, Company H, 47th Infantry, 4th Division. He crossed the Vesle River in the face of enemy fire and rescued a drowning comrade in the deep, swift current of the stream.

Second lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
While advancing with this platoon, Lieutenant Whisenant, after he was so severely wounded that he was unable to continue, so encouraged and inspired his men that they won a decided victory and captured many men and gunc. His wound resulted in the loss of a leg, WHITAKER, DANIEL J. (732334) ... Near Fontaine, France, Nov. 8, 1918. R—Pageland, S. C. B—Lancaster, S. C. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WHITAKER, DEWEY A. (58256). At Cantigny, France, May 28, 1918. R—Greenville, S. C. B—Spartanburg, S. C. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

WHITCOMB, CECIL B. (1516484)_____ Near Montfalleon, France, Sept. 26-28, 1918. R—East Cleveland, Ohio.

B-Somerset, N. Y. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

WHITE, AMBROSE F______At La Franquette Farm, July 22, At La 1918. R—Bluefield, W. Va. B—Virginia City, Va. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

*WHITE, DONALD W. Near Landres-et-St. Georges, France, Nov. 1, 1918. R—Manitowoc, Wis. B—Antigo, Wis. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WHITE, EDWARD R. (1285786)

Near Consenvoye Wood, France,
Oct. 10, 1918. R—Salisbury, Md. B—Salisbury, Md. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WHITE, JESS (2471590)_ Near Nantillois, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Chelyan, W. Va. B—Charleston, W. Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1918.

WHITE, JOHN B. (2691)_____At Cantigny, France, May 28-31, 1918. B—Washington County, Tenn.
G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

R—Hutchinson, Kans. B—Hutchinson, Kans. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

WHITE, LYMAN (1316071) ..... Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Salemburg, N. C. B—Fayetteville, N. C. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Private, Company D, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
While engaged as company runner he displayed rare devotion to duty hy carrying messages through heavy machine-gun fire, continuing his work after being severely wounded.

Private, first class, Company I, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

Private Whitaker exposed himself to direct fire of the enemy machine guns while going in advance of the lines to assist a wounded comrade to shelter.

Corporal, Company L, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

A few minutes before the attack, in an offensive operation, he was wounded by a shell fragment but remained with his platoon and led his squad with great courage and initiative during the attack.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 145th Infantry, 37th Division.

Attached to the regimental intelligence section of the 145th Infantry, he, with several men of his section, accompanied the first attacking wave of the regiment on Sept. 26. Losing contact temporarily with the assaulting wave on account of a smoke barrage, he halted momentarily and upon resuming the advance encountered enemy machine-gun and sniper fire near a swale in the Bois-de-Montfaucon. Leaving his men in a place of safety, Sergeant Whitcomb discovered an enemy machine-gun nest which covered a bridge across the swale. He earlyeed sayers unemped greeny soldiers and an officer; the the swale. He captured several unarmed enemy soldiers and an officer; the latter he forced to return to the machine-gun nest and to deliver to him the gun crews, a number of men, as well as several enemy snipers who had been inflicting heavy casualties upon his men; this action permitted the Infantry to advance without further heavy losses.

Private, Company B, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
Although scriously wounded, he refused to be evacuated until he had gone under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire to four other gun crews, requesting that men be sent to his gun, thereby enabling an important gun to remain in action.

First lieutenant, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
While Lieutenant White's unit was in close contact with the enemy, a spy circulated a report that the company had been ordered to withdraw. Those who thus retired were shot down by the enemy. During the disorder that followed, Lieutenant White fearlessly reorganized the platoon under closerange enemy fire. Due to his heroic example, the men of his platoon held their ground and repulsed the strong enemy attack which followed.

Second lieutenant, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
When the advance of his battlion was hindered by a strong enemy machine-gun nest, he led his platoon forward in an attack on the hostile position and was killed at the head of his platoon just before the last machine gun was put out of action.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emma E. White,

Sergeant, Company I, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.

After his plateon leader had been killed he took command. The advance of the company had been held up by a machine-gun nest until Sergeant White, with 2 other soldiers, cleaned out the nest, killing 4 and capturing 6 of the enemy.

Corporal, Company D, 317th Infantry, 80th Division.
He led his squad across an area swept by machine-gun and shell fire with utter disregard of his personal danger. Although he was severely wounded by a machine-gun bullet, he continued to direct his squad until completely exhausted from loss of blood.

Private, medical detachment, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

For 3 nights at Cantigny, France, on May 28-31, 1918, he worked unceasingly under fire, bringing the wounded to safety and ministering to them on his own initiative. He repeatedly left shelter to help wounded men.

First sergeant, Company E, 137th Infantry, 35th Division. He volunteered to carry a message to the rear through heavy artillery fire to obtain ammunition and reinforcements. That mission accomplished, he learned that his captain, the only officer left with the company, had been wounded. Though himself wounded and suffering from gas, he returned to the front lines, reorganized the company, and held his section of the front line until the division was relieved.

Sergeant, Company H, 119th Infantry, 30th Division.

When, with 3 other men, he encountered a German patrol, which outnumbered them five to one, he ordered his companions to keep the enemy down with fire from their Lewis gun. He then crept to the rear of the hostile patrol and attacked the Germans with bombs. At the same time his companious attacked from the front, killing several of the Germans and capturing 9. *WHITE, NATHANIEL C. (1402540). 4. ——At Vauxaillon, France, Sept. 19, 1918. R.—Chicago, Ill. B.—Tallulah, La. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WHITE, RICHARD G
Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Charleston, S. C.
B—Marion, S. C.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

WHITE, RICHARD J. Near Ravine-de-Molieville, north of Samogneux, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—Creston, Iowa. B—Creston, Iowa. G. O. No. 130, W. D., 1918.

WHITE, TRACY S. (2410793)_____ Near Ferme-des-Loges, France, Oct. 19, 1918. R—Ocean Grove, N. J. B—Ocean Grove, N. J. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*WHITE, WALTER D. (1750790)... Near the Bois-des-Loges, Nov. 1, 1918. R.—Byron, N. Y. B.—Byron, N. Y. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919. Bois-des-Loges, France, *WHITE, WILBERT W. HITE, WILBERT W.

In the region of Etain and Chambley,
France, Sept. 14, 1918.
R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—New Haven, Conn.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

WHITE, WILLIAM P. (89893), ____ In the Argonne, France, Oct. 14-29, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

WHITED, HOMER (96385)... Near Ancerviller, Franco, Mar. 4, 1918. R—Bessemer, Ala. B—Cédar Bend, Ala. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

R—Chelsea, Mass. B—Cainden, N. J. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company F, 370th Infantry, 93d Division.

Private White, while acting as company runner, exposed himself constantly to intense enemy machine-gun and artillery fire and was killed while in the performance of his duty.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Julia White.

First lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. He led his platoon through intense machine-gun and artillery fire, destroying machine guns that were causing heavy losses on an exposed flank and remaining in command of his platoon until twice severely wounded.

First lieutenant, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.
He was a member of a small party which was suddenly fired upon by 3
German machine guns, 1 soldier being killed and an officer severely wounded.
Himself unarmed, Lieutenant White returned with another soldier and, in the face of machine-gun fire, approached within 50 yards of the machine-gun nests and carried the wounded officer to shelter.

Sergeant, Company D, 306th Machine Gun Battalien, 77th Division.
While in command of his platoon, Sergeant White went with 2 other soldiers to the rescue of 3 members of a gun crew among whom a German hand grenade had burst. Finding 1 of the men dead and another 8c severely wounded that he could not be moved, Sergeant White carried the third man to shelter, in plain view of the enemy under continuous shell and machinegun fire. His 2 comrades also having been wounded, he also succeeded in getting them back to safety, and thereafter twice returned to the gun position to administer first aid and carry water to the wounded soldier who could not be moved.

First sergeant, Company B, 311th Infantry, 78th Division.
When the position his company held was enfiladed and communication to the rear cut off, he volunteered to carry a message to the battalion commander after several runners had been killed in the attempt. Crossing ground swept by intense machine-gun and artillery fire, he delivered the message and returned with orders as to the disposition of the company.

Private, Company B, 309th Infantry, 78th Division.
While acting as runner, Private White volunteered to carry a message across a long stretch of open country which was subjected to heavy machine-gun and artillery fire. He successfully crossed the space and delivered his message, but in an attempt to return he was killed by a rain of machine-gun bullets. His conduct served as an inspiration to other runners. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Carrie L. White.

Second lieutenant, pilot, 147th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While protecting 3 allied observation planes in the region of Etain, Lieutenant White was attacked by 3 Halberstadt fighters. He engaged them immediately, successfully fighting them off and leading them all away from the observation planes, which were thus permitted to carry on their work unmoiested. While returning home he dived through a cloud to attack an enemy balloon near Chambley, bringing it down in flames. Two Fokker scouts then attacked him, and although he was alone, with intrepid courage he attacked the first Fokker head-on, shooting until it went down in a vertical dive out of control. Pulling sharply, he fired a long burst at the second Fokker as it went over him, putting it to immediate flight.

Fokker as it went over him, putting it to immediate light.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following set of extraordinary heroism in action near Toul, France, Oct. 10, 1918, Licutenant White is awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with his distinguished-service cross: In command of a patrol of 4 planss which was attacked by 5 German Fokkers, he attacked the enemy plane which was hard pressing a new pilot. The German Fokker had gotten at the tail of the American plane and was overtaking it. Licutenant White's gun having jammed, he drove his plane head-on into the German Fokker, both crashing to earth, 500 meters below.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Dr. W. W. White.

Private, Company D, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. Attached to the regimental liaison group, he time and again traversed 3 kilometers to the front lines, proving the swiftest and surest runner. For three days and nights he worked unceasingly under terrific artillery and machinegun fire, accomplishing his mission when other runners had failed, Corporal, Company D, 167th Infantry, 42d Division. He was a member of a patrol of five men which on Mar. 4, 1918, near Ancerviller, France, encountered an enemy patrol of 11 men, which it attacked and routed, taking 2 prisoners.

Captain, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Although severely wounded, he showed exceptional coolness and bravery in his selection of machine-gun sites and in routing the enemy while under heavy machine-gun fire.

*Whiting, Charles W. (1681631) _____ Near Barbonval, France, Sept. 10,

R—Avon, Mass. B—Avon, Mass. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*WHITING, CLINTON L Near La Harazee, France, Sept. 26-28, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Elizabeth, N. J. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

WHITMAN, GUY (274283)

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 4-20, 1918.

R—Shawano, Wis.
B—Shawano, Wis.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

WHITMAN, WALTER MONTIETH

Near Fleville and St. Juvin, France,

Oct. 11-12, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y.

B-New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

WHITNEY, HENRY H. On the island of Porto Rico, in May, 1898.

R—Philipsburg, Pa. B—Hopewell, Pa. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

R—Auburn, N. Y. B—Auburn, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

R—Ann Arbor, Mich.
B—Detroit, Mich.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

*WHITSON, LESTER C. (1387285)... At Hamel, France, July 4, 1918. R-Chicago, Ill. B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.

WHITSON, ROBERT KENNETH
Near Soissons, France, July 19, 1918.
R—Union City, Tenn.
B—Union City, Tenn.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

WHITTHORNE, HARRY S ... Near Exermont, France, Sept. 28-Oct. 1, 1918.

R—San Francisco, Calif.

B—Vallejo, Calif.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Corporal, Machine Gun Company, 310th Infantry, 78th Division.
Corporal Whitehead, after giving first aid to his platoon leader who had been wounded, took command of the platoon and led it in an attack in the face of concentrated enemy artillery and machine-gun fire, reaching the objective and effectively protecting the exposed flank of the assaulting battalion with his

Sergeant, Company D, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.
When his detachment had become disorganized by sniper and machine-gun fire, Sergeant Whiteman, without regard for personal danger, reorganized his command and by his gallant example led his men against the enemy machine-gun position, capturing it and bringing the gun back to our lines.

Private, Headquarters Company, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
He had charge of maintaining a telephone line from Barbonval to Blanzy. The line was under direct observation of the enemy, and the appearance of a line man was the immediate occasion for shelling by the enemy with field artillery and I-pounders. He stuck to his work, repairing break after break, until he was mortally wounded by the enemy shellfire.
Posthinmously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Annie Battles.

First lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. First lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
During the advance in the Argonne Forest, Lieutenant Whiting exposed himself fearlessly to enemy machine-gun and sniper fire while leading his men and consolidating his position, which was in a marsh covered with wire grass and stunted brush. He continued to lead his men with utter disregard for personal danger until he fell seriously wounded by a machine-gun bullet on the afternoon of Sept. 28 near Binarville.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, D. Clinton Whiting.

Private, first class, Company F, 127th Infantry, 32d Division.

During this period Private Whitman, although many runners had been shot down, repeatedly volunteered and carried messages through heavy enemy barrages, successfully accomplishing his work, and thereby saving the lives of many of his comrades.

Colonel, 325th Infantry, 82d Division. Colonel, 325th Inlantry, 824 Division.

When his regiment was attacked in column before reaching the line which it was to hold, he took command and personally led his men into action. Always on the firing line, he led 4 attacks under heavy fire from artillery, machine guns, and snipers on the hill east of St. Juvin, the fourth of which was successful. He maintained his post of command on or near the front line throughout the engagement and by his personal example of courage inspired his men to valiant and successful combat.

Captain and assistant adjutant general, U. S. Volunteers.
For extraordinary heroism in connection with the operations on the island of Porto Rico in May, 1898, under disguise and in the midst of an enemy.

Corporal, Company M, 108th Infantry, 27th Division.
Voluntarily carrying messages under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he displayed great bravery and gallantry. In 1 instance he completed the inission of a runner who had been wounded and returned with very important information as to where the barrage would fall.

Private, Company C, 112th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division. During an attack he was tireless in his efforts to bring food and water to his conracles. On the same day he captured 13 Germans without assistance and without regard to his personal safety. Later, while aiding a wounded conrade, he was severely wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, E. E. Whitney.

Corporal, Company E, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
Although severely wounded in the shoulder at the beginning of the engagement, he continued forward as squad leader, exhibiting great gallantry and setting an inspiring example to his men.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Emma Whitson.

Captain, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
When his major was killed near Solssons, France, July 19, 1918, he took command of his battalion and, although wounded, led it forward for the succeeding 3 days to its final objective, and, although wounded again, refused to be evacuated until he had directed the consolidation of his position.

First lieutenant, 140th Infantry, 35th Division. He organized a detachment to go 1,200 yards in front of our lines to rescue the wounded in a wood previously occupied. He brought back over 20 of the wounded, who would otherwise have been captured or died from exposure, the rescue being effected under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire. Later, when he was the only officer with the battalion, he refused to be evacuated, though wounded and hurned by mustard gas, remaining in command until the battalion was relieved.

WHITTINGTON, CHARLES E. (58436)......At Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918. R—Sumter, S. C. B—Martinsburg, W. Va. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

WIBERG, ALBIN (1386855) During the Somme offensive, France, Aug. 15, 1918. R—Chicago, III.

B-Sweden. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

Wickliffe, Robert E. (2214773).

Near Grand Ballois Farm, France,
July 14-15, 1918.

R—Spencer, Iowa.
B—Warsaw, Mo.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WIDDIFIELD, CECH. J.
Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 5, 1918.

R—Troy, Mont. B—East Tawas, Mich. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WIECHMANN, WALTER H ... At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918, R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

WIEDMAIER, BENJAMIN P. (2214774) ... Near Grand Ballois Farm, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Clarksdale, Mo. B—Clarksdale, Mo. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Wiese, Edwin (2207678)

At Essey, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R—St. Louis, Mo.

B—St. Louis, Mo.

G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*Wiggins, Edwin W. (1445247)

Near Baulny, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Carthage, Mo.
B—Carthage, Mo.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

WIGGLESWORTH, ROBERT .. Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 9. 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Wight, Howard M. (2294304)...... Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 28, 1918. R—Corvallis, Oreg. B—Harrison, Me. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

WILBUR, THOMAS WHITESIDE

Near Jaulny, France, Sept. 13-15, 1918. R-Larchmont, N. Y. B-New Britain, Conn. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919,

Private, Company K, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

For 3 days at Cantigny, France, on May 28-30, 1918, he performed with great bravery the duties of hattalion gunner without rest. Although wounded, he remained on duty under fire until his battalion was relieved.

Sergeant, Company C, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. Blown over the parapet of an outpost when an enemy shell made a direct hit, he upon regaining consciousness carried the wounded members of his squad through heavy shell and machine-gun fire to a dressing station. He then drew a new automatic rifle from a near-by dump, and making his way through heavy fire established a new outpost, holding it alone against the enemy for 14 hours until relieved.

Private Headquarters Company, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. He was on duty with a carrying party, which was severely shelled and gassed while passing through Grassier Wood. In utter disregard of his own personal safety, this courageous soldier made repeated trips into the woods under heavy shellfire and rescued wounded soldiers.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division. After being severely wounded he remained at his post, performing his duties as a relay runner until relieved.

Second lieutenant, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He voluntarily went forward for a distance of 800 neters under heavy shellfire and rescued a wounded soldier who had been left there the night before when the advance patrols had been withdrawn.

Corporal, Company D, 103d Infantry, 26th Division.
Corporal Wiechman climbed out from the top of a trench under machine-gun fire from all directions to take prisoners in another trench who had thrown up their hands and shouted that they had surrendered. Approaching, he was met with a shower of hand grenades, but he nevertheless stood his ground and opened fire.

Private, Company A, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

During a heavy gas and shell bombardment he repeatedly volunteered and delivered messages over routes other than his own when the runners assigned to those routes had been killed or wounded.

Private, Company C, 355th Infantry, 89th Division. He displayed conspicuous gallantry by creeping forward alone under machine-gun fire and capturing 2 enemy machine guns which were holding up the advance of his organization.

Sergeant, Company A, 128th Machine Gun Battalion, 35th Division.
Sergeant Wiggins led a machine-gun platoon to a threatened portion of the line under a heavy enemy barrage, walking back and forth along the front under heavy enemy fire, encouraging his men, and directing the construction of emplacements. He also organized a group of infantrymen who had become separated from their organizations and put them in the line, supervising their intrenchments. This gallant soldier was killed just as this work was completed. was completed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, T. S. Wiggins.

Captain, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.
When the 2 platoons he was leading in attack were held up by terrific fire from 2 machine guns, he ordered his men to lie down, and he single handed rushed 1 nest, killing the gunner and capturing the crew. He then forced the surrender of the second gun crew.

Private, Company I, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.
When his battalion withdrew after attacking a hostile position under heavy fire, Private Wight, instead of falling back, organized a party and in the face of intense machine-gun fire rescued 15 wounded soldiers who would otherwise have fallen into the hands of the enemy. He placed the wounded men in a gravel pit and remained the entire night, administering first aid, despite the fact that he himself was nearly exhausted after 3 days of fighting.

Secretary, Y. M. C. A., attached to 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Declining to remain in the rear, Mr. Wilbur attached himself to the Medical Department, rendering first aid and bringing in wounded, serving at all times in a most valuable manner. He disregarded an order to return to the rear when it seemed that the enemy would launch a counterattack, but remained with the wounded until all were safely evacuated.

WILCOX, GILBERT W (569486)... On the Vesle River, near Ville-Sayoye, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—Linton, Oreg. B—Nova Scotia.

G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

R—Detroit, Mich. B—Cadillac, Mich. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WILCOX, RALPH M. Near Letanne, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918.

R—Portland, Oreg. B—Ogden, Utah. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WILCOXSON, ORVAL (2216138) In the Argonue, France, Oct. 23, 1918.

R—Bomar, Okla. B—Leon, Okla. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

WILDER, MARSHALL P ... Near 1918. Xammes, France, Sept. 26,

R—Manhattan, Kans. B—Clinton, Mo. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

*WILDER, THOMAS E. (1448605)

Near Baulny, France, Sept. 28, 1918.

R—Macksville, Kans.

B—Cassville, Mo.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Wiles, George L. (1219226)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-New Market, Tenn.
B-Shady Grove, Tenn.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

WILEY, JAMES E. (2338233)__ Near Les Evaux, France, July 14-15,

R—Colorado Springs, Colo. B—Colorado Springs, Colo. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WILKEN, ALT C. (102572).

Near Sergy, France, July 28, 1918.

R—Atlantic, Iowa.
B—Atlantic, Iowa.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Wilkerson, Alfred (2105602)

At Jaulny, France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R—Youngstown, Ohio.
B—Cameron, W. Va.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1919.

WILKINS, FRED R. (2078217) At Hamel, France, July 4, 1918. R—Casper, Wyo. B—Freeport, Ill. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.

Wilkins, John (1787633) Near Verdun, France, Nov. 3–4, 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*Wilkinson, George A. (99890) Near Cote-de-Chatillon, France, Oct.

14, 1918.
R—Winterset, Iowa.
B—Madison County, Iowa.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Private, first class, Company D, 4th Engineers, 4th Division. He volunteered to go into Ville-Savoy at a time when it was under a heavy hombardment to rescue a wounded officer.

Second lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
When his company had reached its objective and was suffering heavy casualties from shellfire, he rendered valuable assistance in reorganizing the company and caring for the wounded. He remained on duty even though suffering from severe mustard-gas burns.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Louise M. Wileox.

First lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Ho volunteered for a liaison mission and successfully accomplished it, displaying marked bravery. Passing through heavy artillery and machine-gun barrage, he pushed through the enemy outpost line, routed 1 of the outposts, and succeeded in establishing liaison between 2 battalions at a critical moment.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 357th Infantry, 90th Division. He was always the first to volunteer as a company runner for dangerous missions, and repeatedly passed through heavy fire to deliver important messages, showing marked personal heroism.

Captain, 354th Infartry, 89th Division.
Captain Wilder was in command of a raiding party which was caught under such heavy machine-gun fire that the success of the raid was threatened. Taking charge of a combat group, whose leader had become a casualty, this officer charged the hostile strong point and succeeded in clearing it with heavy casualties to the enemy, the remainder of whom retreated.

Corporal, Company F, 137th Infantry, 35th Division.

After all of his squad but himself had been killed by the explosion of a shell, and after half of 1 hand had been carried away by a piece of shell, Corporal Wilder valiantly continued the combat until he himself was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George M. Wilder.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.

After his own gun had been knocked out, he assisted another soldier in breaking up an enemy machine-gun nest and turning the captured gun on the enemy, firing about 1,000 rounds. When this gun jammed, he procured grenades and the rifle of a dead soldier and continued on to the objectivo.

Private, Company B, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

After being badly gassed he continued with his duties as runner, earrying messages through a heavy bombardment to and from the front line.

Private, Company M, 168th Infantry, 42d Division. He added materially in the advance against the Prussian Guards near Sergy, France, July 28, 1918. Despite 3 wounds he continued firing with his automatic rifle until his right hand was shattered.

Private, Company B, 2d Engineers, 2d Division.
He and another soldier, who were acting as wire cutters with the first line of Infantry, fought their way forward in advance of their unit and were the first men to enter Jaulny while it was swept by machine-gun fire, infested with snipers, and still occupied by rear-guard detachments of the enemy. After capturing 8 Germans in a dugout, they courageously searched the caves in the town and took 55 prisoners.

Private, Company A, 132d Infantry, 33d Division. Unaided he attacked a machine-gun position with hand grenades, drove off the gun crew, and captured the gun.

Private, first class, Machine Gun Company, 316th Infantry, 79th Division.
Repeatedly volunteering to act as runner, Private Wilkins made several hazardous journeys from headquarters to the machine-gun positions, a distance of 500 meters, at all times subjected to intense artillery bombardment.

Sergeant, Company A, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

While leading his platoon up the steep and strongly fortified slopes of Hill 288 under terrific machine-gun fire, with great dash and courage he charged and captured 3 machine-gun nests which had caused severe losses to his platoon. On 2 occasions he reorganized his platoon under heavy machine-gun fire, and while unfalteringly pressing his advantage in personally charging and putting out of action a fourth machine-gun implacement he received the wound which caused his instant death.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Henry Wilkinson.

Wilkinson, Harold (441850) ...... South of Soissons, France, July 20, 1918.
R—Williams, Iowa.
B—Williams, Iowa.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

WILKINSON, JACK H. (1210468)

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R-New York, N. Y

B-England. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

Wilkinson, John L. (1461043) ______ Near Exermont, France, Sept. 28, R—Richmond, Mo. B—Richmond, Mo. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

WILKINSON, THADDEUS (2498)
At Verdun, France, Oct. 4-9, 1918.
R—Capleville, Tenn. B-Union County, Miss. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

WILLARD, HENRY W. (540996)..... In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 20, 1918. R—Slaterville Springs, N. Y. B—Slaterville Springs, N. Y. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

WILLARD, ROSCOE A. (42616)
South of Soissons, France, July 18, R-Mount Carmel, Ill. B-Greenbrier, Tenn. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

France, Sept. 13, 1918.
R—Cambridge, Mass.
B—Cambridge, Mass.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

WILLIAMS, CHARLES F ... Near Romagne, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

CHARLES V. (10658) ... Near Baulny, Meuse, France, Sept. 1918. R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, CLARENCE M.
On the Ourcq River, July 31 and Aug. 1, 1918; northwest of Coulonges, France, Aug. 2, 1918; and on the heights overlooking the Vesle River, France, Aug. 3-7, R—Alpena, Mich. B—Mumby, Mich. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

WILLIAMS, FRANK (46527)

Near the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 9, 1918.

R—Wellston, Ohio.

B—Wellston, Ohio.

G, O, No. 98, W, D., 1919.

Private, Company B, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
When the enemy was forming for a counterattack, he carried messages 3 times through their heavy barrage, and although in an exhausted condition from that work he remained with his company throughout the entire operations.

Private, Company D, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
During the operations against the Hindenburg line Private Wilkinson left shelter and went forward, crawling on his hands and knees, under heavy machine-gun fire, to the aid of a wounded officer and a wounded soldier. With the assistance of another soldier he succeeded in dragging and carrying them back to the shelter of a trench.

First sergeant, Company G, 140th Infantry, 35th Division.
After being seriously gassed, Sergeant Wilkinson refused to be evacuated, but remained on duty for 3 days, assisting the officers in maintaining organization with utter disregard for his own safety until the company was relieved, becoming so exhausted that he was unable to walk.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.
Thronghout this period Sergeant Wilkinson, with utter disregard for personal danger, rendered first aid to the wounded under heavy artillery and machine gun fire. On Oct. 9 he was severely wounded while endeavoring to reach a wounded comrade, passing through the direct fire of the enemy in his gallant attempt.

Corporal, Company B, 7th Infantry, 3d Division. In the Bois-de-Belleau on June 20, 1918, he went out of his position for a distance of 75 yards under heavy machine-gun fire and by rifle fire took possession of 1 of the guns, brought it back, and proceeded to put it in operation against the Germans.

Sergeant, Company E, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After the platoon commander of the 1st Platoon had been killed and the commander of the 2d Platoon wounded Sergeant Willard reorganized the platoons and assumed command of both. He then, under heavy fire, led them forward in the attack on the enemy position. He continued to lead his men forward until the objective was reached. He was severely wounded during this attack.

First lieutenant, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service. First lieutenant, 96th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

As observer, he accompanied Lieutenant Hopkins, pilot, on a flight of 3 planes which were attacked by 15 enemy planes. Despite the overwhelming number of the enemy by which they were surrounded, the American planes proceeded on their mission and bombed the objective. In the action which followed he and his pilot continued the unequal fight until they were shot down and killed. The heroic conduct displayed greatly inspired the members of the squadron and enabled 1 of the American planes to return to its airdrome with valuable information of the enemy.

Postburgusly, awarded, Medal presented to mother. Mrs. Olive Swan Posthumously awarded. Mcdal presented to mother, Mrs. Olive Swan

Second licutenant, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.
Although wounded by a high-explosive shell, Licutenant Williams refused to be evacuated, but continued leading his platoon in the attack and successfully defended his positions from counterattack until completely exhausted.

Corporal, Company B, 345th Battalion, Tank Corps.

During an attack on a hedge south of the Montrebeau Woods, Corporal Williams left his tank, which was out of action, and went through the severe rifle, machine-gun, and artillery fire to give first aid to his wounded lientenant. He then took the wounded officer's place, leading the platoon of tanks to the objective through the intense enemy fire.

Captain, Medical Corps, attached to 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

During these 3 periods of severe fighting he maintained a dressing station close to the advanced lines and worked continuously night and day under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

Sergeant, Company M, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

In the absence of the platoon commander, Sergeant Williams displayed great courage and good judgment in leading his platoon in the attack on Ilill 263. Although wounded in the advance, he refused to be evacuated, but continued to lead his men under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire. He remained with his command until it was relieved,

WILLIAMS, FRANK G. (41270)

Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct.
3, 1918.

R—Furnessville, Ind.
B.—Furnessville, Ind.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, FRANK L.
In Champagne, east of Reims, July
15, 1918, and near the River Oureq, ro, 1918, and hear the twet Official, northeast of Chateau - Thierry, France, July 30, 1918.

R—Des Moines, Iowa.

B—Ellis, Kans.

G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

Near St. V. 16, 1918.
R.—Tampa, Fla.
R.—Storm Lake, Iowa.
G. O. No. 139, W. D., 1918.

WILLIAMS, GUS J. (1024088) At Naguillan, Luzon, P. I., Dec. 7, 1899. R-Jacksonville, Ala. B-Anniston, Ala. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1925.

WILLIAMS, HENRY M...
Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Oct.
31-Nov. 11, 1918.
R.—Eureka, Kans.
B.—Kansas City, Kans.
G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, ISHAM R... Near Fossoy, France, July 21, 1918. R.-Faison, N. C. B.-Spout Springs, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, JAMES R. (2002920) Near Mazinghien, France, Oct. 19, 1918. R-Peytonsburg, Ky. B-Peytonsburg, Ky. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, JESSIE V. (96969)______ Near Haumont, France, Sept. 15, R—Lanett, Ala. B—Dadeville, Ala. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, JOE (2169035) Near Lesseau, France, Sept. 4, 1918. R—Acton, Ala. B—Christian Place, Ala. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

Private, first class, Headquarters Company 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
While acting as runner, Private Williams, badly wounded, concealed the fact when he realized that his services were badly needed. He ran and delivered messages throughout the attack, and not until the objectives were attained and consolidated would he allow his wound to be dressed.

Sergeant, Company C, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps.

While operating against the enemy, his tank received a direct hit, killing or wounding the entire crew. Although severely wounded, Sergeant Williams assisted his tank commander, who was severely wounded and temporarily blinded, to a position of shelter in the sap of a near-by trench. He then returned to his tank and under heavy fire continued to operate a 6-pounder against the enemy until driven out by armor-piercing shells. He then assisted in the operation of a machine gun against heavy enemy fire from a trench that lay between them and our first line. When it became sufficiently dark, he aided his tank commander to a first-aid station. His courage and heroic actions throughout the day were largely responsible for saving the life of the officer commanding his tank.

First lieutenant, Medical Corps, attached to 168th Infantry, 42d Division. He voluntarily left a dugout on the Champagne front and for more than 2 hours, all the time under shellire, administered to the needs of wounded men who were lying in the open. During the advance across the River Ourcq he voluntarily remained in exposed positions under heavy shellfire, caring for and dressing the wounded, until he was severely injured.

Captain, 325th Infantry, 82d Division.

During the operations in the vicinity of St. Juvin this officer demonstrated the highest personal bravery and leadership. On Oct. 12, although he was wounded, he organized a provisional combat group and led it to a ridge, repulsing an enemy counterattack which threatened our left flank. On Oct. 16, while he was recompositering a position for machine guns, he rescued an American soldier from 5 armed Germans, 4 of whom he killed with his pistol. Later on the same day he saw a hostile skirmish line advancing toward Hill 182. He rushed a machine gun forward, with which the attack was before was broken.

Private, Company A, 24th Infantry, U.S. Army. Private, Company A, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. When the command of which he was a member was held up in the crossing of the Rio Grande de Cagayan by rifle fire from a well-intrenched enemy, and being without boats or rafts with which to cross, Private Williams with 5 other members of his company volunteered to swim the river. Displaying great gallantry and with utter disregard for his life, he swam the river in the face of heavy rifle fire, returned on a raft, secured arms and ammunition, crossed a second time, and took part in an attack which drove a superior force of the enemy from their trenches and the town occupied by them, thereby making possible the further advance of his company.

First lieutenant, 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division. In command of a detached piece operating with Infantry of the 5th Division Lieutenant Williams kept his gun close behind the attacking waves and skillfully accomplished the missions assigned to him. This was the first fieldpiece to cross the Meuse. Putting out of action a battery of German 77-millimeter guns by direct fire, he later turned them on the retreating enemy after his own ammunition had been exhausted.

Second lieutenant, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

He led a patrol across the Marne River under intense machine-gun fire, and when his boat was sunk twice swam the river to correct the fire of his covering detachment and to bring his patrol to safety after their mission had been accomplished.

Private, Company E, 120th Infantry, 30th Division. With another soldier Private Williams volunteered and rescued a wounded comrade from an exposed position in front of the line after 2 other men had lost their lives in attempting to do so.

Sergeant, Company F, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.
When the platoon he commanded was enfiladed successively by 2 machinegun nests, he disposed his men so that both nests were captured without casualties. He displayed marked personal heroism in the advance, killing 1 enemy gunner with the butt of his rifle and bayoneting a second. His example of fearlessness was an example that inspired his men.

Private, Company E, 366th Infantry, 92d Division.
He was a member of a combat group which was attacked by 20 of an enemy raiding party advancing under a heavy barrage and using liquid. The sergeant in charge of the group was killed and several others, including Private Williams, were wounded. Nevertheless, this soldier with 3 others fearlessly resisted the enemy until they were driven off.

WILLIAMS, JOHN F., Jr... Near Ypres, Belgium, Aug. 2, 1918. R—Charlotte, N. C. B—Charlotte, N. C. G. O. No. 143, W. D., 1918.

Williams, John J
Near Villers-sur-Fere, France, July 28, 1918.
R—Berlin, Wis.
B—Lapeer, Mich.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

WILLIAMS, JULIUS DE WITT (1211928)...-Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R.—Brightwater, N. Y. B.—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

WILLIAMS, LOCKWOOD (2384231)
Near Clery-le-Petit, France, Nov. 5, 1918.
R-Asheville, N. C.
B-Emma, N. C.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, MACK H. (40859)

Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R-Honey, Miss.

B-Greene County, Miss.

G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, PONTIAC J., Jr. (263592)
At Hill 212, near Sergy, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 31, 1918.
R—Bay Shore, Mich.
B—Hart, Mich.
G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

Williams, Ray (1319337).
Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct.
8-12, 1918.
R—Lexington, N. C.
B—Iredell County, N. C.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

*WILLIAMS, RAY T. (2214784)
Near Grand Ballois Farm, France,
July 15, 1918.
R—Humphreys, Mo.
B—Humphreys, Mo.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, WALTER (1096367)
Near Le Donjon Farm, France, July 15-17, 1918.
R-Memphis, Tenn.
B-Memphis, Tenn.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*WILLIAMS, WILFRED (1597952)
Near Montblainville, France, Sept.
28, 1918.
R—Bayou Perout, La.
B—Bayou Perout, La.
G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, WILL J. (1387481)... Near Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 8, 1918. R-Urbana, Ill. B-Urbana, Ill. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAMS, WILLIAM C.
Near Monthurel, France, July 15, 1918.
R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Jonesville, Va.
G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

WILLIAMSON, ALFRED (1403753)
Near Beaume, France, Nov. 8, 1918.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Hot Springs, Ark.
G. O. No. 46 W. D., 1919.

First lieutenant, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
He volunteered to destroy an enemy pill box which had eaused many casualties in his battalion. With much skill and daring be led a daylight patrol under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, rushed the pill box, killed or wounded the occupants, and accomplished his mission.

Second lieutenant, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.
On July 28, 1918, near Villers-sur-Fere, France, when all the other officers of his company had been killed or wounded, he promptly took command, led his men through artillery and machine-gun fire, rushed a machine gun which was blocking his advance, personally killed 4 members of its crew, gained his objective and held it.

Corporal, Company L, 107th Infantry, 27th Division.
Corporal Williams displayed great courage and was an excellent example for the men whom he led in the attack on the Hindenburg line. Although wounded in the right hip by a machine-gun bullet, he remained in command of his unit and assisted in the organization of a position for defense. He did not submit to evacuation until the position was secure against counterattack.

Sergeant, Company I, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
When his company was held up by a machine-gun nest, Sergeant Williams with 2 soldiers attacked the nest, killed 2 gunners, and captured 8 prisoners.
This act made it possible for his company to advance and clear the bridgehead for the crossing of the brigade.

Private, first class, Company M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Wounded in the hip by shellfire, while acting as stretcher bearer, Private Williams remained an duty until his company was relieved 7 days later.

Private, Company K, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.
He volunteered to go out in front of our lines and bring in a wounded runner.
Although he was shot in the face before he reached the runner, he accomplished his mission.

Bugler, Company A, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.

Throughout this period Bugler Williams, acting as company runner, showed utter disregard for personal safety in carrying messages under fire. On Oct. 10, when the advance of his company was checked by enemy machinegun and direct artillery fire, he carried a message of great importance to battallon headquarters and returned with an answer through a half of bullets and shells. He continued to carry messages until he dropped from sheer exhaustion and even then begged to be permitted to resume his duties.

Private, Headquarters Company, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

After several of his comrades had been killed or wounded while attempting to repair telephone lines, Frivate Williams went out and performed the mission under heavy gas and shell bombardment.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Elfie C. Williams.

Corporal, Battery B, 18th Field Artillery, 3d Division.
Despite severe injuries, he remained at his post through a terrific shelling, firing his piece and directing his squad, for 2 days before allowing himself to be evacuated.

Private, Company K, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.
As point of a patrol sent out to locate and destroy an enemy machine-gun nest he exposed himself fearlessly to draw the enemy fire, which instantly killed him. Through his sacrifice and inspired by his bravery his companions rushed and captured the enemy emplacement.

Fostburmously awarded. Medal presented to father, Wilfred Williams, sr.

Private, Company E, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.

Although seriously wounded, he remained on duty earrying messages across zones swept by heavy fire. He showed marked heroism, his example being an inspiration to those serving with him.

Major, 109th Infantry, 28th Division.

Early in the fighting near Monthurel, France, July 15, 1918, he was wounded 3 times, but in spite of suffering and loss of blood he refused to leave his men until his battalion was relieved 3 days later.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 370th Infantry, 93d Division. Private Williamson was assigned to duty at the first-aid station, but volunteered to accompany the attacking lines to more expeditiously attend to the wounded. During the advance he constantly exposed himself in view of the enemy and under heavy fire to render first aid.

WILLIAMSON, PHILIP II

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 10—
26, 1918. R-Baltimore, Md. B-Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 140, W. D., 1918.

WILLIAMSON, WILLIAM H. (1215898)... Near Roussoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-Auburn, N. Y. B-Auburn, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*Willis, Edward... Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29,1918. R—Summit, N. J. B—Middle Granville, N. Y. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Willis, Edward S. (749550)

Near Vieville-en-Haye, in the St.

Mihiel salient, France, Sept. 12, R—Durange, Colo. B—Espanola, N. Mex. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

*WILLIS, PAUL (1488233)_______ Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 8, R—China Springs, Tex. B—Tunnel Hill, Ga. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

WILLMOT, WILLIAM H.... Near Barricourt, France, Nov. 1-2, 1918.

R-Ypsilanti, Mich.
B-Milan, Mich.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Lafollette, Tenn. B—Claiborne County, Tenn. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

*Wills, John H. At Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, At Be

R—Auburn, Ala. B—Auburn, Ala. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

*WILSON, CARLISLE R.
Near Montblainville, France, Sept.
27, 1918.
R—Bethany, Mo.
B—Bethany, Mo.
G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

WILSON, CASEL (517874)_ Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Chillicothe, Ohio.
B—Harrisville, W. Va.
G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

WILSON, FRED T.
Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.
R—Mamaroneck, N. Y.
B—Mamaroneck, N. Y.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, Company C, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
While advancing with his platoon he located the position of an enemy machine gun. Without assistance he attacked the gun and successfully accomplished the capture of both gun and crow.

First lieutenant, 1st Antiaircraft Machine Gun Battalion.

Ite displayed extreme coolness and courage while conducting the advance of company in the sector near Thiaucourt. He visited daily under heavy shellfire his gun positions and made daily reconnaissances of the lines. When wounded, he refused to be taken to the hospital until he had superintended the removal of his men to a place of safety.

Sergeant, Company M, 108th Infantry, 27th Division. Sergeant, Company M, 198th thantry, 27th Division.
Sergeant Williamson, in charge of a combat patrol, successfully accomplished his mission under heavy shell and machine-gun fire after three-fourths of his patrol had been killed or wounded. In the same engagement he successfully reorganized his company after all the officers were killed or wounded and led it in effective combat.

First lieutenant, 107th Infantry, 27th Division. He displayed remarkable gallantry in leading his platoon of machine guns for more than 2,000 yards under terrific machine-gun fire. Even after being mortally wounded and unable to advance farther, he continued to urge his men on. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Edward Willis.

Sergeant, Company A, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.
He displayed great courage, determination, and devotion to duty leading his section forward to its objective, inspiring his men by his coolness under fire.
While consolidating his objective he was severely wounded by shrapnel, but remained in command of his section until overcome by weakness and sent to the rear. His example was an inspiration to every soldier of his command.

Sergeant, Company K, 141st Infantry, 36th Division, Upon the death of his platoon commander, Sergeant Willis took command of the platoon and led his men in an attack against the enemy. Although wounded several times, he continued to lead his men until killed by machine-gun fire.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Daniel Willis.

Gunnery sergeant, 47th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. He established an outpost under heavy enemy fire and by cool leadership and unusual daring effected the capture of a hostile machine gun and 5 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company K, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.
His company commander being incapacitated on the morning of Oct. 4, 1918, Sergeant Willoughby assumed command of the company, reorganized it under heavy fire, and led it forward in the attack. The company participated in attack and capture of Hill 240 on that date. This noncommissioned officer held the command in the position gained until he was relieved on

Oct. 11, 1918.

Major, 1st Engineers, 1st Division.
Adjutant of his brigade at Berzy-le-Sec, France, July 21, 1918, he repeatedly displayed great bravery, making trips among troops under violent fire, and by his courage and initiative contributed materially to the success of the engagement. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to foster mother, Mrs. James T.

Anderson.

First lieutenant, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.
In order to establish and maintain liaison with the adjacent division, Lieutenant Wilson, although wounded, led his men along the valley of the Aire River and across a bridge through the heaviest kind of artillery and machinegun fire. He died soon after this exploit from the wounds received. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, J. C. Wilson.

Private, Company G, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
In order to stop artillery fire which was eausing heavy losses in our ranks, he, with another soldier, rushed 300 yards to the front, attacked a machine-gun strong point and a 77-millimeter artillery gun, captured the position and the gun, killed 2, and captured 13 of the enemy.

Sergeant, Company M, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

Showing great personal bravery and contempt of danger at all times during the attack on Hill 212, he maneuvered his platoon so skillfully as to capture a machine-gun position with 4 of its occupants, after which he operated the 2 enemy guns thus taken against the retreating Germans.

Second lieutenant, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

Wounded early in the engagement, he refused to be evacuated and remained with his platoon throughout the day's fighting until the objective was reached. Although he was suffering acute pain from his wound, he personally attacked several machine-gun nests and aided other wounded men.

Wilson, Guy M______ From Courmont to Mont St. Martin, France, July 31-Aug. 5, 1918.

R—Detroit, Mich. B—Genesee County, Mich. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

WILSON, HARVEY W.
Near Bussy Farm, France, Sept. 28-29, 1918.
R.—Boston, Mass.
B.—Boston, Mass.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Wilson, Hazen (261723) Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R.—Detroit, Mich. B.—Monroe County, Mich. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Wilson, James M______ Near Ammertzwiller, Alsace, July 8, 1918.
R—Kalamazoo, Mich.
B—Bloomingdale, Mich.
G. O. No. 101, W. D., 1918.

*Wilson, Josephus B. Near Cunel, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R-Athens, Tenn. B-Denver, Colo. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Wilson, Merritt B.
Near Reddy Farm, France, Aug. 2,

R—Menominee, Mich. B—Menominee, Mich. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

WILSON, ROBERT M. (1311934)...... Near Brançourt, France Oct. 8, 1918. R—Great Falls, S. C. B—Fairfield County, S. C. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

R—Savannah, Ga. B—Savannah, Ga. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

WILSON, SHUG (1329370) Son, SHOG (13293/0)
Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—Wilder, Tenn.
B—Wilder, Tenn.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Wilson, Thomas J. (1309186).

Near Premont, France, Oct. 7, 1918.

R—Chattanoga, Tenn.

B—Bridgeport, Ala.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Wilt, Perry W. (3112819) _____ Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29,

R—Swanton, Md. B—Swanton, Md. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Major, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

For extraordinary heroism in action while commanding the leading battalion in the successful advance from Courmont to Mont St. Martin, France, from July 31 to Aug. 5, 1918, including the forced crossing of the Ourcq River and several engagements, and especially at Les Jamblet, where he personally led the successful charge of his battalion.

Second lieutenant, 372d Infantry, 93d Division.
After being hit by a shell splinter he continued to lead his platoon against the enemy position until he was again hit by another shell fragment and had to be carried from the field. His example of devotion to duty and his courage inspired the men of the platoon to continue the attack successfully.

Private, Company C, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

He displayed exceptional courage and bravery while carrying messages from his company in the line to his regimental post of command. While carrying messages he passed through areas swept by a terrific enemy fire. He was repeatedly knocked down by the shell explosions and had his rifle broken and his pack torn from his back by the force of the exploding shells, but successfully completed his mission, delivering messages which were of great value in the success of the operation. value in the success of the operation.

Second lieutenant, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
He returned under fire into enemy barbed wire near Ammertzwiller, Alsace, the night of July 8, 1918, to recover 20f his patrol who were missing after a raid, and, although painfully wounded himself, brought them safely to the American trenches, concealing the fact of his injury until he had succeeded in his undertaking and fainted from exhaustion.

First lieutenant, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. He skillfully led a portion of his company through a terrific hostile barrage, establishing them in shell holes where the guns were set up. He then returned through the same barrage and, assembling his reserve platoon, started in the direction of the enemy, but while leading his men to the attack he was mortally wounded and died upon the field.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Ellsworth Wilson.

First lieutenant, 125th Infantry, 32d Division.

With a party of 30 men he led the advance on the Bois Chenet, where a full company of Germans, supported by machine guns, were encountered. Due to his splendid leadership and example this resistance was overcome and the woods were taken. Although suffering great pain from a broken ear drum, caused by the explosion of a shell, Lieutenant Wilson immediately led his party to the flank of the battalion, where numerous attempts of the enemy to retake the woods were repulsed. He refused to leave his company for first and mind darkness had brought an end to the advance. aid until darkness had brought an end to the advance.

Private, Company I, 118th Infantry, 30th Division.

Private Wilson, who was a Lewis gunner, encountered an enemy machine-gun nest containing 4 Germans, who were inflicting heavy casualties on the right platoon of the company. He opened fire with his Lewis gun and then charged the nest, firing as he advanced, and killing all the occupants of the post. On Oct. 17, 1918, Private Wilson was killed while on duty with his company Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, David Y. Wilson.

Captain, 18th Infantry, 1st Division.

Throughout this period Captain Wilson led his company against the enemy in a masterly manner, displaying exceptional judgment, energy, and conspicuous galiantry until he received a severe wound which permanently disabled his right arm.

Private, Company D, 105th Engineers, 30th Division.

After his company had taken shelter from a terrific bombardment of shell and machine-gun fire, he volunteered and went to the aid of a wounded comrade who was lying 100 yards out on a shell-swept area. He gave first-aid treatment, after which he carried him back to the dressing station.

Private, Company K, 117th Infantry, 30th Division. After his platoon had reached its objective in an exhausted condition and without food or water he voluntarily exposed himself to heavy fire to get rations and canteens from dead soldiers who had fallen in exposed positions and distributed these among the men of his platoon. Later he carried an important message over ground subjected to intense artillery fire, and with 3 other soldiers carried a wounded officer to a dressing station over ground commanded by the enemy positions.

Private, Company C, 311th Machine Gun Battalion, 79th Division.
While performing his duties as company runner he passed through an intensely shelled area on 6 different occasions and expressed a willingness to make several more trips as the situation required. While making his last journey across the area he was severely wounded.

First lieutenant, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

He was in command of the Stokes mortar platoon of his regiment at the beginning of the German attack of July 15, when all but 2 of his guus were blown out of their pits by enemy fire. Changing the location of his 2 remaining guus, he continued to fire on the Germans as they crossed the Marne, and when he was no longer able to do so he withdrew his men, numbering about 20, and assisted in helding back the enemy approaching from 3 sides. Regardless of personal danger, he remained on duty throughout the action, refusing to accept first aid, though he had been twice wounded.

WINCENCIAE, WILLIAM Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 4,

1918. R—Dunkirk, N. Y. B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

WINCHENBAUGH, WOLCOTT.

In the Toulon Sector, France, Apr. 22, 1918.

R—Hyde Park, Mass.

B—Hyde Park, Mass.

G. O. No. 129, W. D., 1918.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Oct. 14, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R—French Liek, Ind. B—Martin County, Ind. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

awarded.

WINSHIP, BLANTON Near Lachaussee, France, Nov. 9, B—Macon, Ga.
B—Macon, Ga.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.
Distinguished-service medal also

Winslow, Alan F.
In the Toul sector, France, June 6, 1918.

R-River Forest, Ill. B-River Forest, Ill. G. O. No. 121, W. D., 1918.

R—Harrisville, N. H. B—Claremont, N. H. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

WINSOR, MERLE R. (567353). Near Hautevesnes, France, July 19,

R—Campello, Mass. B—West Falmouth, Mass. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Sergeant, 23d Company, 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

When his platoon commander was killed, he took charge of the platoon under heavy shellfire, but was immediately seriously wounded. He then turned over his orders to the next in command, ordered stretcher bearers to earry another man away first, and waited until they had returned.

Corporal, 18th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. On Apr. 22, 1918, when the patrol of which he was a member was rushed by superior numbers near the enemy's trenches, he displayed exceptional colness and courage before and after the wounding of his leader, Second Lieut. A. L. Sundyal, whom he rescued from the hands of the enemy and half dragged and half carried back to his own lines.

Sergeant, Company M, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

After 3 attempts had failed to bomb out enemy machine-gun nests which were holding up the advance of his company, Sergeant Winchester voluntarily led a fourth patrol. He made his way to a point close to the nests and pressed on, even after all the members of his patrol had been killed or wounded. Though finally killed, his efforts were instrumental in uncovering the nests, which were soon after destroyed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Mary Powell Winchester.

Winchester.

Sergeant, Company E, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.
Upon encountering a party of 5 Germans, one of whom wounded him in the side, Sergeant Wines, unaided, engaged the entire number, killing 3 and eapturing the other 2.

Private, first class, Company M, 165th Infantry, 42d Division. He showed an utter disregard of personal danger by repeatedly carrying messages from his company commander to the platoon commanders through an area swept by heavy shell, machine-gun, and rifle fire in full view of enemy snipers who were firing upon him. On I trip he found II men who were without a leader, and he personally led them in combat against the enemy.

Sergeant, Battery C, 60th Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps.

He ran with a litter into an area under heavy shellfire in an effort to save a wounded comrade. He succeeded in getting the soldier on the litter, but before he was able to carry him to a place of safety a shell struck almost directly beneath the litter, killing the wounded man and wounding Sergeant Wininger severely. Colonel, 110th Infantry, 28th Division.

While commanding his regiment and observing from his outpost line the progress of a daylight raid on the enemy by a detachment of his officers and men, he discovered the enemy enveloping the right flank of the raiding party. Hastily collecting and organizing a small party from the few available men, he, regardless of his own safety, personally led them forward under heavy rife, machine-gun, and shell fire, and covered the exposed flank, advancing over a deep tank obstruction and through enemy wire to their second line, destroying several machine guns and killing many of the enemy. His prompt and fearless action enabled the main raiding party to accomplish its mission, and his personal conduct was a great inspiration to his officers and men and contributed largely to the success of the raid.

Second lieutenant, 94th Aero Squadron, Air Service.
While on a patrol, consisting of himself and 2 other pilots, he encountered an enemy biplane at an altitude of 4,000 meters near St. Mihiel, France. Ho promptly and vigorously attacked, and after a running fight extending far beyond the German lines shot his foe down in flames near Thiaeourt.

Corporal, Company H, 103d Infantry, 26th Division. Rushing from shell hole to shell hole, he reached an enemy trench, and, having flanked a machine gun, killed the gunner and took the remaining members of the crew as prisoners.

Corporal, Company D, 12th Machine Gun Battalion, 4th Division.

Although severely wounded by a flanking machine-gun fire, he remained with his gun crew in an exposed position and under a sweeping artillery and machine-gun fire. He received aid from members of his company and remained on duty with the platoon until the company had withdrawn and he had been ordered to the aid station,

WINTERS, RAY (1467824)
Near Baulny, France, Sept. 30, 1918.
R—Kansas City, Kans.
B—Bethel, Kans.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

WINTHROP, DUDLEY M. (90934)
At sector Auberive, France, July 16, 1918
R-Brooklyn, N. Y.
B-New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Winton, David J. (9604)... Near Exermont, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R.—Minneapolis, Minn. B.—Warsaw, Wis. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Wintrode, John H. (99860)
Near the River Oureq, northeast of Chateau-Thierry, France, July 30, 1918.
R-Winterset, Iowa.
B-Winterset, Iowa.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1918.

Wirth, Thomas F.

Near the Bois-de-Mort Mare,
France, Sept. 12, 1918.
R.—Louisville, Ky.
B.—Hodgencille, Ky.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Wise, Charles E.
Near Bois-de-Foret, France, Oct. 12, 1918.
R.—Mankato, Minn.
B.—Mankato, Minn.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Wise, Jennings C.

During the Meuse-Argonne offensive, near Nantillois, France, Oct 4, 1918.

R—Richmond, Va.
B—Richmond, Va.
G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

Wiseman, Rufus E. (92432)
Northeast of Chateau-Thierry,
France, July 29-Aug. 2, 1918.
R-Ycllowhird, Ohio.
B-Franklin County, Ohio.
G. O. No. 09, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

Lieutenant Winstead led 4 patrols across the Marne River while exposed to heavy enemy machine-gun fire. On the second of these patrols the boat was sunk and it was necessary to swim the river. While within the themy lines he and 5 others raided a German outpost, killing 5 of the enemy, and, in spite of heavy enemy fire, returned with a prisoner. On July 15, 1918, shortly after leading his platoon under gas and shell fire to a position on a hill, he was killed by enemy fire.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Charles M. Winstead.

Sergeant, Company B, 110th Engineers, 35th Division.

In the face of an enemy counterattack and while exposing himself to intense machine-gun and artillery fire, he advanced 300 yards beyond our lines to rescue a wounded soldier. He administered first aid to the wounded man and then carried him back to our lines.

First lieutenant, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.
When the advance of his company was held up by machine-gun fire frem a strong enemy position, Lieutenant Winters led his platoon forward with utter disregard for his personal safety. He succeeded in flanking the enemy position with a squad of riflemen and an automatic rifle team, and by personally directing their fire silenced the enemy machine guns, and thereby assisted greatly in the capture of the position, together with 80 prisoners.

Sergeant, Company H, 165th Infantry, 42d Division.

After repeated attempts to rescue a wounded soldier in a communication trench held by the enemy had failed, he went out in the face of heavy machine-guu fire, rescued the wounded man, and dressed his wounds.

Sergeant, Company C, 345th Battalion, Tank Corps.
Sergeant Winton ran his tank into the wood to reduce a machine-gun nest, but it was hit and set on fire. He and the driver were wounded as they left the tank, but advanced on the nest and were both wounded the second time. While attempting to reach his companion, who had been hit the third time, Sergeant Winton was again wounded, but reached the driver. They then took cover and remained until darkness, when Sergeant Winton made his way back to our lines, being hit 3 more times while returning.

Sergeant, Company A, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.
He took command of his company when all his officers were killed or wounded and handled it with extreme courage, coolness, and skill under an intense artilley bombardment and machine-gun fire during an exceptionally dittieult attack.

Major, 355th Infantry, 89th Division. When his battalion was held up by numerous German machine-gun nests ho walked out in front in the face of violent fire and led his battalion in capturing 8 machine guns and 12 prisoners.

Private, Company L, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Voluntarily accompanying a party sent out to attack machine-gun posts, Private Wischmeier, armed only with a rifle and bayonet, entered an enemy dugout alone and captured a number of Germans.

Captain, 132d Infantry, 33d Division.

While leading his company in an advance from the Bois-du-Fays to the Bois-de-Foret he was severely wounded, but continued to lead his men until he became so weak that he was unable to advance farther. He then directed the advance of his company from the shelter of a shell hole until the command could be turned over to the first sergeant, all of the other officers having become casualties.

Major, 318th Infantry, 80th Division.
Major Wise, while gallantly leading his battalion in the attack was painfully wounded by a shell fragment. He refused to be evacuated but continued to successfully command his battalion in an advance against strong enemy resistance until his battalion was relieved on Oct. 7.

Corporal, Company H, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

He was in charge of a detail for carrying ammunition to a machine-gun section.

He had performed his duties and had been given permission to withdraw to the rear, but he remained with his detail for 4 days on the fring line under a heavy bombardment and machine-gun fire, assisting the machine-gun crew.

During these 4 days he was suffering from the effects of gas but refused to be evacuated.

VISHER, ROBERT F. (1782660) Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Atglen, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

2, 1918. R—Kinderhook, N. Y. B—Stuyvesant Falls, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WITMER, GEORGE (57875) Near Nonsard, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-Manchester, Pa. B-Manchester, Pa. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WITT, GEORGE DOUGLAS.....

Near St. Etienue-a-Arnes, France, Oct. 6, 1918. R—Harrington, Wash. B—Harrington, Wash. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

WITT, WALTER S. (2176194)

In the Bois-de-Bantheville, France,
Oct. 22, 1918.

R—Sugar City, Colo.
B—Parkville, Mo.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Witte, Louis (274172) Near Roncheres, France, July 30, 1918.

R-Shepley, Wis. B-Shawano County, Wis. G. O. No. 66, W. D., 1919.

Woerman, August (2146695)_____ Near Sommerance, France, Oct. 15, 1918.

R—Quiney, Ill. B—Quiney, Ill. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Woll, Herman B. (2254426)
Near Vilcey-sur-Trey, France, Sept.
12, 1918.

R—Estherville, Iowa. B—Estherville, Iowa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Wollert, Edward J.
Near Thiancourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918.
R—Milwaukee, Wis.
B—Milwaukee, Wis.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919

Private, Company A, 301st Battalion, Tank Corps.

After aiding in rescuing the wounded from his tank, which had been struck by a shell, Private Wisher, with Corpl. Albert F. Nell, dismounted machine guns from the tank and operated them against the enemy until these were put out of action. They then secured rifles and hand grenades and organized an attack on the enemy trenches, which they captured and held until deple-tion of their numbers forced them to fall back. Later they joined Australian troops and fought with them throughout the remainder of the day.

First lieutenant, 168th Infantry, 42d Division.

While in command of an assaulting company, which was without other officers, he displayed unhesitating devotion to duty and courage during the offensive operations at Cote-de-Chatillon. Brilliantly leading his company in an attack over open ground swept by violent machine-gun fire, he captured 63 prisoners and 4 officers and directed the certainty of the captured positions in disparate for all danger. On the vertical content of the captured positions in disregard of all danger. On the next day, after severe hand-to-hand fighting, he drove off and completely broke up a pending counterattack, furnishing a splendid example of calmness, decision, and courage at a very critical time.

Corporal, Company G, 56th Infantry, 7th Division.

After Corporal Witkoski and 2 wounded comrades had become separated from their platoon and were almost entirely surrounded by the enemy, he directed the fire of his men, killing and wounding several of the enemy and holding the position until assistance arrived from his platoon.

Corporal, Company G, 28th Infantry, 1st Division.

Accompanied by another soldier, Corporal Witmer attacked and destroyed an enemy machine-gun nest, using only his rifle and bayonet.

Pharmacist's mate, third class, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He displayed remarkable bravery and coolness in giving medical aid to wounded marines while going forward with the assault waves during the attack north of Blanc Mont Ridge, near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, on Oct. 6, 1918. Late in the afternoon on the same date while giving first aid to a wounded marine in an advance machine-gun post he was shot and seriously wounded by an energy scripe. by an enemy sniper.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, George M. Witt.

Sergeant, Company D, 353d Infantry, 89th Division.
Although wounded in the face by machine-gun fire, he refused to go to the first-aid station for treatment, remaining with his platoon throughout the engagement until the objective was reached and the position consolidated.

Private, first class, Company F, 127th Infantry, 32d Division. When all the other members of his automatic-rifle squad had been killed or wounded, Private Witte took the dead gunner's automatic rifle and kept it in action against the enemy. Considerable enemy machine-gun fire was thereby drawn upon him, and he was wounded, but he nevertheless continued to maintain an effective fire while the remainder of his company was withdrawing. He remained at his post firing until the entire company had withdrawing. withdrawn.

Private, first class, Company A, 26th Infantry, 1st Division. He fearlessly exposed himself to fire near Soissons, France, July 20, 1918, in order to obtain effective positions from which to fire upon enemy machinegun nests, continuing this valuable work until seriously wounded.

Private, Company A, 321st Machine Gun Battalion, 82d Division. Although wounded by shrapnel, he remained on duty throughout the entire night and after having his wounds dressed insisted on returning for duty. He was again wounded the following day, once more disregarding his wound and continuing on duty.

Private, 357th Ambulance Company, 315th Sanitary Train, 90th Division. With another soldier, Private Woll left the shelter of a wood and went forward to rescue a soldier who had fallen wounded on a hill under constant machinegun and shell fire. While they were carrying him back on a litter he was again wounded and the litter was struck twice by machinegun bullets, but they succeeded in carrying him back to safety, thereby saving his life.

Corporal, 79th Company, 6th Reviment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. At the risk of his own life, he went to the aid of a wounded officer who was a prisoner in the hands of 6 Germans. With his pistol he shot 2 of them while the officer killed 2 others. He captured the 2 remaining Germans and forced thein to carry the wounded officer back to our lines.

Womack, John H.

Near Beaumont, France, Nov. 7,

R—Sacramento, Calif. B—Wallowa, Oreg. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

R-Boston, Mass. B-Dighton, Mass. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

Wood, Dolph Near Vierzy, France, July 19, 1918. R—Venice, Ill. B—Oakland City, Ind. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

*Wood, Lambert A.
At Chateau-Thierry, France, June
6-7, 1918.
R.—Portland, Oreg.

B—Portland, Oreg. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1924.

WOOD, MEREDITH. od, MEREDITH
Near Badonviller, France, June 30,
1918, and near Chery-Chartreuve,
France, Aug. 24, 1918.
R—Brooklyn, N. Y.
B—Brooklyn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

WOOD, WILLIAM J. (568737) ... Near Ville-Savoye, France, Aug. 11, 1918. R—Portland, Oreg. B—Hesler, Ky. G. O. No. 147, W. D., 1918.

WOODARD, WILLIAM E. (2854681) Near Vilcey, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Westville, 1ll. B—Fairmount, Ill. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

Oct. 8, 1918.
R—Arp, Tenn.
B—Arp, Tenn.
G. O. No. 50, W. D, 1919.

Woods, Harry Melvin (244914)..... Near Montfaucon, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—Elkhart, Ind. B—Durango, Colo. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

1918.
R—Wewoka, Okla.
B—Tyner, Kans.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Private, Machine Gun Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d

Private Womack was wounded early in the attack, but he refused to be evacuated and continued in the advance for five days, until he was rendered helpless by a second wound.

Second lieutenant, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.
While on patrol in No Man's Land in the vicinity of Ancerviller on the night of May 3-4, 1918, he displayed great courage and devotion to duty in continuing to direct his men after having been mortally wounded and refusing aid until he was assured of the safety of his men.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Nathan L. Wood.

Private, 55th Company, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. Corporal Montag and Privates McIntyre, Messinger, and Wood captured a machine gun which was holding up the 55th Company of Marines, killing the entire crew. To accomplish this hazardous and daring work it was necessary for them to expose themselves to the fire of this gun. Even though Corporal Montag and Privates McIntyre and Messinger were wounded during the advance, the party continued forward and succeeded.

First lieutenant, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
With entire disregard for personal danger, Lieutenant Wood passed through heavy artillery fire with a message to stop misdirected supporting artillery fire, which fire imperiled the safety of his organization. He was killed near Soissons, France, on July 18, 1918, while leading his machine-gun platoon on a flank movement against an enemy group which was enflading our advancing Infeature line. Infantry line.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Elizabeth L. Wood.

First lieutenant, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.

On the first date, accompanied by only 1 noncommissioned officer, Lieutenant Wood, acting as signal officer, penetrated the enemy's front line and bravely patrolled their territory, following a wire which was thought to lead to a listening post. He cut the wire and returned to our lines with valuable informations of the cut the wire and returned to our lines with valuable informations. tion. On Aug. 24, when a direct hit was made on the building occupied by regimental headquarters, he was severely gassed when he removed his mask to aid a mortally wounded soldier and to search for others who might have been overcome.

Private, Company E, 118th Infantry, 30th Division. When his squad had become separated from the company in a dense fog Private Wood immediately attached himself and his squad to a company in the attacking wave and continued in the advance. He worked forward with a Lewis sun and so placed it that he delivered so severe a fire upon an enemy machine-gun nest that the crew deserted it. He continued firing until his gun was completely demolished by an enemy shell. Not daunted by this, Private Wood secured a rifle and continued to pour the fire of his whole squad upon the retreating enemy, killing many of them.

Sergeant, Company D, 4th Engineers, 4th Division.

Although his eyes had been burned by gas, he volunteered for duty and assisted in the construction of an artillery bridge across the Vesle River under constant machine-gun and artillery fire, setting a conspicuous example of personal bravery and devotion to duty.

Corporal, Company M, 358th Infantry, 90th Division.

Although wounded in the back by machine-gun fire early in the attack, Corporal Woodard refused to stop even for the application of a first-aid dressing. He continued to command his squad regardless of the pain and with utter disregard of personal danger until the objective was reached.

Private, Company C, 117th Infantry, 30th Division.
Early on the morning of Oct. 8, Private Woodard was painfully wounded by severe machine-gun fire, which also riddled his gas mask. Unmindful of his suffering, and despite the fact that he had no protection from gas, he continued to press on with his company until he fell exhausted and was evacuated.

Sergeant, Company D, 1st Gas Regiment.
While his position was under heavy and continuous bombardment of both gas and high-explosive shells he voluntarily left his dugout and put gas masks on 900 soldiers, giving his own mask to one of them, and thus saving their lives. After being severely gassed by the explosion of a shell, one piece of which struck him, he continued to administer aid to the other wounded and quit only when his eyes were swelling shut and he was completely exhausted.

Sergeant, Company F, 142d Infantry, 36th Division.

After all the officers of his company had become casualties, Sergeant Woods, though himself wounded severely, remained at his post and reorganized his company under heavy machine gun and artillery fire, thereby making possible its further advance.

Woodside, Robert G.....At Les Franquetto Farm, near Jaulgonne, France, July 22, 1918. R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

Woodsmall, William M. (2869212)... Near Consenvoye, France, Oct. 10,

R—Little Rock, Ark. B—Little Rock, Ark. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

Woodville, Joseph P. (1290986)...... In the Boise-de-Consenvoye, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R-Norfolk, Va. B-Fincastle, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

*WOODWARD, DUDLEY W. Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—New Amsterdam, Ind. B—New Amsterdam, Ind. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WOODWARD, FREDERICK A. (152480)... Near Suippes, Marne, France, July 14-15, 1918. R—Elizabeth, N. J. B—Elizabeth, N. J. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

B—Suffolk, Va. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WOOLDRIDGE, JESSE WALTON.

East of Chateau-Thierry, France,
July 15, 1918.

R—San Francisco, Calif.

B—Hopkinsville, Ky.
G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

1918. R—Hartford, Conn. B—Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Woolshlager, John F
Northwest of Grand Pre, France,
Oct. 18, 1918.
R—Castorland, N. Y.
B—Beaver Falls, N. Y.
G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920.

*Woomer, Elmer E. (1246074) Near Le Chene Tondu, France, Oct. 2, 1918.

R-Meyerstown, Pa. B-Meyerstown, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Near Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918.
R—Richmond, Va.
B—Richmond, Va.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

Worden, Robert L. (934300) At Ville-Savoye, France, Aug. 7,1918. R-Wichita, Kans. B-Wellington, Kans. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

Captain, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
Captain Woodside rallied the men of one platoon of his company who were falling back in disorder, reformed them under heavy enemy shell and machine-gun fire, and led them to the left front of the battalion sector and engaged the attacking enemy. His prompt action stopped an enveloping movement of the enemy which imperiled the position of the battalion.

Private, Company A, 131st Infantry, 33d Division. He left our lines on his own initiative and advancing along against a German machine-gun nest killed the crew and brought back their machine gun. He showed marked coolness and bravery, with utter disregard for the heavy fire to which he was subjected.

Private, Company B, 112th Machine Gun Battalion, 29th Division.
He remained at his gun until the position was destroyed, the other gun sentry killed, and he himself wounded. He refused first aid until the bombardment had lifted and kept up the morale of the other members of his section by his heroism and cheerfulness.

Captain, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
Advancing with his company in the face of withering machine-gun fire, he attacked a nest of 10 machine guns and a battery of field guns which were holding up the attack. In spite of the additional hazard of heavy enfilading fire from enemy artillery on the left, he succeeded with his mission. On another occasion he broke up an enemy counterattack formation by placing an automatic-rille team in an exposed position and disorganized the enemy with a barcesium fire. with a harassing fire.

Private, Battery E, 42d Artillery, Coast Artillery Corps.
Acting as a runner during an engagement, he kept up his work throughout the bombardment. On the trip he was wounded by a bursting shell, but succeeded in carrying a very important message to his battery commander.

First lieutenant, 319th Infantry, 80th Division.
Disregarding his intense suffering from wounds, he continued to lead and encourage his men until killed by another rain of machine-gun bullets.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Jeanne B. Woodward.

Captain, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
With rare courage and conspicuous gallantry he led a counterattack against an enemy of 5 times his own numbers on July 15, 1918, east of Chateau-Thierry, France; 189 men entered this counterattack and 51 emerged untouched. More than 1,000 of the enemy were killed, wounded, or taken prisoners.

Private, Company I, 308th Infantry, 77th Division.
Volunteering to serve on a patrol for the purpose of capturing prisoners, Private Woolfe crawled forward to a sentry post 25 yards from the enemy lines. Overpowering 2 sentries, he started back under a heavy barrage of rifle grenades and rifle fire, and ignoring his great danger he successfully delivered his prisoners to the battalion commander.

First lieutenant, 312th Infantry, 78th Division.

In the attack of morning of Oct. 18 Lieutenant Woolshlager was severely wounded, both legs being broken. He nevertheless retained command of his platoon and that of an adjoining platoon. Throughout the day, exposed to heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, he encouraged and directed his men. Due to his efforts the position, gained at great cost, was held against enemy

Sergeant, Company M, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

Leading a patrol to locate hidden machine-gun nests, Sergeant Woomer placed his men in advantageous positions and advanced alone to draw fire from the enemy strongholds. In the execution of his mission he was killed, but his heroic action saved the lives of many in the advance that followed.

Both burgular awarded. Medal presented to sixter. Mrs. William Lives Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. William Line.

First lieutenant, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division.

During the action near Pexonne, France, on Mar. 5, 1918, he displayed unusual presence of mind and initiative by the effective manner in which he assisted in directing the operations of Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, when it was under particularly heavy bombardment.

Wagoner, 21st Ambulance Company, 4th Sanitary Train, 4th Division. While driving an ambulance through the town he heard cries for help. Voluntarily and under heavy shell and machine-gun fire, he climbed a tower, in which he found 2 officers and a corporal severely wounded. He rendered first aid and assisted in carrying the wounded men to a place of safety.

WORNEK, ERNEST (3137861)______ Near Moulin-de-Charlevaux, France, Oct. 3, 1918.
R—Mackay, Idaho.
B—Pocatello, Idaho.
G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

WORRELL, JOHN M At Bouresches, France, June 6, 1918. R—Colorado, Tex. B—Sweet Water, Ala. G. O. No. 110, W. D., 1918.

*Worsham, Elijah W. ORSHAM, ELIJAH W. Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 26, 1918. R.—Seattle, Wash. B.—Evansville, Ind. G. O. No. 8, W. D., 1926.

Worthen, George T.
Near Varennes, France, Sept. 26, Near 1918. R—St. Joseph, Mo. B—Ottumwa, Iowa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

WORTHEN, WILLIAM A. (251624)

Near Tuilerie Farm, France, Oct. 3,
1918, and at Mouzon, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R—Sunset, Tex. B—Milan, Ala. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Worthington, Henry H.
At Maisey, France, Apr. 12-13, 1918.
R-Trenton, N. J.
B-Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

WORTHINGTON, RICHARD (1587579)_ Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R—Swifton, Ark. B—Mammoth Spring, Ark. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

WORTHY, ELMER T. (2261678)

Near Gesnes, France, Sept. 29, 1918.

R—Santa Ana, Calif.

B—Franklin County, Ark.

G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1919.

*Wozniak, Anthony (107548) Near Somme-Py, France, Oct. 1918. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Near Haumont, France, Sept. 22, 1918. WREN, EDWARD R. R—Talladega, Ala. B—Talladega, Ala. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

WRIGHT, CHESTER E...
Near Beffu, France, Oct, 10, 1918.
R—Brookline, Mass.
B—Readville, Mass.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

Private, first class, Company G, 308th Infantry, 77th Division. Facing heavy machine-gun and rifle fire, he went out alone and rescued a soldier who had been wounded in advance of our lines while on a patrol.

Private, 97th Company, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division. At Bourcsches, France, on June 6, 1918, he voluntarily obtained permission to leave shelter and fearlessly went into heavy fire in order to rescue wounded from a field then under artillery and machine-gun bombardment, continuing this heroic work until he was himself wounded.

Captain, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.

In command of the Machine Gun Company, Captain Worsham personally led his men forward, reconnotiering and establishing a line for machine-gun emplacements under terrific artillery and machine-gun fire. His fearless and aggressive leadership was of the utmost assistance in the capture of Gesnes. In exposing himself to hostile fire in order to observe the fire effect of his guns he was killed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Miss Mary L. Worsham.

First lieutenant, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.

Arming himself with a rifle, Lieutenant Worthen personally led an attack on a hostile machine-gun nest which was holding up the advance, capturing the position and killing or capturing the entire enemy unit, including 2 officers.

Mechanic, Company M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

On Oct. 3 Mechanic Worthen was assigned to duty as a runner after he had requested to go into action with his company instead of remaining in the rear. He showed exceptional bravery while earrying messages through heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, and on Nov. 7 he maintained communication with battalion headquarters when the enemy was endeavoring to cut off his company by machine-gun and shellfire.

Captain, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.
When the enemy launched a powerful raid after a terrific bombardment for 5 hours, Captain Worthington gathered his men into effective combat groups and, although greatly outnumbered, drove the enemy from the trenches inflicting heavy casualties on them. Although severely wounded by a gre, nade early in the action, he continued to direct his company throughout the night and until the enemy was driven out and his evacuation became necessary through weakness.

Best hymothy controlled. Medal presented to mether. Also, T. K. Worthington. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. T. K. Worthington.

Corporal, Company G, 16th Infantry, 1st Division. Knowing that the enemy had captured a wounded member of his company, Corporal Worthington, with 2 others, advanced across dangerous ground to a barn, where they routed the enemy captors and carried back their comrade to safety.

First sergeant, Company M, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.
During the attack on Gesnes he took charge of 15 soldiers who had become separated from their organizations and organized them into a combat group. Continuing forward in the face of shell and machine-gun fire, he led his party in an attack on 3 machine guns that were holding up the advance of the American troops and effectively silenced them. The fearless leadership displayed in this act furnished an inspiration to all who witnessed it.

Private, Company B, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division. While going over the top with his company, he was wounded in the foot. Immediately afterwards he rejoined his squad and remained in action for 60 hours until again severely wounded.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Magdelena Posthumously awarded. Wozniak.

Second licutenant, 167th Infantry, 42d Division.

After clearing the village of Haumont he learned that a soldier of his command was lying either killed or wounded in the town. Disregarding the grave danger of perlious machine-gun fire, he returned into the town, and taking the dead body of the soldier carried it several hundred yards in an endeavor to get heak to our lines. to get back to our lines.

First lieutenant, pilot, 93d Aero Squadron, Air Service. He attacked an enemy observation balloon protected by 4 enemy planes, and despite numerical superiority he forced the planes to withdraw and destroyed the enemy balloon.

Oak-leaf cluster. Oak-leaf cluster.

A bronze oak leaf, for extraordinary heroism in action near Bantheville, France, Oct. 23, 1918. Accompanied by 1 other machine, he attacked and sent down in flames an enemy plane (Fokker type) that was attacking an allied plane. He was in turn attacked by 3 enemy planes. His companion was forced to withdraw on account of motor trouble. He continued the combat and succeeded in bringing down 1 of the enemy planes and forced the remaining 2 into their own territory. WRIGHT, CLARENCE S. (1209482) Near Ponchaux, Frønce, Oct. 7, 1918.
R—Knoxville, Tenn.
B—Knoxville, Tenn.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919

WRIGHT, EARL (1457535)

Near Charpentry, France, Sept. 27-28, 1918.

R—Bucklin, Mo. B—Bucklin, Mo. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

WRIGHT, EARL V. (2185246)

At Pouilly, France, Nov. 10-11, 1918.

R—Cross Timbers, Mo.
B—Cross Timbers, Mo.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*WRIGHT, ERNEST N. (254365) Near Nonsard, France, Sept. 12, 1918, and near Varcances, France, Sept. 27, 1918. Sept. 27, 1918.

R—Amader City, Calif. B—Germantown, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

WRIGHT, FABIAN W. (544384)

Near Crezancy, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

WRIGHT, GEORGE L.
Near Malancourt, France, Sept. 28,

R-Norristown, Pa. B-Norristown, Pa. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

WRIGHT, JOE D. (1309613) Near Ponchaux, France, Oct. 7, 1918. R—Lenoir City, Tenn. B—Jefferson City, Mo. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WRIGHT, JOHN W. (2339546)... Near Nesles, France, July 15, 1918. R—Cancbrake, W. Va. B—Rosnoke County, Va. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

Wrobbel, John (92481)
In the Champagne sector, France, July 15-18, 1918. R—Columbus, Ohio. B—Germany. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919.

WYATT, EDWARD H.
At Wadonville, France, Sept. 25, 1918. R-Rudyard, Mich.

B—Hull, Iowa. G. O. No. 138, W. D., 1918.

Sergeant, Battery C, 124th Field Artillery, 33d Division.

After 3 members of his gun crew had been wounded during heavy enemy shellfire he alone continued to keep his piece in action for 15 minutes until assistance reached him. He was wounded in action shortly afterwards.

Corporal, Company I., 117th Infantry, 30th Division.

Accompanying an officer, he aided him in putting 2 enemy machine guns out of action. He then carried the information which they secured through a heavy machine-gun barrage to battalion headquarters. Later, when his platoon commander had been wounded, Corporal Wright took command and led the platoou until he was himself wounded.

Private, Company K, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

In the advance Private Wright and 2 comrades were cut off from the rest of the company by the enemy. He resisted stoutly until he fell with a riffeshot wound through both legs and was taken prisoner. 2 days later, during the advance of our troops, he assisted in the capture of all the enemy in a dugout by calling to the troops and disclosing his position.

Corporal, Company I, 139th Infantry, 35th Division.
After being wounded in the knee, Corporal Wright refused to be evacuated but remained at his post for nearly 24 hours, until his wounds became so serious that he was ordered to the dressing station. His example of bravery and fortitude was an inspiration to his comrades.

Private, Company K, 356th Infantry, 89th Division. Accompanying Second Lieut. Charles R. Hanger, Private Wright made 3 trips through heavy shellfire to locate 3 companies which had become lost in the dense fog during the crossing of the Meuse River and guided them to the river crossing.

Corporal, Company C, 344th Battalion, Tank Corps.

Entering the town of Nonsard during an extremely heavy barrage, Corporal Wrigat put out of action an enemy machine gun which was impeding the progress of our troops into the town. On Sept. 27, accompanied by another tank, Corporal Wright advanced far ahead of the Infantry and put to flight several enemy machine gunners. A counterattack by the enemy damaged his tank slightly, which forced him to withdraw to a supposed place of safety for repairs. Discovering his tank, the enemy shelled it, when both he and his companion were wounded and taken for treatment. He returned to his tank voluntarily and rendered most valiant service until killed Oct. 3.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Kathleen R. Wright.

Sergeant, Headquarters Company, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.
Under constant high-explosive and shrapnel fire, he remained exposed for 19 hours, observing the movements of the enemy, obtaining information of the utmost value.

Captain, 315th Infantry, 79th Division.

On Sept. 28, in order to save his men, he crossed a clearing under heavy machine gun fire to secure information of the troops on his flank. On Nov. 6 he set a splendid example to his men under heavy shellfire by going from shell hole to shell hole, encouraging them and directing them to safe places.

Corporal, Company L, 117th Infantry, 36th Division.

He went through heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, taking forward an automatic rifle to the front line to replace one which had become unserviceable, after seeing several other soldiers killed or wounded in a similar attempt.

Sergeant, Company I, 4th Infantry, 3d Division.

After he had been severely wounded Sergeant Wright remained on duty through a heavy shell and gas bombardment, rendering valuable assistance to his platoon commander.

Cook, Supply Company, 166th Infantry, 42d Division.

During the heaviest bombardment he regularly supplied hot meals to his men. On July 16 his kitchen was almost demolished by shell bursts and a large number of rations destroyed, but he remained at his post after all his assistants had sought places of safety.

Second lieutenant, 102d Machine Gun Battalion, 26th Division.

Second neutenant, 102d Machine club Battalion, 2cth Division.

Wounded while conducting his platoon into position to lay a barrage for a raid, he showed complete disregard for his own safety by remaining on duty for more than an hour under heavy machine-gun and shell fire, directing the location and adjustment of his guns. After his wounds were dressed he returned to his platoon and remained with it until it was relieved.

*Wyatt, Lindon (107135) Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R-Elkatawa, Ky. B-Elkatawa, Ky. G. O. No. 145, W. D., 1918.

WYGAL, LAWRENCE A. (453877)...... Near Rembercourt, France, Nov. 1, 1918.

R—Honaker, Va. B—Northfork, W. Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

WYGAST, GREGORY (794994) Near Vieville-en-Haye, France, Sept. 13, 1918. R—Teledo, Ohio.

B-Poland G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

WYLDER, CECIL O. (76524) At Marcheville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Spekane, Wash. B—Spirit Lake, Iowa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

WYLY, LAWRENCE T. Various dates and places in France, 1918. R—Duluth, Minn. B—Cardington, Ohio. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

WYNN, THOMAS (1706264). In the Argonne Forest, France, Oct. 3 and 6, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Yabovitz, Benjamin (60080) Near St. Reiny, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R-Chelsea, Mass. B—Russia. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

12, 1918 R—San Diego, Tex. B—Cotulla, Tex. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

YAEGER, ROY (2253610) . Near Pont-a-Mousson, Sept. 12, 1918. R—Hebbronville, Tex. B—Cotulla, Tex. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919. France.

Corporal, Company B, 4th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division.

Under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire he directed the advance of the gun upon an enemy pill box in the open at close range, displaying notable coolness and bravery until he was again severely wounded by shellfire. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Wyatt.

Private, medical detachment, 64th Infantry, 7th Division.

He went forward to the aid of a wounded comrade who was lying about 125 feet in front of the enemy's firing line. Under direct fire of rifles, machine guns, and artillery he applied first aid and took the man back into our trenches to a place of safety.

Private, Company C, 15th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division. Although severely wounded, he made 5 trips through an unusually heavy barrage of machine-gun and shell fire, bringing up ammunition for his squad, relieving their perilous position. Finding his squad leader killed when he returned the fifth time, he took charge of the squad and directed their fire with good effect until completely overcome.

First licutenant, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
For 3 days he voluntarily acted as runner after 3 of the 5 runners of his company had been killed and 2 had been wounded. He made numerous trips by day and night through exposed areas under fire, and thus successfully maintained Private, first class, Headquarters Company, 102d Infantry, 26th Division.

He volunteered to go through a violent bombardment to repair telephone lines and thereby succeeded in establishing communication with regimental headquarters in time to call for a barrage at a critical junction.

First lieutenant, 148th Aero Squadron, Air Service.

For extraordinary heroism in action near Chaulnes, France, August 15, 1918. Acting as flight leader of 5 airplanes he observed 15 or 20 enemy planes attacking a small number of allied planes. Lieutenant Wyly rushed to the assistance of the allied airmen and repeatedly attacked superior numbers of enemy planes. His machine was riddled by enemy fire and his gas tank perforated. Despite this fact, he continued to fight until his plane was shot down close behind our lines, but before landing had succeeded in scattering and driving off the enemy planes. On Sept. 17, northwest of Cambrai, he bodly attacked 5 enemy planes, shooting down 1 of the enemy. On Oct. 21 he volunteered to attack the enemy airdrome near Famors, outside of Valenciennes, many miles behind the enemy lines, despite the fog and mist on that day. In company with another pilot of the squadron he reached his destination to find the airdrome had the night before been evacuated. They continued on to Valenciennes, discovered an enemy transport column 2 miles in length. In spite of enemy machine-gun fire and almost impossible flying conditions, the column was attacked and great damage inflicted upon it. His machine badly crippled, he returned to his airdrome with extremely valuable information. information.

Sergeant, Company H, 307th Infantry, 77th Division.
He advanced alone to within 20 yards of the enemy lines under heavy machine gun fire after ordering the members of his platoon to take cover, and cut openings in the enemy's barbed wire. He then led his platoon in an attack on the hostile trenches in conjunction with another company and captured 15 prisoners. 3 days later this soldier again displayed exceptional courage when attempts were being made to relieve a battalion of his regiment which had been cut off by the enemy in leading the first wave of his platoon in the attack, securing a loothold on the top of a hill and holding it all night. Next morning he renewed the attack, despite the fact that he had been wounded.

Private, Company B, 101st Infantry, 26th Division. While carrying a message through an advance trench he was attacked by 14 of the enemy. After receiving 2 bayonet wounds, this soldier succeeded in killing 3 of the enemy and capturing the other 11, whom he brought to the Private, Company D, 321st Machine Gun Battalion, 82d Division.

Private Yaeger, with his brother, Corpl. Roy Yaeger, remained at an advanced position in the face of heavy machine-gun and rifle fire from the enemy and by effective use of their machine gun and pistols covered the withdrawal of the Infantry, inflicting serious losses on the enemy, and refusing to retire until they were ordered to do so.

Corporal, Company D, 321st Machine Gun Battalion, 82d Division. Cerporal Yaeger, with his brother, Pvt. Louis Yaeger, remained at an advanced position in the face of heavy machine-gun and rifle fire from the enemy, and by effective use of their machine gun and pistols covered the withdrawal of the Infantry, inflicting serious losses on the enemy and refusing to retiro until ordered to do so.

Yagle, Harry At Hamel, France, July 4, 1918. R—Woodstock, Il. B—Dundee, Ill. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*YAMIN, AARON (1701168) -In the Forest of Argonne, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

YANCHULIS, MARTIN (547640)... Near Crezaney, France, July 15, 1918. R-Niagara Falls, N. Y. B-Lithuania. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

*YANNANTUONO, FREDERICK (2382187) -

Near Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918. R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

TANTIS, ERNEST M ... Near Tronsol Farm, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R—Granbury, Tex. B—Brown County, Tex. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

*YARBOROUGH, GEORGE HAMPTON, Jr. In the Bois-de-Belleau, France, June

23, 1918. R—Mullins, S. C. B—Roxboro, N. C. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

YARNIS, HYMAN (42342) On Hill 272, near Fleville, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R-New York, N. Y. B—Russia. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

YATES, FRANK ROY....

Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Colusa, Calif. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1919.

*YEAGER, CURTIS L. (2003854) Near Verdun, France, Oct. 12, 1918. R—Atherton, Ind. B—Terre Haute, Ind. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919.

Yоснім, Fred J. (550251)... Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Erie, Pa. В—Erie, Pa. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

YOCKEY, WILLIAM S. (3487215)... Near Sedan, France, Nov. 6-7, 1918. R—Akron, Ohio. B—Woodsfield, Ohio. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

1918.
R—Wilmington, N. C.
B—Wilmington, N. C.
G, O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 131st Infantry, 33d Division.
While digging in at his final objective, he came under fire from a hostile machine gun in a sunken read 200 yards to the right front. With Sergeant Koijane and 2 Australian soldiers, he rushed the position and captured the gun and 8 prisoners.

Corporal, Company B, 306th Infantry, 77th Division.

He displayed exceptional bravery by volunteering to cut a strip of enemy barbed wire to make an opening for his company, which was at that time under heavy fire from artillery and machine guns. In performing this mission this soldier received wounds from which he afterwards died.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Louis Yamin.

Private, Company I, 30th Infantry, 3d Division. Although severely wounded, he made his way through the terrific enemy barrage to his post in the trenches and remained on duty until ordered to the rear by his commanding officer.

Private, first class, medical detachment, 13th Machine Gun Battalion, 5th Division.

Private Yannantuono voluntarily went forward and administered first aid to wounded Infantry soldiers under heavy shell and machine-gun fire in plain view of the enemy, being killed in the performance of this self-sacrificing mission.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Paul Yannantuono.

First lieutenant, 363d Infantry, 91st Division.
Leading his platoon as a combat patrol 500 yards ahead of the front line under intense shell and machine-gun fire, he was wounded 3 times, but remained on duty for more than an hour until relieved. He then refused to leave until the new officer had been fully informed as to his disposition and that of the enemy.

First lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

He displayed exceptional bravery when his platoon was in a support position under intense artillery fire by moving from 1 shell hole to another in the open and steadying his men. After making 1 trip over his line he was wounded by an exploding shell, but refused aid until he saw that the wonnded soldiers with him had been treated and taken to shelter. He later died of his wounds. his wounds.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, G. H. Yarbereugh, sr.

Corporal, Company C, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Corporal Yarnis volunteered for and attacked a machine-gun position which was enfilading the lines by its fire from the left flank. He killed the enemy crew, in which encounter he was wounded by a grenade. Notwithstanding his wound, he advanced against a second machine-gun position, during which he was wounded a second time. However, he continued on and attacked the enemy crew.

Pharmacist's mate, third class, U. S. Navy, attached to 6th Machine Gun Battalion, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.

Be attended the wounded during a heavy artillery and gas bombardment, remaining at his post even after his gas mask had been torn from his face by a shell fragment. Late in the day in a violent barrage of machine-gun fire he showed entire disregard for his own safety in ministering to wounded soldiers and in organizing 2 crews of litter bearers to carry them from the road to the dressing station. road to the dressing station.

Private, Company L, 116th Infantry, 29th Division.

Private Yeager, in an exposed position under a heavy machine-gun and artillery barrage, kept up an effective fire from his automatic rifle until severely wounded. After waiting 7 hours with a comrade for a stretcher and only 1 arrived, although practically unconscious he insisted on his comrade leaving first.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, James Yeager.

Private, Company C, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.
When other means of liaison were destroyed by heavy enemy fire, Private Yochim carried numerous messages over routes exposed to heavy artillery fire from units in line to battalion headquarters. In all subsequent engagements of this regiment he exposed himself fearlessly in order to maintain communication until severely wounded near Cunel, Oct. 21, 1918, while carrying a message over area swept by machine-gun fire.

Private, Company E, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.
Private Yoekey voluntarily led 2 other men in an attack on a machine-gun nest which was delivering a withering fire on the company and delaying its advance. By the skill and bravery of this attack the enemy gunner was killed and the advancing company saved from a dangerous flanking fire.

Sergeant, medical detachment, 119th Infantry, 30th Division. While directing the evacuation of the wounded, he was severely gassed, but refused to be evacuated and continued in charge of the dressing station to which he had been assigned. He displayed marked fortitude and personal bravery, working constantly to help the wounded. R-Norton, Va. B-Rockbridge Baths, Va. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

Young, Arthur J. (795010) Near Romagne, France, Oct. 16, 1918. R—Erie, Pa. B—Concord, N. Y. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Lansing, Mich. B-Millbrook, Mich. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

YOUNG, CHARLES G. Near Binarville, France, Sept. 27-28, R-Washington, D. C. B-Manor, Tex. G. O. No. 128, W. D., 1918.

Young, Charles I. Jr. (1906283) Rear Cornay, France, Oct. 9, 1918.
R—Reading, Pa.
B—Spring City, Pa.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

*Young, Edward M... Near Beaufort, France, Nov. 8, 1918. R.—Hartford, Conn. B.—Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—Lorain, Ohio. B—Lorain, Ohio. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Young, Guy L. (263186) Near Cierges, France, July 31, 1918. R—Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. B—Datter, Mich. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

R—Pittsburgh, Pa.
B—Sewickley, Pa.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Youngbar, Andy F. (1286094)...... Near Gildwiller, France, July 31, 1918. R-Curtis Bay, Md. B-Curtis Bay, Md. G. O. No. 109, W. D., 1918.

*Youngdahl, Oskar E... Near St. Etienne-a-Arnes, France, Oct. 6, 1918. R—Red Wing, Minn. B—Red Wing, Minn. G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

Major, 26th Infantry, 1st Division.

Taking command of his battalion after the battalion commander had been mortally wounded, he led it with remarkable bravery throughout 9 days of the hardest fighting, though he was himself painfully wounded on the first day, when he led his command in storming the heights beyond the Rau is Gaufire. On Oct. 10, when the enemy's resistance had been broken and a rapid thrust into the disorganized defenses was necessary in order to enable a unit on the right to advance, Major Youell, with 1 company and no artillery support, pushed forward 2 kilometers under heavy fire, driving back a force of enemy Infantry superior in number to his own and capturing important artillery positions on Hill 263.

Private, medical detachment, 6th Infantry, 5th Division.
Although wounded by a machine-gun bullet, he carried 4 comrades to a shell hole through terrific shell and machine-gun fire and dressed their wounds. He then carried them to a place of safety in the rear of our lines.

Sergeant, Company A, 345th Battalion, Tank Corps. Although wounded twice by fire from antitank guns during the attack, he continued at his post, refusing to be sent to the rear.

First lieutenant, 368th Infantry, 92d Division.
While in command of a scout platoon, he was twice severely wounded from shellfire, but refused medical attention and remained with his men, helping to dress their wounds and to evacuate his own wounded during the entire night and holding firmly his exposed position covering the right flank of his battalion.

First sergeant, Company D, 327th Infantry, 82d Division.
Assisted by 6 other soldiers, he fought his way through a greatly superior number of the enemy and rescued 13 wounded comrades, thereby saying them from being taken by the enemy. After all the officers had become casualties he assumed command of the company, reorganizing and leading it through many attacks and contributing greatly to the success of his company.

Second lieutenant, 178th Infantry Brigade, 89th Division.
While under unusually heavy shellfire, he was severely wounded and at the same time 15 of his men were also wounded. He refused to be moved until his men had received attention, and after the arrival of ambulances and litter bearers he still insisted that the men be moved to the first-aid station before allowing himself to be taken. Shortly after he arrived at the station for treatment he died. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, William E. Young.

Corporal, Company A, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division.

Although seriously wounded, Corporal Young maintained a steady fire from his machine gun until forced to be carried to the rear for treatment.

Sergeant, Company I, 125th Infantry, 32d Division. Under heavy machine-gun fire Sergeant Young went out in front of our lines and carried to shelter 2 wounded men.

Corporal, Company B, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.
When the attack of his company was held up by fire from a hostile strong point, Corporal Young, with 2 other men, voluntarily cut their way through enclay wire entanglements under heavy fire, reached their objective, and engaged the enemy in hand-to-hand combat. During this latter action 8 of the enemy were killed and the attacking line was enabled to advance to the new position.

Private, first class, Company K, 115th Infantry, 29th Division.
During a raid against a post of his command near Gildwiller, France, July 31, 1918, he showed fine courage and endurance when attacked with hand grenades. Although scriously wounded, he joined in a counterattack against greatly superior numbers and continued to fight, even after receiving a second wound, until the enemy was repulsed.

Captain, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.

Armed with a rifle, Captain Youngdahl went through a heavy machine-gun fire alone to a position from which he could fire upon German machine gunners who were pouring a deadly fire into the flank of his company. He killed 1 of the gunners and captured 4 others, but was severely wounded himself. He stayed with his company until it had carried its objective, but died in the hospital of his wounds 2 days later. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Olivia Youngdahl

Younger, Raleigh.

Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918.

R—Columbia, Tenn.

B—Santa Fe, Tenn.

G. O. No. 23, W. D., 1919.

Yuill, Julius O. (2258469)_____ Near Epinonville, France, Sept. 26, 1918.

R—Soap Lake, Wash. B—Howard, S. Dak. G. O. No. 32, W. D., 1919.

1918.

R-Jamestown, N. Dak. B-Barnesville, Minn. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

ZAMBRYSKI, ALEXANDER (2719080). Near Mousson, France, Nov. 7, 1918. R—Worcester, Mass. B—Poland.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918. R—San Francisco, Calif. B—San Francisco, Calif. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

*ZANOVITZ, STANLEY (545473). Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Nanticoke, Pa. B—Nanticoke, Pa.. G. Q. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

ZAPPA, STEVE (1386984)___ Near Chipilly Ridge, France, Aug. 10-19, 1918. R—Dwight, Ill. B—Italy. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

ZAVITZ, ARCHIE M. (280675). Near Romagne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Fruitport, Mich. B—Rothbury, Mich. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Zavodsky, John (1746508)... Near Vieville-en-Haye, Near Vieville-en-Haye, Sept. 26, 1918. R—Perth Amboy, N. J. B—Hungary. G. O. No. 26, W. D., 1919. France, ZAX, HENRY E. (1918638). Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—Louisville, Ky. B—St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant, 38th Infantry, 3d Division.

After being wounded in both hands, Lieutenant Younger took a rifle and killed an enemy machine gunner and, disregarding his wounds, remained with his platoon until it had taken up a new position several hours later.

Sergeant, Company M, 361st Infantry, 91st Division.

Accompanied by I man, Sergeant Yuill went forward to a German trench and bombed it, killing a German officer and 2 soldiers, and held the trench until reinforced by a party of 4. Fearing that the Germans in the trench would escape, he led these men 500 meters through sniper and machine-gun fire, cut off their means of escape, and captured 27 prisoners. On the same day he killed an officer who, with 2 men, was attempting to set up a machine gun to ambush the command group. He followed the 2 men into their dugout and killed 1 of them, and with the help of other members of the command thoroughly mopped up the place.

First lieutenant, 359th Infantry, 90th Division.
Without regard for his own safety, Lieutenant Zacher led his platoon to the capture of 2 machine guns which were holding up the advance of his battalion. Although painfully wounded, he would not stop until his objective had been reached.

Private, Company M, 9th Infantry, 2d Division.

While making a reconnaissance of a destroyed bridge over the River Meuse, a member of the patrol had his leg broken by machine-gun fire and fell into the river. Despite the fact that 4 enemy machine guns were firing point-blank on the spot at a distance of less than 100 yards, Private Zambryski volunteered and went to the rescue of his comrade and succeeded, single handed, in recovering his comrade while under severe fire and taking him to a place of safety.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Mousson, France, Nov. 8, 1918, Private Zambryski is awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: Braving the murderous fire of machine spaces, Private Zambryski rescued a wounded gunner who was lying on the river bank in full view of the enemy, carrying him without assistance to a place of safety.

Lieutenant colonel, 23d Infantry, 2d Division.
With remarkable courage and daring, Colonel Zane led his battalion through heavy machine-gun and shellfire to its objective. On several other occasions he voluntarily visited the front under most hazardous conditions, thereby acquainting his regimental commander with exceptionally important data.

Captain, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
While holding the town of Bouresches, France, on the night of June 7-8, 1918, he displayed such bravery as to inspire the garrison to resist successfully a heavy machine-gun and Infantry attack by superior numbers.

Corporal, Company B, 30th Infantry, 3d Division.

When attacked by superior numbers, Corporal Zanovitz led a squad in covering the withdrawal of his platoon. After being surrounded by the enemy he fought his way to our lines, when he took up an automatic rifle and by his fire held back superior numbers of the enemy until killed by their fire. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Anthony Zanovitz.

Private, first class, Company C, 131st Infantry, 33d Division 11e volunteered for dangerous missions, earrying messages over areas swept by heavy machine-gun and shellfire. He displayed great courage in accomplishing each task.

Sergeant, Company I, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
Facing heavy fire, he crawled 75 yards in advance of the platoon he commanded and reduced a machine-gun nest with rifle grenades.

Sergeant, Company D, 311th Infantry, 78th Division. Although he was wounded, he remained with his company until its objective' was reached before seeking first-aid treatment.

Corporal, Company B, 120th Infantry, 30th Division.
Having been sent on a dangerous liasion patrol, he was severely wounded soon after he had located the unit on the right of his own. He nevertheless went forward to battalion headquarters immediately after securing first aid and made a complete report to his battalion commander before going to the rear.

102444°--27---42

ZECH, CLARENCE H. (2019084)_____

Near Kadish, Russia, Sept. 27-28, 1918.

R-Detroit, Mich. B-Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

Zeiler, Elmer (39365) Near Medeah Ferme, France, Oct.

3, 1918. R—Fairhaven, Pa. B—Fairhaven, Pa. G. O. No. 21, W. D., 1919.

DAM, JOHN J. (281431) North of Cierges, France, Aug. 1, ZELDAM, 1918

R—Grand Rapids, Mich. B—Grand Rapids, Mich. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

*ZILKEY, FRANK (42419)_____ Near the Forest of Argonne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R—Butte, Mont. B—Butte, Mont. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

ZILKEY, GUY L. (2261519)_ Near Steenbrugge, Belgiu 31, 1918. R—May, Idaho. B—Eugene, Oreg. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919. Steenbrugge, Belgium, Oct.

*ZIMBORSKI, ALEXANDER JOHN (237697) Near Bois-de-Montrebeau, France,

Oct. 4, 1918.
R—New York, N. Y.
B—Washingtonville, N. Y.
G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

ZIMMER, JOHN H. (543075) Near Fossoy, France, July 15, 1918. R—Providence, R. I. B—Elkhorn, Pa. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

B-Plymouth, Ind. G. O. No. 20, W. D., 1919.

ZIMMERMAN, RUDOLPH A. (2178114).... Near Remonville, France, Nov. 2-3, 1918. R—New Florence, Mo. B—New Florence, Mo. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

ZINNER, FRED JOSEPH. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—Columbus, Ohio. B—Columbus, Ohio. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-Lofton, Va. B-Lofton, Va. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Private, 337th Ambulance Company, attached to 339th Infantry, 85th Division (detachment in North Russia).

Acting as stretcher bearer to 2 companies of infantry in action against the Bolsheviks, Private Zeeh for 2 days and nights made his way through swamps and forests to administer first aid and carry wounded to the dressing station. His work at all times was accomplished under sweeping modalic gun and intense artillery fire, making it necessary for him to crawl on his hands and knees for long distances.

Corporal, Company F, 9th Infantry, 2d Division. Corporal Zeiler, together with 4 other men, charged a machine-gun nest containing 3 heavy machine guns and eaptured the 3 guns and 20 prisoners.

Corporal, Company H, 306th Infantry, 77th Division. He volunteered and carried a message of vital importance in connection with the capture of St. Juvin through an intense artillery barrage, displaying courage and persistent devotion to duty.

Private, Company M, 126th Infantry, 32d Division.
Following an assault, in which he was wounded in the leg by a machine-gun bullet and when further advance was impossible because of a barrage, he took refuge in a shell hole. From this shelter he observed a comrade who was seriously wounded and needed assistance. Despite heavy artillery and machine-gun fire, he crawled 20 yards through the open, reached the helpless man, and took him back to the shell hole. After the two had lain in the shell hole nearly the entire day, Private Zeldam, leaving his canteen with his companion, crawled across the danger zone and obtained assistance to carry the other wounded man to a dressing station.

Corporal, Company D, 16th Infantry, 1st Division.

After all the other members of his squad had been killed or wounded in advancing on a hostile machine gun, he pressed forward alone in the face of direct fire from the gun and by remarkable courage captured both the gun and its crew. Upon his own initiative he then started out alone to attack another gun and was killed.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother. Mrs. J. J. Carr.

Sergeant, Company L, 362d Infantry, 91st Division.

Reorganizing badly shattered forces, he took command of the location and by proper distribution of those under his command ably protected his flanks. Assisted by 2 comrades, he attacked and drove out a machine-gun nest that was holding up his advance, reporting the situation to his company commander by establishing an efficient liaison.

Corporal, Company C, 345th Battalion, Tank Corps. While running his tank into a woods to rout a machine-gun nest, his tank was hit and set on fire. He fought on until compelled to leave because of the excessive heat. While he and his gunner were leaving the tank, they were both wounded, and when making an advance on a machine gun Corporal Zimborski received further wounds which caused his death.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Alexander Zimborski.

Private, Company L, 7th Infantry, 3d Division.

Acting as runner, he made repeated trips through the heavy enemy bombardment of July 15, and, after being wounded on a mission, he accomplished his task before receiving medical attention.

Sergeant, Company D, 361st Infantry, 91st Division. He voluntarily and unhestitatingly left shelter under heavy shellfire and, without thought of personal danger, rendered first aid and carried a wounded comrade to a place of safety.

Sergeant, Machine Gun Company, 354th Infantry, 89th Division.
Severely wounded in the cheek by a machine-gun bullet, he refused to be evacuated, but continued to lead his machine-gun section with the assault wave, displaying remarkable bravery and leadership, until his company was relieved the next morning.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division.
While attacking a strongly held enemy position under heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, he rallied men of another company who had become separated from their organization to his support. With these reinforcements his platoon was able to relieve a very critical situation.

Private, first class, Company A, 116th Infantry, 29th Division. He volunteered and carried messages from battalion headquarters to the front line through artillery and machine-gun fire. He not only maintained effective liaison with his company, but also furnished an inspiring example of coolness and bravery to his comrades.

1918.

R—Mariners Harbor, Staten Island, N. Y. B—Italy.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

ZLOTNIKOFF, JOHN (2384778). Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Oct. 5, 1918. R—Vestaburg, Pa.

B—Russia. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

ZOBNOWSKI, WALTER P. (1239819)..... Near Apremont, France, Oct. 1, 1918. R.—Philadelphia, Pa. B.—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919.

*ZUCKERMAN, LOUIS (1697852)... Near St. Juvin, France, Oct. 15, 1918. R—New York, N. Y. B—Russia.

G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

R—South Plainfield, N. J. B—Poland.

G. O. No. 102, W. D., 1918.

Private, Company M, 111th Infantry, 28th Division.

On Aug. 10 he three times volunteered and alone carried severely wounded comrades to the dressing station. Each trip was made through an intense enemy fire, but he unhesitatingly made the trip and returned to his post. On Aug. 11, while assisting 3 other men to carry a seriously wounded comrade to the aid station, 1 of the party was killed and the others driven from the road by an intense machine-gun fire, but Private Zito alone earried the wounded man to a place of shelter, from which he was evacuated that night. Private Zito was killed that afternoon in the advance line of the attack.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Vita Zito.

Private, first class, Company L, 60th Infantry, 5th Division.
When his company was held up and unable to cross the river because of the destruction of a pontoon bridge, Private Zlotnikoff swam the river, carrying an automatic rifle, in the face of terrifle machine-gun fire and direct artillery fire. .

Private, first class, Company M, 110th Infantry, 28th Division. Having volunteered with 2 other soldiers to establish liaison with another unit which had been cut off by a hostile counteratack, Private Zobnowski rushed an enemy machine-gun nest, killing 4 of the enemy and capturing 4 prisoners. After taking his prisoners to the rear he volunteered and led a small force in a successful attack on the enemy.

Private, Company G, 305th Infantry, 77th Division. In order to enable his platoon to locate an enemy machine-gun nest, Private Zuckerman courageously volunteered and went out into an open field to draw the enemy fire. In the performance of this self-sacrificing mission he was Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to brother, Samuel Zuckerman.

Private, Company H, 113th Infantry, 29th Division.

During the action in the vicinity of Hagenbach, Alsace, east of Belfort, France, Aug. 21, 1918, in an enemy raid on the position held by his regiment, he had his right eye shot out at the beginning of the action. He applied first aid himself, went back to his battle position, assisted in driving off the raiding party, operated his rifle until the end of the action, and continued to fire upon the retreating Germans as long as they could be seen.

BRITISH

[Awarded for extraordinary heroism in action under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

AUTY, EDWARD W. (17106)_____

Near Vierstraat, Belgium, Aug. 30 and 31, 1918. R—England.

G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

BIRKINSHAW, ROBERT S. (12077)

At Selency, France, Sept. 24, 1918. R—England. G. O. 60, W. D., 1920.

Brady, Vincent J_ East of Busigny, France, Oct. 18 to 20, 1918. -England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

CAMERON, CHARLES (548137)

On the St. Quentin Canal, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—England. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

Collison, Herbert L. Near Obozerskaya, Russia, Oct. 16, 1918. R—England. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

Dodwell, Thomas B.....

Near Bruges, Belgium, Aug. 13, 1918. R—England. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918. ERRINGTON. R-England.

G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

Foster, Peter (1670).... Near Serain, France, Oct. 11, 1918.

R—England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

Signaler, British Army, 112th Battery, 24th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery, British Expeditionary Forces.

Signaler Auty accompanied an officer in a daring reconnaissance in advance of our lines. In an encounter with an enemy patrol near Rossignol Wood 2 of the enemy were captured. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

Sergeant, British Army, 1st Battalion, West Yorkshire Regiment, British Expeditionary Forces.

Sergeant Birkinshaw repeatedly led attacks against a strongly defended barricade at the entrance to Selency. The ultimate capture of this position was due to the determination and personal gallantry of this noncommissioned officer. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

Lieutenant, 13th Field Artillery Brigade, Australian Imperial Force. Lieutenant Brady, in command of a forward section of artillery, pushed his guns in advance in close support of the Infantry. In crossing the La Selle River the fire of his guns silenced numerous machine-gun positions and aided the Infantry to advance. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

Sergeant, 43d Battalion, 11th Infantry, Australian Imperial Force.
Early in the advance his company was held up by fire from a machine-gun post.
Sergeant Caddy with great bravery charged the position, bayoneted the erew, thus enabling his company to advance. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

corporal (acting, sergeant), 468th North Midland Field Company,

Second corporal (acting, sergeant), 468th North Midland Field Company, Royal Engineers (Territorial Force), 46th Division, British Army. Corporal Cameron was in charge of a party of sappers which advanced with the Infantry. He advanced through heavy fire and on several occasions showed contempt for danger in entering dugouts and tunnels which were suspected of being mined by the enemy. During the advance he attacked and captured an enemy machine gun and 6 men. This action took place in conjunction with the attack of the 30th U. S. Division.

Captain, Royal Artillery, British Army.

This officer acted as artillery observer in an advance against the enemy, which was continuous over several hours and at all times under very heavy artillery and machine-gun fre. He not only accompanied the advance troops, but at times went ahead of them, in order better to direct the fire of the American troops. At one time when, by a rapid advance of a portion of our troops, they were within the danger zone of our own fire, telephone communication having been cut, Captain Collison returned through the enemy barrage and taking a position in the open and under fire signaled a warning to our artillery. By this particularly brave and daring act the success of the American Infantry in this engagement was assured.

Second lieutenant, British Army, observer, Royal Air Forces, British Expeditionary Forces.

This officer and his pilot led 2 other machines on a long photographic mission his officer and his pilot led 2 other machines on a long photographic mission over the area north of Bruges. Over Thourout they were attacked by 6 enemy planes. While heavily engaged, Lieutenant Dodwell and his pilot saw 1 of their machines in difficulty and trying to make our lines with an enemy plane close at his tail. Regardless of their own danger frem the remaining planes, they dived to the assistance of the crippled plane. Taking advantage of their preoccupation, several enemy planes attacked from the rear but in spite of this rear attack they drove off the enemy plane and allowed the damaged plane to land within our lines. Half of the tail plane was shot away, but Lieutenant Dodwell climbed along the wing and lay down along the cowling in front of the pilot, enabling the pilot to regain partial control fis machine. When nearing the ground he crawled back into the cockpit to allow the nose to rise, and the pilot made a safe landing. The presence of mind and cool courage of this officer saved the machine from crashing to the ground.

Sergeant, 32d Battalion, 5th Division, Australian Imperial Force. When his company was halted by machine-gun fire, Sergeant Errington with 2 comrades rushed the enemy position and captured the machine gun. Later the same day he rushed a second machine gun, capturing the gun and killing 3 of the crew. This action took place in conjunction with the attack of the 30th U.S. Division.

Private, British Army, 5th Battalion, Connaught Rangers, British Expeditionary Forces.

Private Foster exposed himself to heavy fire in order to locate the positions of enemy machine guns. Later he led a liaison patrol through heavy fire in order to establish communication with the American unit on his right. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

HILL JOHN H Northwest of Bony, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-England.

G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

Howarth, James (29649).

Near Kadish, Russia, Oct. 7, 1918.

R—England.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

KESSLER, ALBERT E. (15661)

South of Bazuel, France, Oct. 23, 1918. R—England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

LITTLE, WILLIAM B.

During the Y Oct. 17, 1918. R—England. Ypres-Lys offensive, G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

MCNAMEE, JOHN T.

Various dates and places in France. R—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service medal also awarded.

MORISSET, VAUX L. At Nauroy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-England. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

MUNDAY, WILLIAM T. J.

Near Vierstraat, Belgium, Aug. 30 and 31, 1918. R—England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

PADGETT, JOHN R. (546)
In the attack on the Hindenburg line, Sept. 29, 1918.
R—England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

30, 1918. R—England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

RICE, WILFRID

During Ypres-Lys offensive, Oct. 17, 1918. R—England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920

Licutenant, 50th Battalion, 13th Infantry, Australian Imperial Force. While attached to a battalion of the 107th American Infantry, Licutenant Hill exposed himself to heavy fire in order to mark out the jumping-off line. He assisted in forming the men for the attack and gallantly led them forward until he was severely wounded in the leg.

Sergeant, Liverpool Regiment, British Army.
Sergeant Howarth gallantly led his platoon in 5 successive attacks upon a strongly fortified line of blockhouses. During the withdrawal he exposed himself to heavy fire in order to direct the fire of a Lewis gun crew in order to secure the safe evacuation of his wounded.

Private, British Army, 11th Battalion, Essex Regiment, British Expeditionary Forces.

Private Kessler delivered an important message to the units of the front lines. En route he was exposed to heavy enemy fire, but he continued until he had accomplished his mission. By his fearless conduct he enabled the companies to take up new positions without delay. This action took place when fighting algoride the American 27th Dividence. ing alongside the American 27th Division.

Major, British Army, East Lancashire Regiment, attached to 6th Battalion, Royal Dublin Fusiliers, 198th Infantry, British Expeditionary Forces. During the Ypres-Lys offensive, Oct. 17, 1918, when closely affiliated with American troops. On one occasion, when Major Little was forming his battalion for the attack, the enemy put down a heavy barrage, inflicting many casualties. Regardless of the heavy enemy fire, this officer reassured his men and then gallantly led them in a successful attack. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

Captain, Royal Field Artillery, British Army, attached to 1st Battalion, 1st Gas Regiment, American Expeditionary Forces.

Volunteering, he led a detachment of Engineers up to the front lines on July 30, 1918, for the purpose of assisting the advance of the Infantry with thermite and smoke bombs. That night he led his men through a heavy barrage, exhibiting courage and leadership. For 3 days and nights he remained with his men in the extreme front line in the Bois Colas, greatly adding in repulsing enemy counterattacks by laying down barrages of thermite and phosphorus, cleaning out meatine-gun nests in the same manner, and enabling our Infantry to attack behind smoke screens. On Aug. 5 he took another detachment into St. Thibaut and brought ammunition into the village before it was occupied by our Infantry and while the enemy patrols were still there. The advance of the Infantry across the 2 rivers, the Ourcq and the Vesle, was greatly facilitated and the lives of many of them saved by the smoke screens which Captain McNamee so successfully prepared. Throughout this entire advance across these 2 rivers he conducted himself with extraordinary heroism, setting an example to the men of the regiment with extraordinary heroism, setting an example to the men of the regiment to which he was attached, constantly expesing himself to danger in making reconnaissance and at the same time shielding his men.

Captain, 31st Battalion, 5th Division, Australian Imperial Force.
During the advance following the capture of Bellicourt, Captain Morisset, acting battalion adjutant, observed that flanking troops had failed to advance, leaving a gan in the line. leaving a gap in the line. On his own initiative, he gathered several detachments of troops under heavy machine-gun fire and deployed them, covering the threatened gap. His prompt and courageous conduct contributed to the success of the operations in which the 30th U.S. Division was engaged.

Lieuteuant, British Army, 112th Battery, 24th Brigade, Royal Field Artillery, British Expeditionary Forces.

While in command of an accompanying gun, Lieutenant Munday advanced in close support of the attack of the 106th American Infantry. With a signaler, he made a daring recommissance in advance of our lines and returned with valuable information. In an encounter with an enemy patrol near Rossignol Wood 2 of the enemy were captured.

Lance-corporal, 44th Battalion, 11th Infantry, Australian Imperial Force. Corporal Padgett led his section in a successful attack on an enemy trench. When an enemy grenade fell amongst his section, he picked it up and threw it back toward the enemy. Later he exposed himself to heavy fire in order to carry an American soldier to a place of safety. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

Private, 55th Battalion, 14th Infantry, Australian Imperial Force. Private Parkes exposed himself to heavy machine-gun fire in going out in front of our positions and assisting 2 wounded Americans to a place of safety. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division.

Lieutenant, British Army, 2d Battalion, Durham Light Infantry, British

Lieutenant, british Army, at Battanes, bearing the Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant Rice went forward during the advance under a heavy barrage of rifle and machie-gun fire and cut paths in the wire in order to further the advance of his company. Having cut the wire, with 2 men he rushed a machine-gun position, capturing the gun, and forcing 6 of the enemy to surrender. This action took place when fighting alongside the American

RODAKIS, NICHOLAS (5451)_____

Near Ronssoy, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R-England.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

SMYRDEN, RICHARD G... Near Kadish, Russia, Feb. 7, 1919. R—England. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

TREWARN, FREDERICK (2295)

Near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29,
1918.

R-England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

UNDERWOOD, ALBERT T. (240721) ....

During the attack on Riquerval Woods, France, Oct. 11, 1918. England.

G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

WOODCOCK, HUGH (42498).....

Near Brancourt, France, Oct. 8, 1918.

R—England. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

Sergeant, 4th Battalion, Australian Machine Gun Corps, British Expeditionary Forces, attached to machine gun company, 105th Infantry, 27th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Organizing troops from different units, he exhibited great bravery and dash in leading them into effective combat, inspiring all by his courage and fearless-

Captain, Liverpool Regiment, British Army.

While moving forward in command of a support company, Captain Smyrden encountered a disorganized Russian company in full retreat. Quickly reorganizing 2 platoons of this force, and with his own company, he launched a successful counterattack which reestablished the firing line in the original position. He then launched a new attack, which drove the enemy into their line of blockhouses. The coolness and courage of this officer was a great inspiration to his men.

Private, 5th Machine Gun Battalion, Australian Imperial Force.
On 3 different occasions Private Trewarn exposed himself to artillery and machine-gun fire in order to assist wounded to shelter. Later on, when warning was received of an impending enemy counterattack, he displayed great coolness and good judgment under heavy fire in selecting positions for his guns. This action took place when fighting alongside the American 27th Division Division.

Lance-corporal, 5th Battalion, Leicestershire Regiment, Territorial Force, 46th Division, British Army.

While acting as a platoon seout in advance of his platoon, Corporal Underwood suddenly encountered a post of 9 Germans. He fearlessly engaged them until his platoon arrived. His courageous action not only saved his platoon from being ambushed but enabled it to reach its objective with slight loss. This action took place in conjunction with the attack of the 30th U.S. Divi-

Private, British Army, 9th Service Battalion, Norfolk Regiment, 6th Division, 9th Corps, British Expeditionary Forces.
While acting as a runner to the 30th U.S. Division, Private Woodcock with a companion passed through heavy enemy machine-gun and artillery fire to deliver an important message. His companion was killed, but he continued on and completed his mission, which made possible a successful combined attack with the 30th U.S. Division on a strong enemy position.

FRENCH

[Awarded for extraordinary heroism in action under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

*Andral, Louis	First lieutenant, observer, 284th Squadron, Air Service, French Army, attached to 3d Army, American Expeditionary Forces.  Distinguishing himself by his constant bravery and brilliance as an observer, Lieutenant Andral rendered valiant service, flying at times under most hazardous conditions. Many times he returned from low-flying patrols with his machine riddled with bullets. He attacked and drove from its mission an enemy observation plane, and later attacked a patrol of 4 enemy planes. In the fight that ensued he proved unequal to such an adversary and was killed.  Posthumously awarded. Medal forwarded to the French mission, General Ileadquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, for delivery to the next of kin.
ARMENGAUD, PAUL F. M.	Major of Air Service, French Army, acting as Assistant Chief of Staff, Air Service, 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces. Major Armengaud, acting as Assistant Chief of Staff, Air Service, 1st Army,
Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12- 16, 1918. R—France.	did display great bravery much beyond that required by his position while acting as observer in an airplane. Each day of the battle in the St. Mihiel
G. O. No. 120, W. D., 1918. Distinguished-service medal also awarded.	salient he flew over the hostile lines through our own and the enemys' artillery and machine-gun fire, observing the enemy air and ground activity and the disposition of our own air forces, thereby bringing back valuable information awarded. ARTONI, CHARLES.....

Near Massif Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-8, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Villers-Tournelle, France, Near May 3-4, 1918.

ASCHLIMAN, PAUL

R-France. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

BARDOU, HENRI Near Massif Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 8, 1918. R—France.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Near Massif Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-8, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

BARRE, MARCEL

R-France. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

BECQUART, HENRI Near Massif Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-8, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

BERCEROT, JACQUES.... Near Mortzwiller, Alsace, Sept. 1, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

did display great bravery much beyond that required by his position while acting as observer in an airplane. Each day of the battle in the St. Mihiel salient he flew over the hostile lines through our own and the enemys' artillery and machine-gun fire, observing the enemy air and ground activity and the disposition of our own air forces, thereby bringing back valuable information as to the enemy's dispositions and probable intentions, which materially aided in our subsequent operations.

Machine gunner, AS. 307, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, Assault Artillery, French Army.

During attacks by the 2d American Division he distinguished himself by volunteering twice for hazardous duty—first, to take food to the firing line, and later, to replace a wounded comrade as liaison agent. His personal courage and coolness under heavy fire were marked.

Sergeant, interpreter, Battalion of 19th Train of Military Transports, French Army, attached to 1st Infantry Brigade, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

During a particularly intense bombardment of high-explosive and gas shells he went through the town notifying and warning troops of the presence of gas and directing various elements passing that point, his mission at all times exposing him to this heavy fire.

Brigadier, 308th Company, Tank Corps, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, French Army.

During an attack by the 2d American Division he displayed marked coolness and bravery in guiding his tank through heavy counterpreparation fire during an approach march. He never hesitated to leave the protection of the tank the hetter to direct its advance. Later he showed great personal courage in going through heavy shellfire to the rescue of several wounded American soldiers.

Private, 308th Company, Tank Corps, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, Assault

Artillery, French Army.

During attacks by the 2d American Division he distinguished himself by coolness and courage in leading his tank in the approach march through heavy counterpreparation fire. He brought his tank into position with great skill and later displayed extraordinary personal heroism in going under heavy shellfire to the rescue of American wounded.

Brigadier, 350th Tank Company, French Army.

During the course of an engagement in which the French tanks assisted the American Infantry to attack a difficult position, the tank in which Brigadier Baurin was advancing was put out of action and his companion wounded by heavy artillery fire. He continued to assist his comrade in firing until the ammunition was completely exhausted and then dismounted from the tank and he carried the wounded man to the American line through the intense enemy fire.

Maréchal des Logis, AS. 309, Tank Corps, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, Assault

Artillery, French Army.

During successive attacks by the 2d American Division this noncommissioned officer displayed marked courage and coolness. Though wounded he refused to be evacuated, remaining on duty until the end of the fight. His bravery was an inspiration to those near him.

Maréchal des Logis, 19th Battery, E. V. N., 70th Regiment, A. L. G. P., French

Army.

Driving his engine through an area which was subjected to a most intense shelling, he removed to safety 9 carloads of ammunition. His exploit was accomplished in spite of damaged rails and constant shell bursts, the latter damaging his engine.

BERTRAND Near Blanc Mont Ridge, France, Oct. 3, 1918.

R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

BOGLIONE____

At Tavannes, Mense, France, Oct. <sup>1</sup>14, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 64, W. D., 1919.

BONNARD, EMILE Near Meuse River, France, Nov. 3-11, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Bourdu, Joseph Near Le Ruddin, Vosges, France, June 15, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

*Bourgon, Narcisse At Verst 455, North Russia, Oct. 14, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

Bredin, André E. In the region of St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12-16, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Brelier, Francois Near Kemmel, Belgium, Apr. 26,1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

BRELIVET, HERVE M. Near Sivry-sur-Meuse, France. R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

BUCHET, XAVIER ... In the Argonne-Meuse operations, France, Nov. 9-11, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Buisson.

Near Massif Blanc Mont., France, Oct. 3-8, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

BUREI, MICHEL.
At Chateau-Thierry, France, July
25-26, 1918, and St. Mihiel, France,
Oct. 5-8, 1918. R—France, G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

CARRERE, JEAN B....

Near Ammertzwiller, Alsace, July 1, 1918. R—France

G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

Captain, commanding 308th Company, Tank Corps, French Army.
While attached to the 2d American Division he led his company of tanks into the fight under terrific shell and machine-gun fire. He set an example of coolness and bravery to all about him, being conspicuous for his devotion to duty, in the performance of which he was killed by the enemy fire.
Posthumously awurded. Medal forwarded to the French mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, for delivery to next of kin.

Maréchal des Logis, 3d Battery, 74th Regiment of Artillery, French Army, attached to railway artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, Under heavy shelling he displayed exceptional bravery in extinguishing a fire which threatened the destruction of a powder dump and an ammunition car.

Major, 2d Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army. Major, 2d Regiment of Colonial Inabry, Freen Army.

Working in conjunction with an American brigade, he led his battalion against determined resistance of the enemy, working his way with great valor to take an important hostile position. He kept constantly in touch with the American commander, thus insuring perfect liasion during the entire operations.

Master gunner, 26th Battery, 208th Regiment of Field Artillery, French Army. On June 15, 1918, while a battalion of the 11th Infantry was halted on the road near Le Ruddin, Vosges, it came under heavy shellfire from a German battery. First Lieut, Edison M. Boarke, badly wounded in the left arm and shoulder, attempted to reach a place of safety by rolling down an embankment near the road, when he was picked up by Master Gunner Bourdu under heavy shellfire and carried on his back to a place of safety.

Second lieutenant, 21st Battalion de Marche, Colonial Infantry, French Army. Lieurenant Bourgon placed himself at the head of a France-American section and personally led it through heavy machine-gun fire against a strongly fortified position. This brilliant officer was killed at Bolshie-Ozerka, Russia, and personary led it through the control of the con

Second lieutenant (pilot), 16th Combat Group, French Army.
While working in connection with the 1st American Army, Lieutenant Bredin made a series of partols into the enemy's territory and by his valuable information and daring attacks on the enemy aided materially in preventing the enemy from penetrating into our lines.

Warrant officer, 153d Regiment of Infantry, French Army.
Attacking the strongly fortified position on Mount Kemmel, although wounded, he continued to struggle until his position had been established. On no less than 8 occasions he led patrols into enemy lines, and each time inspired those under his command by his bravery and intrepidity.

Warrant officer, 2d Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army.
Bravely loading a platoon of the front line, he afforded valuable assistance to an American regiment during the course of the advance. While progressing he was severely wounded. He took a prominent part in all advances made by his organization during the entire war, and his courage and bravery was at all times an insuration to his comprehe. all times an inspiration to his comrades.

Captain, 33d Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army. During 3 days of most terrific struggle and exposed to enemy artillery and machine-gun fire and the hazard of polsonous shells. Captain Buchet unceasingly urged and led his men to their objective. His example of courage, endurance, and valor served as a high standard for those under his com-

Lieutenant, 307th Company, Tank Corps, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, Assault Artillery, French Army.

During attacks by the 2d American Division he continually distinguished himself by acts of courage and by his devotion to duty. When his captain was killed, he assumed command of the tank company, and with extraordinary heroism, in the face of heavy fire, accomplished the mission intrusted to him

Private, first class, 156th Regiment of Infantry, French Army. In the attack on Chateau-Thierry he was at all times in the very thickest of the struggle, exhibiting singular valor and devotion to duty. During the attack on St. Mihiel he alone took a hostile machine gun, and a few days later put to route 10 of the enemy, killing 1 during the encounter.

Corporal, 319th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 42d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

While serving under the command of an American divisional commander, Vhile serving under the command of an American divisional commander, when the advanced posts were ordered to withdraw and join the combat groups in anticipation of a raid, Corporal Carrere and the 4 men of his squad were cut off by the enemy barrage.—This little group made a stand and by the use of an automatic ride and grenades repulsed the attack made on them by 2 parties of Germans; each party-estimated to be between 15 and 20 men.—Corporal Carrere displayed splendid conrage and initiative, especially in exploring the surrounding terrain. Although completely isolated, he and his men continued the resistance against the enemy until they finally drove them back. To him and to his 4 men, to whom he knew how to communicate his spirit, is due the credit for the failure of the raid, although it was supported by heavy artillery and executed in force. Chanoine, Charles M. M.
Near Maizerais, France. Sept. 12, 1918.

R—France. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.

CHARRON, JEAN M. H.
North of Daucourt, France, Sept. 14÷15, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

R-France G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

CHEVALIER, OLIVER

fear Champagne, France, July 15-16, 1918, and near the Ourcq River, France, July 28 to Aug. 2, 1918.

Compana, Antoine Near Mortzwiller, Alsace, Sept. 1, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

CONNELLY, JAMES A Near Suippes, France, Sept. 6, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

CORBABON, BÉNIGME V. M. J....

At the Salient-du-Feys, France, Mar. 9, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

COSTA DE BEAUREGARD, ROBERT .... At St. Juvin, France, Oct. 14, 1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920.

Courtois, André

Near Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 11, 1918. R—France G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

DANO, ROBERT

Near Somme Py, France, Oct. 3-8, 1918. R-France.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Major of Cavalry, Tank Corps, French Army.
While Major Chanoine's group was advancing to attack with the 1st Brigade of American Tanks his leading tank became stalled, and this officer left his post of command and went forward to direct its repair. While he was so engaged the enemy opened fire, and I shell struck the disabled tank, killing and wounding 15 men and knocking Major Chanoine unconscious. •Upon regaining consciousness Major Chanoine refused to be carried to the rear but continued his work under fire until it was possible for the tanks to con-tinue their advance, when he led his group forward on foot for a distance of 8 kilometers, remaining on duty throughout the engagement. Oak-leaf eluster.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following act of extraordinary heroism in action near Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918, Major Chanoine was awarded an oak-leaf cluster to be worn with the distinguished-service cross: Upon learning that his brigade commander had been wounded, Major Chanoine advanced on foot under heavy fire from all arms and reconnoitered a passage for his tanks over difficult terrain 1 kilomater to the front. He then led his tanks in a successful attack on the town of Cheppy.

Second lieutenant, 5th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army.

After maintaining contact with the enemy all night in an outpost position near the Bois-des-Hautes Epines, France, Lieutenant Charron, by skillful maneuvering, led his platoon in a successful attack on the wood, capturing 35 prisoners, including 3 officers, advancing the line more than a kilometer.

Lieutenant, 409th Regiment of Infantry, French Army.
During the 11 days of action he contributed greatly to the success of our operations by making repeated journeys to the battle line under most hazardous conditions, making tactical dispositions of the conquered territory, and aiding in the maintenance of the liaison between the regimental commander, 26th Infantry, and his assault troops.

Captain, 71st Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 42d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

He displayed extraordinary heroism and conspicuous gallantry in making daily reconnaissances of the front lines under unusually heavy machinegun and artillery five, rendering valuable aid to the division to which he was attached.

Gunner, 19th Battery, 70th Regiment, A. L. G. P., French Army.

During a terrific bombardment of the railway station, Gunner Compana, as a member of a train crew, assisted in the removal of 9 cars of ammunition to a place of safety. The mission was successfully accomplished, despite the fact that the fierce shelling had damaged the track, and trees blown across the track made it nearly impassable.

Sergeant-pilot, Lafayette Escadrille, French Army.

An American pilot serving with the French Army, Sergeant-pilot Connelly attacked a formation of 12 enemy planes (type Fokker), shooting down the flight commander and forcing the remainder to seek safety: He continued with the unequal combat until his ammunition was exhausted.

Major, 13th Regiment of Infantry, French mission, attached to 42d Division,

American Expeditionary Forces.

In the assault upon the German position at the Salient-du-Feys, France, Mar. 9, 1918, during which 3 hostile lines of trenches were overrun, he voluntarily joined Company By 166th Infantry, 42d Division, while this company was undergoing a severe fire from the enemy lasting 3 hours. His coolness and conspicuous courage had a marked effect on the behavior of this correlation. organization.

Captain, 23d Regiment of Infantry, Territorials, French Army, attached to 306th Infantry, 77th Division, American Expeditionary Forces. When communication with the forward observation post was broken and no runners were available, Captain Costa De Beauregard voluntarily carried a message to the observation post through intense shellfire, displaying great bravery and coolness, and succeeded in reestablishing communication with the regimental post of command.

Maréchal des Logis, 19th Battalion of the Train of Military Transports, French mission, attached to 2d Battalion, 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

After runners had failed to establish liaison with one of the attacking companies, M. Courtois volunteered and successfully accomplished the mission, making his way over ground subjected to heavy shell and machine-gun fire and through woods infested with enemy snipers. He returned to the battalion commander with valuable information, contributing greatly to the success of the attack.

Second licutenant of Artillery, 308th Company, Tank Corps, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, Assault Artillery, French Army.

He displayed conspicuous gallentry during operations of the 2d American Division, and when his captain was killed and the company had suffered heavy losses he promptly effected a reorganization. With great heroisni and able leadership, he then pushed forward the assault in the face of heavy shellfire.

Daune, Charles E. Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

R-France.

G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-France G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

DE FROISSARD-BROISSIS, MICHEL M. F. North of Verdun, France, Nov. 10, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

*DE GUIROYE....

Near Blanc Mont Ridge, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

DE JACQUELOT DE BOISROUVAY, ALAIN.

At Seicheprey, France, Apr. 20-21, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

DE LESSEPS. JACQUES B. M. At Conflans and Audun-le-Roman, France, Aug. 15, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*DE MANDAT GRANCEY_____

Near Fismette, France, Sept. 6, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

DE PAVANT, FRANCOIS....

Near Brieulles, France, Oct. 4, 1918. -France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

DEQUERTE, CONRAD_____

t Verst 455, near Obozerskaya, Russia, Oct. 14, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

DIOT, LUCIEN. In the region of St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-France G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

econd lieutenant, 8th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army When the advance of his battalion was held up by a hostile strong point, well fortified and protected by barbed-wire entanglements, Lieutenant Daune at the head of his platoon led his men forward, forcing an opening through the wire, and overcame the enemy's resistance, capturing 153 prisoners, including 2 officers and 15 machine guns.

Lieutenant of Cavalry, French Army.

During a raid on an enemy ammunition depot Lieutenant de Boulancy d'Esca-yarac proved of the greatest assistance and value and the success of the exploit was wholly due to his bravery and efficiency. He trieflessly explored the front on different occasions, and the information that he furnished our officers re-garding hidden machine-gun nests proved to be of the utmost importance and Lieutenant, 8th Regiment of Engineers, French Army. Lieutenant Debrut displayed high qualities of efficiency and courage in maintaining the organization and upkeep of telephone communications during a violent hombardment. Although wounded, he continued to perform his duty until the end of the action.

Lieutenant, 6th Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army, During the attack on the village of Damvillers in liaison with the American troops he directed the assault at the head of his company until he was wounded.

Captain, commanding 307th Company, Tank Corps, French Army, attached to 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
While leading his company of tanks attached to the 2d American Division into the fight under terrific shell and machine-gun fire he set an example to all about him by his coolness and bravery. He showed conspictious devotion to duty in the performance of which he was killed by enemy fire. Posthumously awarded. Medal forwarded to the French mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, for delivery to the next of Major of Infantry, French Army, attached to 26th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

He exposed himself to extremely heavy enemy fire with fearless disregard for personal danger in order to secure information for tactical dispositions and Artillery support, which were of great service in checking the hostile attack.

Captain, pilot, 2d Bombing Group, French Army.
Captain de Lesseps made 3 successful bombing raids in 1 night, 2 on Conflans and 1 on Audun-le-Roman, causing great damage. Despite heavy antiair-craft fire, he flew at an extremely low altitude and besides his successful raids returned with valuable information of the enemy's movements.

Lieutenant, French Army, attached to 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division, American Expeditionary Forces. He went to an advanced observation post and when our front line temporarily withdrew stuck bravely to his position, rendering valuable service until he was killed by the intense enemy machine-gun fire. Ilis beroism was an inspiration to all near him.

Posthumously awarded. Medal forwarded to the French mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, for delivery to the next of

Lieutenant, observer, 284th Escadrille, Air Service, French Army, attached to 3d Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces.

While engaged on an Infantry contact patrol he attacked 6 Fokker pursuit planes and valiantly drove them off, remaining in action until his plane was so badly damaged by fire that it was forced to land.

Second lieutenant, 21st Battalion de Marche, Colonial Regiment of Infantry, French Army

Attached as liaison officer to a Franco-American detachment during the attack, he placed himself at the head of a section of Infantry and led it against a strongly fortified position. He was among the first to make the objective. The energy displayed by this brilliant officer while exposed to heavy firewas an important factor in the successful attack.

Aspirant, pilot, 219th Escadrille Air Service, French Army.
Aspirant Diot on Sept. 12, in the region of St. Mihiel, while flying at an extremely low altitude, hal his wireless set destroyed by enemy fire. Rather than return to his field, and in spite of being 8 kilometers beyond the lines, he descended to less than 100 meters altitude and attacked an enemy convoy, routing it in confusion. This act was accomplished in spite of being under terrific machine gun fire and heavy antiaircraft artillery fire from the ground, bit allows the shadowing that the state of the second his plane being shattered with bullets.

Maréchal des Logis, 8th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army Maréchal des Logis Dormoy demonstrated marked courage in leading his platoon in an attack on a strong center of resistance. Running ahead of his men, he was the first to euter the enemy trench, where he captured more than 60 prisoners.

DROUHIN, ROBERT G..... Near Monthois, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R-France G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant of Infantry, French Army, attached to 372d Infantry, 93d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

During the attack on Monthois Lieutenant Drouhin voluntarily went each day

During the attack on Monthols Lieutenant Droubin voluntarily went each day to reconnoiter the first position, observe the advance, and to secure liaison with neighboring units, fearlessly exposing himself to the severest artillery and machine-gun fire. On Sept. 29 he entered the enemy positions east of Ardeuil, located the machine-gun nests which were holding up the advance, traversed an open field swept by the fire of these guns to reach the liaison officer of Artillery, and to give him the objective. Throughout the operations he rendered invaluable assistance to the regimental commander, and his energy and course were an inspiration to the artire regiment. and courage were an inspiration to the entire regiment.

Near St. Maurice, France, Sept. 14, 1918. DUBET, JEAN O.

R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. DUBOIS, ALFRED_____

Near Missy-aux-Bois, France, July 18, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 99, W. D., 1918.

DURAND, LÉON-In France, Sept. 12, 1918. R—France.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

EHRHARDT, GUSTAVE_____ Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 25-26,

1918. R—France. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

ESCUDIER, ETIENNE

In the Bois-de-Brieulles, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 71, W. D., 1919.

1918. R-France.

FILIPPI, JEAN______At Magenta Farm, France, Nov. 3, 1918. R-France.

G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

Gaillot, Maurice G. Near Chateau-Thierry, France, July 31 to Aug. 6, 1918, and near Sois-sons, France, Aug. 25 to Sept. 1, 1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

GAUFFENY, EMMANUEL P. F.
In the St. Mihiel sector, France,
Sept. 26, 1918.
R.—France.

G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

GAUTHIER, JEAN C....

Near Bussy Farm, France, Sept. 29, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant, 8th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army Having been ordered to secure contact with the enemy, he led his men against a hostile strong point held by a superior force. Through his decision and personal bravery this center of resistance was overcome, 34 prisoners were captured, and valuable information secured.

Interpreter, 19th Train of Military Transports, 35th Company, French mission, attached to Headquarters, 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

He voluntarily exposed himself to heavy shellfire while carrying wounded men to a place of safety.

Private, first class, 156th Regiment of Infantry, French Army. While his platoon was being held up by enemy grenadiers he opened fire from his machine gun and prevented an enemy counterattack. An exploding mine had damaged his gun, and when the enemy rushed forward he jumped from his position, and with the aid of hand grenades he resisted the advance and caused many casualties.

Captain, 140th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 138th Infantry, 35th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
As liaison officer it was no part of his duty to go into action with the forward elements of the regiment, but he insisted upon doing so. Undaunted by a wound in the left arm, caused by a bursting shell, he continued to advance in the face of very intense shelline. He was again struck down by a shell fragment, which shattered his right arm, but he arose and followed the regimental commander into the shell-swept area. He was knocked down a third time by shell fragments, from which he received wounds in the back so severe in character that he was unable to rise. He later received additional wounds in the body.

First lieutenant, 79th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 59th Infantry, 4th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Though he was not required to do so by the duties of his position, Lieutenant Escudier volunteered to ascertain the source of an extremely heavy artillery fire which was being directed upon the American Infantry. In accomplishing this mission he exposed himself to heavy shell and machine-gun fire for 3 hours and secured accurate information, displaying absolute fearlessness and indifference to his own personal safety.

Lieutenant, 350th Tank Company, French Army.
Lieutenant Etienne personally located a point at which the tanks could cross the stream and then remained at this point under the heavy enemy artillery and machine-gun fire until all the tanks had struggled across. He then led the section in the successful attack on the Bois-de-la-Morine, where the tanks destroyed the enemy machine-gun nests and allowed the American Infantry to reach the objective.

Corporal, 2d Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army.
While engaged in maintaining liaison with American troops he repeatedly passed through the enemy's lines. At one time he was attacked and almost captured by several Germans, but, after a band-to-hand struggle, he succeeded in freeing himself and continuing on his mission.

Captain, 36th Regiment of Infantry, French Army Throughout the 2 campaigns he accompanied every officer's patrol, fearlessly exposing himself to heavy machine-gun and artillery fire, rendering invaluable service to the regiment to which he was attached.

Lieutenant, 146th Regiment of Infantry, French Army.
Commanding and leading a raid against the enemy, in spite of the severe shelling, he reached his objective and took many prisoners. His great courage during most hazardous reconnaissance won the admiration of all under his command, and the information he supplied was always of the utmost value.

Second lieutenant of Artillery, French Army, liaison officer with the 371st Infantry, 93d Division, American Expeditionary Forces. While on duty as French liaison officer with the 371st Infantry, this officer was knocked down by a shell which burst near by during a severe artillery barrage. He immediately resumed the advance with the utmost coolness, affording an excellent example to the men near him. During the whole battle he was many times exposed to heavy fire in maintaining liaison and performing other voluntary service, his experience, sangfroid, and judgment assisting materially in the success of the operation. R-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

GOYNE, ANTOINE Near St. Mihiel France, Sept. 13, R-France.

G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919,

GRIZEL, MARCEL Near Mortzwiller, Alsace, Sept. 1, 1918. R-France.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Gros, Joseph.

Near Crete-des-Eparges, France,
Sept. 12, 1918. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

GUINET, EUGÉNE

Near Nantillois, Meuse, France, Oct. 6, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

GUYOT, BENJAMIN H ... In the region of St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 14-15, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

HALLIER, ANDRÉ .. In the Bois-de-Beuge, France, Oct. 3-4, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

HASSELVENDER, ALFRED J. V. At Verst 455, North Russia, Oct. 14, 1918. R—France. G. O. No 24, W. D., 1920.

HAUMANT, MARCEL A. E. Near Daucourt, France, Sept. 15, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

HENDRICK, PIERRE H.....

At Coullemelle Ferme, and at Berzy-le-Sec, south of Soissons, France, July 20-21, 1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 100, W. D., 1918.

HOFFENBACH, EDOUARD Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

HOUROUX, ETIENNE

Near Dun-sur-Meuse, France, Oct. 30, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

At Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 125, W. D., 1918.

HUGO, JEAN

Private, first class, 153d Regiment of Infantry, French Army.
While his company was surrounded by the enemy after an attack, he volunteered and established liaison with his hattalion, his mission being successfully accomplished despite the severe fire from many machine guns in the vicinity.

Brigadier, 4th Squadron, 6th Regiment de Chasseurs d'Afrique, French Army. Having been ordered to establish an advance post in the village of Deuxnouds, he entered the town ahead of the Infantry and captured 6 prisoners.

Private, 19th Battery, 70th Regiment, A. L. G. P., French Army, At the railroad garage near Mortzwiller, Private Grizel unhesitatingly entered an area under heavy bombardment by the enemy, and, as a member of the train crew, assisted in the removal of 9 cars of ammunition to a place of safety. This was accomplished in spite of the track being cut and limbs of trees being thrown across the track by bursting shells, Lieutenant, 6th Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army. During the action near Crete-des-Eparges, Lieutenant Gros established and maintained liaison with American troops, and, against dangerous and violent counterattacks, he organized and defended his position. During all attacks by his organization he was always conspicuous by his bravery and gallantry and his example of courage and bravery was an inspiration to his men.

Lieutenant, observer, 208th Aero Squadron, French Army, attached to 3d Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces.
This officer displayed remarkable gallantry and devotion to duty when he engaged in combat against a superior force of enemy pursuit planes. In the course of the action his pilot was killed. Lieutenant Guinet took control of the machine and brought it back under fire to friendly territory and was seriously wounded in landing.

Lieutenant, pilot, 219th Escadrille, French Army.
Lieutenant Guyot without protection made 3 separate and distinct trips well into the enemy's lines; disregarding antiaircraft and ground machinegun fire, he accomplished artillery adjustments of the highest military value.

Lieutenant, 15th Battalion of Light Tanks, French Army.

After leading units of his battalion to their jumping-off positions, he went out with I enlisted man and established an observation post in advance of the outpost line. He maintained this position despite intense artillery and machine-gun fire, and sent back valuable information as to the enemy, which was, in a large measure, responsible for the accuracy of our artillery fire. He displayed marked heroism and utter disregard for personal danger.

Captain, 21st Battalion de Marche, Colonial Infantry, French Army. He personally led a Franco-American platoon against a strongly fortified posi-tion. The heroic conduct displayed under heavy fire by this brilliant officer was an inspiration to the entire command.

Maréchal des Logis, 5th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army. While reconnoitering near the Bois-des-Haute-Epines he led his platoon in an attack on a hostile strong point and captured 10 prisoners.

Captain of Infantry, French Army, attached to 1st Infantry Brigade, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
He gallantly crossed a zone under heavy fire to verify liaison with adjoining French troops, and during the attack on Berzy-le-Sec showed extraordinary heroism by his fearless exposure under heavy machine and artillery fire.

Captain of Infantry. French mission, attached to 9th Infantry, 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
Captain Hoffenbach volunteered and led a combat liaison group between the 6th Marines and units on the flank, continuing on his mission until liaison had been established, when he was evacuated.

Sergeant-pilot, 284th Escadrille, French Army, attached to 2d Army Corps, Sergeant-pilot, 284th Escadrille, French Army, attached to 20 Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces.

While engaged in a visual reconnaissance Sergeant Houroux accepted combat with 4 enemy planes who attacked him with the object of forcing him to abandon his mission. Although he was himself seriously wounded, he sustained the unequal fight until his observer was killed by the fire of the attacking aircraft. When no further defense was left to him, he made a successful retreat into the allied lines and landed safely. Suffering severely from his wound, and too weak to leave the pilot's seat without assistance, he insisted that his observer be cared for before permitting anyone to aid him.

Lieutenant, 36th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 28th Infantry, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

During the attack and defense of Cantigny he showed utter disregard for personal danger and in critical situations inspired great confidence in those about him, contributing largely to the successful defense of the sector against repeated counterattacks. He rendered valuable assistance in placing troops in their positions and inspired confidence in the men by his coolness.

JACOBSON, ALFRED Near the Ourcq River, France, July 26 to Aug. 2, 1918. R—France.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

JACQUIN, ALFRED

Near Dun-sur-Meuse and Brioulles, France, Nov. 1-3, 1918. -France. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Jourde, Georges A. F..... Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

LABOUR, RENÉ.

Near Fisines, France, Sept. 2, 1918, and near Grand Pre, France, Oct. 15-16, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

LAGACHE, GUSTAVE P. A.
Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 24,
1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

LANO, MAURICE Near Mouson, France, Nov. 7, 1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

LARRA, JOSEPH.
At Cheppy, France, Sept. 26, 1918.
R-France.
G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

LEANDRI, DOMINIQUE A.
Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-France G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

LE BELLEGE, JEAN B.

Argonne Forest, France. November, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Lebre, Anton. Near Montfauxelles, France, Sept. 29-Oct. 4, 1918.

G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

Captain, 15th Regiment of Artillery, French Army, attached to 42d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
When our advance was held up by stubborn resistance of the enemy in the Bois Brule, Captain Jacobson personally took a telephone to a point less than 300 meters from the enemy's lines and so directed the fire of our artillery as to compet the evacuation of the Bois. He was under continuous shelline while performing this mission. Ou Aug. 2, when the regiment had lost contact with the enemy, he went forward with a small party at great risk of his own life and developed the enemy's line.

Lieutenant of Engineers, French Army, attached to 7th Engineers, 5th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant Jacquin voluntarily patrolled the banks of the Meuse River day and night under machine-gun and shellfire locating enemy machine guns and artillery, determining the damage to bridges, and obtaining data for the location and construction of pontoon bridges. During the construction of these bridges, by means of which the heights overlooking the Meuse were reached and stormed, this officer remained constantly at the bridges under heavy fire, directing the work with the highest courage and technical skill.

Second lieutenant, 12th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army. The led his platoon with conspicuous bravery in clearing a section of trenches 500 meters long containing numerous machine guns which had been inflicting many casualities. Through his skillful leadership this position was reduced and 144 prisoners taken, including several officers.

Captain, 415th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 307th Infantry, 77th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

He displayed singular bravery in going forward in the face of violent machinegun fire to inspect the technical organization of the sector prior to the attack on Fismes of Sept. 2. During the night of Oct. 15-16, under perilous artillery and trench-mortar fire, he visited the front line and obtained most valuable information, which aided materially in the capture of the town.

Captain of Air Service, Frency Army.

Captain Lagache brilliantly commanded the 101st French Squadron from Sept. 7-15, 1918, while it was assigned to the American Army during the St. Mihiel offensive. In an encounter with a superior force of the enemy on Sept. 24 he fearlessly attacked the group, and in the unequal combat which followed he persisted in the attack and succeeded in shooting down an enemy plane within our lines. This action took place while serving under American command American command.

Captain of Colonial Artillery, French mission, attached to 2d Infantry Brigade, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces. Captain Lano, with another officer, made a most hazardous reconnaissance of the enemy position along the Meuse River and supplied valuable information of these positions. During the entire exploit they were constantly under enemy observation and heavy fire of their guns.

Second lieutenant, 16th Tank Corps, 504th Heavy Artillery, French Army. He was acting as liaison officer between French tanks and American Infantry when the latter met with severe artillery and machine-gan fire from strong enemy positions. Passing through a heavy artillery barrage, he led 2 small tanks into action in an effort to overcome the enemy's resistance and sman tanks into action in an enort to overcome the enemy's resistance and personally charged a machine-gun nest with his pistol, killings 1 of the gunners and capturing the other 2. The 2 small tanks proving to be inadequate, this officer went back through the barrage and brought up 8 large tanks, leading them on foot in the open under intense shellfire and direct machine-gun fire. He maneuvered these tanks so skillfully that the subsequent capture of the stronghold of Cheppy by the Infantry was made possible.

Colonel, 8th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army. Leading his regiment in the attack in liaison with the 26th American Division, he directed the assault with distinguished gallantry and leadership. In an advance of 6 kilometers his command captured 1,780 prisoners, including 2 regimental commanders and 37 other officers, 90 machine guns, 3 heavy howitzers, 22 minenwerfers, one 77-millimeter gun, and a large quantity of other material.

Maréchal des Logis, 22d Regiment of Artillery of Colonial Campaign, French

Army.
This soldier was wounded on 3 different occasions, but each time remained on duty with his battery, consenting to be treated after his mission had been completed. His coolness under gravest circumstances won the admiration of all with whom he was connected,

Captain, 344th Regiment of Infantry, French Army.
While on duty as senior French officer near the colonel of the 371st U. S. Infantry, Captain Lebre volunteered and went forward to make reconnaissance, during which he was wounded in the face by a bursting shell. After being evacuated he insisted on returning to duty with the regiment, though he was still suffering from fever caused by his wound and exposure during the heitle. the battle.

-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

LE COIN, RENÉ H....

Near Cantigny, France, May 28-30, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

LENOIR, HENRI

Near Vaux-Andigny, France, Oct. 11, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

LE PELLETIER DE WOILLEMONT, BERNARD C. F. M. X. E. G. Near St. Etienne, France, Oct. 9, 1918. R-France G. O. No. 120, W. D., 1918. Distinguished-service medal also LEPLUS, PAUL....

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

LEROUX, MAURICE....

At Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

LESCADRON, HENRI J.....

Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12-14, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

26, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

LORANS, MARCEL

During the battle of the Ourcq, France, July 26 to Aug. 2, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 44, W. D. 1919.

Private, first class, 153d Regiment of Infantry, French Army.

While advancing with and assisting an American colonel in an attack on the enemy Private Le Cam displayed meritorious valor in combating the enemy.

With fixed bayonet he attacked the hostile party and exacted no less than 4 casualties, 1 of whom was a noncommissioned officer.

Major, 41st Regiment of Artillery of the Colonial Service, French Army. By his valuable assistance rendered to the Infantry, which he was supporting, Major Leclerc, by the effective use of his batteries inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy. To better assist the American division attacking Brancourt, he occupied an advanced position, despite the fatigued condition of his troops, who were constantly subjected to machine-gun fire and high-explosive and poisonous shells.

Interpreter, French mission, attached to 28th Infantry, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

During the critical operations around Cantigny, Interpreter Le Coin was constantly on duty at an observation post. Seeing a group of men retreating in disorder, he rushed to them, stopped their retreat, and returned them to their recritical control of the constitution of the lines. their positions on the line.

Brigadier interpreter, 19th Squadron of the Train of Military Transports, French mission, attached to 120th Infantry, 30th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Discovering 2 of the enemy hiding, he captured them and turned them over to the battalion commander. The information regarding the enemy's line of defense and movement obtained from these prisoners proved to be correct and of the utmost value. On another occasion he braved the dangers of terrific hostile fire by going ahead of the battalion into a village and aiding the sick and wounded among the inhabitants, disregarding the fact that he was suffering agony from the effects of gas.

Lieutenant of Cavalry, French Army, liaison officer with the 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
Lieutenant Le Pelletier De Woillemont, with Col. James C. Rhea, U. S. Army, voluntarily undertook an important reconnaissance under hazardous circumstances during the Massif Blanc Mont operations at a time when accurate cumstances during the Massit Blanc Mont operations at a time when accurate information concerning our advanced positions was greatly needed and could not be obtained from other sources. In an automobile, whose conspicuous appearance drew the concentrated fire of artillery and machine guns, they proceeded I mile across open ground to the town of St. Etienne, where our troops were in contact with the enemy. Under fire these 2 officers reconnitered the front lines, locating the position of the enemy, as well as that of the French units on the flank, and returned across the open with complete, reliable, and timely information of the highest military value in subsequent corrections.

Lieutenant, 89th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 127th Infantry, 32d Division, American Expeditionary Forces. Realizing the necessity and importance of the tanks in the attack on the Boisde-la-Morine, Lieutenant Leplus voluntecred and led the tanks over unfamiliar and difficult terrain. He continually exposed himself to the terrific fire of the enemy in their attempt to destroy the tanks, but earried his mission to a successful conclusion.

Lieutenant, French Army, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

At great personal risk he volunteered and crossed an area swept by heavy machine-gun and artillery fire in order to establish liaison with French troops on the flank. He succeeded in locating these units and delivered an important message, displaying exceptional courage and utter disregard for personal danger.

Second lieutenant, French mission, attached to 356th Infantry, 89th Division,

American Expeditionary Forces.

Upon learning that 1 of the companies of the regiment had lost all its officers except the company commander. Lieutenant Lessadron left the regimental post of command and joined this company, which was in the first wave, gallantly assisting the company commander and going through artillery and machinegun fire to aid the platoon leaders. He continued with this company until its final objective was reached and assisted in organizing the position

Captain, 337th Company, 505th Regiment of Assault Artillery, French Army. Preceding his 5 tanks on foot, he personally directed the attack on enemy machine guns and snipers that had held up the advance of an entire Infantry He killed 2 of the enemy himself and assisted in the capture of the brigade.

Captain of Infantry, French Army, attached to 42d Division, American Expeditionary Forces. He remained constantly in the front line, attaching himself to 1 battalion after another as they in turn came into the fight, and by his energy and gallantry under fire setting a splendid example to the officers and soldiers of the regiment.

1918.

R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

LUCAS, EUGÈNE L. E.

Near Apremout, France, Sept. 12, 1918, and near Bois-de-Handrouvilles Bas, France, Sept. 16, 1918. -France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

MAGON DE LA GICLAIS, JEAN.....

Near Pexonne, France, Mar. 5, 1918. France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

MALLET, ARTHUR H. G....

On the Vesle River, near Bazoches, France, Aug. 7, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

Marchand, Léon

During the battle of the Marne, July 15, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.

Maréchal, Adrien.....

At Pouilly, Meuse, France, Nov. 3, 1918, R-France G. O. 81, W. D., 1919.

Marius, Jean Near Vilosnes, France, Nov. 3, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Lieutonant, 21st Battalion de Marche, Colonial Infantry, French Army.
On Sept. 14-15, 1918, he displayed great courage in exposing himself to heavy enemy fire while directing the fire of his machine guns. On Nov, 4 he further distinguished himself by going forward under heavy fire and supplying needed ammunition to advanced positions.

Sergeant-pilot, 151st Escadrille Spa, Air Service, French Army.
Sergeant Loriot on patrol met and was attacked by a large number of enemy planes (Fokker type), and in the course of the combat his motor and plane were severely damaged. By clever maneuvering he managed to elude the enemy planes and land safely behind the American lines.

Sergeant, 156th Regiment of Infantry, French Army. On Sept. 12, theeve of the attack on Apremont, he alone reconnoitered the enemy lines and by exposing himself to machine-gun fire was able to supply his bat-talion commander with accurate information as to the position of these strongholds. On Sept. 16, aiding some French and American soldiers in attack, he successfully routed superior numbers of the enemy after a lively bayonet encounter.

First lieutenant of Cavalry, French Army, attached to 42d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

In action of Mar. 5, 1918, near Pexonne, France, although he might have remained in a place of safety, he went to the position of Battery C, 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division, when it was under bombardment by accurately adjusted artillery and by his courage and coolness assisted the officers and men of the command.

Lieutenant, 350th Tank Company, French Army.

After 2 of his tanks had been destroyed, Lieutenant Malbe continued to lead his tank section in a desperate attack on the machine-gun nests at the creast of Hill 255. His entire disregard of personal danger in successfully carrying out this mission under the terrific enemy fire made it possible for our troops to reach the objective and hold the position.

Lieutenant, French Army, liaison officer with the 2d Battalion, 47th Infantry, 4th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

While serving as liaison officer with the 2d Battalion, 47th U. S. Infantry, which led the attack against the enemy and in the face of stubborn resistance, crossed the Vesle River, seized a critical position north of that stream, and held tenaciously to it throughout the day. Lieutenant Mallet, under a heavy and continuous hostile fire, repeatedly went from I front-line combat group to another, assisting materially in the successful conduct of the action by his courageous actions, suggestions, and professional skill. He rendered highly important services at a critical moment when the left of the line was sorely pressed by enemy counterattack and at all times by his soldierly conduct, inspiring courage, and high qualities of leadership was an heroic example to his comrades in arms. He was killed in action late in the afternoon.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to father, Frederic Mallet.

Licutenant, 202d Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 30th Infantry, 3d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Licutenant Marchand repeatedly displayed superb courage by voluntardy proceeding from the regimental command post dugout to an observation post on the edge of the woods through intense shellfire in order to observe the progress of the action and obtain information necessary for the commanding officer. The superb courage of Licutenant Marchand was an inspiration to the men of the regiment to which he was attached. Oak-leaf cluster.

Oak-leaf cluster.

For the following acts of extraordinary heroism in action near the Ferme de Madeleine du Cunel, France, Oct. 14, 1918, Lieutenant Marchand is awarded an oak-leaf cluster. He twice voluntarily accompanied attacking troops through heavy enemy barrages and on 1 of these occasions was caught between friendly and hostile machine-gun fire, displaying notable coolness and gallantry. Later in the same night he volunteered and lead a patrol into the Bois-de-Pultiere to locate a dugout for the advance regimental post command, although he knew the woods were saturated with gas, by which he was averence. he was overcome.

Second lieutenant, observer, 214th Aero Squadron, French Army, attached to 5th Army Corps observation group, American Expeditionary Forces. After 2 fingers of his right hand had been shot away, a hole shot through his hand, and the trigger of 1 machine gun blown off, Lieutenant Maréchal continued to fire with his left hand on 5 enemy monoplace planes which had attacked him over the hostile lines. By doing this he enabled the pilot to bring his damaged machine back to our own lines and brought valuable information of our own and enemy troops. After landing he made his report before he received medical treatment. before he received medical treatment.

Sergeant, 5th Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army.

He voluntarily accompanied an American officer on an engineering recon-naissance of a dangerous character. When the detachment was almost surrounded by the enemy he succeeded in killing several Germans and thereby saved the officer's life.

MARTELLIÈRE, ANDRÉ P. In the vicinity of Juvigny, France, Ang. 20 and Sept. 2, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

*Maxwell, Roger.

Vaulmy, France, Sept. 26-30, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

MENI, JEAN.
In the St. Mihiel offensive, France,
Sept. 12, 1918.
R—France.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

MÉREL, ROBERT A.... Near Spittaals Bossehen and Audenarde, Belgium, Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

R-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Sept. 12, 1918. France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

*MILLERET, NORBERT....

Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 14– Oct. 3, 1918, and near the Bois-des-Loges, France, Oct. 15–19, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

MOREL, JULIEN

Near Cheppy, France, Sept. 18, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

PEPIN, EDMOND.

In the region of St. Mihiel, France,
Sept. 12, 1918.
R.—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

PERRIN, EDOUARD Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

Petit, Auguste J.....

East of Daucourt, France, Sept. 27, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919,

Captain, 8th Company, 64th Battalion, Chasseurs Alpins, French Army, Captain Martellière, in command of the 8th Company of 64th Battalion, Chasseurs Alpins, French Army, which company operated as a liaison unit of the 32d American Division, maintained communication on an exposed flank under heavy enemy fire during the 4 days of the operation. On Sept. 2, although suffering from the effects of gas, he continued on and fearlessly led his company in the assault on Mont-de-Leuilly under heavy enemy fire and assisted in the capture of the position, together with a number of prisoners and much material. prisoners and much material.

First lieutenant of Infantry, French Army, information officer attached to 369th Infantry, 93d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

For extraordinary heroism while serving as information officer attached to the 369th Infantry, 93d Division, U. S. Army. Lieutenant Maxwell accomplished haison missions under very difficult circumstances and gave valuable help to the general commanding the Army corps during the battle of Sept. 26-30, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal forwarded to the military attache, American Embassy, Paris, France, for delivery to next of kin.

Captain of Air Service, 16th Pursuit Group, Air Service, French Army.
Despite the unfavorable weather conditions, Captain Meni made a reconnaissance flight over the enemy lines, returning with valuable information concerning the evacuation of the enemy and the dominant position of Montsec.

First lieutenant of Infantry, French mission, attached to 91st Division, Ameriean Expeditionary Forces.

Armed with an automatic rifle, he went forward alone and killed the gunner of an enemy machine gun whose fire had been holding up the advancing line.

Captain, 27th Regiment of Infantry, French Army.
Acting as liaison officer with the 58th American Infantry, he showed marked personal courage under intense fire, setting an example of fearlessness to the officers and men with him. His knowledge of German artillery enabled him to advise methods of approach for our troops which were instrumental in preventing many casualties.

Sergeant-pilot, 218th Escadrille, French Army.

Sergeant Michel while on a reconnaissance had his wireless outfit destroyed by enemy's fire. Realizing that he could not communicate with his lines and also being well into the enemy's territory, he descended to an extremely low altitude. Disregarding the enemy's antiaircraft and ground machinegun fire, he attacked an enemy convoy, causing considerable damago.

First lieutenant, 49th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, liaison officer with the 155th Infantry Brigade, 78th Division, American Expeditionary Forees.

As liaison officer with the 155th Infantry Brigade, Lieutenant Milleret was untiring in his constant efforts to further the success of the operations and repeatedly ignored his personal safety in visiting observation posts and assisting in the machine-gun and intelligence work of the brigade. This gallaut officer was killed by shellfire on October 19, 1918.

Posthumously awarded. Medal forwarded to widow, Madam Norbert Milleret.

From interpreter attached to 138th Infantry, 35th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Attached as an interpreter to the 138th Infantry, he volunteered to go forward with the organization in an attack, and though himself wounded helped to earry a wounded officer from the battle field and then returning led the tanks to Cheppy, making possible the entrance of the Infantry to that town.

Second lieutenant, pilot, 47th Escadrille Sal, French Army. Lieutenant Pepin in the most adverse weather conditions flew at an extremely low altitude for 2½ hours, thoroughly reconnotiering enemy positions and returning with information of the greatest value.

Brigadier, 350th Tank Company, Frency Army.
During the first attack on Hill 255 Brigadier Perrin's tank was destroyed and he was captured. On the following night he escaped and on the following day took part in the second attack on the hill. He was wounded soon after the engagement began, but continued to operate his gun, giving an important support to our advancing Infantry. He refused to leave the field for treatment until the mission had been successfully completed.

Maréchal des Logis, 5th Company, 5th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army

Having been ordered to attack Bonvrot Farm, he led his platoon forward with fixed havonets and cut off the enemy, capturing the position, which had been occupied by the enemy since dawn. His platoon, numbering but 20, took 85 prisoners and 4 machine guns.

Near Massif Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-8, 1918. PIVETEAU. R-France.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Near Gesnes, France, Oct. 4, 1918. R—France. PRALY, LOUIS .. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919, PRUDHOMME, FRÉDÉRIC H......At Wool, France, Sept. 14, 1918. R.—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

QUINTON, R_____

Near Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3-17, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

RAULT, JEAN E Near Haudiomont, France, Sept. 26, 1918, R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

RAVISSE, HENRI Near Montsec, France, Sept. 12, 1918. France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

REDIER, MAURICE....

Near Pauvres, France, Oct. 13, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

REISS, ANDRÉ

During the St. Mihiel offensive, France, 1918, and at Mont Blanc, France, Oct. 5-9, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

RERAT, ARMAND.....

In Champagne, France, July 15-18, 1918, and on the Ourcq River, France, July 26 to Aug. 2, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

RITT, MAURICE J. V.

Near Juvigny, north of Soissons, France, Aug. 31, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

ROBERT______At Verst 455, north Russia, Oct. 14, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

ROUSSEL, JEAN

Near St. Mihiel, France, Sept. 12-13, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

102444°-27---43

Licutenant, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, Assault Artillery, French Army. During 2 attacks by the 2d American Division, he repeatedly distinguished himself by his courage and utter disregard of danger in transmitting orders and gathering important information for his battalion commander. His zeal, devotion to duty, and initiative were of the highest order.

Aspirant, 350th Company, Tank Corps, French Army.

Commanding one of the tank sections, which was preceding the advance of the American Infantry, Aspirant Praly displayed exceptional bravery in destroying machine-gun nests until his tank received a direct hit from the enemy's artillery. Notwithstanding that his tank was unable to continue forward and that he himself was wounded, Aspirant Praly continued to operate his guns until all his ammunition was exhausted.

Second lieutenant, 12th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army, Having been ordered to occupy the village of Woel, which he found to be held by 1 company of Germans, Lieutenant Prudhomme unhesitatingly attacked with 1 section and captured the town, taking 18 prisoners, 2 machine guns, and killing many of the enemy. He then held the position for 24 hours against several hostile counterattacks.

Lieutenant colonel, 452d Regiment of Field Artillery, French Army, attached to 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
During the attack on Blanc Mont he, undeterred by heavy shellfire, personally made reconnaissance to the front each day and secured information of the enemy to determine locations for his batteries.

Captain, 5th Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army. In making a local attack in the Bois-de-Manheulles Captain Rault by skillful maneuvering succeeded in cutting off the retreat of an entire company of the enemy.

Captain, 153d Regiment of Infantry, French Army. Riding ahead of his lines under most terrific fire, he established and maintained liaison with the next American division. On many occasions he rendered most valuable assistance to the allied armies, undertaking most perilous missions to insure communication between troops.

Captain, 65th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 72d Infantry Brigade, 36th Division, American Expeditionay Forces.
Captain Redier moved forward in advance of our infantry patrols of units on the flank. He displayed great coolness and dash under artillery and machinegun fire. He also entered Vaux-Champagne in advance of our troops. His conduct was an inspiration to all troops in the attack.

Interpreter, French Army, attached to 4th Machine Gun Battalion, 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
While attached to the 4th Machine Gun Battalion, he voluntarily assumed the duties of the battalion adjutant who had been injured. In reconnaissance, maintaining communication, and establishing liaison he displayed absolute fearlessness and rendered valuable assistance to the battalion. At Mont Blanc, Oct. 5-9, 1918, he continually went back and forth through artillery and machine-gun fire in order to maintain liaison between the 4th Machine Gun Battalion and the French unit on the right.

Lieutenant of Infantry, French Army, attached to 42d Division, American

Expeditionary Forces.

During the German attack of July 15-18 in Champagne Lieutenant Rerat vol-untarily joined the 2d Battalion of the 165th Infantry in the fight in the front line and was conspictous for his bravery. He again behaved himself very gallantly during the attack on the Ourcq River July 26 to Aug. 2, 1918, where he was slightly wounded but refused aid until the fight was over.

Lieutenant of Infantry, French mission, attached to 127th Infantry, 32d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
Lieutenant Ritt assisted in establishing an advanced machine-gun position in the village of Juvigny, the fire of which forced the surrender of 32 enemy prisoners. This gallant officer assisted in forming a new line and went from one end to the other picking up stragglers and getting the line organized, exposing himself to machine-gun fire throughout the operation. Three times he went through heavy fire for the purpose of maintaining liaison with a French division on the right. French division on the right.

Second lieutenant, 21st Battalion de Marche, Colonial Infantry, French Army. Lieutenant Robert placed himself at the head of a Franco-American section and personally led it against a strongly fortified position. The courage displayed by this brilliant officer under heavy machine-gun fire was an important factor in the successful attack.

Private, first class, 3d Company, 12th Regiment of Mounted Chasseurs, French Army.

While engaged on liaison duty with his platoon in the front line he displayed remarkable daring in an encounter with 10 of the enemy. After seizing a rifle from the hands of 1 of them he succeeded in disarming the others and brought them to our lines.

battalion.

SANDEAU ... Verst 455, north Russia, Oct. 14, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

SANTINI, PHILIPPE In France, July 15-16, Oct. 14, 1918, and in the Argonne-Meuse, France, Nov. 9, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

SARDIER, GILBERT J. M. L.

Near Mesnil-St.-Firmin, France,
May 15, 1918, and north of Chatean-Thierry, France, June 4, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920.

SARTORIOUS, EMILE....

At Vadenay, north of Chalons-sur-Marne, France, July 15, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 117, W. D., 1918.

SIMONET, ANDRÉ

Near Triercs Farm, France, Sept. 30, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 37, W. D., 1919.

TCHEIMESSOFF, SERGUEI Near Kadish, Russia, Feb. 7, 1919. R-France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.

TESSIER, FERNAND....

In the Champagne sector, France, Sept. 26-Oct. 1, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

THIABAUD, CLAUDE E.At La Ferme and Damvillers, France, Nov. 7-10, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

THIEBAULT, RENÉ....

Near Massif Blanc Mont, France, Oct. 3, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

TRIBOT-LASPIÈRRE, JEAN R. Near Bois-de-Belleau, France, June 6, 1918. R—France. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1921.

TRIVES, FRANCOIS M.....

Near Haumont, France, Nov. 2, R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

R—France. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Aspirant, 21st Battalion de Marche, Colonial Infantry, French Army.
Aspirant Sandean personally led a Franco-American section against a strongly fortified enemy position. The courage displayed by him while exposed to heavy machine-gnn and rifle fire was an important factor in the successful

Lieutenant, 53d Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army.
On July 15-16 Lieutenant Santini defended a stronghold against overwhelming forces of the enemy for a period of 34 hours until assisted by reinforcements.
On Oct. 14, under cover of a fog, he carried on a raid against an enemy picket and without loss he captured 14 prisoners and 1 machine gun. On Nov. 9, after being severely wounded, he took a strong enemy position after a severe ctrough and also active and a residue and a resid struggle and also captured 9 prisoners and 2 machine guns.

First lieutenant of Air Service, French Army.

On May 15 Lieutenant Sardier, while a member on a patrol, left his unit and alone attacked and destroyed 2 enemy planes (single seaters). On June 4, while under American command, he attacked and burned 2 enemy balloons. On Sept. 14, near St. Miluiel, he attacked 2 enemy halloons and drove off an enemy biplane. This action took place while serving under American command.

Adjutant interpreter, French Army, attached to 42d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

During the shelling of Vadenay on the morning of July 15, 1918, he voluntarily left a place of safety to conduct American troops to shelter under a heavy fire of major-caliber shells and was severely wounded.

Maréchal des Logis, 19th Train of Military Transports, French Army, attached to 371st Infantry, 93d Division, American Expeditionary Forces. While on duty with the 371st U. S. Infantry as interpreter he rendered exceptional service to our forces by assuming command until the second in command could be notified, when the adjutant and commanding officer of the battalion to which he was attached were wounded. At this time he made a voluntary trip to the regimental post of command to report conditions in the Private, French Foreign Legion.

While serving under American command, Private Tcheimessoff heroically defended his position against attack of overwhelming numbers. Although severely wounded in the head, he refused to leave his position, but continued at his post until all others had retired.

First lieutenant, 14th Regiment of Chasseurs, French Army, attached to 369th

First fictionant, 14th Regiment of Chasseurs, French Army, attached to south Infantry, 93d Divisien, American Expeditionary Forces.

This officer was attached to the 369th Infantry as liaison efficer and by continuous passage through zones which were under most intense fire maintained perfect liaison with brigade headquarters. In the attack on Sechault he was constantly in touch with the most advanced lines and personally carried messages to the assaulting battalions. He aided materially in holding the captured continuous actions and personal continuous c tured positions.

Lieutenant, 6th Regiment of Colonial Infantry, French Army.

In liaison with American troops he rendered most valuable assistance and greatly aided in driving the enemy from La Ferme and Damyillers. Throughout the war he participated in all the important attacks of his organization, and his brilliant leadership, singular courage, and devotion to duty played an important part in the success of the operations.

Maréchal des Logis, 308th Company, Tank Corps, 3d Battalion of Light Tanks, French Army.

Following an attack by the 2d American Division he distinguished himself by personal courage and coolness in going under heavy shellfare to the rescue of wounded American soldiers.

Captain, 1st Algerian Tirailleurs (rifle regiment), French Army. Although suffering severely from shell shock and the effects of gas, Captain Tribot-Laspièrre made his way from the 6th Regiment to the 5th Regiment, . S. Marine Corps, through very heavy and effective fire, with information of great importance.

Captain of Artillery, French Army, liaison officer with the 164th Artillery Brigade, 89th Division, American Expeditionary Forces.
Captain Trives volunteered to accompany a raiding party of the 28th Division. On reaching the German wire the patrol became confused and disorganized. Realizing that the party was in great danger of being caught in a heavy barrage, Captain Trives quickly reorganized the patrol, working under heavy fire, and continued to lead the raiding party until he was seriously wounded. wounded.

Brigadier, 19th Battery, E. V. N., 70th Regiment of Artillery, French Army, During an unusually heavy enemy bombardment of the railroad station, Brigadier Vacarisas entered the area and assisted the train crew in removing to safety 9 carloads of ammunition. The mission was accomplished despite the fact that the firing had damaged the track and had scattered branches of trees over the route.

VALLOIS, ROBERT. Near Thiaucourt, France, Sept. 12, 1918.

R-France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919. Captain of Air Service, observer, 16th Pursuit Group, French Army.
Captain Vallois volunteered to fly with Maj. Lewis H. Brereton, U. S. Army, on an important reconnaissance mission. On account of poor visibility, they were forced to fly at a very low altitude and were continually harassed by antiaircraft fire. 4 enemy monoplace planes (type Fokker) attacked them, and during the combat which followed Captain Vallois's gun jammed. After withdrawing for the purpose of clearing the jam, they again returned to the fight, and despite the fact that he had been painfully wounded in the face Captain Vallois succeeded in dispersing 3 of the adversaries and fought off the other while his pilot med a landing. the other while his pilot made a landing.

*VERRY, LOUIS.....

Near Soissons, France, July 18, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Maréchal des Logis, interpreter, French Army, attached to 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces. Under heavy enemy shellire Maréchal des Logis Verry volunteered to lead a liaison patrol for the purpose of establishing liaison with French units on the left. He and 3 American soldiers were killed by shellfire after advancing only a few yards on this perilous mission. Posthumously awarded. Medal forwarded to Franco-American special bureau, Paris, France, for delivery to next of kin.

VIAUD, LOUIS______ In France, on the night of Apr. 18-19, 1918. R-France.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

First lieutenant, 1st Company, 20th Regiment of Infantry, French Army. Lieutenant Viaud led a French-American detachment in a raid with the greatest coolness and bravery, displaying leadership and resourcefulness. When counterattacked by a strong German force he maintained his ground and repulsed the enemy.

VIVIEN, ROBERT

ear Bois-les-Marettes, France, June 1, 1918, and at Villers-Cot-terets Woods, France, July 18, France.

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Captain of Infantry, French Army, attached to 9th Infantry, 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

Upon the arrival of the 9th Infantry in the Chateau-Thierry sector June 1, 1918, Captain Vivien assisted in placing several companies in position and established liaison with the French. At this time the position of the enemy was unknown. Captain Vivien performed this act at great risk of being captured by the enemy. In the attack south of Soissons Captain Vivien assisted in re-forming the line and reorganizing combat groups after the attack on the German positions. German positions.

Wackernie, Georges_____

At Chateau-Thierry, France, May 31 to June 4, 1918. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1918.

Lieutenant, 54th Regiment of Infantry, French Army, attached to 7th Machine Gun Battalion, 3d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

During the operations against the enemy at Chateau-Thierry, France, from May 31 to June 4, 1918, he constantly distinguished himself by his extraordinary heroism in voluntarily going through heavy machine-gun fire in order to secure and give important information which could not otherwise be com-

WICHART, GEORGES.....

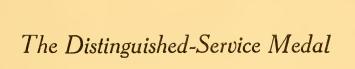

Near Monthois, France, Sept. 27 to Oct. 7, 1918. R—France.

G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1919.

Second lieutenant of Infantry, French Army, attached to 372d Infantry, 93d Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

During the attack on Monthois he voluntarily undertook the most hazardons missions, fearlessly traversing ground swept by machine-gun fire and severe bombardment to secure liaison between neighboring French units and to reconnoiter our first-line positions. His reports were invaluable. On the night of Oct. 2 he led a battalion to its position of attack and personally reconnoitered the line under intense machine-gun and artillery fire, furnishing a splendid assumple of coolness and utter disregard of dearger to the men of the splendid example of coolness and utter disregard of danger to the men of the battalion.

The Disappoint of Courte Makes

ALPHABETICAL LIST OF AWARDS OF THE DISTINGUISHED-SERVICE MEDAL IN NATIONAL GROUPS

AMERICANS

[Awarded for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services, in a position of great responsibility, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918, except as otherwise indicated]

ABBOT, FREDERIC V.
R—Willetts Point, N. Y.
B—Massachusetts.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services in the organization of engineer troops and the procurement of enlisted men for the service in the war. His zeal was untiring and the success of his effort marked.

ACHER, ALBERT H.....R—Grove City, Pa. B—Greenville, Pa. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 4th Engineers he contributed materially to the successes of the 4th Division in the Aisne-Marne offensive and in the Meuse-Argonne operations. By his skill in the construction of roads and bridges, he ably assisted in the operations of his division. His ability as a leader was shown in the efficiency of the 4th Engineers, both as a technical and as a combat unit. Later he showed the same rare qualities when he commanded the 27th Engineers.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As adjutant, Base Section No. 5, Brest, France, from Dec. 10, 1918, to Dec. 20, 1919, he displayed exceptional administrative and executive ability, sound judgment, uniform courtesy and unremitting devotion to duty, contributing markedly to the successful accomplishments of Base Section No. 5, upon which was placed among other duties the responsibility for the repatriation of more than a million American soldiers.

Director of inland traffic service, War Department.
His responsibilities have been great in supervising the utilization of railroad facilities and the immense movement of troops and supplies during the war.
His excellent judgment and marked ability have contributed materially to the successful and orderly movement of troops and supplies to the ports of embarkation and for the Army overseas.

ADAMS, JOHN H.....R.—La Porte, Ind.
B.—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as assistant chief, and later as chief of the Subsistence Division, Office of the Quartermaster General. His keen foresight and able grasp of the problems at hand made him an invaluable aid during those days when the all-important work of organizing the food supply was under way. By his tireless energy and marked ability he conducted his duties in the procurement and supply of subsistence stores, as to meet satisfactorily the all-important needs of the Army. In both positions he demonstrated marked business ability, good judgment, and carried to a successful conclusion each project presented to him.

Captain, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As confidential secretary of the Commander in Chief, American Expeditionary Forces, and later of the General of the Armies, he has worked untiringly and given proof of marked ability and resourcefulness. In the multifarious details connected with his duties he has at all times displayed keen judgment, tact, unfailing courtesy, and loyalty. In the office of the Commander in Chief, American Expeditionary Forces, where there devolved upon Captain Adamson a great volume of work and a mass of detail, he handled each new problem which confronted him in an able and masterful manner and rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility and in times and circumstances of the gravest importance.

ADDIS, EMMETT.

R—Youngstown, Ohio.

B—New Haven, Conn.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with marked ability as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, 38th Division, during the early days of its organization and training. As an instructor at the Army General Staff College, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed high professional attainments, and unfailing energy, performing service of inestimable worth in connection with the instruction and training of officers for General Staff duty. Later in the Office of the Provost Marshal General he again demonstrated those splendid characteristics which have at all times been outstanding features of his service.

Albright, Owen S.....R.—Memphis, Tenn.
B.—St. Louis, Mo.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. In command of field signal battalions at the front, as an instructor at corps schools, and as division signal officer of the 2d Division, he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

For services first, as American engineering representative at the conference called to design the Angle-American Mark VIII tank, and later as being directly responsible for the design of a new, valuable, and easily obtained implement of mechanical warfare, the fast 3-ton tank, susceptible of production in America in such quantity as to constitute a most material contribution to the effective fighting power of the United States Army.

Major, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As Assistant Chief of Staff, G-3, 81st Division, from October, 1918, until March, 1919, by his marked ability, high professional attainments, and loyal devotion to duty, he rendered valuable assistance in the staff work in the Vosges during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, thereby contributing materially to the success of his division in those operations.

Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army, As chief of the topographical division of the intelligence section he organized and administered, with exceptional ability, the topographical and sound and flash ranging services of the American Expeditionary Forces. Due to his foresight and energy our armies in the field were at all times supplied abundantly with excellent maps of the theater of operations.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As G-2 of the 33d Division from August, 1917, to June, 1918, and from September to November, 1918, he displayed sound judgment and exceptional ability in the organization, administration, and operation of that section of the division staff. By his tireless energy, military attainments, and unceasing devotion to duty he contributed greatly to the successes of the division during the Meuse-Argonne offensive and the operations in the Woevre Valley from September to November, 1918.

ALLEN, HENRY A.....R—Chicago, Ill
B—Madison, Wis.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He served with distinction as commanding officer of the 108th Engineers and as engineer officer of the 33d Division. By his technical skill and untiring energy in supervising the construction of bridges across the Meuse River he proved himself an important factor in the successes gained by our troops in their operations along the right bank of that stream during the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Major general, U. S. Army.

In command of the 19th Division he had the important position of conducting the right flank at the St. Mihiel salient. The brilliant success there gained and later repeated in the Argonne-Meuse offensive showed him to be an officer of splendid judgment, high attainments, and excellent leadership. Later he commanded the Eighth Army Corps with skill and judgment.

ALLEN, ROBERT H....R.—Buchanan, Va.
B.—Buchanan, Va.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 356th Infantry during the Argonne-Meuse offensive he proved himself a skillful tactician. Resourceful and energetic, he was at all times equal to any emergency which arose, showing qualities of rare leadership. Subsequently during the march into Germany and the occupation of the enemy territory his administrative ability was reflected in the high standard of excellence consistently maintained by his regiment, rendering services of signal worth.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As executive officer and director of training in the office of the Chief of Field

Artillery from Mar. 21, 1918, to Sept. 1, 1918, by reason of his high professional attainments, ability, foresight, and judgment, he rendered invaluable aid in solving the many complex problems confronting his arm of the service.

ALLISON, JAMES B....R—Yorkville, S. C.
B—Yorkville, S. C.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
For services in the organization and training of technical troops of the Signal Corps, while commanding officer of the Signal Corps Training School, Fort Leavenworth, Kans., and commanding officer of the Franklin cantonment, Camp Meade, Md.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the orthopedic work in the zone of the Army, he personally directed in a most efficient, conscientious, and painstaking manner splinting and orthopedic work, which resulted in the saving of many lives and greatly relieved suffering among our wounded.

 Commander, U. S. Navy.
For services as force engineer officer, in which position, by his untiring energy and close cooperation with the Army authorities, he successfully equipped a large number of Army and Navy transports.

ALVORD, BENJAMIN...

R-Washington, D. C.

B-Fort Vancouver, Washington Territory.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As adjutant general of the American Expeditionary Forces during the beginning of its organization his long experience, good judgment, and breadth of vision were of great value in the establishment of the innumerable activities of the adjutant general's department of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He served with the 165th Infantry throughout all its operations, displaying military attainments of the highest order. By his fearless bravery and splendid leadership he at all times inspired a notable spirit among the members of his command. His unflagging energy and resourcefulness in overcoming the numerous adverse conditions which confronted his command marked him as an officer of splendid soldierly qualities. By his sound tactical jindgment, keen foresight, and aggressive fighting spirit he proved himself an important factor in the successes of his regiment and division. He rendered services of conspicuous worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

ANDERSON, ALVORD V. P....... R-Montclair, N. J. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922. Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 312th Infantry throughout its organization, training, and all its active operations he displayed marked efficiency, unflagging energy, and military attaiuments of the highest order. In the attack on Grand Pre, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, by his prompt conception and brilliant execution of a skilful and successful attack on that strong and dominating position, he contributed largely to our successes in that great operation.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services in initiating and executing plans for the mobilization of enlisted personnel of the Army during the war.

American Red Cross.

On her own initiative she organized and efficiently developed and administered the work of the American Red Cross at Toul, France. Under her wise supervision this work grew from the ministering and supplying of small comforts to soldiers passing through in hospital trains to an undertaking of extensive proportions, which has aided and cheered thousands of men in the service. In the performance of her exacting tasks, she has displayed marked foresight and sound judgment, with untiring personal devotion to the interests and comfort of those whom she served.

Andrew, Abram Piatt......R.—Gloucester, Mass.
B—La Porte, Ind.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Ambulance Corps, U. S. Army.
Coming to France at the beginning of the war he showed remarkable ability in organizing the American Field Service, a volunteer service for the transportation of the wounded of the French Armies at the front. Upon the entry of the United States into the war he turned over the efficient organization he had built to the United States Army Ambulance Service, and by his sound judgment and expert advice rendered invaluable aid in the development of that organization. To him is due, in a large measure, the credit for the increasingly valuable work done by the light ambulances at the front.

R—Massena, N. Y. B—Massena, N. Y. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

ANDREWS, AVERY D.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, American Expeditionary Forces, he has rendered most efficient service in connection with the organization and administration of the transportation department of the American Army in France and as deputy chief of utilities in the services of supply. Later, with marked ability, he headed the important administrative section of the general staff of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
For services as commander of the 105th Infantry throughout the active operations of the 27th Division in Belgium and France, during the Ypres-Lys and Somme offensives, his energetic and zealous qualities of leadership demonstrated in battle were conspicuous.

Andrews, Lincoln C....R—Seneca Falls, N. Y. B—Owatonna, Minn. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He originated in military training the analysis and study of the qualities of military leadership and the psychology of military training, and by his lectures and writings did much to make possible the successful training of thousands of civilians into efficient military leaders. He served in turn as organizer of the 304th Cavalry, as commander of the 172d Infantry Brigade, as assistant to assistant chief of staff, G-5, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, and as deputy provost marshal general, in all of which capacities he held positions of great responsibility and rendered exceptionally meritorious services.

Andrews, Schofield...
R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Governors Island, N. Y.
G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, 90th Division, from July, 1918, until June, 1919, he displayed sound judgment and exceptional ability in the administration and operation of that section of the division staff. By his loyal devotion to duty, marked tactical ability, and excellent military attainments he contributed materially to the success attained by the division in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as Acting Judge Advocate General of the Army, whose broad and constructive interpretation of law and regulations have greatly facilitated the conduct of the war and military administration.

R—Jeffersonville, Ind. B—Jeffersonville, Ind. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

ARMSTRONG, FRANK S.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
With painstaking efforts he reorganized and placed the Remount Service upon an efficient basis, overcoming innumerable difficulties and finding ways and means of supplying combatant divisions with animals when the sources of supply were very limited. In this great task he showed qualities meriting the highest praise.

ARNOLD, LESLIE P... R-New London, Conn. B-New Haven, Conn. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925. Act of Congress Feb. 25, 1925. First lieutenant, Air Service, U. S. Army.
Lientenant Arnold as assistant pilot of airplane No. 2, the Chicago, and adjutant and finance officer of the U. S. Army Air Service around-the-world flight from Apr. 6, 1924, to Sept. 28, 1924, displayed rare organizing ability, initiative, and resourcefulness in carrying out these duties, in addition to the alternate piloting of airplane No. 2 throughout the voyage. His technical skill, broad vision, business experience, high personal courage, and untiring energy contributed in a very decided manner to the successful accomplishment of this pioneer flight of airplanes around the world. In the splendid performance of these arduous and trying duties he conspicuously contributed in an accomplishment of the first magnitude of the military forces of the United States.

ability.

Lieutenant colonel (Field Artillery), Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. He commanded the 121st Field Artillery during the Aisne-Marne, Oise-Aisne, and Meuse-Argonne offensives with distinction. In addition he served as chief of heavy artillery of the 57th Field Artillery Brigade in those offensives. His high professional skill, sound judgment, leadership, and devotion to duty were material factors in the successful operations of the artillery forces with which he served.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As director of the Army Sanitary School, by his individual energy, ability, and vision, he placed at the disposal of the American Expeditionary Forces the experience and training facilities of the nedical services of the French Armies and of the British Expeditionary Forces in France. He organized a system for the training of officers of the medical service of the Army of the United States in their duties at the front which contributed to a remarkable degree to the success attained in the treatment and evacuation of battle casualties

ATKINS, JOSEPH A....R.—Atlanta, Ga.
B.—Atlanta, Ga.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with the 3d Division as assistant chief of staff, G-3, from December, 1917, until March, 1918; acting chief of staff and G-3, from March, 1918, to May 27, 1918; G-3, from May 28 to June 11, and from Sept. 1 to 19, 1918; and as G-3, 36th Division, from September, 1918, to March, 1919. By his tireless energy, devotion to duty and high military attainments, he contributed in a large measure to the successes attained by the commands with which he served.

Atkisson, Earl J....R.—Fowler, Calif.
B.—Broken Bow, Nebr.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Engineers, U. S. Army.

He organized and trained the 1st Gas Regiment in a type of warfare new to the American Army and directed the operations of that regiment with marked distinction during the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives of the First American Army.

ATTERBURY, WILLIAM W.R.—Radnor, Pa.
B.—New Albany, Ind.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As director general of transportation, in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles he organized and brought to a high state of efficiency the transportation service of American Expeditionary Forces. The successful operation of this most important service, upon which the movements and supply of the combat troops were dependent, was largely due to his energy, foresight, and *Aubert, Lillian_______ R—Shreveport, La. B—West Baton Rouge, La. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923. Chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, in the office of the Surgeon General during the World War, she rendered services of the highest order. By her devotion to duty and great efficiency at a time when members of the Army Nurse Corps were being enrolled, equipped, and assigned to both overseas and home service she made an invaluable contribution to the work of the Medical Department in caring for the siek. She was taken ill while on duty Oct. 2, 1918, and died Oct. 6, 1918, of pneumonia, in line of duty, as a result of overwork.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to mother, Mrs. Grace Aubert.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army As Chief of Artillery of the 5th Corps in the operations against the enemy in November, 1918, by his exceptional skill as an artillerist he was largely responsible for the rupture of the enemy's position and the breaking of his resistance.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

He served as assistant to, and at intervals as the coast defense commander, coast defenses of eastern New York from August to December, 1917; in command of the 57th Regiment, Coast Artillery Corps (155 G. P. F.), from December, 1917, until Oct. 16, 1918, taking part in the St. Mihiel and Meuschrgonne offensives; and then in command of Replacement Battalious. Army Artillery, from Oct. 17 to Nov. 17, 1918. He displayed at all times sound judgment, great energy, and a thorough knowledge of his duties, all of which were manifested in the high degree of efficiency attained by his regiment in organization, training, and active operations.

Austin, Fred T.....R.—Boston, Mass. B.—Hancoek, Vt. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921. Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services while in command of Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky., and particularly during the period that said camp was subject to a severe epidemic of influenza.

 Major, chaplain, U. S. Army.

In organizing and administering numerous welfare activities connected with the port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., and New York City, whereby provision was made for the comfort and pleasure of enlisted men.

Colonel, General Staff, U. S. Army.

His services as chief of the division of statistics, Council of National Defense, as chief of the statistics branch of the General Staff, and chief statistical officer of the American Commission to Negotiate Peace have been conspicuous. He established the statistical division at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, and the statistics branch at Headquarters, Service of Supply, American Expeditionary Forces.

BABBITT, EDWIN B.
R-Washington Territory.
B-Watervliet Arseual, N. Y.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He commanded the 4th Field Artillery Brigade from its organization to the close of hostilities, participating with marked distinction in the actions on the Vesle River and in the St. Miniel and the Meuse-Argonne offensives. The skillful manner in which he pushed forward the artillery units in support of the infantry was a material factor in the successes of these campaigns. In the Meuse-Argonne offensive he had under his command, in addition to the 4th Artillery Brigade, the 10th Field Artillery, the 18th Field Artillery, the 205th French R. A. C., and the 2d Battalion, 308th French R. A. C.

BABCOCK, CONRAD S....R-New York, N. Y.
B-Stonington, Conn.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.

As post commandant at general headquarters, he served with distinction. Later he commanded the 35-th Infantry throughout the successful operations against the St. Mihiel salient and those of the Argonne-Meuse in which his regiment participated and subsequently when it formed part of the Army of Occupation. At all times he displayed military attainments of the highest order. His unflagging energy and marked tactical ability were demonstrated in the successful accomplishment by his regiment of all missions assigned to it even under the most trying conditions. His service was of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

BARCOCK, WALTER C.....R-Boston, Mass. B-Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
In command of the 310th Infantry he displayed marked ability alike in its organization and training and in the field. In offensive operations against the enemy he led his command with exceptional judgment and tactical ability, showing himself always possessed of a full grasp of the situation and its needs, and keeping his higher commanders at all times informed of the conditions as he learned them by personal reconnaissance. He was untiring in energy and devotion to the important tasks assigned him, acting unhesitatingly and successfully in times of emergency.

Bach, Christian A.....R.—St. Paul, Minn.
B.—St. Martin, Minn.
G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.

As chief of staff of the 4th Division since its organization he has performed his duties with the utmost loyalty, excellent judgment, and tireless energy, both during the training period and in actual combat. To his energy and military ability is due in no small degree the excellent record of his division in the fighting on the Vesle River and during the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

BACON, RAYMOND F.....R—Pittsburgh, Pa.
B—Muncie, Ind.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
As chief of the technical division, Chemical Warfare Service, he displayed untiring energy, marked scientific attainments, and a comprehensive technical knowledge in the organization and operation of the laboratory units and proving-ground tests, thereby aiding materially in the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He served with great credit and distinction as post commandant of General Headquarters and as aid-de-camp to the Commander in Chief. By his untiring efforts as chief of the American Mission at British General Headquarters he has performed with marked ability innumerable duties requiring great tact and address.

Major, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. As assistant to the Chief of Field Artillery from Feb. 8, 1918, to Jan. 2, 1919, he planned, instituted, and supervised the system by which an adequate number of properly qualified officers were secured for the Field Artillery.

BAER, JOSEPH A.....R-Reading, Pa.
B-Kutztown, Pa.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army.
During the active operations of the armies in the field in the St. Mibiel salient and in the Argonne offensive he revealed marked ability in the inspection of conduct and methods and showed military tactical knowledge of a high order.

BAGBY, PHILIP H.....R-Richmond, Va. B-Richmond, Va. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

He served as intelligence liaison officer between British General Headquarters and American General Headquarters from September to December, 1918, as director of Army Intelligence School, Langres, France, December, 1918, and January, 1919; as assistant, G-2, Third Army, February to July, 1919; then as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-2, American Forces in Germany. Charged at all times with duties of a most important nature, in the performance of which he manifested steadfast loyalty and military ability of a high order, rendering services of signal worth. His comprehensive grasp of all important phases of interallied relations, as well as his unusual ability in delicate and vital matters, were of the greatest value. His rare powers of discernment, his tact and sound judgment contributed materially to the success of the commands with which he served.

Bailey, Charles J.....R.—Jamestown, N. Y. B.—Tamaqua, Pa. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.
He commanded the 81st Division with distinction throughout its operations, beginning Oct. 1, 1918. The excellent conduct of this division was due, in a large measure, to his great military knowledge, energy, and zeal. He has shown qualities of able leadership and has rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of the division of neuropsychiatry, Surgeon General's Office, in which capacity he displayed exceptional zeal, foresight, and good judgment in organizing, developing, and directing neuropsychiatric work in the Army on a high plane of efficiency.

BAIRD, CLAIR W.R.—Punxsutawney, Pa.B.—Burton, Ohio.G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant to the Chief of Coast Artillery during the entire period of the war and as chief of the personnel section from Sept. 24, 1918, he displayed foresight, excellent judgment, and marked ability in the preparation and execution of plans for the effective accomplishment of the duties assigned to the Coast Artillery Corps in the operations in France, thereby rendering services of great value to the Government.

BAKER, ASHER CARTER.....R—Matawan, N. J.
B—Cedar Rapids, Iowa.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Captain, U. S. Navy, retired.

Voluntarily returning to active service after retirement, he served with distinction as naval representative with the Transportation Department. Through his extensive naval experience, untiring zeal, and intimate knowledge of the French language and customs, he rendered services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

BAKER, FRANK C.....R.—Washington, D. C. B.—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of Evacuation Hospital No. 6, at Chateau-Thierry, from June to August, 1918, Colonel Baker so promptly arranged his hospital under most difficult conditions and with great resourcefulness and good judgment made such use of the inadequate means at his disposal that he was able to receive and evacuate after splendid treatment and in perfect order a large number of wounded from the Marne offensive at a time when that section of France was greatly demoralized.

BAKER, WALTER C.....R.—Chester, Pa. B.—Chester, Pa. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant and executive assistant to the Chief of Transportation Service from Apr. 15, 1918, to Oct. 4, 1920. In this position he demonstrated unusual executive and administrative ability, sound judgment and untring energy, and contributed in a marked degree to the successful operations of the Transportation Service.

Lieutenant colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
For especially meritorious and distinguished service while serving as military attaché at Tokyo, Japan.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

In organizing and directing the bakery service of the Quartermaster Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, including the personal supervision of mechanical bakeries at Is-sur-Tille, Bordeaux, Brest, and St. Nazaire, France. By his experience, initiative, and untermitting efforts he brought this important service to a high degree of efficiency in training of personnel, equipment of units, and the prompt supply of soft white bread to the armies of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

 Major, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As executive officer, statistical division, Adjutant General's Office, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed outstanding administrative and executive ability coordinating the work of various departments of that division and maintaining haison with the personnel adjutants of the various headquarters of the American Expeditionary Forces and with the central records office in Bourges, France. With tireless energy and unremitting devotion to duty he met the grave responsibilities of his difficult position with signal distinction, contributing markedly to the successful operations of the Adjutant General's Department, American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As its commanding officer he organized and successfully conducted the Second Corps school. Successively in command of a battalion, regiment, brigade, and division, he participated in the operations of American troops from Cantigny to those of the Meuse-Argonne. He later commanded the Army school at Langres, at all times bringing to bear upon his duties his sound judgment, high military attainments, and untiring zeal.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He served in turn as chief of staff of the 27th Division, as commander of the 58th Infantry Brigade, and as provost marshal general of the American Expeditionary Forces, in all of which capacities he displayed exceptional ability. His foresight, broad experience, and sound judgment resulted in the efficient reorganization and administration of the important Provost Marshal General's Department.

Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

She served with exceptional ability as chief operator in the Signal Corps exchange at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, and later in a similar capacity at 1st Army headquarters. By untiring devotion to her exacting duties under trying conditions she did much to assure the success of the telephone service during the operations of the 1st Army against the St. Mihiel salient and to the north of Verdum.

Barber, Charles W....R.—Woodbury, N. J. B.—Woodbury, N. J. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, and later as Chief of Staff, Base Section No. 2, during the period of its reorganization he displayed exceptional administrative ability and was in a large measure responsible for the efficient organization created for the repatriation of troops through the port of Bordeaux rendering services of signal worth,

BARBER, JAMES FRANK.....R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Haddonfield, N. J.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
While commanding the 304th Regiment of Engineers of the 79th Division, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, by his marked ability and tircless energy his regiment was enabled to further the combat operations of his division, frequently building roads and bridges under fire. Charged with the duty of removing enemy mines and traps in front of the right of the 1st Army, he successfully accomplished a difficult and dangerous duty immediately following the Armistice, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

BARE, WALTER E....R.—Gadsden, Ala. B.—Lexington, Va. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921. Lieutenant colonel, 167th Infantry, 42d Division, U. S. Army. For services while in command of the 167th Infantry, operating near Cote-de-Chatillon and Landres-et-St. Georges in the Meuse-Argonne offensive during the month of October, 1918.

BARNES, HARRY C....R—Guthrie, Okla.
B—Little Rock, Ark.
G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 30th Artillery Brigade he planned and directed the operations of that unit with great skill and ability during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. As chief of staff of the Railway Artillery Reserve he rendered valuable services in the organization and operations of the Railway Artillery units.

BARNES, JOHN B.....R—Highland, W. Va. B—Pennsboro, W. Va. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
While serving successively as G-3 of the 5th and 80th Divisions from June until November, 1918, and then as G-3, 9th Army Corps, he rendered services of great value. By his tireless energy, foresight, sound tactical judgment, and intelligent cooperation he contributed largely to the successes of the operations of those units.

BARNES, JOSEPH F R-Washington, D. C. B-Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As corps adjutant of the 2d Army Corps, by his able management and complete knowledge of all details of the Adjutant General's Department, he established and operated with remarkable success the numerous branches of the Adjutant General's Office. Later as adjutant general, First Army, he organized with rare initiative and administered with marked ability the operations of his important office, rendering services of inestimable value.

BARNEY, JAMES P.....R.—Townsend, Va. B.—Dayton, Ohio. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, General Staff Corps, U.S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the 92d Division, he organized the entire system of supply for the division. Due to his administrative ability, exceptional foresight, and tireless energy, he handled numerous difficult problems of supply and transportation with great efficiency and success.

BARNHARDT, GEORGE C..... R-Norwood, N. C. B-Gold Hill, N. C. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923. Brigadier General, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 28th Infantry, he handled his regiment so brilliantly under severe conditions during the St. Mihiel offensive, Sept. 12 and 13, 1918, and during the battle of the Meuse-Argonne, Oct. 1 to 11, 1918, that the regiment demonstrated an unusually high degree of efficiency and morale. He repeatedly displayed superior tactical judgment, and by his exceptional ability leadership, and devotion to duty, he effectively executed the most difficult missions assigned to his regiment. Later, in command of the 2d Infantry Brigade and then the 178th Infantry Brigade, he again displayed high efficiency and military attainments, thereby rendering with all his commands important services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

BARNUM, MALVERN-HILL R—New York, N. Y. B—Syracuse, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier General, U. S. Army.
He commanded with marked success the 183d Infantry Brigade from its organization to the close of active operations. The conduct of his brigade in the St. Die and Marbache sectors was indicative of his good leadership. As a member of the interallied armistice board he has performed his many exacting duties with marked ability, address, and sound judgment, rendering services of the highest character to the Government.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As department commander, central department, he handled many difficult problems arising in that department during the war with rare judgment, tact, and great skill.

Director, War Industries Board.

For services in the organization and administration of the War Industries Board and in the coordination of allied purchases in the United States. By establishing a broad and comprehensive policy for the supervision and control of the raw materials, manufacturing facilities, and distribution of the products of industry, he stimulated the production of war supplies, coordinated the needs of the military service and the civilian population, and contributed alike to the completeness and speed of the mobilization and equipment of the military forces and the continuity of their supply.

 Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He supervised with tact and sound judgment the establishment of the important base ports of St. Nazaire and Brest. Later, while he was adjutant general of the Services of Supply, his splendid knowledge of administration, his energy, and personal attention to duties were shown by the efficiency of his office, which met fully the diversified demands made upon it.

BASKETTE, ALVIN K.

R—Nashville, Tenn.
B—Nashville, Tenn.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

BATTLE, MARION S.
R—Tarboro, N. C.
B—Edgecombe County, N. C.
G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

BAYNE, HUGH A.
R—Bronxville, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
B—Rementally to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As assistant judge advocate of the First Army, he efficiently of the highest order, and by the Sund Judgendocate of the First Army, he efficiently set a Beacham, Joseph W., Jr...

R—Brooklyn, N. Y.

B—Brooklyn, N. Y.

G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-1, 42d Division, from May 10 to Aug. 25, 1918, by his extraordinary energy, initiative, exceptional executive and administrative ability, he rendered valuable services in overcoming many difficult problems of supply under most trying conditions, contributing largely to the successes of the division. Later, as chief of staff, 6th Division, from Aug. 26, 1918, by his extraordinary energy, initiative, exceptional executive and administrative ability, he rendered valuable services in overcoming many difficult problems of supply under most trying conditions, contributing largely to the successes of the division. Later, as chief of staff, 6th Division, from Aug. 26, 1918, until May 25, 1919, by his intimate knowledge of staff duties, his clear conception of the requirements of troops of the line and by his devotion to duty and marked ability he contributed in a large measure to the progress of the division, thereby rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

BEARSS, HIRAM I.

R—Peru, Ind.
B—Peru, Ind.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Colonel, U. S. Marine Corps.

He commanded with distinction the 102d Infantry, achieving notable successes in the active operations in which that regiment was engaged. By his untiring energy and dauntless courage in overcoming the numerous difficulties confronting him he gave proof of military leadership of a high order.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He showed extraordinary efficiency in directing the staff work of the 32d Division at the Second Battle of the Marne and in the operations near Soissons and north of Verdun, France, from July to October, 1918. In the preparations for battle and in the reorganizations between-battles, he ably handled the many difficult situations that presented themselves.

BECKHAM, DAVID Y....R-Bardstown, Ky.
B-Bardstown, Ky.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army, As officer in charge of war risk insurance in the War Department, he organized, perfected, and directed in a highly efficient manner the system of handling insurance and other relief features of the war risk insurance act. To his tact, vision, marked ability, and loyal devotion to duty is largely due the success attained in the handling of a tremendous amount of business and the insuring of more than 90 per cent of the United States Army.

BEEBE, ROYDEN E... R—Burlington, Vt. B—South Burlington, Vt. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
For services as chief of staff, 82d Division; assistant chief of staff, G-3, 2d Division; and assistant chief of staff, G-3, 1st Army Corps.

BEEUWKES, HENRY R-New York, N. Y. B-Jamesburg, N. J. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
He rendered especially valuable services as inspector of hospitalization of troops in the field. By tircless energy in the performance of his duties he assisted greatly in raising the efficiency of this service and in bettering the facilities for the care and evacuation of the wounded of our armies.

Behn, Sosthenes R—Havana, Cuba. B—St. Thomas, A. W. I. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
He served in turn as liaison officer with the French Department of Posts and Telegraphs, as executive to the chief signal officer, as commander of a field signal battalion, and as assistant to the chief signal officer, First Army. In all of these capacities he demonstrated marked ability and performed exceptionally meritorious service.

G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

*Bell, J. Franklin. B—Shelbyville, Ky.
B—Shelbyville, Ky.
G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.
Medal of honor and distinguishedservice cross also awarded.

BELLINGER, JOHN B ... R—Charleston, S. C. B—Charleston, S. C. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

Benedict, Jay L.... R—Hastings, Nebr. B—Hastings, Nebr. G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

BENNION, HOWARD S. R-Vernon, Utah. B-Vernon, Utah. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Benson, William Shepherd.....R-Macon, Ga.
B-Macon, Ga. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

BENTON, GUY POTTER, Dr. R-Burlington, Vt. B-Kenton, Ohio. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Commander, U. S. Navy.
For services in connection with the Naval Overseas Transportation Service.
His successful organization and administration of this service contributed greatly to the successful operation of the American forces abroad.

Major general, U.S. Army

lajor general, U.S. Atmy.

e led his command, with distinction, in the offensive operations with the British which resulted in the capture of Hamel and Hamel Woods, and in the fighting on the Meuse that gained the villages of Marchéville, St. History, and the Meuse that gained the villages of Marchéville, St. History, and production the Meuse that gained the villages of Marchéville, St. History, and production of headers in the control of the control o and a portion of Bois d'Harville. He displayed a high order of leadership in the Argonne-Meuse offensive, when his division attacked and eaptured the strongly fortified Bois-de-Forges. The successful operations of the division which he trained and commanded in combat were greatly influenced by his energy and abilities as a commander.

Major general, U. S. Army.
For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service during the war as division, cantonment, and department commander.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. J. Franklin Bell.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U.S. Army.
As department quartermaster, Philippine Department, a position of great responsibility, he administered the services of transportation and of the supply of the troops serving in the Philippines and China in a markedly successful manner. He originated and executed the supplying of the Siberian American Expeditionary Forces and the purchasing of foods in the Orient, and aided the Philippine government in its problems. He rendered services of much

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

He served in the office of the Chief Signal Officer, American Expeditionary Forces, as assistant director of supplies from July, 1918, until December, 1918, and director of supplies from December, 1918, until September, 1919. By his sound judgment, unfailing energy, and unusual ability he rendered services of the greatest value in both capacities. He met the many military commercial problems which confronted him with a broad vision and solved them with unvarying judgment and skill, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces in positions of great responsibilit v.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. In the organization and administration of the procurement and discharge section of the personnel branch, his energy, intelligent application, and good judgment have contributed greatly to the solution of the many difficult personnel problems pertaining to the procurement and discharge of officers, and the building up of the officers' Reserve Corps.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As chief camouflage officer, American Expeditionary Forces, from October, 1917, until February, 1919, in a position of great responsibility he rendered conspicuous service in an entirely new field of endeavor. By his tireless energy, sound judgment, and marked technical ability he organized and placed the work of the camouflage section on a practical and highly efficient basis and directed its functions in a most satisfactory manner, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Admiral, U. S. Navy. As Chief of Naval Operations, his close cooperation and assistance in that position did much toward the successful outcome of the combined operation of the Army and Navy overseas.

Director, Educational work in American Expeditionary Forces

As director in charge of the educational work undertaken in the Third Army of the American Expeditionary Forces, by his marked ability, untiring energy, and loyal devotion to his task, he contributed in a large measure to the successful results obtained in this vast undertaking. Through his great work among 10,000 illiterate soldiers over 8,000 of them were taught to read and write. By his efforts he has rendered services of particular worth to the American Expeditions. to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, 115th Field Artillery, 30th Division, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 115th Field Artillery during its organization and training he displayed marked elliciency, great resourcefulness, and military attainments of a high order. He commanded a grouping of his regiment and other French and American Artillery units in the Meuse-Argonne offensive; also a grouping of his regiment and other 155-millimeter howingers in the operation of the Second Army, and by his skilled and energetic handling of his command played an important part in the success of these operations.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. As judge advocate of the American Expeditionary Forces he organized this important department and administered its affairs with conspicuous efficiency from the date of the arrival in France of the first American combat troops. It is marked legal ability and sound judgment were important factors in the splendid work of his department, and he at all times handled with success the various military and international problems that arose as a result of the operation of our armies.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He served with distinction as chief surgeon of the Third Army Corps, where he solved important problems of sanitation and evacuation with conspicuous success. He showed marked administrative ability during the final phases of the Argonne-Meuse offensive, when, through his sound judgment and effi-cient supervision of the medical and sanitary services under his direction, many lives were saved, thereby rendering valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces. BIDDLE, JOHN.....R—Grosse Ile, Mich.
B—Detroit, Mich.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Major general, U. S. Army. In command of American troops in England, by his tact and diplomacy in handling intricate problems, he made possible the successful transshipment of many thousands of men to France. To his executive ability the efficient handling, control, and dispatch of casual troops through England is largely Lieutanant colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as intelligence officer, in charge in the city of New York during the entire period of American participation in the World War. His ability as an organizer, his broad experience in large affairs, contributed largely to the failure of the enemy to thwart our military efforts in the city of New York by espionage, sabotage, and propaganda.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Nicholas Biddle. *BIDDLE, NICHOLAS.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Fort Whipple, Ariz.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
For services in the organization and administration of the division of reconstruction of the Medical Department. BINGHAM, ERNEST G.R.—Talladega, Ala.B.—Talladega, Ala.G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief surgeon of the Paris district he most efficiently directed the coordination of the work of the hospitals and hospital and ambulance trains in the region of the Paris group during the Second Battle of the Marne. By his untiring zeal and his exact understanding of conditions he most ably handled the limited hospital resources of the district of Paris, permitting the clearing of the battle field of the wounded and the proper provision for their care. In all these tasks he showed professional attainments of the highest order unflagging energy, and great devotion to duty. Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As principal assistant in the operations section, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he has by his thorough military knowledge, loyalty, and devotion to duty materially assisted in attaining the success of that section of the General Staff. Birnie, Upton, Jr R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Carlisle, Pa. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920. BISHOP, HARRY G...R.—Goshen, Ind.
B.—Grand Rapids, Mich.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While in command of the 3d Field Artillery Brigade, during the battles of the Argonne-Meuse, and in the subsequent advance to Sedan, by his skill and able leadership, he rendered exceptionally valuable services. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services as secretary of the General Staff and in the organization and coordination of matters relating to the commissioned personnel of the Army. Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

At Orleans, France. By his great ability, initiative, and tact he enlisted the sympathies of the French authorities and people, obtained buildings, organized and enlarged base hospital, and contributed materially to the care of the sick and wounded during the operations of 1918. He has rendered services of much value. This efficient hospitalization was later adopted as a model by the French medical service. BISHOP, WILLIAM H....R—New York, N. Y. B—Jackport, N. Y. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As director of the Army General Staff College at Langres, he organized and conducted this institution during the first and second courses. Although he was without adequate material or personnel, by the energy and great effort he put forth he established a school which provided our armies with staff officers in a minimum of time. awarded. Major general, Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army. For services in planning and administering the engineer and military railway services during the war. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief consultant for the district of Paris, and commanding officer of Red Cross Hospital No. 2, he efficiently standardized surgical procedures, especially in the recent methods of treating fractures. His remarkable talent has materially reduced the suffering and loss of life among our wounded. Captain, U. S. Navy. For services as chief of staff of the commander, cruiser and transport fleet. BLAMER, DEWITT ... R—Independence, Iowa. B—Independence, Iowa. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
For services in connection with the control and operation of the telephone and telegraph service of the American Expeditionary Forces. BLANCK, CARROLL T....R—Los Angeles, Calif. B—Greensburg, Pa. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

BLANDING, ALBERT H..... R—Bartow, Fla. B—Lyons, Iowa. G. O. No. 118, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services while commanding general of the 53d Infantry Brigade of the 27th Division throughout the entire period of active operations.

BLISS, ELMER JARED.
R—Boston, Mass.
B—Wrentham, Mass.
G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

BLISS, TASKER H.
R.—Chester, Pa.
B.—Lewisburg, Pa.
G. O. No. 136, W. D., 1918.

BLOOR, ALFRED W.... R—Austin, Tex. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

BOAK, SEIBERT D..... R-West Virginia. B-Virginia. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

BOLLES, FRANK C.... R—Rolla, Mo. B—Elgin, Ill. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service cross and oakleaf cluster also awarded.

*Bolling, Raynal C.
R.—Greenwich, Conn.
B.—Hot Springs, Ark.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

BOOTH, EVANGELINE C. R-New York, N. Y. B-England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

BOOTH, EWING E.....R—Pueblo, Colo.
B—Bowers Mills, Mo.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army,
As executive officer in the office of the director general of transportation, American Expeditionary Forces, he was charged with the responsibility for the organization of the personnel and the administration of the Transportation Corps. His sound judgment, high administrative and executive ability, untiring energy and devotion to duty constituted highly important assets of the Transportation Corps and contributed materially to the success of that organization during its services with the American Expeditionary Forces.

The formulation and methods adopted which gave to the U. S. Army unexcelled methods of shoe procurement and distribution were brought about largely through his efforts. As a result of the operation of these methods the efficiency and comfort of the marching soldier were greatly increased.

General, U. S. Army.

For his most exceptional services as Assistant Chief of Staff, acting Chief of Staff, and Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army, in which important positions his administrative ability and professional attainments were of great value to our armies. As chief of the American section of the Supreme War Council he has taken an important part in the shaping of the policies that have brought victory to our cause.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
In command of the 142d Infantry, 36th Division, including the period of its reorganization and training and during its combat operations in France, he displayed untiring energy, administrative and executive ability, and sound tactical judgment, these qualities, coupled with unremitting devotion to duty and high qualities of leadership, contributing in a conspicuous way to the success of the 36th Division in its operations against the enemy.

Colonel, Dental Corps, U. S. Army.

As director of the dental section of the Army Sanitary School at Langres, France, from January to December, 1918, he displayed organizing and training ability and accomplishments of the highest order in successfully directing the classification and training of dental officers for field service, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He commanded, with keen tactical ability, the 39th Infantry throughout the various campaigns in which the Fourth Division participated until the early stages of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, when he was wounded. By his exceptional ability and energetic leadership he proved to be an important factor in the successes of his command during its active operations against the enemy.

Colonel, Air Service, U.S. Army. His service to the United States aviation was distinguished for an accurate and comprehensive grasp of aviation matters; for a sound and far-sighted conception of the measures needed to establish an efficient American air service in Europe; for initiative and resourcefulness in attacking the problems of a young air service; for brilliant capacity in arranging affairs with foreign governments; for boldness and vigor in executing determined policies. In all of these he has rendered service of great value to the Government. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Anna P. Bolling.

Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army. As assistant to The Adjutant General, American Expeditionary Forces, he was charged with the important duty of verifying, preparing, and distributing all orders and bulletins issued from General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. all orders and bulletins issued from General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. To his painstaking efforts are due the accuracy with which these orders were drawn and the promptness with which they were distributed. He organized and efficiently supervised the administration of The Adjutant General's printing plant at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. To his untiring zeal is largely due the success with which it handled a tremendous volume of printed matter, rendering important service to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Commander of the Salvation Army in the United States. She has been tireless in her devotion to her manifold duties. The contribution of the Salvation Army toward winning the war is conspicuous, and the results obtained were due in marked degree to the great executive ability of its commander.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. He commanded, with great ability and gallantry, the 8th Infantry Brigade in the operations which forced the reluctant enemy to evacuate Bois-du-Feys, Bois-de-Malaumont, Bois-de-Peut-du-Faux, and Bois-de-Force in September and October, 1918. His splended leadership was an important factor in these actions.

BOOTHE, EARLE

R—South Pasadena, Calif.

B—Derby, Conn.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army. He reorganized and administered with marked distinction the central records office of the Arnerican Expeditionary Forces. He handled the complex problems constantly arising with great discretion, displaying keen perception amid the maze of details involved in the reporting of casualties and changes of status of officers and soldiers. With unflagging energy and exceptional ability he performed a task of great magnitude.

BOUGHTON, EDWARD J......R-Denver, Colo.
B-Albany, N. Y.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. He served with distinction as head of the international law division in the office of the Judge Advocate, American Expeditionary Forces. Through his extensive knowledge of international law and diplomatic ability, he was of the utmost assistance in handling many delicate questions involving relations between the American and allied armies.

Bowditch, Edward, Jr....R.—Boston, Mass. B.—Albany, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
At the Army General Staff College, as assistant to G-3, headquarters 1st Army Corps, he rendered service of distinction, always showing himself able in time of emergency, aggressive in action, and possessed of tact and sound judgment. As aid-de-camp to the commander in chief, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed unlagging energy and devotion to duties of great importance. His military attainments were of marked character, proving of utmost assistance in the handling of difficult situations.

Lieutenant colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
From September, 1918, to June, 1919, as assistant chief of staff, G-3, 29th Division, he displayed the highest qualities of a staff officer and by his untring energy, good judgment, and devotion to duty he contributed in a marked degree to the success of his division.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He commanded the 17th Field Artillery and later the 2d Field Artillery Brigade in the active operations from July to November, 1918. The artillery support under his direction in the engagements near Chateau-Thierry, near Soissons, those in the St. Mihiel salient, Blanc Mont Ridge, and in the Meuse-Argonne region were important factors in the great successes gained.

 Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
As chief of a subsection of G-1 of the General Staff at General Headquarters he prepared the priority schedules for the movement of troops from the United States to France, directed replacements during active operations, prepared the order of battle data, and conserved many important and confidential records of the personnel of the American Expeditionary Forces. By his marked executive ability and loyal cooperation in all details of his important task he has given services of noteworthy consequence to the American Expeditionary Forces.

*Boyd, Carl_ R—Adairsville, Ga. B—Decora, Ga. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
As military attaché to the American Embassy in Paris he performed services of a most distinguished character. Later, as senior aid-de-camp to the commander in chief, he displayed remarkable ability, sound judgment, and tact in the many varied negotiations with the allied commanders and other allied officials, rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Annie P. Boyd.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As an instructor of the Army General Staff College, Langres, France, May to Sept. 15, 1913. he performed exceptionally meritorious services to the Government in instructing and preparing student officers to function in the important and responsible positions as General Staff officers with troops.

Brabson, Joe Reese R-Greenville, Tenn. B-Greenville, Tenn. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 28th Division during the Marne-Aisne offensive he rendered conspicuous service. Later as an instructor of the fourth course at the Army General Staff College at Langres he ably assisted in the instruction of a large number of officers recommended for General Staff duty. Upon completion of his duty at the staff school he served with marked success as G-5 of the Second Army.

BRADLEY, ALFRED E....R.—Frewsburg, N. Y. B.—Jamestown, N. Y. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As chief surgeon, American Expeditionary Forces, he gave his utmost energy and undivided devotion to the duty of planning and organizing the work of the Medical Department in France during a period fraught with untold difficulties. To his foresight was largely due the successful operations of that department when it was called upon to meet the demands that were subsequently made upon it.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as chief of the training and instruction branch, War Plans Division, General Staff, in initiating and standardizing the training and instruction of the Army during its formative period.

Brees, Herrert J.... R-Laramie, Wyo. B-Laramie, Wyo. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

He served with distinction as chief of staff of the 91st Division throughout its training period and during the greater part of its active operations. Ilis marked administrative ability was reflected in the successes of this division during the first phases of the Meuse-Argonne operations. Later, as chief of staff of the 7th Army Corps, he rendered invaluable services in perfecting the necessary organization for the march into the German territory, overcoming grave difficulties in securing supplies and equipment.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

BRETT, SERENO E .. R—Corvallis, Oreg. B—Portland, Oreg. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922. Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Brewster, André W.R.—Philadelphia, Pa.B.—Hoboken, N. J.G. O. No. 12., W. D., 1919. Medal of honor also awarded.

BRICKER, EDWIN D R—Chambersburg, Pa. B—Chambersburg, Pa. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

BRISTOI, ARTHUR LEROY, Jr.....R.—Charleston, S. C.
B.—Charleston, S. C.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

BROOKE, ROGER ... R—Sandy Spring, Md. B—Sandy Spring, Md. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

BROOKINGS, ROBERT S.R.—St. Louis, Mo.B.—Cecil County, Md.G.O.No.15, W.D., 1923.

Chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of the Toul Hospital Center, France, during the World War, she contributed largely to the successful cure of over 10,000 sick and wounded by her skillful, tactful, and able direction of the work of the nurses at this

Major, chaplain, U. S. Army.
As senior headquarters chaplain, he organized the chaplains' school and estadlished a schematic system of religious effort, enabling all chaplains throughout France to further those excellent results which have marked their duties annongst the troops. By his loyal spirit of cooperation, his marked ability, and by his masterful attainments he has rendered services of most conspicuous merit and lasting value to the American Government.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He commanded the 160th Infantry Brigade with particular efficiency in the markedly successful operations resulting in the occupation of the Dannevoux sector in October, 1918. In the actions near Imecourt and Buzancy in November his brigade broke the enemy's resistance. Due to his masterful ability and brilliant leadership, these operations proved a crowning success.

Major, Tank Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief instructor at tank center, American Expeditionary Forces, he organized and trained the 327th Battalion (Light) Tanks. Later, as commander of the 326th Battalion (Light) Tanks, he vigorously and skillfully led it in the St. Mihiel offensive over a terrain rendered most difficult through four years of enemy intrenching. Succeeding to the command of the 1st Brigade, Tank Corps, in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, he ably, devotedly, and courageously commanded his brigade from Sept. 26 to Nov. 10, 1918; during this period of 46 days his brigade supported eight of the divisions of the First Army in 18 separate attacks. By his brilliant professional attainments, Army in 18 separate attacks. By his brilliant professional attainments, technical ability, and unusual leadership he contributed in a marked manner to the success of the First Army and rendered most conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He organized and administered with marked ability the Inspector General's Department of the American Expeditionary Forces, and his soldierly characteristics and unceasing labors influenced greatly the attainment of efficiency in the American Army in France.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As chief ordnance purchasing officer and later as ordnance representative on the general purchasing board, he conducted negotiations with marked success for material needed to supplement the supply from the United States. He worked tirelessly and with unflagging energy to the end that there would be no shortage in supplies sent to the troops at the front. At all times exercising sound judgment and discernment in times of emergency, he achieved marked SUCCESSES.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, first section of the 2d Division, and later as assistant chief of staff, first section of the 6th Army Corps, he performed creditably duties of great importance in connection with the services of supply, communication, and the movements of troops of his units, rendering services of value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services as chief of the remount service, American Expeditionary Forces; as colonel of the 311th and 304th Field Artillery, the training of which units he developed to a high degree, commanding the latter unit in action with distinction; as commanding general of the 18th and 8th Field Artillery Brigades, which units he developed to a high state of efficiency; and as commanding general of Camp Knox, Ky., during and after the period of demobilization.

Commander, U. S. Navy.

For services as flag secretary to the commander, Cruiser and Transport Fleet.

His close cooperation with the Army authorities in the handling of troop ships contributed greatly to the successful outcome of our oversea operations.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
From September, 1917, until December, 1918, as senior instructor in charge of the educational training of medical officers and enlisted men of the Medical Department at the Medical Officers' Training Camp, Camp Greenleaf, Ga., he directed and coordinated the work of its several special schools with great efficiency. By his untiring efforts, devotion to his duties, and brilliant professional ability he was largely responsible for the successful training of 10,000 officers and 70,000 men, thereby rendering conspicuous service to the Government in a position of great responsibility. ment in a position of great responsibility.

Chairman, price fixing committee, War Industries Board.
For services in connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War. As a member of the board he rendered, through his broad vision, distinguished capacity, and business ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and applications for the committee of the control of mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. Through his untiring efforts and devotion to duty as committee of the board he contributed markedly to the success of the supply systems of the War Department.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as medical consultant of the First Army and later as chief medical consultant of the Second Army by the application of principles of prevention and treatment which resulted in a marked reduction in the complications and mortality of influenza and other epidemic diseases and lessened the strain on the evacuation service already overtaxed by battle casualties, through early segregation and hospitalization within the front areas. After the armistice, Colonel Brooks, in addition to these duties, was placed in charge of all hospitals of the Second Army, where, by reorganizing the hospital service and establishing courses of instruction and clinical concernees for medical officers, he largely contributed to the betterment of the medical service of the Second Army with a consequent saving of the lives of many American and French soldiers.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As lieutenant colonel, 313th Infantry, from July, 1917, until July, 1918, throughout its organization and training period he displayed marked efficiency. From August until December, 1918, he commanded the 368th Infantry with indefatigable energy, exceptional initiative, and resourcefulness in all its combat operations. Later, as commanding officer, 58th Infantry, as military commander of Coblenz, Germany, and as officer in charge of civil affairs in the area occupied by Third Army troops, he performed a difficult and responsible task with conspicuous success, maintaining at all times a high state of discipline and morale among the troops and civilian population, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces, in positions of great responsibility.

BROWN, HOBART B R—New York, N. Y. B—East Rutherford, N. J. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922. Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

From September, 1917, until April, 1918, by his broad experience and sound judgment he organized and commanded with exceptional ability the 104th Military Police. From April to October, 1918, as lieutenant colonel, 116th Infantry, and colonel, 114th Infantry, he showed himself to be resourceful and energetic and at all times equal to any emergency which arose. As deputy provost marshal general, American Expeditionary Forces, from October, 1918, to February, 1919, he displayed marked ability in a position of great responsibility, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brown, Katharine....R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of the Nantes Hospital Center, France, during the World War, she supervised and directed the nursing care of more than 4,000 patients. Her good judgment, tact, foresight, and energy resulted in most successful accomplishments on the part of the nursing force of that center.

BROWN, LYTLE_____ R—Nashville, Tenn. B—Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as director of the War Plans Division, for his skill and good judgment in handling the many and varied questions of training, organization, and policy that have been acted on by the War Plans Division during the war.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 2d Division he directed the details of the battles near Chateau-Thierry, Soissons, and at the St. Mihiel salient with great credit. Later, in command of the 3d Division in the Argonne-Mense offensive, at a most critical time, by his splendid judgment and energetic action, his division was able to carry to a successful conclusion the operations at Claire-Chênes and at Hill 294.

Licutenant colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief motor transport officer, Base Section No. 1, St. Nazaire, France, he was charged with the important duty of the receipt of motor transportation arriving from overseas, the general supervision and operation of large reception parks where motor vehicles were set up and made ready for service, and for the instruction and direction of the personnel of convoys distributing vehicles to division, corps, and army troops. The grave responsibilities thus placed upon Colonel Brown were carried out by him in a signally successful way. He displayed unusual initiative, sound judgment, and high professional skill, contributing in a very material way to the successful operations of the American forces in France.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
As inspector, Quartermaster Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, from November, 1917, until December, 1918, throughout the zone of operations, he displayed the greatest zeal, utmost devotion to duty, and indefatigable efforts. By his long experience, marked efficiency, and tireless energy he made highly intelligent inspections and recommendations, thereby enabling the Quartermaster Corps to improve the services of supply and the saving of a large quantity of important material.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

Ile organized and conducted schools for artillery information service and the counter battery service in France in October and November, 1917. He participated in preparation and execution of artillery plans of First Army for the St. Mihiel offensive in September, 1918, and commanded 166th Field Artillery Brigade in October, 1918, and the corps artillery, First Army Corps, Nov. 1, to 11, 1918, during the final assault of the First Army. His high professional attainments, sound tactical judgment, and devotion to duty contributed materially to the successful operation of the American Expeditionary Forces.

BROWNING, WILLIAM S..... R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

BRYDEN, WILLIAM.
R.—Chelsea, Mass.
B.—Hartford, Conn.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1921.

BUCKEY, MERVYN C.
R-Washington, D. C.
B-Frederick, Md.
G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919.

BULLARD, ROBERT L.... R—Lafayette, Ala. B—Youngsborough, Ala. G. O. No. 136, W. D., 1918.

BURKE, Rev. JOHN J....R-New York, N. Y.
B-New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

Burkham, Robert R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Sioux City, Iowa. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As a member of the American section of the Supreme War Council, by his ability and his clear and sound conception of the constantly changing military situation, he has rendered invaluable aid in solving the many complex problems than have come before the Supreme War Council.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

For services in the reorganization and administration of the property and financial departments at Rock Island Arsenal, Ill., which underwent an enormous expansion in the early stages of the war. Later, he rendered unusual and highly meritorious services in developing in England the manufacture of various special and service types of small-arms ammunition, thereby securing for the American Expecutionary Forces a certain and readily available source of supply of this indispensable material.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As machine-gun officer of his division and later as colonel, 107th Infantry, he displayed rare qualities of courageous leadership, sound tactical judgment, and technical skill of a high order. His ability as an organizer and administrator and his unremitting devotion to duty enabled him to render the Government services of inestimable value in positions of responsibility.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As director of the department of field gunnery, School of Fire for Field Artillery,
Fort Sill, Okla., from September, 1917, to May, 1918, and as assistant commandant of that school from May, 1918, to October, 1918, he displayed organizing ability and other professional attainments of a high order in developing and conducting a sound course of instruction in the principles of field gunnery.

Colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant, G-3, 2d Army Corps, and later as G-3 of that organization, he displayed military talent of a high order in the training of the organizations of the corps for battle. During operations which broke the Hindenburg line, of the corps for battle. During operations which broke the Hindenburg line, between Cambrai and St. Quentin, he assisted in the planning and execution of operations of great moment with exceptional ability and tireless energy, and contributed to a high degree to the successes of the operations.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. For especially meritorious and distinguished service while serving as military attaché at Rome, Italy.

Lieutenant general, U. S. Army. Lieutenant general, U. S. Army.

Commander of the Second Army of the American Expeditionary Forces.

In the course of this war he commanded in turn the first American division to take its place in the front lines in France, the 3d Corps, and the Second Army. He participated in operations in reduction of the Marne salient and in the Mcuse-Argonne offensive. He was in command of the Second Army when the German resistance west of the Meuse was shattered.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. As commanding officer of the 10ist Engineer Regiment, from August, 1917, until April, 1919, during its organization, training, and in all its combat operations he performed all his tasks with unusual efficiency and in a manner that reflected credit of a high degree upon him. By his careful and thorough preparation, rare judgment, skillful and energetic leadership, and sound tactical and technical knowledge he contributed in a marked degree to the successes achieved by his regiment and the 26th Division.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As regimental surgeon of the 138th Infantry, he supervised the care of the wounded during the Argonne offensive. With untiring energy and ability of a high order, displaying personal courage under shell fire, personally rallying his men and directing them forward, he was an inspiration to all. His dressing station was placed to within a few hundred yards of the front lines whenever the terrain rendered the passage of ambulances impossible. His zeal, devotion to duty, and efficient services added greatly to the morale of all who served with him.

For especially meritorious and conspicuous service as chairman of the committee on special war activities of the National Catholic War Council and as chairman of the committee of six, dealing with the subject of chaplains.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. By his exceptional ability and energy he successfully organized and put into efficient practice the claims department of the rents, requisitions, and claims service. The successful handling of the many complex problems in respect to the adjustment of claims was due, in a large measure, to his high professional attainments and sound judgment. He has rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As G-3 of the 30th Division during its operation in Belgium and northern France, subsequent to the armistice he functioned as chief of staff at base section No. 1 in a most creditable manner. He has rendered services of much value to the United States.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He commanded with distinction a battalion of the first American regiment to occupy trenches in France, and participated in the repulse of the first raid made by the enemy upon American troops. As deputy adjutant general, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he has performed his manifold duties with ability and sound judgment. BURNETT, FRANK C.R.—Knoxville, Iowa.B.—Casey, Iowa.G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
First as chief of the explosives branch, design section, gun division, in which capacity he was charged with the production of sufficient explosives, propellants, and shell loading for the needs of the American Government and her allies; and later as chief of the explosives section, production division, with securing the necessary production of explosives, propellants, and assembly of ammunition to meet the needs of America in the World War. First lieutenant, chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of Base Hospital No. 116, at Bazoilles-sur-Meuse, France, and later, as chief nurse of Mobile Hospital No. 9, American Expeditionary Forces, in the field during the World War, she rendered conspicuous service by her unusual executive ability, tact, good judgment, and faithfulness to detail in caring for the large number of sick and wounded under her charge. BURNS, SOPHY M ... R—St. Francis, Wis. B—St. Francis, Wis. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923. her charge. Major general, U. S. Army.

For services as director of purchase, storage, and traffic, General Staff, he has had under his supervision during the last several months most important and complicated operations in relation to the cancellation of contracts, the adjustment of claims, the disposal of surplus supplies and the storage of materials that have accumulated during the war or that had been delivered Burr, George W_____ R—Sedalia, Mo. B—Tolono, Ill. G. O. No. 77, W. D., 1919. by manufacturers since the armistice. Colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.

For services in research work pertaining to gas warfare. Colonel Burrell was in charge of the research division, and its organization was doubtless the greatest. Burrell, George Arthur R-Washington, D. C. B-Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 77, W. D., 1919. of its kind ever formed. It accomplished remarkable results of the greatest importance to our military forces. Brigadicr general, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 5th Corps he displayed great tact and judgment in the organization of that command. He directed with marked ability the staff work of his corps during the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives and was a potent factor in insuring the successes of his organization in that BURTT, WILSON B.....R-La Grange, Ill.
B-Hinsdale, Ill.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. campaign. Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
For exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services as chief of staff, American Forces in Russia. Brigadier General, U. S. Marine Corps.

He has commanded with ability and energy Pontanezen Camp at Brest during the time in which it has developed into the largest embarkation camp in the world. Confronted with problems of extraordinary magnitude in supervising the reception, entertainment, and departure of the large numbers of officers and soldiers passing through this camp, he has solved all with conspicuous success, performing services of the highest character for the American Expeditionary Forces. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He commanded, with marked distinction, the 1st Field Artillery Brigade from Aug. 18 to Nov. 11, 1918, displaying at all times keen tactical ability, initiative, and loyal devotion to duty. By his high military attainments and sound judgment he proved to be a material factor in the successes achieved by the divisions whose advances he supported. BUTNER, HENRY W....R—Stony Ridge, N. C. B—Stony Ridge, N. C. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920. by the divisions whose advances he supported. Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As general purchasing agent for the American Expeditionary Forces at Base Section No. 3, in Great Britain, from May to December, 1918, he displayed great energy, a comprehensive knowledge of large business affairs, and executive ability of the highest order. By his broad experience, foresight, and splendid ability to cooperate with representatives of our allies, he solved many BYLLESBY, HENRY M ... R—Chiegao, Ill. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922. splendid almity to cooperate with representatives of our anies, it established difficult problems of fuel supply with conspicuous success and in a manner which insured at critical times a plentiful supply of coal, both for our transport service and our troops in France, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. Supply service, hides and leather.

For services in connection with the supply service of the Army during the World War, by his individual efforts he made possible the accomplishment of that portion of the supply program that depended for success upon the supply of hides and leather. BYRON, JOSEPH C. R—Hagerstown, Md. B—Buffalo, N. Y. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1920. Major general, U. S. Army.
While in command of the Arizona district of the southern department, he handled the delicate border situation there with firmness and sound judgment. CABELL, DE ROSEY C ... R-Roseville, Ark. B-Charleston, Ark. G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

CABELL, HENRY C....R—Richmond, Va. B—Richmond, Va. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.

For services while in charge of war risk insurance matters and later in charge of the appointment division. By his untiring efforts in dealing with other departments and the public, he expedited the dispatch of official business and the solution of intricate problems arising under new laws. He rendered services of great merit.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army,
For services as chief of the contracts and claims section, Judge Advocate General's Office, from 1917 to 1920, his knowledge of the law, sound judgment, and application enabled him to deal promptly and effectively with the many perplexing questions arising with respect to contracts, requisitions, and compulsory orders which formed the basis of claims against the Government during the war period.

As chief of staff of the Army Artillery, First Army, he exhibited ability in the organization of that unit. Later, as commanding general of the 33d Coast Artillery Brigade, he displayed high technical ability. Though confronted with immunerable difficulties, he developed the heavy artillery regiments under his command into combat units of remarkable efficiency, which units proved to be of the utmost value during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

 First lieutenant, chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of the General Hospital at Plattsburg Barracks, N. Y., during the World War, and later as chief nurse of the general hospital at Hampton, Va., during the demobilization period, her services were such as to call for special commendation. Whether by day or night, in emergency or routine work, she never failed to respond efficiently to every call. By her conscientious, unselfish devotion to duty, and cheerful, cooperative manner she was an example and an inspiration to her entire staff, and was in large measure responsible for the marked success of these special hospitals.

 Lieutenant colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army. For especially meritorious and distinguished service while serving as military attaché at Mexico City, Mexico.

CANFIELD, EDWARD, Jr......R-Middletown, N. Y. B-Bath, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
He served as assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, of the 4th Division, and organized the entire system of supply for the division. He trained and supervised the personnel and the operation of the administrative sections. He handled all problems connected with supply and transportation with such efficiency and success that the division was never short of either rations or ammunition. He proved himself to be an officer of the greatest administrative ability, exceptional foresight, and tircless energy.

Lieutenant celonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As director of physiological research for the American Expeditionary Forces in France, his activities in connection with the development of a standard method for the resuscitation of the wounded and in organizing, instructing, and directing the work of shock teams in hospitals at the front reflected professional skill and judgment of the highest order and resulted in saving many lives.

CARLETON, GUY
R—San Antonio, Tex.
B—Austin, Tex.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U.S. Army.

For exceptionally meritorious and conspicuous service as commanding general at Camp Wadsworth, S. C., in organizing and training corps and Army troops during the war.

Carson, Clifford C.
R.—Muncie, Ind.
B.—North Greenfield, Ohio.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U.S. Army.
He organized and commanded the training centers for the instruction of officers for the Tractor Artillery of the American Expeditionary Forces. In this new and important field of activity he rendered conspicuously meritorious service.

Carson, John M......R.—Philadelphia, Pa B.—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as chief quartermaster, line of communications, American Expeditionary Forces, and later as deputy chief quartermaster, American Expeditionary Forces, positions of great responsibility, due to his ability and energy he perfected and directed the organization and operation of the Quartermaster Corps of the line of communications. Later he skillfully carried out the plans and projects to make the Quartermaster Corps an unfailing auxiliary to the combatant troops of the American Expeditionary Forces. He has rendered services of much value.

CARTER, ARTHUR H......R-Leesburg, Va.
B-Hillsboro, Kans.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
While on duty in the office of the Chief of Field Artillery, he displayed great ability in developing the organization of the Field Artillery Central Officers' Training School; he then proceeded to Camp Taylor, established this school, and administered it in an exceptionally meritorious manner during the remainder of the war.

CARTER, JESSE McI.....R-Farmington, Mo. B-St. Francois County, Mo. G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As chief of the Militia Bnreau he conceived and directed the organization of the United States Guards and utilized these and other forces most effectively in the important work of safeguarding the utilities and industries of the Nation essential to the prosecution of the war.

Major general, U. S. Army.

For services as department commander, Central Department, between Aug. 26, 1917, and Mar. 13, 1918; he handled many difficult problems arising in that department with rare judgment, tact, and great skill.

Carty, John J.
R.—Short Hills, N. J.
B.—Cambridge, Mass.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

He was largely instrumental in securing from the telephone and telegraph companies of the United States the best talent available to meet the urgent requirements of the Signal Corps at the outbreak of the war. He has served with marked distinction as a member of the American Expeditionary Forces, and his brilliant professional attainments and sound judgment have rendered his services of exceptional value to the Government.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As deputy chief ordnance officer at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he exercised conspicuous initiative and sound judgment in the supervision of ordnance activities. With tircless energy he organized and administered the work of the Ordnance Department in the zone of the Armies. As representative of the Ordnance Department at Chaumont, he showed wide vision and full comprehension of conditions and needs of the service, working with exceptional devotion to prevent any stoppage in the supply of ordnance material.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While in command of the 9th Infantry Brigade he displayed conspicuous tenacity of purpose and a determination to overcome all obstacles. At the Bois des Rappes, in the St. Mihiel salient and ensuing actions, his brigade effectively routed the enemy. The success of his command was in a largo measure due to the splendid training and excellent leadership given it by its commander.

Major, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
As an instructor at the Army Intelligence School he performed important duties with marked zeal and ability, aiding materially in the efficient training of a large number of officers for the intelligence service of the units of our Armies in the field.

Colonel, Engineers, U. S. Army.

As commander of an Engineer regiment, he rendered great assistance in the early development of the American port at Bassens. As assistant chief of staff in charge of the administrative section of the services of supply, he exhibited rare qualities and marked ability in the solution of many problems of policy. His efforts in connection with the repatriation of American troops have been of conspicuous merit.

Chaffee, Adna R.
R.—Manila, P. I.
B.—Junction City, Kans.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
At Army General Staff College he displayed military attainments of a high order, contributing efficiently to the training of a large number of officers.
He performed tasks of great difficulty with marked distinction as G-3 of the 81st Division and later of the 7th Corps. Later, as chief of the third section, general staff, 3d Corps, he acted with sound judgment and wide comprehension of existing conditions in the discharge of the grave responsibilities connected with his office during the closing days of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, handling perplexing problems with keen energy and wise discernment.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As inspector general of the Army he has, by his highly responsible services, materially contributed to the efficiency of all departments and bureaus of the Military Establishment and to the successful execution of the military program.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief sanitary inspector of the Army within the continental limits of the United States during the World War he displayed exceptional efficiency in organizing and administering a sanitary inspection service during the periods of mobilization, active operations, and demobilization. His achievements in this capacity were of great value to the Government.

CHAMBERLAINE, WILLIAM
R—Norfolk, Va.
B—Norfolk, Va.
G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commanding general of the Railway Artillery Reserve, he rendered valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in the operations of the Railway Artillery units during the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

CHAMBERLIN, STEPHEN J.
R—Spring Hill, Kans.
B—Spring Hill, Kans.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As acting dispatch officer and dispatch officer at port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., from Nov. 15, 1917, to Sept. 6, 1918, Major Chamberlin displayed marked ability in handling the movements of troops through the port, assigning units and detachments to camps, convoys, and ships, and by foresight, thorough organization, and hard work arranged for the smooth working of troop movements, prevented congestion at the camps and piers, thus enabling the transports to sail at the appointed time with the appropriate number of troops.

CHANDLER, CHARLES DEF R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the balloon section, Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces, from November, 1917, to February, 1919, he rendered notable service in the supply, administration, and operation of the balloon units that so thoroughly demonstrated their efficiency during all the major operations of the American Expeditionary Forces.

CHAPIN, LINDLEY H. P...... R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. First lieutenant, General Staff, U. S. Army.

As the representative of G-4, of the American Expeditionary Forces at the D. G. C. R. A., he displayed marked ability and devotion to duty in a position of great responsibility, he handled with tact and sound judgment the involved and delicate questions continually arising in connection with our relationship with the allied armies, and rendered service of great value to the Government.

CHEATHAM, B. FRANK.
R—Nashville, Tenn.
B—Beech Grove, Tenn.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief quarternaster, 1st Army Corps, he displayed sound judgment, great initiative, and high professional attainments. Later, as colonel, 194th Infantry, 26th Division, in operations against the enemy in the Meuse-Argonne offensive north of Verdun, Oct. 14 to Nov. 11, 1918, he rendered exceptionally valuable services, his high courage, leadership, and tactical skill proving important factors in the successful operations of the 26th Division during the second phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

CHENEY, SHERWOOD A.....R.—South Manchester, Conn. B.—South Manchester, Conn. G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief engineer, General Headquarters, he rendered valuable services in the organization of the Engineer Corps and its coordination with the associated services. Later, as director of the Army Transport Service, he performed eminently valuable services, achieving remarkable results in a task of great magnitude involving the expeditious return of many thousands of soldiers from the ports of France to the United States.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. As ordnance officer of the 80th Division, not only were ordnance and ammunition supplied at all times to members of that division, but also to thousands of men in other divisions at various times when their own supply failed. His organization of the ordnance supply system, as division ordnance officer, showed the results of exhaustive study and of determined and intelligent efforts to overcome adverse conditions. Later, as chief ordnance officer of the 9th  $\Lambda$ rmy Corps, hc displayed high qualities of zeal, loyalty, and efficiency.

Churchill, Marlborough.....R—Andover, Mass.
B—Andover, Mass.
G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as chief of staff of the Army artillery of the 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, and for his ability, zeal, and untiring energy in building up the military intelligence division of the General Staff as director of military intelligence. He discharged these duties of great responsibility with ability, tact, and energy. He built up the intelligence service to its present high state of efficiency.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As medical representative on, and later as General Staff member of, the first section, General Hieadquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed sound indegment and wide comprehension of existing conditions in the management of ocean tonnage allotments, and devised and efficiently operated a system of supply for the Medical Department of the American Expeditionary Forces. Largely through his personal efforts, energy, and farsightedness the difficulties in the procurement and shipment of medical supplies for the sick and wounded were successfully overcome.

Lieutenant colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As acting G-3 of the 3d Corps he displayed sound judgment and military attainments of the highest order. With the utmost clearness and skill he prepared the orders under which his corps operated both from the Vesle to the Aisne Rivers and during the Meuse-Argonne offensive until Oct. 14, 1918.
By his marked tactical ability, loyal devotion to duty, and untiring zeal he contributed materially to the success of those operations.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army. For services on the committee on classification of personnel and later as a member of the committee on education and special training.

CLARK, JOSHUA REUBEN, Jr.... R-Washington, D. C. B-Grantsville, Utah. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922. Major, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As special assistant to the Attorney General of the United States from June, 1917, until September, 1918, by his zeal, great industry, and eminent legal attainments, he rendered conspicuous services in the compilation and publication of an extremely valuable and comprehensive edition of the laws and analogous legislation pertaining to the war powers of our Government since its beginning. From September to December, 1918, as executive officer of the Provost Marshal General's Office, he again rendered services of inestimable value in connection with the preparation and execution of complete regulations governing the classification and later the demobilization of several million registrants.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As chief of the American mission at French General Headquarters, he performed with marked distinction important duties requiring tact and judgment. His ceaseless efforts and untiring energy were of material benefit in securing the necessary cooperation with the French military authorities.

CLARK, STEPHEN C.....R-New York, N. Y. B-Cooperstown, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As assistant adjutant and later as adjutant of the 2d Army Corps from August, 1918, to February, 1919, he displayed administrative ability of an exceptionally high order. During active operations of the corps his tircless energy and unceasing devotion to duty assisted materially in the successes achieved by his organization.

Colonel, 110th Engineers, 35th Division, U. S. Army.
For services at Paulny, France, Sept. 29, 1918. He admirably established and constructed a line of resistance which he held for several days, during which time two counterattacks were repelled and severe loss inflicted upon the enemy. Later he commanded and held an advance line for two days, repelling two determined counterattacks.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Thomas C. Clarke.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 32d Division, during its operations in France he displayed unusual and masterful grasp of his duties, executive ability of a high order, and intense zeal and develion to duty. His initiative, foresight, and good judgment were important nators in the successes of his division, and made his services of inestimable value to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

CLEVELAND, MAUDE....R—Berkeley, Calif.
B—Gresham, Oreg.
G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

American Red Cross.

Chief of the home communication and casualty service of the Red Cross at there of the home communication and casualty service of the Red Cross at Brest, France. By her unremitting efforts in earing for the sick and wounded evacuated through the port of Brest, her valuable assistance in the interment of the dead, consummated at night under the most adverse weather conditions, her eareful consideration in writing the details of the death to the nearest relative, and her supreme exertion during the distressing epidemic of influenza pneumonia from September to December, 1918, she has rendered self-sacrificing services of the highest character to the American Expeditioners, Exerces tionary Forces.

CLIFFORD, EDWARD......R—Evanston, Ill.
B—Virginia, Ill.
G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
For services in organizing and administering the Army allotment system, thereby enabling the War Department to make prompt payments of allotments. He rendered services of great value.

CLINNIN, JOHN V....R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Huntley, Ill.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army As regimental commander of the 130th Infantry, 33d Division, by his force and energy he brought his regiment to a high state of efficiency, instilling into it an aggressive spirit which proved a valuable factor in the operations of the regiment near Breuilles, Verdun, Bois-de-Chaume, Sivry, and Bois du Platt Chene. He rendered services of great merit.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As chief of staff of the 29th Division, he showed himself resourceful and equal to any emergency. His sound judgment and ability, especially during the operations north of Verdun, France, in October, 1918, were of a high order. The success of these operations was in a measure due to his energy, zeal, and were creditions of the success. rare qualities of leadership.

CLOPTON, WILLIAM H., Jr.... R—St. Louis, Mo. B—St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Tank Corps, U. S. Army. By his special knowledge of personnel matters, untiring zeal, good judgment, and administrative ability he was largely responsible for the solution of many difficult problems in the organization and operation of the personnel branch, Office of the Quartermaster General, especially in the organization of the technical field units of the Quartermaster Corps. Later, as colonel, Tank Corps, he rendered conspicuous service in the establishment of tank schools and in the training of technical troops therein, while commanding tank training camps at Tobyhanna, Pa., and Camp Polk, N. C.

COCHEU, FRANK S.....R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

In command of the 319th Infantry, 80th Division, from August. 1917, to October, 1918, he displayed marked ability in its organization, training, and service in the field. In operations against the enemy in the Artois sector and Mcuse-Argonne offensive he rendered conspicuous service by leading his command with exceptional judgment, unflagging energy, and tactical ability, at all times proving himself to be a skillful commander, thus enabling his regiment to always carry its tasks through to a successful end. His services were highly meritorious and rendered in a position of great responsibility.

Cocheu, George W.____ R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member and later as chief of the coordination section, General Staff, a position of great responsibility, he devised many methods for improving and making more efficient the administrative procedure within the War Department, thereby materially accilitating the transaction of the business of the War Department and between the War Department and the Army, thus readerly exercise of great well as the authorizing their processions. rendering service of great value to the entire military establishment.

COE. FRANK W ... R-Manhattan, Kans. B-Manhattan, Kans. G. O. No. 18, W. D., 1919. Major general, U. S. Army.

For services in the reorganization of the Coast Artillery, thereby enabling it to meet the great demand for oversea artillery.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
For services while assistant to the general superintendent, Army Transport Service, New York City, May 1 to Nov. 1, 1917; general manager of the Hoboken Shore R. R., July 1 to Nov. 1, 1917; and in full charge of operations at Bush Terminal System, Brooklyn, N. Y., until January, 1919. He displayed rare administrative and executive ability, sound judgment, and rendered services of immeasurable value to the Government.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 351st Field Artillery, 92d Division, from November, 1917, to Angust, 1918, by his rare juggment and exceptional ability he organized and trained his regiment to a high standard of efficiency under the most adverse circumstances. As brigade commander from August, 1918, until December, 1918, he again displayed resourcefulness and unusual ability in the successful organization and training of the 11th and 20th Field Artillery Brigades. As commanding general at Camp Jackson, S. C., from January, 1919, to April, 1919, he rendered most valuable and distinguished service in the demobilization of great numbers of troops and immense quantities of material.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As G-1, 91st Division, from August to October, 1918, due to his unusual foresight, indefatigable zeal, exceptional executive and administrative ability, he so organized the supply and administrative services of the division as to insure complete coordination and a regular flow of supplies of all kinds, notwithstanding a shortage of transportation and despite grave and tremendous difficulties because of road congestion, thereby rendering co..spicuous service in a position of great responsibility to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Coles, Roy H.....R.—Warren, Ind.
B.—Warren, Ind.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
He served as assistant to and executive officer for the chief signal officer, American Expeditionary Forces, and at all times he performed his most exacting duties in an especially meritorious manner. By his exceptional executive ability, tireless energy, and sound judgment he successfully met every demand that was made upon him.

Lieutenant colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. As executive officer of the cable section, General Staff, during the World War, his sound judgment, his marked ability, his untiring energy, and his willingness to accept grave responsibilities, contributed greatly to the successful operation of the cable business during the World War. Later, as executive officer of the statistics branch, General Staff, he assisted materially in collecting and compiling valuable statistics pertaining to the World War.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As corps surgeon, 2d Army Corps, from February, 1918, to February, 1919, he displayed professional attainments of a high order in the training of the organization of the corps for subsequent operations. During active operations the efficiency of his organization and arrangements for the care of the sick and wounded and their evacuation contributed in high degree to the success of the operations of the corps.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant to G-5, General Headquarters, and later as Chief of Staff of the 6th Army Corps, he demonstrated rare military attainments, performing his difficult tasks with unremitting zeal, rendering services of conspicuous worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As aide-de-eamp to the commander in chief, as line officer on duty with troops, and as secretary of the General Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed a thorough knowledge of every duty with which he was intrusted. With tireless energy, keen perception, and able execution of his manifold duties he rendered especially meritorious services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
Under his administration the supply of troops, care of property, and the operation of the Quartermaster Depot at Gievres, showed an excellent degree of efficiency. The great improvement and development of the organization of this important depot under his direction was largely due to his administrative ability and untring zeal.

COLLINS, ROBERT L.
R—Wellesley Hills, Mass.
B—Lancaster, Mass.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
He served as assistant chief of staff, G-1 and G-2, 33d Division, from June 13 to Oct. 2, 1918, and assistant chief of staff, G-2, 37th Division, from Oct. 25 to Nov. 7, 1918; assistant chief of staff, G-2, 84th Division, Oct. 2-25, 1918; assistant chief of staff and chief of staff, general headquarters, Tank Corps, from Nov. 8, 1918, to June 30, 1920. He displayed sound judgment and exceptional ability in the administration and operation of all the staff sections of the units with which he served and by his initiative, tireless energy, and military attainments of a high order he contributed in a marked degree to the successes achieved by those forces against the enemy.

COMMISKEY, ARCHIBALD F......R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army
As regimental commander of the 77th Field Artillery, 4th Division, and during the Meuse-Argonne offensive from Oct. 3 to 11, 1918, as commander of an artillery grouping consisting of the 77th and 16th Field Artillery, he demonstrated marked ability and good judgment in the direction of his units in support of the 4th Division during its attack. From Nov. 1 to 11, 1918, his regiment supported, with marked success, the advance of the 5th Division.
He kept his elements close to the attacking units and gave valuable assistance to them. He has rendered services of considerable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As a member of the second section, General Staff, General Headquarters, by his marked professional attainments, his zeal, and his sound judgment he contributed largely to the successful operation of this section. As chief of the second section, General Staff, of the 2d Division, during active operations, and later as commander of a brigade of the 2sth Division during the Argonne-Meuse offensive, he demonstrated his great energy and his clear conception of tactics. Colonel (Infantry), Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As chief of the prisoners o, war division, the Provost Marshal General's Department, he had charge of and was responsible for all matters concerning the prisoners of war labor companies, escort companies, and inclosures. His sound judgment, marked ability, and devotion to duty resulted in the handling of the delicate prisoner of war questions in such a manner as to produce only commendation. His services were exceptionally valuable to the Government. Conley, Edgar T....R.—Fairland, Md.
B.—Fairland, Md.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921. ernment. Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. In the Chemical Warfare Service, practically alone and unaided and at a great personal risk of his life, he exposed himself unhesitatingly to the highest concentrations of deadly gases while working with experimental models of masks. Major Connell invented, tested out, and perfected a new type of gas mask superior to any then in existence, thereby rendering service of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff in charge of the operations section he has shown a masterful conception of all the tactical situations which have confronted the American forces in Europe. By his high professional attainments and sound military judgment he has handled with marked skill the many details of the complex problems of organization and troop movements that were necessitated by the various operations of the American Expeditionary CONNER, FOX

R—Slate Spring, Miss.

B—Slate Spring, Miss.

G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919. Forces. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army,
As chief of the internal medicine division of the Surgeon General's Office, a position of great responsibility, to him is due, in a large measure, the expansion and successful administration of that division. By his powerful influence he induced many eminent internists to remain in the base hospitals after the signing of the armistice until the sick from overseas had been taken CONNER, LEWIS A.
R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—New Albany, Ind.
G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922. care of. CONNER, WILLIAM D.....R.—Clinton, Iowa.
B.—Rock, Wis.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army. As assistant chief of staff and head of the coordination section of the General s assistant einer of stain and nead of the continuous section of the General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces, he showed unusual ability and tireless energy. As chief of staff of the 32d Division in the trench operations in the Belfort sector and later as commander of the 63d Infantry Brigade in the advance to the Vesle he displayed particular ability as a leader of troops. He elso performed valuable services as commander of a base port and as chief of staff of the services of supply. CONRAD, CASPER H., Jr.....R.—Fort Randall, S. Dak. B.—Columbus, Ohio. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920. Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of advance embarkation section, S. O. S., by his marked executive ability and energetic efforts displayed in the transportation of troops from the area of the Army of Occupation to the base ports, and the management of troop trains which were comfortably equipped, safely operated, and sanitarily maintained, he has rendered services of great worth. Major, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. While serving in the Ordnance Department he was instrumental in organizing the divisions dealing with the procurement of ordnance material. While serving on the General Staff he worked out a plan for the consolidation of all articles of standard commercial circulation in single purchasing units throughout the War Department upon which basis was built the organization of the present division of purchase, storage and traffic of the General Staff. In his various assignments he gave himself whole-heartedly and self-sacrificingly to the work of the Government.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to sister, Mrs. Blanche Seavey. Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He commanded the 2d Army Corps School at Chatillon, France, from Aug. 15, 1918, to May 19, 1919. He so organized and coordinated the various activities at these schools that 1,800 to 2,500 students were constantly undergoing instruction. He was primarily responsible for the excellent system of training given, which training as received at these schools exercised a strong influence toward the efficiency of the whole body of American troops in France. By his sound administrative and superior technical ability, untiring zeal, and splendid judgment in reorganizing and expanding the schools, he produced an organization of the highest efficiency. He rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He commanded with notable success Base Hospital No. 8, at Savenay, which under his efficient administration became the nucleus of a large hospital center, which developed into the largest classification and evacuation hospital in France for patients returning to the United States. By his marked ability in directing the numerous activities under his control he rendered activities of convicted by worth to the American Expeditionary Exercise.

services of conspicuous worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

COOTES, HARRY N....R—Staunton, Va. B—Staunton, Va. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

CORDIER, CONSTANT......R—Flagstaff, Ariz.
B—New Orleans, La.
G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919.

Coward, Jacob M.....R—Trenton, N. J.
B—Allentown, N. J.
G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

COXE, ALEXANDER B. R—St. Paul, Minn. B—Santa Fe, N. Mex. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

Craig, Daniel F.
R.—Garnett, Kans.
B.—Mahaska County, Iowa.
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Craig, Malin R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—St. Joseph, Mo. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff, 78th Division, during its organization and training period and later during the St. Mihiel offensive he displayed taet, sound judgment, and military attainments of the highest order. Due to his ability in coordinating all of the various staff agencies into a harmonious machine, and by his loyalty and untring energy in carrying out the policies of the division commander, he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. ary Forces.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
While on duty as liaison officer between the War Department and the foreign military missions he displayed the greatest discretion and ability and contributed materially to the successful conduct of military-diplomatic relations between the War Department and the allied military missions.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As deputy to the Chief Signal Officer of the line of communications he displayed marked ability for organization and administration in the establishment of marked ability for organization and administration in the establishment of important Signal Corps undertakings, laying the foundation of the Signal Corps work in the American Expeditionary Forces. Later, as director of supplies in the Office of the Chief Signal Officer, he performed exacting duties with unusual ability, solving with sound judgment perplexing problems, enabling a steady flow of signal supplies to be maintained to the troops in the Reserve nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army, attached to Emergency Medical Team No. 142, American Expeditionary Forces.

As a member of an emergency medical team during an extended period of active operations she served the nontransportable wounded of six divisions during the advances at Glorieux, Fromereville, Bethincourt, Septsarges, Bantheville, and Dun-sur-Meuse. She courageously administered to the gravely wounded in the advanced area under the fire of shells and aerial bombs, rendering a service of particular value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member of the American section of the Supreme War Council by his high professional qualifications and sound military judgment he rendered invaluable aid in solving the many complex problems that came before the Supreme War Council.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the 113th Field Artillery, 30th Division, during its organization, training, and active operations in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives he displayed tireless energy, great resourcefulness, and military attainments of a high order. By his skillful and energetic handling of his regiment he rendered the maximum support to the Infantry to which he was attached so effectively that he aided materially in the successes achieved by our troops in those important engagements.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commander of one or more elements of the 4th Artillery Brigade in addition to his own regiment, the 77th Field Artillery, in the Aisne Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne operations he rendered conspicuously valuable services. In the Meuse-Argonne offensive in charge of the barrage groupings of the 4th Artillery Brigade his high teehnical skill contributed in a marked way to the successful operations of the American forces. His untiring energy and devotion to duty served as a stimulus to the officers and men under his command command.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. He assisted in the production of an efficient intelligence service, and in organizing and sending to France the required intelligence personnel. His excellent judgment and pronounced knowledge of intelligence principles added greatly to the efficiency of the intelligence service.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as the organizer and administrator of Army schools for the development of laboratory personnel, thereby contributing one of the most important measures for the prevention and control of epidemic diseases throughout the Army.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He served with distinction as commanding officer of the 302d Field Artillery, 76th Division, and later, upon being promoted to the grade of brigadier general, as commanding general of the 157th Field Artillery Brigade, 82d Division, his serv ee was equally conspicuous. Due to his aggressive leadership, his batteries were at all times close behind the advancing Infantry. The accurate support which they furnished was largely due to his management and technical skill as an artillerist.

Brigadier general, U.S. Army. Brigadier general, U.S. Army. He served in turn as chief of staff of a division, a corps, and an army, in each of which capacities he exhibited great ability. His personal influence, aggressiveness, and untiring efforts were repeatedly displayed in the operations of the 1st Corps in the vicinity of Chateau-Thierry, on the Ourcq, and the Vesle during the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
Successively as ordnance officer of the 42d Division, 1st Army Corps and 2d Army, he displayed exceptional ability in the organization and administration of work of great magnitude. Encountering unforeseen and perplexing problems, he solved them with initiative and sound judgment, showing a full understanding of existing needs and conditions of the service. He was tircless in energy and resourceful, proving at all times devoted to his important duties.

Cravatii, Paul D. R—New York, N. Y. B—Berlin Heights, Ohio. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Representative of the Treasury Department.

With great ability, energy, and patience, he cooperated in international matters involving the interests of the American Expeditionary Forces. Establishing and maintaining the most cordial relations with the British authorities, he greatly contributed to the establishment of their effective cooperation with the military board of allied supply and in many other matters of extreme importance.

CRAVENS, RICHARD K
R-Muskogec, Indian Territory.
B-Fort Smith, Ark.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

Both as adjutant and as assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the Headquarters Army Artillery, 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, he exhibited military attainments and ability of a high order. By his clear conception of his function, his untring energy, and in his proper exercise of initiative, he contributed in a large measure to the successful employment of the Army Artillery of the 1st Army during the St. Mihiel and Meusc-Argonne offensives.

Commander, U. S. Navy.
For services in connection with the Naval Overseas Transportation Service and convoy system for cargo of transport fleet.

CRILE, GEORGE W. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Chili, Ohio. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

By his skill, researches, and discoveries he saved the lives of many of our wounded soldiers. His treless efforts to devise new methods of treatment to provent infection and surgical shock revolutionized Army surgery and met with the greatest success.

CRONKHITE, ADELBERT_____

R—Arizona.
B—Litchfield Center, N. Y. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army. He commanded the 80th Division during the Argonne-Meuse offensive, where he demonstrated great ability as a leader and proved himself a commander of initiative and courage.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As division surgeon he displayed marked ability of organization and administration throughout the service of the 28th Division in France. With keen judgment he supervised the location of dressing stations and field hospitals and used remarkable discretion in directing the entire work of evacuation of a lower surphise of countries. By constant vigilance and ungessing effort he a large number of casualties. By constant vigilance and unceasing effort he provided for the health and treatment of the troops with whom he served, displaying professional attainments of a high order.

CROWDER, ENOCH H .. R—Trenton, Mo. B—Edinburg, Mo. G. O. No. 144, W. D., 1918.

Major general, U. S. Army.

For services as provost marshal general in the preparation and operation of the draft laws of the Nation during the war.

CRUIKSHANE, WILLIAM M.... R--Washington, D. C. B--Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He commanded with ability the artillery of the 3d Division on the Marne during the German attack on July 15. Subsequently, during the advance on July 18, due to his tactical knowledge and successful placing of the guns, he greatly assisted in the repulse of the enemy. Later he rendered valuable services as commander of the artillery of the 4th Army Corps.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

He was charged with the important duty of administering the supplies division of the Quartermaster Department of the American Expeditionary Forces, where he exhibited organizing ability of the highest order. His efforts and foresight had a marked influence on the successful delivery of rations, clothing, and other quartermaster supplies to combat troops.

CUBBISON, DONALD C R-Kansas City, Kans. B-Harrisville, Pa. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
Serving in turn as director, 2d Corps Artillery School, from January to April, 1918; chief of staff of the artillery of the 1st and 4th Army Corps from May to September, 1918; chief of field artillery section, Office of Chief of Artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, from September, 1918, to March, 1919, he performed his duties in a conspicuously meritorious manner at all times. By his great energy, sound judgment, marked ability, and high professional attainments he contributed materially to the successes achieved against the enemy, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Culberson, William L.
R-Hillsboro, Tex.
B-Clifton, Tex.
G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He displayed extraordinary qualities of leadership and ability for organization. While engaged upon another mission he discovered six companies of infantry, which had been ordered to relieve a front-line unit, lost and confused, due to the misdirection of the guides, who had lost their way. Coming upon these companies when the men were beginning to straggle from the ranks, he rallied them, and by his personal efforts alone succeeded in bringing them to their position just before daylight and in time to take part in the pending opera-

Culver, Clarence C R—Milford, Nebr. B—Milford, Nebr. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

CUSHING, HARVEY

R—Brookline, Mass.

B—Cleveland, Ohio.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Cutcheon, Franklin Warner M.... R-Locust Valley, Long Island, N. Y. B-Dexter, Mich. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

CUTHELL, CHESTER WELDE..... R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Daly, Charles P.
R-Junction City, Kans.
B-St. Louis, Mo.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

for services when in charge of Camp Hospital No. 1, at Camp Upton, N. Y., during the serious epidemic of influenza at this camp in September and October, 1918. Due to his great energy and good will and unwilliuguess to meet defeat in any form, remarkable results were obtained at this hospital.

Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

To Colonel Culver's untiring energy, close application, and perseverance is due the credit for having completed the coordination of the chain of events leading from the earliest conception of the radio telephone to the successful accomplishment of voice-commanded flying carried through to full fruition.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
For services while on duty in the office of the Chief Signal Officer of the Army in the organization and training of technical troops of the Signal Corps.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As senior consultant of neurological surgery, American Expeditionary Forces and in direct charge of the treatment of gunshot wounds of the head in hospitals of the 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, he performed conspicuous and distinguished service to the Government, and through his individual efforts in that capacity saved the lives of many severely wounded soldiers.

For services as chairman of the war work council of the Young Women's Christian Association of the United States of America.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As chairman of the Board of Contracts and Adjustments he supervised and conducted important negotiations with allied governments and their citizens with marked success. His complete knowledge of legal and financial matters coupled with his capacity for work were important factors in the successful management of the Army's fiscal affairs in Europe, rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As G-2, 29th Division, from September, 1917, until January, 1918, and from July to December, 1918, he displayed sound judgment and exceptional ability in the organization and administration of that section of the division staff. Later as G-4, liaison officer, American section, Permanent International Armistice Commission, he rendered highly meritorious services in a position of great responsibility.

As special representative of the Secretary of War he built up and supervised an organization to liquidate the claims of the United States against the European allied governments growing out of the purchases of war materials by these governments in the United States, and, by reducing to accurate and clear statements vast and intricate transactions, brought about agreements with the representatives of the allied governments which not only promoted and maintained harmonious feeling, but settled difficult financial relation happily, speedily, and justly, leaving on all sides a sense of appreciation of the accuracy and fair dealing of the Government of the United States in its business relations with the allied and associated governments.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. As director of surgical teams and chief of the surgical service in hospital formations at the front during our activities on the Marne and the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Colonel, National Guard, Rhode Island (retired). For services as chairman, executive committee of the Jewish Welfare Board.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He served with distinction as division engineer of the 3d Division and as commanding officer of the 6th Engineers. Due to his energy and resourcefulness, he accomplished arduous tasks with marked success. With remarkable skill he directed the laying out of the defense scheme of the positions taken in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services as general superintendent, Army transport services, and quartermaster, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., from Nov. 1, 1917, to Nov. 5, 1918. Colonel Dalton displayed marked ability as an organizer and administrator, having under his supervision thousands of employees and subordinates. By his energy, capacity, and ability to get results he rendered services of great value to the Government.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
In aiding and improving the service of supply in the United States while on duty in the office of the Quartermaster General during the period when the development of supply methods in the United States was in process of initiation, his experience and knowledge of administrative, legal, and executive matters were of immense value to the Government. Later he rendered exceptionally meritorious service in the organization and operation of the general supply depot at New Orleans, La.

DALY, JOSEPH J. DANFORD, ROBERT M..... R—New Boston, Ill. B—New Boston, Ill. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919. DARNALL, *DAVIDSON, FRED LINCOLN_____ R—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Bucksport, Me. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921. Davis, Abel.
R.—Chicago, Ill.
B.—Germany.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.
Distinguished service cross also awarded. DAVIS, CHARLES G.____ R—Geneseo, Ill. B—Geneseo, Ill. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921. DAVIS, JOSEPH R. R—Lowell, Ark. B—Springdale, Ark. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919. DAVIS, MILTON F.....R-MCCOY, Oreg. B-Milton, Minn. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923. DAVIS, RICHMOND P DAVIS, ROBERT C....R-Lancaster, Pa. B-Lancaster, Pa. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
For services as division ordnance officer, 27th Division, a position of great responsibility, involving many difficulties of supply and administration. With marked ability he adapted the American supply system to that used by the British units with which his division operated. He accomplished a great task and rendered services of eminent worth. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While on duty in the office of the Chief of Field Artillery he displayed marked ability in planning the organization of field artillery replacement depots; he then proceeded to Camp Jackson, S. C., established this depot, and administered it during the remainder of the war with rare ability and judgment. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. He has rendered especially meritorious and distinguished service in organizing developing, and administering the supply division of the Medical Depart-ment, and it is due to his foresight, and ability that new sources of medical supplies were developed in this country so that adequate quantities of material were always available for use with the sick and wounded of the Army. Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

For services as division machine-gun officer, 3d Division. By his supervision and dispositions, he contributed materially to the success of the 7th Machine Gun Battalion at Chateau-Thierry in May, 1918, and that of the machine-gun units of the division in the repulse of the enemy offensive across the Marne July 15 to 18, 1918, and during the Meuse-Argonne campaign. He displayed at all times energy and excellent judgment under difficult conditions, and his work deserves high commendation.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Fred L. Davidson. Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army. He organized the fuel and forage division of the War Department and also assisted in reorganizing the salvage service upon a most efficient basis to meet war conditions. By his sound judgment, marked legal and administrative ability, and unselfish devotion to duty he rendered conspicuous service in reorganizing and developing the real estate service of the War Department.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army, As commanding officer, 132d Infantry, 33d Division, he displayed in a marked degree the many and varied qualifications of a successful commanding officer of troops. In the organization and training of his regiment he brought it to a notably high state of efficiency and morale with great thoroughness and in a remarkably short time. Afterward he handled it in all its actions against the enemy with marked success, displaying courage, resourcefulness, tactical skill, and military leadership of the highest order.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. For services while in command of the 123d Field Artillery, 33d Division, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army. For services while serving as military attaché at The Hague, Netherlands.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As chief of the disciplinary division of the office of the Judge Advocate General of the Army he contributed a most helpful means of avoiding serious errors in in the administration of military justice during the war.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. He commanded the 15th Field Artillery throughout all the major operations in which the Second Division participated, at all times proving himself an officer of unusual ability and sound judgment. Inspiring the members of his command by his aggressive spirit, he kept his regiment at all times in closest prox-imity to the infantry units which it supported, thereby contributing materially to the successes achieved by his division against the enemy.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of the schools section, division of military aeronautics, his work in perfecting a system of training was thorough and complete. His soundness of judgment, fairness in dealing with all the boards of officers and branches of the service, and unusual executive ability made his work a decisive factor in the successful production of trained air personnel. He rendered services of the highest order to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as acting chief of the 9th Corps Artillery, in which position his direction of Artillery employment and his intelligent comment on its employment by subordinate commanders was conspicuous.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As adjutant general of the American Expeditionary Forces he has performed his exacting duties with high professional skill and administrative ability. The exceptional efficiency of the Adjutant General's Department under his direction was a material factor in the success of the staff work at General Machinettes. Headquarters.

awarded.

DEARMOND, EDWARD H .... R—Butler, Mo. B—Greenfield, Mo. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
In command of the Artillery support of the Fifth Corps in November he rendered services of the highest order. Through his energy, intelligence, and skill his guns were ever ready for an emergency. The successes of the operations between the Meuse and the Argonne Forest were in a measure due to his strong support of the attacking Infantry.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He served with marked success as commanding officer of the 361st Infantry, displaying military attainments of a high order. Inspiring his men by his faithful devotion to duty, he proved a potent factor in the achievements of the 91st Division. While ably directing his regiment in action during the early part of November he was killed by an enemy shell.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Abbie Greene

Davis.

As chairman of the war council, American Red Cross, he assumed general direction of the war measures of that society, and by the exercise of rare tact and consummate powers of construction and direction brought it to a perfection of organization which made it possible to extend relief promptly and bountifully to our armies and to those of the allied nations. His dynamic qualities as a financier and his forceful personality assured to the soldier in the field and to the inhabitants of the devastated countries of Europe systematized measures of relief beyond the limits of specific statement.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He rendered most conspicuous services in the organization of the general purchasing board as general purchasing agent of the American Expeditionary Forces and as the representative of the U. S. Army on the military board of allied supply. His rare abilities, sound business judgment, and aggressive energy were invaluable in securing needed supplies for the American armies in Europe,

Major, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

In command of the regulating station at St. Dizier, France, he displayed extraordinary ability in the promptness with which he organized and assured a steady flow of supplies to the 1st Army in the advance against the St. Mihiel salient and in the Argonne offensive. It was largely due to his splendid efforts in a time of great emergency that our troops were provided with necessary ammunition and supplies.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. He came to France with a base hospital unit, which he established. Later he organized and commanded the first large hospital center at Bazoilles. The success of this center in caring for a large number of sick and wounded was due in a large measure to his high professional attainments, zeal, and extraordinary executive ability.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 32d Division during the period of its training in the United States and in France, he contributed largely to the organization and efficiency of that division. As chief of the Field Artillery Section of the office of the Chief of Artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, he perfected the field artillery training system in France, and by his marked ability for organization and his able supervision of that training, rendered services of great value.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He served with credit as commander of trains and military police of the 27th Division. Later, in command of the 107th Infantry, 27th Division, he proved himself to be an energetic and resourceful leader during the operations against the Hindenburg line and those on the La Selle River. After being promoted to brigadier general he continued to render valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces as commander of the 53d Infantry Brigade, rendering conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces. Forces.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

He served creditably as commanding officer of the 321st Field Artillery, 82d Division, giving proof of conspicuous military attainments. Through his tireless energy and technical skill as an artillerist his regiment gave most effective assistance to the infantry which it supported, and at all times to the infantry which the infantry in the corrections required. furnished whole-hearted cooperation to the infantry in the operations against the enemy.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. For services as chairman of the War Department board of contract adjustment.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As regimental conimander of the 104th Field Artillery, 27th Division, he demonstrated professional attainments and ability of the highest order. By his sound tactical judgment and superior knowledge of artillery he most successfully directed his units in support of the 157th Infantry Brigade in the operations north of Verdun, Nov. 4 to 11, 1918. By keeping his elements close to the attacking Infantry he contributed in no small measure to the success of the Infantry brigade in these operations. He rendered services of conspicuous merit and signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

DELANEY, MATTHEW A......R-Waymart, Pa. B-Waymart, Pa. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer, Base Hospital No. 10, at Le Treport, France, from May 6, 1917, to March, 1918, he displayed treless energy and military attainments of a high order in the efficient operation of this important hospital on the western front. By his marked devotion to duty and splendid administrative abilities, great numbers of our own and allied sick and wounded were cared for, resulting in the saving of many lives. His services were of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

DELANO, FREDERIC ADRIAN______ R—Washington, D. C. B—China. G. O No. 47, W. D., 1921.

Colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as deputy of the Director General of Transportation, American Expeditionary Forces, in connection with the evacuation of American troops to the ports of embarkation, France, and later in connection with the work of the liquidation commission.

*DELANO, JANE A R—Washington, D. C. B—Watkins, N. Y. G. O. No. 61, W. D., 1919.

Director, Department of Nursing, American Red Cross.

She applied her great energy and used her powerful influence among the nurses of the country to secure enrollments in the American Red Cross. Through her great efforts and devotion to duty 18,732 nurses were secured and transferred to the Army Nurse Corps for service during the war. Thus she was a great factor in assisting the Medical Department in caring for the sick and wounded.

Dengler, Frederick L R-Hot Springs, Ark. B-Hot Springs, Ark. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to American Red Cross.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member of the intelligence section of the General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces, he efficiently organized and directed with rare ability the operation of the subsection dealing with the enemy's man power, war material, economic conditions, prisoners and documents, including the enemy press. Later he was sent to the United States to expedite the organization and training of the intelligence personnel of the division selected for overseas service; and also to assist in the coordination of the work of the Intelligence Section of the American Expeditionary Forces with that of the War Department. In all these positions he displayed rare judgment, great initiative, and unremiting devotion to duty.

DERBY, RICHARD R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920. Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
For services as assistant chief of staff, G-3, 28th Division, from Sept. 15 to Nov. 15, 1918. In this position he displayed untiring energy, sound professional judgment and tactical skill, and unremitting attention to duty, thus contributing extremely valuable services to the 28th Division in its operations against the enemy.

DE TARNOWSKY, GEORGE______ R—Chicago, Ill. B—France G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As sanitary inspector of the 2d Division, and in charge of the front-line hospitalization and evacuation of the wounded during the active operations of the division in the Marne area, and later as division surgeon during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, he demonstrated high professional attainments, excellent judgment, and gallantry in the execution of his important duties. Due to his energy, the sanitary units under his control were amply provided with facilities for the proper care of the sick and wounded in the field. He has given services of significant worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
In organizing and commanding American Red Cross Military Hospital No. 5, American Expeditionary Forces. Notwithstanding the serious deficiency in personnel and material, Colonel de Tarnowsky, by his energy and efficient administration, received and treated great numbers of wounded evacuated to the Paris district during June and July, 1918.

DEWEY, BRADLEY.

R-Pittsburgh, Pa.
B-Burlington, Vt.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army, retired.
General Devol, first as depot quartermaster and later as zone supply officer in San Francisco, handled the service of supply and service of transportation on the Pacific coast during the war, being responsible for the supply of troops serving in the Philippines, Hawaii, Siberia, and Alaska and the camps on the Pacific coast. Ile handled this large responsibility with ability, good judgment, and conspicuous success.

 Colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.

As chief of the gas defense production division in achieving under most trying circumstances remarkable results in supplying the American Expeditionary Forces with sufficient number of gas masks of high grade and of improved design.

DICKMAN, JOSEPH T R-Wapakoneta, Ohio. B-Dayton, Ohio. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1920. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He organized the supply section of the General Staff of the 1st Army and successfully administered this important section during all the operations of that command. The results obtained by his untiring efforts and brilliant professional ability had a marked influence on the successes attained by the 1st Army.

Major general, U. S. Army.

For services as commander of the 3d Army, American Expeditionary Forces. He commanded the 3d Division and contributed in large measure to success in hurling hack the final enemy general attack commencing July 14, 1918. He participated in the offensive operations northward to Vesle River; commanded the 4th Army Corps from Aug. 18 to Oct. 11, 1918, including the operation of the reduction of the St. Mihiel salient, and the 1st Army Corps during the Meuse-Argonne operations from Oct. 12 until after the armistice. Later he commanded the 3d Army of Occupation at Coblenz, Germany.

Dickson, Robert A.
P. R-Waterford, N. Y.
B-Lansingburg, N. Y.
G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

Dodd, Townsend F....R-Waukegan, Ill. B-Anna, Ill. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

D'OLIER, FRANKLIN. R—Riverton, N. J. B—Burlington, N. J. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

DONALDSON, THOMAS Q.____ R—Greenville, S. C. B—Greenville, S. C. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

DONAVIN, KIRKWOOD HARRY R-Columbus, Ohio. B-Delaware, Ohio. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

DONOVAN, WILLIAM J.

R—Buffalo, N. Y.
B—Buffalo, N. Y.
G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

Medal of honor and distinguished-service cross also awarded.

DOREY, HALSTEAD. REST, 114151840.

R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—St. Louis, Mo.
C. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Lieutenant colonel, Sanitary Corps, U. S. Army.
As officer in charge of the administrative division in the office of the chief surgeon, American Expeditionary Forces, by his foresight, executive ability, and unusual knowledge of administrative details he successfully organized and directed a record system which functioned on a highly efficient basis thorughout the World War, thereby rendering, in a position of great responsibility, conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

For services as chief of the Heavy Artillery section of the carriage division of the office of the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacity he was charged with the design and development of all railway and other heavy artillery; and later as chief of the engineering division of the office of the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacity he was charged with the design and development of all articles of ordnance supplied to the U. S. Army.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
For services as assistant chief engineer, 1st Army, a position of great responsibility. During the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations he administered the first engineer troops and the organization, plans, and field work of the engineer plans, operations, and information section and other engineer enterprises conducted in the 1st Army. By his energy and keen application he rendered services of much worth.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services rendered in connection with the organization and administration of the spruce production activities of the Bureau of Aircraft Production while serving as officer in charge of the spruce production division and president of the United States Spruce Production Corporation.

Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.
He organized the aviation training school at Issoudon and successfully conducted the negotiations for the first purchase of aeroplanes from allied governments for the use of the American Expeditionary Forces. He later served with distinction as chief of the supply section, Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces, and as technical adviser and information officer of the Chief of the Air Service, 1st Army.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division, he handled the regiment so brilliantly under severe conditions throughout the St. Mihiel operation, Sept. 12-13, 1918, and the Meuse-Argonne operations, Sept. 30 to Nov. 11, 1918, that the regiment demonstrated an unnsually high degree of efficiency and morale. He repeatedly displayed superior tactical judgment and knowledge of artillery, and by his exceptional ability, leadership, and devotion to duty rendered the maximum support to the Infantry of the 1st Division in effectively executing the most difficult missions assigned to him, thus rendering conspicuous services to the American Evreditionery. Forces ing conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army. He displayed marked ability in the organization and efficient administration of the American salvage depot at St. Pierre des Corps, of which he was the commanding officer. To his untiring zeal and constant devotion to duty is due the success with which this plant, the largest industrial undertaking in the American Expeditionary Forces, was operated.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As inspector general of the services of supply, by his energy, sound judgment, and able management he organized and brought to a state of marked efficiency the Inspector General's Department in the services of supply. He proved a most potent factor in raising the standard of discipline throughout the command, rendering services of conspicuous worth.

Commander, U. S. Navy. For services as chief of staff of the commander, Cruiser and Transport Fleet, Newport News division.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As battalion commander 165th Infantry, 42d Division, during its operations in the Baccarat sector July 28-31, 1918, he demonstrated high professional attainments and marked ability. He displayed conspicuous energy and most efficient leadership in the advance of his battalion across the Ourcq River and the advance of his battalion across the Ourcq River and the advance of his battalion across the form the advance of his battalion across the first his battalion across the form the advance of his battalion across the first his battal the capture of strong enemy positions. In October, 1918, as lieutenant colonel he commanded the same regiment with marked success and distinction in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. His devotion to duty, heroism, and pronounced qualities of a commander enabled him to successfully accomplish all missions assigned to him in this important operation. From Jan. 3 to Mar. 3, 1919, as inspector instructor, Provost Marshall General's Department, he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He commanded with distinction the 4th Infantry, 3d Division, during the battle of the Marne, the advance from the Marne to the Ourcq, and in the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives. It was his regiment that led the advance to the Ourcq, capturing Charmel, Charmel-Chateau, Villardelle Ferme, and Roncheres. The successes attained by his command were greatly influenced by the high qualities of leadership he continually displayed in all these augustines. played in all these operations.

DORR, GOLDTHWAITE H....R-New York, N. Y.
B-Newark, N. J.
G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

DORSEY, FRANK M.....R—Cleveland Heights, Ohio. B—Dresden, Ohio. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

DOWELL, CASSIUS M .... R—Terre Haute, Ind. B—Landes, Ill. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1924.

DOYLE, LUKE C.....R—Worcester, Mass.
B—Worcester, Mass.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

awarded.

DRISCOLL, THOMAS A. R—San Mateo, Calif. B—Virginia City, Nev. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Assistant director of munitions.

His assistance to the director of munitions in procuring supplies and equipment for the Army and his subsequent activities in the settlement of the complex contractual relations resulting therefrom were of signal value to the United States and its Army.

Colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
As a civilian and as chief of development division, Chemical Warfare Service, he has displayed fine technical skill and administrative ability in developing materials and processes which have contributed greatly to the achievements of the Chemical Warfare Service during the war.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As assistant to the provost marshal general, Apr. 10 to Sept. 3, 1917, he assisted in the administration of the selective service law, being charged with the responsibility of the appointments of all local and district draft boards. As judge advocate, 26th Division, Sept. 3, 1917, to Jan. 2, 1918; chief of staft, 26th Division, Jan. 2, 1918, to Apr. 17, 1918; lieutenant colonel, 102d Infantry, and for part of period commanding officer of that regiment, Apr. 17 to June 13, 1918; G-3, 26th Division, Sept. 15 to Dec. 31, 1918, he displayed sound tactical judgment, administrative and executive qualities of a high order, and unremitting attention and devotion to his duties, thus rendering services of great value to his Government in positions of great responsibility.

Major, Sanitary Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant regulating officer, G-4, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he arranged the schedules of hospital and medical supply trains with marked ability and succeeded in maintaining those schedules, despite numerous difficulties. His aggressive action in time of emergency, whereby he surmounted unforeseen obstacles, together with the excellent performance of his duties, were material factors in the alleviation of much activation and in the expiral of many lives around the wounded sont from suffering and in the saving of many lives among the wounded sent from the front.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
From his experience as ordnance officer of the 1st Division during its early months in France he rendered valuable service in assisting the Chief of Ordnance, American Expeditionary Forces, in formulating the policies for the supply and maintenance of ordnance for subsequent divisions. Later he performed important work in charge of the machine gun and small arms division in the office of the Chief of Ordnance, American Expeditionary Forces, and finally rendered service of a high order in representing his Government as American member of the Angle-American Tank Commission.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For conspicuous service in the organization of the Motor Transport Corps.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He served as chief of control bureau, office of general purchasing agent, American Expeditionary Forces. Through his office, for the purpose of coordination and approval, passed all the purchases of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, and due to his highly efficient organization in connection with the supply procurement work, close and harmonious relations were sustained at all times with the French Government. His unusual tact, marked ability, and great energy in a position of great responsibility were of incalculable benefit to the supply service of the American Expeditionary Forces.

As chief of the Pittsburgh ordnance district, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation at an times the greatest degree of intelligent and enhances cooperation between the Ordanace Department and manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of munitions in a minimum time; and also as chairman of the Pittsburgh ordanace district claims board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $210,000,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army,
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 91st Division, during the operations of the division in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, and during the advance from the Lys to and beyond the Scheldt River, by his keen foresight, discriminating judgment, and organizing ability he was able at all times to give to his commanding officer accurate and complete information of the enemy dispositions and to furnish valuable assistance in the preparation of all attack orders, thereby rendering services of inestimable value to the success of the division.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. "Upon him as chief of staff of the 1st Army devolved the important duty of organizing the headquarters of this command and of coordinating the detailed staff work in its operations in the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives. His tact, zeal, and high professional attainments had a marked influence on the success that attended the operations of the 1st Army.

G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

DUNCAN, GEORGE B. R—Lexington, Ky. B—Lexington, Ky. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

DUNLAP, WILLIAM R.—R-Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Dubois, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

DUNWOODY, HALSEY..... R—Scranton, Pa. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

EARLE, RALPH
R-Worcester, Mass.
B-Worcester, Mass.
G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

EASBY-SMITH, JAMES S.——R—Washington, D. C. B—Tuskaloosa, Ala. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1920.

Captain, chaplain, 165th Infantry, 42d Division, U. S. Army.
He performed with distinction his combined duties as regimental and division chaplain, stimulating the work of all with whom he came in contact. When his division was in rest areas, he was tireless and devoted in his efforts to help all with whom he served. Whether in the front-line trenches or in an attack, he was with the troops, encouraging them to greater effort, an example of fearlessness and devotion to duty, helping to care for the sick and wounded, administering to the dying, and arranging for the burial of the dead.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He commanded the 70th Infantry Brigade, 35th Division, during a part of the Meuse-Argonne offensive with great distinction and marked ability. By his painstaking energy, zeal, and great initiative he proved to be a material factor in the successes of the division.

Major general, U. S. Army.

Arriving in France with the first contingent of American troops, he commanded in turn a regiment, brigade, and division with conspicuous success. In the command of the 77th Division in the Baccarat sector his sound military judgment, energy, and resolution were important factors in the successes gained. Later, in command of the $2d Division in the Argonne-Meuse offensive, he proved himself a brilliant leader, with great force and energy.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. Promoted in turn captain, major, lieutenant colonel, and colonel, while serving with the Infantry regiments of the 28th Division, he displayed unusual administrative, executive, and organizing ability and sound judgment. Ilis brilliant leadership of his battalion in action against the enemy, and later, that of the regiment, testified to the nnusual skill and soldierly qualities of this officer. Colonel Dunlap's services contributed in a marked degree to the successful operations of the 28th Division and the American forces in France.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
For services as chief of the positive branch, military intelligence division, General Staff. To his untiring energy, zeal, and ability the efficiency of the service of gathering, collating, and distributing military information is largely due.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of supply and assistant chief of Air Service, by his energy, tact, and executive ability, he built up an efficient supply service, capable of meeting the program for material, airplanes, motors, and equipment. He established and maintained excellent relations with the allied military authorities. His service was marked by exceptional administrative ability, comprehensive knowledge of the needs and conditions of the service, and whole-hearted devotion to his important tasks.

Admiral, U. S. Navy.

For services as chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, Navy Department, during the World War, in which position, by his close cooperation and energetic efforts, he greatly assisted the War Department in the arming of its troop and cargo transports.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
For services to the Government in connection with the administration of the selective service law during the war. To all of the tasks assigned him he brought an indefatigable energy and rare unselfish devotion, without which their accomplishment would have been impossible.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the chief quartermaster, American Expeditionary Forces, from July 23, 1917, to Jan. 31, 1919. During this period he served as chief of the finance division of the chief quartermaster's office and successfully handled the numerous complex financial questions arising in the American Expeditionary Forces in France, England, and Italy. He also performed the duty of chief disbursing officer for the American Expeditionary Forces in procuring and transferring funds for disbursement by the finance officers of the several services, until the establishment of the financial requisition officer. The success with which these offices of great responsibility functioned was due largely to his exceptional ability, devotion to duty, and conspicuous services.

Director of lumber, War Industries Board.
For services in connection with the operations of the war industries board during the World War. In his position as director of one of the sections of the board he rendered, through his broad vision, distinguished eapacity, and business ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As director of lumber, he rendered through his untiring efforts and devotion to duty exceptionally valuable service to the War Department in connection with the procurement of lumber for the Army.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Charles Edgar. Director of lumber, War Industries Board.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as officer in charge of the construction division, Signal Corps, aviation section. Being a trained engineer with exceptional capacity for organization and execution, he was placed in charge of the construction division, Signal Corps, and had complete charge and responsibility for all buildings constructed for the Air Service, which consisted of 27 aviation fields, 9 depots, 2 experimental stations, as well as many minor activities. He originated and installed the system of securing lands for all aviation fields, securing grants and gifts of all facilities, including water and electric lights. He was responsible for the conception, design, and production of the all-steel demountable standard hangar adopted by the Army and Navy for use in the Air Service. By his untring energy, sound judgment, and large grasp of construction problems, he has rendered services of inestimable value to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

 Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 305th Sanitary Train, consisting of the 317th, 318th, 319th, and 320th Field Hospitals and later as division surgeon, 80th Division, a position of great responsibility, he maintained suitable dressing stations and provided for the continuous evacuation of the wounded in an exceptionally efficient manner under conditions of almost constant fire.

 Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He was placed in charge of the medical service at Brest at the time when it became the chief port of debarkation for American troops and at a period when the arrival of troops in unprecedented numbers, and with many sick, overwhelmed all medical arrangements for their care. By his great resource fulness he successfully overcame the many difficult problems that were presented.

EDWARDS, OLIVER
R—Chesterfield, Mass.
B—Chesterfield, Mass.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
Due to his rare ability and high professional attainments he was selected to organize the machine-grun training center, the success of which was, in a large measure, due to his zealous and energetic administration.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, with the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia, he organized and directed the intelligence service of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia in a most able manner and under most trying circumstances. By his keen foresight, discriminating judgment, and brilliant professional attainments, exercised through his efficiently established organization, he was able to keep his commanding general well and fully informed at all times. His tireless energy and his keen insight into local conditions gave him a masterful grasp of the situation, which contributed materially to the success of the forces in Siberia. He rendered most conspicuous services of inestimable value to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

EISENHOWER, DWIGHT D.... R-Abilene, Kans. B-Greyson, Tex. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922. Lieuteuant colonel, Tank Corps, U. S. Army.
While commanding officer of the Tank Corps training center from Mar. 23, 1918, to Nov. 18, 1918, at Camp Colt, Gettysburg, Pa., he displayed unusual zeal, foresight, and marked administrative ability in the organization, training, and preparation for overseas service of technical troops of the Tank Corps.

 Vice chairman of committee on supplies, Council of National Defense. His energy, courage, business ability, and foresight did much to enlist American industry in the service of our country and thus make possible the prompt and proper equipment of our armies with clothing and equipage.

 Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As quartermaster at Langres and at the regulating station at Is-sur-Tille, his energy and thorough knowledge of methods and standards of supply have been of the greatest value to the Government, particularly while depot quartermaster at Is-sur-Tille, during a period when the successful operations of some 20 divisions were dependent upon receiving supplies from that depot.

ELTINGE, LEROY
R-Kingston, N. Y.
B-South Woodstock, N. Y.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As a member of the operations section, General Staff, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he exhibited sound military judgment and foresight in drafting important plans. Later as deputy chief of staff of the American Expeditionary Forces throughout 'he period of active operations and thereafter he discharged the important and complex duties of his position with admirable efficiency and by his untiring efforts and devotion to duty rendered conspicuous service to the Government.

ELY, HANSON E.

R—lowa City, Iowa.

B—Buffalo Grove, Iowa.

G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.

Distinguished service cross also awarded.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He commanded, with skill and marked ability, a regiment in trench operations north of Toul, west of Montdidier, and during the attack at Cantigny. Later as a brigade commander during the Aisne-Marne and St. Mihiel offensives and in the attack on the strong enemy position of Mont Blanc Ridge; and as a division commander during the latter phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, he demonstrated rare qualities of leadership.

EMBICK, STANLEY D.
R.—Boiling Springs, Pa.
B.—Greencastle, Pa.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member of the American section of the Supreme War Council, by his high professional qualifications, his breadth of vision, and his sound military judgment, he has rendered invaluable aid in solving the many complex problems that have come before the Supreme War Council.

EMERSON, HAVEN-R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief epidemicologist of the office of the Chief surgeon, American Expeditionary Forces, where he perfected a system of keeping daily checks on all of the many contagious diseases which afflicted the American Expeditionary Forces. Much sickness and many lives were saved by this system, the practical working of which was due to the experience and tireless energy of this officer.

EMERSON, THOMAS HENRY

R—Arcata, Calif. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

EMMONS, HAROLD H..... R—Detroit, Mich. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

ENNIS, WILLIAM P. R—New York. B—San Francisco, Calif. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

ENOCHS, BERKELEY.... R-Ironton, Ohio. B-Ironton, Ohio. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

ERICKSON, HJALMER R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Norway. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

ERSKINE, JOHN

R-New York, N. Y.

B-New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Erwin, James B.
R—Savannah, Ga.
B—Savannah, Ga.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

EVANS, ROBERT K.
R—Mississippi.
B—Jackson, Miss.
G. O No. 4, W. D., 1923.

EXTON, CHARLES W.R.—Clinton, N. J.B.—Clinton, N. J.G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

FAIR, JOHN S .... R. John S R—Altoona, Pa. B—Dakota, Nebr. G. O. No. 81, W. D., 1919.

Faison, Samson L.R.—Faison, N. C. B.—Faison, N. C. B-Faison, N. C. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

FARNSWORTH, CHARLES'S..... R—Clarion, Pa. B—Lycoming County, Pa. G. O. No. 111, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of Staff, G-3, of the operations section of the 5th Army Corps, be performed his important duties with marked zeal. By his rare technical skill in originating and developing plans for operations against the enemy he rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant, United States Naval Reserve Force.
For services as Chief of the Engine Production Department of the Air Service.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As director of the department of matériel, school of fire, for Field Artillery at Fort Sill, Okla., from May 9, 1918, to Aug. 30, 1918, his untiring energy, devotion to duty, exceptional qualifications for the task he had to perform, were directly responsible for the splendid organization developed.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff, 39th Division, from August, 1917, until August, 1918, by his marked efficiency, loyal devotion to duty, and high military attainments, he played an important part in the successful organization and training of that division. Later, as assistant chief of staff, G-3, 4th Army Corps, from September, 1918, until April, 1919, he performed many duties of great responsibility in a birthy markering are represented by the chief of staff, G-3, 4th Army Corps, from September, 1918, until April, 1919, he performed many duties of great responsibility in a birthy markering are staff. in a highly meritorious manner, rendering services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the 26th Infantry, 1st Division, in all the operations east of the Aire River from Oct. 1 to 11, 1918, he rendered most meritorious service by displaying marked tactical ability, courage, and resourcefulness in the handling of numerous critical situations, thus enabling his regiment to advance steadily to all its objectives.

As chairman of the educational commission, he devoted himself with tireless energy to the problem of developing educational opportunities for the American soldiers in France while they were awaiting repatriation. To his rare educational ability, breadth of vision, and initiative is due, in a large measure, the success of the educational program of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. With sound technical skill, initiative, and untiring energy, he assisted in the organization and training of the 6th Division, and commanded with distinction the 12th Infantry Brigade during its operations in the Vosges sector, and during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Nov. 1 to 11, 1918. His rare quality of leadership and unremitting devotion to duty were material factors in the successful operations of his division, contributing markedly to the accomplishments of the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army, retired. As department commander, Philippine Department, between Aug. 5, 1917, and Aug. 5, 1918, he handled many difficult problems arising in that department with rare judgment, tact, and great skill.

Colonel, Infantry, U.S. Army.
As assistant G-5, General Headquarters, France, a position of great responsibility, he had complete responsibility for the control, supervision, and inspection of the detachments of American students in French Universities, which was part of the educational system of the American Forces in Germany. He performed all his duties with exceptional efficiency and rendered services of much value.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
He organized and operated the remount service, controlled the purchasing of fuel and forage for the Army, and organized and started into operation the conservation and reclamation division. By his enthusiasm and energy valuable results were obtained.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He commanded with great credit the 60th Infantry Brigade, 30th Division, in the breaking of the enemy's Hindenburg line at Bellicont, France, and in subsequent operations in which important captures were made, all marking him as a military commander of great energy and determination.

Major general, U. S. Army. In command of the 37th Division, his efficient leadership and military ability were important factors in the successful operations in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, and later proved their worth when this division served with the French and Belgian forces in Belgium.

FELAND, LOGAN.

R—Hopkinsville, Ky.

B—Hopkinsville, Ky.

G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service ere cross also awarded.

Felton, Samuel M.....R.—Chicago, Ill.
B.—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 18, W. D., 1919.

FENTON, CHAUNCEY L.....R—Lowellville, Ohio.
B—Edinburg, Pa.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

FERGUSON, HARLEY B. R-Waynesville, N. C. B-Waynesville, N. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

FERGUSSON, FRANK K.....R—Riddleten, Tenn.
B—Riddleten, Tenn.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

FIEBEGER, GUSTAV J.... R—Akron, Ohio. B—Akron, Ohio. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

FIFE, JAMES DOUGLAS.....R.—Charlottesville, Va. B.—Charlottesville, Va. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

FINNEY, JOHN M. T.....R.—Baltimore, Md. B.—Natchez, Miss. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

FISHER, WILLIAM A., Jr....R.—Baltimore, Md.
B.—Baltimore, Md.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

FISKE, CHARLES NORMAN.....R—Upton, Mass.
B—Jaffrey, N. II.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. In the forcing of the crossing of the Escault River, Belgium, in November, 1918, and the establishment of a bridgehead thereat he demonstrated his ability as a leader. The successful operations of his brigade in this and in ensuing actions were greatly influenced by his efforts.

Colonel, U. S. Marine Corps.
As lieutenant colonel and second in command of the 5th Regiment, United States Marine Corps, 2d Division, he had an important function in the training of that organization, and he participated creditably in its operations in the Aisne defensive and the fighting in the Chateau-Thierry section. Having taken command of his regiment as colonel shortly before the battle of Soissons, he led it with extraordinary skill throughout the remainder of its engagements, giving proof of the highest qualities of leadership and unceasing devotion to his important duties.

Director general of military railways.

In supervising the supply of railway material and the organization of railway operation and construction troops, by his energetic and loyal service he has contributed materially to the success of the Army in the field.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of a section of the General Staff during the period of demobilization and reorganization of the Army, he has rendered conspicuous service in the solution of intricate and important problems pertaining to the scientific ntilization of the commissioned personnel of the Army.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief engineer of the 2d Army Corps and later of the 2d Army, he demonstrated
As chief engineer of the 2d Army Corps and later of the 2d Army, he demonstrated as chief engineer of the 2d Army has foresight and skill in directing Important technical operations he was a notable factor in the successes of the combat troops, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commandant of the Coast Artillery training center at Fort Monroe, Va., he rendered specially meritorious and conspicuous service in organizing and administering that center and in the preparation and execution of the plans for the organization, training, and equipment of the units of Coast Artillery for oversea service.

Colonel, professor of civil and military engineering, U. S. Military Academy. As head of the department of civil and military engineering he for 26 years instructed, both personally and by textbook, the officers of the Army in the principles of warfare, principles later fruitfully applied by many of these officers as commanders in the World War.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
In command of Base Hospital No. 21, he served with distinction with the British Expeditionary Forces. He was later assigned to duty in the office of the chief surgeon in charge of hospital planning and construction, precurement of permanent buildings, establishment of hospitalization, liaison with the French authorities, the General Staff, and with the Engineers. In the performance of these multifarious duties he displayed conspicuous ability.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He rendered distinguished services in the organization of surgical teams, for the purpose of affording expert surgical aid to the wounded in the immediate vicinity of the battle field. He has done much to standardize the practice of surgery in war, and giving so freely of his professional experience and skill he has in many ways rendered services of exceptional value to the Government.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief sanitary inspector, American Expeditionary Forces, by the tireless application of his many years of military experience to correct abuses and secure uniformity and efficiency of hospital administration in the hospitals of the American Expeditionary Forces, he rendered services of great value to the Covernment. the Government.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

Due to his great energy, excellent judgment, and unusual knowledge of the personnel capabilities of surgeons, he made it possible to organize surgical teams and distribute surgical personnel in a manner which made it possible for evacuation hospitals to function under the greatest difficulties in spite of personnel shortage.

Captain, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy.
As force medical officer, his untiring energy, his foresight in sanitary inspection of ships, and his close cooperation with the Army authorities contributed greatly to the successful outcome of our oversea operations.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

In charge of the training section of the General Staff, this brilliant officer perfected and administered the efficient scheme of instruction through which the American Army in France was thoroughly trained for combat in the shortest possible time. By his great depth of vision, his foresight, and his clear conception of modern tactical training he has enabled our forces to enter each engagement with that preparedness and efficiency that have distinguished the American Army in each battle.

FITCH, ROGER S.....R.—Buffalo, N. Y.
B.—Buffalo, N. Y.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army,
As chief of staff, 86th Division, Aug. 25, 1917, to Nov. 21, 1918, he displayed the highest professional qualifications; by his tireless energy and devotion to duty he rendered conspicuous service to the Government. While chief of staff, 86th Division, he voluntarily performed the duties of assistant chief of staff, 6-3, with the 89th Division during the limit advance of that division from the Bois-de-Bantheville during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. In November, 1918, he was assigned to duty as G-3, 7th Army Corps; in this position of great responsibility he rendered service of great value and contributed materially to the success of that corps.

FLAHERTY, JAMES A....R.—Philadelphia, Pa. B.—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus. His high leadership and service rendered the Army of the United States were conspicuous.

Chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of the Mesves hospital center, France, during the World War, she rendered invaluable assistance and made possible the efficient nursing of over 20,000 patients at one time. Her good judgment in dealing with very dillicult personnel problems, her tact, and splendid example resulted in an unusually high standard of nursing efficiency at this center, in spite of the most trying physical conditions. She displayed marked executive ability and professional qualities in directing hundreds of nurses in the care of the sick and wounded.

FLEMING, ADRIAN S.....R.—Louisville, Ky.
B.—Midway, Ky.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier General, U. S. Army.

He commanded with distinction the 158th Field Artillery Brigade, 83d Division, displaying aggressive leadership and the highest professional attainments. He contributed materially to the successful operations of the Infantry units to which his brigade was attached during the Meusc-Argonne offensive by the timely and accurate artillery support furnished by his regiments.

FLETCHER, FRANK F.....R.—Oskaloosa, Iowa.
B.—Oskaloosa, Iowa.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Rear admiral, U. S. Navy, Navy representative, War Industries Board. In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War as a member of the board he rendered, through his broad vision and distinguished capacity, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—narked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As one of the service representatives on the board his sound judgment and wide knowledge of military and naval matters contributed markedly to the successful prosecution of the war.

FIINT, JOSEPH M R-New Haven, Conn. B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
When placed in a position of great responsibility as commanding officer of Mobile Hospital No. 39 at Aulnois-sous-Vertuzey, France, he used extraordinary skill and sound judgment in the organization and operation of that unit, the first of its kind in the American Expeditionary Forces. In its formative period he was faced by great and unforeseen difficulties, but with unfiring energy and genius he surmounted all obstacles, making his unit a model for all those subsequently organized.

Captain, Provost Marshal General's Department, U. S. Army.
As chief inspector of the division of criminal investigation on the staff of the provost marshal general, American Expeditionary Forces, he organized, coordinated, and directed this important office in a highly efficient manner. The successes achieved by this section are largely due to his sound judgment, untiring efforts, and exceptional ability, and were of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

FOGG, OSCAR H......R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

For services as engineer in charge of the organization, establishment, and performance of the American Ordnance Repair Arsenal in France. In this great undertaking he displayed exceptional zeal, keen foresight, and sound judgment, and by his undaunted perseverance he established these extensive and highly important repair facilities, thereby rendering service of inestimable value, contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

FOOTE, ALFRED F R—Holyoke, Mass. B—Mooers Forks, N. Y. G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As battalion commander during the operations of the 104th Infantry, 26th Division, at Apremont, France, Apr. 10-13, 1918, he demonstrated unusual initiative and marked efficiency and contributed materially to the successful stand of the regiment against the enemy's repeated attacks. As regimental commander during the Champagne-Marne offensive, by his devotion to duty, courage, and superior qualities as a commander he successfully accomplished all missions assigned to him. Later, as division inspector, 26th Division, by his tact, sound judgment, and ability he assisted materially in maintaining the high morale and discipline of the division.

FORBES, CHARLES R. R.—Burton, Vashon Island, Wash. B.—Scotland. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
As division signal officer of the 33d Division he performed his duties with marked distinction, maintaining communication at all times within the division, with adjoining units, and with the higher command. His ability and uniting devotion to duty were great factors in insuring the successes achieved by the division.

FORD, JOSEPH H.....R.—Washington, D. C. B.—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

Colonel Ford organized and commanded a hospital center of 15,000 beds at Allerey, France. Due to his great force and ability, a hospital group was prepared for the care of the sick and wounded during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, when the need of hospital beds was critical. This adequate and efficient hospitalization contributed materially to the conservation of man power and to the subsequent success of our forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 27th Division he rendered valuable services in the operations of this division. By tireless energy, good judgment, and keen foresight he proved to be an important factor in the brilliant military operations of the 27th Division.

FOREMAN, ALBERT WATSON.... R—Wilmington, Del. B—Wilmington, Del. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, First Section of the 5th Army Corps, by his zealous application to his important duties he ably administered the service of supply, movement of troops, and the control of communication of the 5th Corps during the active operations of that unit against the enemy, rendering meritorious services to the American Expeditionary Forces:

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
Commanding the 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division, he gave proof of eminent technical attainments and assiduous zeal. Though handicapped by many adverse conditions due to difficult terrain and determined hostile resistance, he kept his batteries in close support of the Infantry and thereby rendered services of inestimable value during the St. Milhiel offensive and the advance to the Meuse in the last phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

For services as chairman of the commission on training camp activities.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As surgeon at Base Section No. 1, services of supply, a position of great responsibility, due to his thorough training, energy, and ability, he rendered services of great value at this important base port.

Major (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with the 3d Division as assistant G-3 during May and June, 1918, assistant chief of staff G-3 from June to September, 1918; as assistant G-3 lst and 7th Army Corps, from September to November, 1918; and assistant G-3, 3d Army, from November, 1918, to July, 1919. By his marked ability, devotion to duty, and high military attainments he contributed materially to the successes achieved by the commands with which he served

FOSTER, REGINALD L....R.—New York, N. Y. B.—China. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
During the Meuse-Argonne offensive from Sept. 26, 1918, to Nov. 11, 1918, he commanded his regiment, the 52d Pioneer Infantry, with marked ability and success. By zealous application to his arduous duties, energetic efforts displayed in the construction of roads, eare of enemy prisoners, police and salvage of the battle fields, and the handling of ammunition and supplies, he contributed materially to the success of the 5th Army Corps during that important operation, thereby rendering meritorious and distinguished services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

FOULOIS, BENJAMIN D.....R—Washington, Conn.
B—Washington, Conn.
G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As Chief of Air Service of the American Expeditionary Forces during the early organization period, he displayed great ability and untiring energy in order to place that service on a firm and efficient basis. He conducted intricate negotiations with the French for the procurement of aircraft material, of sites for Air Service installations and of schools of instruction for the Air Service personnel. Similar negotiations were made by him with the English for the assembly of night bombing planes for our Air Service and for instructions of our personnel in English shops and in English aerodromes. Later he rendered valuable assistance in connection with maintenance of Air Service squadroms at the front.

Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

He rendered notable aid in planning the movements of the night bombing squads of the American Air Service. Later, appointed Air Service commander of the 3d Army, he assisted largely in the joint training of air and ground troops, at all times handling his troops well and establishing liaison between the air and ground forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As production manager and assistant chief of the Bridgeport Ordnance District, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation between the Ordnance Department and manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of numitions in a minimum time, and also as chalrman of the Bridgeport Ordnance District Chains Board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $346,000,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice.

Franklin, Philip A. S., Sr..... R-New York, N. Y. B-Ashland, Md. G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919.

Chairman, shipping control committee. Onatman, simpling connection with the embarkation service of the Army in the division of purchase, storage, and traffic. To his fine technical knowledge and energetic action is due, in a large measure, the efficient jurisdiction over dock facilities and floating equipment which has made possible the large movement of troops and supplies overseas.

FRANKLIN, WALTER S.....R—Baltimore, Md. B—Ashland, Md. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

Lieutenant colonel, Army Transport Service, U. S. Army.

As officer in charge of embarkation service in the troop and eargo division of the Army Transport Service, a position of great responsibility, by his energy, tact, and initiative, arrangements were effected whereby a large share of the British ocean passenger tonnage was made available for the American use, and whereby additional allied and neutral tonnage for the return of the American Expeditionary Forces was procured. He has rendered service of pushs value. of much value.

FRASER, LEON R-New York, N. Y. B-Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

Major, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
For services as assistant judge advocate of the services of supply. In this capacity he bore an important part of the responsibility consequent upon deciding a wide variety of legal and administrative questions, including the reviewing of court-martial cases, the preparation of opinions, and the solution of the many problems which grew out of the interpretation of United States Statutes, Army Regulations, General Orders, and French and international law involved in the business operations of the American Expeditionery, Forces tionary Forces.

Labor commissioner, War Industries Board.
In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War, as a member of the board he rendered, through his broad vision, distinguished eapacity, and organizing ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As labor commissioner he contributed largely to the successful mobilization and conservation of man power for war industry. His untiring efforts and devotion to duty in this connection contributed markedly to the successful operations of the supply system of the Army.

FRIES, AMOS A.....R.—Central Point, Oreg. B.—Debello, Wis. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As chief of the Chemical Warfare Service he was charged with the important task of training and equipping our troops for a form of warfare in which the American Army had had no experience prior to the present war. Both in securing proper defensive measures against gas and in developing new methods for its use as an offensive agency, he performed his arduous duties with marked success, thereby rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Experience. Expeditionary Forces.

Major (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
From Oct. 19 to Nov. 11, 1918, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, he rendered highly meritorious services as assistant chief of staff, G-3, 78th Division. In this position of great responsibility he displayed rare judgment in the selection of points in the line for attack and in the designation of forces to be used in the attack. As acting chief of staff of his division from November, 1918, until February, 1919, he displayed high professional attainments, unfailing energy, and devotion to duty, contributing in a material way to the success of his division.

FULMER, JOHN J.....R—Reading, Pa. B—Amityville, Pa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As director of the Infantry Specialists' School at Langres he achieved a notable success in the efficient training of thousands of officers. He also rendered invaluable service while a member of training section of the General Staff by establishing uniform and effective methods of instruction in musketry training throughout the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
In charge of the troop movement subsection of G-3, 1st Army, from its organization until he became chief of staff, 1st Division, he was responsible for and supervised the movements incident to the concentration of troops for the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives of the 1st Army, which involved many thousands of men and was accomplished with the greatest success. His untiring, painstaking, and energetic efforts had a marked effect on the success of these major operations.

FURLOW, JAMES WADSWORTH R—Americus, Ga.
B—Americus, Ga.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
While on duty in the Motor Transport Corps his brilliant conception and able administration were largely responsible for the organization and highly successful operation of the plan for upkeep and maintenance of motor vehicles

*GALBRAITH, FREDERICK W., Jr.... B—Vatertown, Mass
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As regimental commander of the 147th Infantry, 37th Division, by his energy and ability he organized, trained, and brought his regiment to a high state of efficiency and commanded it throughout its operations in the Meuse-Argonne and in the Flanders offensives of the Lys and of the Escault River, He has rendered services of conspicuous worth.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Esther G. Galbraith,

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As judge advocate of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia he organized this important department and administered its affairs with conspicuous efficiency. His marked legal ability, sound judgment, and untiring efforts were important factors in the splendid work of his department, and he at all times handled with great success the various military and international problems with which he was confronted. He contributed materially to the success of the forces in Siberia and rendered conspicuous services in a position of great responsibility. of great responsibility.

*Garpner, Augustus Peabody_____ R—Hamilton, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

GARDNER, FULTON Q. C.
R.—Fort Smith, Ark.
B.—Lafayette Springs, Miss.
G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

GAUCHE, EDWARD E.....R-New York, N. Y.
B-Lerado, Ohio.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

GERLACH, FRANK C.....R.-Wooster, Ohio.
B.-Wooster, Ohio.
G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He commanded with marked distinction the 59th Infantry during the attack on the Vesle. In this command he displayed those high qualities of ability, leadership, and personal courage that marked him as a determining factor in the successes achieved by the 4th Division.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.
Resigning as a Member of Congress to serve under his reserve commission as colonel, Adjutant General's Department, in 1917, he served first at head-quarters, Eastern Department, Governors Island, N. Y., and later as adjutant, 31st Division. At his own urgent request he was appointed major, 121st Infantry, 31st Division, and commanded a battalion in that regiment until his death. His entire service was characterized by untiring zeal, devo-tion to duty, and marked success. His splendid example of patriotism will always serve as an inspiration to his countrymen. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, formerly Mrs. Augustus P. Gardner, now Mrs. C. C. Williams.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. For services as secretary of the General Staff.

Fuel administrator.

ruei administrator.

During the progress of the war, by his conduct of the Fuel Administration, he stimulated the production, conserved the use, and supervised the distribution of those supplies of fuel necessary for the support and transportation of the Armies of the United States, the maintenance of industry, the production of war supplies, and the health and well-being of the civil population upon which the supercept a research to the control of the the successful prosecution of military activities depended.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. In charge of the locomotive and car repair shops at Nevers, he carried out the installation and operation of this plant, exhibiting rare executive ability and engineering qualifications of the highest order.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As chief of motor transportation section, office of the assistant chief of staff, G-4, American Expeditionary Forces, he showed unusual ability, tireless energy, and a comprehensive grasp of details in preparing plans for the organization and operation of a general headquarters reserve of motor transportation. Later, as deputy assistant chief of staff, G-4, at advance general headquarters at Treves, Germany, in coordinating the plans for the reception and disposition of enemy war materials, he successfully handled a problem requiring great tact and high professional attainments, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S.

Lieutenant coinei, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.

Charged with the responsibility for the operation of the statistical and personnel divisions, services of supply, and for the work of all personnel adjutants, functioning under the statistical section, Adjutant General's Office, General Headquarters, stationed at all base ports during the repatriation of the American Army, he displayed administrative and executive ability of a high order, unusual resourcefulness, and sound professional judgment. He organized and maintained a service that covered the entire theater of operations, exclusive of the zone of the armiss during the entire period of military extivity. clusive of the zone of the armies during the entire period of military activity. By his fitness and aptitude for the grave responsibilities placed upon him, his tireless energy and unceasing devotion to duty he contributed materially to the successful operations of the services of supply and the American forces in France.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As lieutenant colonel, 146th Infantry, 37th Division, from May, 1917, until October, 1918, he organized and developed to a high state of efficiency a training school for commissioned candidates at Camp Sheridan, Ala., and the divisional training school in the Baccarat sector, France. Later, as colonel, 145th Infantry, 37th Division, he commanded his regiment with marked success during the Ypres-Lys offensive, showing at all times great energy, resourcefulness, and splendid leadership, thereby contributing materially to the successes achieved in this important operation.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as officer in charge of the sales and disbursing division of the Signal Corps. With unusual ability and skill be conducted the financial affairs of the Signal Corps and handled the negotiations with such tact and energy that Signal Corps property urgently needed was secured, inspected, and delivered to depots with the minimum of delay. Later, in the negotiations connected with the disposal of Signal Corps plants and stocks, he again performed his exacting duties in a highly meritorious manner, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility.

GHORMLEY, ROBERT LEE.... R-Moscow, Idaho. B-Portland, Oreg.

G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919

GIBBS, GEORGE S. R—Harlan, Iowa. B—Harlan, Iowa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

GIGNILLIAT, LEIGH R ..... R—Culver, Ind. B—Savannah, Ga. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

GILCHRIST, HARRY L. R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Waterloo, Iowa. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1921.

GIRL, CHRISTIAN.....R—Cleveland, Ohio.
B—Elkhart, Ind.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

GLASSFORD, PELHAM D .... R—Carthage, Mo.
B—Las Vegas, N. Mex.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

GLEAVES, SAMUEL R.—R—Wytheville, Va.
B—Independence, Va.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

GLENNAN, JAMES D.R.-Washington, D. C.B.-Rochester, N. Y.G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Commander, U. S. Navy. For services as assistant director of Overseas Division, Naval Overseas Trans-portation Service.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He served with distinction as chief of the general construction section in the office of the director of construction and forestry. Charged with the supervision of important engineering construction projects, he gave proof of high professional attainments and keen foresight, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the chief signal officer, American Expeditionary Forces, much of the efficiency of the Signal Service in the zone of advance was due to his splendid ability and to his skill in the handling of the tactical and technical operations of the Signal Corps organizations attached to the service at the front.

Lieutenant colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. As officer in charge of the personnel subsection of G-1, general headquarters from October, 1917, until August, 1918, he displayed unusual foresight, excellent judgment and resourcefulness in the conception, organization, and operation of the entire replacement system at general headquarters. By his constant devotion to duty, his great ability for original work, and his high professional attainments he materially contributed to the efficiency of the staff work at general headquarters, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As G-2 of the 84th Division from Oct. 6, 1917, until Nov. 9, 1918, and of the 37th Division from Nov. 9, 1918, until Mar. 15, 1919, he displayed an unusual devotion to duty and military attainments of a high order, which enabled him to place the intelligence sections of both divisions on a high plane of efficiency. From Mar. 15, 1919, to June 27, 1919, as the United States' representative on the Interallied Food Commission, by rare tact, great energy, and marked executive ability he solved with conspicuous success many perplexing problems of supply in our occupied area.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the delousing and bathing services of the American Expeditionary Forces, by his superior administration and splendid efficiency he contributed materially to the success achieved by the Army at the ports of Brest, Bordeaux, and St. Nazaire in the return to the United States of the American Expeditionary Forces.

For services rendered in the organization of the production section, motors branch, Quartermaster Corps, which designed and produced the standardized motor truck.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. He served creditably at the Saumur Artillery School, at the First Corps Artillery School, and as commander of a regiment of field artillery during the Chateau-Thierry campaign. Subsequently, upon being promoted to the grade of brigadier general, he displayed high military attainments and unceasing energy as commander of the 51st Field Artillery Brigade, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Vice admiral, U. S. Navy.

As commander of the cruiser and transport fleet, his untiring energy, close cooperation, and wide decisions contributed greatly to the successful oversea operations of the transport fleet, resulting in the successful transportation of the United States forces abroad.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As G-3 of the 42d Division he displayed military attainments of a high order, being constant in devotion to his exacting duties. In the operations section, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he handled all questions arising in that section pertaining to the arrival, location and issuance of orders for movements of units in the American Expeditionary Forces. In the solution of the perplexing problems which arose he brought to his task a high faculty for organization, coupled with sound judgment and a comprehensive grasp of service conditions. a comprehensive grasp of service conditions.

Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army. As classification officer for the Air Service in the Casual Officers' Depot, Blois, Schassmatton other for the Air service in the Castia Officers Depot, 1908, France, through his untiring energy and sound judgment he developed an efficient system of classification, which was of great assistance to the American air forces. Later, as a representative of the Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces in Italy, he was charged with many and intricate negotiations with the Italian Government, which he conducted with rare intelligence, sound judgment, and successful results.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

In charge of the hospitalization division in the office of the chief surgeon, he directed the establishment, equipment and operation, as well as the evacuation service, of all the American hospitals in France. By his keen foresight, untiring energy, and administrative ability he solved successfully the numerons problems which confronted him, rendering services of the highest value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Godson, William F. H....R—New Bedford, Mass. B—England. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 144, W. D., 1918.

GOLDTHWAIT, JOEL E.... R—Boston, Mass. B—Marblehead, Mass. G. O, No. 59, W. D., 1919.

GOODALL, HARRY W..... R—Boston, Mass.
B—Wells Beach, Me.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

GOODRICH, ANNIE W.____ R.—New York, N. Y. B.—New Brunswick, N. J. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

GOODRICH, CHARLES C..... R-Orange, N. J. B-Akron, Ohio. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Goodwin, Robert E______ R—Concord, Mass. B—Cambridge, Mass. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

GORDON, WALTER H. R—St. Landry Parish, La. B—Wilkinson County, Miss. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

WILLIAM C R—Tuscaloosa, Ala. B—Mobile, Ala. G. O. No. 144, W. D., 1918.

GORRELL, EDGAR S. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army. For services while serving as military attaché at Berne, Switzerland.

Major general, U. S. Army. For services in reorganizing the Quartermaster Department and in organizing and administering the Division of Purchase, Storage, and Traffic during the war.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member of the Medical Corps he has, by his unusual foresight and organizing ability, made it possible to reclaim for duty thousands of men suffering from physical defects. He has thereby materially conserved for combat service a great number of men who would have been lost to the service.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U.S. Army. For services while in command of the gas hospital of the Justice Hospital group from the beginning of the St. Mihiel offensive until October, 1918.

Contract nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As organizer and first dean of the Army School of Nursing, by her individual energy, ability, and breadth of vision, she enrolled, trained, and placed at the disposal of the Medical Department of the Army 1,800 selected student nurses. These young women were of inestimable assistance to the Army Nurse Corps at a time when there was a shortage of nurses and an enormous influx of patients in Army hospitals because of the influenza epidemic. Through her efforts there was put into operation a system of training of student nurses which contributed in a remarkable degree to the success of the Medical Department in the saving of hundreds of lives during the World War.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. As chief representative in England of the Liquidation Commission he displayed unusual professional ability, tact, resourcefulness and sound judgment. As executive officer in the office of the chief purchasing officer, Ordnance Department, American Expeditionary Forces, he coordinated and supervised the activities of that office and maintained cordial and effective relations with the French Ministry of Armament. The grave and important duties performed by Colonel Goodrich were of immeasurable value to the Government, and contributed markedly to the successful operations of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, of the 78th Division, he rendered excellent services; as a student at the Army General Staff College at Langres he was eminently successful; as a member of the G-2 section at American Expeditionary Forces he performed duties of great importance; and as director of the haison section of the interallied games committee he demonstrated superior executive ability by the satisfactory management of his many tasks which insured the success of the interallied games.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 101st Field Artillery, 26th Division, from Sept. 11, 1918, to Apr. 28, 1919, by his high standards, exceptional ability, and unusual grasp of the principles of artillery, he rendered conspicuous service during the St. Mihiel offensive, and later during the operations north of Verdun. His sound judgment and tact, his unflagging energy coupled with the very close cooperation he maintained with the Infantry, were of very great assistance to the Infantry in these operations. His high technical attainments and extraordinary activity contributed materially to the success of the operations of his division.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As brigade commander of the 10th Infantry Brigade, 5th Division, he showed great energy and zeal in the conduct of his brigade during the major part of its maneuvers. Later, as division commander of the 6th Division, by his painstaking efforts, he brought his division to a marked state of efficiency, rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army. For services as Surgeon General of the Army in organizing and administering the Medical Department during the war.

Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.
He rendered most excellent service as a member of the United States Aeronautical Commission charged with the selection of types of European aeronautical material to be manufactured in the United States and as the representative of the Air Service with the General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces. In the performance of his many important tasks he displayed good judgment, great energy, and showed that he possessed ability of a high order, which have been of invaluable service to the Government.

Gosman, George II. R......R-New York, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Goss, Byron C R—Princeton, N. J. B—Rochester, Ind. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1924.

GOTWALS, JOHN C. R—Yorktown Heights, N. Y. B—Yerkes, Pa. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

GOWENLOCK, THOMAS R.—R.—Chicago, Ill.
B.—Clay Center, Kans.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

GRAHAM, GEORGE F..... R—Helena, Mont. B—Safe Harbor, Pa. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

GRAHAM, JAMES H ... R—Sound Beach, Conn. B—Louisville, Ky. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of Evacuation Hospital No. 1, Colonel Gosman was confronted with the tremendous task of transporting a group of partly finished barracks into an efficient and systematic hospital. He displayed sound judgment and great organizing ability. As chief surgeon, 4th Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, during the St. Mihiel offensive, he displayed high medical military attainments in the disposition of his units and the provision for evacuation of the wounded and for supplies.

Licutenant colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
As chemical adviser in the office of the Chief of Chemical Warfare Service, later as chief gas officer of the 1st Army Corps, and finally of the 2d Army, by his untiring energy, exceptional ability, and wide knowledge of gases he rendered service of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces in practically every battle in which American troops were engaged, thereby contributing materially to our success.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As chief searchlight officer, American Expeditionary Forces, he rendered conspicuous service in a position of great responsibility and in a field which was practically new to our service. By his unlimited energy, marked inventive faculties, and high technical skill, together with his ever present willingness to cooperate with our allies, he organized and directed with great success an exceedingly advanced technical service for the night protection of troop concentrations, communications, supply and manufacture establishments, in rear areas, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces Expeditionary Forces.

Major (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 1st Division, immediately before the St. Mihiel offensive he displayed resourcefulness, ability, and devotion to duty in securing information under the most adverse circumstances, upon which the attack of the division was based. Throughout the operations of the 1st Division in the Meuse-Argonne advance, Sept. 30 to Nov. 11, 1918, Major Gowenlock demonstrated an unusually high degree of efficiency, courage, and devotion, at all times displaying superior judgment, and seized every opportunity during critical situations to sustain the morale of the command, as well as to furnish division headquarters with indispensable information. By his exceptional ability and devotion to duty he executed the most difficult missions assigned to him, thus rendering important services to the American Expeditionary Forces in the operations against the enemy.

Lieutenant colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
As motor transport officer of the 3d Division and later of the 5th Army Corps during the entire Meuse-Argonne offensive, by his superior ability, skill, leadership, and capacity for organization he overcame most difficult conditions and maintained the transportation of the corps upon which the success of the operations so largely depended.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As quartermaster, 42d Division, during the entire time of its operations from May until November, 1918, by his zeal, indefatigable efforts, and unusual ability as an organizer and administrator, he solved many difficult problems under most adverse circumstances and assured the supply of the division at all times with those articles for which he was responsible, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. In charge of all the engineer depots in France for more than six months during the initial period of our entry into the war, he performed his exacting duties with rare professional ability and unflagging zeal. Later, as supervisor of railroad and dock construction in the office of the chief engineer, he rendered services of great value in connection with development of dock facilities for the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army. As secretary of the American section, Supreme War Council, he was entrusted with the important duty of coordinating the work of the joint secretariat of the Supreme War Council and of the joint secretariat of the Military Representatives of the Supreme War Council, and as a member of the War Prisoners' Commission, Berne, Switzerland, he has rendered conspicuous service to the Government.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As deputy chief of staff of the 1st Army, by his high professional attainments and ability he rendered valuable assistance in the staff work preparatory to and during the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives. As chief of staff of the 1st Army Corps, he displayed the same tact, zeal, and energy which marked the previous character of his services.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He was charged with the construction of the Gievres storage depot and later was appointed Engineer officer of the intermediate section, services of supply, where he was placed in charge of all construction projects west of Bourges. As Engineer officer of Base Section No. 2 and of the Advance Section, S. O. S., be performed the duties with which he was intrusted in a conspicuously meritorious manner. In the many responsible capacities in which he was employed the performance of his duty was characterized by sound judgment and untiring zeal. and untiring zeal.

forces in France.

GRAVES, WILLIAM S.....R.—Gatesville, Tex.
B.—Mount Calm, Tex.
G. O. No. 18, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army. For services as an executive assistant to the Chief of Staff and as commanding general of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. As an instructor at the Army General Staff College, he displayed high military attainments and unfailing energy, performing services of the greatest value in connection with the instruction and training of officers for general staff duty.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U.S. Army. As a member of the operations section of the General Staff, 1st Division, and later as chief of that section, he showed sound judgment in the tactical opera-tions before Cantigny, Soissons, and St. Mihiel. As chief of staff of the lst Division, he was a material factor in the success of the operations against the enemy in the Argonne-Meuse offensive, where he demonstrated ability of a high order.

GREELY, WILLIAM B.....R.—Washington, D. C. B.—Oswego, N. Y. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1924.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
In charge of the forestry section of the Division of Construction in Forestry from Sept. 1, 1918, to July 6, 1919, he supervised the operations of all forestry troops in France. He rendered highly important and valuable service to the Government, contributing markedly to the successes of the American forces in France.

GREEN, FREDERICK W..... R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Rock Island, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Army Transport Service, U. S. Army.

As superintendent of the port of Brest, he organized the task expeditiously and with great ability. Without previous organization or sufficient personnel to aid him, and confronted by many Serious obstacles, he, by sheer force of will, supported by untiring energy, undertook a new work and created the organization which was competent to unload the largest ships in a surprisingly short period of time. His service was most valuable to the American Expeditionary Forces.

GRISCOM, LLOYD C....R-New York, N. Y B-Riverton, N. J G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army. He served with marked ability as adjutant of the 77th Division during the early days of its organization and training. As special representative of the Commander in Chief with the Minister of War of Great Britain, he fulfilled with great distinction and credit the duties of an office requiring ability, tact, and

G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As division surgeon of the 42d Division, and later as chief surgeon of the 1st Army Corps during its operations on the Marne and in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, he displayed qualities of leadership, high professional attainments, and rare judgment in energetically directing the work of the sanitary units under his control in providing front-line hospitalization and evacuation facilities for our sick and wounded in the field.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as chief of the officers' leave bureau, France. By his untiring energy and devotion to duty Colonel Groome rendered a service of great value to the morale of the American Army at a difficult time.

GROVE, WILLIAM R....R—Denver, Colo.
B—Montezuma, Iowa.
G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924.
Medal of honor also awarded.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army. Assistant to the chief of the supply division, Quartermaster General's office, a position of great responsibility, he was charged with the procurement of the subsistence supplies of the Army in the United States and in France, and to him is due the organization of the subsistence division of the for of the Quartermaster General. In cooperation with the Food Administration, he made arrangements for the procurement of all subsistence supplies required for the Army. He rendered services of much value.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. He displayed exceptional ability in planning the organization of Field Artillery brigade firing centers; in April, 1918, established such a center as Fort Sill, and during the remainder of the war displayed rare judgment and high professional attainments in the administration of this center.

GRUNERT, GEORGE
R—White Haven, Pa.
B—White Haven, Pa.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
With remarkable skill, constantly displaying zeal and high military attainments, he performed his exacting duties as assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the lst Corps, during the successive operations at Chateau-Thierry, on the Ourcq and Vesle, and in the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives. By his untiring and painstaking efforts and unusual ability he performed the most difficult tasks, rendering services of great value to the Government.

GULICK, JOHN W.....R.—Goldsboro, N. C. B.—Goldsboro, N. C. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of the operations section and later as chief of staff of the Army Artillery of the 1st Army, he demonstrated a keen conception of all of the tactical situations which confronted the artillery of the 1st Army. By his high professional attainments and sound military judgment, he handled the many complex problems of the 1st Army Artillery with marked skill, and thereby contributed, in no small degree, to the success of this unit in the St. Milital and Mease Argonne offensive. St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. In the national administration of the selective service law from May 4, 1917, to Mar. 26, 1918. As chief of publicity and information under the provost marshal general he successfully conducted the campaign to popularize selechastal general he successfully contacted the campaign a populate size tive service. Later, as acting executive officer to the provest marshal general, he solved many intricate problems with firmness, promptness, and common sense. Finally, as the first chief of the mobilization division of the provest marshal general's office, he supervised all matters relating to the making and filling of calls and the accomplishment of individual inductions. To each of his varied and important duties he brought a high order of ability and remarkable powers of application. His services were of great value in raising our National Army.

GUNBY, FRANK M_______R_Boston, Mass.
B—Charleston, S. C.
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

HAAN, WILLIAM G.....R—Crown Point, Ind. B—Crown Point, Ind. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

HAGERLING, SIDNEY A.... R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

HALE, HARRY C R—Galesburg, III. B—Knoxville, III. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922

HALE, RICHARD K

R-Brookline, Mass.
B-Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As officer in charge of the engineering branch of the construction division of the Army. The success of the engineering features of the Army building program is in large measure due to Colonel Gunby's genius for organization, his ability to judge men and inspire in them a determination to succeed. The services he rendered are of signal worth.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

For services in evacuating and personally caring for the wounded of the 3d Division under heavy shell and machine-gun fire daily during the defensive and offensive operations on the Marne, and great devotion under shell fire in personally establishing battalion aid stations at Chartreves, Jaulgonne, and Le Charmel between July 14 and Aug. 1, 1918.

Major general, U. S. Army.

This officer, in command of the 32d Division, took a prominent part in the Argonne-Meuse offensive and in the brilliant and successful attack against the Cote Dame Marie, covering several days, which deprived the enemy of the key point of the position. His clear conception of the tactical situations involved showed him to be a military leader of superior order.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. For services while commanding the 124th Field Artillery, 33d Division, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives until he was severely wounded.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As division signal officer, 28th Division, during the operations of his division on the Vesle in September, 1918, and later during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Colonel Hagerling by his complete knowledge of his duties, his ceaseless energy, his initiative, and his devotion to duty, regardless of extreme difficulties of terrain and heavy shell fire by the enemy in open-warfare situations, maintained the telephone net of the division intact at all times, thereby enabling the division commander to communicate with all elements of the division, even the front line, and assisting very materially in the control and conduct of the division and in bringing its operations to a very successful conclusion. conclusion

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the services of supply of the American Expeditionary Forces in France his ability for organization, his energy, and his sound judgment were factors in the efficiency of this important branch. By his marked zeal and aggressiveness he greatly added to the successful administrations of the Major general, U. S. Army. While in command of the 84th Division during its organization and training in the United States and after the armistice in command of the 26th Division in France, by his ceaseless energy and the closest personal supervision of the training, discipline, and supply of his commands, he displayed rare qualities of leadership, organization, tact, and judgment. His brilliant professional attainments, his steadfast devotion to duty, and his loyalty to superiors were reflected in the high standards maintained throughout the divisions under his command, and he thus rendered important services to the American Expeditionary Forces and contributed conspicuously to the success of the opera-

Colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, 2d Army Corps, from March, 1918, until April, 1919, he displayed exceptional ability in the organization and administration of that division of the corps staff. With rare tact he assisted in the establishment of most cordial relations with the British organizations with which the corps was serving. He showed excellent judgment and great administrative ability in the handling of important questions in the arrangements for the service of American troops with the British.

Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army In the designing of the Liberty engine and subsequently in the adapting of the Le Rhone engine to the American methods of production and also in pushing to completion the American adaptation of the De Haviland plane.

102444°-27-46

of it is a contract to the con

HALL, HARRISON R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Dayton, Ohio. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

HALLORAN, PAUL S R—York, Pa. B—Camp Wright, Calif. G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

HALSEY, CHARLES W.....R-New York, N. Y.
B-Newark, N. J.
G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

HALSTEAD, ALEXANDER SEAMAN......R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921.

HALSTEAD, LAURENCE R—Riverside, Ohio. B—Riverside, Ohio. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

HALYBURTON, EDGAR M. (42848)...... R-Taylorsville, N. C. B-Stony Point, N. C. G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.

HAM, SAMUEL V. M, SAMUEL V

H—Warrington, Ind.

B—Markleville, Ind.

G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

Distinguished-service cr cross also awarded.

Hambleton, Thomas Edward... R—Lutherville, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

HAMILTON, GEORGE L.
R.—Boston, Mass.
B.—Covington, Ky.
G, O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

HAMILTON, WESLEY W. K. R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

In organizing and assisting in the conduct of training camps in the United States. Later, as chief of staff of the American Embarkation Center at Lo Mans and as chief of staff of the 1st Replacement Depot at St. Aignan, he assisted in the organization of a system of evacuation which insured a very satisfactory low of personnel to ports of embarkation. In these capacities he displayed exceptional efficiency.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with great credit as division surgeon of the 90th Division from the date of its organization throughout its service in the field, displaying sound judgment, marked professional skill, and untiring energy. By enforcing effective sanitary measures he maintained the combat strength of his division, and by his able direction of the medical services he was largely responsible for the proper care of the sick and wounded.

Major, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As deputy of the chief quartermaster, in the service of the 4th section of the General Staff at General Headquarters, a position of great responsibility, in which he rendered services of marked worth in all details relative to the Quartermaster Corps.

Rear admiral, U. S. Navy.
While in command of the United States naval forces at Brest, France, by his superior administration, sound judgment, and splendid cooperation he contributed materially to the success achieved by the Army at the port of Brest in the return to the United States of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As officer in charge of quartermaster schools and assistant to officer in charge of administrative division, office of the Quartermaster General, from April to August, 1917, he rendered valuable service in the organization and operation of these schools. As chief of staff, 84th Division, from August, 1917, to November, 1918, by his marked efficiency, loyal devotion to duty, and high military attainments, he played an important part in the successful organization, training, and operations of that division. Later as assistant chief of staff, 6-3, 1st Army, from November, 1918, to April, 1919, he performed many tasks of great responsibility in a highly meritorious manner.

Sergeant, Company F, 16th Infantry, 1st Division, U. S. Army.

Sergeant Halyburton, while a prisoner in the hands of the German Government from November, 1917, to November, 1918, voluntarily took command of the different camps in which he was located and under difficult conditions established administrative and personnel headquarters, organized the men into units, billeted them systematically, established sanitary regulations and made equitable distribution of supplies; he established an intelligence service to prevent our men giving information to the enemy and prevent the enemy introducing propaganda. His patriotism and leadership under trying conditions were an inspiration to his fellow prisoners and contributed greatly to the amelioration of their hardships.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As colonel, 109th Infantry, 28th Division, he displayed in combat rare qualities of leadership, unusual tactical judgment, and devotion to duty. Severely wounded in action, he returned to duty as commanding officer of troops at Is-sur-Tille, a position of great responsibility, in which he acquitted himself with great credit, contributing materially to the proper functioning of the services of supply, American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
He displayed unusual skill and untiring zeal in organizing and administering the statistical division of The Adjutant General's Office. With no precedent to guide or assist him, he showed marked initiative in this most difficult task, creating a wonderful record of achievement, which is a tribute to his ability and clear-sightedness amid a maze of details. Self-sacrificing in his devotion to duty, he achieved excellent results in all his endeavors.

Lieutenant colonel, Postal Express Service, U. S. Army. For services in organizing and administering the motor dispatch service of the American Expeditionary Forces.

been of great value to the Army.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As adjutant, Base Section No. 3, in 1917-1918, in the initiation, development, extension, and administration of those headquarters, through whose agency vast supplies and over a million troops were forwarded to France, he rendered a service of great value.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
While a member of the General Staff in the early days of the war his judgment and ability were applied to the solution of intricate problems concerning the distribution of the draft. He rendered meritorious service in France both as a line and as a staff officer. The services rendered by him, pertaining to the preparation and development of the reorganization act of June 4, 1920, have

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. For services as assistant director and director of the department of firing in the School of Fire for Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla., from October, 1917, to October, 1918, HARBORD, JAMES G.....R.—Council Grove, Kans. B.—Bloomington, Ill. G. O. No. 136, W. D., 1918.

Harding, John, Jr.... R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No, 14, W. D., 1925. Act of Congress Feb. 25, 1925.

HARJES, HENRY H.....R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—Paris, France.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

HARRELL, WILLIAM F.
R-Marion, S. C.
B-Marion, S. C.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

HARRIES, GEORGE H.
R-Washington, D. C.
B-South Wales.
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of Evacuation Hospital No. 1 he displayed high professional attainments and loyal devotion to duty. Subsequently, as chief surgeon, 4th Army Corps, by his able supervision of the medical and sanitary units under his direction be rendered invaluable services in connection with the care of many sick and wounded.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As a member of the training section, General Staff, he efficiently supervised the technical and tactical training of engineer, gas, and tank troops and the operation of the schools for those services. In the performance of his manifold duties he displayed military attainments of a high order, rendering service of importance to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the Chief Quartermaster, American Expeditionary Forces, in charge of the administrative division, a position of great responsibility, in which he rendered services of conspicuous worth.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As chief of staff of the American Expeditionary Forces, and later as commanding general, services of supply, in both of which important positions his great constructive ability and professional attainments have played an important part in the success obtained by our armies. Commanded Marine Brigade of 2d Division, Belleau Wood, and later ably commanded 2d Division during attack on Soissons, France, July 18, 1918.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

From May 30, 1917, until Oct. 10, 1918, as principal assistant in the supply office of the Quartermaster General, he showed great executive ability, excellent judgment, and a rare understanding of supply problems. On oct. 10, 1918, during the period of urgent demand for animals so necessary to our overseas forces, he became chief of the remount service, and by his knowledge, efficiency, and broad experience he was able to organize and perfect the system for the purchase, collection, and shipment of large numbers of animals to supply these demands. Immediately after the signing of the armistice, he again rendered conspicuous services by instituting the method by which 200,000 surplus animals were promptly and efficiently disposed of, resulting in the saving of an enormous sum to the Government.

Second lieutenant, Air Service Reserve, U. S. Army.
Lieutenant Harding, as assistant pilot of airplane No. 4, the New Orleans, and assistant engineer officer of the United States Army Air Service around-the-world flight from Apr. 6, 1924, to Sept. 28, 1924, displayed sound technical skill, a high spirit of cooperation, initiative, energy, and resourcefulness. His indefatigable energy, good judgment, and personal courage contributed largely to the success of this pioneer flight of airplanes around the world. In the performance of his arduous duties he aided in the accomplishment of an undertaking bringing great credit to himself and to the Military Establishment of the United States.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As chief liaison officer of the American Expeditionary Forces he rendered most valuable and important service in establishing and maintaining cordial relations between the French and American authorities. His efforts materially furthered that deep feeling of understanding which marks the association of the allied Armies.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
With exceptionally sound judgment and marked initiative, he displayed a wide comprehension of existing conditions, solving perplexing problems connected with the establishment and operation of the storage system of the Ordnance Department of the American Expeditionary Forces. He opened first a base, then an intermediate depot, and later an advance depot, accomplishing these tasks in spite of numerous obstacles. At all times tircless in energy he worked to insure an adequate supply of ordnance matériel for the troops at the front.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He served through all operations of the 1st Division in this war, and at all times was conspicuous for his courage, judgment, and leadership. As battalion and regimental commander, he distinguished himself by his exceptionally energetic and efficient command of his units. During the rapid advance of the 1st Division upon Sedan he carried out a most difficult mission of the division in that he successfully covered its right flank in a night march of about 20 kilometers, across broken country, in the face of the enemy. Herein he exhibited the qualities of a most able commander.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As commanding general of Base Section No. 5, he successfully directed the manifold activities at the port of Brest during the time when troop arrivals were at their maximum. He overcame seemingly insurmountable obstacks in coordinating and organizing his important task. Subsequently, upon being sent on a special mission to Berlin in connection with the repatriation of allied prisoners of war, he displayed commendable tact and energy.

many.

HARRIS, CHARLES T., Jr R—Mexia, Tex. B—Mexia, Tex. G. O. No. 77, W. D., 1919.

Coloncl, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
Chief of the American Mission of Powder and Explosive Manufacturers which visited England. Later, as chief of the powder and explosive section of the Engineering Division of the Office of the Chief of Ordnance, he applied foreign methods of manufacture to United States industry so successfully that not only were the needs of the United States fully met, but a considerable surplus of these materials was rendered available for the cobelligerents against Ger-

HARRIS, PETER C....R—Cedartown, Ga.
B—Kingston, Ga.
G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919.

Major general, The Adjutant General, U.S. Army.
During his service in the Adjutant General's Department, his zeal, energy and judgment have been made manifest by the reforms accomplished in record keeping systems in the War Department and in the Army.

Harrison, Charles L......R.—Cincinnati, Ohio.
B.—Cincinnati, Ohio.
G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919.

As chief of the Cincinnati ordnance district, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation between the Ordnance Department and manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of munitions in a minimum time; and also as chairman of the Cincinnati ordnance district claims board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $153,000,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice.

HART, WILLIAM H.....R.—Bath, S. Dak.
B.—Winona, Minn.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
While serving as quartermaster, Base Section No. 1, by his thorough knowledge of methods and standards of supplying troops, his resourcefulness, and comprehensive study of the innumerable details of the largest and most important supply bases in France, he executed the important duties with which he was intrusted in a highly satisfactory and especially efficient manner.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
From May, 1917, until May, 1919, as director of professional services and later as commanding officer, Base Hospital No. 10, surgical consultant, American Expeditionary Forces, member of the Interallied Medical and Surgical Conference, and one of the pioneer instructors in the principles of battle surgery, by his high professional attainments, keen foresight, and untiring energy he solved successfully many problems which confronted him, rendering services of the greatest value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

 Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the utilities section of the construction division, Quartermaster Corps, he was charged with the direction of the manifold activities involved in the maintenance of all fixed properties of the War Department, United States Army cantonments, including buildings and roads, the operation of all utilities, including water, sewage plants and systems, lighting, heating, refrigeration, and power plants throughout the United States. The untiring energy, sound professional judgment, administrative and executive ability displayed by Colonel Hartman contributed in a signal way to the successful operations of the Quartermaster Corps during the World War.

HARTMANN, EDWARD T.....R-Milwaukee, Wis. B-Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He organized the 357th Infantry, 90th division, and commanded it with extraordinary ability during its training period and throughout its active operations. To his energy, zeal, and high qualities of leadership were largely due the consistently high standards of efficiency maintained in his regiment and the successes which it achieved in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
In command of the important District of Paris, by his painstaking efforts and able directorship he maintained a high standard of discipline and efficiency among his large command. By his tact and keen perception he handled numerous diplomatic affairs with great satisfaction, rendering services of a superior value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

HARTSHORN, EDWIN S.....R-New York, N. Y. B-Troy, N. Y. G. O. No. 98, W. D., 1919. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the coordination section, office of the executive assistant to the Chief of Staff, his energy, judgment, and foresight have been of exceptional value to the War Department and to the Army.

Staff sergeant, Air Service, U. S. Army.
Sergeant Harvey displayed unusual judgment, technical knowledge, and initiative in the preparation of the airplanes for the United States Army Air Service around-the-world flight and as mechanician and assistant pilot of airplane No. 1, the Seattle, from Apr. 6, 1924, until Apr. 30, 1924, when, due to an accident which resulted in the complete wreck of the airplane, he was forced to abandon the flight. His foresight, perseverance, and mechanical ability were very material factors in contributing to the successful accomplishment of this pioneer flight of airplanes around the world. In the performance of this great task he aided in bringing great credit to the military forces of the United States.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

For services as senior assistant to the Chief of Coast Artillery in the preparation and execution of plans for the effective accomplishment of the duties assigned to the Coast Artillery Corps in the operations in France.

HASKELL, WILLIAM N.R.—Albany, N. Y.B.—Bath-on-the-Hudson, N. Y.G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. He exhibited devotion, skill, and untiring energy as chief of the operations section, 4th Army Corps, during its organization and in the St. Mihiel offensive. As chief of the operations section, 2d Army, he rendered exceptionally meritorious service during the organization of that Army and in the operations north of Toul, October and November, 1918.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As Chief of Heavy Artillery Section, office of the Chief of Artillery of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, a position involving individual and independent responsibility, he performed services of inestimable value in connection with the organization, equipment, and training of the Artillery troops in France, HATHAWAY, LEVY M.....R—Owensboro, Ky. B—Owensboro, Ky. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As surgeon, 33d Division, throughout its organization, training, and combat operations, by his devotion to duty, untiring energy, and high professional attainments, he rendered conspicuous service, maintaining at all times a remarkable health record in the division. His handling of the wounded, involving personal exposure to heavy enemy fire during his daily inspections of the advanced dressing stations, was notable for its extraordinary efficiency. Later, as chief surgeon, 9th Army Corps, he again rendered highly meritorious service to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 184th Infantry Brigade he showed efficient leadership.

Promoted to major generalship in the early part of October, 1918, he took command of the 28th Division, and by his marked ability and great energy he contributed to the successes attained by the division during the time in which he was in command. He rendered services of a high character to the American Expeditionary Forces.

HAYES, EDWARD S.

R-Waterbury, Conn.
B-Waterbury, Conn.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, 78th Division, in the St. Mihiel and MeuseArgonne offensives, he was an important factor in the success of the division and rendered exceptional services by the persistence and courage of his front line reconnaissances; by his originality and the soundness of his plans of relief and attack; and by the clearness and correctness of all orders written by him for the operations of the division. His work was creative and constructive to a high degree and rendered in a highly meritorious manner in a position of great responsibility.

An eminent dental surgeon who placed freely the advantages of his professional attainments and the full facilities of his complete clinic at Paris at the services of the American medical personnel. By the markedly distinguished record made by him in jaw and facial surgery among the wounded of the American Expeditionary Forces, and his able directorate of the school for instruction of dental personnel in maxillo facial and prosthetic surgery, he has rendered services of preeminent worth.

 Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As judge advocate of the 2d Division during its organization in October, 1917, and throughout all its combat operations, he handled with unusual merit many questions confronting him. By his high order of legal ability, broad vision, excellent judgment, and a most comprehensive knowledge of discipline and morale he rendered services of exceptional value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

HAYWARD, WILLIAM

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Nebraska City, Nebr.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As commander of a regiment that was detached from the American Expeditionary Forces and served continuously with a French division, he was charged with particularly responsible and exacting duties, in the performance of which he at all times displayed commendable tact, personal bravery, and military leadership of a high order.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services while in command of the 153d Field Artillery Brigade, 78th Division, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

 Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He served with the 125th Infantry, 32d Division, as lieutenant colonel from the organization until September, 1918, and as colonel from then until June, 1919, displaying at all times military attainments of a high order. By his initiative, force, marked ability, and untiring devotion to duty he contributed materially to the successes of his division in four major operations against the enemy, thereby rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As chief, storage operations section, supply division, Office of the Chief of Ordnance, and later as chief of supply division, he assisted in formulating the general scheme of ordnance storage depots and planned and operated with marked success those assigned to the Ordnance Department. His sound judgment, wide business experience, and administrative ability contributed in a material way to the successful operations of the Ordnance Department.

HEGEMAN, HARRY A.— R—Brookings, S. D. B—Sparta, Wis. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Herr, John K.
R-Fleunington, N. J.
B-White House Station, N. J.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

HERSEY, MARK L. R—East Corinth, Me. B—Stetson, Me. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

*HETRICK, HAROLD S. R-Canterbury, Conn. B-Kansas City, Mo. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

HILDEBRAND, JOEL 11 R—Berkeley, Calif. B—Camden, N. J. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
With technical skill and great energy he organized a large force of trained workmen for the repair of motor transports. He restored to service a great mass of accumulated dead transportation of all kinds and types, and kept in operation much transportation by timely repair. By his untiring efforts the motor transportation was maintained at such a standard as to become an important factor in the successes achieved by the American troops.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He organized the headquarters of the 4th Army Corps and later, as chief of staff of this corps, directed with great success the staff of this organization prior to and during the St. Mihiel offensive. As chief of staff of the 2d Army, he had a prominent part in organizing it as a fighting unit. His tact, energy, and military ability were important elements in the success of this command.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As commanding general, Base Section No. 5, he has displayed brilliant administrative ability in successfully directing the manifold activities under his supervision. By his energy in expediting the completion of the various engineering projects necessitated by the enlargement of Pontanezen Camp and the development of Brest as a foremost embarkation camp, he has rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, 2d Division, from Dec. 28, 1917, to Aug. 3, 1918, and assistant chief of staff, G-2, 2d Division, Aug. 4 to Sept. 19, 1918, G-2 section, General Headquarters, Sept. 20 to Oct. 2, 1918, assistant chief of staff, G-2, 7th Army Corps, Oct. 3, 1918, to Nov. 16, 1918, he displayed untiring energy, sound professional jndgment, and devotion to duty. He rendered valuable services to the Government in positions of responsibility and constitutions. tributed materially to the successful operations of the American Forces in France in actions against the enemy.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.

He showed marked ability as chief of staff of the 30th Division in the capture of Voormersete and Lock Eight in the Ypres section in Belgium in September, 1918, and in the breaking of the Hindenburg line at Bellicourt, France, and the operations against the Selle River and the Sambre Canal, Sept. 29-Oct. 20, 1018. By his corpus and 1918. By his energy, zeal, and persistent efforts, coupled with sound tactical judgment, he materially contributed to the success of the operations.

Colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief motor transport officer, 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, he at all times displayed initiative and marked ability. By his high military attainments, sound indgment, and untiring efforts in his tasks he successfully solved the many complex problems involving the supply, conservation, and repair of the motor transportation of the 1st Army during its operations in the St. Mihiel and Mense-Argonne offensives. He has rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. For services as chief of staff, 78th Division, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Major general, U. S. Army. Major general, U. S. Army.

As a brigade commander during the latter part of the Meuse-Argonne operation he exhibited qualities of excellent leadership and sound judgment. His brigade attacked and penetrated the strong enemy position of-Bois-des Loges and wrested this strong point from the enemy. The success of his brigade in this engagement was in a large measure due to his able leadership. Later he commanded with distinction the 4th Division during its operations in the occupied territory.

Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-4, 2d Army Corps, from Feb. 24, 1918, to Aug. 31, 1918, he displayed exceptional ability in the organization and administration of that division of the corps staff. In the supply and equipment of organizations of the corps under the British system and with British materiel he exhibited military attainments of a high order and contributed in a marked degree to the successful preparation for subsequent operations.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to uncle, Andrew J. Clarke.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
For services as chief of a section of the General Staff which had charge of estimates and financial matters pertaining to the conduct of the war and the support of the Army.

Lieutenant colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
As commandant of the Chemical Warfare Service Experimental Field (Hanlon Field), American Expeditionary Forces, a position of great responsibility and also of considerable personal danger, his profound knowledge of chemistry, coupled with his rapid grasp of military problems, enabled him to render services of the utmost value in determining the best means for using gas and gas materials in the field.

HILGARD, MILOSH R. R—Belleville, Ill. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

HILL, ARTHUR D.

R-Boston, Mass. B-France. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

HINDS, ERNEST______ R-New Hope, Ala. B-Red Hill, Ala. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

HINES, FRANK T R-Salt Lake City, Utah. B-Salt Lake City, Utah. G. O. No. 144, W. D., 1918.

HINES, JOHN FORE ... R-Bowling Green, Ky. B-Kentucky. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

res, John L.

R—White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.
B—White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service cross also also awarded.

HINKLE, CHARLES L.... R—Frankfort, Ind. B—Pleasantville, Ind. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

Hodge, Henry W..... R—New York, N. Y. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

HODGES, CAMPBELL B. R-Ruston, La., B-Youngs Point, La. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1922.

*Hodges, George... R—Baltimore, Md. B—Newark, N. J. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army. He organized the operations of the Quartermaster Corps at the important hases of St. Nazaire and Bordeaux, and later established and operated the first American regulating station, through which he successfully supplied a great number of American troops serving in the zone of the Armies and operating at the front. The successful operation of this great station was due directly to his painstaking efforts, his zeal, and great energy.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As assistant judge advocate, services of supply, and assistant chief finance officer, American Expeditionary's rores, positions of great responsibility, he demonstrated marked ability in performing the various tasks assigned to him. He performed important services for the rents, requisitions, and claims service produced and advantaged pathology. ice, and rendered valuable assistance in dealings with the representatives of the French Government in all matters of claims in France.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As judge advocate of the 29th Division from August, 1917, until December, 1918, and of the 8th Army Corps from December, 1918, until April, 1919, his marked legal ability, sound judgment, and tireless energy were important factors in the splendid work of his department. Representing his division as liaison officer at headquarters, 17th Army Corps (French), in October, 1918, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, by his tact and constant devotion to duty he rendered conspicuous services in this important operation.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As Chief of Artillery, 1st Army Corps, commanding general, Army Artillery, of the 1st American Army, and as Chief of Artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, he perfected and successfully directed the organization and training of the Artillery of the American Army in France.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services as chief of embarkation in organizing and administering the embarkation service during the war.

Captain, U. S. Navy.
For services as chief of staff of the commander, cruiser and transport fleet, Newport News division.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As regimental, brigade, division, and corps commander he displayed marked ability in each of the important duties with which he was intrusted and exhibited in the operations near Montdidier and Soissons and in the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse offensives his high attainments as a soldier and a commander.

Lieutenant colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.
For services in connection with the railroad operations of the United States Transportation Corps in France.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

By his sound judgment and untiring efforts he assisted in perfecting the satisfactory organization of the Signal Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces, and he displayed conspicuous merit in his capacity as signal officer of the 1st American Army.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. As general manager of roadways, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed sound professional judgment, technical skill, untiring energy, and devotion to duty, thus contributing in a marked degree to the successes of the American forces in France.

Placed in charge of storage procurement for the Army, he rendered invaluable service in obtaining for the use of the Army an enormous amount of storage space at a cost averaging less than the commercial rate, thereby effecting a very substantial saving and enabling the storage division to meet a most pressing need for space required to mobilize and preserve the immense quantities of supplies gathered for the use of the Army. By his technical knowledge, broad judgment, and energetic action valuable results were obtained.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As acting chief of staff, 31st Division, he demonstrated the highest professional attainments, and through his zeal and never-failing tact he was responsible in a large measure for the development of the high efficiency of that division.

Later, as a member of the War Department General Staff, he rendered most valuable service in the development of the present system of efficiency reporting and in the development of the system of classification of commissioned personnel now in use.

Manager of the troop movement section of the division of operations, U. S. Railroad Administration.

Mr. Hodges arranged all the details of the movement of troops from local draft hard the details of the movement of troops from itself and to boards to mobilization camps, between camps, or from mobilization camps to the ports of embarkation for shipment overseas. Troops in large numbers were moved on short notice, and he was responsible for the successful coordination and carrying out of these movements.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. George Hodges.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As commanding general, Camp Devens, Mass., he displayed unusual administrative and executive ability, sound judgment, and high professional skill. He established a model system of schools and training, organized and trained the 76th Division, and in addition thereto trained for overseas service more than 40,000 men of other units. His untiring energy, devotion to duty, coupled with other outstanding soldierly qualities, contributed markedly to the successful operations of the American forces during the World War.

Lieutenant colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of staff of the military board of allied supply Colonel Hodges provided important liaison between the American member of the board and the General Staff, General Headquarters. His duties, which were varied and complex, were ably performed, often under great difficulties and embarrassment, and they continued to include the responsibility of gathering the data and presenting the report on the supply systems of the allied armies and in the presentation of this completed report, which finally received the approval of his own Government. own Government.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Harry L. Hodges.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
While in command of the 6th Engineers, 3d Division, attached to the British Expeditionary Forces, from Feb. 11 to Apr. 1, 1918, during which time the regiment was engaged in the construction of heavy bridges on the Somme and on fortification and combat duty, because of his high professional ability, his great energy, and devotion to duty he contributed materially to the accomplishments of the forces engaged in those operations. Hodges, John N.
R-Baltimore, Md.
B-Baltimore, Md.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
While serving as representative of the Quartermaster Corps on the general munitions board of the Council of National Defense from April, 1917, until his death, Aug. 5, 1917, he displayed most distinguished ability and performed his manifold duties in a most conspicuous manner in a position of great responsibility at a time of gravest importance. By his tact, foresight, and excellent judgment his services in connection with the development of the vast program of housing and supply for our Army were of material assistance to the successful prosecution of the war and were of signal worth to the Government.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ida C. Hodgson.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
First, as commanding officer, Frankford Arsenal, from March 1918, to March, 1919, where, by his indefatigable energy, outstanding administrative ability, and thorough technical knowledge, he brought to a successful production basis tracer, incendiary, and armor-piercing small-arms ammunition, and supplied substantially all that was used by our troops; later, as acting chairman of the ordnance claims board, where, by his energy, tact, and business ability, he secured the settlement of outstanding obligations, and later, as chief of field service, Ordnance Department, where he perfected the organization controlling the disposition of vast quantities of materials and plants left over from the war.

to the successes achieved during the active operations of the 1st Army Corps over from the war. Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As chief engineer of the 1st Army Corps, by his great energy and marked technical ability he built up a strongly efficient organization, which made itself felt in all operations of the 1st Army Corps and in a great measure contributed at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne. Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As officer in charge of the topographical sections, G-2, of the 5th Army Corps and the 2d Army, he contributed materially toward the success of the operations. Joining the 2d Army staff upon organization, he exercised such energy, judgment, and foresight that remarkable results were obtained in preparing maps for an offensive action and the subsequent occupation of the enemy's

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 12th Field Artillery, 2d Division, during the period from August to November, 1918, a position of great responsibility, he commanded his unit during the offensives of St. Mihiel, Mont Blane, and Meuse-Argonne with much credit. He has rendered important services to the United States.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 7th Field Artillery and the 1st Field Artillery Brigade he with great distinction directed the artillery support of the 1st Division in the attacks on Cantigny and the Soissons salient. His careful judgment and high military attainments were shown in the accuracy and timeliness of the fire from the batteries under his direction, which, despite the difficulties involved, contributed materially to the success of the operations.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As commanding general, Southern Department, where his firmness and tact in handling a threatening situation on the Mexican border materially improved the conditions between the United States and Mexico.

Hoffman, George M.....R.—Wilkes-Barre, Pa. B.—Wilkes-Barre, Pa. G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

HOLABIRD, JOHN A....R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Evanston, Ill.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

HOLBROOK, LUCIUS R ..... R—Sargent, Minn. B—Arkansaw, Wis. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1926.

HOLBROOK, WILLARD A ..... R-Arkansaw, Wis. B-Arkansaw, Wis. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

HONOR, WILLIAM H.
R-Wyandotte, Mich.
B-Canada. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

HOPKINS, JAY P.....R.—Cassopolis, Mich.
B.—Mattawan, Mich.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

HOUGH, BENSON W R-Delaware, Ohio.
B-Delaware County, Ohio.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

HOWARD, CARRIE L ... R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Colusa, Calif. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923

Howell, Willey
R—Fayetteville, Ark.
B—Austin, Ark.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

In charge of general construction in the vicinity of Bordeaux he displayed unusual judgment and great executive ability in the performance of the many duties assigned to him. In addition he rendered valuable service and advice to the other departments of Base Section No. 2 regarding construction.

Lieutenant colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the director, Motor Transport Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, he was charged with the assignment and distribution of motor transport to division, corps, and Army troops, the general supervision of motor transport within the zone of the services of supply, maintaining therein the difficult task of a balanced and efficient motor transport service. In these diment task of a balanced and emecht motor transport service. In these positions of grave responsibility he displayed unusual administrative and executive ability, high technical skill, and unremitting attention to duty, thus contributing markedly to the successful accomplishments of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Licutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
For services in organizing and operating the medical section of the labor bureau, American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the Antiaircraft Artillery Service in the American Expeditionary Forces he performed arduous tasks with distinction, at all times being ceaseless in devotion to his important duties. Displaying marked scientific attainments, he handled perplexing problems with which the service was continually confronted with sound judgment, untiring energy, and a wide comprehension of the needs to be supplied and the facilities available.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. In the hospitalization division of the chief surgeon's office, a position of great responsibility, he had charge of the equipment and installation of hospitals throughout the services of supply in France, and it was due to his ability and energy that these units were so efficiently provided and maintained. He has rendered services of value to the United States.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 26th Division, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, Colonel Horsey, by his complete grasp and knowledge of his duties, by his unfalling devotion to duty, and by his unfalling devotion to kept division headquarters at all times accurately and promptly informed as to the location of our own front lines and enemy troops, thus assisting materially in bringing the operations of the division to a successful conclusion

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army. Colonel, Quartermaster Cops, U. S. Army.
As chief quartermaster of the advance section, services of supply, a position of great responsibility, due to his untiring energy, the supplying of many thousands of troops in this section was successfully carried out and numerous Quartermaster Corps services and activities were organized and expeditiously administered. He has rendered services of great worth.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As regimental commander in the military operations of the 42d Division in the Baccarat Sector, Mar. 24 to June 21, 1918; the second Battle of the Marne, in which the 42d Division participated in the defense of the line east of Chalons, June 28 to July 21, 1918; and in the offensive against Reims, Chateau-Thierry, Soissons salient, July 24 to Aug. 3, 1918.

First lieutenant, chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse at the port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., during the World War, she held a position of great responsibility. To her fell the duty of supervising the nursing departments of all the hospitals at the port of embarkation and the mobilization stations for nurses destined for overseas duty. By her efficiency, energy, and knowledge of administrative detail she added greatly to the proficiency of the Medical Department of the Army at those trying stations.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. In organizing and administering the division of sanitation and the sanitary inspection service of the office of the Surgeon General of the Army he contributed greatly to the efficiency of the military service.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As chief of the Postal Express Service he organized and administered with marked ability the Postal Service of the American Expeditionary Forces. He displayed great breadth of vision and untiring zeal in overcoming the many obstacles that were encountered in the organization of the service of handling mail for our troops in Europe.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, of the 1st Army he organized and directed the operations of this section during the entire operations of the 1st Army. The results achieved by him during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations had a noted influence on the successes gained by the 1st Army and showed him to be an officer of sound judgment and marked ability.

Medal of honor also awarded.

HOYLE, RENE E. DE R.—R—Governors Island, N. Y. B—West Point, N. Y. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

HUBBARD, SAMUEL T. R—New York, N. Y. B—Greenville, N. J. G. O. No, 13, W. D., 1923.

HUEBNER, CLARENCE R. BEBER, CLAIRNEE R.—
R.—Bushton, Kans.
B.—Bushton, Kans.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.
Distinguished-service cross and oak-leaf cluster also awarded.

HUGHES, WILLIAM N., Jr.... R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Columbia, Tenn. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

HUIDEKOPER, FREDERIC L .. R—Washington, D. C. B—Meadville, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

HUME, EDGAR ERSKINE. R—Frankfort, Ky. B—Frankfort, Ky. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 3d Division on its march to the Rhine and during the occupation of the enemy territory he proved himself energetic and capable, exhibiting superb qualities of leadership. He maintained an unusually high standard of efficiency in his unit, rendering eminently conspicuous services as a division commander.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As department commander, Eastern Department, between Aug. 25, 1917, and Jan. 15, 1918, he handled many difficult problems arising in that department with rare judgment, tact, and great skill.
Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Eli D. Hoyle.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As executive officer and later as assistant commandant of the School of Fire for Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla., during the period from November, 1917, to May, 1919, he displayed remarkable tact and excellent judgment, combined with executive and professional ability of a high order, in positions of great responsibility, thereby contributing materially toward bringing that school to a state of maximum efficiency in a time of great emergency.

Major (Signal Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

In the intelligence section, General Staff, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he organized and directed the operation of the battle order subsection, the section responsible for determining the effectives and tactics of the enemy and the location of enemy divisions on the western front. As director of the intelligence school, American Expeditionary Forces, Langres, France, he displayed rare efficiency and grasp of his work. His zeal and administrative and technical ability enabled him to render his Government services of great value in positions of responsibility.

Licutenant colonel, Infantry, U.S. Army.

As captain, major, and licutenant colonel of the 28th Infantry, 1st Division, throughout its training and active operations in France he successfully commanded all cehelons of the regiment, participating with distinction in every engagement from Cantigny to Sedan, reorganizing his regiment after its heavy losses in the first phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, and inspiring it with the will and dash that carried it to the heights of Sedan. By his sound tactical judgment, his unusual leadership, and indefatigable energy he contributed in a marked manner to the various successes of his regiment and of the 1st Division and rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces most conspicuous services in a position of great responsibility.

Captain, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As aid-de-camp to the commander in chicf, American Expeditionary Forces, he performed duties of an exacting nature with peculiar tact, ability, and untiring energy, proving himself sound in judgment and indefatigable in all tasks assigned to him. At all times he served with distinction, rendering executions exercise. exceptional service.

Colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army.
As a member of the Inspector General's Department at the headquarters, services of supply, for an extended period of time, by his unflagging energy, sound judgment, and tact, he handled with conspicuous ability many difficult problems which constantly arose in the execution of his important office. He rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
While he was serving as G-3 and as chief of staff of the 42d Division, hls efforts had an important hearing on the successes gained by the division in the Baccarat sector, at the second Battle of the Marne, the operations near Chalons, Chatean-Thierry, the St. Mihiel salient, and along the Meuse. His splendid judgment and tactical ability were of the greatest value and demonstrated willter, heavyledges of a bide very second to the desired and demonstrated will traveledges of a bide very second to the second sec strated military knowledge of a high order.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As liaison officer of the 33d Division, with the 18th French Division during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Colonel Huidekoper did this liaison work as a Meuse-Argonne offensive, Colonel Huidekoper did this liaison work as a volunteer and at times performed his duties in great danger of his life. work was of exceedingly great responsibility.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services while commanding the 72d Infantry Brigade of the 36th Division in the Meuse-Argonne offensive Oct. 8-28, 1918.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.

As judge advocate of the service of supplies, he most creditably handled the questions brought before him. His sound legal training, his complete knowledge of military administration, and his clear conception of the new and difficult problems involved made his services of most exceptional value.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief medical officer and later as commissioner of the American Red Cross in Serbia, February, 1919, to June, 1920, with untiring energy, unremitting devotion to duty, and with rare administrative and professional skill he organized and operated an American sanitary service, reorganizing hospitals dispensaries, and dressing stations for soldiers and civilians allke, and successfully combating an epidemic of typhus fever which had caused the death of 80 per cent of the Serbian doctors. From June, 1918, to February, 1919, in direct charge of an American base hospital which was later expanded by the addition of Italian hospitals into a composite hospital center in the Italian war zone, he rendered professional services of a highly conspicuous character

HUME, FRANK M. R—Houlton, Me.
B—Bridgewater, Me.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

HUMPHREY, GILBERT EDWIN.... R-El Reno, Okla. B-Abilene, Kans. G. O. No. 77, W. D., 1919.

HUNT, IRVIN L..... R—Point Arena, Calif. B—Boonville, Calif. G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

HUNT, ORA E ... R—Point Arena, Calif. B—Berryessa, Calif. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

HUTCHESON, GROTE. R-Newtown, Ohio. B-Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 18, W. D., 1919.

HUTTON, WILLIAM H. H., Jr.-R.—Detroit, Mich.
B.—Fort Jefferson, Fla. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

IRELAND, MARK I.
R—Chesaning, Mich.
B—Chesaning, Mich.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
For services while in command of the 103d Infantry, 26th Division, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
For services while in charge of the building and organizing of the engineer depot at Norfolk, Va., and later as director of storage, purchase, storage and traffic division, General Staff.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He commanded first a battalion of the 18th Infantry and later the regiment.
He conducted his unit in every action with marked ability and skillful leadership, showing the finest qualities of good judgment, courage, and devotion

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. Colone, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He served with conspicuous success as the officer in charge of civil affairs in the occupied area with the 3d Army and with the American Forces in Germany. With excellent judgment and sound adherence to well-established policies in a field of intricate problems affecting the civil population, he perfected, through his wide comprehension of conditions, an effective organization, which contributed materially to the efficiency of those forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 6th Infantry Brigade, 3d Division, during the greater part of its active operations he achieved notable success, demonstrating high qualities of leadership. Through his exceptional tactical ability his brigade was enabled to overcome desperate hostile resistance during its participation in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. By his efforts he has contributed materially to the brilliant success of his hrigade in that important operation.

Chairman, U. S. Shipping Board. With tireless energy, he surmounted extreme difficulties and increased trans-Atlantic tonnage to an extent to allow of a steady shipment, both of troops and necessary supplies. Unselfish in devotion to duty, sound in judgment, quick to act, he rendered a service to the world.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
Assigned as judge advocate, Army Artillery, 1st Army, he rendered services of marked ability, performing, in addition to his manifold duties, the duties of adjutant general and of inspector general. Later, as judge advocate of the 6th Army Corps, he ably conducted the negotiations arising between the American Expeditionary Forces and the Grand Duchy of Luxemburg wherein he displayed sound judgment, marked zeal, and keen perception of existing conditions. He has rendered services of material worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army.
For services in the administration of the port of embarkation, Newport News, Va., in connection with the shipment of troops overseas.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer, American Red Cross Military Hospital No. 1, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed exceptional ability in the organization and administration of that unit. By his devotion to duty, untiring energy, coupled with professional attainments of a high order, he rendered services of inestimable value in a position of great responsibility in the alleviation of the control of the co tion of the sufferings of our sick and wounded.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief surgeon of the Paris group from June 2 to July 26, 1918, during which period by his good judgment and untiring energy he provided a hospitalizaperiod by his good judgment and untiring energy he provided a hospitalization and evacuation system that insured prompt and excellent care and treatment of the wounded, he furnished the means of saving many lives and provided comfort for the wounded, thereby greatly adding to the morale of the combatant troops of both the American and the French engaged in the second Battle of the Marne.

Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.
As chief of personnel service and later assistant chief of the supply section,
Air Service, he was charged with duties of a varied and difficult nature. He constantly displayed marked zeal and sound judgment in the solution of the important problems of supply and transportation of the Air Service, rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant commander, U. S. Navy.

As force transport officer his untiring energy contributed greatly to the successful oversea movement of troops and supplies.

Colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the repair division, office of the Director, Motor Transport Corps, merican Expeditionary Forces, he displayed sound judgment, executive ability of a high order, and unremitting devotion to duty, thus contributing markedly to the successful operations of the Motor Transport Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces. IRELAND, MERRITTE W......R.—Columbia City, Ind. B.—Columbia City, Ind. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

IRWIN, GEORGE LE R.....R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Fort Wayne, Mich.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Jackling, Daniel C R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Appleton City, Mo. G. O. No. 118, W. D., 1919.

Jackson, Thomas II_____ R-Muskegon, Mich. B-Canada. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Jadwin, Edgar R—Honesdale, Pa. B—Honesdale, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

JAMERSON, GEORGE H ... R—Martinsville, Va. B—Martinsville, Va. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

*JANEWAY, THEODORE C..... R—Baltimore, Md. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

JARMAN, SANDERFORD R—West Monroe, La. B—Boatner, La. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As Chief Surgeon of the American Expeditionary Forces he supervised and perfected the organization of the medical department in France; and to his excellent judgment, untiring efforts, and high professional attainments are largely due the splendid efficiency with which the sick and wounded of the American Army have been cared for.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He commanded with ability the 57th Field Artillery Brigade, 32d Division, during the Marne-Aisne, Oise-Aisne, and Meuse-Argonne offensives. At all times he displayed keen judgment, high military attainments, and loyal devotion to duty. The success of the division whose advance he supported was due, in a large measure, to his eminent technical skill and ability as an artillariet. artillerist.

For services as director of United States Government explosive plants.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As a member of the division of construction and forestry he displayed untiring energy and marked ability in the performance of his important duties. His stupendous task was fraught with numerous difficulties, which he overcame with noteworthy success, rendering services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as brigade commander, 74th Infantry Brigade, 37th Division, American Expeditionary Forces, in operations against the enemy in France and Belgium.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

As executive officer in the office of the Quartermaster General of the Army, and in addition to the duties of that office, charged with the responsibility for the operations of the administrative, personnel, and regulations divisions of that office, he rendered highly important services to the Government. His sound judgment, rare administrative and executive ability, and his unremitting attention to duty were contributing factors in the success of the Quartermaster Corps in the supply of the Army.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the 15th Engineers, he inaugurated the important project at Gievres. Later, in charge of the division of construction and forestry, he brought to this important task a splendidly trained mind and exceptionally high skill. His breadth of vision and sound judgment influenced greatly the successful completion of many vast construction projects undertaken by the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As regimental commander, 317th Infantry, and later as brigade commander of the 159th Infantry Brigade of the 50th Division, he rendered conspicuous service in the organization and training of these units, and in the command thereof during the operations of his brigade in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. Displaying sound judgment, high professional skill, untiring energy, and devotion to duty, he contributed in a material way to the successful operations of his division and of the American forces in France.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of the division of internal medicine in the Surgeon General's Office from June 26 to Dec. 27, 1917, he distinguished himself by his conspicuous service in the organization and development of that division. Standing as one at the head of his profession in America, he was responsible for the selection of many prominent internists for war service, thereby rendering a service of inestimable value to the Government in caring for the sick.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Eleanor C. Janeway.

Lieutenant colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

From Sept. 14 to Nov. 26, 1918, as G-3, and later chief of staff of the commanding general, American Railway Artillery Reserve, with the 1st and 2d American Armies during the Meuse-Argonne offensive and the offensive planned to be launched by the 2d American Army on Nov. 11, 1918, he displayed the highest qualities as an organizer, and by his untiring energy and zeal, good judgment, and general excellence, as well as great technical ability, contributed largely to the success of the command.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant general purchasing agent, American Expeditionary Forces, by excellent judgment, untiring energy, and broad and comprehensive knowledge of business affairs, he solved in a highly meritorious manner many difficult and serious problems of supply which confronted our forces throughout the war. His services were rendered with conspicuous success in a position of great responsibility and were of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As chief of the Heavy Artillery Division, office of Chief Ordnance Officer American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed keen foresight and excellent judgment, combined with professional ability of the highest order, in the development of allied artillery programs and the supply and maintenance of heavy and railway artillery to the troops in France. Later, as chief ord nance inspector of artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, he organized and perfected to a high degree of efficiency the maintenance of the artillery of the 1st Army during the Meuse-Aronne operations, thereby contributing materially to the success of our forces.

Jervey, Henry
R—Charleston, S. C.
B—Dublin, Va.
G. O. No. 144, W. D., 1918.

Major general, U. S. Army.

For services as director of operations, General Staff, and as assistant to the Chief of Staff in preparing and executing the plans involving the mobilization of personnel during the war.

JERVEY, JAMES P.....R.—Atlanta, Ga.
B.—Powhatan County, Va.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the 304th Engineers, 79th Division, he performed his exacting duties with signal ability. His high technical skill and unflagging energy were largely responsible for keeping the roads in condition for the transportation of artillery and large quantities of supplies during the attack on Montfaucon and Nantillois in the latter part of September. By his great efforts he proved a potent factor in the successes achieved during these operations.

Lieutenant, U. S. Naval Reserve Force.
For services as repair oflicer on the staff of the division commander, cruiser and transport force, Newport News, Va.

 Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As commander of the Railway Artillery Reserve attached to the 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, during the Meuse-Argonne operations, he performed his task with energy and marked ability, rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

JEWETT, FRANK B.....R.—Wyoming, N. J.
B.—Pasadena, Calif.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

Licutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

For services in connection with the development of the radio telephone and the development and production of other technical apparatus for the Army.

JEWETT, HENRY C.

R—Buffalo, N. Y.
B—Buffalo, N. Y.
G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
In command of the 182d Infantry Brigade, 91st Division, in the Argonne he displayed exceptional qualities of leadership and tactical ability in important engagements. Later, as chief of staff of the 91st Division, he planned operations with sound judgment and a comprehensive understanding of existing conditions, showing military attainments and initiative of a high order. At all times he was untiring in energy and self-sacrificing in devotion to his exacting duties.

JOHNSON, ARTHUR-R-St. Peter, Minn. B-St. Peter, Minn. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Brigadier General, U. S. Army.
In command of the intermediate section, services of supply, he had the responsibility of forwarding to the front great quantities of supplies and thousands of replacements for the combatant units, in which important duty he displayed untiring zeal and exceptional executive ability.

JOHNSON, HUGH S R-Alva, Okla. B-Fort Scott, Kans. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1926. Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. For services in the Provost Marshal General's office in connection with the planning and execution of the draft laws.

JOHNSON, JACOB C R—Benton City, Mo. B—Marietta, Ohio. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army.
As inspector general of the 1st Army Corps and later of the 1st Army, he performed exacting tasks with distinction throughout the Marne-Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne operations. Both during the months of actual fighting and the periods of training before and after the campaign, he displayed conspicuous devotion to duty, unfailing zeal, and loyalty, acting always with sound judgment.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army
As athletic director, O-5, of the American Expeditionary Forces he was given the important and dilficult task of planning and organizing an elaborate program of athletic training and competitions for American troops, embracing all branches of sport. By his zeal and sound judgment he carried this program to an eminently successful conclusion, thereby rendering an invaluable service in maintaining the morale and physical fitness of our troops during the trying period of repatriation.

 Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
From September, 1917, until May, 1918, as commanding officer, 23d Highway Engineer Regiment, he displayed rare qualities of leadership in the organization and training of the regiment, which later performed excellent services throughout the war. As assistant to the chief of Chemical Warfare Service in France from June until December, 1918, in charge of the offensive division he showed ability of the highest order in the general supervision of operations of all gas troops. From December, 1918, until June, 1919, as acting chief of Chemical Warfare Service abroad, his keen business ability and sound Judgment were important factors in the successful closing out of all chemical warfare activities in the American Expeditionary Forces.

JOHNSTON, GORDON .. R-Birningham, Ala.
B—Charlotte, N. C.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.
Medal of honor and distinguished-service cross also awarded.

JOHNSTON, WILLIAM H ..... R-Cincinnati, Ohio.
B-Cincinnati, Ohio.
G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also

awarded.

JOLY. CHARLES L.

B—Cumming, Ga. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Jones, Glenn I R—Washington, D. C. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

JONES, HARVEY L. R—Baltimore, Md. B—Tuckerton, N. J. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

Jones, Hilary Pollard R—Taylorsville, Va. B—Hanover County, Va. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

JONES, JAMES S R—Wheeling, W. Va. B—Wheeling, W. Va. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

JONES, JOHN C. R-Wynnewood, Pa. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He showed great ability while chief of staff of the 82d Division in the operations in the Argonne area. The force of his energy and his masterful leadership manifested itself in the crowning successes of the division during the operations of this campaign.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As department commander, Northeastern Department, between Sept. It 1917, and May 23, 1918, he handled many difficult problems arising in tha, department with rare judgment, tact, and great skill. Later, as commanding general of the 34th Division, which he took overseas, his marked efficiency, unusual initiative, and military attainments of a high order were important factors in the excellent standard of training attained by the division.

Major general, U. S. Army. During the Argonne-Meuse offensive he commanded with skill and ability the 91st Division in the difficult advance that resulted in the taking of Epinon-ville. Later, in participation with the French, he led his division with marked distinction in the attack on and capture of the important city of Audenarde in the closing operations of the war in Belgium.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. He organized and administered the officers' training camps from the outbreak of the war until July 25, 1918, and thereafter rendered conspicuous service as chief of staff, Southern Department.

Major, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.

By displaying untiring energy and enthusiasm in the performance of his important duties, he developed efficient gas discipline in the 32d Division, resulting in the prevention of gas fatalities. He was zealous and discerning in the training of troops, achieving brilliant successes. His service was marked by self-sacrificing devotion to the welfare and protection of the men who ware with him. were with him.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
In the office of the executive assistant to the Chief of Staff during the World War and the following demobilization period, his tactfulness and initiative in meeting the varied situations presented and sound judgment in passing upon many matters of highest importance contributed materially to the successful functioning of that office during the war. During demobilization his conception and organization of the emergency discharge section of the office not only protected the War Department from impositions but served in a marked degree to preserve the morale of the civilian population during that trying period.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
While surgeon of the 10th Division during the epidemic of Spanish influenza in that command his farsightedness in providing hospital faellities and his energetic and exceptionally efficient action in directing the care of patients resulted in a large reduction of mortality. His services show a rare devotion to duty in that, though himself a sufferer from the disease, his efforts were unabated.

Lieutenant colonel, Provost Marshal General's Department, U. S. Army. In charge of the Military Police School at Autun, France, a position of great responsibility, due to his ability and energy, hundreds of officers and enlisted men were trained as military police for the Provost Marshal Genetal's Department, and were afterwards distributed throughout the American Expeditionary Forces. His work was conspicuous for its thoroughness and important results. He rendered services of much value to the United States.

Rear admiral, U. S. Navy, As commanding officer of the Newport News division of the cruiser and transport fleet, his successful administration and close cooperation with the Army authorities resulted in the efficient joint operations of the Army and Navy at the port of Hampton Roads.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the adjutant general at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed executive ability of the highest order in the efficient administration of the divisions successively assigned to him. Possessed of a keen mind for organization, with sound judgment, tact, and a thorough understanding of the intricate details of the office, he successfully surmounted innumerable obstacles, rendering service of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the Government.

As chief of the Philadelphia ordnance district, in which capacity he mainis einer of the Finagelphia ordinance district, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation between the Ordinance Department and manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of munitions in a minimum time; and also as chairman of the Philadelphia ordinance district claims board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $271,000,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice. JONES, PERCY L.....R.—Cleveland, Tenn.
B.—Bartow Co., Ga.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with marked distinction as commander of the United States Ambulance Service with the French Armies. By the force of his energy, zeal, and ability he brought the units of that service to a high state of perfection. The splendid record held by this service is attributable to his great devotion and untring efforts in accomplishing his tasks.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of Winchester Camp, England, he was directly charged with the transportation of several hundred thousand American troops through England, a task of great magnitude and one involving many difficulties. By his tireless energy and keen application to his important duties he accomplished his task with marked success, rendering services of distinction to the American Expeditionary Forces.

 Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

As quartermaster of the intermediate section, services of supply, American Expeditionary Forces, he performed his manifold duties with marked ability and outstanding successes. He was charged with the supervision of the Quartermaster Corps personnel of over 500 officers and 10,000 enlisted men, with the responsibility for the direction and control of the vast quantity of quartermaster stores required for the intermediate section, consisting of over 270,000 troops, and with the initial supply of four replacement (depot) divisions of over 300,000 troops. He fulfilled this tremendous responsibility with conspicuous and marked efficiency, handling with tact and keen judgment the many complex problems which constantly confronted him. His service was characterized with zealousness, resourcefulness, and farsightedness, and he proved himself equal to every emergency. He rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

JORDAN, CLARENCE L.....R—Monticello, Ga.
B—Monticello, Ga.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

First lieutenant, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. In active charge of the Army ammunition depot system of the 1st American Army, from its organization until the armistice, displaying great technical ability, sound judgment, exceptional zeal and energy, he successfully assured at all times efficient and adequate storage, protection, and issue of all classes of ammunition at the front, contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As senior assistant and executive assistant to the chief of transportation service from Jan. 11, 1918, to Apr. 15, 1919, with untiring energy, rare administrative and executive ability, and unremitting devotion to duty, he rendered service of great value to the Government in perfecting the necessary organization of the movement of troops from encampments throughout the United States to ports of embarkation and thence overseas.

JOY, BENJAMIN

R—Boston, Mass.

B—Roston, Mass.

G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As chief of the fiscal department in the office of the officer in charge of civil affairs in the occupied territory, he has handled problems of a delicate and complicated character with remarkable success, displaying marked administrative ability, breadth of vision, and a comprehensive knowledge of international financial questions.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of staff of the 2d Depot Division, Le Mans, France, in the training and sending forward of replacements and in breaking up combat divisions for replacement he displayed broad professional attainments, a high degree of leadership, and unfailing tact. Later, as chief of the classification and data section, personnel branch, General Staff, he demonstrated rare executive and planning ability in developing a system for the scientific classification of officers with a view to their suitability and availability.

 Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of stall, G-2, of the 42d Division during all its campaigns, by the skillful direction of the intelligence service he proved a material factor in the successes gained by his division. He at all times displayed assiduous application to his important task, rendering services of the utmost value.

JUDSON, WILLIAM V.
R.—Indianapolis, Ind.
B.—Iudianapolis, Ind.
G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921.

JUNKERSFELD, PETER.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services while serving as chief of the American military mission to Russia and military attaché to the American embassy at Petrograd, Russia.

R—Chicago, III. B—Sadorus, III. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As associate officer in charge of the building branch of the construction division of the Army, by his unremitting industry and energy, sound judgment, and knowledge of men he was of the most material assistance in the accomplishment of the construction program of the Army. He performed notable service as executive, organizer, and administrator.

 Brigadier General, U. S. Army.

As chief of the department of military relief, American Red Cross, a position of great responsibility, by his foresight, marked efficiency, and energy he organized the base hospitals, which cared for many of our wounded, and administered the United States Ambulance Service for duty with the French Army, greatly assisting our ally. He rendered services of conspicuous worth to the United States.

KEECH, FRANK BROWNE.... R—New York, N. Y. B—Newport, Md. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

KELLER, WILLIAM L.... R-New York, N. Y. B-Hartford, Conn. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Kelley, Reginald H....R—Berkeley, Calif. B—Fresno, Calif. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

KELLOND, FREDERIC G..... R-Louisville, Ky. B-Canada. G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

KELLY, WILLIAM R-West Superior, Wis. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

KENLY, WILLIAM L.....R.—Baltimore, Md.
B.—Baltimore, Md.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

KENNEDY, MOORHEAD C R—Chambersburg, Pa. B—Chambersburg, Pa. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army. As inspector general of the port of embarkation, Newport News, Va., through his very able control and judgment in the management of his office the shipment of troops and supplies overseas was materially aided.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He took command of a regiment at a critical moment after two unsuccessful assaults had been made by the brigade. He reorganized the regiment under fire and made possible the taking and holding of the Bois-des-Ogons, thereby displaying the highest order of leadership and exhibiting the masterful qualities. ties of a commander.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the Chief of Engineers, U. S. Army, he was instrumental in initiating policies which protected the channels and anchorages of our important harbors from obstruction by enemy aliens. As power administrator on behalf of the United States he organized the power section of the War Industries Board and initiated measures as a result of which the war program of the country was successfully protected against serious delay due to power

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As director of the professional services, Medical Department, American Expeis director of the professional services, Medical Department, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed marked ability in the organization and assignment of the forces at his disposal for service in hospitals at the front and in the rear areas. He was discerning in his knowledge of conditions, using his insufficient personnel to the maximum advantage in relieving the suffering of our sick and wounded, and in obtaining prompt treatment for battle casualties. His comprehensive grasp of the problems which presented themselves resulted in the saving of many lives.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

First as division machine-gun officer and later as commanding officer, 116th Infantry, 29th Division, he displayed sterling qualities of leadership. By his high military attainments, sound judgment, and self-sacrificing devotion to duty he proved to be a material factor in the successes achieved by the 29th Division in the offensive actions in which they participated.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the construction section of the equipment branch, General Staff, he was responsible for the work of that section regarding projects of great magnitude, and his services have been of great value.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

After serving with great credit in the field be took command of the important ports of La Rochelle and La Pallice. By his executive ability and great energy he promptly relieved congested conditions and made possible the uninterrupted flow of necessary supplies toward the front.

Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
For services in The Adjutant General's Department during the war. To his untiring energy and his sound and impartial judgment is due, in a large measure, the efficient action leading to the maintenance of the high standard of commissioned personnel during the war.

Major general, U. S. Army. Major general, U. S. Army.

As Chief of Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces, by his executive ability, clear conception, and broad mental grasp, he was able to overcome many obstacles and placed the training of Air Service personnel on an efficient basis. Later, as Director of Military Aeronautics in the United States, he successfully organized and accomplished the training of personnel for overseas service with a resulting high degree of morale throughout the Air Service and the efficient performance of duties at the front. Serving at the same time as a member of the Advisory Committee and Joint Army and Navy Airship Board, he rendered services of inestimable value to the Government in positions of great responsibility. positions of great responsibility.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As port surgeon, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., he has organized, provided, and administered with conspicuous efficiency all of the hospitals required for the accommodation of our troops going overseas from that port, as well as for the large number of our sick and wounded soldiers returning home

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As a regimental commander during the St. Mihiel offensive and the MeuseArgonne offensive he displayed conspicuous efficiency, marked aggressiveness, and leadership. By his exceptional technical and executive ability he solved many perplexing problems, although much handicapped by losses in men, material, and animals. He at all times rendered invaluable support to the attacking Infantry and proved to be a material factor in the result achieved.

Colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.

As Deputy Director General of Transportation, American Expeditionary Forces, in Paris, France, and later in London, England, he rendered services to the Government of an important and responsible character, his wide experience as a railroad executive, sound professional and technical ability, his untring energy and devotion to duty contributing markedly to the successful operations of the Transportation Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces.

KERNAN, FRANCIS J R—Jacksonville, Fla. B—Jacksonville, Fla. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919. Major general, U. S. Army.

He was intrusted with the important duty of organizing the services of supply of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, and the foundation then laid was later successfully carried to completion. As member of the War Prisoners' Commission, Berne, Switzerland, and of the American section of the Supreme War Council, he has rendered conspicuous services to the Government.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the enlisted men's division of The Adjutant General's Office and of the recruitment of the Army, and later as executive assistant to The Adjutant General of the Army, his sound judgment and unremitting industry were important factors in the efficient administration of The Adjutant General's Department.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As military attaché at Petrograd, Russia, from Sept. 1, 1917, to Feb. 1, 1918, he performed his exacting duties with marked ability under most trying circumstances. As director of the Army General Staff College, American Expeditionary Forces, by his high professional attainments and unfailing energy, he rendered service of inestimable worth in connection with the instruction and training of officers for general staff duty. Later, as a member of the training and instruction branch, War Plans Division, General Staff, he demonstrated sound judgment, great breadth of vision, and keen foresight in the solution of the various difficult problems with which he was confronted.

KEVILLE, WILLIAM J.....R.—Belmont, Mass.
B.—Somerville, Mass.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant eolonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

In command of the 101st Ammunition Train, 26th Division, throughout the period of organization, training, and operations in France. During the Aisne-Marne offensive he provided a continuous and adequate supply of ammunition for the 26th Division and to elements of the 28th, 421, and 4th Divisions over an extensive territory and under all conditions of open warfare. Because of his high professional attainments, initiative, untiring energy, and devotion to duty he rendered extremely valuable services.

Teyser, Ralph S.
R—Thoroughfare, Va.
B—Thoroughfare, Va.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Major, U. S. Marine Corps.

As Assistant Chief of Staff, 2d Division, G-2, from July 26, 1918, to July, 1919, with indefatigable zeal and excellent executive ability he so organized his section as to furnish prompt and comprehensive information of the enemy for the use of the division in its operations in the battles of St. Mihiel, Blane Mont Ridge (Champagne), and the Meuse-Argonne, and in the march to the Rhine.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 89th Division, he displayed military ability of the highest order, contributing to the successes achieved by that division during the St. Mihiel offensive. Later, upon his promotion to the grade of brigadier general, he continued to render valuable services in command of the 36th Artillery Brigade during the remainder of the eampaign.

Kilbreth, John W.
R—Southampton, Long Island,
N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1921.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As director of the department of firing, School of Fire for Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla., from September, 1917, to May, 1918, he displayed professional attainments of the highest and most progressive order. He was primarily responsible for the excellent grounding received by thousands of officers in the principles of artillery firing, including those applicable to open warfare.

KILNER, WALTER G.....R—Syracuse, N. Y.
B—Shelby, N. Y.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

By his personal efforts and efficient labors he organized the machinery necessary to train pilots, and successfully developed this branch of the Air Service. He overcame numerous difficulties inherent in the establishment of such an organization in a foreign country, and it was largely due to his efficiency that the Air Service was able to furnish well-trained personnel to the squadrons at the front. He at all times displayed marked devotion to duty, untiring energy, and sound judgment.

KILPATRICE, JOHN R.....R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

In his capacity as a member of the 4th Section, General Staff, he exhibited exceptional tact and ability in promoting cooperation between the French and American services of transport and supply. He has by his energy, good judgment, and decisive action in the establishment, organization, and conduct of various regulating stations and railheads very materially assisted in insuring a steady and adequate flow of supplies to our armies in their operations.

KIMBALL, GORDON N.....R.—Ogden, Utah.
B—Indianapolis, Ind.
G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As chief of the rents, requisitions, and claims service, advance section, services of supply, from November, 1918, to July, 1919, Colonel Kimball with exceptionally sound judgment, breadth of vision, and marked initiative organized and administered a work of great responsibility and magnitude.

Lieutenant colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. Upon joining the operations division of the General Staff he assumed the responsibility of mobilization of the draft and classification and distribution of troops. His clear judgment, initiative, and energy have done much toward the successful accomplishment of the huge task involved in receiving and placing the drafted forces.

*King, Alfred K R—Erie, Pa. B—Geneva, Ohio.

G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

KING, CAMPBELL.

R — Atlanta, Ga. B—Flat Rock, N. C. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

awarded.

KING, THOMAS W._____ R—Redwood City, Calif. B—Sacramento, Calif. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

King, Van Rensselaer C..... R-Wilmington, N. C. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922.

KINGMAN, JOHN J. R-Chattanooga, Tenn.

B-Omaha, Nebr. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

KLEIN, HARRY T.....R.—Cincinnati, Ohio.
B.—Bellevue, Ky.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

KLOEBER, ROYALL O.....R.—Washington, D. C. B.—Lynchburg, Va. G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1919.

Major, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As munitions officer of the 5th Army Corps he performed exacting duties with untiring energy, displaying high professional attainments and a complete understanding of the needs of the troops he supplied. He personally reconnoitered roads over which transportation was to be made in order that he might keep in touch with changing conditions and be prepared to meet sudden emergencies, in order that the steady flow of munitions to the front lines might be maintained. He readered services of signal worth.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Ruth W. King.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. He served with distinction as chief of staff of the 1st Division in the operations near Montdidier, the advance south of Soissons, and in the attack on the St. Mihiel salient. Later, as chief of staff of the 3d Army Corps during the Argonne-Meuse operations, by his splendid tactical judgment he rendered especially meritorious service.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. Displaying exceptional technical knowledge and comprehension of existing onditions, he ably organized, installed, and operated in the services of supply and in the Army area an extensive chain of repair facilities for the maintenance of ordnance materiel. With tircless energy and unfailing devotion to his important duties he perfected a loyal and efficient organization, capable of meeting all demands made upon it.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He served, with marked distinction as chief of staff of the 28th Division. Later as brigade commander, he planned and directed the operations resulting in the capture by the 65th Infantry Brigade of Chateau d'Aulnois and Marcheville, where he displayed great tactical skill and demonstrated his abilities as a commander.

Major, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As principal assistant to the Chief of Field Artillery, Mar. 23, 1918, to Nov. 11, 1918, he contributed largely to the successful solution of the difficult problems of expansion, organization, and training which then confronted the Field Artillery.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As Adjutant General of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia he performed his exacting duties with high professional skill and administrative ability. The exceptional efficiency of the Adjutant General's Department under his direction was a material factor in the success of the staff work at headquarters. Possessed of a keen mind for organization, with sound judgment, tact, and a thorough understanding of the intricate details of his office, he successfully surmounted innumerable obstacles and rendered service of signal worth to the Government

Colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.
As general superintendent of transportation, American Expeditionary Forces, and as transportation representative with the Armistice Commission, he organized and successfully installed a central car record and a system for distributing rolling stock which were of incalculable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 90th Division he displayed exceptional ability, planning important operations with sound judgment and wide comprehension of the conditions to be encountered. He was unflagging in energy and tireless in devotion to his exacting duties. Constantly confronted by perplexing military problems, he handled them with aggression and achieved brilliant

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. By his initiative, intelligence, and devotion to the study of the French laws on the subject of requisitions and billeting, he has contributed in a marked degree the subject of requisitions and dillecting, he has contributed in a marked each of the highly satisfactory results obtained by the rents, requisitions, and claims service in the conduct of a task of great magnitude. Later, as defending requisition officer, by his high professional attainments and sound judgment, furthered by a keen analytical mind, solved many intricate problems which daily confronted him, in the acquisition of property by lease, and in the requisitioning of billets for our troops.

For services as Assistant Director of Finance. In this capacity he rendered most valuable assistance in the solution of the great financial problems which arose due to the war.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

Near Bethincourt, France, on Sept. 25, 1918, he was assigned the task of placing foot bridges over Forges River and cutting the wire in front of the enemy positions. In this his inspiring leadership and constant supervision were conspicuous. Later he organized the regiment for the Nov. I offensive, which entailed the building of nine bridges, every one of which was completed in time for the Artillery to keep pace with the Infantry. His organization of the work at hand enabled the advance to proceed without delay and also enabled the Infantry to have the support of the Artillery and to keep in close touch with their transport.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief quartermaster and superintendent of the Army Transport Service at the port of embarkation, Newport News, Va., a position of great responsibility, in which he prepared ships for convoy and executed the manifold duties of his office with conspicuous merit.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services in the organization and development of the supply system in the general supply depot, Chicago, Ill.

Koch, Stanley
R—Bozeman, Mont.
B—Bozeman, Mont.
G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As executive officer of the remount service, American Expeditionary Forces, by his zeal, efficiency, and devotion to duty, he has rendered great and beneficial service in the organization of the remount service in the American Expeditionary Forces.

Koehler, Herman J...... R-Milwaukee, Wis, B-Milwaukee, Wis, G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, master of the sword, U. S. Army.

At the beginning of the war he was placed in charge of the physical training in ollieers' training eamps. These and also four divisional camps were personally visited by him. He personally instructed 200,000 officers and enlisted men of the new Army.

KRAMER, HARRY C. R-West Collingswood, N. J. B-Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
In the administration of the selective service law in various capacities in the office of the Provost Marshal General, and as executive officer in that office during the period of the great drafts in the early part of 1918 he displayed superior executive ability, sound judgment, and complete devotion to his duties. His service was of immeasureable value to his Government in positions of great responsibility.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

His energy and thorough knowledge of methods and standards of supply have been of exceptional value, particularly in directing European purchases for the Quartermaster Corps and in the difficult and complex transactions attending the payments to allied and other foreign creditors of the American Government.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As Acting Judge Advocate General for the American Expeditionary Forces he organized and efficiently administered his office, performing exacting duties with marked distinction. His masterful knowledge of military law, his foresight, and practical comprehension of the complex problems involved in his work enabled him to perform it with noteworthy success. His counsel was wise; his decisions were just. His services to the American Expeditionary Forces have been of great value.

Colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff of the $2d Division during the St. Mihiel offensive he displayed military attainments of a high order in the planning of operations of great moment. Later as assistant chief of staff, G-3, 1st Corps, and assistant chief of staff, G-1, 1st Army, during the Meuse-Argonne operations, his initiative, sound judgment, and tireless energy solved difficult problems of traffic control and regulation, playing an important part in the successes achieved.

Krueger, Walter... R—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Germany. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served as assistant in the Bureau of Militia Affairs; assistant chief of staff, G-3, and acting chief of staff, 84th Division; assistant chief of staff, G-3, 26th Division; chief of staff, Tank Corps; instructor, Line School, Langres, France; assistant chief of staff, G-3, 4th Corps; and assistant chief of staff, G-3, 4th Corps; and assistant chief of staff, G-3, 6th Corps. By his high professional attainments, superior zeal, loyal devotion to duty, soldierly character, and his dominant leadership, he has exercised a determining influence upon the commands with which he has served, and has contributed in a marked degree to the success of the military operations of our forces.

Krumm, Louis R.—R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Columbus, Ohio. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As supervisor of radio service of the Signal Corps in France, he organized and placed in satisfactory operation this important branch. The excellent results obtained by our telephonic interception stations are due to his masterful ability and exact scientific knowledge.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As secretary of the General Staff and of the 3d Section thereof, at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, charged with executive duties of a responsible and exacting character, he performed these duties with merited success, displaying at all times a high degree of tact, zeal, and efficiency, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Kumpe, George E.
R-White Sulphur Springs, Mont.
B-Leighton, Ala.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief signal officer of the 3d Army Corps, by his untiring energy, devotion to duty, and excellent technical attainments, Colonel Kumpe established and maintained under great difficulties of terrain and enemy shell fire such thorough signal arrangements as to enable his corps headquarters to maintain communication at all times with the divisions of the corps and adjacent units, thereby greatly contributing to the success of his corps in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the otlicers' division of The Adjutant General's Office his comprehensive grasp of the new situations developing and his technical ability enabled him to perform the duties of his office with rare distinction, thus contributing greatly to the rapid organization of our new Army.

LAHM, FRANK P.

R—Mansfield, Ohio.
B—Mansfield, Ohio.
G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

A balloon pilot of marked ability and scientific attainments, he rendered valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces by his untiring devotion to the innumerable problems which faced the Air Service during its organization in France. His broad experience in aeronautics played an important part in the formulation of policies of the Air Service and was reflected in its successes during the St. Mihiel offensive and subsequently in the operations of the 2d Army.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

As assistant to the chief of the procurement division, later as chief of the procurement division and as a member of the claims board of the Ordnance Department, he has rendered material assistance to the Nation's industry in adjusting equitably outstanding contracts with full justice to employers and employees alike.

*Lampert, James G. B..... R.—Oshkosh, Wis, B.—Oshkosh, Wis, G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He invented, developed, and superintended the production of the standard floating footbridge equipage, which was successfully used by the 1st Army in its attack east of the Meuse, near Dun. His services in connection with the organization and development of the bridge department of the Chief Engineer's office were of inestimable value. He showed ability, great foresight, and exact scientific knowledge, and his work had an important bearing on the successes achieved by our armies.

Porsthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. James G. B.

Lampert.

 Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 127th Infantry, 32d Division, he demonstrated personal courage, marked tactical ability, and military leadership of a high order. The brilliant success he achieved in the capture of Fismes during the Aisne-Marne offensive, and in the taking of Juvigny and the subsequent advance to Terny-Sorny during the Oise-Aisne offensive, was repeated later during the operations of the Meuse-Argonne, when he was given the important task of conducting the attack on La Cote Dame Marie.

LANGEITT, WILLIAM C......R-Millersburgh, Ohio.
B-Wellsburg, Va.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As director of light, railways, and roads, and later as chief of utilities, he displayed great ability and marked breadth of vision. As chief engineer of the American Expeditionary Forces his brilliant professional attainments, untiring energy, and devotion to duty placed his department in a state of efficiency and enabled it to perform its important function in the most satisfactory manner.

Langston, John D.... R.—Goldsboro, N. C. B.—Aurora, N. C. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As executive officer in charge of the selective draft in North Carolina from December, 1917, until September, 1918, by his unusual executive ability, rare tact and skill, great initiative, and resourcefulness exercised at times under most trying and novel conditions which arose in connection with the administration of the selective service act, he achieved a pronounced and conspicuous success in the performance of difficult and highly responsible duties, thereby rendering services of great value to the Government.

Lanza, Conrad H.... R-Washington, D. C. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920. Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As chief of the operations section, Army Artillery, 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, he exhibited a high order of ability and judgment. By his clear tactical conception of complex situations, by his exercise of initiative, hy his untiring energy, and by his self-sacrificing devotion to duty, he contributed in a marked degree to the successful employment of all of the artillery of the 1st Army.

Lassiter, William....R—Petersburg, Va.
B—Petersburg, Va.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 51st Field Artillery Brigade, as Chief of Artillery of the 1st and 4th Army Corps in turn, and as Chief of Artillery, 2d Army, he showed himself to be a leader of conspicuous ability. His energy and sound judgment influenced greatly the successful operations of his commands on the Vesle, at the St. Mihiel salient, and in the Toul sector. He later commanded with skill and marked success the 32d Infantry Division.

LATHBURY, BENJAMIN B.... R.—Philadelphia, Pa. B.—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1921. Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
In the adjustment and settlement of many difficult and intricate claims problems his services were distinguished by zeal, excellent judgment, and a high comprehension of the principles involved and his success has been most marked.

R—Nashville, Tenn. B—Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commander, 114th Field Artillery, 30th Division, he organized, trained, and handled the regiment in a skillful manner during the St. Miliel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. By his marked tactical judgment, knowledge of artillery, and loyal devotion to duty he rendered at all times the maximum of support to the Infantry in all tasks assigned his regiment, thereby rendering in a position of great responsibility services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 151st Field Artillery, 42d Division, he displayed marked qualities of leadership. Maintaining a high standard of efficiency and morale, he constantly kept his regiment in close proximity to the attacking infantry, where he was able to furnish it accurate and timely assistance, which contributed materially to the successes gained.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services in the work of reorganization and administration within The Adjutant General's Department.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As surgical consultant attached to the 2d Division, he served continuously at the front, organizing his forces for the treatment and evacuation of the casualties with skill and marked success. He displayed unusual ability in the operations before Soissons, when in an emergency ho organized, personally led, and directed surgical teams which cared for hundreds of wounded soldiers at a time when adequate hospitalization could not be established.

LEE, HARRY R-Washington, D. C. B-Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919. Colonel, United States Marine Corps.
Having taken command of the 6th Regiment, United States Marine Corps, 2d Division, prior to the attack on the Bois-de-Belleau and Bouresches, he directed the operations of his regiment with remarkable success during all the major operations in which it participated. His ability as a tactical leader and his untiring energy were reflected in the brilliant achievements of his command.

Colonel (Corp of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

In the preparations for the drive on the St. Mihiel salient in September, and for the Argonne-Meuse offensive in October, 1918, he had charge of the detailed arrangements for and the subsequent execution of the operations of the 89th Division. The successes attained by this division were largely due to his splendid staff coordination, marked tactical ability, and sound judgment.

For services as president of the War Camp Community Service.

EE, RAYMOND E

R-Kansas City, Mo.
B--St. Louis, Mo.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As executive officer to the Chief of Field Artillery from Sept. 1, 1918, to the present time, Colonel Lee acted as Chief of Field Artillery for a period of about 10 days prior to the armistice during the absence of the Chief of Field Artillery. After the armistice he successfully planned and executed the demobilization of the commissioned personnel of his arm and also organized and conducted the Field Artillery section of the Officers' Reserve Corps in a most effective manner.

Legge, Alex R—Chicago, Ill. B—Dane County, Wis. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923. Vice chairman, War Industries Board.

In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War. As a member of the board he rendered, through his broad vision, distinguished capacity, and Fusiness ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As vice chairman of the board itself and as chairman of its requirements division he rendered, through his untiring efforts and devotion to duty, exceptionally valuable service to the War Department in matters connected with the supply of raw materials and general munitions to the Army.

Legge, Barnwell R...
R.—Charleston, S. C.
B.—Charleston, S. C.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As company, battalion, and regimental commander of the 26th Infantry throughout hostilities he successfully led his command through each of the offensives of the 1st Division. By his superior tactical judgment, manifest ability, and tircless energy, coupled with unusual leadership, he contributed in a brilliant manner to the success of the 1st Division. Later, as a division adjutant, he gave further proof of the highest qualities of military character, again demonstrating conspicuous service in a position of great responsibility.

LEHMAN, HERBERT II

R-Washington, D. C.
B-New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

While with the purchase, storage, and traffic division of the General Staff as chief of the purchase branch, member of the board of contract adjustment, chairman of the advisory board on sales and contract termination, member of the War Department claims board, and assistant director of purchase, storage, and traffic, General Staff, his large business experience, breadth of vision, and sound judgment have been of linestimable value in formulating and in supervising the execution of the methods and policies followed in the cancellation of war contracts and obligations and in the settlement and adjustment of terminated obligations.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia he gave proof of his great breadth of vision, keen foresight, sound judgment, and tact. By his brilliant professional attainments, coupled with great diplomacy, he handled most ably the many delicate situations with which he was confronted. His fine soldierly qualities were at all times outstanding, and by his masterful grasp of the situation he was able to meet successfully each new and difficult problem with which he was faced. He rendered most conspicuous services of inestimable value to the Government in a place of great responsibility and at a time of gravest importance.

Major general, U. S. Marine Corps.

He commanded the 2d Division in the successful operations of Thiaucourt, Massif Blanc Mont, St. Mihiel, and on the west bank of the Meuse. In the Argonne-Meuse offensive his division was directed with such sound military judgment and ability that it broke and held, by the vigor and rapidity of execution of its attack, enemy lines which had hitherto been considered impregnable.

LEONARD, GRACE E.U.R.-New York, N. Y.B.-Newark, N. J.G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

First lieutenant, chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant director of the nursing service, American Expeditionary Forces, during the World War, she rendered invaluable assistance at the headquarters of Base Section No. 3. She supervised all nursing activities of the United States Army hospitals established in England, and in many ways promoted the general welfare of the nursing staff and the sick and wounded under their care.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of the surgical service of Evacuation Hospital No. 5 during the operations on the Marne, and the St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne, and Ypres-Lys offensives, by his tireless energy, organizing ability, and unusual surgical skill, he successfully demonstrated that war wounds could be operated upon in large numbers in front-line hospitals with limited personnel, thus conserving many lives among combat troops, thereby rendering in a position of great responsibility conspicuous service to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He commanded with distinction the 30th American Division during its successful operations in Belgium with the 2d British Army, and later, with the 4th British Army in the offensive which resulted in the breaking of the enemy's Hindenburg line. During all these operations he exhibited great ability, determined energy, and marked devotion to duty.

Lewis, Frederick W.....R-Atlanta, Ga.
B-Buffalo, N. Y
G. O. No. 105, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As officer in charge of the publication division of The Adjutant General's Office.
To his painstaking efforts, tact, energy, and zeal are due the accuracy with which publications issued to the Military Establishment through The Adjutant General of the Army were drawn and the promptness with which they were distributed.

Lieutenant colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
By his unusual energy, marked ability, and high technical attainments he rendered extremely valuable service by securing first-hand data on the uses and effects of gas and submitting reports of such value that they became fundamentals upon which the gas-warfare policies of the American Expeditionary Forces were thereafter largely based. Later, as chief of the defense division, Chemical Warfare Service, he obtained a high state of efficiency in the protection of our officers and soldiers against enemy gas and furthered the successes of American arms by securing a better and more effective use of gas, especially mustard gas, against the enemy, thereby rendering services of great value to our Glovernment.

 Lieutenant general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 1st Army of the American Expeditionary Forces, he commanded the 1st Army Corps and perfected its organization under difficult conditions of early service in France; energed in active operations in reduction of the Marne salient and of the St. Miniel salient, and participated in the actions in the Forest of Argonne; in command of 1st Army when German resistance was shattered west of the Meuse.

 Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
For services while a member of the G-1 section of the General Staff, General
Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, later as Deputy Chief of Staff, G-1, and later as Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
The brilliant and successful attack of the 164th Infantry Brigade, 82d Division, commanded by him, in the Argonne Forest, showed a spirit of aggressiveness and leadership of a high order. The tactical advantage attained in this action, whereby St. Juvin and Grand Pre were laid open to attack, was largely due to his ability and energy.

Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army. He conducted with extreme devotion to duty and marked zeal the many activities of the War Risk Insurance Bureau in France. Due to his executive ability he contributed very largely to the successful development, extension, and administration of that important service.

LININGER, CLARENCE R—Wabash, Ind. B—Huntington, Ind. G. O. No. 44, W. D., 1919. First lieutenant, 13th Cavalry, U. S. Army.
Lieutenant Lininger, while in action at Parral, Mexico, Apr. 12, 1916, proceeded under fire to the rescue of a dismounted man of his command who was in danger of falling into the hands of the enemy, and, taking him up behind him (Lieutenant Lininger) on his horse, carried him to safety.

LITTELL, ISAAC W.R.—Elizabeth, N. J. B.—Elizabeth, N. J. G. O. No. 105, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of the cantonment division of the Quartermaster General's Office he was charged with the task of building the camps and cantonments of the Army raised in summer of 1917 under conditions imposing almost insuperable obstacles. His completion of this task is a conspicuous example of the exercise of qualities of mind and character making up the highest type of officer.

LIVERMORE, PHILIP W......R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

LLEWELLYN, FRED W_____ R--Seattle, Wash. B--Hillsboro, Oreg. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Longley, Francis F.
R-Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.
B-Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As chief of the production district in which were manufactured practically all the machine guns and automatic rifles supplied for the United States Army and later as special assistant to the Chief of Ordnance, in charge of the production of small arms, automatic rifles, machine guns, small-arms ammunition, etc., he successfully organized the industry of the country for the production of these items to meet the needs of the United States Army.

Captain, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As director of regional and ministerial liaison and later as deputy for the chief liaison officer, he displayed unusual administrative ability and rare judgment.
By untiring effort and devotion to duty, he was largely instrumental in placing American liaison on a sound footing. His forceful personality and keen intelligence contributed largely to the successes achieved by his department. At all times he showed marked initiative, unflagging energy, and zeal in the performance of exacting and delicate tasks.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
Assuming the responsibilities of the first section of the general staff of the 28th ssuming the responsibilities of the first section of the general staff of the 28th Division five days before the Meuse-Argonne offensive, he efficiently coordinated the several services. By his constant vigilance and ceaseless efforts the entire system of supply, traffic, and evacuation operated during the advance of more than 10 kilometers; in accordance with the plans he had arranged. He was tircless in his energy and devotion to important duties, displaying military attainments of high order.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
He commanded with distinction the 10th Field Artillery, displaying marked ability as an artillerist. His unflagging zeal and sound judgment was revealed by the success achieved by his regiment in furthering the gains achieved by the 3d Division in its operations in the field.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services to the allied and associated governments as Chief of Staff, American Section, Supreme War Council.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. He commanded, with marked skill and Initiative, the 102d Field Artillery, 26th Division, during the Chateau-Thierry campaign, where at all times he furnished valuable support to the advancing infantry. Later he served creditably as an instructor at the Army General Staff College at Langres, rendering important services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Quartermaster Corps), General Staff, U. S. Army.
His marked administrative ability enabled him to assist most ably in the direction of important operations while on duty at G-1, General Headquarters'American Expeditionary Forces, as deputy chief of staff, 2d Army, and G-1, 3d Army. As American representative with the Franco-American War Affairs Commission, at Paris, he displayed unfailing tact, energy, and sound judgment in handling the intricate details of the relations between the French and American authorities achieving signal success. His bigh the French and American authorities, achieving signal success. His high military attainments were shown in the success with which he performed duties of vital moment.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As an instructor at the Army General Staff College, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed high professional attainments and unfailing energy, performing services of inestimable worth in connection with the instruction and training of officers for General Staff duty. He prepared the "Notebook for the General Staff Officer" and the "Provisional Staff Mannal," and was mainly responsible for the "Handbook of Division and Brigade Commanders," all of which proved to be most valuable books. As adjutant of the 159th Infantry Brigade, 80th Division, during the St. Mihlel oflensive, and later as a member of the interallied games committee he gave further proof of his sterling ability, sound judgment, and keen foresight. In all of these positions he rendered most conspicuous services to the Government.

For services as chief of staff, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., from Dec. 15, 1917, to Dec. 16, 1918.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He has been in charge of the water supply service, and as commanding officer of the 26th Engineers, a water-supply regiment, since the fall of 1917. His untiring energy, unusual initiative, and good judgment have to a marked degree, been responsible for the plentiful supply of pure drinking water to the combatant troops, thereby materially assisting in maintaining the unusually low rates in sickness among our troops.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As assistant to the Quartermaster General and later as Director of Finance.

As such he was responsible for and had authority over the preparation of estimates, dishursements, money accounts, property accounts, finance reports, and pay and mileage of the Army. The success of the Finance Department was, in a large measure, due to his breadth of vision, executive ability, initiative, and energy.

LOREE, JAMES T.....R.—Albany, N. Y.
B.—Logansport, Ind.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

He served in turn as assistant quartermaster of the 27th Division, as quartermaster of the 80th Division, and in the Provost Marshal General's Department, American Expeditionary Forces, in all of which capacities he displayed exceptional ability. His good judgment, combined with a knowledge of methods and high professional attainments, resulted in a superior standard of efficiency, reflecting the greatest credit upon himself and enabling him to render most valuable services.

LORENZ, WILLIAM F....R-Mendota, Wis.
B-New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of Field Hospital No. 127, and while in personal charge of the Triage (sorting station for wounded) of the 32d Division during the combat activities of that division on the Marne, Oise-Alsne, and in the Meuse-Argonne, he so displayed indefatigable zeal and exceptionally good judgment in sorting, earing for, and evacuating thousands of wounded as to directly result in the saving of many lives.

LOTT, ABRAHAM G..... R—Abilene, Kans. B—Gettysburg, Pa. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922. Colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.

For services in The Adjutant General's office in connection with the procurement of commissioned personnel. Later, as chief of staff, 12th Division, and executive officer at Camp Devens, Mass., by his untiring energy, loyalty, and organizing ability he aided materially in the rapid demobilization of troops passing through this camp.

Love, James M., Jr.
R—Fairfax Courthouse, Va.
B—Fairfax Courthouse, Va. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As adjutant general, 2d Army Corps, and later as commanding officer of the 319th Infantry, 80th Division, he rendered services of great credit. By his marked tactical ability and unceasing energy he contributed materially to the successes achieved by the 80th Division in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief quartermaster of the 1st Army, by his great energy, complete experience, and loyal efforts, he maintained an efficient service and kept a steady flow of all necessary quartermaster supplies to the 1st Army, rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

LUTHER, WILLARD B.....R-Milton, Mass.
B-Attleboro, Mass.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, and brigade adjutant, 51st Field Artillery Brigade, during the occupancy of the Boucq sector, the Aisne-Marne, and St. Mihiel offensives, and as assistant to assistant chief of staff, G-3, headquarters, 1st Army Artillery, during the Meuse-Argonne operations, he displayed outstanding executive ability, leadership, and technical skill of a high order, these qualities coupled with unremitting devotion to duty contibution in the staff of the organizations. tributing in a material way to the successful operations of the organizations with which he served.

LYLE, HENRY H. M.—R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As director of the Army evacuation ambulance companies and sections of the 1st
Army of the American Expeditionary Forces, a position of great responsibility.
During the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives he so directed the funcburning the St. Minier and Metise-Argoine onesives he so directed the line tioning of the ambiliances that, in spite of the great shortage of these, he was able at all times to transport the wounded expeditiously, thereby saving many lives and enhancing the morale of the combatant troops. By his eminent surgical skill he has devised a new practical method for the treatment of gunshot fractures. He has rendered service of much value.

Lynch, Charles R—Syracuse, N. Y. B—Syracuse, N. Y. G. O. No. 111, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. As port surgeon, port of embarkation, Newport News, Va., his service in gov-erning and controlling the agencies for caring for sick and wounded soldiers, protecting them against diseases, and safeguarding them prior to and during transport overseas were conspicuous.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army,
As a member of the training section, General Headquarters, he was chiefly responsible for the revision of the Infantry Drill Regulations. In this important task he displayed a broad grasp of the tactical lessons of the war and showed sound judgment in adapting their principles to American needs, capabilities, and characteristics, thereby rendering services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lynn, Clark______ R—Chicago, III. B—Hartford, Ind. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, 91st Division, from July, 1918, to April, 1919, by his high professional attainments and marked ability he rendered valuable assistance in the staff work during the St. Mihiel, Meuse-Argonne, and Ypres-Lys offensives, his efficiency contributing materially to the success of his division in these corrections. sion in these operations.

*Lyon, Leroy S.... R—Richmond, Va. B—Petersburg, Va. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As brigadier general commanding the 65th Field Artillery Brigade, 40th Division, he displayed splendid qualities of leadership and organizing ability and by his enthusiasm and energy he developed his brigade to a high state of efficiency. Later, as major general, commanding the 31st Division during its training, he exhibited marked tactical judgment, and his skill and leadership were largely responsible for the success achieved in perfecting the organization and training of his division.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Leroy S. Lyon.

McAdams, John P.....R—Hawesville, Ky. B—Hawesville, Ky. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

McAfee, Larry B.....R—Delphi, Ind.
B—Delphi, Ind.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

McAndrew, Joseph A.....R-Bentonville, Ark.B-Osage Mills, Ark.G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

McAndrews, Joseph R.—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

MACARTHUR, DOUGLAS

R—Milwaukee, Wis.

B—Little Rock Barracks, Ark.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service cross and oakleaf cluster also awarded.

McArthur, John C.R.—Aberdeen, S. Dak.B.—Plainview, Minn.G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

For duty rendered in the office of the Surgeon General as Chief of the Air Service
Division.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with marked distinction as chief of staff of the lines of communication and as deputy chief of staff of the Services of Supply. He administered the affairs with which he was intrusted with noteworthy and conspicuous efficiency, energy, and ability.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief surgeon, district of Paris, France, by his unusual executive ability, sound judgment, and high professional attainments he successfully handled a position of great responsibility presenting many difficult problems, thereby bringing comfort and health to thousands of our sick and wounded and contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He commanded the 38th Infantry, 3d Division, with marked distinction in repelling the German attack at Mezy, south of the Marne, in July, 1918. He exhibited particular skill and energy as a brigade commander in the operations at the St. Miniel salient and in the Argonne-Meuse offensive. The successful accomplishment of the missions of his brigade in all cases were in a large measure due to his sound judgment and leadership.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As Chief of Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces, the development of the Army schools in France is largely due to his marked ability as an organizer and to his brilliant professional attainments. As Chief of Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces during the period of active operations, he has met every demand of his important position; by his advice and decisions he has materially contributed to the success of these forces; and he has at all times enjoyed in full the confidence of the Commander in Chief.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He served with distinguished ability as an instructor in the use of infantry weapons at the 1st Corps School and also as director of the Infantry Specialists' School at Langres. Later, as a member of the training section of the General Staff, he supervised the instruction at the various corps schools and was directly responsible for the maintenance of sound tactical training, securing especially brilliant results in the training of infantry, rendering services of marked merit to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff, U. S. Army.

As senior officer in the small group of the operations division, General Staff, designated as the section in charge of priorities of equipment and shipment, he was charged with the handling of the whole matter of preparing units for movement to the ports for oversea service, and is now engaged in the reverse process of moving returning units from the ports to camps for demobilization, all of which has been marked by conspicuous ability and meritorious service to the Government.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He served with credit as chief of staff of the 42d Division in the operations at Chalons and at the Chateau-Thierry salient. In command of the 84th Infantry Brigade he showed himself to be a brilliant commander of skill and judgment. Later he served with distinction as commanding general of the 42d Division.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer, 326th Infantry, 82d Division, from the date of its organization and during its occupancy of the Somme, Toul, Nancy, and Argenne sectors, May 10, 1918, to Nov. 19, 1918, he displayed brilliant leadership, sound tactical judgment, unremitting attention and devotion to duty, these qualities inspiring the officers and men of his command, bringing their morale to a high pitch and inciting them to a rare devotion to duty. His services as a regimental commander contributed in a very marked way to the successful operations of the 82d Division and of the American Expeditionary Forces in France.

Major general, The Adjutant General, U. S. Army. In administering the Adjutant General's Department during the early period of the war, through his efficient management this department was able to meet the excessive burdens placed upon it.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

His counsel and advice in the earlier stages of the operations of the American Expeditionary Forces were of particular benefit to the effective work of the Medical Department. As chief surgeon of the American Expeditionary Forces, in the later operations in the field, he maintained the splendid efficiency of that department at a critical time and solved each new problem presented with wisdom and marked ability.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff, U. S. Army.
Serving as assistant to the assistant chief of staff, G-4, Paris group and 1st Army, from January to December, 1918, he displayed great initiative, devotion to duty, and executive ability during the operations in and around Chateau Thierry in June and July, while the divisions of the American Army were serving with the 6th French Army and during the St. Miniel and MeuseArgonne operations of the 1st Army, assisted in the organization of the section and in a position of great responsibility contributed materially to the successful accomplishments of the supply of the troops engaged in those operations.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army,
As G-3 of the 1st Army from July 25 to Oct. 15, 1918, during the ChateauThierry, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne operations, he displayed marked ability. Later, in the midst of operations, he was appointed chief of staff of the 3d Division. In gaining Immediate and complete control of a difficult situation and in coordinating the work of the new staff, he showed conspicuous ability, and by his inspiring example of energy and zeal, he was largely responsible for the successes achieved by the 3d Division at ClaireChenes Wood and the Bois-de-Foret.

McClellan, Benjamin F.....R—Tallulah, I.a.
B—Paulding Plantation, Miss
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
Attached to the 5th Section of the General Staff, he displayed high professional attainments and marked executive ability in the general supervision of the entire group of army schools. As an inspector-instructor of infantry, his influence was an important factor in securing the correct tactical training of that arm, rendering creditable services to the American Expeditionary Forces,

McCloskey, Manus R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Pittsburgh, Pa. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920. Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

While in command of the 12th Field Artillery during all its operations with the 2d Division, until Aug. 16, 1918, he displayed marked ability and efficiency. He especially distinguished himself during the operations of the 2d Division, at the Bois-de-Belleau and Bouresches, when he commanded in addition to his own-regiment, the 37th Field Artillery, French Army. By this service he contributed in no small measure to the success of the Infantry brigade in these operations. Later, as commanding general, 152d Field Artillery Brigade, he rendered able support to the attacking Infantry of the 77th Division.

McCord, James H.
R—St. Joseph, Mo.
B—Savannah, Ga.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army.
As executive officer in charge of the selective draft in Missouri, by his unusual executive ability, rare tact and skill, great initiative, and resourcefulness at times under most trying and novel conditions which arose in connection with the administration of the selective service act, he achieved a pronounced and conspicuous success in the performance of difficult and highly responsible duties, thereby rendering services of great value to the Government.

McCormick, Chester B.... R-Lansing, Mich. B-Petrolia, Pa. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922. Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army,
For services while commanding the 119th Field Artillery and at times the 57th Artillery Brigade during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. During these operations he displayed marked judgment and devotion to duty, and by the skillful handling of his command contributed materially to the success of the 57th Artillery Brigade in supporting the 32d and at other times five other divisions.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 1st Battalion, 5th Field Artillery, in the Ansauville sector and in the Cantigny sector, France, between Jan. 18 and May 28, 1918, and as lieutenant colonel, 122d Field Artillery, 33d Division, May 13 to July 29, 1918, and colonel, 61st Field Artillery, July 30 to Dec. 31, 1918, he displayed rare leadership and organizing ability, unusual executive ability, and sound technical judgment. By his ceaseless energy and his close supervision of training, discipline, and command in action against the enemy he contributed materially to the successful operations of the Artillery of the American Expeditionary Porces.

McCoy, Frank R.
R-Lewistown, Pa.
B-Lewistown, Pa.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As secretary of the General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces, his services were of particular value in the original organization of the forces in France. Later, in command of the 165th Infantry, 42d Division, in the Baccarat sector, and then in command of the 63d Infantry Brigade in the difficult fighting east of Reims, he had a prominent part in the successes achieved.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He served with conspicuous success as commanding officer of American Red Cross Hospital No. 111, at Joury-sur-Morin and Chateau-Thierry from June to August, 1918. Though he was hampered by insufficient personnel and equipment, he nevertheless succeeded in caring for a large number of wounded from the Marne offensive, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
In command of the 128th Infantry throughout all the major operations in which the 32d Division participated, he proved himself a leader of sound judgment and exceptional ability. During the Oise-Aisne offensive he skillfully handled the delicate maneuver of straightening and changing the front on the left bank of his brigade during the attack on Terny-Sorny and later during the Meuse-Argonne offensive. In the attack on the Kremhilde-Stellung he performed another tactical operation of a high order in a flank movement which resulted in the taking of the town of Romagne.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He rendered especially efficient services to the American Expeditionary Forces while acting as general manager of the transportation service and later as deputy director general of transportation in the advance section. He handled his duties in a most efficient manner, showing marked ability, great zeal, and energy.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the evacuation branches, G-4, Paris group, and G-4, 1st Army, he was charged with the supervision, coordination, and control of evacuation and hospitalization of the sick and wounded. By his great foresight, initiative, judgment, devotion to duty, and the helpful cooperation exercised by him, he played an important part in the successful treatment and evacuation of many thousands of sick and wounded under the most adverse conditions, performing this important and responsible duty with conspicuous ability, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Europes

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While commanding the 181st Infantry Brigade during the advance of the 91st Division from Foret-de-Hesse, Argonne, France, in September, 1918, he was instrumental in the successes achieved. He directed the attack in person, and by his example of personal courage and by his sound tactical orders he so inspired his brigade that it was enabled to capture and hold a most important position.

Major, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
As provost marshal, 1st Army, during the Mcuse-Argonne offensive, he was responsible for the maintenance of order in the extensive Army area in rear of corps areas, for the apprehension of stragglers and wrongdoers in that area, for the military police of areas relinquished by each corps as a consequence of the rapid advance of the corps of the 1st Army after Nov. 1, 1918. Due to his tact, resourcefulness, and marked efficiency he accomplished all of his missions in a highly meritorious manner, thereby contributing materially to the successes of the 1st Army.

*McDonough, John.... R—Beech Grove, Ind. B—Plattsmouth, Nebr. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921. Major, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.
As general foreman of the St. Nazaire Locomotive Erection Shops, he managed this plant from its organization in September, 1917, until June, 1918, when he was appointed superintendent, and thence performed the important duties of this later office until his death in November, 1918. It is due to his energy, ability, and devotion to duty that such a great number of American locomotives erected in France were turned out with record speed. He has rendered services of much value, Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. John McDonough.

Director of the Chemicals Division, War Industries Board.
In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War, in his position as director of one of the sections of the board he rendered, through his broad vision, distinguished capacity, and business ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As director of chemicals, he rendered, through his untiring efforts and devotion to duty, exceptionally valuable service to the War Department in connection with the procurement of chemicals, particularly those elements used in the manufacture of explosives for the Army.

McDowell, Ralph W.
R.—Altoona, Pa.
B.—Altoona, Pa.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1924.
McFadden, George.

Lieutenant commander, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy. For services as sanitary inspector and surgeon of the Arrondissement of Tours, France.

R—Villanova, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919. Representative in France of the War Trade Board. He represented in France with high ability the War Trade Board of the State Department. In close liaison with the General Purchasing Board of the American Expeditionary Forces, he had a guiding influence in determining the methods of the invaluable cooperation of the War Trade Board in the supply-procurement efforts of the Army in France and in neutral and other allied countries. With untiring energy, sound judgment, great ability, and devoted purpose he cooperated in many matters of vital importance to the American Expeditionary Forces.

McFadden, James Franklin.... R—Rosemont, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

As officer in charge of the leave burean at headquarters, services of supply, Tours, France, from Dec. 14, 1918, until June, 1919, by his energy, loyal devotion to duty, unusual executive and administrative ability he was largely responsible for the successful organization and most efficient functioning of that highly important bureau which provided transportation, quarters, subsistence, recreation, and amusement for over 400,000 men on leave from the front in 19 different leave areas in southern France. In a position of great responsibility he rendered conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

McGuire, Stuart....R—Richmond, Va.
B—Staunton, Va.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

*McIndoe, James F R—Lonaconing, Md. B—Lonaconing, Md. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

McIntyre, Frank ...

R-Montgomery, Ala. B-Montgomery, Ala. G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919.

MCKEAN, JOSIAH SLUTTS..... R-Canal Dover, Ohio. B-Mount Hope, Ohio. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

McKernon, James F.....R-New York, N. Y. B-Cambridge, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

McLean, Angus. R—Detroit, Mich. B—St. Clair, Mich. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

McLeer, Edward, Jr...... R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

McManus, George H.... R—Hudson, Iowa. B—Hudson, Iowa. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

MacMillan, William T.
R—Mahanoy City, Pa.
B—Girard Manor, Pa.
G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
First in charge of the design, development, and production of all machine guns, automatic rifles, and accessories thereto for the Army of the United States, for service in organizing the industries of the country to meet the unprecedented demands for automatic arms created after the entrance of the United States into the World War, and later as special assistant to the Chief of Ord-nance in charge of all matters pertaining to small arms, automatic arms, and equipment.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the Artillery of the 1st Army in its organization and subsequent operations he solved the difficult problems involved with rare military judgment. In the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Neuse offensives his qualities as a leader were demonstrated by the effective employment of Artillery that was planned and conducted under his direction. He later commanded with great ability and success the 1st Infantry Division of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. As commanding officer of Base Hospital No. 45 he received and cared for a very large number of wounded evacuated in that hospital during the Battle of the Argonne, in September and October, 1918. By his administrative and professional skill he has reflected credit upon the Medical Department of the Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. He rendered valuable services in bringing this unit to a high state of discipline and training which manifested itself later in all operations in which it partipated. Later, as director of military engineers, a position of great responsibility, he rendered services of much worth.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Irene McIndoe.

Major general, U. S. Army. As executive assistant to the Chief of Staff, his breadth of view and sound judgment have contributed materially to the formulation and carrying out of policies essential to the operation of the military establishment.

Rear admiral, U. S. Navy.
As acting Chief of Naval Operations, his advice and assistance greatly tended to the successful outcome of the many problems requiring the close cooperation of the Navy and Army.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. He has, by his tireless devotion to duty and his willingness to work in any capacity, not only placed his remarkable ability freely and fully at the disposition of the wounded, but in addition he has set so high a standard of professional efficiency as to serve as an inspiration to all with whom he has come in contact.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As director of the professional services and later as commanding officer of Base Hospital No. 17 and surgical consultant in hospital formations at the front, by his tireless energy, great resourcefulness, and brilliant professional attainments he rendered services of inestimable value in the care of the sick and wounded of the American, British, and French Armies, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Licutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
With untiring energy and unremitting devotion to duty he supervised the instruction and training and commanded in action against the enemy the machine-gun organizations of the 27th Division. During the operations of the division against the Hindenburg line, Sept. 25-30, 1918, and in the Le Selle River eampaign Oct. 15-20, 1918, in direct command of 14 machine-gun companies he displayed outstanding leadership, sound tactical judgment, and indomitable determination and courage, these qualities being reflected in the morale and high efficiency of the machine-gun organizations of this division. He rendered extremely valuable and important services to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the camp at St. Sulpice, France, a position of great responsibility, he demonstrated rare executive ability. The efficient operation and growth of this important base section was due, in a great measure, to his energy and capacity for handling a task of considerable magnitude.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. As executive officer and troop movement officer, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., through his very able organization and administration of these important offices the transport of troops and supplies overseas was materially aided.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, 78th Division, from July, 1918, until June, 1919, by his indefatigable zeal, keen foresight, exceptional executive and administrative ability he successfully organized and directed the supply and administrative services of the division so as to insure at all times an ample supply of rations and ammunition, overcoming many difficult obstacles under most trying circumstances, thereby rendering conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility,

McNair, Lesley J_____ R—Bemidji, Minn, B—Verndale, Minn. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As the senior Artillery officer of the training section, General Staff, he displayed marked ability in correctly estimating the changing conditions and requirements of military tactics. He was largely responsible for impressing upon the American Army sound principles for the use of artillery and for improving methods for the support of Infantry, so necessary to the proper cooperation of the two arms.

McNair, William S.....R.—Tecumseh, Mich. B.—Tecumseh, Mich. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Major general, U. S. Army.
Serving in turn as commander of the 1st Field Artillery Brigade, 1st Division, and the 151st Field Artillery Brigade, 76th Division, as chief of artillery, 1st Army Corps, during the latter part of the Meuse-Argonne offensive and as chief of artillery of the 1st Army from Nov. 1s, 191s, mutil April, 1919, by marked ability, sound judgment, and thorough knowledge of artillery he rendered conspicuous services in a position of great responsibility to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As deputy director, reuts, requisitions, and claims service, a position of great responsibility, in which he discharged important administrative functions with noteworthy ability and displayed good judgment and tact while attached to the British Claims Commission.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
As assistant judge advocate, American Expeditionary Forces, by his excellent administrative ability and sound judgment he rendered a service which enabled his department to expeditiously handle many questions of great moment.

McRae, Donald Marion...... R—Boston, Mass. B—Fort Snelling, Minn. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 78th Division, from November, 1917, until December, 1918, he displayed military attainments of a high order. By his great energy, sound judgment, and efficient administration of his section he was able to secure complete and valuable information of the enemy, thereby contributing materially to the successful operations of his division.

McRae, James H.

R-Lumber City, Ga.
B-Lumber City, Ga.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He commanded with great credit the 78th Division in the Argonne-Meuse offensive and had an important part in that operation which forced the enemy to abandon Grandpre. In this and other campaigns his personal influence on the result obtained showed a rich quality of military leadership.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of the procurement division of the office of the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacity he was charged with the procurement, by purchase or manufacture, of all articles of ordnance supplied to the United States Army, and the execution of the necessary contracts in connection therewith.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with the 1st Division as sanitary inspector from June 6, 1917, to July, 1918, and as division surgeon from July 4, 1918, to Feb. 10, 1919, and then as chief surgeon, 3d Army Corps. By his high professional attainments, his ability for organization and for securing cooperation of his subordinates, and his tircless elforts, he effected the successful evacuation of many casualties suffered by the 1st Division in the Soissons, St. Miniel, Meuse-Argonne, and Sedan attacks. At all times he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces in positions of great responsibility.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. He installed an extensive system of target ranges in France and perfected methods for the training of marksmen, personally supervising the instruction of 200,000 Infantry replacements. As a member of the training section he applied his methods to the instruction of the Infantry of the American Expeditionary Forces with extraordinary success.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of Mobile Hospital No. 1, at Coulommiers and Chateau-Thierry, from June to Angust, 1918, Colonel Macrae promptly arranged his hospital under the most difficult conditions and inadequate equipment and personnel.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-1, 82d Division, from June until September, 1918, and of the 81st Division from then until June, 1919, he rendered highly meritorious services. Due to his unusual foresight, great energy, and marked ability, he directed the supply and administrative services of those divisions so as to insure at all times a proper supply of food and munitions, often under great difficulties and lack of transportation, thereby rendering conspicuous services in a position of great responsibility to the American Expeditionary Forces.

MADDUX, HENRY C.....R—Orange, Va.
B—Harrisonburg, Va.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. In organizing and constructing the hospital center at Toul. His work in this showed a force, initiative, and character that contributed in an unusual way to the ability of the Medical Department and care for the sick and wounded of the American Expeditionary Forces. MADDUX, RUFUS F R-Newport, Ky.
B-Cincinnati, Ohio.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer and organizer of the officers' reclassification depot at Blois, France, from April to July, 1918, by his tact, judgment, and untiring energy he made it a model of efficient organization. Later as gas officer of the 5th Army Corps from Aug. 5 to Oct. 18, 1918, he displayed a great resourcefulness, marked efficiency, exceptional initiative, tireless efforts in successfully meeting the unusual demands relating to gas defense of the troops in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, thereby rendering service of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

MAGRUPER, BRUCE.

R-Washington, D. C.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As executive officer of the intelligence section at General Headquarters, by his marked ability and zeal he performed duties of a most exacting nature, in connection with the administration and development of the section, with conspicuous merit, rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As inspector of the district of Paris, he conducted many intricate and delicate investigations with noteworthy ability and solved many intricate and delicate investigations with noteworthy ability and solved many involved problems arising among the American Expeditionary Forces with sound judgment. The zealous and able manner with which he pursued the manifold details of his office was an important factor in raising the morale of the American Expeditionary Forces in Paris. He has performed services of special significance for the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 26th Division he proved to be a capable and energetic staff officer of marked executive ability. At all times he exhibited rare qualities of military leadership. He rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

also awarded.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He demonstrated marked ability in the important duty of organizing the military training and educational system of the American Army in France.
Later, in active operations against the enemy, he commanded with distinction a regiment in the trench operations of the Sommedieue sector, in the Aisne-defensive, the operations near Chateau-Thierry, and in the Aisne-Marne offensive, and a brigade in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. In all of these capacities the merit he displayed was conspicuous.

MALONE, WILLIAM B.....R-Memphis, Tenn.
B-Brownsville, Tenn.
G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. As chief of surgical teams in hospital formations at the front through all the combat activities of the American Expeditionary Forces from the Cantigny offensive to the close of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, with rare technical skill and high professional attainments he rendered service of a most conspicuous nature in a position of great responsibility and at a time of gravest importance.

Malony, Harry J R—Dundee, N. Y. B—Lakemont, N. Y. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. He successfully organized and administered the many complex and difficult operations connected with the arming and equipping of airplanes for services at the front, displaying sound judgment and acting with energy and initiative in times of emergency. He worked self-sacrificingly and devotedly that there might be no delays, overcoming serious obstacles by the exercise of good judgment and thorough understanding of conditions in the American Expeditionary Forces.

MANCHESTER, PERCIVAL..... R—Chicago, III. B—Chicago, III. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Major, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As base ordnance officer in Base Section No. 1, at St. Nazalre, France, he ably organized and administered important work with exceptional success. As commanding officer of Intermediate Ordnance Depot No. 2, at Gievres, he conducted important activities with sound judgment and marked devotion to duty, working with tireless energy for the improvement of the Ordnance Service.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
He organized and commanded with signal ability the hospital center at Beaune, taking charge of it when it was in an unfinished state and at a time when increased facilities were urgently needed. Overcoming numerous adverse conditions, he expedited its completion, and rendered invaluable services in furnishing effective medical treatment for large numbers of sick and wounded of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Mann, Charles R.______ R.—Summitt, N. J. B.—Orange, N. J. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919. MARCH, PEYTON C.

As chairman of the advisory board of the committee on education and special training, he gave invaluable service in the development of the training of technicians and mechanics for the Army, and in the organization of the Students' Army Training Corps.

B—Easton, Pa.
B—Easton, Pa.
G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

General, U.S. Army

General, U. S. Army.

As commanding general of the Army Artillery of the 1st Army from Oct. 4, 1917, to Jan. 31, 1918, initiated and prepared the plans for the organization of the Artillery of the American Army in France; as Acting Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army from Mar. 2, 1918, to May 20, 1918, and as Chief of Staff of the U. S. Army (General, U. S. Army), after May 20, 1918, he performed with intelligence, zeal, and patriotic devotion, duties of inestimable value in the development, the direction and the carrying into effect of the military program of the United States.

MARKEY, DAVID JOHN......R-Frederick, Md. B-Frederick, Md. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army,
While in action with the 58th Infantry Brigade, 29th Division, north of Verdun, 1918, in the absence of a regularly detailed brigade adjutant he performed the exacting duties of that office in addition to his duties as commander of the machine-gun battalion under circumstances requiring exceptional courage, tactical judgment, initiative, and endurance, all of which he displayed to a marked degree. By his brilliant professional attainments, his untiring energy and keen foresight he contributed largely to the subsequent successes of his brigade and division. He handled with rare skill and in a masterful manner the multifarious duties devolving upon him in a position of great responsibility.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

In command of the 2d Infantry Brigade, 1st Division, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive from Oct. 20 to Nov. 11, 1918, when, by his energy, professional skill, and his pronounced qualities of leadership, especially in the attack of the 1st Division on the line of the Meuse, Nov. 6, 1918, and the subsequent operations against Sedan, Nov. 6-7, 1918, he contributed in large measure to the success of his division.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

He has performed the duties of assistant chief of staff, G-3, 1st Division, from June 26, 1917, to July 12, 1918. He served in the G-3 section, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, from July 13, 1918, to Aug. 19, 1918; in G-3 section, 1st Army, from Aug. 20, 1918, to Oct. 16, 1918; as assistant chief of staff, G-3, of the 1st Army, from Nov. 20, 1918, to Jun. 15, 1919, during which period the 1st Division served in the Toul sector and at the Cantigny attack and the 1st Division served in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. By untiring, painstaking, and energetic efforts he succeeded in all these undertakings. His efforts had a marked influence on the successes achieved by the units with which he served.

Макзилы, Richard C., Jr....... R—Portsmouth, Va. B—Portsmouth, Va. G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
In the construction division of the Army, his zeal, judgment, and exceptional administrative ability have enabled serious difficulties to be overcome and the construction necessary for a great army to be provided.

MARSHALL, WALDO H...... R-New York, N. Y. B-Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 77, W. D., 1919. First, as assistant to the chief of the production division of the Office of the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacity he was of material assistance in securing the production of all articles of ordnance supplied to the United States Army, and later as special assistant to the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacity he successfully organized the industry of the country for the production of artillery, artillery ammunition, etc.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 90th Division during the greater part of its service with the Army of Occupation, by his ceaseless energy he performed his duties with the utmost efficiency, giving the closest personal supervision to the training, discipline, and equipment of his division. His brilliant professional attainments and steadfast devotion to duty were reflected in the high standards maintained throughout the organizations under his command, rendering important services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As chairman of the committee on medicine and sanitation of the Council of National Defense, a position of great responsibility, by his tireless energy and marked ability, he so coordinated the civil medical resources of the Nation as to meet the needs of the Government medical service. He rendered valuable assistance in solving the important medical problems of the war.

MARTIN, FREDERICK L.R.—Liherty, Ind.B.—Liherty, Ind. Q. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.
Act of Cougress Feb. 25, 1925.

Major, Air Service, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the U. S. Army Air Service around-the-world flight and as pilot of Airplane No. 1, the Seattle, from Apr. 6, 1924, until Apr. 30, 1924, when, due to an accident which resulted in the complete wreck of his airplane, he was obliged to relinquish command of the expedition. Major Martin by his tireless energy, foresight, and thorough technical knowledge assisted materially in completing arrangements and developing the special equipment installed in the airplanes, and so perfected and organized the command that each unit would become self-sustaining and automatic in its operations in the event of separation from or disaster to the others. In the performance of this great task he aided in bringing great credit to the military forces of the United States.

Colonel (Infantry) General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

While serving as chief of M1-2, information section, military intelligence division, General Staff, he originated and put into practical application an exceedingly scientific and highly technical system of handling all positive intelligence received in the division, including its dissemination to all branches of the War Department and other coordinating branches of the Government. From Sept. 16 to Dec. 12, 1918, as assistant chief of staff, G-2, 36th Division, he displayed sound judgment and exceptional ability in the administration and operation of that section of the division staff. Later, when on duty with the American Peace Mission at Paris, France, he rendered services of great value to the Government.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. As chief of the negative branch of the military intelligence division of the General Staff, in building up and developing the counterespionage service in this country, the plant protection service, the detection of fraud and graft, and the development battalion system. Masteller, Kenneth C..... R—Bakersville, Calif. B—Pella, Iowa. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, U. S. Marine Corps.

As assistant chief of staff, G-1, 2d Division, a position of great responsibility in which he functioned with marked ability during the St. Mihiel, Blanc MATTHEWS, HUGH. R—Louisville, Tenn. B—Tennessee. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921. Mont, and Argonne offensives. Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As head of the engineering and research division of the Signal Corps he rendered conspicuous service in connection with coordinating the design and supply of new technical apparatus for the Signal Corps. He was largely responsible for the high type of radio equipment developed for our Army and rendered unusual service in connection with cipher telegraphy. MAUBORGNE, JOSEPH O....R-New York, N Y
B-New York, N .Y
G O. No. 81, W. D., 1919. First lieutenant, assistant surgeon, U. S. Army.
For services on the Belle Fourche River, N. Dak., on Nov. 5, 1877, in that while serving with a detachment suddenly surrounded by an overwhelming force of hostile Sioux Indians he succeeded in extricating the party from a most perilous position.

MAXFIELD, HOWARD HOYT .... R—Elizabeth, N. J. B—Bloomfield, N. J. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

MAYES, JAMES J.... R—Springfield, Mo. B—Amsterdam, Ohio. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

MAYO, WILLIAM JAMES ..... R—Rochester, Minn.
B—Le Sueur, Minn.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

MAYO-SMITH, RICHMOND ..... R—Norwood, Mass. B—Easthampton, Long Island, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

MEARS, FREDERICK. R—St. Paul, Minn. B—Fort Omaha, Nebr. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

MENOHER, CHARLES T_____ R—Johnstown, Pa. B—Johnstown, Pa. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

MERCHANT, BERKELEY T....R-Watervliet, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As general superintendent of motor power of the Transportation Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, by his sound judgment and energy displayed in the organizing and administering of the activities of the mechanical department he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant commander, U. S. Navy. For services as supply officer, Newport News division, cruiser and transport

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. 'Army.
He served with marked ability as deputy judge advocate of the American Expeditionary Forces. Fitted for his important duties by wide experience and conspicuous legal attainments, he solved ably and expeditiously the many questions of great moment with which his department was called upon to

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

In addition to the manifold service to the Surgeon General by furnishing needed advice and counsel, he distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious service to the Government in his work in the organization of surgical service and his invaluable assistance in the reorganization of the Medical Department on the scale demanded by the war.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
In addition to the manifold service to the Surgeon General by furnishing needed advice and counsel, he distinguished himself by exceptionally meritorious service to the Government in his work in the organization of surgical service and his invaluable assistance in the reorganization of the Medical Department on the scale demanded by the war.

Lieutenant colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
As chief of the supply section, Chemical Warfare Service, by his tireless energy, foresight, and marked executive ability, he built and administered a supply organization consisting of 12 seaport, intermediate, and front-line depots, which fully met at all times the demands for chemical warfare supplies that active operations brought upon the service, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. He served with distinction as commanding officer of the 31st Railway Engineers, and later as assistant general manager and general manager railway department, Transportation Corps. Due to his remarkable executive ability and skill as an organizer the railways of the American Expeditionary Forces were operated with rare success, and the huge transportation problem, involving the carrying of tremendous quantities of supplies from the base ports to the front, was satisfactorily solved.

Major general, U. S. Army.
In command of the 42d Division from Chateau-Thierry to the conclusion of the Argonne-Meuse offensive, including the Baccarat sector, Relms, Vesles, and at the St. Miniel salient, this officer with his division participated in all of those important engagements. The reputation as a fighting unit of the 42d Division is in no small measure due to the soldierly qualities and the military leadership of this officer. military leadership of this officer.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U.S. Army.
While on duty in the remount service, he performed his tasks efficiently.
Later, appointed Chief Veterinarian of the American Expeditionary Forces, he administered, with marked success, the veterinary service, providing for effective means of evacuation of sick and wounded animals from the front and in placing the personnel of the Veterinary Corps on an efficiently functioning being the great provided the control of the veterinary Corps on an efficiently functioning being the great provided the control of the veterinary Corps on an efficiently functioning being the great provided the control of the veterinary Corps on an efficiently functioning being the control of the veterinary Corps on an efficiently functioning the provided the veterinary corps of the vete ing basis.

METCALFE, RAYMOND F.

R-Buffalo, N. Y.

B-West Salamanca, N. Y.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1921.

MIDDLETON, TROY II R—Georgetown, Miss. B—Hazelhurst, Miss. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

MILES, PERRY L ... B—Westerville, Ohio.
B—Westerville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

MILLER, ORRIN DAVID R—Oakland, Calif. B—Boonville, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

MILLER, REUBEN B.-. R-Millington, Ill. B-Canada. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff, 37th Division, during its organization, training, and entire combat period he displayed unflagging energy and marked ability. To his zeal, initiative, and military attainments was due in great measure the success of the division in both the Meusc-Argonne and Ypres-Lys offensives.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As division surgeon, 36th Division, in August and again in September, 1918, during serious epidemics of Spanish influenza, his farsightedness and his energetic and efficient action in personally directing the handling of these epidemics resulted in a very large reduction in the mortality.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He commanded with marked distinction the 119th Infantry, 30th Division, from the time of its organization and early training petiod to the completion of the active combat operations in the Ypres-Lys and Somme offensives. He especially distinguished himself while in command of his regiment on Sept. 29, 1918, during the assault on the Hindenburg line, near Bellicourt, France, where he displayed marked ability and sound judgment. He has rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As a member of the supply section of the General Staff in charge of the munitions branch, he ably controlled and handled the details of ammunition supply for the 1st Army during the period of the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations. In this important task he displayed marked initiative and energy, and assured by his skill and prompt action a steady supply of ammunition under most difficult conditions. His efforts were a contributing factor to the success of the supply service during these important operations.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. As a battalion and a regimental commander of the 47th Infantry, 4th Division, he gave proof of conspicuous energy and marked tactical ability. He achieved notable successes in the operations near Sergy, along the Vesle River, and during the fierce fighting in the Boise-du-Fays and Bois-de-Foret of the Argonne-Meuse offensive, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 371st Infantry, 93d Division, which, during its active operations, was attached to the French forces, he conducted his regiment with conspicuous success, by his admirable tact and sound judgment he maintained at all times harmonious relationship with the allied forces to which his unit was attached, rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.
As executive officer of the Army Transportation Service, a position of great responsibility, throughout the whole period of existence of the service, by his untiring devotion to duty, loyalty, and marked ability, he proved a material factor in the success of the operation of the Army Transportation Service.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. In the reorganization and administration of the personnel branch of the office of the Surgeon General of the Army during the present war, he thereby contributed greatly to the proper care of the sick and wounded and thus increased the efficiency of the Army.

Lieutenant colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served as adjutant, 82d Division, from December, 1917, until March, 1918; assistant chief of staff, G-1, 82d Division, from April to June and from September to December, 1918; assistant chief of staff, G-1, 18t Army Corps December, 1918, until February, 1919; and assistant chief of staff, G-4, 1st Army, from February to April, 1919, and then as G-4, intermediate section, services of supply. By his marked ability, sound judgment, and high military attainments he rendered meritorious services in positions of great responsibility, contributing in a large measure to the success attained by all the units with which he served. with which he served.

Captain, assistant superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army. As chief nurse of the base hospital at Camp Sevier, S. C., during the early part of the World War, she was responsible for the nursing eare of thousands of patients under most trying and difficult circumstances. Her tact, energy, and ability were greatly instrumental in saving many lives, particularly during the influenza epidemic. Her services were characterized by zeal and excellent judgment, and her achievements have been conspicuous. Later, while serving as assistant superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, in the office of the Surgeon General, her administrative ability and professional experience were of inestimable value to the Medical Department in providing proper nursing eare for the sick and wounded.

Lieutenant colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As executive officer and assistant director of the Army General Staff College, at Langres he rendered conspicuous services. Later, as chief of the Military Police Corps Division of the Provost Marshal General's Department, American Expeditionary Forces, by his ability, untiring zeal, and sound judgment, he aided in a material way in producing an efficient organization. He has rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Milling, Thomas DEW_____ R—Franklin, La. B—Winnfield, La. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

MINNIGERODE, FITZHUGH L.... R—Washington, D. C.
B—Oatlands, Va.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Minor, Sidney W. R.—Durham, N. C. B.—Granville Co., N. C. G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920.

awarded.

MITCHELL, JAMES B.....R—Syracuse, N. Y.
B—Syracuse, N. Y.
G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

MITCHELL, WILLIAM....R-Milwaukee, Wis. B-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

MITCHELL, WILLIAM A..... R—Columbus, Ga. B—Seale, Ala. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

MONCRIEF, WILLIAM H ..... R—Atlanta, Ga. B—Greensboro, Ga. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.
First, as chief of staff and later as commander, he organized and conducted the operations of the Air Service of the 1st Army during the entire operations of that Army. By untiling, painstaking, and energetic elloris he succeeded in raising the efficiency of his command and insuring the proper cooperation with the land units. He exhibited professional attainments of the highest order and exercised a marked influence on the success of the 1st Army.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
He served with notable success as commanding officer of the 109th Field Artillery, 28th Division, giving proof of high qualities of leadership. Inspiring his men by his self-sacrificing devotion to duty he maintained a creditable standard of efficiency in his regiment and constantly furnished the most effective artillery support to the attacking Infantry.

Second lieutenant, 8th Infantry, U. S. Army. For bravery and presence of mind in going to the rescue of drowning men at Iloilo, Panay, Philippine Islands, Sept. 10, 1907.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 120th Infantry, 30th Division, from the time of its organization and training to the completion of active combat operations in the Ypres-Lys and Somme offensives, he displayed at all times initiative and sound judgment. During the attack on the Hindenburg line, near Bellicourt, France, Sept. 29, 1918, and during the subsequent advance, he handled his regiment with distinction, capturing several towns, numerous cannon and many prisoners. He has rendered services of material worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army.
As inspector general, and as chief of staff, Base Section No. 3, services of supply, American Expeditionary Forces, positions of great responsibility, he showed great engery and good judgment in the organization of Base Section No. 3 and in providing for the American troops at the base and for those passing through England. H rendered services of much value.

Brigadier general, U.S. Army. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As Air Service commander, first of the zone of advance and later of the 1st
Army Corps, by his tireless energy and keen perception be performed duties of great importance with marked ability. Subsequently as commander, Air-Service, of the 1st Army, and, in addition, after formation of the 2d Army as commander of Air Service of both armies, by his able direction of these vitally important services he proved to be a potent factor in the successes achieved during the operations of the American armies.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
Having taken command of the 2d Engineers, 2d Division, just prior to the battle of Soissons, he served with distinction as the leader of this regiment until the close of hostilities. Under his skillful direction his regiment successfully accomplished all the important technical missions assigned to it. His high military attainments were reflected by its efficiency in combat operations. Subsequent to the armistice he continued to render important services to the American Expeditionary Forces as chief of engineers of the 8th Army Corps. Army Corps.

First lieutenant, chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of the hase hospital at Camp Devens, Mass., during the World War, although greatly hampered by lack of personnel and equipment, she displayed unusual talent for organization. By her untiring, painstaking, and energetic efforts in the distribution of her staff and her personal care of the sick she rendered great service to the Army, particularly during the influenza epidemic, when the lives of many patients were saved through her efforts.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
In organizing and commanding the hospital center at Mesves, he took possession of the center in its unfinished condition and by great force and ability prepared a hospital group for the care of sick and wounded at a time when the need of hospital beds was critical.

Captain, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

On his own initiative and with great vision, patriotism, and determination he developed, with funds provided by public-spirited citizens, the armored motor tank car which was adopted by the American Government, training at the same time a corps of technical experts who rendered important service in the Ordnance Department of the Army. Subsequently, as an officer of Field Artillery in France, he was charged with the responsibility of maintaining while in action the mechanical efficiency of the newly issued French material forming the heavy artillery of the 33d and 79th Divisions during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations. In this work he displayed technical skill of the highest order, reducing to a minimum the fire losses of his brigade, and contributed markedly to the success of his artillery brigade his brigade, and contributed markedly to the success of his artillery brigade in these offensives.

Montgomery, John C.... R-Elizabethtown, Ky. B-Elizabethtown, Ky. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Montgomery, Walter C.....R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Moopy, Lucian B.....R—Huron, S. Dak. B—Huron, S. Dak. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921.

MOORE, HUGH B.....R—Texas City, Tex.
B—Huntland, Tenn.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

MOORHEAD, JOHN J.....R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

R—Edwardsville, Ill. B—Eureka, Mich. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

MORGAN, JOHN M.....R.—Minersville, Ohio.
B.—Minersville, Ohio.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Morrow, Charles H.____ R—Somerset, Ky. B—Somerset, Ky. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

Morrow, Dwight W R—Englewood, N. J. B—Huntington, W. Va. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
Serving successively as division inspector, 2d Division; assistant chief of staff, Q-3, 1st Army Corps; and assistant chief of staff, Q-3, 3d Army, he has been charged with duties of a most important nature, in the performance of which he has at all times manifested steadfast loyalty and military ability of a high order, rendering services of signal worth.

Licutenant colonel Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He served with marked distinction as division surgeon of the 27th Division. When confronted with a shortage of personnel, he displayed marked initiative and resourcefulness in organizing additional sanitary personnel. During the action along the Hindenburg line, Sept. 25 and 30, 1918, by his high professional attainments, sound judginent, and loyal devotion to duty he so conducted the personnel at his disposal as to provide successfully for the evacuation of 4,000 casualties in four days.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
For services as assistant to the chief ordnance officer, American Expeditionary Forces in France, and chief ordnance officer, Army of Occupation in Germany.

Licutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

He served creditably as superintendent, Army Transport Service, at Brest, and later, director of the Army Transport Service, he successfully supervised the activities of this service in 40 ports. Actuated by self-sacrificing devotion to duty, he achieved marked success in expediting the movement of troops, rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of American Red Cross Hospital No. 110, at Coincy, France, from June to November, 1918, he operated his hospital under the most difficult conditions and with inadequate personnel and equipment.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U.S. Army. In a position of the greatest responsibility, he displayed peculiar genius, combined with exact scientific knowledge, in organizing, training, and operating the radio intelligence service of the intelligence section. Charged with the duty of intercepting and deciphering the radio messages of the enemy, he acted with initiative and foresight, achieving brilliant results.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member of the intelligence section, he efficiently organized and directed the operations of the counter-espionage service in the American Expeditionary Forces, displaying marked talents in a position of great responsibility. His unusual powers of discernment, his tact, and sound judgment made possible effective cooperation with corresponding services of the allied armies. Due to his zeal and untiring devotion, the counter-espionage service attained executional proficiency. exceptional proficiency.

Captain, U.S. Navy For services as force transport officer. His untiring energy contributed greatly to the successful movement of troops and supplies.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 309th Infantry, 78th Division, during the last two months of hostilities he displayed marked qualities of leadership and unflagging energy. By the skillful manner in which he conducted his regiment during the advance through the Bois-de-Loges in the first part of November he contributed materially to the successes of his division in its operations in the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

Major general, U. S. Army.

For services as department commander, Western Department, in handling with great skill, tact, and sound judgment many difficult problems arising in his department.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
In command of American forces in the Baikal sector, Siberia, Colonel Morrow with great energy, tact, and force handled a situation fraught with serious possibilities and rendered a service of great worth.

Member of the American Shipping Mission. Member of the American Shipping Mission.

He was responsible for the first intelligent epitomization of the complete allied tonnage situation, and his able presentation of the situation to the allied countries materially affected the tonnage policy, resulting in all possible economy. By his tact and good judgment in matters affecting the establishment of the military board of allied supply he helped materially in the splendid results obtained by the covariation. did results obtained by that organization.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

From September, 1917, to March, 1918, in the organization and operation of the 1st Division and 1st Corps Schools, he rendered valuable and unusual services under very great difficulties. From April to December, 1918, as a member of the training and instruction branch of the war-plans division, General Staff, and in direct supervision of the field officers' schools in the combat divisions, and the War College course for instruction of divisional staff officers, his zeal, marked ability, and high military attainments were important factors in successfully standardizing the training and instruction of a great many senior officers. Later, while in direct charge of the organization of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, he again rendered invaluable services in building up this important branch of civilian military training along sound and endurup this important branch of civilian military training along sound and enduring lines.

Morrow, Henry M ...

R—Omaha, Nebr. B—Niles, Mich. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
As judge advocate, Philippine Department, by his legal ability and soundadvice in the solution of unusual and highly important military and international problems, he contributed in a marked degree to the successful administration of military and civil affairs in the Philippines and China. Later as judge advocate of the 2d Army in France from October, 1918, until April, 1919, and then as judge advocate of the district of Paris until August, 1919, he displayed great zeal, marked legal training, and sound judgment in many difficult problems which confronted him and solved them with conspicuous

awarded

Morrow, William M... R-Fort Sidney, Nebr. B-Niles, Mich. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service cross also

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. He served with conspicuous success as commanding officer of the 7th Infantry, 3d Division, succeeding in all of the difficult missions assigned to him. His sound judgment and untiring energy proved important factors in the success-ful operations of his division against the enemy.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As director of the Veterinary Corps, by displaying exceptional energy, zeal, and good judgment he organized and administered with marked success a veterinary service capable of meeting every need in home territory and in the theater of operations. He provided effective means for the treatment of sick and wounded animals, for the prevention of disease among well animals, for the inspection of meat and dairy products used by the Army, and, through the establishment of schools of instruction, placed the personnel of the Veterinary Corps of the Army on a high plane of efficiency.

Director of Sales, Supply Division, War Department, General Staff.

Charged with the very important duty of organizing and training a competent force for the entirely novel functions of supervising, coordinating, and directing the disposal, according to law, of the vast War Department surplus of supplies, materials, and properties of every description, and with the formulation and development of sales policies, he performed his manifold duties with marked ability, energy, and judgment, with the result that the United States disposed of great quantities of supplies at exceptionally advantageous prices prices.

Morton, Charles G. R—Brookline, Mass, B—Cumberlaud, Me, G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.
He commanded the 29th Division from the date of its organization until the end of hostilities, and led this division with skill and ability in the successful operations east and northeast of Verdun, which forced the enemy to maintain this front with strong forces, thus preventing an increase of hostile strength between the Argonne and the Meuse.

Moseley, George V. H......R—Evanston, Ill. B—Evanston, Ill. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as Assistant Chief of Staff. He handled with great executive ability and rare understanding all problems of equipping and supplying the large number of American troops arriving and operating in France, and by his large grasp of supply problems and tireless energy he has conspicuously aided the successful administration of the supply department.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

Commanding the 316th Field Artillery, 81st Division, from August, 1917, and the 156th Field Artillery Brigade, 81st Division from June, 1918, until it was demobilized, he exhibited qualities of excellent leadership and military attainments of a high order. Later, as chairman of a joint board of review, he occupied a position of great responsibility, having full charge and control of the redelivery of all ships allocated to the War Department during the World War. By his administrative ability, excellent judgment, energy, and tact, he rendered conspicuous services in bringing about speedy and accurate settlements with the shipowners, which resulted in a large saving to the Government.

MOTT, JOHN R. R-Montelair, N. J. B-Livingston Manor, N. Y. G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

Government. For services as general secretary of the national war work council of the Young Men's Christian Association of the United States.

MOTT, T. BENTLEY_ R—Leesburg, Va. B—Leesburg, Va. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army,
As chief liaison officer of the Commander in Chief, American Expeditionary Forces, at Allied General Headquarters, he performed the important duties with which he was charged with marked ability, and by his tact and sound judgment he materially assisted in insuring close cooperation between the French and American Armies.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

Arriving in France with the first American troops, he undertook the task of creating a medical supply depot and administering a medical supply service for the American Expeditionary Forces. Using his limited resources with great skill and judgment, he displayed unusual talent for organization and laid the foundation of an efficient medical supply service.

MOUNTFORD, FREDERICK A. R-East Liverpool, Ohio. B-England. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922, Lieutenant colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the Chief of Coast Artillery and in charge of the matériel section in that office he displayed excellent judgment and a thorough knowledge of the involved and intricate details in connection with matériel, thereby rendering highly meritorious service in the preparation and execution of plans for the effective accomplishment of the duties assigned to the Coast Artillery Corps in the operations in France.

MUIR, CHARLES H....

R—Erie, Mich.
B—Erie, Mich.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

MURPHY, GRAYSON M. P..... R—New York. N. Y. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

MURRAY, ARTHUR. R—Bowling Green, Mo. B—Bowling Green, Mo. G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

EDITH A. (now Mrs. EDITH A. MURY. Kershaw).
R—Oakland, Calif.
B—Wadsworth. Nev.
G. O. 9, No. W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As officer in charge of the enlisted division, Adjutant General's Office, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he demonstrated the highest order of efficiency, and by his tact and sound judgment be handled in a masterful manner the many difficult problems that arose. During the demobilization he carried to successful completion the various projects relative to the discharge and return of enlisted personnel. By his splendid attainments and professional zeal he contributed materially to the success of the work of The Adjutant General's Office at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces.

work of the Adjutant General's Office at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As division and corps commander, commanding the 28th Division during the Argonne-Meuse offensive, and especially in the difficult operations which resulted in the clearing of the Argonne-Forest, he proved himself to be an energetic leader of the highest professional attainments. As a corps commander he displayed the same fine qualities that characterized his service with a division. with a division.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

He projected, recruited, organized, and mobilized the 144th Field Artillery, 40th Division, as an additional regiment of the California National Guard.
Later, as colonel of that regiment, his sound judgment and marked ability as a leader were largely responsible for the successful training of his regiment both in the United States and France and in the development in the unit both in the United States and France and in the development in that unit of over 168 officers for our Army.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. He developed the scheme of field training for officers and enlisted men of the Medical Department, directed the organization and administration of the medical officers' training camps, and organized and administered the Morale Branch of the General Staff.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As director of Base Hospital No. 21, as supervisor of the evacuation of the sick and wounded of the 1st Army, and later as director of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery of the American Red Cross he rendered most valuable assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces. Throughout his service he displayed unusual administrative ability and professional skill, combined with a genius for organization that contributed greatly to the efficiency of the Medical Service of the Army. Untiring in zeal and enthusiatic in his duty, he was an inspiration to those associated with him. an inspiration to those associated with him.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He organized the work of the American Red Cross in Europe, and to his fore-sight, wisdom, and untiring efforts are largely due the splendid work performed for the American Expeditionary Forces by that institution. Later he displayed marked ability as assistant chief of staff of the 42d Division during the operations of that unit.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 44th Artillery Regiment, Coast Artillery Corps, by his narked ability, energy, and resourcefulness, he organized, equipped, and trained a regiment of 8-inch howitzers in an extraordinarily brief period of time, thus enabling them to reach the front in time to be of valuable service during the critical days of April, 1918. Later, as a member of the operations section at General Headquarters, he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army As department commander, Western Department, between August 29, 1917, and May 14, 1918, he handled many difficult problems arising in that depart ment with rare judgment, tact, and great skill.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 5th Field Artillery, 1st Division, he handled the regiment so brilliantly under severe conditions during the assualt and capture of Cantigny, May 28, 1918, and during the Aisne-Marne offensive in the assualt southeast of Soissons, July 18-25, 1918, that the regiment demonstrated an unusually high degree of efficiency and morale. He repeatedly displayed superior tactical judgment and knowledge of artillery and by his exceptional ability, leadership, and devotion to duty, he rendered the maximum of support to the Infantry of the 1st Division in effectively executing the most difficult missions assigned to him, thus rendering important services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Quartermaster Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief, training and instruction branch, War Plans Division, General Staff, during 1919, under Colonel Murray's direction the foundation for the existing system of Army education and training was established and ways and means evolved to apply to peace training the lessons learned in the World War.

Assistant superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As ehief nurse on duty at the nurses' mobilization station, Ellis Island, N. Y., during the early period of the World War, she rendered invaluable assistance to the Medical Department by instructing newly appointed chief nurses before embarkation for overseas, and through her untiring energy and unusual capabilities set a splendid example for all who came in contact with her.
Later, as assistant superintendent, in the office of the Surgeon General, she contributed services of him value in supervising the demohilication of she contributed services of high value in supervising the demobilization of the Army Nurse Corps.

himself and to his command.

G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919. Myers, Hu B R—Shelbyville, Tenn. B—Shelbyville, Tenn. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919. Nelson, Erik H.

R-New York, N. Y.

B-Sweden.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.
Act of Congress, Feb. 25, 1925. Nicholson, William J.

R—Washington, D. C.

B—Washington, D. C.

G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service cross also awarded. NOBLE, ROBERT E. R—Anniston, Ala. B—Rome, Ga. G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919. also awarded.

O'BRIEN, MICHAEL J.....R-New York, N. Y.
B-Ireland.
G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
Having taken command of the 129th Infantry, 33d Division, at a critical period during active operations, he displayed marked ability as a military leader by the successful manner in which he conducted his regiment. Constantly maintaining a high grade of morale among his command, he was able to accomplish with marked armses all which is marked in the conducted of the conducted of the conducted his regiment. plish with marked success all missions assigned to his unit. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, and chief of staff, 2d Division, during its final operations, he performed his exacting staff duties with conspicuous ability. To his brilliant nulltary attainments and untiring zeal were due, in a largo measure, the successes achieved by his division in its attack on Massif du Mont at St. Etienne-a-Armes, when the 2d Division served with the 4th French Army, and again during its advance from Landres-et-St. Georges to the Meuse during the final phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While chief of staff of the 33d Division he exhibited conspicuous ability in the operations north of Verdun, France, in September and October, 1918. He frequently visited the front-line positions under heavy enemy artillery fire, and by his personal efforts and skillful dispositions was in a large measure reconnible for the suggestion of the property of the second state. responsible for the successes gained. First lieutenant, Air Service, U. S. Army. Lieutenant Nelson, as pilot of Airplane No. 4, the New Orleans, and engineer officer of the U. S. Army Air Service around-the-world flight from Apr. 6, 1924, to Sept. 28, 1924, displayed sound technical skill, initiative, untiring energy, and resourcefulness and succeeded in piloting his airplane the content the resource of the piloting his airplane the content to the content of throughout the voyage. His sound judgment, indefatigable energy, and courageous conduct in the face of extraordinary perils contributed largely to the success of this pioneer flight of airplanes around the world. In the efficient performance of his arduous duties he aided in the accomplishment of an exploit which brought great credit to himself and to the Army of the United States. Brigadier general, U. S. Marine Corps.
While in command of the 5th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, and later of the 4th Infantry Brigade, 2d Division, he participated in the battles of Chateau-Thierry, the advance near Soissons, and the operations of St. Milniel, Blanc Mont Ridge, and the Argonne-Meuse. In all of these he proved him-self to be a leader of great skill and ability. Brigadier general, U. S. Army. He commanded with distinction the 157th Infantry Brigade, 79th Division, from its organization to the time of the armistice—at all times with credit to

Major general, U. S. Army.

He had immediate charge of the personnel division of the Surgeon General's Office and solved the problem of getting medical officers into the Army during an increase from 1,500 at the beginning of the war to 30,000. He also had charge of the hospital division of the Surgeon General's Office, handling both of these large responsibilities with conspicuous success.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army the organized and administered with marked ability the intelligence section of the General Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces. His estimates of the complex and everchanging military and political situation, his sound judgment, and accurate discrimination were invaluable to the Government, and influenced greatly the success that attended the operations of the American armies in Europe.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army,
As a regimental commander of the 89th Division he displayed marked military ability, providing his regiment with efficient training which showed its effects by the excellent conduct of the regiment in combat. Later, when promoted to the grade of brigadier general, he demonstrated great executive ability in the organization and administration of the combat officers' replacement depot at Gondrecourt.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.

As officer in charge of the officers' division, Adjutant General's Office, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he demonstrated the highest professional attainments in the discharge of his multifarious drities. By his zeal, good judgment, and never-failing tact he was responsible in a large measure for the development of the high efficiency of his division. During the demobilization of the American Expeditionary Forces, working without regard to hours, by his tireless energy and exceptional ability he carried to successful completion the various and difficult projects that arose. Later, in charge of the American Expeditionary Forces records in Washington, D. C., he maintained that same high standard of efficiency which marked his work in the Adjutant General's Office, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces.

OGDEN, HENRY II
R—Woodville, Miss.
B—Woodville, Miss.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.
Act of Congress, Feb. 25, 1925.

Ogden, Hugh Walker....R—Brookline, Mass.
B—Bath, Me.
G. O. No. 74, W. D., 1919.

OLMSTED, EDWARD

R-Elizabeth, N. J.

B-San Francisco, Calif.
G. O. 22, W. D., 1920.

O'NEILL, JOHN R.—Newburyport, Mass. B.—Newburyport, Mass. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

ORD, JAMES B.
R.—San Diego, Calif.
B.—Mexico.
G. O. No. 96, W. D., 1918.

First Heutenant, chaplain, 432d Infantry, 33d Division, U.S. Army

As regimental chaplain he was caseless in his efforts to better the welfare of the men, and during the period of operations accompanied the attacking waves in every action in which the regiment took part. Exposing himself to artillery and machine-gun fire to eare personally for the wounded, organizing parties of stretcher bearers, going without a thought of personal danger wherever he was needed, he set an example of courage and heroism, appreciably raising the morale of those with whom and for whom he worked.

Second lieutenant, Air Service, U. S. Army.
Lieutenant Ogden, as assistant pilot of Airplane No. 3, the Boston, and assistant supply officer of the U. S. Army Air Service around-the-world flight from Apr. 6, 1924, to Sept. 28, 1924, displayed to a marked degree technical skill, courage, energy, and resourcefulness in carrying out his supply duties, in addition to alternate piloting of Airplane No. 3 curing the voyage. His foresight, perseverance, and mechanical ability were very material factors in contributing to the successful accomplishment of this pioneer flight of airplanes around the world. In the efficient performance of his arduous duties he aided in the accomplishment of an undertaking bringing great credit to himself and to the military forces of the United States.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As judge advocate and inspector of the 42d Division he rendered valuable services. He exhibited ability of a high order throughout the operations of the division. Later, assigned to the bureau of civil affairs for the Third Army, he performed his task with marked success.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., from Jan. 21, 1919, to Feb. 26, 1920, he occupied a position of great responsibility. The details of arrangements for demobilization and for handling the sick and wounded fell largely upon his shoulders. His energy, excellent judgment, and administrative ability were of greatest value to the Government.

Colonel, Dental Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief dental surgeon he displayed remarkable ability in the performance of his numerous and exacting duties. He directed the personnel, equipment, and operations of his department with sound judgment, showing resourcefulness in solving new problems which confronted him.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the 27th Division, by his high military attainments, zeal, and keen perception of his manifold duties the technical services of the division were so promptly and effectively coordinated and supervised that the front-line units were at all times completely supplied with all necessities. He has rendered services of particular worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.
From November, 1917, until November, 1919, at Base Section No. 5, Brest, France, while serving in succession as chief of stevedores, assistant general superintendent in charge of the operations and troop and cargo divisions, and finally as superintendent of that port, by virtue of his marked ability, indomitable energy, and his capacity for inspiring his men he overceme all difficulties and met every demand made upon his force. His remarkable achievements in the quick turn-around of large vessels carrying troops and supplies were of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Second lieutenant, 6th Infantry, attached to 13th Cavalry, U. S. Army. While in action at Parral, Mexico; Apr. 12, 1916, after being himself wounded, he dismounted from his horse under heavy fire, placed a wounded man on a horse, and assisted him from the field.

Lieutenant colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
His untiring energy and spendid judgment were displayed in the efficient organization of the Engineering Division of the Motor Transport Corps in bringing about standardization of equipment and supplies and in efficiently directing the forces of the motor industry to the mutual advantage of the Army and the industry itself.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 27th Division in its successful operations with the British in France in the autumn of 1918 be displayed qualities of skill and aggressive ness which mark him as a leader of ability. In the breach of the Hindenburg line between St. Quentin and Cambrai the name of his division is linked with the British in adding new laurels to the allied forces in France.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
Placed in command of the 157th Infantry Brigade, 79th Division, during the Montfaucon drive, he displayed exceptional qualities of leadership and marked tactical skill. Continuing at the same time in command of his regiment, the 31th Infantry, he directed the men of his command, and by his damntless determination carried them forward under heavy enemy fire. He proved himself untiring in energy and possessed of great initiative, sound judgment, and military attainments of high order.

Colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army.
While serving as inspector general, 3d Army Corps, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Colonel Ovenshine was charged with many important reports and investigations, which service was performed with marked ability and good judgment, and aided his corps and his Army commanders in decisions culminating in the success of this offensive. Later, as inspector general, 2d Army, he rendered distinguished service of a similar nature in connection with the operations of the 2d Army from Oct. 12, 1918, to the day of the armistice.

Paegelow, John A.....R.—Chieago, Ill. B.—Germany. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

As commander of balloon service of the 1st Army Corps and 1st Army, he was well fitted for his important position both by long experience in aeronautics and by noted organizing ability. Through his untiring energy an efficient system of supply and transportation was developed in spite of the numerous difficulties which assailed him. The successes achieved by the balloon service in the second Battle of the Marne and in the St. Mihiel offensive are a tribute to the high character of services rendered by him to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member of the General Staff of the American Expeditionary Forces, on duty with the 1st section, first as chief of the tonnage division during a period of stress, befraught with difficulties, and later as deputy assistant chief of staff, he performed duties of great responsibility with marked ability, fidelity, and success, invariably displaying personal and professional attainments of a high order.

PALMER, FREDERICK.....R-New York, N. Y.
B-Pleasantville, Pa.
G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant colonel, Sigual Corps, U. S. Army.
Charged with the responsibility of drafting regulations covering the mail and press consorship, as well as formulating plans for the guidance of press correspondents with the American forces in France, he rendered conspicuously valuable services. Having served in all the zones occupied by the allied forces, his information, of far reaching value, was placed at the disposal of our Government. His broad experience with many armies, his outstanding skill as an observer, his untiring energy and devotion to duty contributed markedly to the successful operations of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
In the organization of the operations section of the General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces, this officer displayed sound tactical judgment and breadth of vision, and the ultimate success of the American plan of campaign was largely due to his detailed plans. As commander of the 58th Infantry Brigade, 29th Division, during the severe fighting north of Verdun, in the Argonne-Meuse offensive, his services were conspicuous and his brigade successful.

PARK, RICHARD. R-Warren, N. H. B-Malden, Mass. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

To his energy and good judgment may be largely attributed the rapid development and successful administration of the Engineer Training School and mobilization camp at Camp A. A. Humphreys, Va. His utilization of labor of troops to supplement construction forces is a fine example of initiative in meeting a critical situation.

FARKER, CORTLANDT.
R-Newark, N. J.
B-Fort Apache, Ariz.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

He organized and conducted the training eamp for Field Artillery at Camp Coctquidan and later, at the office of the Chief of Artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, by his superior professional attainments, his zeal, and keen foresight, he contributed in a marked manner to the successful conduct of Field Artillery training. As regimental commander of the 6th Field Artillery, 1st Division, in the Cantigny sector and in the Aisne-Marne offensive, he repeatedly displayed superior tactical judgment and knowledge of artillery, and by his exceptional ability, leadership, and devotion to duty he rendered the maximum support to the Infantry of the 1st Division in effectively executing the most difficult missions assigned to him, thus rendering in a position of great responsibility most important services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

PARKER, EDWIN B....R-Houston, Tex. B-Shelby County, Mo. G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920. As priority commissioner on the War Industries Board he formulated and directed policies for the fullest development of war industries with marked ability and foresight. Later and subsequent to the armistice he, as chairman of the United States Liquidation Commission, War Department, undertook the immense task of liquidating the mass of intricate transactions incurred between the War Department and the allied Governments during the war, and also the disposal of all surplus war stocks and property of the War Department in Europe. As directing head of this commission and by his patience, industry, and diplomacy he brought this immense task to a sucsuccessful conclusion in less than one year, to the very great credit of the War Department and the United States and the continued and warm friendship of the nations involved.

Parker, Frank R—Georgetown, S. C. B—Georgetown, S. C. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He commanded with marked distinction the 18th United States Infantry.
Later, as a brigade commander, he exhibited qualities of rare leadership, superb courage, and unusual initiative. Finally he commanded the 1st Division in the Argonne offensive in the autumn of 1918, where he showed himself to be a skilled leader of marked ability.

PARKER, HUGH A.
R-Royse City, Tex.
B-Hunt, Tex.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served as assistant G-3, 1st Army Corps, during June and July, 1918; G-3, 4th Division, from August to October, 1918; chief of staff, 7th Division, from November, 1918, to February, 1919; and chief of staff, American Military Mission at Berlin. By his tact, sound judgment, marked ability, and loyal devotion to duty, he contributed materially to the success of all units with which he served.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He served with great distinction as commander of the Southern Department, Fort Sam Houston, Tex., Mar. 31, 1917, to Aug. 25, 1917; and as division commander, 32d Division, from Aug. 25 to Dec. 11, 1917; division commander, 85th Division, Dec. 11, 1917, to Feb. 20, 1918, when having reached the statutory age he was retired from active service. In these positions of great responsibility he displayed rare and outstanding leadership, the organizations under command at all times showing the results of sound training, a high state of morale and discipline. His unusual professional attainments, sound judgment, and devotion to duty were material and important factors in the development of organizations of the American Army, and contributed in a signal way to their successful operations in action against the enemy.

PARKER, JOHN II.

R—Green Ridge, Mo.

B—Tipton, Mo.

G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service cross and three oak-leaf clusters also awarded.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As an instructor in the Army Machine Gun School at Langres, by his tireless efforts he secured the necessary equipment and ably instructed a large student body in the technical handling of one of the most important fire power weapons developed in the present war, rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Parsons, James K.

R.—Birmingham, Ala.

B.—Rockford, Ala.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He organized and commanded with energy and ability the embarkation camp at St. Nazaire, France, and handled with conspicuous success the reception, care, and departure of the large number of officers and soldiers passing through that camp en route to the United States. He demonstrated administrative abilities of a high order and performed services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Parsons, William Barclay R.—New York, N. Y. B.—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923. Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He served as major, 11th Engineers (Railway), during its organization and training period; chairman of Engineering Railway Commission sent overseas to investigate and report upon railway conditions in France; lieutenant colonel and then colonel, 11th Engineers, during its combat operations. By his wide experience, sound judgment, and brilliant professional and technical attainments he handled many difficult problems which confronted him with conspicuous success, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Patrick, Mason M......R—Lewisburg, W. Va. B—Lewisburg, W. Va. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He displayed much ability and devotion to duty as director of construction and forestry, and later, as chief of the Air Service of the American Expeditionary Forces, he perfected and ably administered the organization of this important department.

 Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As an officer of the Inspector General's Department and as chief of the investigations division of that department his rare efficiency and good judgment in the investigation and treatment of difficult and intricate problems have materially facilitated the administration of the office of the Inspector General, and have been of great value to the War Department and to the Army.

PATTERSON, HANNAH J R—Pittsburgh, Pa. B—Smithton, Pa. G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

Council of National Defense.

She devoted herself throughout the whole period of the war to executive work of the Women's Committee of the Council of National Defense, devoting herself with great ability and energy to the organization of the activities and interests of the women throughout the United States in the interest of the successful prosecution of the war and, by her efforts, contributed to the splendid cooperation on the part of the women of the country in the great national emergency.

 Captain, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As evacuation officer of the 1st Army in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives he directed the routing of all battle casualties into Army hospitals at the front, supervised the daily supply of those hospitals, and so skillfully and energetically classified and coordinated the constant flow of evacuations to the rear by timely calls for and expeditious loading of hospital trains that beds were always available for thousands of sick and wounded of the 1st Army. He rendered services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility.

PATTERSON, ROBERT U.....R—Baltimore, Md.
B—Canada.
G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer, Base Hospital No. 5, United States Army, serving with the British Expeditionary Forces at Dannes-Camiers and Boulogne, France, he displayed tireless energy and military attainments of a high order in the efficient operation of this hospital. By his marked devotion to duty and administrative ability great numbers of our own and allied sick and wounded were treated, resulting in the saving of many lives. His services were of material value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

awarded.

G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

PEARCE, EARLE D'A.....R.—Thomaston, Ga. B.—Thomaston, Ga. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

PECK, CHARLES H. R-New York, N. Y. B-Newton, Conn. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

PECK, ROBERT H.

R—San Diego, Calif.

B—San Francisco, Calif.

G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Реек, George N.... R.—Moline, III. B.—Polo, III. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Pennell, Ralph McT R-Belton, S. C. B-Belton, S. C. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Tank Corps, U. S. Army.

By his energy and sound judgment he rendered very valuable services in his organization and direction of the tank center at the Army schools at Langres. In the employment of Tank Corps troops in combat he displayed high military attainments, zeal, and marked adaptability in a form of warfare comparatively new to the American Army.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As a member of the American Military Commission of Italy from April to July, 1918, he displayed tact and diplomacy in making a preliminary investigation of the Czechoslovak situation. Later, as commanding officer of the 7th Engineers, he participated creditably in the St. Milhiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, materially aiding in the operations of the 5th Division by his skill in constructing bridges across the Meuse River in the face of desperate hostile resistance.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As an assistant chief of staff, G-I, 1st Division, during the attack on Soissons, he displayed marked ability. Later, as G-I, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, by his extraordinary ability, his capacity for organization, and his brilliant execution of all details pertaining to administration of supply he overcame unusual difficulties and thereby contributed in a marked degree to the success of the operations of the 1st Division.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. As commanding officer of the 319th Field Artillery, 82d Division in the organization and training of the regiment and in its very successful operations against the enemy in the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives, he displayed tireless energy, keen devotion to duty, and eminent technical skill as an artillerist, gave most effective support to the Infantry of the 82d and 80th Divisions, and very materially contributed to the successes attained by these parts. by those units.

Lieutenant colonel, Curps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As an officer of the Forestry Service he displayed exceptional tact and sound judgment in securing public and private grants for large quantities of timber from the French Government. At all times he pursued his task with great energy, achieving signal success. He organized and administered a project for the production of fuel wood, which proved entirely successful. In these endeavors he rendered valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As director of Base Hospital No. 15, which he had organized most efficiently, he displayed unusual skill and very marked ability in the conduct of that unit.
Later, as senior consultant in general surgery for the American Expeditionary Forces, his professional attainments, wide experience, and sound advice proved of inestimable value in increasing the efficiency of the Medical Department of the United States Army.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He rendered services of signal worth as commanding officer of the 47th Infantry, 4th Division, and subsequently of the 11th Infantry, 5th Division, successfully accomplishing all missions assigned to the regiment under his command during the active operations in which it participated. Constantly displaying unremitting zeal and tactical ability of a high order, he proved himself invaluable to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He organized and conducted the operations of the standard gauge and light railways of the 1st Army during its active operations, resulting in the reduction of the St. Minic salient and the recovery of the extensive Mcuse-Argonne area. Although handicapped by lack of personnel and material, he pushed the enterprise to success. By untiring, painstaking, and energetic efforts in the use of the inadequate means at his disposal, he displayed unusual talent for organization and masterful execution.

Commissioner of Finished Products, War Industries Board.
In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War. As a member of the board he rendered, through his broad vision, distinguished capacity, and business ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As commissioner of finished products, it was largely through his mutring efforts and devotion to duty that the supply bureaus of the War Department were able to maintain a constant flow of munitions as well as supplies of a general character to the Army.

general character to the Army. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the Springfield Arsenal his exceptional ability contributed materially to increasing the output of small arms. As Assistant Chief of Ordnance he has rendered conspicuous service.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As assistant to the Chief of Field Artillery from Apr. 16, 1918, to Sept. 4, 1918, he planned and executed those measures which provided a balanced production of different types of field artillery material and equipment and the selection of the types to be produced, and which determined the priorities of distribution of the same.

PENNER, CARL. R—Milwaukee, Wis. B—Milwaukee, Wis. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1921.

PEPPER, SAMUEL D. R-Lansing, Mich. B-Canada. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

PERKINS, ALBERT T R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Brunswick, Me. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

PERKINS, JAMES H. R—Greenwich, Conn. B—Milton, Mass. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Pershing, John J. R-Laclede, Mo. B-Linn County, Mo. G. O. No. 111, W. D., 1918.

Persons, Elbert E.
R—Chicago, Ill.
B—Prouts, Ohio.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

PEYTON, EPHRAIM G.....R—Columbus, Miss. B—Gallatin, Miss. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

PICKERING, RICHARD R.... R—Uniontown, Ala. B—Uniontown, Ala. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, 120th Field Artillery, 32d Division, U. S. Army.
He commanded his regiment during the Marne-Aisne, Oise-Aisne, and Meuse-Argonne offensives. His devotion to duty and skillful handling of his command proved a material factor in the success of the 57th Field Artillery Brigade while supporting the 32d Division, and at other times five other divisions.

Licutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army, From August, 1917, until June, 1919, he served in turn as judge advocate of the 32d Division, 5th Army Corps, and advance section, Services of Supply. By his marked legal ability, excellent judgment, and thorough knowledge of discipline and morale, he rendered services of signal worth to all the units with which he served, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As deputy and later as manager of light railways, he undertook the task of organizing a light railway service for the American Expeditionary Forces. His long and complete railroad experience and knowledge assured the success of these lines. By his foresight in promptly gathering from the United States a generous supply of railway material he quickly brought the light railway service to a high degree of efficiency.

Commander, U. S. Navy.

As that secretary to the commander, cruiser and transport fleet, his close cooperation with the Army authorities in the handling of troop ships contributed greatly to the successful outcome of our oversea operations.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army. He was in charge of the work of the American Red Cross in Europe for a period of time, and by his great energy and untiring efforts maintained that institution at a high state of excellence and rendered valuable assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces. While in the military service he displayed marked ability in the performance of the various duties with which he was intrusted.

General, U. S. Army, Commander in Chief, American Expeditionary Forces. As a token of the gratitude of the American people to the commander of our armies in the field for his distinguished services, and in appreciation of the success which our armies have achieved under his leadership.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He organized the United States Army Ambulance Service Training School at Camp Crane, Allentown, Pa., and as its commanding officer from June, 1917, to May, 1918, by his great energy, marked executive ability, and wide professional knowledge, succeeded in rapidly training, equipping, and dispatching overseas ambulance units where they rendered excellent service with the French armies and later with our own forces. From June to December, 1918, he commanded the American Ambulance Service, serving on the Italian front, where he again rendered conspicuous service in a position of great. front, where he again rendered conspicuous service in a position of great responsibility.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer, Engineer Officers' Training Camp at Camp Lee, Va., from April to August, 1918, and director of training at Camp Humphreys, Va., until October, 1918, he displayed marked foresight, are ability, and sound judgment in the reorganization and standardization of the instruction for engineer troops. By his organizing and training ability, indefatigable efforts, and high military attainments he successfully directed the training of 4,500 engineer officers and 20,000 enlisted men, thereby rendering services of great value to our Government in positions of great responsibility.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As the commanding officer of the 320th Infantry Regiment, 80th Division, in all its operations, by careful and painstaking preparations and skillful leadership, he enabled his regiment to carry always its tasks through to a successful end. At all times he displayed a high order of leadership and exhibited superb qualities as a commander.

Colonel, 61st Infantry, 5th Division, U. S. Army.
He took command of a regiment which had undergone six days of shell fire and commanded it with such unusual skill as to enable the regiment to capture Aincreville, Bois-de-Babiemont, Doulcon, and, after crossing the Meuse, to capture Hill No. 292, Dun-sur-Meuse, Milly-devant-Dun, Lion-devant-Dun, Cote St. Germain, Chateau Charmońs, and Mouzay, thereby displaying the highest order of leadership and exhibiting the masterful qualities of a commander.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

In the development and operation of machine-gun centers, in the design and development of machine-gun equipment, and later he rendered invaluable service in the preparation of machine-gun manuals.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U.S. Army. Licettenant cooner, maintry, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the large embarkation camp at Camp Mills, Long Island, N. Y., from Apr. 5, 1918, to Sept. 13, 1918, and from Dec. 11, 1918, to May 8, 1919, he displayed executive ability of the highest order in a position of great responsibility. His work marked Colonel Pickering as an exceptional officer in his capacity as organizer and administrator, and by his energy and excellent judgment contributed in a notable degree to the success of troop movements at the port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J. by his division against the enemy.

PIERSON, ROBERT H.
R-Syraeuse, N. Y.
B-Fayettesville, N. Y.
G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

PILLSBURY, GEORGE B.... R—Tewksbury, Mass. B—Lowell, Mass. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Pool, EUGENE H.....R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Poore, Benjamin A... R.—Fitchburg, Mass. B.—Center, Ala. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service cross also

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

Serving as assistant to the chief quarternaster, American Expeditionary Forces, in the capacity of chief of Graves Registration Services since December, 1917, he displayed unusnal ability and conscientious care in the performance of his exacting duties. Under his skillful administration the service functioned efficiently. He at all times showed great energy and performed his important task with exceptional success.

Major, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief quartermaster, adjutant general, chief of staff, and later commanding officer, Base Section No. 3, England, he served in these various capacities with great credit. As commanding officer of Base Section No. 3 he had charge of evacuation of troops and liquidation of American interests in England. By his energy, ability, and tact he conducted American Expeditionary Forces affairs in England to a successful conclusion.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
His zeal, intelligence, and effective work in the preliminary organization of our industries for war contributed substantially to the progress made. From May, 1917, until March, 1919, he commanded the 54th Infantry Brigade, 27th Division, in a highly meritorious manner during all the operations of his division against the Hindenburg line. His sound judgment, marked ability, and skillful leadership were important factors in the successes attained by his division against the North State of the State of State

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He served as division surgeon of the 5th Division from its organization until the close of hostilities, when he became chief surgeon of the 6th Army Corps. Due to his sound judgment and efficient direction of medical personnel, gas easualties in his division were reduced to a minimum. By his resourceful methods in combating disease he prevented the firing lines from being depleted at a critical time, maintaining a high standard of combat strength efficiency.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commandant of the Army Candidates' School at Langres, France, he organized an important institution and developed it to a high state of efficiency. His services in capably directing the training of more than 5,000 candidates for active duty at the front were of the utmost value to the American Expedicional Expensions. ditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, 32d Division, he displayed marked ability, high professional attainments, rendering immeasurably valuable services in the operations of his division in the offensives of Aisne-Marne, Oise-Aisne, the Meuse-Argonne, and during the march to the Rhine.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As corps engineer, 2d Army Corps, from October, 1918, to January, 1919, he displayed professional qualifications of an exceptionally high order. During operations which broke the Hindenburg line between Cambrai and St. Quen tin his tircless energy and highly efficient work contributed in a marked degroe to the success of the operations of the corps.

Rear admiral, U. S. Navy.

He supervised the production, transportation to Europe, and the placing in action on the western front of the United States Naval Gun Battalion of five 14-inch guns on railway mounts, the most powerful artillery weapons brought into action against Germany and her allies during the war. In this stupendous undertaking the successful accomplishment of which had an important bearing on the outcome of the war, he displayed technical knowledge of a high order, combined with practical knowledge of the needs of the service and the difficulties to be encountered. He worked with uncessing zeal and devotion, rendering a service of rare distinction to the American Expeditionary Forces. Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army. For services while serving as military attaché at The Hague, Netherlands.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As surgical consultant with the 4th Army Corps, 5th Army Corps, and then the 1st Army, he displayed unusual organizing ability, excellent judgment, and professional attainments of the highest order in directing the work of surgical teams in the care of large numbers of wounded in various hospitals at the front during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He commanded with distinction and ability the 7th Infantry Brigade, 4th Division, in the numerous engagements of the Argonne-Mense campaign.
By his energy and ability his brigade drove the enemy from Rnissenu-desForges and from the Bois-du-Fays. In these engagements important exputres of many prisoners and much material were made by the troops of his command.

Pope, Francis II R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Fort Leavenworth, Kans. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

POTTER, WILLIAM CHAPMAN R—Old Westbury, N. Y. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 118, W. D., 1919.

POWER, NEAL .. R—San Francisco, Calif. B—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

*Powers, Charles A. R—Denver, Colo. B—Lawrence, Mass. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1924.

Pratt, William Veazie R-Belfast, Me. B-Belfast, Me. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

Prentiss, Augustin M R—Barnwell, S. C. B—Chapel Hill, N. C. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the Motor Transport Service, American Expeditionary Forces, he developed a rational organization for the operation and maintenance of the motor transport of the American Expeditionary Forces, and as Deputy Chief, Motor Transport Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, was largely instrumental in further developing and applying this organization, thereby rendering exceptionally meritorious and distinguished service to the United States.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army, Having taken command of the 113th Infantry, 29th Division, shortly before the beginning of the Meuse-Argonne offensive, held it with signal ability throughout the period of its engagement in that operation. By his energy and resourcefulness in overcoming the numerous adverse conditions which confronted his regiment, he proved an inspiration to his men and an important factor in the successes of his division. As provost marshal general of the embarkation center at Le Mans, France, from December, 1918, until June, 1919, he displayed tact, marked efficiency, and executive and administrative ability of the highest order, thereby rendering highly conspicuous services in a position of great responsibility. in a position of great responsibility.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

He gave markedly able assistance in the establishment of the American Expeditionary Forces depot at Nevers and the Engineer camp at Vierzon. Later, when placed in charge of the purchase of subsistence, clothing, equipage, forage, and bedding, by his valuable knowledge of commercial conditions and by his persistent efforts and able negotiations, he secured much needed supplies from allied and neutral countries. He originated the manufacture in Europe of necessary items of food, clothing, and cloth for the use of the American Expeditionary Forces. Subsequently he rendered valuable assistance in the liquidation of the American Expeditionary Forces surplus supplies, At all times he showed remarkable energy in all matters affecting the welfare of the troops in the American Expeditionary Forces.

Chief Nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of Base Hospital No. 117 (psychiatric unit), at La Fauche, France, during the World War, she performed very difficult and exacting duties with marked skill and distinction. By her professional efficiency, untiring energy, and tact, she made a large contribution to the success of this novel and highly important hospital of the American Expeditionary Forces.

He reorganized the equipment division of the Signal Corps and organized and developed the Bureau of Aircraft Production.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As head of the special disciplinary division in the office of the judge advocate, American Expeditionary Forces, he was charged with duties of an exceptionally arduous and responsible nature, in the performance of which he displayed high professional attainments and notable devotion to duty.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As a surgeon, first with the French armies and later with the American Red Cross Military Hospital No. 1, he displayed untiring energy and surgical ability of the highest order. By his professional skill he revolutionized the surgical treatment of faces mutilated by war wounds, demonstrating to the world how to restore them to a normal condition, thereby rendering conspicuous service, by this great contribution, in saving the lives of many French and American soldiers.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to stepfather, Dr. A. J. Stevens.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He commanded the 105th Engineers during its organization and training period in the entire operation of the 30th Division near Ypres, Belgium, and during the breaking of the Hindenburg line and the advance beyond. He displayed forceful energy, exceptional ability, and remarkable foresight in the solution of all engineer tasks, including the construction of railways and roads, as well as the location and destruction of mines and traps, thereby contributing materially to the success of the operations.

Captain, U. S. Navy.

As assistant to the Chief of Naval Operations, his untiring energy and close cooperation with the Army in connection with its oversea movements of troops and supplies, and especially in the making up and routing of convoys, resulted in the successful movement of over 2,000,000 men without material loss of life.

Major, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army Major, Chemical Wariare Service, U. S. Army.

As officer in charge of the ordnance section, Chemical Warfare Service, he displayed great energy, untiring devotion to duty, and high technical skill. Due to his thorough knowledge of ordnance supplies and material, especially shells and guns, he rendered invaluable assistance in the proper choice of gases, gas and gains, he reducted invalidable assistance in the proper citoric of gases, gas shells, and other materials used both by the gas troops and artillery throughout the war, thereby contributing materially to the successes of the American Expeditionary Forces,

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He organized, trained, and commanded in active operations the 360th Infantry, 90th Division, which under his capable leadership was eminently successful as a combat unit. At all times he inspired a notable spirit among the members of his command. He displayed military attainments of a high order in the capture of the Foret-du-Bois le Pretre during the St. Mihiel offensive and the assault on the Freya Stellung in the Argonne-Meuse operations, rendering merited services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

PRICE, WILLIAM G., jr....R.—Chester, Pa.
B.—Chester, Pa,
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He commanded the 53d Field Artillery Brigade, 28th Division, with marked distinction, proving himself a tactical leader of extraordinary ability. Through the formidable assistance which his brigade furnished to the attacking Infantry during the engagement of the 91st Division from the Lys to the Scheldt, the rapid advance of the Infantry was insured and the success made more brilliant.

Price, Xenophon H....R.—Bay City, Mich.
B.—Saginaw, Mich.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He organized and was continuously in charge of all map-room data of the 3d Section, General Staff, at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. Through his energy, ability, and sound military judgment maps showing accurately the situation on the battle fronts were constantly available for outlying projected operations, and the data compiled by him is of incalculable historical value in preserving a record of the achievements of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.

He was engaged in keeping roads open and traffic moving in the advance of the 1st Army between the 26th of September and the 30th of September, 1918, in the battle west of the Meuse. Due to his tireless effort and determination the supply of ammunition and food of the 3d and 5th Corps was insured. Although confronted with a most difficult task, he overcame all obstacles and crowned his efforts with great success.

Licutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As division quartermaster, 28th Division, he displayed exceptional ability and zeal in developing the personnel and in handling the endless duties of his office, both in training and in combat, and constantly maintained the supply of food and equipment to the command and its various units under most difficult circumstances, thereby contributing materially to the success of this division during its active operations in France.

QUAKEMEYER, JOHN G.....R-Yazoo City, Miss. B-Yazoo City, Miss. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army,
As chief of the American Mission at British General Headquarters, he administered the duties of the office with tact and ability, promoting cordial relations between members of the Allied Armies with whom he came in contact. As aide-de-camp to the Commander in Chief, he has performed his important duties with marked distinction and sound judgment.

Major (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army,
While in charge of the supply branch, 4th (Supply) Section, General Staff, 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed great initiative, zeal, and devotion to duty, and by his excellent judgment, forethought, and cooperation materially assisted in the solution of many difficult problems concerning the supply of the troops during the St. Mihiel and Mcuse-Argonne offensives, thereby contributing in a marked degree to the successful accomplishments of the supply of the troops engaged in those operations.

RALSTON, FRANCIS W.____ R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
His marked military attainments rendered his services most valuable while serving as adjutant of the 42d Division. As commandant of General Head-quarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he performed exacting duties with distinction. By his unflagging energy, zeal, and sound judgment he solved difficult problems of administration, achieving most satisfactory results.

RAND, WILLIAM
R—New York, N. Y.
B—Chicago, Ill.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
As principal assistant in the office of the Acting Judge Advocate General for the American Expeditionary Forces in Europe and as a member of the board of review to which was referred records of trial by courts-martial in the American army operating on foreign soil, he performed duties of an important and far-reaching character and grave responsibility. His broad learning, his comprehensive grasp of the problems with which he had to deal, coupled with untiring industry and energy contributed markedly to the accomplishments of the office of the Judge Advocate General and of the American Expeditionary Forces.

READ, ALVAN C R—Baton Rouge, La. B—Lewisburg, Tenn. G. O. No., 108, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army,
As inspector general for the armies during their operations in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, by his keen observations of the conduct of units and leadership displayed by commanders he was able at all times to give valuable information as to the morale and efficiency of troops and their commanders. By the able handling of his important duties, prompt and adequate means were always provided for improving conditions as to these important factors in the conduct of operations. Later, as chief inspector of the Army of Occupation, he continued to render the same superior quality of service which marked that given by him prior to the armistice.

awarded.

*REGISTER, EDWARD C. R—Georgetown, S. C. B—Rose Hill, N. C. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

REILLY, HENRY J.
R.—Winnetka, Ill.
B.—Fort Barraneas, Fla.
G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1919.

REINHART, STANLEY E.....R-Polk, Ohio.
B-Polk, Ohio.
G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He commanded with distinction the 30th Division, and organized and commanded the 2d Army Corps in its operations with the British forces in France.

He displayed qualities of leadership and professional attainments of a high order, and to his efforts are largely due the brilliant success achieved.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He served with distinction as commanding officer of the 115th Infantry, 29th Division at all times showing qualities of high military leadership and great tectical ability. Inspiring his men by his aggressive spirit and fervent devotion to his task, he led them with noted success through three weeks of constant action against the enemy during the operations north of Verdun.

First lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. Army.

Ite showed energy, initiative, and military ability of a high order while serving as second lieutenant in the 102d Infantry, 26th Division, in command of a company and later a battalion. Ite led his company brilliantly in the attack upon the St. Mihiel salient and during the operations of the 26th Division north of Verdun. Confronted later by a task of great difficulty when placed in command of a battalion, which suffered heavy casualties and became badly disorganized, he displayed marked ability and determination in reorganizing his command and molding it into a good fighting unit, able under his leadership to achieve valuable results.

Major, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As battalion commander, 311th Field Artillery, 79th Division, he displayed exceptional ability as an organizer, instructor, and leader. By his professional attainments and tireless energy he was instrumental in bringing his command to a high state of efficiency. Later, as the Field Artillery member of the United States section of the Inter-Allied Armistice Commission at Spa and as acting chief of staff thereof, by his exceptional ability and insight into affairs requiring delicate and diplomatic treatment, he rendered conspicuous service to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Inspector General's Department U. S. Army.
In the organization and administration of the Inspector General's Department at Camp Pontanezen, Brest, France, thereby enabling that department to meet the excessive demands made upon it during the return of the American Expeditionary Forces through the port of Brest.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services with the committee charged with education and special training in the Army. To his initiative and breadth of vision are largely due the successful measures for training of enlisted men for special services and the establishment of the Student Army Training Corps.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As president of the American Expeditionary Forces University in France his fine ability as an organizer made possible the expeditious establishment of this institution, and to his initiative, energy, rare tact, and good judgment is due, in a large measure, the successful operation of the university.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He organized the 353d Infantry, 89th Division, and commanded it with distinction during all but one month of its active service. The high qualities of leadership and unfailing devotion to duty displayed by him were responsible for the marked esprit and morale of his command. To his marked tactical ability and energy are largely due the brilliant successes achieved by his regiment during its operations against the enemy.

Licutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
While a member of the Polish Relief Expedition, volunteering for service at Tarnopol, Poland, the entire city being prostrate from the effects of typhus fever, 45 doctors having sacrificed their lives within the preceding two months. Upon arrival at Tarnopol he assumed entire charge of the situation, organized and established a 1,500-bed hospital equipped with supplies which had been concealed from enemy forces and found by him. Filteen days after his arrival in the city he contracted typhus fever and died from its effects on January 3, 1920 Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Edward C. Register.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. In command of the 149th Field Artillery, 42d Division, he participated with credit in the operations of the 42d Division. Through his tircless energy and technical skill as an artillerist, his regiment gave most effective assistance to the Infantry which it supported.

Major, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

In command of a battery and subsequently a battalion of the 17th Field Artillery, 2d Division, he gave proof of high qualities of leadership and military attainments, notably during the operations near Soissons in July, 1918, when he skillfully maneuvered his battalion in front of the infantry under machinerendered valuable and loyal service as chief of staff to the chief of artillery, 6th Army Corps.

Replogle, J. Leonard...... R-New York, N. Y. B-Bedford County, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923. Director of steel, War Industries Board.

In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War. As a member of the board he rendered through his broad vision, distinguished capacity, and business ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As director of steel, he rendered, through his untring efforts and devotion to duty, exceptionally valuable service to the War Department in connection with the procurement and supply of steel and iron for the Army.

REPP, WILLIAM F.____R—Philadelphia, Pa.
B—Philadelphia, Pa.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

With his valuable assistance the Signal Corps was enabled originally to plan for the immense network of the United States Army telegraph and telephone lines now existing in France. To him is attributable the exceptionally high standard of efficiency attained by the telephone and telegraph service. As chief signal officer, advance section, services of supply, his services have been marked by a character of exceptional excellence.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

He distinguished himself by his extraordinary ability and exceptional skill in organizing the work of the Quartermaster Corps at Base Section No. 3. His good judgment, combined with tact, knowledge of methods, and high professional attainments, resulted in a superior standard of efficiency, reflecting the greatest credit upon himself and enabling him to render most valuable services to the Government.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As director of the department of enlisted specialists, Coast Artillery School, where, by his excellent judgment, energy, and foresight, he enabled that department to meet the demands made upon it in an effective manner.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As division surgeon of the 77th Division, as chicf surgeon, 6th Army Corps, and later as chief surgeon, 2d Army, he displayed qualities of leadership, high professional attainments, and rare judgment in energetically directing the work of the sanitary units under his control. By his foresight in providing front-line hospitalization and evacuation facilities for the sick and wounded in the field, he rendered services of signal merit to the American Expeditionary Forces.

REYNOLDS, FREDERICK P..... R-Elmira, N. Y. B-Elmira, N. Y. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As surgeon of the advance section, services of supply, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed rare judgment, unusual executive ability, and high professional attainments in the institution of sanitary measures and in providing and supervising hospitalization and evacuation facilities for the sick and wounded flowing lato the advanced areas from the principal centers of combat activity.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the 5th Division, by his keen application to his task he overcame almost insurmountable difficulties in maintaining communications and securing supplies for his division during the 27 days when it was advancing against the enemy north of Verdun. In the performance of his many duties he displayed indictatigable zeal and showed exceptional administrative ability, rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

RHEA, JAMES C.
R—Strawn, Tex.
B—Hamburg, Iowa.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
In charge of the operations section, and later as chief of staff and brigade commander of the 2d Division, he played a conspicuous part in the successful engagements at the St. Mihiel salient, Blanc Mont Ridge, and in the Argonne-Meuse, revealing traits of military knowledge and attainments of a high order.

RHOADS, THOMAS L....R—Fort Worth, Tex.
B—Boyertown, Pa.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As division surgeon of the 80th Division, he had charge of the Medical Department's work of that unit throughout its combat activities. Due to his skillful administration, it functioned smoothly and with precision at all times, earling properly for a large number of the sick and wounded. As chief surgeon of the 1st Army, he displayed executive ability of high order, being constant and zealous in devotion to his arduous tasks.

Major general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the Artillery brigade in support of the 82d Division, during the offensive operations of the St. Mihiel salient and again in command of an Artillery brigade during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, by his marked ability shown in the conduct of his units he contributed in a noted degree to the successes attained. Later he served with distinction as a member of the Interallied Commission at Spa, rendering conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

RHODES, MARIE B. (now Mrs. CLAR-

R—Pittsburgh, Pa.
B—Pittsburgh, Pa.
G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of the nurses' equipment bureau of the military department, American Red Cross, in Paris, France, during the World War, she rendered invaluable service to the Army. She organized and developed a department which was able not only to supply and replace nurses' equipment but to transport the material all over France, even to rapidly moving units and teams at the front. By her remarkable business acumen and integrity, nusual resourcefulness, and initiative she made a contribution to the welfare, efficiency, and conduct of the American Expeditionary Forces nursing forces which can not be measured. In addition to her most arduous duties during the day she frequently spent part of the nights during the emergency giving her services as an anesthetist in the Army hospitals in Paris.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. As chief of the engineering division of the office of the Chief of Ordnance, he performed with peculiar ability his arduous duties in connection with the design and development of all articles of ordnance supplied to the United States Army. Later as Chief Ordnance Officer, American Expeditionary Forces, he was charged with the procurement and supply of all ordnance to our forces in France, which duties he performed with exceptional success, displaying untiring energy and zeal. He handled perplexing problems of supply with sound judgment, achieving most valuable results.

RICE, MERVYN A....R.—Montclair, N. J.
B.—Rockland, Me.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As corps ordnance officer of the 2d Army Corps from February to October, 1918, he displayed exceptional ability in the organization and administration of the system used in equipping with ordnance the American troops serving ou the British front. Later, his great tact and business ability assisted to a marked degree in the satisfactory settlement of important claims arising out of this service.

Second lieutenant, 7th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For services against hostile Indians near the Catholic Mission on White Clay Creek, S. Dak., Dec. 30, 1890.

RICHARDSON, LORRAIN T. R—Janesville, Wis. B—Janesville, Wis. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 322d Infantry, 81st Division, during its organization, training, and in all its combat operations he displayed marked efficiency, tireless energy, and military attainments of the highest order. By his sound judgment and skillful and energetic leadership he contributed materially to the successes achieved by the regiment against the enemy.

RICHARDSON, ROBERT C., Jr......R.—Charleston, S. C. B.—Charleston, S. C. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He organized and conducted with great efficiency the important strategical and tactical liaison service of the 3d Section, General Staff, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. During the Meuse-Argonne operations he gave proof of notable military attainments and untiring devotion to duty by the efficient manner in which he organized and administered the advanced General Headquarters, rendering services of distinction to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. As commanding general of the American Expeditionary Forces in North Russia, by his skillful handling of the many difficult situations which arose, he rendered a signal service to the United States Government.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 112th Infantry, 28th Division, he proved himself a forceful and capable military leader. Maintaining at all times a high degree of efficiency in his regiment through his personal magnetism, heroism, zeal, and energy, he contributed materially to the successes achieved by the 28th Division in its operations against the enemy, rendering services of distinction to the American Expeditionary Forces.

RIGGS, KERR T....R.—Cynthiana, Ky.
B.—Harrison County, Ky.
G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As G-2, 2d Army Corps, he displayed exceptional ability in the organization and administration of that division of the corps staff. He also showed great ability and rare tact in his relations with the intelligence branch of the staffs of the British organizations with which the 2d Army Corps served. By his tireless energy and unceasing devotion to exacting duties, he contributed to a marked degree to the successes achieved by his organization.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 76th Field Artillery, 3d Division, he was a material factor in stemming the tide of the enemy's advance during the second Battle of the Marne. Subsequently, upon being promoted to the grade of brigadier general, he displayed marked leadership and high military attainments in command of the 5th Field Artillery Brigade, 5th Division, in the Meuse-Argonno

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. He displayed unusual ability as chief of staff of the 81st Division in its organiza-tion, and in the conduct of its operations in the St. Die Sector, on Nov. 9, 10, and 11, 1918, near Verdum, where the division was enabled to advance some 5½ kilometers over marshy ground under heavy fire,

102444°--27----49

As chief of the New York ordnance district, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation between the Ordnance Department and manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of munitions in a minimum time; and also as chairman of the New York ordnance district claims board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $525,000,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice.

ROBERTS, OSCAR E.....R.—Taylor, Tex.
B.—Milan County, Tex.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As colonel commanding the 144th Infantry, 36th Division, he displayed untiring energy, initiative, and resourcefulness both during the period of organization and training and during the combat operations of his regiment in France. His leadership, sound judgment, and devotion to duty were material factors in the successes of his regiment, brigade, and division in action against the enemy.

ROBERTS, THOMAS A.....R—Springfield, Ill.
B—Springfield, Ill.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.

As commander of an American regiment on duty with the French Army, although confronted with many difficult situations, he handled all questions with marked success. His tasks were performed with ability, in a manner that reflected the greatest credit upon him; his preparations were careful, his leadership skillful. The excellent results achieved by his regiment are in a measure attributable to his sound judgment and military knowledge.

ROBERTSON, ASHLEY HERMAN R—Ashmore, III. B—Ashmore, III. G. O. No. 11t, W. D., 1919.

Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy.
As force transport officer, his untiring energy contributed greatly to the successful oversea movement of troops and supplies.

ROBERTSON, SAMUEL ARTHUR.

R—Sar Benito, Tex.

B—Fort Benton, Mont.

G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As general superintendent of construction of the light railways he managed all the intricate details of complex organization and classification of tasks with a master hand. With untrained personnel he established a record for speed in tracklaying of the 60-centimeter lines, exciting the admiration of our allies.
During the advance of the 1st Army, by his ceaseless activity, tireless energy, and great knowledge he performed his duty with marked credit to the Government.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
For services while in charge of the engineer depot established in connection with the port of New York, and subsequently included in the port of embarkation at Hoboken, N. J.

Lieutenant colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of the executive division, fourth section, General Staff, Headquarters, Services of Supply, American Expeditionary Forces, from Apr. 25, 1918, to Feb. 19, 1919, he was charged with the immediate coordination of major supply activities, including the difficult and gravely responsible task of adjusting priority of shipments and determining the order in which all movements of supplies from the base ports of the American Expeditionary Forces should proceed. In a position of great responsibility, in which large powers were delegated to him, he displayed to an unusual degree rare tact, excellent judgment, and the faculty of firm and prompt decision. By his successful handling of difficult supply situations of the most critical character directly affecting important operations in the field, he rendered services of the highest value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

As chief of the Detroit Ordnance District, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation between the Ordnance Department and manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of munitions in a minimum time; and also as chairman of the Detroit Ordnance District Claims Board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $271,000,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As quartermaster of Base Section No. 1, St. Nazaire, from June to December, 1917, he rendered especially valuable services. Confronted with a problem of great magnitude, befraught with serious difficulties, he went about his task with keen determination, and by his energy and great zeal organized and efficiently operated the first American base in France. Later, as chief of the Tank Corps, by his tireless energy and keen determination he established schools of training for tank personnel and laid the foundation for the organization of the tank units. He ably directed the operations of the tanks with the First Army and contributed in a measure to the success attained.

ROGERS, HARRY L.

R-Orchard Lake, Mich.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army. He has organized, perfected, and administered with great efficiency the quartermaster department in France. He was able to meet each emergency in times fraught with untold difficulties, and by his energy and untiring zeal he has insured to our troops a prompt and constant supply of quartermaster stores, without which the ultimate success of our Army could not have been obtained.

ROGERS, JOSEPH A.
R.—Mullin, Tex.
B.—Cameron, Tex.
G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923.

RONAYNE, JAMES
R-New York, N. Y.
B-Ireland. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

ROOP, JAMES CLAWSON.... R—Upland, Pa. B—Upland, Pa. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

ROOSEVELT, THEODORE, Jr.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—Oyster Bay, Long Island, N. Y.

G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1927.

Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Rose, William H.
R.—Refton, Pa.
B.—Safe Harbor, Pa.
G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919.

*Ruckman, John W_____ R—Sidney, Ill. B—Sidney, Ill. G. O. No. 1, W. D., 1926.

RUGGLES, COLDEN L'H
R—Poughkeepsie, N. Y.
B—Omaha, Nebr. G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919.

RUGGLES, FRANCIS A R—Washington, D. C. B—St. Paul, Minn. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
While commanding the 2d Corps Artillery Park which operated with the 5th Army Corps, in spite of great difficulties he delivered large quantities of ammunition to the troops, and by his resourcefulness, courage, and leadership he maintained his command in a high state of efficiency and morale, thereby contributing to the success of the operations of the corps.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
He commanded the 1st Battalion, 18th Field Artillery, 3d Division, from July 1 to Oct. 3, 1918, and the 124th Field Artillery, 3d Division, from Oct. 4 until Nov. 17, 1918, at all times proving himself to be an officer of exceptional ability. By his sound tactical judgment, loyal devotion to duty, and great skill he supported the Infantry, to which attached, so effectively that he aided materially in the successful operations of several divisions in many important engagements.

He served as assistant commandant of the Army schools for eight months. By his energy, perseverance, and good judgment, in all matters connected with the Army schools, he calibited high professional attainments and military qualities of a superior order.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He served as assistant to the general purchasing agent, American Expeditionary Forces. His marked ability and tact were important factors in numerous negotiations with the allied armies and governments, involving critical matters of supply to our Army. In the organization of the work of the general purchasing board and general purchasing agent, Colonel Roop throughout its existence was an indispensable factor in a position of great responsibility. He rendered most distinguished service in connection with investmant streets. He rendered most distinguished service in connection with important supplies of all kinds for the Army as well as in the organization of the general system of coordination between the supply services of the American Expe ditionary Forces and the allied armies.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As battalion and regimental commander, 26th Infantry, he displayed consistent gallantry, conspicuous energy, and marked efficiency in the operations around Cantigny, Soissons, and during the Mcuse-Argonne offensive. By his devotion to duty, pronounced tactical ability, and brilliant qualities of leadership he contributed materially to the successes of his regiment and of the 1st Division. He rendered services of signal worth to the Government in a pretition of great responsibility at a time of greatest inventors. in a position of great responsibility at a time of gravest importance.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the engineer depot he was charged with the system of purchase of supplies. His exceptional ability, judgment, and resourcefulness are apparent in the efficient solution of the many difficult problems involved and in the success attained in supplying the vast quantities of engineering supplies to the Army overseas.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 107th Field Artillery, 28th Division, and of a French artillery regiment during the operations of the 32d Division on the Vesle River, he displayed consummate skill as an artillerist and showed notable qualities of leadership. Subsequently he commanded the 16th Field Artillery, 4th Division, and acted as group commander of French and American artillery units, where he furnished effective support to the Infantry during the St. Mihiel and Argonne-Meuse operations.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As department commander, Southern Department, between Aug. 30, 1917, and May 4, 1918, and department commander, Northeastern Department, between May 23, 1918, and July 20, 1918, he handled many difficult problems arising in these departments with rare judgment, tact, and great skill. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. John W. Ruckman.

Colonel, Medieal Corps, U. S. Army. He served as surgeon of the intermediate section, Services of Supply, having under his supervision 39 base hospital units. He performed his strenuous and exacting duties in an unusually efficient manner, displaying rare judgment and professional attainments of the first order.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. The conception and construction of the Aberdeen Proving Ground and its oper-ation during the early and most difficult period of its history are a monument to his sagacity and unremitting labor.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army. As a battalion commander during the Aisne-Marne offensive, July 18-25, 1918, s a battanion commander during the Alsne-Marne offensive, July 18-25, 1918, and as a regimental commander during the St. Mihlel offensive, Sept. 13-19, 1918, and the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Sept. 30, 1918, to Nov. 8, 1918. In all of these offensives he displayed conspicuous efficiency, marked aggressiveness, and unusual leadership. By his exceptional technical and executive ability he solved with sound judgment many perplexing problems, and although much handleapped by severe losses in men, matériel, and animals he at all times so commanded his regiment as to render invaluable support to the attacking Infantry, thus materially adding to the streets of the exercto the attacking Infantry, thus materially adding to the success of the opera-

Captain, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of Base Hospital No. 27, at Angers, France, during the World War, and later as assistant to the director of the Nursing Service, American Expeditionary Forces, at Tours, France, she displayed qualities of leadership and organizing ability of the highest order. Through her skillful management and untiring energy she developed the nursing force at Base Hospital No. 27 to a high degree of proficiency and was of material assistance in establishing and maintaining a reputation for unusual efficiency for that hospital, which had the unique distinction of caring for the largest numer of patients of any single hospital at any one time in the American Expeditionary Forces. Upon her return to the United States she bad charge of the claim department of the Army Nurse Corps in the office of the Surgeon General, and the efficiency, sound judgment, and knowledge of the principles involved displayed by her in that capacity made a signal contribution to the demobilization work of the Government.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the chief, Militia Bureau, during the inception of the World War, in which office of great responsibility his genius and ability were applied to the organizing, training, and expansion of the National Guard, the success of which was due, in a large measure, to his zeal, devotion to duty, and unquestionable competency. For his marked ability in the organizing, training, and disciplining of the 128th Field Artillery Regiment, 35th Division, the successful functioning of which unit during the war may be attributed in large part to Colonel Rumbold's indefatigable efforts. For his untiring and successful efforts throughout his entire service to secure close cooperation between the National Guard and the Regular Army in order that these two elements for the national defense might function successfully as the Army of the United States.

RUSSEL, EDGAR R-Kingston, Mo. B-Pleasant Hill, Mo. G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As Chief Signal Officer, American Expeditionary Forces, he has shown great ability in the organization and administration of his department and the results attained are largely due to his zeal and energy. The Signal Corps in France stands out as one of the masterful accomplishments of the American Expeditionary Forces, and to General Russell is due the credit for its foundation and organization.

RUSSELL, EDMUND A.....R-Lake Forest, Ill. B-Athens, N. Y. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919.

As chief of the Chicago Ordnance District, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation between the Ordnance Department and the manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of munitions in a minimum time; and also as chairman of the Chicago Ordnance District Claims Board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $325,009,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice.

RUSSELL, FREDERICK F.....R-Brooklyn, N. Y.
B-Auburn, N. Y.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He organized and directed the division of laboratories and infectious diseases of the Surgeon General's Office during the present war and thereby contributed in great measure to the efficiency of the military forces.

RUSSELL, GEORGE M....R.—Plymouth, N. H.
B.—Plymouth, N.H.
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, of the 5th Army Corps, he directed the activities of the intelligence section with marked skill and untiring energy. By effecting the collection and dissemination of timely and accurate information, he was an important factor in the successes achieved by his corps.

 First lieutenant, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army. As chief nurse of the base hospital at Camp Merritt, N. J., during the World War, she rendered signal service. By the display of excellent judgment, energy, and example under unusual difficulties she so directed her staff as to enable it to meet in an efficient manner all the demands made upon it, thus making a large contribution to the saving of lives. By her great organizing ability and untiring efforts she played an important part in the successful aftercare of thousands of tuberculous soldiers during the demobilization period.

 Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

In charge of the tonnage section of G-1, General Headquarters, he performed services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. Later, as supervisor of cargo and supplies at the port of Marseilles, by his zeal and energy he ovecame all obstacles and successfully accomplished his important task

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As provest marshal of the district of Paris from Jan. 3, 1918, to May 3, 1918, and subsequently in command of this important district during a period of gravest import and charged with most important duties, he labored unceasingly and succeeded in attaining excellent results. Aided by his superior tact and keen perception, he performd his difficult duties with sound judgment and handled numerous diplomatic affairs with great satisfaction, thereby rendering important service to the American Expeditionary Forces in positions of great responsibility.

awarded.

SAUNDERS, EDWIN O ..... R—Sharpsburg, Ky. B—Sharpsburg, Ky. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of Mobile Hospital No. 2, at Coincy, France, from June to August, 1918, he commanded his hospital under most difficult and trying conditions with inadequate equipment and personnel. Later he served continuously at the front, taking a most active part in the Medical Service of our military efforts. Due to his unusual organizing ability and his indomitable will, his unit was always close to the firing line.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. He has, by his constant, tireless, and conscientious work, as well as by his unusual judgment, done much to conserve man power for active front-line work. Of special value was his demonstration that war ueurosis could be treated in advanced sanitary units with greater success than in base hospitals.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
While assigned to duty in the Air Service he voluntarily undertook and successfully accomplished the difficult task, in the face of many obstacles, of preparing an organization for the procurement and supply of Signal Corps equipment for the Army.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. In command of the advance section, Services of Supply, throughout the campaigns in France in 1918, by his skillful management of the supply of the Army, involving many emergency orders to be promptly met, he showed himself to be, under those difficult conditions, an officer of great ability and resource.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. He commanded the 131st Infantry, 33d Division, during all its campaigns against the enemy, displaying military leadership of a high order. His unremitting zeal and tactical skill were largely responsible for the success of his regiment in combat.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
Serving in turn as a battalion and regimental commander, he rendered exceptionally efficient services, and at all times was conspicuous for his courage, leadership, and high military attainments. As commanding officer of the 7th Field Artillery, 1st Division, and a group of attached French Artillery at Cantigny, in May, 1918, and later at Soissons in July, 1918, he displayed unusual ability, and by his high professional attainments and great tactical skill supported the Infantry, to which he was attached, so effectively that he aided materially in the successful operations of that brigade in those important engagements. Later, by his tireless energy, great resourcefulness, and efficiency, he organized and trained, in a highly satisfactory manner, the 67th Field Artillery.

Lieutenant colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army. As chief of the criminal investigation division of the Provost Marshal General's Department, American Expeditionary Forces, he had charge of and was responsible for the investigation of crime and bringing to trial of criminals. His remarkable skill as an organizer, his untiring efforts, and his sound judgment were mainly responsible for the reduction and prevention of crime in the American Expeditionary Forces, and the recovery of thousands of deliver of Government and private property. His services were of year great. dollars of Government and private property. His services were of very great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.
While serving as assistant military attaché at the American Legation in Switzer-land from September, 1917, to October, 1919, his great tact, initiative, resourcefulness, sound judgment and unremitting devotion to duty contributed markedly to the successful operations of the American and Allied forces during

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the 307th Engineers and division engineer officer, 82d Division, and later as corps engineer, 5th Army Corps, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, he displayed excellent qualities of leadership and command while serving with his regiment in the battle line, as well as superior technical attainments as an engineer, together with great zeal and devotion to duty. By the high degree of efficiency with which he performed his manifold duties, he contributed materially to the success of the operations of the commands with which he served. Later, as Director of Purchase, in the Purchase, Storage, and Traffic Division of the General Staff, and as a member of the War Department Claims Board, by his good judgment and keen foresight in undertakings of great difficulty and magnitude he rendered conspicuous service. he rendered conspicuous service.

Second lieutenant, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

While serving in the regulating stations at Creil, Noisy-le-Sec, St. Dizier, and Metz, France, he showed untiring application in his devotion to duty. He remained continually on duty during nightly bombardments at Creil, performing ably the important tasks assigned to him. During the battle of Chateau-Thierry and during the St. Miniel and Argonne-Meuse offensives by his energetic action he aided materially in the maintenance of a steady flow of supplies to the troops at the front, at all times showing marked ability and initiative when faced with difficult problems of transportation arising from the evacuation of the wounded. He rendered valuable service to the Government.

Schoeffel, Francis II R-Rochester, N. Y. B-Rochester, N. Y. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel, Inspector General's Department, U. S. Army, As inspector general, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., from Aug. 1, 1917, to Apr. 1, 1919, he was charged with inspection of troops, troop transports and trains, money accounts of disbursing officers, and duties of a similar nature, all of which he performed in a highly efficient and successful manner. With untiring energy, sound judgment, and unusual professional skill and with unremitting attention and devotion to duty he rendered extremely valuable services to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

 Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief and acting chief of the inspection division, Ordnance Department. His broad-minded policy, seal, and technical ability contributed in a conspicuous way to the success of the Ordnance Department in the procurement of munitions in the United States and Canada during the World War.

Captain, 9th Cavalry U. S. Army.

At Naco, Ariz., Oct. 9-10, 1914, he commanded the most important and most exposed outposts of the American troops engaged in preserving order on the international boundary line. Although his troops were constantly exposed to fire from Mexican attacking forces, by his firmness, tact, and courageous actions he handled in a highly efficient manner a threatening situation, thereby preventing serious international complications and contributing materially to the preservation of law and order on the Mexican border.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As representative of the Chemical Warfare Service at General Headquarters he rendered valuable services in the solution of many important problems relating to the offensive use of gas and also in planning more effective methods for the issue of equipment and for training in gas warfare. Later, as chief gas officer of the 1st Army, he was charged with the entire responsibility of the gas warfare in that army during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. By great ability and untiring energy, his efforts resulted in the prevention of large numbers of casualties and fatalities from enemy gases as well as increasing the use of gas against the enemy, thereby contributing to the success of the American arms.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

He commanded the American and allied light artillery in the Toul sector prior to and after its occupation by the 1st Division, and was largely responsible for the instruction and training of the 66th Field Artillery Brigade and of brigades of Coast Artillery in their training areas. As Heavy Artillery commander, 1st Army Corps, in the Champagne-Marne and the Aisne-Marne operations, and as brigade and grouping commander of the 66th Field Artillery Brigade and numerous French units in the operations of the 5th Army Corps in the St. Mihiel offensive, and in the operations of the Army artillery in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, he performed his duties with great efficiency and distinction.

Scott, Frank A R—West Mentor, Ohio. B—Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

In assisting in organizing and as chairman of the munitions standards board and the general munitions board. He was later first chairman of the War Industries Board. He thus contributed greatly in developing the War Department's programs.

Scott, Hugh L R—Princeton, N. J. B—Danville, Ky. G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919. Major general, U. S. Army.

As Chief of Staff in advocating and persistently urging the adoption of the selective service law and as Commanding General, Camp Dix, N. J., in organizing and training the divisions and miscellaneous troops committed to his care during the war.

SCOTT, WALTER DILL
R—Evanston, Ill.
B—Cookesville, Ill.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, U. S. Army.

In originating, organizing, and putting into operation the system of classification of enlisted personnel now used in the United States Army.

SCOTT, WALTER J R-Mount Morris, Ill. B-Brownsville, Tenn. G. O. No. 9, W D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, 89th Division, due to his unusual foresight, indefatigable efforts, and great executive ability, he was able to keep a constant flow of supplies and ammunition for the troops under extremely difficult combat conditions, thereby contributing materially to the success of the division and the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
As executive officer in the office of the director, Motor Transport Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, he discharged with rare distinction duties of grave responsibility. His sound judgment, tact, administrative and technical ability contributed in a marked degree to the successful functioning of the Motor Transport Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Screws, William P.....R.—Montgomery, Ala. B.—Montgomery, Ala. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He commanded, with courage, resourcefulness, and great skill the 167th Infantry, 42d Division, from the time of its organization and early training throughout the successive phases of sector warfare, offensive combat in the battles of the Champagne and Ourcq, and in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. By his high military attainments, sound judgment, and devotion to duty he has contributed, in no small degree, to the successes achieved by the 42d Division.

SEAMAN, GILBERT E.....R-Milwaukee, Wis. B-Alpena, Mich. G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

SHANKS, DAVID C.... R—Salem, Va. B—Salem, Va. G. O. No. 18, W. D., 1919.

SHARP, GEORGE A. (1623188)_______ R-Breckenridge, Colo. B-Victor, Colo. G. O. No. 88, W. D., 1918.

SHAUGHNESSY, EDWARD H..... R—Chicago, Ill. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

SHAW, ANNA HOWARD R-Moylan, Pa. B-England. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

SHAW, HENRY A....R-Worcester, Mass. B-Salem, Mass. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

SHEARMAN, LAWRENCE H....R-Roslyn, N. Y.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1919.

SHEEHAN, MARY E.... R.—Syracuse, N. Y. B.—Cortland County, N. Y. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. In the very ellicient operation of the Motor Transport Corps, War Department General Staff, and in accomplishing the standardization of motor vehicles in

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

After serving with conspicuous success as division surgeon of the 32d Division, he became chief surgeon, 6th Army Corps, and in this capacity was an important factor in the establishment of effective measures for treating numerons sick and wounded. Fitted for his exacting duties by wide experience and unusual ability, he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
In command of a regiment of Engineers and later as commander of the base port at St. Nazaire he displayed high engineering skill and long practical experience in the management of men. His genius together with his great energy and devotion to duty, contributed largely to the successful development and efficient operation of that base.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the 3d Army Corps, during the Argonne-Meuse offensive, by his tireless efforts, marked organizing ability, and keen application to his numerous duties, he contributed in a large measure to the successes attained by his corps, rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army. For services in the administration of the port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., in connection with the shipment of troops overseas.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 111th Infantry, 28th Division, he proved himself a forceful and capable military leader. Maintaining at all times a high degree of efficiency in his regiment, he contributed materially to the successes achieved by the 28th Division in its operations against the enemy, rendering services of distinction to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Sergeant, Company A, 115th Engineers, 40th Division, U. S. Army. For his bravery in entering a dangerous surf at Ocean Beach, Calif., on May 5, 1918, and rescuing three men and assisting in the rescue of Corporal Stein, Company B, 115th Engineers, at the risk of his own life.

Lieutenant colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.
Serving successively as general superintendent, general manager, and acting deputy director general of transportation, by his energy, zeal, and able management he rendered services of the highest type to the Transportation Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces. In the performance of his maniold duties he constantly displayed marked enthusiasm, originality, and sound judgment.

As chairman of the woman's committee of the Council of National Defense, she coordinated the mobilization and organization of women throughout the country in every phase of war work, including the securing of women for some of the various branches of the Army.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As surgeon of Base Section No. 2, Services of Supply, a position of great responsibility. Due to his ability and energy, he brought the medical service of the port of Bordeaux and the hospitalization of the same to a high degree of efficiency. He has rendered services of much value.

Member of American Inter-Allied Maritime Council.

Memper of American Inter-Allied Maritime Council.

As civilian member of the 1st Section of the General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces, he placed his mature experience and his extensive technical and business knowledge of the shipping industry at the disposal of the American Expeditionary Forces during a period of several months when tonnage and shipping problems were of the most vital importance. His clear vision, sound advice, and unfailing energy and loyalty were of the greatest value to his country and to the allied cause.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with marked efficiency as instructor and then as director of the Heavy Artillery school in France. As assistant in the office of the Chief of Artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, and later chief of the Heavy Artillery section in that office, he rendered services of inestimable value in connection with the organization, equipment, and training of the Heavy Artillery troops in France.

First lieutenant, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of the Vichy Hospital Center, France, during the World War, she organized the nursing service of that center, and by her tact, good judgment, energy, and personal devotion to duty contributed largely to the successful care and well-being of 11,000 sick and wounded.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As quartermaster, 39th Division, from September, 1917, until October, 1918, and acting chief of staff, same division, from October until December, 1918, he rendered highly meritorious services. As chief quartermaster, intermediate section, Services of Supply, he displayed sound judgment in the disposal of property valued at many millions of dollars. Later, as chief quartermaster and acting chief of staff, G-4, American Forces in Germany, he displayed marked ability and initiative in many large undertakings and perplexing problems confronting him, resulting in immense savings to the Government.

SHELBY, EVAN R—Washington, D. C. B—Fayette County, Ky. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the contracts branch of the Office of the Chief of Construction Division, in following up contracts, ading in their interpretation, adjusting differences between the contractors and the Government, and advising on matters of procedure and the rights of the parties involved, he has displayed sound judgment, marked professional attainments, and extraordinary capacity for sustained and unremitting labor.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. While commanding the 51st Infantry Brigade, 26th Division, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Bernice Shelton.

SHELTON, NENA.....R—Kansas City, Mo. B—Lexington, Ky. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

First lieutenant, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the director of nursing service, American Expeditionary Forces in Paris, France, during the World War, she contributed largely to the success of that force of over 10,000 nurses. Her zeal, good judgment, and energy added greatly to the efficiency with which the sick and wounded of the American Expeditionary Forces were cared for. Her faithfulness to detail and unfailing devotion to duty greatly facilitated the work of the Medical Department.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
In 1918, as surgeon of Camp Funston, Kans., and of the 89th Division, he displayed high administrative, technical, and constructive ability in preventive measures adopted against epidemics and in the conservation of physical defects by their segregation and development. Later he performed conspicuous services in connection with bospital demobilization in France and the return to the United States of the sick and wounded.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, 3d Section, of the 5th Army Corps, and as chief of staff of Artillery of that corps, by his marked military attainments and devotion to his exacting duties, he ably planned the employment of the Corps of Artilley in its operations against the enemy, rendering services of great worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

SHERMAN, WILLIAM C....R—Augusta, Ga. B—Augusta, Ga. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 1st Division and 3d Army Corps, from February, 1918, until October, 1918, he skillfully organized and directed the service of information of the enemy which guided in the preparation of the orders under which his division and corps achieved their many victories. Later, as chief of staff, Air Service, 1st Army, from November 1 to November 11, 1918, he displayed great ability and by his rare tactical conceptions rendered exceptionally meritorious service, enabling the Air Service to function in a highly efficient manner at all times.

Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. He organized the 302d Engineers and conducted their operations with the 77th Division until he became the division chief of staff. To his initiative, energy, and good judgment is due much of the success of the staff functioning of the division in its operations in the Argonne. He has rendered services of marked worth.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army. In charge of the ammunition section of the gun division, Ordnance Department, he was responsible for the design, development, and placing of orders and contracts for all ammunition and projectiles supplied to the American Army. Later, in charge of ammunition section, engineering division, in the office of Chief of Ordnance, his technical skill, executive ability, and sound judgment were highly important factors in the successful operations of the Ordnance Department during the World War.

SHIPLEY, WALTER V....R—Arlington, Md.
B—Cockeysville, Md.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Quatermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As quartermaster and assistant chief of staff, G-1, 29th Division, from July, 1917, until June, 1919, by his untiring zeal, great energy, tact, and sound judgment he was able to overcome many difficult problems of supply and assist to a marked degree in the operations of his division, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

SHOCKLEY, M. A. W....R.—Fort Scott, Kans.
B.—Fort Scott, Kans.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Medical Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As a member of the 5th Section, General Staff, he displayed sound judgment and administrative ability in organizing, supervising, and inspecting the various sanitary schools and in conducting the sanitary training of troops.
He also initiated and planned the preliminary organization of schools for instruction in civil educational subjects, established after the cessation of hostilities, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

SHORT, WALTER CAMPBELL. R—Columbus, Ohio.
B—Columbus, Ohio.
G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

Attached to the Fitth Section, General Staff, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he rendered conspicuous service in inspecting and reporting upon front-line conditions pertaining to the work of his section. During the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne operations of the 1st Army Corps he efficiently directed the instruction and training of machine-gun units at every available opportunity during rest periods. Later, as assistant chief of staff, G-5, 3d Army, he manifested the same assiduous devotion to duty in organizing schools, conducting necessary inspections, and carrying out the intensive training program.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As officer in charge of the Division of Research and Inspection of the Signal Corps, at Paris, he rendered exceptionally valuable service, resulting in marked improvement in the efficiency of Signal Corps equipment. By his exact scientific knowledge and inventive genius he assisted in solving problems arising both at the front and in the Services of Supply.

SHULER, GEORGE K......R-Lyons, N. Y. B-Lyons, N. Y. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Major, U. S. Marine Corps.
In command of the 3d Battalion, 6th Regiment, U. S. Marine Corps, 2d Division, he displayed leadership of the highest order and marked tactical ability, resulting in the capture by his command of large numbers of prisoners and machine guns in the battles at Blanc Mont and St. Etienne, France. In the advance to the north from Sommerance he showed rare judgment in maneuvering his battalion in a difficult position, making important captures of field artillery. Fearless, aggressive, and able, he twice accomplished missions of vital importance with brilliant success.

Colonel (Infantry), Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army. In The Adjutant General's Department during the war and the demobilization period, his unusual initiative and splendid judgment contributed in a large measure to the successful handling of the commissioned personnel of the Army. He rendered services of great worth.

Major General, U. S. Army.

For services in the organization and administration of the Chemical Warfare Service, contributory to the successful prosecution of the war.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He organized the Army School of the Line at Langres, and as its commandant displayed unceasing energy and marked military and executive ability in directing its activities. Through the thorough instruction furnished by this school, he contributed materially to the combat efficiency of line troops, thereby rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Edward Sigerfoes.

Siler, Joseph F. R-Opelika, Ala. B-Orion, Ala. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

He has been in charge of the laboratory service of the American Expeditionary Forces. Due to his untring zeal and high professional attainments, he has been able to render invaluable service in the prevention of the spread of infectious disease among our troops. Under his able instructions, medical officers were sent out equipped to handle the new medical and surgical problems of war in a manner not believed possible before the present war.

SIMMONS, GEORGE H.
R-Chicago, Ill.
B-England.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

Major, Medical Section, Officers' Reserve Corps, U. S. Army.
By his thorough knowledge of the medical profession and by his great esteem therein, together with his whole-hearted devotion to his task, he rendered services of a signal worth in the procurement of physicians and surgeons for the Medical Corps of the Army and in his able advising of the War Department upon the qualifications of that great body of the medical profession who entered the Army.

 Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He served with marked distinction as chief of staff of the 2d Army Corps during the important operations along the Hindenburg line in the region of the Sambre Canal. His great administrative ability was shown in the excellent manner in which he handled a large force of American soldiers serving with the British.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
While on duty in the office of the Chief Ordnance Officer, American Expeditionary Forces, in connection with the requirements and procurement of ordnance supplies, by his accurate forecasting and energetic following up of deliveries, he secured an adequate and uninterrupted flow of ordnance material for the American Expeditionary Forces.

SIMPSON, WILLIAM H.
R—Aledo, Tex.
B—Weatherford, Tex.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
For services as assistant chief of staff, 33d Division, during the Meuse-Argonne effensive and later as chief of staff of this division.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of Base Section No. 5 he displayed exceptional administrative ability. The excellent results obtained in evacuating over 700,000 men through the port of Brest are due in no small measure to the efficient organization created by him. He has rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

As chief of the St. Louis Ordnance District, in which capacity he maintained at all times the greatest degree of intelligent and enthusiastic cooperation between the Ordnance Department and manufacturers in his district, thereby attaining the maximum production of munitions in a minimum time; and also as chairman of the St. Louis Ordnance District Claims Board, in which capacity his services have been invaluable to the Nation in adjusting equitably the $122,000,000 worth of outstanding contracts in his district in force at the signing of the armistice.

SINNOTT, CATHERINE G.... R-Nashville, Tenn. B-Middletown, Conn. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

Second lieutenant, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of Camp Hospital No. 28, France, during the World War, this nurse exhibited marked efficiency and administrative ability. Later, as chief nurse of the Nurses' Concentration Camp at Savenay, France, she managed the affairs of nearly a thousand nurses with exceptional tact, industrial the purposed of the North Camp at the North Camp managed the affairs of hearly a thousand nurses with exceptional tact, industry, and good judgment. She performed the unusual duties assigned to her in a way not only to facilitate greatly the embarkation of nurses, but to maintain a high state of morale and efficient organization among them. She rendered a conspicuously worthy service to the American Expeditionary Forces. Her splendid leadership, tircless energy, and unselfish devotion to duty were an inspiration to all who came in contact with her.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
Colonel Skinner organized and commanded a hospital center of 20,000 beds at Mars, France. Due to his great force and ability, a hospital group was prepared for the care of the sick and wounded during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, when the need of hospital beds was critical. This adequate and efficient hospitalization contributed materially to the conservation of man power and to the subsequent success of our forces.

SLADE, GEORGE T.....R.—St. Paul, Minn. B.—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Transportation Corps, U. S. Army.

He served with marked distinction as deputy director general of transportation, first with the French ministry and later with the railroad department in the zone of the services of supply. Due to his tactful negotiations and zealous efforts, the Transportation Department secured efficient cooperation with the French railroads and was enabled to meet the tremendous demands imposed upon it by the rapid advance of our armics during the Argonne-Meuse battles.

awarded.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
While commanding the 5th Infantry Brigade, 3d Division, in the Battle of the Marne in July and in the Argonne operations in France, in October, 1918, he demonstrated conspicuous qualities of ability and leadership. The successes that attended the operations of his brigade were influenced greatly by his energy, skill, and courage as a commander.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. For services in the very successful development of the radio equipment of the United States Army.

G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1921.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of the New York depot from July, 1917, to March, 1918, in which he demonstrated superb energy and marked executive ability in a position of great responsibility. Later, as commanding officer of the 51st Infantry, 6th Division, from October, 1918, he showed marked ability in the training of the regiment and during its operations in the Meuse-Argonne.

*Slifer, Hiram J. R.—Chicago, Ill. B.—Montgoinery County, Pa. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

He was charged with active field operations and the construction and operation of the light railways of the 1st Army during the St. Miniel and Argonne-Meuse offensives. His efforts were unceasing, and, due to his resourcefulness and exceptional executive ability, he was an important factor in the successful operations of the light railways, assuring for the troops of the 1st Army a steady flow of munitions and supplies.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Hiram J. Slifer, SLOCUM, STEPHEN L'H......R-New York, N. Y. B-Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, U. S. Army. For services while serving as military attaché at London, England.

Major, Cavalry, U. S. Army.
As adjutant and operations officer of the 5th Infantry Brigade of the 3d Division during its occupation of the Chateau-Thierry defensive sector, and during the Champagne-Marne defensive, the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives, by his military knowledge, devotion to duty, excellent judgment, and unhesitating assumption of responsibility he rendered invaluable services and materially assisted in the success attained by the brigade in

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commander of the group of Artillery supporting the 33d Division in the attack on the east bank of the Meuse River, Oct. 8 to 13, 1918, he demonstrated professional attainments and ability of a high order. Later, as a regimental commader, by his sound tactical judgment and special knowledge of Artillery, he most successfully directed his units in the support of the attacking Infantry of the 79th Division in the operations north of Verdun from Nov. 4 to 11, 1918. By keeping his elements close to the attacking Infantry he contributed in no small measure to the success of these operations. He rendered services of conspicuous merit and signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility. American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility.

SMITH, ERNEST G.....R-Wilkes-Barre, Pa. B-Martins Ferry, Ohio. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, LOWELL H.
R—Rockwell Field, Calif.
B—Santa Barbara, Calif.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.
Act of Congress Feb. 25, 1925.

SMITH, PERRIN L....R.—Minneapolis, Minn.
B.—Henry, Ill.
G. O. No. 105, W. D., 1919.

SMITH, WILLIAM R._____ R—Nashville, Tenn. B—Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No. 2, W. D. 1920.

SMITH, WINFORD HENRY .... R—Baltimore, Md. B—Scarboro, Me. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

SMITH, WRIGHT
R—Holly Oak, Del.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

SNYDER, FREDERIC A. R—Williamsport, Pa. B—Williamsport, Pa. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. As chief of the casualty section, central records office, he performed with marked efficiency duties of a most exacting character. With untiring efforts, sound analytical ability, and masteful attention to detail he handled questions pertaining to casualties in the American Expeditionary Forces with noteworthy success.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He rendered most conspicuous service as commandant of the Army schools at Langres, France, the success of which was, in a large measure, due to his vision, zeal, and administrative ability. He later showed marked executive ability as officer in charge of the administration of civil affairs in the German territory occupied by the American Army.

Captain, Air Service, U. S. Army.
Lieutenant Smith, as pilot of the Airplane No. 2, the Chicago, and later when placed in command of the United States Army Air Service around-the-world flight from Apr. 6, 1924, to Sept. 28, 1924, displayed untiring energy, courage, and resourcefulness during the entire period that the Air Service expedition was upon its hazardous undertaking. His leadership, sound judgment, and tenacity of purpose were material factors in the success of this pioneer flight of airplanes around the world. In the performance of his great task he brought to himself and to the military forces of the United States the signal honor of an achievement which is a testimonial to American thoroughness, courage, and resourcefulness. courage, and resourcefulness.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

To his great administrative ability, initiative, and tireless energy is due in great measure the very successful practical application of the regulations governing the payment of allotments made by officers and enlisted men, the handling of the various Liberty bond issues subscribed for through the Army allotment system, and other important financial matters connected with the Army during the emergency.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commanding general, 36th Division, by his thorough and ceaseless efforts, coupled with a keen insight into the principles of military training, he brought his division to such a high standard of discipline and proficiency as to achieve conspicuous results in a major operation without previous service under fire. The excellent conduct of his division subsequent to the signing of the armistice reflects great credit on him. His services have been of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. For services as a specialist in hospital management and construction.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 13th Field Artillery, 4th Division, he proved himself an artillerist of extraordinary skill and ability. Due to his energy and determination, he overcame seemingly insurmountable obstacles, keeping his regiment at all times on the alert in order to take its positions promptly, and rendered most effective support to the advancing Infantry units.

Colonel (Signal Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, in charge of the supply section, of the General Staff of the Services of Supply, he demonstrated by his energy, zeal, and masterful efforts a high order of efficiency and ability. He organized the supply section and handled without friction the questions of priority and troop orders during the period of the arrival of American troops in France. With a rare gift of tact and address, he discharged most successfully his many important duties. duties.

Major general, U.S. Army. For services in planning and executing those measures responsible for the effi-ciency of the Field Artillery during the war.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As division engineer officer of the 28th Division during its participation in the Aisne-Marne and the Meuse-Argonne offensives, he solved numerous and difficult problems with marked ability. By his tireless energy in the construction and maintenance of transportation routes and defensive positions he contributed in no small degree to the successes of the combat troops.

Commander, Medical Corps, U. S. Navy.
As force medical officer, his untiring energy and close cooperation with the Army authorities contributed greatly to the success(u) enterior of our oversea operations.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, For services while serving as military attaché at Copenhagen, Denmark,

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As adjutant, 15th Engineers, during the period of organization and training; in charge of construction of the Mehun ammunition depot; in charge of the construction at Is-sur-Tille depot, including the gas depot at Poinson and the Etain engine terminal; assistant chief of staff, G-3, and assistant chief of staff, G-4, 89th Division, from October, 1918, until the division returned to the United States, when he was assigned as assistant chief of staff, G-4, 3d Army. In all these positions he displayed unusual vision, initiative, sound judgment, and high professional skill, contributing in a conspicuous way to the successful operations of the American forces in France.

 Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He served with marked distinction as commanding officer of the 305th Engineers.
80th Division, as division engineer of the 80th Division, as chief engineer of the 5th Army Corps, and as chief engineer of the 1st and 3d Armies. At all times he exhibited professional attainments of the highest order in handling the difficult problems with which he was confronted.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As assistant commandant, School of Fire for Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla., from December, 1917, to May, 1918. His constructive and administrative ability was of great value in the remarkable and successful expansion of that school to meet the war requirements of the Field Artillery. In especial, his work in connection with the coordination and development of the course of instruction contributed materially to the excellence of the Field Artillery education received by thousands of officers.

Lieutenant colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
He organized and operated with marked success the division for the procurement of motor transport supplies in the office of the director, Motor Transport Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, and by his intelligent application, wide experience, sound judgment, and devotion to duty successfully surmounted great difficulties in providing adequate motor transportation for the American Expeditionary Forces.

SPEAR, RAY.....R—Spokane, Wash.
B—Illinois.
G. O. No. 116, W. D., 1919.

Captain, Supply Corps, U. S. Navy.

As force supply officer, the efficient performance of which duties contributed greatly to the successful provisioning of ships engaged in the transportation of troops and supplies overseas.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army. He commanded with marked distinction the 117th Infantry, 30th Division, from the time of its organization and early training period to the completion of the active combat operations in the Ypres-Lys and Somme offensives. He especially distinguished himself while in command of his regiment on Oct. 8-9, 1918, when he advanced his line 2½ miles, capturing several towns, numerous cannon, and many prisoners.

Spencer, Eugene J R-Webster Groves, Mo. B-St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923. Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As colonel, 32d Engineers, he constructed, in large part, the storage camp at St. Sulpice, Bordeaux, the receiving barracks of Genicourt, the new port at Talmont, the munitions depot at St. Loubes, France. As chief engineer of Base Section No. 2, Bordeaux, France, his duties included the construction and maintenance of roads and buildings, supervision of forests and posts. His high professional skill, unremitting energy, and devotion to duty contributed markedly to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
By his untiring efforts, zeal, and marked military efficiency in the performance of duties of responsibility as senior assistant of the Inspector General's Department in France he has rendered services of exceptional value to the Government.

SPRUANCE, WILLIAM C., Jr.....R.—Wilmington, Del. B.—Wilmington, Del. G. O. No. 77, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

As chief of the powder section, production division, of the office of the Chief of Ordnance. Later as special assistant to the Chief of Ordnance in charge of chemicals, propellants, and explosives, and chief of the explosives, chemicals, and loading division, office of the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacities he successfully organized the industry of the country so as to yield at all times an ample supply of powder, not only for the needs of the U. S. Army, but to some extent for the needs of the cobelligerents against Germany.

SQUIER, GEORGE O.....R—Dryden, Mich.
B—Dryden, Mich.
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As Chief Signal Officer he has demonstrated scientific attainments of the highest order. His researches and contributions to the scientific equipment of the Signal Corps are noteworthy. The Signal Corps under him has been an extremely progressive and efficient organization.

STACKPOLE, PIERPONT L.....R—Boston, Mass. B—Brookline, Mass. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As aide-de-camp to Lieut. Gen. Hunter Liggett, U. S. Army, he rendered exceptional services during the entire time that the latter commanded the 1st Army Corps, the 1st Army, and the 3d Army. By his military attainments and pronounced ability he proved to be a most important factor in the successes of the corps and also of the armies.

STANBERY, SANFORD B....R.—California, Ohio.
B.—Millersburg, Ohio.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
Having taken command of the 155th Infantry Brigade, 78th Division, prior to the attack of Nov. 1, he proved himself a forceful and capable military leader. With the tactical situation thoroughly in hand, by his zeal and good judgment he contributed to the brilliant results attained during the severe fighting in the advance toward Sedan in the final phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

STANTON, CHARLES E R—Salt Lake City, Utah. B—Monticello, 1ll. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

STARK, ALEXANDER N.R.—Norfolk, Va.B.—Norfolk, Va. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

STARR, WILLIAM T....R—New York, N. Y.
B—Indianapolis, Ind.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

STAYTON, WILLIAM H., jr.....R-Washington, D. C. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

STEARNS, CUTHBERT P..... R—Denver, Colo. B—Elizabeth, N. J. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

STEPHENS, JOHN E....R-Brentwood, Tenn.
B-Brentwood, Tenn.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief quartermaster and chief of staff, Base Section No. 5, at Brest, France, by his great administrative ability, exceptional foresight, and tireless energy he handled numerous difficult problems of supply and transportation with unusual efficiency and success. In the performance of his great task he rendered services of conspicuous worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, 132d Infantry, 33d Division, U. S. Army.
In the Bois-de-Chaume during Oct. 9-11, 1918, when, due to his rare presence of mind and courage, he prevented the disorganization of units of regiments that had suffered heavy casualties. He personally reorganized scattered groups and caused them to hold a line which appeared untenable. He has randered exprisers of great very rendered services of great value.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief disbursing officer in the office of the finance division, Quartermaster Corps, at Paris he performed his duties with unremitting zeal, displayed marked administrative ability and accurate judgment in solving problems of extraordinary difficulty, rendering services of marked worth.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

For services in connection with the planning, organization, and administration of the post and subposts of Brest, Base Section No. 5, thereby contributing in a very great measure to the successful operation of this base during the return of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army, He served as chief surgeon of the 1st Army during all its offensives, charged with the organization and direction of the Medical Service, involving the treatment and evacuation of many thousands of sick and wounded under most adverse conditions. In this important capacity he performed his duties with marked ability. With good judgment, furthered by high professional attainments and tireless energy, he solved the difficult problems which arose, prevented much suffering, and saved the lives of many among the American and French wounded soldiers.

Lieutenant colonel, Military Police Corps, U. S. Army. In the organization of the Provost Marshal General's Department, American Expeditionary Forces, from Nov. 18, 1918, to Feb. 1, 1919, in which capacity he displayed marked qualities of zeal and efficiency that were of great benefit to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
With rare vision, sound judgment, and signal ability, he organized and operated the office charged with the responsibility for the circulation of officers, soldiers, and civilians of the American Expeditionary Forces in France, and of the officers of the allied forces in the zones occupied by the American armies, maintaining active contact with British and French authorities and with the American military police throughout France with reference to such circulation. By his tact and initiative, without American precedent, he handled these activities with the utmost efficiency. Later, in charge of the appointment and promotion section of The Adjutant General's Office, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed unusual executive and administrative ability. His services were of immeasurable value to the Government. ability. His services were of immeasurable value to the Government.

Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

As chief of staff, spruce production division, Bureau of Aircraft Production, by his loyal devotion to duty, tact, industry, and resourcefulness, he handled with conspicuous success all the military problems of organizing the division and distributing the troops and supplies, an operation which involved constant and intimate relations with 150,000 civilian lumbermen and over 500 lumber mills, extending over an extensive territory. He rendered services of great value to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 3d Army Corps, he performed his important duties with merited ability and zeal. Through his efficient administration of the section, complete and timely intelligence of the enemy was promptly disseminated through the combatant troops, which aided materially in the successes of his corps. successes of his corps.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the Chief of Engineers and in charge of the personnel, equipment, construction, and maps division of the office of the Chief of Engineers, he displayed exceptional ability in handling commissioned personnel matters and developed special apparatus and methods for the production of aerial navigation maps. Since September, 1918, the solution of the many difficult problems in the organization and operation of the personnel branch, General Staff, has been due largely to his special knowledge of personnel matters, his untiring zeal, good judgment, and exceptional administrative ability.

Brigadier general, U.S. Army.

As chief of the war plans branch of the war plans division of the General Staff from Oct. 4, 1917, to June 13, 1918, he was directly responsible for the preparafrom Oct. 4, 1917, to June 13, 1918, he was directly responsible for the preparation of plaus for the organization of units of the Army and all special branches thereof. In this capacity he rendered most conspicuous services in a brilliant manner. By his keen foresight, great breadth of vision, and tireless energy he earried to successful completion the various plans and problems which confronted him. Later, as commander of the 61st Field Artillery Brigade, 36th Division, he again demonstrated these high professional attainments and splendid leadership, which at all times characterized his service. STERNBERGER, HENRY S.R.-New York, N. Y.B.-New York, N. Y.G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Licutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

While serving as quartermaster of his division throughout the entire period of its operations in Belgium and France, by his untiring zeal, great energy, tact, and sound judgment he was able to overcome many difficult problems of supply, thereby rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Who, as director general of purchases for the War Department, Second Assistant Secretary of War, and special representative in France of the Secretary of War in connection with the procurement of munitions for the American Expeditionary Forces, rendered conspicuous services. His broad vision and splendid judgment have been of the greatest value to the success of the military program.

As head of the Railway Advisory Commission to Russia and special adviser of the Russian Ministry of Ways of Communication. In the midst of revolutionary conditions he has pursued his undertaking to rehabilitate Russia by the restoration of railway traffic. In a distant country, far from immediate support, he has maintelined an unflagging devotion to duty which is now beginning to show the valuable results of his labor.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As senior instructor at the Plattsburg Training Camp from May until August, 1917, he displayed organizing and training ability and talents of the highest order in successfully directing the training and selection of 6,000 officer candidates, thereby rendering services of inestimable value to our newly formed forces. As chief of staff, 76th Division, from August, 1917, until June, 1918, he again showed tireless energy, practical resourcefulness, and military attainments of the highest order. Later, as commander of the 175th Infantry Brigade, 88th Division, he performed his duties with marked ability and excellent judgment.

Major, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
He served with the 1st Division as division judge advocate throughout the entire hostilities. At all times, by his high-minded sense of duty, his personal example of energy, loyalty, and courage, he was a powerful and consistent influence for promoting the morale, harmony, spirit, and the high standards of the 1st Division. His superior professional attainments and his loyal devotion to duty contributed materially to the success of his division and made him a conspicuous figure in a position of great responsibility.

STILWELL, JOSEPH W_______ R—Yonkers, N. Y. B—Palatka, Fla. G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 4th Army Corps, during the St. Mihiel offensive and later during the operations in the Woevre, he displayed military attainments of a high order. With great energy and zeal lie pursued the developments of the enemy activities on the corps front, securing invaluable information which assisted in a marked degree in the planning of the operations. He contributed by the excellent performance of his task to the success of these operations.

Chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief nurse of Base Hospital No. 21 she displayed marked organizing and administering ability while that unit was on active service with the British forces. Her devotion to duty was exceptional while she was chief nurse of the American Red Cross in France. Upon her appointment as director of nursing service of the American Expeditionary Forces, she performed exacting duties with conspicuous energy and achieved brilliant results. Thousands of sick and wounded were cared for properly through the efficient service she provided.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As quartermaster of the 3d Division during the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives, in maintaining an excellent system of quartermaster supplies and utilities under the greatest difficulties of active service, his superb efforts contributed in a marked degree to the success of this division throughout its operations.

STOKES, MARCUS B.
R-Early Branch, S. C.
B-Colleton, S. C.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 311th Infantry, 78th Division, during its organization, training, and in all of its operations, he handled all of his tasks with marked efficiency and in a manner that reflected great credit upon him. By his most careful and thorough preparations, sound judgment, skillful and energetic leadership, he contributed in a large measure to the successes achieved by his regiment against the enemy.

Colonel (Quartermaster Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army, As assistant chief of statt, G-1, 3d Division, as G-1 of that organization, and later as G-1, 2d Army, he performed with distinction his important duties. In the action from July 5 to Aug. 2, 1918, near Chateau-Thierry, and in the advance to the Ourcq River, he displayed tireless energy and ability of an unusually high order in supplying troops under most difficult conditions. Aggressive and resourceful, he proved equal to every emergency.

STONE, EDWARD R.

R—Spencer, Mass.
B—Spencer, Mass.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As second in command of the 9th Infantry, 2d Division, he participated with credit in the Aisne defensive, the operations in the Chateau-Thierry sector, and in the Aisne-Marne offensive. Subsequently, upon being placed in command of the 23d Infantry, 2d Division, he led it with marked ability in the St. Mihiel offensive, and by his skillful leadership was largely responsible for the successes gained by this regiment in the Battle of Blane Mont Ridge and the Meuse-Argonne offensive.

*Straight, Willard D.....R.—New York, N. Y. B.—Oswego, N. Y. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Major, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.

In the service of the organization, development, and administration of the War Risk Bureau his efforts resulted in marked efficiency in the handling of the large volume of insurance, as well as the numerous applications for allotments and allowances which covered almost the entire personnel of the American Expeditionary Forces. As an assistant in the first section of the general staff of the 1st Army he rendered particularly valuable services to the Government by his great energy and high ability.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Donley Straight.

R-Helena, Mont. B—Chicago, Ill. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

STRONG, GEORGE V.....

Lieutenant colonel (Judge Advocate General's Department), General Staff Lieutenant colonel (Judge Advocate General's Department), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
While on staff duty with Headquarters, 4th Army Corps and Headquarters, 2d Army, American Expeditionary Forces, he was in charge of all troop movements preparatory to the St. Mihiel attack and immediately following this attack, and was also in charge of all troop movements from the 4th Army Corps in the Toul sector to the Argonne front. By his tircless energy, keen foresight, and sound judgment he perfected the multifarious duties whereby all of these movements were carried to successful completion. During this period his services were conspicuously efficient and contributed materially to the success of these operations.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Cerps, U. S. Army.

Possessed of the highest professional qualifications and actuated by zealous devotion to duty, he has rendered services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces, notably as president of a board appointed to investigate the cause of trench fever, a disease which had caused serious losses to the effectives of the allied aimies. The scientific research of this board under his skillful direction led to the discovery of the means by which trench fever is transmitted and in the establishment of effective measures for its prevention. for its prevention.

SULTAN, DANIEL I R-Oxford, Miss. B-Oxford, Miss. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of the personnel section in the office of the executive assistant to the Chief of Staff of the Army during the war and the demobilization, he formulated policies covering commissioned personnel and handled with marked ability many complex questions of grave in:portance to the War Department and to the entire Army. His work was characticrized by eenspicuous breadth of vision and keen foresight. His splendid judgment and the sound policies initiated by him contributed in a large measure to the successful handling of the commissioned personnel of the Army. He rendered service of signal worth to the Government in a position of great responsibility. worth to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

awarded.

Major general, U. S. Army.

He commanded in turn a brigade of the 1st Division in the operations near Montdidier, the 1st Division during the Soissons and St. Mihiel offensives and in the early battles of the Argonne-Meuse advance, and the 5th Army Corps in the later battles of this advance. In all of these important duties his calm courage, his clear judgment, and his soldierly character had a marked influence in the attainment of the successes of his commands.

SUMMERS, LELAND L.....R-Whitestone, N. Y. B-Cleves, Ohio. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Technical advisor, War Industries Board. Teenmeal advisor, War Industries Board.

In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War, as a member of the board he rendered through his broad vision, distinguished capacity, and business ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As technical advisor of the board and later as representative on the interallied munitions board he rendered, through his untiring (florts and devotion to duty, exceptionally valuable service to the War Department in connection with the procurement and supply of explosives for the Army.

*SUMNER, EDWIN VOSE, Jr..... R-Milton, Mass.
B-Fort Niobrara, Nebr.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of the Air Service production and assembly center at Romorantin, he displayed peculiar administrative ability in coordinating the work of the many different elements at the largest Air Service project in the American Expeditionary Forces. The satisfactory results obtained at Romorantin were due largely to his tircless energy and skill in supervising and directing its operation. His example established a spirit of teamwork and accomplishment which were most marked.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow. Mrs. Edwin V. Sumner. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Edwin V. Sumner.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commandant of the Coast Artillery School and in the reorganization and administration of that institution, he thereby enabled it to meet effectively the demands made upon it for training candidates for commissions in the Coast Artillery Corps.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 28th Division he rendered conspicuously valuable services in the Argonne-Meuse offensive. In the capture of the strong enemy positions at le Chene Tondu, Apremont, Chatel-Chehery, and Hill No. 244, by his marked ability and tactical knowledge he proved a material factor in the successes achieved during these important operations.

Chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief nurse of the nurses' mobilization stations in New York City, she contributed largely to the rapid and successful embarkation of over 10,000 nurses for overseas duty during the World War. She displayed exceptional zeal, foresight, and good judgment in organizing the separate staffs of this large group of nurses, and by her efficiency, industry, and tact made possible the transfer to Europe of this large contingent of women, an unusual and difficult feet preferred under the prest trainer and perpleting conditions. SWEET, ETHEL E. (now Mrs. Theodore FALCONER). R—Canada. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923. feat performed under the most trying and perplexing conditions. Assistant to the Director of Purchase, Storage, and Traffic, War Department. As one of the principal advisers and assistants to the Director of Purchase, Storage and Traffic be accomplished the task of working out the detailed plan for bringing under one head the direction and supervision of procurement, storage, and issue of all commodities and articles of equipment and supply needed for the Army. It was due to his foresight, ability, energy, and loyal cooperation that the procurement program for the great Army of 1918 was successfully planned, and he assisted materially in carrying it into effect, thereby contributing directly to the success of the military program. Colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army.

He commanded for many months the important intermediate storage depot at Gievres. He successfully administered a large personnel and supervised the growth of Gievres as a storage depot. He organized the system of supply from that station so efficiently that there were no shortages, either of food or material, at the regulating stations dependent upon Gievres for supply during all the active operations. Colonel, Motor Transport Corps, U. S. Army.
Serving as chief motor transport officer of the advance section, S. O. S., he gave proof of excellent judgment and untiring energy in the performance of his duties. By his success in overcoming numerous obstacles involved in the transportation of supplies and troops, he rendered conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces. Taylor, Brainerd.... R—Newtonville, Mass. B—Malden, Mass. G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

Arriving in France June 11, 1917, as Chief Engineer, American Expeditionary Forces, he organized and administered the Engineer Department, which included the construction of wharves, depots, railways, barracks, and shelters throughout the theater of operations. He continued these duties with most marked and conspicuous ability, building a complete and efficiently functioning institution. TAYLOR, HARRY.... R—Tilton, N. H. B—Tilton, N. H. G. O. No. 50, W. D , 1919. ing institution. First lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. Army.
While commanding the station of Pantabangan, Luzon, P. I., in January, 1901, by his discretion and excellent judgment he obtained possession of the correspondence which made known the whereabouts of the insurgent chieftain, Aguinaldo, thus making possible the expedition resulting in his capture. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the Services of Supply, he demonstrated marked energy and executive ability in the management of troop evacuation from France, and especially subsequent to the armistice in the repatriation of the American Expeditionary Forces, when several hundred thousand men were returned to the United States each month. He has rendered services of great value. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of Evacuation Hospital No. 7 at Chateau Montom-glaust, he performed his exacting duties with unflagging energy and marked executive ability. Overcoming grave difficulties due to inadequate personnel and equipment, he succeeded in receiving, treating, and evacuating a large number of wounded from the Marne offensive with notable success, thereby a characteristic services extracted the atmost value to the American Expeditionary Eproces. rendering services of the utmost value to the American Expeditionary Forces. Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

First as chief of the financial and accounting divisions of the Ordnance Department, in which position he was charged with effecting the disbursement of all ordnance funds and with accounting for all ordnance property; next as special representative of the Chief of Ordnance to coordinate the financial and accounting operations of the Ordnance Department in the United States with these in the contract of the property and accomming operations of the Ordinance Department in the United States with those in France; and finally, as chairman and organizer of the ordinance salvage board, in which capacity he was charged with the duty of perfecting the organization and outlining the procedure of that board and with reviewing its recommendations with respect to the disposition of great quantities of surplus stores. He performed all his duties with zeal, sound judgment, and exceptional ability, thereby rendering services of great value to the Government. Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. As assistant G-4, and later as G-4, 2d Army Corps, from July, 1918, to January, 1919, he displayed exceptional ability in the administration of that division of the corps staff. During the operations which broke the Hindenburg line between Cambrai and St. Quentin bis great energy and able handling of matters of supply and transportation for the organizations of the corps contributed in a marked degree to the success of the operations, THAYER, WILLIAM S.....R.—Baltimore, Md. B.—Milton, Mass. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As chief consultant in medicine of the American Expeditionary Forces, with untiring zeal he devoted his time, energy, and high professional talents in promoting the organization of eminent medical officers for the prosecution of efficient treatment among the sick and wounded of the American Expeditionary Forces. Largely through his individual efforts, the treatment of the sick was so standardized, coordinated, and proficiently perfected as to result in a direct saving of many lives and a consequent conservation of man power and morale of these forces.

Assistant to the Director of Purchase, Storage and Traffic, War Department. As chief of the purchase branch of the Purchase, Storage, and Traffic Division he was responsible for the initiation of the purchase policy and the supervision of all contracts. His constructive ability and exceptional foresight are responsible for the results attained in the settlement of war contracts.

THOMAS, JOHN R., Jr.....R.—Chicago, Ill.
B.—Metropolis, Ill.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the aviation division of the Intelligence Section, he displayed unusual energy and skill in the collection and dissemination of information regarding the enemy's air forces. During part of the period covered by the Argonne-Meuse offensive operations he acted as head of the Intelligence Section and performed the duties of that position with marked ability and sound judgment.

Thompson, Charles F.....R-Jamestown, N. Dak. B-Jamestown, N. Dak. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.... Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army, As assistant chief of staff, G-2, of the 1st Army he aided in its organization by his skill and sound judgment, participating in the preliminary preparations and operations at the St. Mihiel salient. The successes achieved by his section are largely due to his high military attainments, his great energy, and painstaking devotion to duty. He served with equal ability as G-2 of the 2d Army in September, 1918, at all times showing great skill and accomplishing results of exceptional value.

THOMPSON, DORA E.
R—Cold Spring, N. Y.
B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 108, W. D., 1919.

Superintendent, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.

To her accuracy, good judgment, and untiring devotion to duty is due the splendid management of the Army Nurse Corps during the emergency.

THOMPSON, JOHN T....R.—Newport, Ky.
B.—Newport, Ky.
G. O. No. 34, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
As chief of the small arms division of the office of the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacity he was charged with the design and production of all small arms and ammunition thereby supplied to the United States Army, which results he achieved with such signal success that serviceable rifles and ample ammunition therefor were at all times available for all troops ready to receive and use them.

THOMPSON, MELVILLE WITHINGTON....R—Spy Rock, N. Y.
B—Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.

good judgment in solving the many complex questions confronting the board added materially to the proper discharge of its many responsibilities.

Assistant to Acting Quartermaster General, U. S. Army.
For service in the reorganization of the service of supply, thereby enabling the heavy demands due to an increased Army to be met.

Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.
As governor of the War Credits Board, he was untiring in his efforts, and his

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
For services as superintendent, U. S. Military Academy, during the period of the emergency.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

TINLEY, MATHEW A

R—Council Bluffs, Iowa.

B—Council Bluffs, Iowa.

G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He displayed exceptional qualities of leadership in command of the 168th Infantry, 42d Division, which under his able leadership fulfilled every mission assigned to it. He was untiring in energy and devotion to his important duties, acting with sound judgment and initiative in times of emergency.
His conduct was an inspiration to the men of his command, whom he led repeatedly in successful engagements.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

As commander of the Army Artillery Park of the 1st Army, American Expeditionary Forces, by his broad grasp of the problems of ammunition supply he contributed in a marked degree to the solution of this most difficult problem and also to the success of the artillery of the 1st Army during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Tod, Robert E.

R.—New York, N. Y.

B.—Scotland.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Commander, U. S. Navy, port officer, and later utilities officer at Base Section No. 5, Brest, France.

For conspicuously successful and cooperative industry in matters essential to the handling of transports and cargo ships of the United States; for the exercising of well-balanced business judgment in dealing with emergencies and for untiring and self-sacrificing effort to the end that ships be speedily turned around; for his subordination of all personal consideration in time of stress and for his helpfulness in all that concerned army troops, thereby rendering most conspicuous services to the American Expeditionary Forces in a position of great responsibility,

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As commanding general of the 58th Field Artillery Brigade, 33d Division, he demonstrated marked skill as an artillery officer in the preparations for the attack of the 5th Corps on the Kriemhilde Stellung on Nov. 1, 1918, and in the support of the 89th Division in its further advance and crossing of the Meuse River from Nov. 5 to 11, 1918. The brigade which he commanded effectively supported the 1st, 91st, 32d, and 89th Divisions, during the period of the operations in which it served with them. His services have been of particular value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Tolman, Edgar B.....R.—Chicago, Ill. B.—British India. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As executive officer in charge of the selective draft in Illinois, by his unusual executive ability, rare tact and skill, great initiative and resourcefulness exercised at times under most trying and novel conditions which arose in connection with the administration of the selective service act, he achieved a pronounced and conspicuous success in the performance of difficult and highly responsible duties, thereby rendering services of great value to the Government.

Major, 13th Cavalry, U. S. Army.

At Columbus, N. Mex., Mar. 9, 1916, having requested and received authority to pursue a superior force of bandits into Mexico, carried on, after being wounded, a running fight with said bandits for several miles, inflicting heavy losses upon the bandits and only stopping the pursuit when men and horses were exhausted and ammunition reduced to a few rounds per man.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army, As provost marshal in Italy, a position of great responsibility, during the critical situation arising from the decision of the peace conference on the Fiume question, by the means of good judgment and tact, he so managed the situation as to prevent all friction between the American Expeditionary Forces and the Italian populace. Due to his efficiency the military police of Italy were held to a high state of military training and discipline. He has rendered services of much value.

Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

As head of the coordination section of the staff of the Chief of Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces, he was charged with the responsibility for outlining and developing an organization to handle the many and grave problems of administration, mobilization, supply, and amament. In the performance of this duty he displayed rare intelligence, great initiative, broad vision, and an ability to obtain results, thus contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

 Licutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
For services in connection with the mobilization, organization, and training of Porto Rico's quota of troops in the World War.

TRACY, EVARTS

R—Plainfield, N. J.

B—New York, N. Y.
G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

Major, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As the pioneer camouflage officer in the United States Army, by his marked ability he ably assisted in recruiting and organizing personnel for this important work and in preparing lists of equipment and necessary material for the carrying out of this enterprise. He served as chief instructor in camouflaging at the Army Engineer School at Langres from its organization until August, 1918. To him is due the success in developing a school course and a field exhibit that disseminated important knowledge among a large number of the combat personnel of the American Expeditionary Forces.

TRACY, JOSEPH P.....R.—Monroeton, Pa. B.—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the enlisted division of The Adjutant General's Office during the war, in which capacity his sound judgment and administrative ability were conspicuous.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. As chief of the American military mission to Italy and commanding Base Section No. 8, by his mntring devotion to duty, loyalty, and zeal, he performed his intricate duties with marked ability and sound judgment. By his cheerfulness and sound diplomatic ability he furthered those cordial relations which existed between the American and Italian troops, and was an important factor in maintaining the morale at a high state of efficiency during the trying days prior to the armistice.

TRIPP, GUY E....R.—Washington, D. C. B.—Wells, Me. G. O. No. 25, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
Who, as chief of the production division of the Ordnance Department, and later as Assistant Chief of Ordnance, displayed fine technical ability and broad judgment in systematizing methods and practices resulting in the efficient cooperation of industries producing articles of ordnance for the Army.

TRIPPE, HARRY M....R.—Whitewater, Wis. B.—Whitewater, Wis. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 30sth Engineers, 83d Division, a position of great responsibility, much of the engineering success in facilitating the progress and supply of the 3d Army Corps during the Meuse-Argonne operation is due to his efforts and ability. He rendered important services to the United States.

TROWBRIDGE, AUGUSTUS..... R—Princeton, N. J. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

TRUESDELL, KARL .. R—Washington, D. C. B—Moorhead, Minn. G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Twachtman, John Alden R—Greenwich, Conn. B—Cincinnati, Ohio. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.

TWELVETREE, HERBERT J_ R—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Cleveland, Ohio. G. O. No. 13, W. D., 1923.

TYDINGS, MILLARD E.R.—Havre de Grace, Md. B.—Havre de Grace, Md. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1923.

Colonel (Infantry) General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 5th Division, through his intimate knowledge of staff duties and the requirements of troops of the line he organized a staff which insured efficient cooperation in combat. His ability was shown in sound tactical directions to his division, which insured successes in four offensive operations.

Lieutenant colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As supervisor of the technique of flash and sound ranging, by his complete scientific knowledge and keen devotion to his important duties he rendered services of great value. Due to his good judgment and painstaking energy suitable personnel was selected and properly trained in the efficient operation of the flash and sound ranging service of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
As signal officer of the 1st Division and the 5th Army Corps he displayed high professional attainments and unflagging zeal. By his skill in directing the construction and maintenance of extensive telephone and wireless systems he contributed materially to the success of combat operations.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As division surgeon, 35th Division, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, Colonel Turck organized the medical service of that division and provided hospitalization and evacuation facilities for the sick and wounded under conditions which rendered the service of the Medical Department unusually hazardous and difficult.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. As commanding officer of Evacuation Hospital No. 9, he performed his exacting duties with notable success. Overcoming numerous obstacles, by his keen foresight and administrative ability he was instrumental in securing the prompt evacuation and effective treatment of a large number of sick and wounded.

Colonel (Medical Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. In his capacity as assistant to the chief surgeon, and later as a member of the General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces, he supervised the preparation of hospitalization plans and their execution and assisted in the evacuation of sick and wounded from the battle fields in such manner as to greatly increase the efficiency of his department.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U.S. Army.
As battalion and later regimental commander, 103d Field Artillery, 26th Division, in the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives, he was conspicuous for his courage, marked ability, and leadership qualities. At all times he displayed superior tactical judgment and knowledge of artillery, and by his devotion to duty, great resourcefulness, and high military attainments he rendered the maximum support to the Infantry to which he was attached, thereby contributing in a large measure to their successes.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-1, 37th Division, throughout its operations in France, he displayed unusual ability, leadership, resourcefulness, and high technical skill, thus contributing in a material way to the successful operations of his division.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

While commanding the Hith Machine Gnn Battalion, 29th Division during the Meuse-Argonne operations, north of Verdun, Oct. 8 to 30, 1918, he distinguished himself by his energy, fearlessness, and high qualifications for the gravely responsible duties devolving upon him. The exceptionally effective use made by him of the weapons at his command rendered an advance possible against formidable hostile field works. His constant personal reconnaissance of frontline positions of the Infantry made possible an effective disposal of machine guns and artillery in the support of the efforts of the Infantry to advance and contributed in a large measure to the success of the fantry to advance and contributed in a large measure to the success of the brigade which his command was supporting.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. As executive officer and military advisor to the Director General of Military Railways, he has displayed high professional attainments and given valuable assistance in procuring personnel and equipment for the railway service

Colonel, Field Artillery, United States Army.
As commander, 150th Field Artillery, 42d Division, in the Baccarat, Champagno, Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne operations, part of which time be commanded one or more additional elements of the Artillery with which he was operating. His high technical attainments, his untiring energy and devotion to duty were important factors in the successful operations of the Artillerory Process. tions of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served first as assistant G-4 of the 1st Army and later as G-4 of the 2d Army. He rendered devoted, skillful, and efficient service in the snpply of the 1st and 2d Armies during the St. Mibiel offensive in the Forest of Argonne and in the Woevre. His painstaking and tireless energy contributed materially to the success of these operations.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He commanded with distinction the 59th Infantry Brigade, 30th Division, throughout its training period and during its active operations against the enemy. His determination and skill as a military leader were reflected in the successes of his brigade in the attack and capture of Brancourt and Premont, where a large number of prisoners and much material fell into our hands. He rendered services of great worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

ULIO, JAMES A.....R.—Fort Keogh, Mont.
B.—Fort Walla Walla, Wash.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the 4th Army Corps, he showed marked organizing and administrative ability. By his tireless efforts and ceaseless energy he contributed in a large degree to the successes achieved by the 4th Army Corps in the Toul sector and in the battles of the St. Mihiel salient. Later he handled with great success the evacuation and feeding of French civilians in the occupied territory recovered from the enemy, rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

UPHAM, JOHN S.....R—Los Angeles, Calif. B—Fort Walla Walla, Wash. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army, As assistant chief of staff, G-3, and acting chief of staff, 36th Division, during the organization and training of the division in the United States and in France. In these positions of great responsibility he displayed sound judgment, high professional skill, executive and administrative ability, and devotion to duty, his services contributing greatly to the successes of the 36th Division in its operations with the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He commanded with conspicuous ability the 9th Infantry in the trench sector south of Verdun and in all its operations before Chateau-Thierry. In the campaign north of Verdun, in October, as commander of the 57th Infantry Brigade, 29th Division, he exhibited qualities of brilliant leadership, successfully participating in the battles at Molleville Farm, Grand Montagne, Etraye, and in those east of the Meuse. At all times he remained near his front lines, personally directing the attacks and serving as a constant inspiration to his men.

Lieutenant colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army,
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 81st Division, from September, 1918, until June, 1919, he displayed exceptional ability in the administration and operation of that section of the division staff. By his keen foresight, sound judgment, and military attainments of a high order he was able at all times to secure valuable information of the enemy and to keep his commanding general well informed, thereby contributing materially to the successful operations of his division.

Van Deman, Ralph H R—Delaware, Ohio. B—Delaware, Ohio. G. O. No. 73, W. D., 1919. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the military intelligence branch, General Staff, in organizing the Intelligence Service of the Army in the United States, to his ability, untiring zeal, and devotion to duty the building up of a very efficient Intelligence Service of the Army was largely due.

Vanderbilt, Cornelius R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 118, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer, 102d Engineers, and as Engineer officer of the 27th Division, his marked qualities of leadership and thorough training and instruction developed a high state of military efficiency in his command, as demonstrated throughout its entire service.

Chief nurse, Army Nurse Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief nurse of the Mars Hospital Center, France, during the World War, she was largely responsible for the nursing care of thousands of sick and wounded at that center. Her work was characterized by great efficiency, tact, and good judgment. Later, as chief nurse of the Nurses' Embarkation Center at Vannes, France, she had under her care at one time as many as 1,100 nurses for whom she was responsible. Her efforts in this capacity to facilitate the work of demobilization, and to improve the general welfare of the nurses, contributed largely not only to the success of their concentration and organization for transfer to the United States but also to their high morale and physical well-being.

Van Horn, Robert O.....R.-Fort D. A. Russell, Wyo. B.-Whipple Barracks, Ariz. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1921.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.
On the night of Nov. 3, 1918, he led his regiment, the 9th Infantry, 2d Division, against the enemy position in the edge of the Bois de Belval. The regiment passed through the woods and the enemy lines and took up a position 6 kilometers in rear of the enemy, capturing many prisoners and much war material. At daylight, Nov. 4, his regiment was heavily counterattacked but not dislodged. The effect of night penetration of the enemy lines caused the enemy on the right and left of the 2d Division sector to fall back to the east bank of the Meuse River.

Lieutenant colonel, Cavalry, U. S. Army. For services while serving as military attaché at Habana, Cuba.

 Colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff at the port of embarkation, Newport News, Va., his services in governing and controlling the troop-movement branch at the port of embarkation materially aided in the efficient transport of troops and supplies overseas.

R—Rosemont, Pa. B—Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

VAUCLAIN, SAMUEL MATTHEWS.....

VAUGHAN, VICTOR C....R—Ann Arbor, Mich.
B—Mount Airy, Randolph County, Mo. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

VERDI, WILLIAM F.... R-New Haven, Conn. B-Italy. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1922.

Vidmer, George R—Mobile, Ala. B—Mobile, Ala. G. O. No. 16, W. D., 1920. Distinguished-scrvice cross also awarded.

VINCETT, GEORGE H.....R—Butler, Pa.
B—Syracuse, N. Y.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

WADE, LEIGH.
R—Cassopolis, Mich.
B—Cassopolis, Mich.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1925.
Act of Congress Feb. 25, 1925.

WADHAMS, SANFORD H .... R—Torrington, Conn. B—Torrington, Conn. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

WADSWORTH, ELIOT ... R—Boston, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

He assisted in organizing the munitions standards board and was chairman of a subcommittee of that board which later became a subcommittee of the War Industries Board. He rendered valuable assistance in developing the War Department's program as to artillery and rifles.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

During his service in the office of the Surgeon General his contributions of advice and information have been of great value to the Army in connection with the control of communicable diseases. During the recent epidemic of influenza, in particular, his work was of extreme value.

Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. As surgical consultant and specialist in surgery of the chest in hospital forma-tions at the front during the operations on the Marne and the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 306th Infantry, 77th Division, he demonstrated marked ability as a military leader. His sound judgment and tireless energy were largely responsible for the successes which his regiment gained in its operations against the enemy.

Lieutenant colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As chief of construction and operation of the car-erecting plant at La Rochelle he performed with credit a task of great magnitude. By his skill in organizing labor and ability in imbuing the men with enthusiasm, he was enabled to increase greatly the output of his plant. The persistent high quality of the duty performed by him greatly facilitated the major operations of the American armies in the field.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief signal officer, successively, of the 1st Division, the 1st Army Corps, and the 3d Army, he rendered conspicuous services. With tireless energy and indefatigable zeal he performed a task of great magnitude, insuring at all times the installation and maintenance of communications throughout the Marne and Argonne-Meuse offensives, contributing in a marked degree to the successes attained.

First lieutenant, Air Service, U. S. Army.
Lieutenant Wade, as pilot of airplane No. 3, the Boston, and supply officer of the United States Army Air Service around-the-world flight from Apr. 6, 1924, to Sept. 28, 1924, displayed to a remarkable degree courage, energy, and resourcefulness in carrying out these duties, in addition to actually piloting his airplane throughout the voyage. His sound judgment and foresight were material factors in contributing to the successful achievement of this pioneer flight of airplanes around the world. He has assisted materially in bringing a signal boars to himself and to the military forces of the United States. a signal honor to himself and to the military forces of the United States.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

In his capacity as assistant to the Chief Surgeon, American Expeditionary Forces, and later as a member of the General Staff he ably supervised the hospitalization and evacuation activities of the Medical Corps in advanced areas. By his timely anticipation of requirements he assisted in a marked degree the support of our operations against the enemy.

As vice chairman of the central committee, American Red Cross, he brought the great problem of systematized relief for our armies, those of the Alies, and for the stricken people of Europe to an eminently successful solution. By earnest, unselfish concentration of high faculties of organization and control he helped most materially to conserve life and reconstitute the wastage of war in the devastated areas, and made it possible to express the generosity of the American people in terms of substantial helpfulness.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
In command of the 58th Infantry, 4th Division, from Aug. 6, 1917, to Feb. 1, 1918, he demonstrated leadership of a high order, untiring energy, and sound judgment. As chief of the operations section, General Staff, War Department, from Feb. 4, 1918, to May 12, 1918, he displayed rare professional attainments, initiating and developing many valuable ideas in the organization of the operations section. As brigadier general commanding the 14th Infantry Brigade, 7th Division, from May 19, 1918, to Nov. 3, 1919, he again displayed unusual gifts of organization, leadership, and tactical judgment, both during the period of organization and training of his brigade, as well as in combat operations in France.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant to the quartermaster at Nevers, by his zeal and rare talent for organization he contributed in a large measure to the prompt and efficient operation of the first advance supply depot of the American Expeditionary Forces. Later he proved himself sound in judgment and of exceptional ability when he organized and operated the classification depot at Blois. He showed marked discernment and determination in the reclassification and assignment of commissioned personnel, performing most exacting duties with brilliant success.

WAINWRIGHT, JONATHAN MAYHEW.... R—Rye, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 55, W. D., 1920

Lieutenant colonel, Inspector General's Department, U.S. Army. As division inspector and more especially as an acting general staff officer of the 27th Division in the Dickebusch sector in Belgium, the Ypres-Lys offensive, and the battle of the La Selle River, in France, by his energy, efficient coordination of details, and persistent application to his task, he regulated all movements of the division, involving the evacuation of wounded, the relief of units of the line, the supplying of rations and ammunition, and the control of communications, with such marked success as incurred a minimum of loss in such particles. in each operation.

WAINWRIGHT, JONATHAN M .... R—Chicago, Ill. B—Fort Walla Walla, Wash. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel (Cavalry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. As assistant chief of staff, 82d Division, first assistant to the assistant chief of staff, G-3, 3d Army, and later as assistant chief of staff, G-3, American Forces in Germany, by his untiring energy, devotion to duty, and exercise of initiative he contributed in a large measure to the success attained by the commands with which he served. mands with which he served.

WAITE, HENRY M....R.—Dayton, Ohio.
B.—Toledo, Ohio.
G. O. No. 22, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As deputy director general of transportation, headquarters, services of supply, later as constructing engineer of the Transportation Corps and deputy director general of transportation, Zone of the Armies, he displayed marked technical ability, initiative, and judgment of a high order. Subsequently, as a member of the bridgehead commission of the 3d Army, as chief motor transport officer of the 3d Army, and as advisor to the officer in charge of civil affairs at advanced general headquarters, he displayed those same high qualities which characterized his previous distinguished service.

characterized his previous distinguished service.

Major (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-2, 37th Division, from Aug. 15, 1918, to Oct. 13, 1918, he organized and developed a splendid intelligence system by which he kept his division commander constantly well informed of the enemy on his front. By the skillful direction of the intelligence service he proved a material front. By the skillful direction of the intelligence service he proved a material factor in the snecesses gained by his division. Aggressive and resourceful, he proved equal to every emergency. Later, as assistant chief of staff, G-3, of the same division, he demonstrated high professional attainments, sound tactical judgment, and keen farsightedness. He at all times displayed assiduous application to each important task, rendering services of signal worth and conspicuous merit in a position of great responsibility.

WALDRON, WILLIAM II.

R—Welch, W. Va.

B—Huntington, W. Va.

G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

As chief of staff, 80th Division, during the Meuse-Argonne offensive his extraordinary energy, initiative, and ability contributed largely to the success of the operations of the division.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commander of the 147th Regiment of Field Artillery of the 57th Field
Artillery Brigade, 32d Division, he commanded his regiment with marked ability throughout the campaign of the Aisne-Marne, Oise-Aisne, and Meuse-Argonne. By his energy and devotion to duty he contributed materially to the success of the 57th Field Artillery Brigade during its support of the 32d Division, and at other times its support of five other divisions. He has ren-dered service of much value.

WALKE, WILLOUGHBY ... R—Norfolk, Va. B—Norfolk, Va. G. O. No. 133, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the Middle Atlantic Coast Artillery District during the war, his services were conspicuous in the administration of that command and in the execution of all projects coming within his control for the organization and training of Coast Artillery Corps units for overseas service.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As a member of Base Hospital No. 18, in the prevention of the spreading of diseases at the base ports, and later as clinical chief of genito-urinary section of the Medical Department in France, he rendered services of inestimable value to the Government. His untiring energy and unremitting devotion to duty, coupled with his technical knowledge as a professional urologist, were of material value and contributed markedly to the successful operations of the American forces in France.

WALKER, JOHN B. R-New York, N. Y. B-Lodi, N. J. G. O. No. 31, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer of Base Hospital No. 116, American Expeditionary Forces, and later as consultant in the United States during the period of demoi-ilization. The services rendered by Colonel Walker in standardizing and supervising the treatment of the wounded suffering from gunshot fractures were of inestimable value to the Government and a material contribution to the rehabilitation of the disabled.

Colonel, Finance Department, U. S. Army.

Colonel, Finance Department, U.S. Army.
As assistant to the Chief of Finance, charged with the responsibility for the settlement of many thousands of claims of officers and men of the National Army, he displayed extraordinary administrative and executive ability, sound business judgment, unflagging energy, and devotion to duty. The services rendered the Government were of immeasurable value in a position of great responsibility.

WALKER, MERIWETHER L.....R.—Lynchburg, Va.
B.—Lynchburg, Va.
G. O. No. 78, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of the Motor Transport Service he rendered services of much value.
With tireless energy he assailed an important task, and by his zealous efforts met all difficulties arising from irregular shipments and lack of adequate material, successfully organizing the Motor Transport Service, and brought it to a high state of efficiency, thereby materially assisting in the solution of the important problem of transportation in the American Expeditionary Forces.

WALKER, WILLIAM H.....R—Cambridge, Mass.
B—Pittsburgh, Pa.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
His extraordinary technical ability, untiring industry, and great zeal have enabled remarkable results to be achieved in the Production Division of the Chemical Warfare Service in the face of many obstacles encountered.

Lieutenant colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As inspector-instructor for the Chief of Field Artillery from Apr. 16, 1918, to
Oct. 16, 1918, he rendered valuable service in raising the efficiency of Field Artillery brigades and in recommending the measures needful to be taken to prepare these brigades for service overseas.

WALLACE, WILLIAM B.....R—Marquette, Mich. B—Canada. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
As a member of the American section, Supreme War Council, he has rendered invaluable service in handling with especial ability and good judgment matters of the greatest importance to all the allied and associated Governments.

Walsh, James L R—Brookline, Mass. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922. Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

First as chief of the personnel division, office of the Chief of Ordnance, which he organized and administered with conspicuous success during the first nine months of the war, a critical period during which all ordnance activities depended upon the successful handling of the personnel problem, and later as personal and executive assistant to the Chief of Ordnance, in which capacity his breadth of vision, tact, sound judgment, and loyalty were invaluable to the Government in the numerous highly confidential matters entrusted to his care. In each of these positions his services to the Government were exceptionally conspicuous and meritorious.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. In command of the important base ports of St. Nazaire and Bordeaux, France, and as deputy director general of transportation, his services have been characterized by exceptional ability, energy, and devotion to duty.

Major, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
While serving as military attaché at Paris, France, by his devotion to duty, intelligent cooperation, and indefatigable efforts he rendered invaluable assistance and conspicuous service to the military representative of the United States on the Supreme War Council.

Lieutenant colonel (Air Service), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, in charge of the intelligence section of the Services of Supply, he has rendered services of the most valuable character. He has handled with great efficiency the important task of counterespionage throughout the American Expeditionary Forces and in the neighboring neutral countries. In this service he showed marked ability, combined with superior military knowledge.

Ward, Franklin W. R-Albany, N. Y. B-Philadelphia, Pa. G. O. No. 118, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
For services as division adjutant and acting chief of staff of the 27th Division and as commanding officer of the 106th Infantry. As commanding officer, 106th Infantry, his personal courage, determination, and thoroughness in the handling of his regiment under heavy fire during the battle of the LeSelle River in the Somme offensive of October, 1918, were conspicuous.

WARD, RALPH T.....R—Denver, Colo.
B—Fayette, Mo.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the operations subsection G-3, 1st Army, Colonel Ward was given the responsibility of drawing up plans, preparing orders, making personal reconnaissances, and insuring mutual relations with adjacent armies. He fulfilled these functions with exceptional ability, and his work was largely responsible for the successes achieved during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 322d Field Artillery, 83d Division, from August 22, 1917, until February 15, 1919, be displayed untiring energy, unusual administrative ability, and an unfailing dependability, these qualities being reflected in the excellence of his regiment. His outstanding ability as an organizer, his leadership and his devotion to duty were material factors in the successful operations of his division.

WARREN, CHARLES B.
R—Detroit, Mich.
B—Bay City, Mich.
G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. 8. Army. In connection with the administration of the selective-service law during the war, in all of his varied and important duties he displayed unselfish devotion, tireless energy, and extraordinary executive ability

Lieutenant colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.
While in charge of finances of the small arms division, Ordnance Office, where his eminent ability as a financier and as an executive of large affairs, and also his previous military training, were invaluable in the early organization of the division. Later, as chief of the small-arms section, procurement division, Ordnance Office, and as one of the members and vice governor, the war credits board, Office of the Secretary of War, he rendered conspicuous service in the conduct of its immense affairs.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of Base Hospital No. 6, American Expeditionary Forces, and as surgeon of Base Section No. 3, positions of great responsibility, by his ability, energy, and whole-hearted devotion to duty he has rendered services of great value.

WATKINS, LEWIS H_______ R—Franklin, Tenn. B—Nashville, Tenn. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-5, 1st Army, he performed exacting duties with marked energy and ability, achieving valuable results. Notwithstanding his many duties, he arranged to aid G-3, 1st Army, in the preparation of plans for important operations. By his especial ability, military attainments, and painstaking devotion to the tasks assigned to him he contributed in a marked degree to the successes achieved by our troops.

Major, Infantry, 341st Machine Gun Battalion, 89th Division, U. S. Army. For services near Romagne, France, in October, 1918, in organizing the machinegun defense of the 89th Division sector.

Lieutenant colonel, Adjutant General's Department, U. S. Army.
As adjutant, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 3, 1917, to Sept. 10, 1918, and Jan. 6, 1919, to Feb. 28, 1920, his untiring energy, resourcefulness, and devotion to duty, coupled with administrative and executive ability of an exceptionally high order, were of immeasurable value to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U.S. Army.

He was intrusted with the execution of some of the largest construction enterprises in France. Confronted by difficulties of labor, material, and equipment he set about his task with ceaseless energy, and by his resourcefulness, initiative, and skill be overcame all obstacles and completed these difficult projects with great success.

WEED, FRANK W.... R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923. Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

In August, 1917, as sanitary inspector at Camp Funston, Kans., he initiated and perfected the organization and establishment of a standardized type of detention and quarantine camp, the successful operation of which resulted in the installation of similar camps in all large cantonments throughout the United States during the war. This original and constructive work of his had a marked influence in controlling epidemic diseases, then prevalent, and greatly facilitated the rapid mobilization and training of urgently needed man power. From January until August, 1918, as general sanitary inspector, Surgeon General's Office, he rendered services of the highest order. Later, while on duty in the hospital division of the chief surgeon's office, American Expeditionary Forces, as transportation officer in charge of hospital trains, ambulances, and the movement of sick and wounded within the American Expeditionary Forces to the United States during the period from January to July, 1919, he directed the evacuation of over 100,000 sick and wounded to the United States.

 Major, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
During the World War, as surgical consultant and director of surgical teams in hospital formations at the front during the operations on the Marne, the St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives, and later in command of Base Hospital No. 30, by his loyal devotion to duty, sound judgment, and brilliant professional attainments, he rendered services of great value in the care of the sick and wounded of the American troops, thereby contributing materially to the success of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Weems, Fontaine Carrington......R—Washington, D. C.
B—Houston, Tex.
G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.

Lieutenant colonel, General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief of the foreign relations section of the Purchase, Storage and Traffie Division of the General Staff, he foresaw the necessity of the preservation of accurate data affecting the international relations of the War Department in the matter of purchase of supplies by the allied Governments in the United States, and by his prevision and care prevented the loss of information essential to just and speedy liquidation. Thereafter, in association with those charged with the settlement of widely ramifying, intricate, and involved business relations, by his judgment, industry, and knowledge he made possible speedy and just settlements, reflecting a high degree of credit upon the American Army for its accuracy and fairness in business transactions with its allies.

WEIGEL, WILLIAM

R—New Brunswick, N. J.

B—New Brunswick, N. J.

G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As commander of a brigade of the 28th Division in the fighting on the Vesle of August, 1918, he inspired confidence by his constant activities and his aggressive pressing of the enemy at every opportunity, which resulted in driving the hostile forces across the Vesle northward toward the Aisne.

Colonel, Tank Corps, U. S. Army. For services in the organization and administration of the Tank Corps.

WELCH, WILLIAM H.....R.—Baltimore, Md.
B.—Norfolk, Conn.
G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

From his rich experience in scientific medicine, sanitation, public health, and medical education he helped materially in guiding the medical profession both in and out of the Army safely through the many difficulties of war.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As regimental commander of the 105th Field Artillery, 27th Division, he demonstrated professional attainments and ability of the highest order. By his sound tactical judgment and superior knowledge of artillery, he most successfully directed his units in support of the 158th Infantry Brigade in the operations north of Verdun, Nov. 4 to 11, 1918. By keeping his elements elect to the attacking Infantry he contributed in no small measure to the success of the Infantry brigade in these operations. He rendered services of conspicuous merit and signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Welles, Edward M., Jr.... R—New York, N. Y. B—Addison, N. Y. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. In the office of the Chief Surgeon, American Expeditionary Forces, for nearly two years and embracing the entire period of combat activities, he was charged two years and embracing the entire period of combat activities, he was charged with all details concerning the reception and distribution and the classification and assignment of all officers, nurses, and enlisted men of the Medical Department serving overseas, a force aggregating approximately 250,000 individuals. In this position of great responsibility he displayed exceptional ability and rendered conspictous service to the Government by directing with the greatest economy the distribution of all available personnel during periods of stress and threatened shortage, thereby materially contributive to periods of stress and threatened shortage, thereby materially contributing to the success of our forces in the field.

G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

WELSH, WILLIAM E R—Hanover, Pa. B—Hanover, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

WELSHIMER, ROBERT R ... R—Neoga, Ill. B—Neoga, Ill. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921.

WENTZ, DANIEL B... R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Jeddo, Pa. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief of staff of the 4th Army Corps while it was in the front line in the Woevre he displayed military attainments of a high order in the planning of operations. Both then and subsequently, during the march to the Rhine and the occupation of German territory, his service was marked by tireless zeal, excellent judgment, and whole-hearted devotion to the performance of important tasks.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

In the organization and operation of the entire storage system for the Army he has displayed marked ability, energy, and application, to which are due, in a large measure, the satisfactory results attained.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

He commanded the 314th Field Artillery, 80th Division, which later became part of the 3d Army Corps. He rendered exceptionally efficient service with the 80th Division, taking part in all operations of that division. He displayed a high order of leadership and exhibited those masterful qualities of a commander which insure success. Later, assigned to the 3d Army Corps, his devotion to duty and high professional attainments were again revealed. Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Eleanor E. Welsh.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As colonel, 346th Infantry, 87th Division, from September, 1917, to June, 1918, he demonstrated unusual leadership, organizing and training his regiment to a high state of efficiency and morale; as brigadier general, General Staff, and inspector-instructor of Infantry, training section, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed marked tactical ability and by his general supervision shared largely in the responsibility for the training in that arm. His duties of very great importance were carried out with conspicuous success. spicuous success.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As senior instructor at the Coast Artillery School, and later as commandant of that school in the organization and administration of that institution so as to result in effective accomplishment of its object.

Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the fuel branch, office of the chief quartermaster, American Expeditionary Forces, a position of great responsibility, he displayed extraordinary ability in the promptness with which he procured and forwarded a steady flow of fuel to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Ordnance Department, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer, Watertown Arsenal, Mass., from January to October, 1918, by his indefatigable energy, great administrative ability, and thorough technical knowledge he planned, erected, equipped, and brought to a highly efficient working basis a new factory for the manufacture of 240-mm. howitzer carriages, as well as a new forging plant for large-caliber guns—a definite contribution to the military power of the Nation. From November, 1918, until August, 1919, as commanding officer of the ordnance base repair shops at Mehun-sur-Yevre, France, he again rendered highly meritorious service in a position of great responsibility in salvaging ordnance matériel valued at millions of dollars and prepared it properly for shipment to the United States.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As assistant to the Chief of Artillery, through his initiative, organizing ability, and comprehensive knowledge of the technique and tactics of Artillery in all its branches, and particularly through his complete knowledge of Artillery material, he has rendered services of exceptional value to the Government.

*Westnedge, Joseph B.....R.—Kalamazoo, Mich. B.—Kalamazoo, Mich. G. O. No. 70, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
With signal ability he commanded the 126th Infantry, 32d Division, from the date of its organization to its final engagement during the Meuse-Argonne offensive, inspiring the members of his command by his personal courage and indefatigable zeal; he kept his regiment efficiently organized at all times, as demonstrated by the successful results obtained in its operations against the enemy. During his service at the front he contracted a disease which subsequently proved fatal.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow. Mrs. Eva M. Westnedge.

Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to widow, Mrs. Eva M. Westnedge.

WESTOVER, OSCAR_____ R—Bay City, Mich. B—Bay City, Mich. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

Lieutenant colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.

He served in turn as signal officer, port of embarkation, Hoboken, N. J., chief of storage department, Signal Corps, and chief of storage and traffic division, Bureau of Aeronautical Production, Air Service. By his great initiative, painstaking attention to details, exceptional ability, and untiring efforts he installed and developed with conspicuous success at all ports of embarkation a complete system of keeping records of shipment of Signal Corps and Air Service property for overseas. His services were of inestimable value to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

WHALEY, ARTHUR M. R—Sault Sainte Marie, Mich. B—Canada. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. He served with marked ability as surgeon, 30th Division, from the time of its organization and early training period to the completion of the Ypres-Lys and Somme offensives. The eare and evacuation of the wounded during the active operations of the division were conducted with the greatest smoothness and efficiency, and it was due to the great energy and conspicuous ability displayed by him that his services were of the utmost value to the WHEELER, CHARLES B R—Fergus Falls, Minn. B—Mattison, Ill. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
He initiated, organized, and developed the plans for the successful operation of the supply division in the office of the Chief of Ordanace, which division received, transported, warehoused, issued, and maintained all items of ordanace stores and equipment manufactured and purchased for issue to the Army during the war. With fine business acumen and with the full conception of the magnitude and intricacy of the complex problems involved, he brought to full and complete fruition a well-balanced and successful working organization. By his wide vision and full comprehension of conditions and the needs of the service and by his unflagging energy to insure constant supply of ordnance materials, he rendered service of signal worth to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

WHEELER, RAYMOND A..... R—Peoria, Ill. B—Orehard Mines, Ill. G. O. No. 68, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As active regimental commander of the 4th Engineers, 4th Division, during the Aisne-Marne, the St. Mihiel, and the Meuse-Argonne offensives, he ably supported the 4th Division in these operations by the promptness and skill with which he constructed bridges across the Vesle, destroyed enemy wire, and built and maintained roads during the attacks in the Meuse-Argonne offensive. His able and expeditious support of the 3d and 5th Army Corps by constructing roads through the Argonne was a material factor in the rapid advance and ultimate success of the units of those corps during this important correction. this important operation.

Whipple, Sherburne
R—Springfield, Mass.
B—Cold Spring, N. Y.
G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff, G-1, of the 80th Division from June until December, 1918, he performed his duties with marked ability in connection with the service of supply and communications for his division. By his tircless energy, exceptional administrative ability, initiative, and sound judgment he successfully solved many perplexing problems, maintaining at all times an adequate supply of food and ammunition for the troops, thereby rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
As acting Judge Advocate General for the American Expeditionary Forces and later for the American Forces in Germany and France he performed very difficult and exacting duties with marked skill and distinction. In connection with the vast civil business of the War Department which passed through his hands he displayed a singular force of decision and sound independent. judgment.

WHITE, HERBERT H ..... R—Boise, Idaho. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel (Field Artillery), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. As executive officer of the 4th Section, General Staff, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he was intimately associated with the organization of the Services of Supply and their direction. By his energy, ability, and good judgment in the discharge of important and arduous duties he greatly assisted in the successful operations of the Services of Supply in support of the forces in the field.

WHITEHEAD, HENRY C. R—Hemphill, Tex. B—Hemphill, Tex. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Signal Corps, U. S. Army.

During the period of organization of the American Expeditionary Forces he rendered service of a superior order in the planning and the organization of the Air Service. As chief of staff, Air Service, he displayed sound judgment and great ability in solving the many problems with which he was confronted. Throughout the entire duration of the war his high professional attainments and untiring zeal have materially promoted the efficiency of the Air Service.

WHITLEY, FRANKLIN L.....R-St. Louis, Mo. B-St. Louis, Mo. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1922.

WHITMAN, WALTER M.

R—New York, N. Y.

B—New York, N. Y.

G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Distinguished-service cross also awarded.

WHITSON, MILTON J.
R.—Seattle, Wash.
B.—Seott County, Iowa.
G. O. No. 89, W. D., 1919.

Wickersham, Cornelius W. R.—Cedarhurst, Long Island, N. Y. B.—Greenwich, Conn. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1921.

WICKES, FORSYTH R-Tuxedo Park, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

WILBY, FRANCIS B.....R—Arlington, Mass. B—Detroit, Mich. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1923.

WILGUS, WILLIAM J.....R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—Buffalo, N. Y.
G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919.

WILKINS, HARRY E.R.—Victor, Iowa.B.—Genesee, Ill.G. O. No. 77, W. D., 1919.

WILLCUTT, JOSEPH N....R—Cohasset, Mass. B—Cohasset, Mass. G. O. No. 95, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
While on duty with the operations branch of the operations division, General Staff, he was charged with a multitude of exacting and very responsible duties, all of which he performed with conspicuous accuracy and thoroughness.

Lieutenant colonel, Infantry, U.S. Army.

Lientenant colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
In 1917, before instruction pamphlets were issued, Colonel Whitley prepared combat drill formations, suitable for war strength companies armed with new weapons. As battalion commander during the operations near Chateau-Thierry, he rendered valuable service. Due to his initiative and personal leadership, 39 days of constant contact with the enemy failed to break the morale of his organization. After the armistice, as chief of the decorations division, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, by his sound judgment, professional knowledge, and exceptional ability, this officer performed his manifold and responsible duties with the utmost efficiency. He has rendered services of material worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.
He commanded with marked distinction the 325th Infantry, 82d Division, throughout its period of service in France. An able and aggressive leader, he achieved eminent success in all the missions assigned to him, contributing materially to the achievements of his division.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
While officer in charge of the building branch of the construction division of the Army, Colonel Whitson's task was of staggering magnitude, and its successful accomplishment was in a great measure due to his qualities of organization, leadership, technical knowledge, and untiring energy.

Major (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As acting assistant chief of staff, G-3, 4th Army Corps, and as assistant to the assistant chief of staff, G-3, 4th Army Corps, in the preparation and execution of the 4th Army Corps attack at St. Mihiel. Subsequently he was one of the principal officers to organize the 2d Army Headquarters.

Major, Infantry, U. S. Army.

He showed rare ability in the preliminary organization of the American liaison service and wide comprehension of the importance of forward interallied liaison. While attached to French divisions in liaison with the 1st American Division he performed exacting duties of a delicate nature with energy and tact, achieving signal success. He aided materially in the maintenance of cordial relations between the French and American military authorities, his service being continuously marked by ability, sound judgment, and devotion to duty. to duty.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General, U. S. Army.
In connection with the administration of the selective-service law during the war, he originated and put into execution an excellent system of classification of registrants and his sound judgment and ability for analysis contributed materially to the success of the department.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As assistant in charge of military engineering in the office of the Chief Engineer,
American Expeditionary Forces, and later as division engineer of the 1st Division, he displayed unusual ability and professional attainments of a high order. As editor of the Engineer Field Notes, and as the author of a large number of them, his clear conception of the functions and duties of Engineer troops was most firmly impressed upon the combat engineers and contributed in a signal manner to their marked efficiency. By his rare technical skill and knowledge, keen adaptability to all conditions, he contributed materially to the success of the 1st Division in a position of great responsibility and in times and circumstances of the gravest importance.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army. Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.

As delegate of the special railway commission, Director General of Military Railways and Deputy Director General of Transportation. In all of these positions he has demonstrated exceptional ability and untiring energy. The foundation of the Army Transportation Service was largely due to his vision and remarkable judgment. He has shown a degree of devotion to duty far above any calls which would have been made upon him by military authority.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services while in charge of the general supply depot, New York City.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As officer in charge of the construction of the National Guard camps he displayed qualities of leadership, energy, administrative ability, and devotion to duty which rendered possible the housing of the National Guard troops in an incredibly short space of time. Later he served with conspicuous success as chief of the procurement branch of the Construction Division of the Army.

WILLIAMS, ALEXANDER E.....R.—Little River Academy, N. C. B.—Cumberland, N. C. G. O. No. 43, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As chief quartermaster, Army of Occupation, he displayed untiring zeal and administrative ability of the highest order in the organization and operation of the supply system of the 3d Army. By his sound judgment, initiative, and resourcefulness he solved many perplexing problems of supply and finance in a most satisfactory manner, thereby effecting a great saving for the United States.

Major general, U. S. Army.

An officer of high professional attainments, who rendered particularly valuable services in the organization of the Ordnance Department of the American Expeditionary Forces and exhibited unusual ability in arranging for the procurement of ordnance material and ammunition for the American Army in Europe.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He served with distinction as chief of staff of the 36th Division from the date of its organization to the date of departure from France. He performed his manifold duties with unflagging energy and notable ability, rendering services of striking value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.

As commanding officer, 320th Field Artillery, 82d Division, in the organization and training of the regiment and in its very successful operations against the enemy in the Aisne-Marne, St. Mihiel, and Meuse-Argonne offensives he displayed tireless energy, keen devotion to duty, and eminent technical skill as an artillerist, gave most effective support to the Infantry of the 82d and 80th Divisions, and very materially contributed to the successes attained by those units.

WILLIAMS, HERBERT O.....R-Tupelo, Miss.
B-Fulton, Miss
G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As an officer of the Inspector General's Department his rare efficiency, fearlessness, and good judgment in the inspection of large commands and in the investigation and solution of intricate problems presenting unusual difficulties have been of the greatest value and have materially facilitated the operations of the War Department and of the Army during the emergency.

WILLIAMS, RICHARD H.
R—Jersey City Heights, N. J.
B—Jersey City, N. J.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As G-2, 1st Army Corps, he displayed rare ability in the organization and administration of that section, being tireless in the energy with which he handled each problem during successive offensives. Later as G-2, 3d Army, he achieved brilliant successes when confronted with duties of a most exacting and difficult nature, accomplishing all by his zeal and ability.

WILLIAMS, RICHARD H., Jr. ... R-Mendham, N. J. B-New York, N. Y. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
In the remount service, American Expeditionary Forces, through his farsightedness he saw the necessity for and by his untiring effort succeeded in expediting the obtaining of animals for the American Expeditionary Forces that were of vital importance for our Army.

WILLIAMSON, SYDNEY B.....R.-New York, N. Y.
B.-Lexington, Va.
G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
As section engineer, intermediate section west, Services of Supply, France, he constructed hospitals, depots, camps, and miscellaneous structures. He displayed rare technical skill, broad vision and business experience, untiring energy and devotion to duty, contributing in a material way to the successful operations of the American forces in France.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.

He served with marked efficiency as director of the trench artillery school at Langres and commandant of the trench artillery center at Vitrey. Later, as chief of the trench artillery section in the office of the Chief of Artillery, American Expeditionary Forces, he initiated the plans of and controlled the training of this important branch of the Artillery arm with exceptional ability, rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Wills, Davis B R—Charlottesville, Va. B—Charlottesville, Va. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. Major, U. S. Marine Corps.

As chief paymaster of the United States Marine Corps, he performed arduous and complex duties under most trying conditions. Displaying rare initiative and administrative ability, he organized and conducted his department in such a manner as to relieve combat units of a mass of detail and administrative work. He was tireless in devotion to duty, able in its execution.

Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, 92d Division, from Sept. 9 to Nov. 9, 1918; as deputy chief of staff, 1st Army, A merican Expeditionary Forces, from Nov. 11, 1918, to Apr. 20, 1919, and as acting chief of staff for various periods, his duties involving the direction of reequipment and supply of the 1st Army units which marched into Germany with the 3d American Army; the direction of the policing of the 1st Army's battlefields and the withdrawal of the 1st Army to rest areas; planning and supervising the training, recreation, and vocational training of the 1st Army while in rest areas awaiting transportation home; as assistant to chief of staff, G-4, Services of Supply, from April, 1919, to August, 1919, and assistant chief of staff, G-4, Services of Supply, from August, 1919, and assistant chief of staff, G-4, Services of Supply, from August, 1919, to October, 1919, he supervised the liquidation and disposal of the vast supplies involved in the dissolution of the Services of Supply. He displayed rare initiative, outstanding administrative and executive ability, and unremitting devotion to duty in these positions of grave responsibility, contributing signally to the successful repatriation of the American Army and the prompt and effective liquidation of the affairs of the American Expeditionary Forces.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As surgeon in charge of medical research laboratories, Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces, since September, 1918, he has rendered most distinguished service. His thorough knowledge of the psychology of flying officers and the expert tests applied efficiently and intelligently under his direction have done much to decrease the number of accidents at the flying schools in France and have established standards and furnished indications which will be of inestimable value in all future work to determine the qualifications of pilots and observers. The data collected by him is an evidence of his ability, his painstaking care, and of his thorough qualifications for the important work intrusted to him. The new methods, instruments, and appliances devised under his direction for testing candidates for pilots and observers have attracted the attention and been the subject of enthusiastic comment by officers of the allied services and will be of great importance in promoting the safety and more rapid development of aerial navigation. the safety and more rapid development of aerial navigation.

WILSON, WILLIAM H.....R—Cincinnati, Ohio.
B—Mount Vernon, N. Y.
G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

WINANS, EDWIN B.
R—Hamburg, Mich.
B—Hamburg, Mich.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

WINGATE, GEORGE ALBERT____ R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Infantry, U. S. Army.

As assistant chief of staff in charge of the administrative section of the General Staff, first of a division, later a corps, and finally of an army, he displayed marked ability in every capacity in which he was employed. By his thorough knowledge and grasp of his duties he became a material factor in the successful operations of his several departments.

Vice admiral, U. S. Navy.

While stationed at Brest, in the capacity of commander of the United States

Naval Forces in France, where he showed a keen appreciation of the necessity for the closest cooperation between the military and naval services, his valuable cooperation has to a great extent made possible the prompt functioning of the port of Brest.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As Chief Surgeon of the American Expeditionary Forces in Siberia, he organized, supervised, and perfected the organization of the Medical Department in Siberia so as to meet successfully the complex sanitary conditions confronting the American troops. To his excellent judgment, untiring efforts, and high professional attainments is largely due the splendid efficiency which characterized the work of the Medical Department under his control. He handled in a masterful manner the organization of available sanitary forces to combat a threatened typhus epidemic in eastern Siberia. He rendered conspicuous service of signal worth to the Government in a position of great responsibility.

Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.

As assistant to the director of laboratories and infectious diseases, American Expeditionary Forces, he organized most efficiently a pathological service throughout the American Expeditionary Forces in France that was of inestimable value to the medical and surgical services.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army, In the organization and administration of the cable service of the War Depart-ment in the United States, thereby enabling that service to meet the excessive demands made upon it during the war.

Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
He displayed extensive scientific knowledge, together with a keen practical grasp of conditions, as artillery inspector with the first battalion of American Railway Artillery in action against the enemy. As a member of the training section, he was at all times energetic and tactful in the supervision of training of railway, tractor, trench, and antiaircraft artillery. As its executive officer, he organized and conducted an item of the general system of the training section, being tireless in devotion to his important duties.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.

He showed marked efficiency and excellent judgment while commanding the 64th Infantry Brigade, 32d Division, in the actions at the second Battle of the Marne, in the attack and capture of Juvigny, and in the operations at Bois-de-la-Morine, Bois-de-Chene See, and Bantheville Woods. In these actions, by his tactical ability, he was always master of the situation and executed his plans with a confidence that was an inspiration to his troops.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
In command of the 52d Field Artillery Brigade, 27th Division, he served with marked distinction in the St. Mihlel operation, displaying military attainments of a high order. In the Meuse-Argonne offensive he proved himself possessed of exceptionally tactical ability, working with untiring energy that the Infantry might have all the advantages of Artillery support. With sound judgment, unusual foresight, and wide comprehension of conditions and facilities available, he conducted operations in that offensive with brilliant success, repeatedly solving the difficult problems incident thereto.

Colonel, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.
As commanding officer of the 306th Field Artillery, 77th Division, he displayed high qualities of leadership. Maintaining a high standard of efficiency and morale in his regiment, he constantly kept his command in close proximity to the attacking infantry, furnishing it accurate and timely support, furthering its rapid advance, and contributing to the successes gained.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As commander of the 177th Infantry Brigade and later of the 89th Division, he displayed military attainments of a high order and achieved signal successes. In the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives he accompanied the assault ing battalions and placed them on their objectives, inspiring all by his personal courage and gaining their confidence by his exceptional tactical skill and ability as a leader. At all times he was tireless in energy, showing keen judgment and initiative in handling difficult situations.

Colonel, Judge Advocate General's Department, U. S. Army.
He served with distinction as judge advocate of the 42d Division and of the 1st Army. As commanding officer of the 110th Infantry, 2sth Division, he displayed marked qualities of leadership. Later, as judge advocate of the Services of Supply, and as chief of the rents, requisitions, and claims service, he displayed professional attainments and judgment of a high order, contributing, in no small degree, to the success of the operations during the war and afterwards in the liquidation of our affairs in France.

Winslow, E. Eveleth.
R-Boston, Mass.
B-Washington, D. C.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
While in charge of the military section of the office of the Chief of Engineers during the early period of the war his services were marked by the energy, zeal, and good judgment which were essential to the procurement of personnel and equipment and the organization and training of engineer organizations for oversea service.

WINTER, FRANCIS A.
R—St. Louis, Mo.
B—St. Francisville, La.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army.
As chief surgeon of the lines of communication, American Expeditionary Forces, from June to December, 1917, he organized medical units at the base ports and in camps in France. He established large supply depots, from which medical supplies were distributed to the American Expeditionary Forces, and by keen foresight and administrative ability made these supplies at all times available for our armies.

Wise, Frederic May R-Baltimore, Md. B-Brooklyn, N. Y. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920. Colonel, U. S. Marine Corps.

He commanded with skill, ability, and gallantry the 59th Infantry, 4th Division, from Sept. 4, 1918, to Jan. 23, 1919. During the St. Mihiel offensive he personally directed the attack of his regiment against Manheulles and Fresnes-en-Woevre, which resulted in the capture of the enemy's line in this area. On Sept. 28, 1918, he directed the attack of his regiment which resulted in the capture of the Bois-de-Brieulles. From Sept. 26 to Oct. 21, 1918, his personal courage and aggressive attitude was an important factor in the successful operations of the 8th Infantry Brigade against Bois-de-Brieulles, Bois-du-Fays, Bois-du-Fayalaumont, Bois-de-Fut, and Bois-de-Fort. He has rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

WITTENMYER, EDMUND______R—Dunbarton, Ohio.
B—Buford, Ohio.
G. O. No. 12, W. D., 1919.

Major general, U. S. Army.
He served with marked distinction as brigade commander in the ArgonneMeuse offensive and as division commander in the final operations in the Toul sector, and in both capacities, by his untiring efforts and breadth of vision, proved himself to be an able leader.

Wolf, Paul A.... R—Kewanee, Ill. B—Kewanee, Ill. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, U. S. Army. In the attacks on Bois-de-Forges, St. Hilaire, Bois-de-Warville, and Bois-des Hautes-Epines, France, in September and October, 1918, the conspicuous success of the brigade was due to his splendid leadership and skill

WOLFE, EDWIN P.... R-New York, N. Y. B-Page County, Iowa. G. O. No. 69, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
He systematized and controlled the distribution of medical supplies with so much foresight and good judgment that his service was able to meet promptly all the emergencies in the United States as they occurred.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As officer in charge of insurance matters, cantonment division, Quartermaster General's Office, by his unusual constructive ability, foresight, and familiarity with large financial problems he rendered conspicuous service resulting in the saving of large sums to the Government. As a member of the committee on labor of the advisory commission of the Council of National Defense, he again rendered invaluable services in the preparation of necessary legislation to provide for the dependents of enlisted personnel of the Army and Navy, which later became the war risk insurance act. In October, 1917, he demonstrated exceptional ability and resourcefulness in the organization and operation of the War Risk Insurance Bureau in France and England. Later, as assistant director and executive officer in the office of the Director of Finance, his thorough knowledge of financial problems proved of the greatest assistance to the Director of Finance and of inestimable value to the Government.

Wood, Leonard.
R—Boston, Mass.
B—Winchester, N. H.
G. O. No. 47, W. D., 1919.
Medal of honor also awarded.

Major general, U. S. Army.

As a department, division, and camp commander during the war, he has displayed qualities of leadership and professional attainments of a high order in the administration and training of his various commands, and has furthered in every way during the war the system of officers' training schools.

Wood, Robert E.R.—Kansas City, Mo.B.—Kansas City, Mo.G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1919.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services in connection with the reorganization and operation of the Services of Supply of the Army.

Brigadier general, U. S. Army. For services as senior assistant to the Inspector General of the Army.

WOOD, WINTHROP S....R.—Farmington, Me. B.—Washington, D. C. G. O. No. 38, W. D., 1922.

Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.

In charge of the general supply depot, Jeffersonville, Ind., from April, 1917, to May, 1918, the successful organization, development, and administration of the system at that important depot for the supply of clothing and general equipment were largely due to his great energy, foresight, and marked executive ability. Later, as quartermaster, Base Section No. 6, American Expeditiouary Forces, from August, 1918, to January, 1919, by his administrative ability and untiring zeal he rendered conspicuous services in the improvement and development of the organization of the supply system at this important depot.

WOODRUFF, JAMES A.....R.—Burke, Vt.
B.—Fort Shaw, Mont.
G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He organized and commanded the 10th Forestry Engineers with marked ability.
In spite of the difficult situations confronting him he developed the Forestry Service to a marked degree of excellence. By his great energy and devotion to duty he rendered service of the highest character to the Government.

Woods, Arthur. R—New York, N. Y. B—Boston, Mass. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923. Colonel, Air Service, U. S. Army.
As inspector of schools, Signal Corps, and then as chief of Personnel, Division of Military Acronautics, Air Service, by his excentive ability, clear conception, and broad mental grasp, he handled with conspicuous success many perplexing problems in the organization and administration of the system for assigning personnel. From November, 1918, until January, 1919, as assistant director of military aeronautics, in the solution of many new and intricate problems concerning demobilization and reorganization his work was characterized by sound judgment and untiring zeal. Later as special assistant to the Secretary of War in matters pertaining to securing employment for discharged soldiers he rendered valuable service in placing great numbers of these men in lucrative positions.

Director of Real Estate Service.

He rendered invaluable service to the War Department in the acquisition, either by purchase, condemnation, requisition, donation, or lease, of all real estate required for the use of the Army during the World War, also in the disposal of such real estate as was no longer required. By his technical knowledge, broad judgment, and energetic action valuable results were obtained.

Wooldridge, Jesse W.
R—San Francisco, Calif.
B—Hopkinsville, Ky.
G. O. No. 35, W. D., 1920.
Distinguished-service cross also
awarded.

Captain, Infantry, U. S. Army.

Near Mezy, France, July 15, 1918, when attacked by portions of three enemy regiments, Captain Wooldridge, by exceptional skill and ability, so inspired his company that he defeated these units and drove them by successive counter attacks from the sectors of his regiment and that of an adjoining regiment After his company had suffered a loss of 70 per cent by casualties, he organized a platoon from cooks, mess attendants, runners, and Stokes mortar men, and led it in attack upon the last enemy assault wave, which he defeated. During these successive encounters his company captured over 400 of the enemy and broke the strong enemy attempt to cross the Marne in this sector.

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army.
He served with credit as commanding officer of the 14th Railway Engineers during the operations of that regiment on the British front. Subsequently, while corps engineer of the 3d Army Corps, by his energy, foresight, and skill in accomplishing important engineering works, he contributed materially to the successful operations of his corps. Later, when appointed engineer of the 3d Army, he performed important duties in a most creditable manner.

WORCESTER, PHILIP H.
R-Portland, Me.
B-Norfolk, Va.
G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army.
As ordnance officer, Army Artillery, 1st Army, during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives, by his untiring energy and loval devotion to duty he organized and successfully administered the ammunition and ordnance supplies of the Army Artillery. He at all times displayed sound judgment and military attainments of a high order. He has rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

WRIGHT, JOHN W.....R.—Washington, D. C B.—Kirkwood, Mo. G. O. No. 103, W. D., 1919. Colonel (Infantry), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
As assistant chief of staff, G-3, at Headquarters, Services of Supply, he was charged with the important duty of directing the movement of troop arrivals, billeting, and the supply of initial equipment to units. He at all times displayed indefatigable zeal and administrative ability of a high order, rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major general, U. S. Army.
He commanded in turn the 35th Division, the 3d, 5th, and 7th Army Corps, under the 8th French Army in the Vosgos Mountains, and later commanded the 89th Division in the St. Mihiel offensive and in the final operations on the Meuse River, where he proved himself to-be an energetic and aggressive leader.

 Colonel (Coast Artillery Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army. In assisting in organizing the first group of General Staff officers that ultimately developed into the operations branch and the equipment branch of the operations division of the General Staff. As chief assistant and later as head of the equipment branch his services were conspicuously useful to the Government and to the Army.

Major (Signal Corps), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.
For services as chief of the communication section of the Military Intelligence Division, War Department General Staff, during the World War. Director of the nonferrous metals section, War Industries Board. In connection with the operations of the War Industries Board during the World War, in his position as director of one of the sections of the board he rendered, through his broad vision, distinguished capacity, and business ability, services of inestimable value in marshaling the industrial forces of the Nation and mobilizing its economic resources—marked factors in assisting to make military success attainable. As director of nonferrous metals, he rendered, through his untiring efforts and devotion to duty, exceptionally valuable service to the War Department in connection with the procurement and supply of copper, lead, zinc, and other nonferrous metals for the Army. Colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army. He has, by his constant application, tireless energy, and foresight, lowered the nonefficiency rate of combat organizations, due to certain contagious diseases far below prewar anticipations, and has thereby aided in the conservation of man power to a degree never before attainable. B—San Antonio, Tex. G. O. No. 50, W. D., 1919. Colonel (Corps of Engineers), General Staff Corps, U. S. Army.

He served as representative of the Engineer Department and later as the principal assistant to the chief of the 4th Section, General Staff, American Expeditionary Forces. He performed duties of the greatest importance in connection with construction projects of the Army. By his high professional attainments and tireless energy, his sound judgment and logical recommendations on questions of construction, supply, and transportation he materially assisted in the successes of our forces in the field. In all matters he displayed Youngberg, Gilbert A.... R—Cannon Falls, Minn. B—Bellcreek, Minn. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1919. remarkable ability and rendered services of the highest character to the For services as advisory engineer in the designing and production of standard motor vehicles adopted by the United States of America. Colonel, Quartermaster Corps, U. S. Army.
As quartermaster, Base Section No. 2, Bordeaux, a position of great responsibility, duo to his long quartermaster experience, marked ability, and knowledge of the methods and standards of supply, he performed the numerous duties of his important office with great success. He has rendered service of much value to the United States. Zalinski, Moses Gray.....R—Rochester, N. Y.
B—Seneca Falls, N. Y.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921. Lieutenant colonel, Chemical Warfare Service, U. S. Army.
As chief liaison officer of the Chemical Warfare Service with the French forces, his untiring energy, thorough familiarity with the French language and methods, and his superior technical ability enabled him to gather an enormous amount of detailed information concerning the manufacture, handling, and use of gases, which were of inestimable value to our Government in the manufacture and supply of chemical warfare materials in the United States. ZANETTI, JOAQUIN E.....R.—New York, N. Y.
B.—San Domingo, West Indics.
G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. ZIEGAUS, IRVIN W....R.—Olympia, Wash. B.—Sharon, Wis. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1922. Captain, Infantry, U. S. Army. As executive officer in charge of the selective draft in Washington, by his unusual executive ability, rare tact and skill, great initiative and resourcefulness exercised at times under most trying and novel conditions which arose in connection with the administration of the sclective service act, he achieved a pronounced and conspicuous success in the performance of difficult and highly responsible duties, thereby rendering services of great value to the Government.

Lieutenant colonel, Medical Corps, U. S. Army.
While acting as sanitary inspector of the 2d Army ne organized, perfected, and administered with extraordinary and exceptional success a plan of military sanitation and epidemic-disease control.

BELGIANS

[Awarded for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in a position of great responsibility, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

ALBERT	King of the Belgians.  To this distinguished soldier, Commander in Chief of the Belgian Army, this medal is presented as an expression of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army for the distinguished and patriotic service which he has rendered to the common cause on the battle fields of Europe.
ARNOULD, HENRY	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army. He served with marked distinction as chief of artillery of the Belgian Army, rendering invaluable service in the conduct of operations against the enemy. At all times he showed zeal and devotion to duty, his high military attainments having marked effect in the successes achieved by the allied armies.
BARBIER, PHILIPPE R—Belgium. G. O. No. 29, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant, Belgian Army.  For services rendered the United States Army while serving as acting military attaché to the Belgian Legation, Washington, D. C.
BERNHEIM, LOUISR—Belgium. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Licutenant general, Belgian Army.  In command of the 1st Belgian Army Division he achieved most valuable results by his brilliant leadership. He prosecuted the operations against the enemy with judgment and vigor and his service was marked by signal success.
BIEBUYCK, A	Lieutenant general, commanding the 6th Belgian Army Corps, Belglan Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
Cabra, Alphonse F. E	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army. For services with the American forces in Germany.
CORNELLIE, EMILE F
CUMONT, EUGENE F. M. H.—————————————————————————————————	Major, Belgian Army, Belgian representative on the Military Board of Allied Supply.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DE CEUNINCK, ARMAND	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army.  In command of the 4th Belgian Army Division he conducted operations against the enemy with signal success, displaying remarkable qualities of leadership and untiring devotion to his manifold duties. His services were of inestimable value.
DE GOLS, ISADORE	Major, Belgian Army.  As a member of the Interallied Commission on the Repatriation of Prisoners of War he has rendered highly meritorious service to the United States and allied Governments in connection with the repatriation of American and allied prisoners released by the armistice. He always displayed a cheefful and active interest in all that pertained to their welfare and rendered sympathetic and practical cooperation.
DELOBBE, H	General major, Belgian Army. As chief of a staff section at Belgian General Headquarters he rendered most distinguished services. He displayed the highest military attainments and great zeal in the direction of operations against the enemy.
DE PAGE, ANTOINE R—Belgium, G. O. No. 72, W. D., 1920.	Colonel, surgeon, Belgian Army.  A distinguished surgeon and one of the pioneers in developing the modern treatment of battle casualties, he placed his eminent talents and extensive experience at the disposition of the medical department of the American Expeditionary Forces, and at all times lent his cooperation toward improving the treatment of the wounded. At his hospital at Le Panne, Belgium, he took an active personal interest in training medical officers of the American Army in the advances being made in battle surgery. Under his able supervision and guidance the observation and experience gained by these officers eventually resulted in saving the lives of many American wounded.
DEVEZE, ALBERT J. C	For services rendered to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany.
1004440 05 51	701

D'OULTREMONT, GUY DR.—Belgium. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Commandant, Belgian Army.  The same high character of services rendered by him from 1914 to 1918 with the Belgian Artillery in the field were again revealed during the period which he was attached to the Belgian Mission at American General Headquarters. As principal assistant to the chief of the Belgian Mission at American General Headquarters he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. By able advice and sound judgment, coupled with loyal support, he assisted us in all problems presented to him.
DRUBBEL, HONORE R—Belgium. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army. In command of the 2d Belgian Army Division he showed eminent qualities of leadership, at all times using his genius for military tactics to the best advantage in the operations against the enemy. His brilliant achievements had an important bearing upon the successful conduct of the war.
Du Bois, Augusto, D. J. A. M	Colonel, Belgian Army, Chief of Staff, Belgian Army of Occupation. For services rendered to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany.
GILLAIN, C. C. V	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army, Chief of the General Staff of the Belgian
R-Belgium. G. O. No. 111, W. D., 1919.	Army.  As an expression to him of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army for the distinguished and patriotic services which he has rendered to the common cause in which he has been associated on the battle fields of Europe.
GREINDL, LEON M	General major, Belgian Army.  As chief of a staff section at Belgian General Headquarters he rendered invaluable service in the direction of the most important engineering operations. Confronted by stupendous tasks he performed all with distinction, showing exact scientific knowledge and great zeal in the performance of his arduous duties.
HEMELEERS-SHENLEY, LEON A. H R-Belgium. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Captain, Belgian Army.  As principal assistant to the chief of the Belgian Mission at American General Headquarters he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. By able advice and sound judgment, coupled with loyal support, he assisted us in all problems presented to him. Zealous in his efforts and wholehearted in cooperation, he at all times promoted the friendly relations between the Belgians and Americans.
JACGUES, JULES M. A	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army, in command of the 3d Belgian Army Division.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause, in which the United States has been engaged.
JUNGBLUTH, HARRY R-Belgium. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army. As Adjutant General, Chief of the Military Household of the King he occupied with distinction one of the most important offices in the Belgian Army. He displayed the highest military attainments and his sound advice was of inestimable value in the prosecution of the war against the enemy.
LEMAN, GEORGES	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army.  To this distinguished officer this medal is presented as an expression of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army for the distinguished and patriotic services which he has rendered to the common cause on the battle fields of Europe.
Maglinse, Henry HR.—Belgium. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	General major, Belgian Army.  As chief of a staff section at Belgian General Headquarters he rendered invaluable services in the direction of operations against the enemy. At all times he displayed the highest military attainments, untiring energy, and zeal in the performance of his distinguished duties.
Mahieu, Louis	General major, Belgian Army.  As Military Governor of the Province of Antwerp he has rendered conspicuous service to the United States. His hearty cooperation was of the greatest value to our forces in the establishment of American Base Section No. 9.
Merchie, Sylvian R—Belgium. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	General major, Belgian Army.  As chief of staff in the office of the Belgian Secretary of War he rendered most important service in the prosecution of operations against the enemy. It is high professional attainments furthered his rapid promotion in active service with troops, fitting him for the distinguished duties to which he was called later.
MICHEL, AUGUSTIN ER.—Belgium. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army. In command of the Belgian Army of Occupation he performed his important duties with the greatest distinction, at all times displaying marked qualities of leadership and sound judgment at critical periods.
OSTERRIETH, LEONR—Belgium. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1919.	Major, Belgian Army. For services rendered the United States Army while serving as chief of the Belgian Military Mission to the United States and acting military attaché to the Belgian Legation, Washington, D. C.

Ruquor, L. H	Lieutenant general, Belgian Army, in command of the 5th Belgian Army Division.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
SEGERS, PAUL	Minister of Transportation, Belgium. Instrumental in the cession by the Belgian Government of steam motive power at a time when the lack of locomotives was a grave and serious handicap to the successful operations of the American Expeditionary Forces, he assisted in an important and conspicuous way in the rapid and efficient functioning of the lines of communication of the American Army.
TILKENS, AUGUST	Colonel, Belgian Army.  After serving with distinction in the command of troops he rendered most valuable services as adde-de-camp to the King of the Belgians. As member of the King's military household he showed high military attainments, and his advice proved uniformly sound.
TINANT, JULES T. A. E. L. R—Belgium. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Major, Belgian Army, Chief, Belgian Mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
VAN DE VYVERE, AR.—Belgium. G. O. No. 9, W. D., 1923.	Minister of Finance, Belgium.  A grave situation having arisen with reference to a lack of steam motive power for the American Expeditionary Forces, Mr. Van de Vyvere succeeded in providing the American forces through the Belgian Government with a large number of locomotives, thus contributing in a conspicuous way to the successful operations of the allied cause.
WARNANT, URSMAR A	Captain, Belgian Army. For services as chief of the Belgian Mission attached to the American forces in France.

BRITISH

[Awarded for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in a position of great responsibility, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]
ADYE, JOHN R-England. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920.	Major general, British Army. His services were of conspicuous merit as a member of the committee on return of prisoners of war. His large experience in the Near East, combined with rare judgment and quiet forcefulness, made his work especially valuable in securing the rapid return of American and allied prisoners and in alleviating their condition.
ALLENBY, EDMUND H. H. R.—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	General, British Army.  The American Army will ever remember his valiant services as commander of the 3d British Army in France from 1914 to 1917 and for his marvelous successes in Palestine, rendering services of distinction to the allied cause.
ANDERSON, STUART M	Brigadier general, British Army, Royal Artillery, 1st Australian Division, British Expeditionary Forces.  The accurate and highly efficient support by the Artillery under his command contributed materially to the successful assaults on the Hindenburg line by the 30th U. S. Division, Sept. 29, 1918. The part played by him in achieving that success has won for him the deepest gratitude and admiration on the part of the American officers and soldiers with whom he was cooperating during the great advance.
ATKINSON, CHARLES F	Major, British Army, instructor, Army Intelligence School, American Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
Auld, Samuel J. M	Major, 4th Battalion, Royal Berkshire Regiment, British Army, For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as liaison officer between the British and American Chemical Warfare Services.
Balfour, Alfred GR-England. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.	Brigadier general, British Army. As commander of the embarkation area of the port of Southampton, by his earnest spirit of cooperation with the American authorities at the port of Southampton, he rendered valuable assistance, offering them every facility at his command for the proper handling of the important problem of troop shipments.
BEADON, ROGERS H	Colonel, British Army, British section, Supreme War Council. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
BESSELL-BROWNE, ALFRED J	Brigadier general, British Army, 5th Australian Division, British Expeditionary Forces. The relations of the American and Australian forces, cooperating with each other, were always marked with the utmost harmony, but never was this spirit more clearly manifested than during the period from Oct. 4c to 19, 1918, when the 30th U. S. Division went forward in attack against the enemy supported by artillery under his command. To his consummate technical skill and unflagging energy is due much credit for the successful results attained in these operations.
BETHELL, HUGH K.R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army. He commanded with distinction the 66th British Division, with which the 27th American Division was affiliated during its training period. By his broadminded policy, personal interest, and careful supervision he gave great assistance to the division, cnabling the American troops to readily adapt themselves to the methods and conditions of service with a foreign army.
Birch, James F. N. R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army, chief of artillery, British Expeditionary Forces.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
BIRDWOOD, WILLIAM R.—England. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919.
BLAKE, DAVID V. J	Major, British Army, commanding officer, 3d Squadron, Australian Flying Corps, British Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Major general, director of quarterings, British Army.
For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

794

Brigadier general British Army

BONHAM-CARTER, CHARLESR—England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army.  As general officer in charge of training at British General Headquarters during the period the 2d American Corps was in the British Expeditionary Forces, he rendered exceptional service to the U.S. Army. His knowledge of training methods was extensive, and with loyal cooperation he gave us the benefit of his experience.
Bowdber, Basil W. B	Lieutenant colonel, British Army. While he was on duty in the intelligence section at British General Headquarters and as chief of the information section, his assistance and advice in inspecting and training American officers were of distinct advantage to the American Expeditionary Forces. He displayed military attainments of a high order, and at all times cooperated with the American military authorities whole-heartedly.
BOWLEY, ANTIONY A	Major general, British Army.  An eminent consulting surgeon, and while serving with the British Expeditionary Forces in France, with untiring zeal he devoted his time and energy toward cooperating with and unreservedly placing at the disposal of the American Expeditionary Forces his eminent talents, broad experience, and knowledge of general conditions in preventing wastage among our forces from wounds and disease. His research work in wound bacteriology and evacuation resulted in the saving of many lives among our sick and wounded.
BOYCE, CHARLES E	Major, British Army, attached as staff officer, units of Royal Field Artillery, serving with the 2d Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
BRIDGES, GEORGE T. MR.—England. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army. For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as the military representa- tive of the British Mission to the United States (April, 1917), and later (1918) as chief of British Military Missions to the United States.
BURGESS, WILLIAM L. H	Brigadier general, British Army.  He commanded with distinction the 4th Australian Artillery Division while it was in support of the 27th American Division during the operations near St. Souplet, east of the La Selle River. His consummate skill as an artillerist and forceful determination in keeping his batteries well to the front were most potent factors in the successes achieved. The services which he rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces were of inestimable value.
BURTCHAELL, CHARLES HR-England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army. As Director General of Medical Service, British Expeditionary Forces, he displayed untiring zeal, eminent talents, and broad experience in providing adequate hospitalization and evacuation facilities for the sick and wounded of the American troops serving with the British Armies. His individual efforts counted largely in enabling the American Medical Service to function efficiently.
Bush, W. A	Captain, British Army, instructor, American Expeditionary Forces Gas Defense School, Hanlon Field, France.  At the request of the American Expeditionary Forces he was detailed as instructor in gas defense, and rendered services of extraordinary merit at the school at Hanlon Field. Largely as the result of his energy, skill, and exact knowledge the school accomplished a most important mission, providing a course of instruction which, when put in practice in the field, prevented many casualties.
BUTLER, RICHARD H. KR-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army, commanding 3d Army Corps, British Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
BYNG, JULIAN H. G	General, British Army, commanding 3d Army, British Expeditionary Forces.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
CAMPBELL, RONALD B-R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel, British Army, deputy inspector of bayonet and physical Training, British Expeditionary Forces. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
CARTER, EVAN E	Major general, British Army, Director General of Forage and Supplies, British Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
CASSEL, FELIX	As Judge Advocate General of the British forces, he ably assisted the American authorities with whom he came in contact. By his sound advice and able counsel on all questions affecting military justice he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
CHARTERIS, JOHN R—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Colonel, British Army, bureau of intelligence, British Expeditionary Forces. As brigadier general of intelligence at British General Headquarters he rendered most valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces during the early period of the organization of the staff by placing every facility at the disposal of the American staff officers who were sent to British General Headquarters for the purpose of instruction. He displayed military attainments of a high order, tireless energy, and marked zeal in the performance of his exacting duties. He was at all times tactful and proved himself a loyal friend.

He rendered the Allied cause service of inestimable value. As British Minister Churchill, Winston..... of Munitions, he was confronted with a task of great magnitude. With ability of a high order, energy, and marked devotion to duty, he handled with great success the trying problems with which he was constantly confronted. In the performance of his great task he rendered valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces. R—England. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. CLARKE, TRAVERS E.... Lieutenant general, British Army, quartermaster general, British Expedi-R—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Fer services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. Lieutenant colonel, British Army. While a member of the intelligence section at British General Headquarters he CORNWALL, JAMES H. M..... R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. rendered us very valuable and distinguished services by his hearty cooperation in placing at the disposal of the American officers sent to British General Headquarters his experience and profound knowledge regarding the work of intelligence. He was at all times tactful and helpful, proving himself a loyal friend. Captain, British Army.
As liaison officer at general headquarters, Base Section No. 3, in London, he performed his duties with great tact, skill, and indefatigable zeal. The harmony which constantly characterized the relations of the American authorities with the British War Office was due, in no small degree, to his faithful COVELL, FRANK C.....R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. services. General, quartermaster general to the forces, British Army.
For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. Lieutenant, British Navy, commanding His Majesty's destroyer Mounsey. For rescuing 7 officers and 313 men of the American forces at sea on Oct. 16, 1918. CRAVEN, FRANCIS W.____ R—England. G. O. No. 27, W. D., 1919. Major general, British Army.

The services General Crookshank rendered as Director General of Transportation of the British forces were of great merit. He heartily cooperated with the American authorities and gave much assistance to our Transportation Corps. He lent every effort to further those friendly relations which characterized the transportation services of the British and American Armics. CROOKSHANK, SYDNEY D'A..... R—England. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920. CUNINGHAME, THOMAS A. A. M..... Lieutenant colonel, British Army, instructor, Army Staff College, American Expeditionary Forces.
For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. CURRIE, ARTHUR W....R-England. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant general, British Army, commanding Canadian Corps, British Expeditionary Forces.
For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. Major, British Army.

As director of transports for the British Ministry of Shipping at the port of New York during the movement of troops overseas. Lieutenant colonel, British Army, forage and supplies, British Expeditionary DAVIDSON, GILBERT.... R-England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. He extended whole-hearted cooperation to our supply procurement agencies, rendering very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. By his efforts and devotion to the American interests, great quantities of necessary supplies were made available for our troops. DAVIDSON, JOHN II..... Major general, British Army, general staff operations, British Expeditionary Forces.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant general, British Army.

As Secretary of the British War Office and member of the Army Council, by his great energy and marked military attainments, he rendered services of signal worth to the common cause. DAVIES, FRANCIS J....R—England. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. Lieutenant colonel, British Arm..

As head of the staff duties section of the General Staff at General Headquarters American Expeditionary Forces, he was an important factor in the victorious termination of the war by his brilliant military attainments and unremitting zeal. He constantly manifested the utmost consideration for the American units attached to the British Armies, aiding materially in their training and thereby rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. DAWNAY, GUY______R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. DEEDES, CHARLES P..... Brigadier general, British Arm As Deputy Director of Staff Duties of the British Army, by his tact, marked ability, and spirit of wholehearted cooperation with American officers on duty with the British Army staff, ably assisting them in every endeavor, he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. R-England. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. DELANO-OSBORNE, OSBORNE H..... Brigadier general, director of movements (transportation), British Army. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. R—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

DRAKE, JOHN	Lieutenant colonel, British Army. As chief of the intelligence bureau section at British General Headquarters he at all times cooperated with the officers of the U.S. Army, and by his sound advice and cooperation rendered most valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. He was tireless in his devotion to his important duties, proving tactful and ready to come to our assistance at all times.
ELLES, HUGH J	Major general, British Army, commanding Tank Corps, British Expeditionary
R—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Forces. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
EWART, RICHARD	Major general, British Army.  As senior British member of the Interallied Commission on the Repatriation of Prisoners of War he has rendered conspicuous service to the United States and the allied Governments in connection with the sustenance, care, and homeward transportation of American and allied prisoners released by the armistice. He has at all times displayed a personal interest and supervising influence which resulted in speedy and comfortable repatriation of prisoners of war.
FORBES, ARTHUR W R—England. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.	Brigadier general, British Army. As commander of the embarkation area of the port of Liverpool he gave important assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces, At all times he exhibited a spirit of zealous cooperation with the American authorities, placing all the facilities of his important office at their disposal. He rendered service of conspicuous worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.
FORD, REGINALD	Major general, British Army, British representative, military board of allied supply.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
FOULKES, CHARLES H	Brigadier general, British Army, director British Chemical Warfare Service. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
FOWKE, GEORGE H	Lieutenant general, British Army, Adjutant General, British Expeditionary Forces.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
Fowler, John S	Major general, British Army. As Director of Signals of the British Expeditionary Forces he constantly rendered us valuable assistance in connection with the supply of needed material at critical times. He aided us very materially in promoting the efficiency of our electrical communications, displaying at all times military and scientific attainments of a high order. He was energetic in our behalf, proving himself a loyal friend of the American Expeditionary Forces.
FURSE, WILLIAM TR—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army, Master General of the Ordnance, British Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
Geiger, Gerald J. P	Major, British Army.  As liaison officer of the British with the American Army, and later as chief of the British Mission at the Headquarters of the 3d Army, he has, by his tact, loyalty, and painstaking efforts, earnestly cooperated with the American authorities in handling the difficult problems which constantly arose, rendering services of great worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.
GELLIBRAND, JOHNR—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Major general, British Army. During the operations against the Hindenburg line near Ronssoy, in September, 1918, he co umanded with brilliant leadership the 3d Australian Division, operating in close liaison with the 27th American Division. The fine spirit of comradeship prevailing between the officers and soldiers of these two divisions was in no small measure a reflection of the warm spirit of cooperation which he constantly manifested and his willingness to aid the American Expeditionary Forces in every way possible.
GILES, EDWARD DR.—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel, British Army. As advisor to the training and instruction branch, war plans division, he rendered invaluable assistance in making possible the inception and successful conduct of war-time instruction at the Army War College.
GLYN, RALPH G R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Major, British Army, instructor, Army Staff College, American Expeditionary Forces. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
GOLIGHER, HUGH GR-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army. Serving as a financial officer of the British Expeditionary Forces in France by his broad experience and extraordinary administrative ability he proved a notable factor in the success of the allied cause. He was at all times at the service of the American officers, who were charged with questions of supply and finance, and by his sound advice, unfailing courtesy, and loyal spirit of cooperation rendered services of the utmost value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Goodwin, Thomas H. J. C	Lieutenant general, British Army. As Surgeon General of the British Army, he placed at the disposal of the American divisions serving with the British forces all the evacuation and hospitalization facilities at his command. His eminent skill, ability, and broad experience enabled him to extend most useful cooperation.
GREEN, ARTHUR F. U	Colonel, British Army.  He has done conspicuous service as chief of staff of the British Mission. His sound judgment, sympathetic understanding, and steadfastness of purpose contributed in large measure to the furtherance of Anglo-American understanding and to the execution of the terms of the armistice.
GUTHRIE, CONNOP	British Ministry of Shipping.  As a member of the shipping control committee his services in connection with negotiations for British tonnage in the interchange of tonnage by the War Department and the British Government have been conspicuous.
Haig, Douglas	Field Marshal, British Army, commander in chief of the British Armies in
R-England. G. O. No. 111, W. D., 1918.	France.  As an expression to him of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army, for the distinguished and patriotic services which he has rendered to the common cause in which he has been associated on the battle-fields of Europe.
HAKING, RICHARD C. BR-England. G. O. No. 14, W. D. 1920.	Lieutenant general, British Army. He rendered conspicuously meritorious service as chief of the British Mission, standing shoulder to shoulder with the chief of the American Mission in all questions of policy, aiding with rare tact and a genial personality the cordial relations between the English-speaking missions. He saw 52 months' service in the field, commanded the XI Army Corps, and is the hero of the relief of Lille in 1918.
HARINGTON, CHARLES HR-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Major general, deputy chief of the Imperial General Staff, British Army. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
HEADLAM, JOHN E. W	Major general, British Army.  For services rendered the United States Army while serving as chief of the British Artillery Mission to the United States.
HEATH, GERARD M	Major general, British Army.  As Engineer in Chief of the British Expeditionary Forces he performed, with conspicuous success, highly responsible duties in the struggle against the common enemy. He gave unfailing support to the American units serving with the British Armies, and in spite of his numerous other tasks sought every opportunity to aid in developing their efficiency, thereby rendering services of the utmost value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
HOLLAND, HENRY W.R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel, censorship and publicity section, British Army.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
Hone, Thomas N.————————————————————————————————————	Captain, British Army.  As assistant to the chief of the British Mission at American General Head-quarters from December, 1917, to June, 1919, by his complete knowledge of the intelligence service, fostered by an earnest spirit of cooperation, he gave much valuable aid to our second section of the General Staff, offering them every facility at his command.
HORNE, HENRY S R-England. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919.	General, British Army, commanding 1st Army, British Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
HUTCHINSON, HUGH M.R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel, British Army.  As instructor at the Gondrecourt schools, he rendered service of exceptional value in the training of a large number of officers of the American Expeditionary Forces. He was theless in devotion to his important duties and displayed military attainments of his order. Tactful and forceful in the displayed military attainments of high order. Tactful and forceful in the presentation of important subjects, he gave us very valuable assistance. HUTCHISON, ROBERT.....R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

Major general, Director of Organization, British Army.
For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Lieutenant colonel, British Army.
As officer in charge of maps in British General Headquarters he rendered valuable and distinguished services to the American Expeditionary Forces, making available to us all the information at his command. He provided for the instruction of American officers on the British front, and supplied us with special technical equipment that could not be obtained elsewhere.

Lieutenant general, British Army, commanding 2d Army Corps, British Expeditionary Forces.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

JONES, ROBERT	Major general, British Army.  An eminent orthopedic surgeon and chief of the division of orthopedic surgery in the British Army, he placed at the disposal of the medical service of the American Expeditionary Forces his eminent talents and broad experience in standardizing methods of treatment for the sick and wounded and took an active personal interest in class instruction of American medical officers in this very important branch of surgery.
Jury, EDWARD C	Lieutenant colonel, British Army.  As principal assistant to the chief of the British Mission attached to the American General Headquarters of the period, January, 1918, to March, 1919, by his brilliant military ability and his earnest spirit of whosehearted cooperation with the personnel of our fourth and fifth sections of the General Staff, he gave much valuable assistance to these sections during the period of their organization and development, rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
KNAPP, KEMPSTER KR-England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army. In command of the British artillery supporting the 2d American Corps during the operations from Sept. 27, 1918, to Oct. 21, 1918, he proved of invaluable assistance to our Infantry. He showed himself an indefatigable worker, a brilliant tactician, and a loyal friend.
LAMB, MALCOLM H. M.—————————————————————————————————	Major, British Army.  As chief of intelligence, line communications, British Expeditionary Forces, he assisted most ably in the organization, instruction, and working of the American intelligence section in the Services of Supply. Due to his advice, experience, and aid many of the difficult problems confronting our Services of Supply during its preliminary organization were successfully overcome. The services which he rendered the American Expeditionary Forces were most valuable.
LAWBENCE, HERBERT A R-England. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army, Chief of Staff, British Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
LAWRENCE, RICHARD C. BR-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army, commanding the British base at Marseille, France.  When the American base was established at Marseille he was of the utmost assistance in its development and maintenance by the practical aid and valuable advice he gave. Always ready, in case of need, to place at our disposition the valuable facilities acquired by the British lase, during four years of operation, he made possible an increased supply to the American troops. By his fervent spirit of cooperation he rendered tervice of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
LEISHMAN, WILLIAM BR—England. G. O. No. 60, W. D., 1920.	Major general, Royal Army Medical Corps, British Army. By his marked energy and zealous cooperation with the Medical Service of the American Expeditionary Forces in important research work, he pro- moted the efficient treatment of the American sick and wounded. His remarkable achievements in the domain of preventive medicine and wound bacteriology resulted in the saving of many lives among our wounded. His services were of great consequence to the American Expeditionary Forces.
LIDBURY, CHARLES AR.—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Major, British Army, attached to the 2d Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
LIVESAY, ROBERT O'HR—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army. As instructor at the American Army General Staff College, he rendered services of exceptional value to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the efficient training of our officers. He displayed military attainment of high order in the performance of his exacting duties, working always whole-heartedly in our interests. He proved himself sound in judgment, tactful, and a loyal friend.
Lynden-Bell, Arthur LR—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Major general, British Army.  As Director of Staff Duties at British General Headquarters he performed with distinction the important duties of his high office. In the midst of his manifold and exacting tasks he interested himself repeatedly in behalf of the American Expeditionary Forces, rendering us service of exceptional value. Through his instrumentality masses of information requested by us of the British Mission at Washington, Versailles, and at American General Headquarters have been made available. Most helpful at all times, he has proved himself a loyal friend.
MACDONOGH, GEORGE M. W.R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, adjutant general to the forces, British Army. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
McLachlan, James D	Major general, British Army.  For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as military attaché to the British Embassy, Washington, D. C.

800 DECORATIONS, U. S. ARMY, 1862–1926
McNamee, John T. R.—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Distinguished-service cross also awarded.	Captain, Royal Field Artillery, British Army, attached to the 1st Battalion, 1st Gas Regiment, American Expeditionary Forces. As instructor with the 1st Gas Regiment, American Expeditionary Forces, he worked unceasingly in developing aggressive forms of gas attack. He was tireless in his devotion to duty, showing particularly valuable ability in personally supervising the liaison and conduct of the gas operations in the Meuse-Argonne drive.
MACPHERSON, WILLIAM GR—England. G. O. No. 56, W. D., 1921.	Major general, British Army.  As Deputy Director General of Medical Services of the British Armies in France he displayed exceptional energy, initiative, and good judgment in directing and supervising in the most expeditious manner possible the organization, equipment, and training of medical department units of the 2d Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, serving with the British Expeditionary Forces. It was largely through his cooperation and individual efforts that the Medical Service of the 2d Corps, American Expeditionary Forces, was prepared in time to proficiently discharge its duties to the sick and wounded in combat.
MAUD, HARRY R-England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Colonel, British Army, forage and supplies, British Expeditionary Forces. He gave most valuable assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces in the procurement of necessary supplies for our troops. He rendered tactful and most willing service, affording whole-hearted cooperation in his important duties.
MAY, REGINALD S	Major general, British Army, Deputy Quartermaster General, British Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
MILLER, WALTER R-Canada. G. O. No. 29, W. D., 1919.	for services rendered the U.S. Arm, while serving as the haison officer between the British Embassy, the Ministry of Militia and Defense, Dominion of Canada, and the War Department.
MILNE, GEORGE F	Lieutenant general, British Army.  As British Minister of War he displayed military attainments of a high order, achieving a brilliant success. Untiring in devotion to his important duties, he was aggressive and capable, rendering service of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces and the allied cause.
Monash, John R—England G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army, commanding Australian Army Corps, British Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
MONTGOMERY, ARCHIBALD AR—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Major general, British Army.  As chief of staff of the 4th British Army he directed the operations of the 2d American Army Corps with distinguished ability, displaying military attainments of the highest order. The officers and soldiers of the 27th, 30th, and 33d U. S. Divisions are justly proud of having served with their English comrades against the common foe and of having shared with them in the successes which were due, in no small degree, to his capable direction.
NASH, PHILIP A. M	Major general, British Army.  The service he rendered the American Expeditionary Forces as Inspector General of Transportation for the British Army and as a member of the Interallied Transportation Council was of the greatest value. He lent every possible assistance to the American military authorities, giving us sound advice and important information.
NEEDHAM, HENRY	Lieutenant colonel, British Army, instructor at the Army General Staff College, American Expeditionary Forces.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

OVERTON, GEORGE C. R.

PAKENHAM, HERCULES A R-England. G. O. No. 29, W. D., 1919.

PARSONS, HAROLD D. E....R—England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, British Army, liaison officer, American Rest Camp, Winchester, England.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Lieutenant colonel, General Staff, British Army.
For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as the liaison officer between the British and American Military Intelligence Services.

Major general, British Army. Major general, Brush Army.

As Director of Equipment and Ordnance Stores of the British Expeditionary Forces he was able to render assistance of the greatest value to the American Expeditionary Forces. He aided us most markedly in the procurement of artillery material and ammunition from British sources, at all times giving loyal cooperation.

Lieutenant colonel, British Army, in charge of British Aviation Office at Paris, France.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Brigadier general, British Army, 2d Australian Division, British Expeditionary

PHILLIPS, OWEN F....

Sinclair-MacLagan, Ewen G.... R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

R-England, G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Forces. Commanding the artillery in support of the 30th American Division in its operations of Oct. 8-11, 1918, he aided greatly in the successes achieved at that time during these coperations. He displayed military ability of the highest order and a spirit of carnest cooperation which made the members of the American units proud to be associated with him in their operations against the common foe. Lieutenant colonel, British Army, commanding 13th Wing, Royal Air Forces. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. PLAYFAIR, PATRICK H. L. R—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. General, British Army, commanding 2d Army, British Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. PLUMER, HERBERT C. O..... R—England: G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. PRITCHARD, CLIVE G.____ Brigadier general, British Army, chief of artillery, 4th Army, British Expedi-R—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919__ The valuable services which he rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces in supplying our divisions with artillery while he was serving as deputy chief of artillery, 4th British Army, will ever be remembered. Giving us the benefit of his brilliant experience as an artillerist he made an extended tour of American Artillery camps and thereby aided materially in bringing this brauch of our arms up to the standard required for effective combat. Lieutenant colonel, British Ariny.
With the British Mission at Washington and later in France, he rendered services of inestimable value in the training of officers for the U.S. Quartermaster Corps and in the preparation of that department for oversea service. He gave us great assistance also in connection with the preliminary arrangements for the supply of our forces. He was tireless in the performance of his exacting duties, tactful at all times, and a loyal friend. PUCKLE, FREDERICK K.... R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. RADCLIFFE, PERCY P. deB Major general, British Army, Director of Military Operations, British War R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Office.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. RAWLINSON, HENRY S.....R—England. General, British Army, commanding 4th Army, British Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. RENNISON, WILLIAM Major, British Army, instructor, Army School of the Line, American Expedi-R—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. tionary Forces.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. General, British Army, commander in chief, Great Britain. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause ROBERTSON, WILLIAM R. R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. in which the United States has been engaged. RUDOLPH, FREDERICK Lieutenant general, British Army, commanding 10th British Army in Italy. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. R—England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Major general, British Army.

For services to the allied and associated Governments as permanent military representative, British section, Supreme War Council. SACKVILLE-WEST, CHARLES J.____ R—England. G. O. No. 75, W. D., 1919. SALMON, GEOFFREY N.... Lieutenant colonel, British Army. Detailed as an instructor to the school at Chatillon-sur-Seine, France, he displayed military attainments of a high order, and rendered very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the training of its officers. He was tireless in devotion to his important duties, and at all times tactful and energetic in the presentation of important subjects. R—England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919 SALMOND, JOHN M. Major general, British Army. As general officer commanding the British Royal Air Forces in the field, he distinguished himself by the exceptionally valuable services he performed. He aided and furthered the training of the units of the U.S. Air Service attached to his command. He organized the training in the field of squadrons, R—England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. pilots, ground officers, and mechanics of the American Air Service, rendering us most valuable assistance at all times. Brigadier general, British Army.
As chief of the British Military Mission, Headquarters, Services of Supply, he provided for prompt and satisfactory procurement of enormous amounts of supplies from England, thereby contributing greatly to the successes achieved by the American Expeditionary Forces. SARGENT, HARRY N....R-England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Major general, British Army, Commanding 4th Australian Division, British Expeditionary Forces.
The 27th and 30th U.S. Divisions profited by the wide experience and brilliant military attainments which he displayed as commander of the Australian division, when he served with the 2d American Army Corps and so ably assisted in the direction of the operations. The officers of these organizations count it a high privilege to have been associated with him during the final phases of the struggle with the common enemy, in which he and his forces played such a splendid part,

STUDD, HERBERT W.R.—England. G. O. No. 75, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army. For services to the allied and associated Governments as chief of staff, British section, Supreme War Council.
SYKES, FREDERICK HR-England. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.	Major general, British Army.  As chief of staff of the British Air Forces, by his willing spirit of cooperation with the American authorities in all matters pertaining to the Air Service and its operation, he rendered service of great worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.
THOMAS, GEORGE P	Captain, British Army.  He rendered valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the training of American Artillery officers. He displayed high military attainments and a keen comprehension of conditions in the field. His service was continuously marked by devotion to duty, tireless energy and tact.
THOMPSON, HARRY N	Major general, British Army.  An eminent medical officer, and as Director of the Medical Service, 1st British Field Army in France, he placed his time and energy at the disposal of the American Expeditionary Forces. The sanitary school maintained in his army for teaching front-line medical requirements was utilized for the instruction of the American medical officers sent to him by classes. The observation and experience gained by these student officers under his able supervision and guidance eventually resulted in the saving of lives of many American wounded.
THORNTON, HENRY WR-England. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Major general, British Army.  As Paris representative of the Director General of Movements and Railways in London he rendered the greatest assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces in the procurement of hospital trains and supplies. He furnished us with information which proved most important in the development of the American Transportation Corps.
THWAITES, WILLIAM	Major general, British Army, Director of Military Intelligence, British War Office.
G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
TRENCHARD, HUGH MR-England.	Major general, British Army, chief of Air Scrvice, British Expeditionary Forces.
G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
TROTTER, GERALD F	Brigadier general, British Army. For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as chief of the British Military (or Advisory) Mission to the United States.
TWINING, PHILIP GR-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Major general, British Army.  As Director of the Royal Engineers, by his active interest in behalf of the needs of the American services in both France and England, he has given valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. Always manifesting an aggressive spirit in furthering our efforts, he handled many important questions of supply with marked tact and diplomacy.
WAGSTAFF, CYRIL M. R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, British Army, chief, British Mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
WALLACE, CUTHBERT SR—England. G. O. No. 124, W. D., 1919.	Major general, British Army.  An eminent consulting surgeon, and while serving with the British Expeditionary Forces in France, with untiring zeal he devoted his time and energy toward promoting standard methods for efficient treatment of American sick and wounded, and unreservedly placed at the disposal of the medical service of the American Expeditionary Forces his eminent talents, broad experience, and knowledge of general conditions, with a view to assisting in the prevention of wastage among our forces from wounds and disease.
WATTS, HERBERT ER-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, British Army, commanding 19th Army Corps, British Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
WELLESLEY, WILLIAM R.—England. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.	Lieutenant colonel, British Army, Undersecretary of State for War. In his capacity of Undersecretary of State for War, he manifested a constant desire to assist the American Expeditionary Forces in every possible way. The cordial spirit of cooperation and harmony which has marked the relations between the British and American forces during their struggle against the common enemy has been due, in large measure, to his zealous efforts.
WILSON, HENRY H. R-England. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	General, British Army, chief of the Imperial General Staff, British War Office For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

WINTERBOTHAM, HAROLD ST. J. L.... R-England. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Lieutenant colonel, British Army.

Lieutenant colonel, British Army.

His practical advice, constructive criticism, and keen personal interest influenced greatly the organization and methods of training for topographic and ranging work in the American Expeditionary Forces. He personally furnished us with a large amount of important topographic data and information on survey and ranging work in the British and German Armies which could not have been obtained elsewhere and which proved of the greatest value to us.

WORTHINGTON, EDWARD S......R-England. G. O. No. 2, W. D., 1920.

Colonel, British Army.

For services demanding the fullest of his time and energy. He exerted himself to such good purpose in behalf of medical officers of the U. S. Army that large numbers of them were sent for special and intensive instruction to the various special medical and hospital centers in the British Isles, where they received at the hands of Great Britain's most eminent instructors the lessons learned from three years of war, thereby enabling the American surgeons to apply the knowledge acquired, with the result that many lives and limbs were conserved in the American Expeditionary Forces.

British Surveyor General of Supplies. the displayed ability of a high order, untiring devotion to duty, and zeal in the performance of his exacting duties. At all times he worked with singleness of purpose for the good of the allied cause, rendering service of exceptional value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

WEIR, WILLIAM R-England. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

British Secretary of State for the Royal Air Forces. In the performance of his important duties he displayed great energy and ability of a high order. He handled difficult situations with tact and aggressiveness, achieving brilliant results. At all times he was zealous to the best interests of the American Expeditionary Forces.

FRENCH

[Awarded for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in a position of great responsibility, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

ALBY, HENRI M. C. E. R.—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Major general, Chief of Staff, French Army.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
Alcan, Adrien H	Captain of infantry, French Military Mission at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. While on duty with the French Military Mission at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he rendered service of exceptional value to the U. S. Army. His ability, tact, loyalty, and untring efforts on our behalf proved of inestimable assistance in the successful execution of many important negotiations with the French Army. He went far beyond the bounds of duty to help us, proving himself a willing and devoted friend to our interests.
ALERME, MARIE M. E	Lieutenant colonel of Colonial Infantry, French Army. As assistant chief of the cabinet of the Minister of War, charged with the management of Franco-American affairs, by his tact, good judgment, and loyal spirit of cooperation with the American authorities he has rendered important service to the American Expeditionary Forces.
ALEXANDRE, GEORGES RR.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, French Army, chief of artillery, 5th Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces. As chief of artillery of the 5th Army Corps he performed invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. To his consummate skill as an artillerist was due in a large measure the success of the artillery in the operations of the 5th Army Corps in the St. Minici offensive and in the first phase of the Meuse-Argonne offensive. The loyal spirit of cooperation which be constantly manifested will ever be held firm in memory by his American colleagues.
ALEXANDRE, MARIE N. G.R.—France.G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel of artillery, 3d Bureau, French Army. Possessed of military attainments of a high degree, he placed these at our disposal, rendering very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces by the advice he has given us in connection with artillery operations. At all times he was devoted to the best interests of the allied cause. He displayed tireless energy and ceaseless vigilance in our behalf, proving himself loyal to our service.
ALIAIN, EMILIEN	Captain, 315th Regiment of Infantry, French Army. By his able adaptation of the French combat formations to the American units and by the thorough instructions he gave the students of the Army Candidates' School in the technique of the combat formation, he has given valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces. Later, as liaison officer between the marshal commanding the allied armies and American General Headquarters, by his courteous efforts and good judgment, he has rendered much valuable assistance to the American Army.
ALPHANDERY, LEVY_R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Captain of infantry, French Army, mayor of Chaumont, France. By his whole-hearted spirit of cooperation with the authorities at American General Headquarters in all matters concerning the American personnel at General Headquarters, he rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
ANDLAUER, JOSEPH L. MR—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919	Brigadier general, commanding the 18th Division of Infantry, French Army. As commander of the 18th French Division he displayed conspicuous military attainments and the most loyal devotion to the allied cause. By his cordial spirit of cooperation and careful supervision of the training of the 1st, 2d, 26th, and 42d American Divisions during the time in which they were attached to his command, he rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Andriot, Maurice R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.  As regulating officer for the French railroads at American Headquarters, Services of Supply, he displayed remarkable efficiency in meeting the needs of the American forces for railroad transportation. By his untiring energy and technical ability he satisfied all sudden calls made upon him for railroad facilities.
ARDON, PIERRE R. I	Lieutenant commander, French Army, instructor, Valdahon Training Camp, American Expeditionary Forces School of Fire Triangulation, Langres, France.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
804

ARMENGAUD, PAUL F. M.... R—France.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.
Distinguished-service cross

awarded.

G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

BARRAUD, CLAUDIUS E.....R.—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

BARRILLON, PAUL C. R—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

BATAILLARD, FÉLICIEN F.... R—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

BEAUDENOM DE LAMAZE, LOUIS E. M. J. I. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

BECQ, RAYMOND.... R-France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

BERDOULAT, PIERRE E.... R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

BERGASSE, GASTON L. E. E. R-France. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922.

G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

BERNARD, FREDERIC R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Major, Air Service, French Mission, General Properties of the American Air Service Throughout the entire organization and operation of the American Air Service Throughout the entire organization and operational value. He displayed most be readered us services of exceptional value. The displayed most in the entire organization of inestire and the entire organization of the American Air Service Throughout in France, he rendered us services of exceptional value. He displayed most marked tactical conception of aerial activities, his advice proving of inestimable worth during the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives. Out of his wide experience he gave us his best, proving at all times devoted to our interests and going far beyond the bounds of his duties, as a member of the French Mission, to assist us.

Major of infantry, French Army, forestry officer, attached to the French Military Mission at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Interpreter officer of 1st class, French Army, instructor, Army Intelligence School, American Expeditionary Forces.
For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Major of engineers, French Army, chief of Service for Military Development of Ports, Minister of Public Works.
For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Captain of gendarines, French Army, provost marshal with the 1st Army Corps, American Expeditionary Forces.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Brevet lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.
As chief of the personnel section of the Army General Staff, by his able executive ability and good judgment, he has rendered most distinguished service to the Allies. He has always shown a keen interest in the American Army and lent them every assistance which he could furnish. His services have been of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel of engineers, chief of the telegraphic service of the 2d French

Army.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Major general, French Army.

For services to the allied and associated Governments as permanent military representative, French section, Supreme War Council.

Lieutenant colonel of artillery, Geographic Service of the French Army.

As a member of the Geographic Service of the army, he, by his sound practical advice and good judgment, proved of the utmost assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces. Due largely to his personal efforts, the closest cooperation existed between his army and our own Topographic Service. Just prior to the Meuse-Argonne he personally arranged for the Geographic Service to extend and enlarge its facilities, so as to assist the 1st American Army in every way possible. His services were of inestimable value.

Major general, commanding the 20th Army Corps, French Army, with the 1st and 2d Divisions, American Expeditionary Forces.

His gallant and conspicuous services are connected with the deeds of the 1st and 2d United States Divisions in the counterattack south of Soissons, July, 1918.

Medical inspector, director of medical service of the 20th Army Area, French Army.
For services in the organization of American hospital centers.

In addition to his official cooperation in the larger affairs, his influence excreted in innumerable ways has been a material factor in the successful installation and operation of the activities of the medical department of Base Section No. 2.

Major, French Army, chief of D. T. M. A., detailed at French General Headquarters.

while serving in the D. T. M. A. he was in personal charge of practically all of the movements of troops and hospital trains. He was tireless and careful in supervising the transportation of our troops through France and in providing railroad facilities for the shipment of supplies. He accomplished with brilliant success a most ardnous and important task.

Quartermaster, French Navv With extraordinary heroism he achieved the seemingly impossible in rescuing 70 members of the crew of the U.S. Army transport Jinsen Marn, when that vessel foundered at lle d'Yeu, France, Dec. 4, 1918. Braving the rocky surf, he got a line to the ship when other efforts had failed, and hy that Jins ent all the members of the crew one by one to shore, being himself the last man to leave the ship. Displaying personal bravery of the highest order, he voluntarily jcopardized his life to perform this courageous service.

BERTHELOT, HENRI M	Major general, French Army, chief of the French Military Mission with the Rumanian Armies, commanding the French forces in the Orient, For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause
BERTHIER, EMILE J	in which the United States has been engaged.  Major of artillery, French Army By his brilliant military attainments and steadfast devotion to duty he rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces as an instructor in the army schools at Langres. Subsequently, upon being attached to the 3d American Army as liaison officer, he capably performed duties of the utmost importance in maintaining effective liaison between the French and Ameri- can Armies of Occupation, doing much to promote the harmonious relations which prevailed among the two allied forces.
BERTIN, JEAN M. A	Second lieutenant of the 5th Regiment of Engineers, French Army, liaison.  As liaison officer between the D. T. M. A. of the French Army and the Deputy Director General of Transportation at American General Headquarters, by his tactful, capable, and untring efforts to assist the American Army, he has rendered services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. Loyal to the American Army, he at all times showed a friendly interest in all our needs.
BLETRY, CAMILLE L. C	Major of artillery, French Army.  For services while conducting all coal negotiations between the French Government and the American Expeditionary Forces. His unfailing response to every demand made upon him and his friendship and energy have many times proved of inestimable value to our Armics.
BLONDLAT, ERNEST J	Major general, commanding the 2d Colonial Army Corps, French Army.  It was under his command that the 2d Colonial Corps performed such glorious deeds as part of the 1st American Army during the St. Mihiel offensive.
BOQUET, ERNEST	Colonel of engineers, French Army. As director of Military Transports Service with the Armies he extended hearty cooperation to the American military authorities, aiding us greatly in solving transportation problems. He displayed marked ability in handling the intricate details of his important work and went far beyond the bounds of duty to render vital assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces.
BORDEAUX, JOSEPH P. E	Brigadier general, commanding the 18th Division of Infantry, French Army. In command of the 18th French Division he displayed superb military attainments and unfailing devotion to the allied cause. By his cordial spirit of cooperation and careful supervision of the instruction of the American units which were attached to his command during their training periods he rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Borelli, Georges M	Captain of artillery, French Army, commissariat general of the Franco-American military affairs, liaison officer with the 158th Field Artillery Brigade, 83d Division, American Expeditionary Forces, and operations officer, 55th Field Artillery Brigade, 30th Division, American Expeditionary Forces. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
BOUCHER, MARCEL A. F.——————————————————————————————————
BOULANGER, EDOUARD R-France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.	As Chief of Interministerial Service of Expenditures he rendered great service to the United States.
BOULANGER, PIERRE	Lieutenant of the air service, French Army.  As chief of the American Bureau of the French Aeronautic Ministry, and sceretary of the Interallied Aviation Committee, he displayed tact, executive ability, and wide experience in aviation matters, rendering invaluable assistance to the American Air Service. He evinced the keenest interest in our success and an exceptional understanding of our needs, proving himself at all times most loyal to our interests.
BOURGEOIS, MAURICE J.R.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Captain of the air service, French Army. As aide-de-camp to Marshal Pétain, he, through his careful and prompt action, rendered valuable service to the allied cause. His constant and ti-eless efforts brought about the consolidation and thorough regulation of the Red Cross and other benevolent organizations, which proved to be of great worth to the comfort of the American and other allied soldiers.
BOURGEOIS, JOSEPH E. R.—R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Major general, French Army.  As Director of the Geographic Service of the Army he afforded most loyal cooperation to the American Expeditionary Forces. He rendered exceptional scrvice by placing at our disposal the various departments under his control, including the use of maps and optical instruments that proved of inestimable value in the planning and execution of important military operations.

BOUSQUET, ACHILLE R.... Captain of the General Staff, French Army Captain of the General Start, French Army.

As assistant to the American regulating officers of Creil, Le Bourget, Noisy-le-Sec, St. Dizier, and Metz, France, he rendered invaluable services during successive military operations of the greatest importance. He labored un-R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. ceasingly under most trying conditions in order that the supply of American combat troops might not be interrupted, thus ably furthering the American operations. Brevet major of infantry, French Army. As an aide to Marshal Pétain, he served with distinction in a position of great responsibility. He displayed military attainments of a high order, and was constant in his devotion to the best interests of the allied cause. In the midst BOUVARD, HENRI.... R-France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. o. his exacting duties, he found time to render very valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces, being ever ready to assist us by his sound judgment and wide knowledge of constantly changing conditions. BREART DE BOISANGER, JOSEPH M. H. R—France.
G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Colonel of infantry, French Army.
As chief of the French Mission with the 2d American Army, he worked loyally in the interests of the allied cause, proving always both energetic and tactful in the performance of his exacting duties. He aided materially in the maintenance of cordial relations between the French and American military authorities. He at all times cooperated with us most helpfully, proving himself an able and loyal friend. Brevet major of infantry, French Army.
As a member of the Franco-American Bureau, Army General Staff, by his sound judgment, tact, and keen interest in the American Army, he has handled many delicate problems affecting the American Expeditionary Forces with marked ability and in a most satisfactory manner. The services he has given us have been of great value. Brevet major of artillery, French Army. As assistant chief of the 2d Bureau at French General Headquarters, he, by his s assistant ener of the 2d bliead at Flench cheef a readquarters, no by my wholehearted cooperation and sound advice, was of the greatest assistance to the various officers of the American Expeditionary Forces with whom he came in contact. At all times he gladly extended to us every facility available to aid in the successful operations of our forces. He was tactful and loyal, proving himself a true friend. Lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.

As regulating commissioner at St. Dizier, France, he labored unceasingly in the interests of the American Expeditionary Forces during the St. Mihiel and Argonne offensives. Notwithstanding that the responsibility of supplying two French armies rested upon him, the facilities at his command were put unreservedly at our service. Without his loyal cooperation the supply of our combat troops would have been most complicated. BRUNOT DE ROUVRE, ANTOINE C. P. C. M. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. BUAT, EDOUARD A. L. Major general, French Army, chief or staff to Marshal Pétain. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. R—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. Captain of artillery, French Army. In connection with the supply and maintenance of automatic arms and machine guns he rendered service of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces. When assigned as assistant to the chief inspector of machine guns and small arms, American Ordnance Department, he displayed high professional attainments, energy, and untiring devotion to duty, cooperating with us most loyally at all times. BUCAILLE-LITTINÈRE, HENRI R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. s special adviser to the French Frime Minister for Franco-American Amairs he displayed the same spirit of cooperation and warm friendship for the American people which he had manifested during his distinguished service as the French Ambassador at Washington. Ever actuated by the desire to cement the cordial relations between the two Republics, he and his staff offered us every facility which his important post commanded, thereby rendering services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces. CAOUOT, A. T.

R—France.
G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Major of air service, French Army,
As chief of the technical section of French aeronautics, he displayed technical aviation knowledge of high order, and performed his exacting duties with untiring energy and devotion. He rendered very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces, gladly assisting us at all times in the solution of perplexing problems.

Surgeon major, 1st class, medical service, French Army.

For services in important researches and in the application of bacteriological methods of control to the dressing and closing of wounds. To him is due the discovery of the Carrell-Dakin treatment for war wounds. By his important service he has shortened the period of hospitalization of wounded men to a marked degree, and to him is due in a great measure the saving of many lives and limbs and the prevention of many disabilities among the wounded of our CARREL- BILLIARD, MARIE J. A. A.R.-France. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

Lieutenant colonel of engineers, French Army.

As chief of the wireless-section of the French Ministry of War he rendered most distinguished services to the American Expeditionary Forces by placing every facility at the disposal of the American Army and by assisting our officers repeatedly with his sound advice, helping them in the solution of the many technical problems which confronted our Intelligence Section. Surgeon major, 1st class, French Army, medical section of the Central Bureau of Franco-American Relations.

As adviser to the Medical Service of the American Expeditionary Forces he assisted in the preparation of a comprehensive hospitalization program and was of the greatest assistance in putting this plan into effect. Realizing the importance of liaison between the French and American Medical Services, he organized the medical section of the Central Bureau of Franco-American Relations, which proved of the greatest mutual benefit to the French and American Armies. CASTELLI, EMILE J. B. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Colonel of artillery, French Army.

He rendered service of conspicuous merit as chairman of the committee on material. In securing the rapid, early, and complete delivery by the Germans of all the artillery and airplane material required by the armistice terms, the achievement of his committee was noteworthy. Brevet major of infantry, French Army.

As chief of the 3d Bureau, General Staff of the group of French Armies of the East, he has rendered great assistance in the placing of the ist American Division in the Camp de Lorraine and in furthering their rapid instruction in combat. During the American operations of St. Mihiel and the Meuse-Argonne he again ably assisted us in furnishing additional artillery support during the attacks. At all times he assured the best conditions of liaison between the staffs of the French and the American Armies. CHARREYRE, EUGÈNE J. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Major general, French Army.
As inspector general of the Forest Service, Minister of Munitions and War Manufactures, he directed the French civil agencies in obtaining standing timber and manufactured forest products required by the allied armies.
With great administrative ability he superintended the supply of lumber to the American Expeditionary Forces, at all times doing everything within his power to further our needs, affording most loyal cooperation. CHEVALIER, LOUIS J. G. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.

In his capacity as chief of the French Geographic Bureau he went far beyond the bounds of duty to render valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. He placed a fund of valuable information at our disposal, being ever ready to give us the benefit of his wide knowledge. At all times he proved himself daysted to any interests and a rost lovel friend. CHICOYNEAU DE LAVALETTE DE COË-LOSQUET, CHARLES O. M. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. himself devoted to our interests and a most loyal friend. Major general, French Army, commander of the 26th and 79th divisions, American Expeditionary Forces.

For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause CLAUDEL, HENRI E. R-France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. in which the United States has been engaged. Brevet colonel of infantry, French Army.

For services rendered the United States Army while serving as chief of the French Military Information Mission to the United States. CLAUDON, JOSEPH P. H R—France. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1919. CLAVEILLE, ALBERT. As French Minister of Public Works he rendered service of immense value to the Transportation Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces, showing himself at all times willing to go to any lengths to assist us. He displayed broad vision, a keen grasp of the essentials and great energy in overcoming difficulties in times of emergency. R—France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. CLAVEL, JEAN. M. G.....R.—France. Colonel of engineers, French Army, at Base Section No. 2, American Expeditionary Forces, Bordeaux, France. tionary Forces, Bordeaux, France.

Through his wide experience and eminent technical ability he was of the utmost assistance in connection with the establishment of Base Section No. 2 at Bordeaux. Not only did he conduct the negotiations for placing at our disposal the indipensable Basens dock, but he made possible the enlargement of our port facilities by the construction of railroad terminals. In numerous other ways he furnished us material aid by his sound advice and wholehearted spirit of cooperation, rendering services of a high character to the American Expeditionary Forces. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, of infantry, French Army.

As regulating commissioner at Is-sur-Tille, France, he rendered invaluable assistance in the organization and operation of the American regulating station and depots at that point. His hearty cooperation and genius for organization aided materially in the achievement of most satisfactory results and the CLEMENSON, LOUIS_____ R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. development of an efficient service. Lieutenant colonel of engineers, French Army.
In his capacity as a member of the French Mission attached to the American General Headquarters from June, 1917, to April, 1918, he gave us much assistance in all matters of organization of units, and especially those affecting the organization of artillery. By his good judgment and willing spirit of cooperation, coupled with his high military attainments, he rendered services COCHET, MAURICE D.R.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

of particular worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, French Army.
As director of artillery, Ministry of War, during the formative period of our Artillery, he has given most valuable service to our Artillery personnel in the Artillery, he has given most valuable service to our Artillery personnel in the solution of the difficult problems of organization and training. He placed at our disposal the means of instruction and training for our Artillery. Through his efforts the Saumur Artillery School was opened to us, the instruction camps at Coetquidan, Medcou, Souge, and Valdahon, France, were prepared as centers of training, and the facilities of the Tractor Artillery School at Vincennes were opened to us. The services he has rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces have been of great value. Colonel of infantry, French Army, military attaché, French Embassy, Washington, D. C., United States of America.
For services rendered the United States Army while serving as military attaché to the French Embassy and chief of French Military Missions to the United States. COLLARDET, LOUIS..... R—France. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1919. Rrevet lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army,
As chief of the French Mission in Base Section No. 2, American Expeditionary Forces, he furthered the combining of French and American resources and COLONNA-CECCALDI, MARIE.... R--France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. interests, adding materially in the success of the American Expeditionary Forces and the allied cause. He displayed untiring energy, devotion to duty, and great tact in the performance of his manifold duties. Major general, French Army.

In command of the 12th French Region, he showed unceasing devotion to the welfare and comfort of the American troops entering that territory, at all times affording the American military authorities loyal cooperation. He exercised extraordinary personal interest in Franco-American relations and rendered invaluable service to the American Expeditionary Forces. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Major general, commanding the 15th Army Corps, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. CORVISART, CHARLES P. R. V. R—France G. O. No. 4, W. D., 1923. As French regulating doctor at St. Dizier, France, he rendered the American Expeditionary Forces valuable service in making possible the evacuation of the forward areas during the St. Milhiel and Argonne offensives. When the number of American hospital trains available were found insufficient, he placed at our disposition the facilities of the French, laboring personally, day and night, in order that there might be no interruption of the service. Coussergue____ R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. COUTANCEAU, MICHEL H. M..... Major general, French Army As commanding general of the 11th French Region, he rendered the American authorities most valuable assistance, meeting them always in a spirit of cordial cooperation. Through his willing help, billeting areas and many other facilities were placed promptly at the disposal of the American Expeditionary R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Forces. Captain of infantry, French Army, liaison officer with the 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

As liaison officer with the 1st Division during all the active operations of the division from April to October, 1918, he showed exceptional ability and tireless energy in the performance of his exacting duties. Although his task was a difficult one, he labored incessantly to our best interests, manifesting at all times a spirit of loyalty and friendship for the American Expedi-CROCHET, EUGÈNE R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. tionary Forces. CROLET, CHARLES
R—France.
G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920. As chief, bureau of Franco-American Service, Administration Division, Ministry of War, he rendered great service to the United States in the adjustment of numerous and complicated accounts between the United States and France. Major general, French Army, 10th French Region.
As general commanding the 16th Region he has displayed the same brilliant military attainments and loyal devotion to the common cause which characterized his service with combat troops at the front. By his spirit of whole-hearted cooperation and earnest desire to furnish every facility to the American troops in his region, he has rendered services of the utmost value to the American Expeditionary Forces. D'AMADE, ALBERT G. L. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Major general, French Army, 13th French Region.
After long and honorable service in active operations against the enemy he took command of the 13th Region, in which were subsequently located a large variety of American military activities. The unbroken harmony which characterized the relations between the French and American authorities was due in no small degree to his tact and breadth of vision, and by his constant desire to further our interests in every possible manner he rendered services of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

D'ARMAU DE POUYDRAGUIN, LOUIS M. G. R—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924.

DANTANT, GEORGES V....

G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

R-France.

Major general, French Army.

He commanded with distinction the 67th Chasseurs Division, with which a large number of American troops had the honor of serving. He continually showed every consideration for the Americans in his command, and by his skill in directing their training for effective combat he rendered services of the highest value to the American Evaguitionary Ecorose. the highest value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

p'Auvin, Francois R	Major general, French Army.  His brilliant military attainments and forceful leadership were an important factor in the combat training of the American units which were attached to his command in the Chemin des Dames and Vosges Sectors. Later, as aide major general for personnel at French General Headquarters, he continued to display a desire to aid the American Army with all the important facilities at his disposal, thereby rendering services of the utmost value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
DEBAINS, FREDERIC H	Colonel of cavalry, French Army. As chief of staff in the 18th French Region he gave invaluable assistance and cooperation in the operation of Base Section No. 2, American Expeditionary Forces. His efficient and painstaking efforts assisted most materially in the results achieved by the American military authorities. At all times he showed tact and a most valuable comprehension of existing conditions and our needs.
DE BARESCUT, MAURICER—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924.	Brigadier general, French Army.  As aide major general for operations at French General Headquarters, he gave us information and advice of the greatest importance. At all times he extended whole-hearted cooperation to the American military authorities. He showed himself a tireless worker, brilliant tactician, and loyal friend.
DE BAZELAIRE, GEORGES	Major general, commanding the 7th Army Corps, French Army, with the 42d Division, American Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DE BEAUMONT, MARIE J	Colonel of infantry, F ench Army.  As chief of the French Mission at Headquarters of Base Section No. 1, American Expeditionary Forces, he discharged his duties with tact, zeal, and distinguished ability. He contributed very largely by his personal efforts to creating conditions which made it possible for Base Section No. 1 to maintain a steady flow of supplies to the American troops.
DEBENEY, MARIE E	Major general, commanding the 1st French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DE BOISSOUDY, ANTOINE P. T. J R.—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919.	Major general, commanding the French Army of Belgium. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DE CHAMBRUN, JACOUES AR.—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel, 40th Regiment of Artillery, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DE COINTET, LÉON E	Brevet lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.  As head of the 2d Bureau, French General Headquarters, he placed every facility in his power at the disposal of officers of the American Expeditionary Forces. The cooperation he extended to us was hearty and sincere. He rendered us distinguished and valuable service and played an important part in our successes. At all times he acted with tact and energy and showed himself a loyal friend.
DE CURIERES DE CASTELNAU, NOÊL M. J. E. R-France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919.	Major general, French Army, commanding the Group of Armies of the East. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DE FAUCIGNY-LUCINGE ET COLIGNY, AYMON JBM. R.—France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.	Captain of cavalry, detached, French Army, head of Franco-American section, G. S., 15th Region. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces.
DEGOUTTE, JEAN M. J	Major general, French Army, commanding the group of the Armies of Flanders. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DE LA FERRONAYS	Major, French Army.  As personal liaison officer between the French Minister of War and the American Commander in Chief, he showed great tact and energy in the performance of his duties. He rendered service of exceptional value to the American Expeditionary Forces, laboring incessantly for the common cause, and doing much to promote the cordial relations between the French and American authorities.
DE LAGRANGE, AMAURYRFrance. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Captain of air service, French Army.  His broad knowledge of the conditions of modern warfare, gained through creditable service at the front, coupled with his loyalty and friendship for the United States and the American Army, fitted him admirably for his important service as a member of the French Mission at Washington. Later upon his return to France, as chief of the aeronautical section of the French Mission at Tours, he assisted materially in the establishment of schools and training systems for our Air Service, thereby rendering services of the utmost value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

DISTINGUISHED-SERVICE MEDAL 811
DELALAIN, JOSEPH L. PR.—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army. As chief of staff of the communication zone of the French Army he with the study and development of many of the most impor affecting the American Expeditionary Forces. He displayed un in carrying out many delicate problems, and as supervising head work of the communication zone continually rendered valuab our armies.	was charged tant projects tiring energy to f the whole le services to
DELASSUS, GEORGES AR—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Major of air service, French Army. As chief of the 1st Bureau, Office of the French Undersecretary Aeronautics, he rendered services of especial value to the Ameritionary Forces. Through his energetic efforts the American banies in France were at all times supplied with the equipment efficient operation.	of State for cican Expedi- lloon compa- necessary to
DELAUNAY, M. L	Captain of infantry, French Army.  For services while serving in the capacity of liaison officer with the sion, American Expeditionary Forces.	he 78th Divi-
DE L'ESPÉE, JEAN F. M. H	In command of the 5th Region he performed his important duties success. At all times he manifested the utmost consideration interests in the territory under his jurisdiction. By his gener placing at our disposal many French barracks and cantonmer partment of Loire-et-Cher and at other places, he rendered so highest value to the American Expeditionary Forces.	ous action in its in the De-
DE L'ESTRADE, JACOUES E.R.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.		ervice head- ris he was of pply through a factory and of airplanes re to further to, he rendered as.
DELIGNY, HENRI V	Major general, French Army. In command of the 3d French Region at the time of the formatican Base Section No. 4, he gave most helpful attention to the American Expeditionary Forces, affording us his unhesitat His tireless efforts in our behalf assured the success of importation the base section, contributing largely to the achievements of o	ion of Ameri-
DE MARENCHES, CHARLES C. M R-France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Captain of infantry, French Army, liasion officer between the in chief, American Expeditionary Forces, and Marshals Foch For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and in which the United States has been engaged.	commander and Pétain.
DE MARGUERY	Admiral, French Navy.  As French naval representative at the port of Nantes, he coop times with the American authorities, showing ability of the and tact in the performance of his duties. He gave us the greassistance in times of emergency, far exceeding the bounds of render important services to the American Expeditionary Forces	erated at all highest order atest possible his duties to s.
DE MAUD'HUY, LOUIS E	Major general, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and in which the United States has been engaged.	to the cause
DE MONTAL, LÉOPOLD P	For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as the liaison of the embassy, the High Commission of France, and the War De	partment.
DE NEUFLIZE, ANDRÉ PR.—France. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.	Lieutenant, General Staff, French Army. As liaison officer between the French Ministry of Armanent and t services in France and later as chief of the armament section of High Commission in the United States, he rendered valuable seamerican Army. To his efforts may be attributed, in a great success which the American Government had in obtaining sources artillery matériel and ammunition needed to complet ment for American troops arriving in France.	he American f the French ervices to the measure, the from French te the equip-
DE NEUVILLE, SEBASTIEN HR.—France, G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.	Lieutenant of cavalry, French Army. As chief of the sales and purchases section, French Mission, with t service at Paris, he rendered great service to the United States.	he American

French inspector general of the telephone service of the Department of Posts, Telephones, and Telegraphs.

He rendered the American Expeditionary Forces service of the greatest value in securing much-needed supplies and personnel for the Signal Corps. He was devoted in his efforts to secure all grants from the French Posts, Telephones, and Telegraphs administration to the best interests of our service.

DE PELACOT, JACQUES M. G. J.... Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.
As chief liaison officer with the 5th Army Corps from the date of its organization R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. scale halson officer with the 5th Army Corps from the date of its organization until a period subsequent to the suspension of hostilities, he performed his important duties with distinguished ability and a spirit of whole-hearted cooperation. At all times he assured efficient flaison between the American troops and adjacent French units. Subsequently, while he was a member of the French Mission attached to the 1st Army, he continued to render invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. DERCLE, CHARLES U.R.—France. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921. Surgeon colonel, service of military health, French Army.

For services as liaison officer and adviser to the Surgeon General. By his thorough knowledge he gave much needed and excellent advice upon medicomilitary subjects, which was of great assistance in the solution of important problems confronting the Surgeon General. He has rendered services of Major general, French Army, commander in chief of the Allied Armies of the D'ESPEREY, LOUIS F. M. F..... R—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. Major of artillery, French Army.

He took upon his own shoulders the complete reorganization of the French delivery services, that the American Air Service might be supplied in a time of great need with airplanes, motors, and a large number of spare parts. His foresight was marked, and he acted at all times with keen judgment and energy, rendering most valuable services to the American Expeditionary DE ST. QUENTIN, MARIE C. A. G..... R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Forces. DESTICKER, PIERRE H..... Brigadier general, French Army, As aide major general of Marshal Foch's staff, he collaborated with wholehearted R-France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924. their aid his sound judgment and military attainments in the solution of perplexing and intricate problems. At all times he was unswerving in devotion to his important and exacting duties, and proyed a loyal friend. The services which he rendered us were of inestimable value. DE VALDNER DE FREUNDSTEIN, Reserve captain of cavalry, French Army.
For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces. MAURICE F. R-France. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921. DHE, PAUL Colonel of air service, French Army. Colone of air service, French Army.

As Military Director of French Aeronautics he displayed untiring attention to the problems of the American Air Scrvice, and by his earnest and whole-hearted cooperation did much to render possible of execution the air program of the American Expeditionary Forces. In all of his relations with the American Ř—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. can Air Service he acted in a broad-minded manner, showing a spirit of willing helpfulness at all times. Subintendant of the 3d class, French Army.

As a member of the staff of the inspector general of supply, French Army, he was charged with the responsibility for the cooperation of his section of the French General Staff with the American Expeditionary Forces with reference to supply problems. The rare technical skill, resourcefulness, tact and spirit of cooperation displayed by Colonel Dive, coupled with sound judgment and unremitting devotion to duty contributed markedly to the successful operations of the American forces in France. DIVE, GABRIEL A.... R-France. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923. Major of artillery, French Army.
He rendered service of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces inconnection with the supply and maintenance of artillery matériel. Throughout the offensive of the 1st American Army, in the St. Milhiel and Meuse-Argonne operations, he commanded with great distinction the important artillery repair and snpply establishment at Souhesmes. DOMEJEAN, RAYMOND X..... R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Major of artillery, French Army.
As chief of the French Automobile Service, he was intimately associated and uniformly helpful in the development of the American motor transportation system in France. With extraordinary foresight he organized the interallied motor reserve. His exceptional ability and personal efforts made possible the transport of large numbers of American troops at times when the success of operations depended on rapid transportation. DOUMENC, JOSEPH E. A.... R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Major general, French Army, Military Governor of Paris, France.
Through his distinguished efforts one of the largest hospitals in Paris was made available for the use of the American Expeditionary Forces, rendering possible the hospitalization there of hundreds of the sick and wounded of the American DUBAIL, AUGUSTIN Y. E. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. armies.

Lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.
In his capacity as chief of Marshal Pétain's cabinet he extended to us most helpful cooperation, far exceeding the bounds of his important duties to render us valuable assistance. Possessed of military attainments of a high order, he aided the allied cause greatly, and by the advice and information he so willimely furnished rendered very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army. In command of troops in the field and as chief of the French Operations Bureau DUFFOUR, GASTON C. G. A.... R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. a command of troops in the field and as effect of the French Operations Surface he rendered services of inestimable value in the prosecution of the war. He gave us very material assistance by imparting to the chief of the American Military Mission at French General Headquarters information as to the plans of his bureau. At all times he afforded us whole-hearted cooperation, going far beyond the bounds of duty to render service to the American Expeditionary Forces. Brigadier general, French Army.
As assistant chief and chief of the French Operations Bureau he was always ready to cooperate with the American military authorities. He willingly furnished us with valuable information and wise advice. Able, tactful, and helpful, he rendered very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces Lieutenant, French Army.
On duty with the French mission attached to the 4th American Army Corps, DUMAS, CHARLES F. E. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. and later with the 2d American Army, he rendered most valuable assistance to both the G-1 and G-3 sections of the staff in the preparations for and during the St. Milliel offensive. He prepared the orders for the movements of French troops operating in this offensive, and saw that they were properly executed. He also gave us great assistance in solving problems of traffic control and billeting, working cheerfully day and night performing arduous tasks and going far beyond the bounds of duty to render service to the American Expeditionary Forces. DUMESNIL, M. J. L. French Undersecretary of State for A viation, president of the interallied aviation R-France. G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919. With persistent effort and determination he supplied each American division going into the line with the same aviation equipment as was given to corresponding French units. He performed a task of tremendous magnitude with remarkable success, working at all times with great zeal for the American Expeditionary Forces. Colonel, French Army For services in connection with the supply and transportation of the American Expeditionary Forces. Brigadier general, French Army.

As President of the Interallied Commission on the Repatriation of Prisoners of War he has rendered highly meritorious service to the United States and allied Governments in connection with the repatriation of American and allied prisoners released by the armistice. He always displayed a cheerful and active interest in all that pertained to their welfare and rendered symptotic and practical economy. pathetic and practical cooperation. Major general, French Army, commanding the 37th and 77th Divisions, American Expeditionary Forces. It was under his brilliant command that the 37th and 77th United States Divisions first entered the zone of operations and engaged the enemy at Baccarat DUPORT, PIERRE G..... R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. and Badonvillers. Major of artillery, French Army.

For services as head of the French Field Artillery Mission at the School of Fire for Field Artillery, Fort Sill, Okla., from September, 1917, to May, 1918. His knowledge of field artillery, tireless effort, unfailing tact, and loyal cooperation were largely responsible for the great value of the services of this mission to that school and to the Field Artillery. DURETTE, CLÉMENT R-France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922. Lieutenant, French Army.
For services while serving as liaison officer with the 15th Field Artillery, 2d Division, American Expeditionary Forces. DUVAL, MAURICE R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, French Army. Brigader general, French Army.

As aide-major general of Air Service he cooperated in every way possible with the chief of the U. S. Air Service in the organization and development of the American air units at the front. He placed French units at our disposal during important offensive operations and at all times showed himself a most loyal friend. His service to the American Expeditionary Forces was most valuable. Major general, French Army.
As Military Governor of Lyon, France, and general commanding the 14th French Region, he served with distinction. Amid his manifold responsibilities and duties he at all times lent us his valuable assistance, greatly furthering the interests of the American Expeditionary Forces. He was in command of a region in which were located large American military centers, and the services rendered by him were of inestimable value. EBENER, CHARLES. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. ESTIENNE, JEAN B. E. Major general, French Army. Major general, French Army, is chief of tank corps, French Army, he manifested a constant desire to aid our Tank Service in every possible way, assisting in the instruction of American officers at Recoloses and giving us the benefit of his extensive experience by his valuable advice. He also came to our assistance at a critical time when he helped secure a large number of tanks from the French Government, thereby rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

FAVOLLE, MARIE E	Major general, commanding Group of Armies of the Center, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
FERRIÉ, GUSTAVE AR.—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Colonel of engineers, French Army.  He rendered the American Expeditionary Forces services of exceptional value in his capacity as technical director of the military wireless. Without his counsel and unremitting devotion to our interests, it would have been exceedingly difficult to have equipped our forces with the indispensable radio apparatus which he placed so freely at our disposal.
FEVRIER, CHARLES	Medical inspector general, medical service, French Army. For services as chief medical officer of the military government of Paris. During the period of the great offensives of Chateau-Thierry, Soissons, and the Meuse-Argonne, when the American sick and wounded were arriving in great numbers from the battle front and our hospital resources and accom- modations were exhausted, he placed at the disposal of the American Medical Service the entire available space in the French military hospitals of Paris. During the development of the American hospital facilities, General Fevrier greatly assisted the American Medical Service in the location and obtaining of suitable buildings for hospitals. He has rendered service of great merit to the United States.
FILLONNEAU, ETIENNE	Brigadier general, French Army.  As chief of the French Mission at Headquarters, Services of Supply, American Expeditionary Forces, he proved assiduous, tactful, and efficient in the performance of his duties. As intermediary between the Services of Supply and the Bureau of Franco-American Relations, he was prompt and most helpful, rendering exceptional service to the American Expeditionary Forces.
FILLOUX, LOUIS J. F	Lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.  He designed and developed the 155-mm. Glant Power Filloux material, which proved indispensable to the American Expeditionary Forces. He rendered further valuable service by placing all his technical engineering ability and experience at our disposal for the manufacture of this material in America.
FOCH, FERDINAND	Marshal of France, commander in chief of the allied armies.  As an expression to him of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army, for the distinguished and patriotic services which he has rendered to the common cause in which he has been associated on the battle fields of Europe.
FORT, JULES E. L	Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.  As chief of the French Mission of the 1st American Army throughout its operations he performed with distinction and success the task of coordinating the work of the American and French units. He was painstaking and untiring in his efficient efforts to maintain helpful cooperation.
FOURNIER, GASTON	Colonel, French Army.  He rendered specially meritorious service as chief of staff of the French Mission.  He organized the business side of the mission, the arrangements for meetings, the editing, distributing, and filing of notes with skill, accuracy, and dispatch.
FOURNIER, PIERRE R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Captain, French Army.  As chief of the 1st Bureau of the French Mission attached to General Head-quarters, American Expeditionary Forces, his thorough knowledge of the French military service, unfailing tact, and spirit of cheerful cooperation greatly assisted the officers of the American General Staff, contributing to the success of the allied cause.
FRANTZ, PHILIPPE	Brigadier general, chief of staff, 2d French Army.  For services rendered the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the Meuse-Argonne operation.
FRESOULS, EMILE S	Major of artillery, French Army.  As regulating officer at Dunkerque he occupied a particularly difficult position in being called upon to meet the needs of the British, French, Belgian, and American Armies. He, despite the complezities of situations with which he was confronted, rendered us exceptional service, lightening the task of supplying our troops in Belgium, and at all times extending whole-bearted cooperation. He brought his wide knowledge of existing conditions to bear upon difficult problems of transportation, handling them with peculiar success. At all times he displayed marked devotion to his exacting tasks. In times of need he proved himself a loyal friend of the American Expeditionary Forces.
FRID, GEORGE E	Brevet colonel, Deputy Chief of Staff, French Army of the Rhine and Allied Forces of Occupation.  For services to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany.
GAMELIN, MAURICE G R—France. G. O. No. 53, W. D., 1920	Brigadier general, French Army. As commander of the 9th French Division of Infantry, he displayed conspicuous military attainments and most loyal devotion to the allied cause. He assigned a large number of French officers and noncommissioned officers as instructors, prepared complete program of final training, cooperated with our personnel, and carefully supervised the training of the 32d Division during its training period from May 16 to July 21, 1918. By his important efforts he has rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

GANNE	French delegate of the Commissioner General for the Franco-American War Affairs.  He displayed untiring energy and exceptional ability in handling relations between the French and American authorities. At all times tactful and courteous, he did much to cement the feelings of friendship between the two nations, rendering services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Gascouin, Firmin ER.—France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.	Brigadier general, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Gassouin, Joseph M. G	Brigadier general, French Army.  As director of French military railways he displayed the same administrative ability and devotion to duty which had characterized his service as a commander of a division in the field. He has at all times showed a broad-minded appreciation of the transportation needs of the American Army and by his cordial spirit of cooperation and valuable assistance in furnishing the necessary railway facilities has rendered a substantial service to the American Expeditionary Forces.
GAUCHER, LÉON MR.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, French Army. As commander of the 164th French Division of Infantry, he displayed brilliant leadership and military attainments of a high order. The splendid successes achieved by the 4th American Division are due in no small degree to the splendid initial training in actual warfare they received under his command when they first went into the trenches in the Toul sector.
GAUTHIER, ADOLPHE F. MR.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Major of infantry, French Army, general staff of the 14th Region at Lyons, France. As head of the section of the G-2, with American division, he displayed untiring zeal, energy, and devotion to his exacting duties. By his spirit of whole-hearted cooperation with our personnel in solving the many and complex problems with which we were confronted he proved himself a most efficient officer and valuable friend.
GAUTHIER, JEAN B	Military intendant, French Army.  As Assistant Director, Bureau of the Undersceretary of State for the Liquidation of Stocks, he ably discharged a difficult and important task and rendered great service to the United States in the settlement of complicated claims and the liquidation of stocks involving millions of dollars.
GAY, ANTOINE R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant, French Army, representative of the French railroads, G-4, Base Section No. 1, Services of Supply, American Expeditionary Forces. As representative of the French railroads, he rendered the American Services of Supply invaluable assistance by obtaining for us the rolling stock necessary to forward vitally important shipments to the front. During the period of the Argonne offensive his services were of especial value.
GÉBARD, AUGUSTIN G. A	Major general, commanding the 8th French Army.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
*GÉROME, AUGUSTE C	Major general, French Army. In command of the 15th French Region, he rendered the American Expeditionary Forces most valuable assistance, showing himself resourceful and at all times willing to aid the American military authorities at the base port at Marseille. His tact was marked and he displayed ability of a high order, combined with energy and devotion to duty.  Posthumously awarded. Medal presented to wife, Madam Auguste C. Gérome.
GIGIDOT, JEAN R	Major of artillery, French Army.  As chief of staff to the adviser of the Prime Minister for Franco-American affairs, by his cordial spirit of whole-hearted cooperation with the American authorities he has rendered services of marked distinction. He has ably assisted the American Expeditionary Forces in many important matters which came before his office.
GILLY, EUGÈNE L R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Captain, French Army.  As French Commandant of the port of St. Nazaire he cooperated whole-heartedly with the American authorities, extending them most valuable assistance.  Due to his tircless efforts, facilities of the utmost importance were placed at our disposal. He showed marked ability and initiative in the performance of his arduous duties.
GIROD, LÉON A	Colonel of Air Service, French Army.  In his capacity as Chief of Training of the French Aviation Schools he opened those schools to our cadets at a time when our air program was seriously retarded by lack of trained pilots. He took a personal interest in the training of our pilots, and it is due, in a large measure, to his attention that we did not incur further delay in placing our squadrons at the front. His high military attainments enabled him to render us a very valuable service, which was enhanced by the spirit of friendship and cooperation he at all times manifested.
GODART, JUSTIN	As Undersecretary of State, Chief of the Medical Department of the French Army, he exercised his influence and energy to assist in the initial hospitalization of the American Army, and by his cordial cooperation and untiring efforts expedited and facilitated that hospitalization, thus rendering valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Lieutenant colonel of engineers, French Army.

As chief of the French Mission attached to Base Section No. 6, American Expeditionary Forces, he rendered invaluable assistance in the development of Marseille as an American base port. He displayed tact, energy, and foresight in a position of great responsibility, and his assistance aided markedly in the prompt forwarding of supplies to the troops operating in the advanced GODEFROY, ANTOINE P. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Captain of artillery, French Army.
As delegate from the Director of the Automobile Service, French General Head-quarters, to the 1st and 2d American Armies, he displayed great foresight and sound judgment, working ceaselessly and with unturing energy in our behalf. He aided us repeatedly in the solution of perplexing problems of transportation. At all times devoted to our interests, he proved Linself a loyal friend. GORJU, EUGÈNE France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Captain of General Staff, French Army.

For services as commander of the French Mission with the 89th Division and the 9th Army Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces. GOUDCHAUX, JOSEPH M..... R-France. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921. Licutenant, 59th Regiment of Artillery, French Army.

He rendered services of great worth to the American Expeditionary Forces while he was attached successively to the 1st Field Artillery Brigade and 1st Division, the 5th Army Corps, and the 9th Army Corps. His earnest devotion to duty and marked tactical ability displayed in the execution of important artillery missions have earned for him the lasting respect and high GOUIN, EDOUARD F. M. A.... R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. esteem of the American officers with whom he served. Major general, commanding the 4th French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. GOURAUD, HENRI J. E.... R-France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. GOURGUEN, LOUIS A. G..... Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army. As chief of the 2d Bureau, French Ministry of War, he at all times effectively R-France. collaborated with the various missions in deciding questions of policy and work to be undertaken. By his tactful and wholehearted cooperation he rendered valuable and distinguished service to the American Expeditionary Forces. He was tireless in devotion to his important duties, and at all times showed himself a loyal friend, zealous in our behalf. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, French Army. As commander of the 157th French Division of Infantry, he was an important factor in the successes of the Allies. By his valiant leadership and eminent tactical ability the officers and soldiers of the 371st and 372d American Infantry Regiments count it a great honor to have served as part of his command in the operations conducted by him in the Champagne and in the Vosges. Major general, French Army.

For services as commander in succession of the 28th Infantry Division, the 17th Army Corps, the 12th Army Corps, the French forces in Italy, and as the French representative on the Interallied Military Mission to Hungary, positions of great responsibility, in which he rendered valuable services in the furtherance of the allied cause. GRAZIANI, JEAN C.... R-France. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1922. GROUT, M. G.R.-France. Rear admiral, French Navy, at Base Section No. 5, American Expeditionary R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Forces. He rendered services of marked distinction and value to the American Expeditionary Forces in lending his assistance during the formative period of American Base Section No. 5. Going far beyond the bounds of duty, he placed at the disposal of that base all of the facilities at his command. Major general, French Army.

During the assault of the 5th Army Corps in the St. Mihiel offensive, Sept. 12, 1918, General Guerin commanded the 15th Division of Colonial Infantry, French Army, as a part of the 5th Army Corps. By his superior skill and leadership, his resolute execution of orders, his loyel and aggressive devotion to the operations of the 1st American Army, and his high courage in combat, he contributed in a determining manner to the assault of the 5th Army Corps. Major general commanding the 5th French Army.
For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. GUILLAUMAT, MARIE L. A.... R-France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.
As chief of the French Mission at Headquarters, Services of Supply, American Expeditionary Forces, he was zealous, tactful, and energetic in the performance of his exacting duties. At all times he displayed tact and exceptional ability. His loyal cooperation proved of great assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, French Army.

As Assistant Chief of the Army General Staff of the French Army and in his capacity as chief of the 2d Bureau of the General Staff, by his loyal cooperation in all matters concerning the American Army, he has rendered the American Expeditionary Forces eminent service. He at all times furthered those friendly relations which characterized all association of the French and American cutberities.

American authorities.

Major general, French Army. In command of the 18th French Region he gave the American military authorities earnest cooperation and sound advice on matters of great importance. His able assistance counted greatly in increasing the efficiency of Base Section No. 2. His tact, energy, and wide knowledge of conditions were most marked. First licutenant of artillery, French Army.

HALLOUIN, LOUIS E. A.

R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

R-France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919.

As a member of the artillery section of the French Mission, during the entire period of the American activities, by his energetic policy and loyal spirit of cooperation with our Artillery personnel, he rendered valuable assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces. His advice was sound; his judgment HALPHON, HENRI J R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Major of infantry, General Staff, French Army.

As a member of the French Military Commission he was on duty with the training and instruction branch of the war plans division of the General Staff. In this branch he was charged with teaching the higher phases of the HANAUT, HENRI S. A. R-France. G. O. No. 105, W. D., 1919. military art, a course which only a talented and experienced officer could have conducted. His services to the United States were of inestimable value. Captain of infantry, French Army.

As a member of the staff on the cabinet of the Minister of War, charged with HANOTEAU, JEAN A.... R-France. affairs concerning American and other allied nations, by his splendid tact, good judgment, and sympathetic understanding of the American people, he has promoted that friendly spirit which has marked all dealings of the French with the American authorities. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Territorial surgeon, major of the 2d class, Medical Service, French Army. For services as assistant to the director of the Medical Service, 9th Region, and as a member of the French Mission, Headquarters, Services of Supply. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921. Due to his energy, devotion to his task, and keen judgment, he rendered valuable assistance to the  $\Lambda$  merican Expeditionary Forces in the procurement of buildings for hospitalization and in the placing of American soldiers in French hospitals. His cordial assistance and excellent advice have been of great service to the American medical Officials. HAVARD, VICTOR\_\_\_\_\_R—France. Colonel of infantry, French Army.
As regulating officer at Creil and Nantes he rendered great service to the Amers regulating officer at Creft and Natives he rendered great service to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the surphy and transportation of the American units engaged at Cantigny and Chateau-Thierry. Later he rendered exceptionally valuable assistance in relation to the St. Mihiel and Argonne offensive, at all times displaying brilliant organizing ability and a keen spirit of cooperation. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Major general, French Army.
For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. HENNOCOUE, EDMOND C. A.... Major general commanding the 4th Cavalry Division, French Army of the R-France. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921. For services to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany. Colonel of artillery, Deputy Chief of Staff, French Army of the Rhine and Allied Forces of Occupation.

For services to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany. Hering, Pierre______ R—France. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921. HERR, FRÉDÉRIC G.... Major general, French Army. In his capacity as Inspector General of Artillery of the French Army he rendered exceptionally valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the design and production of new artillery material. He gave wise advice and painstaking assistance in this task, placing all the information at his command at our disposal. -France. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Major general, commanding the 2d French Army.

For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. HIRSCHAUER, AUGUSTE E R-France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. Hubert, Xavier, L. M. R.—R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, French Army, As a commander of a unit at the front during a period of three years, he has given eminently distinguished service to the allied cause. Later, as commander of the 1st and 2d Subdivisions of the 18th Region, by his loyal cooperation with the American authorities and ever willing in spirit to assist them with all means at his disposal, he has rendered services of great worth to the American Expeditionary Forces. Major of infantry, French Army.
As chief of the 2d Bureau, French Mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he displayed sympathetic intelligence and untiring ardor in interpreting and sustaining the American point of view in the many HUE, EUGÊNE Ŕ−France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. delicate problems that arose. Due to his zeal, a spirit of complete coopera-tion existed between the French services and the American military authori-ties. He rendered services of great distinction to the United States and France. HUMBERT, GEORGES L....

Major general, commanding the 3d French Army.

For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Major of cavalry, French Army.

As a member of the Presidency of the Council, Commissariat General of the Franco-American War Affairs, by his thorough application to the needs of the American troops and by his fervent cooperation with the American authorities he has rendered most distinguished services to the American Expeditionary Forces. The 28th Division will always remember his courteous and efficient efforts in their behalf in all their dealings with the French JACQUEMIN, HENRI R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. authorities under his able supervision. As an expression to him of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army, for the distinguished and patriotic services which he has rendered to the common cause in which he has been associated on the battle fields of Europe. Major general, French Army.
As chief of engineers, he gave the American Expeditionary Forces hearty support at all times, rendering especially valuable service by supplying the 1st American Army with ponteon equipages and bridge material. He provided an ample training center for our troops and in solving the problems of water supply and barracks construction aided materially our engineering operations Captain of infantry, General Staff, French Army.
As liaison officer with the 1st American Depot Division and the 77th American s halson officer with the 1st American Depot Division and the 77th American Division, he rendered services of exceptional value to the American Expeditionary Forces. He acted with tact and energy in handling all questions between the American military authorities, with whom he served, and the French authorities, immeasurably facilitating our work. In the field, he assured efficient liaison with the French units operating on the flanks of the 77th American Division, rendering services of inestimable worth. Colonel of cavalry, French Army.

As a lecturer at the American Army schools he displayed extraordinary enthusiasm and ability in the performance of his important duties. Fnergetic and always working for the best interests of the allied cause, he rendered very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the training of a large number of its officers. KOECHLIN-SCHWARTZ.... R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Captain of cavalry, French Army.
As a member of the Army General Staff, by his excellent military ability, sound judgment, and tact, he has given most creditable service to the Allies. His interest in the American Army was shown by his ever willing spirit to assist us by all means at his disposal. His services have been of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. LABROSSE, HENRI R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Vice admiral, French Navy, commander in chief and prefect, 5th Maritime Region. At a critical period of the war he performed invaluable service by giving assistance in the establishment of a supplementary American port at the French naval base of Toulon. He assigned docks, storage, and transport facilities to the American authorities, aiding them with his wise advice and experience, and thus assuring the rapid development of the American interests at this port. LACOMBE, LOUIS F.....R—France. G. O. No. 75, W. D., 1919. Major of infantry, French Army.

For service to the allied and associated Governments as chief of staff, French section, Supreme War Council. Major general, French Army LACOMBE DE LA TOUR, ALPHONSE E. E. As commander of the 5th French Cavalry Division in its operations with the 1st American Corps, he handled his division with ability. Zealous in his effort to effectively use his force, he was severely wounded while making a reconnaissance of the terrain between Four de Paris and Varennes. E. X. J. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Medical inspector, French Army.

As chief surgeon of the 6th French Army, he placed all the facilities of his complete organization at the disposal of the American Expeditionary Forces for instruction purposes of our inexperienced medical personnel. In February, 1918, when the 26th Division became a part of the 6th French Army, he made the most complete and detailed arrangements for the care of our sick and wounded and assisted in every possible way in making their instruction period a success. During the Chateau-Thierry offensive, when several divisions of the American Expeditionary Forces were in the 6th French Army, he rendered significant aid to the American units. Later, when he became chief surgeon of the group of armies of the Center, he again manifested the same whole-hearted spirit of cooperation and helpfulness. No demands were ever too great to receive his consideration and no effort was left unmade by him to assist in meeting the many emergencies which confronted the medical department in the trying periods of 1918. His services were of great consequence to the American Expeditionary Forces. LASNET, ALEXANDRE B.R.-France.
G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920. Surgeon principal, 2d class, French Army.
As a member of the 4th Bureau of French General Headquarters, he was closely associated with front-line medical tasks in the American Expeditionary Forces, and by his cooperation aided us in procuring hospital facilities. He displayed good judgment, broad experience, and unfailing courtesy, rendering service of inestimable value in the proper care of the sick and wounded.

LAVELLE, PAUL M. P. L	Major of infantry, French Army. As a member of the 4th French Bureau, General Staff, he showed himself at all times willing to help the American Expeditionary Forces. To expedite the selection of sites for various American transportation projects, he traveled extensively, making a personal inspection. His wide experience, tireless energy, and loyal cooperation made his services of inestimable value.
LEBRUN, LÉONCE M	Major general, French Army, commanding the 3d French Region. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
LECONTE, MARIE G. F	Major general, French Army, commanding the 33d French Army Corps, For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
LEFEVRE-PONTALIS, HENRI GR—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant of infantry, French Army.  As a member of the special Franco-American section, Army General Staff, he has administered with marked ability many important matters concerning the American Army. Actuated at all times by a spirit of friendship for the American Forces, he has rendered them great assistance by the excellent manner in which he managed the many items which came before his bureau.
LEFORT, FERRÉOL F. GR.—France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.	Colonel of engineers, French Army, assistant chief of the D. M. T. A. For services in connection with the transportation of American troops and supplies.
LEGRAND, ALBERT LR—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Captain, French Army.  As chief liaison officer with the American Rents, Requisitions, and Claims Service, he rendered most valuable service in conducting negotiations between the French and American authorities relative to the settlement of numerous claims and in making of agreements relative to the occupancy of French Government property by the American Expeditionary Forces. He displayed tact and zeal at all times, working unreservedly for the good of the allied cause.
LEGRAND, EMILE E	Major general, French Army. In command of the 15th French Region at the time of the creation of Marseille as an American base port, he gave most valuable assistance and advice to the American military authorities, rendering possible the rapid organization and development of the American base. His able cooperation assisted greatly in putting the port on an efficient basis capable of supplying the needs of the troops at the front.
Legrand, Jacques GR.—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Major of artillery, French Army. As executive member of the artillery section of the French mission at American General Headquarters during the entire period of American activities he gave himself wholly to the varied details of organization, training, and equipment of the American artillery. His services were of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
LE HENAFF, JOSEPH H. F.—————————————————————————————————	Colonel of infantry, French Army.  As representative of the French Government on the Interallied Transportation  Council he evinced great vision and excellent judgment in handling questions of interallied transportation. In helping to solve problems of supply he ren- dered assistance of the greatest value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
LEMERRE, LOUIS AR.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.  As a member of the French Military Mission attached to General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he rendered great assistance in the selection of French officers and soldiers for duty with American divisions and other American units. He at all times displayed remarkable tact and sound judgment in furthering the important tasks under his charge. Equipped, as he was, by a long period of staff training and high professional ability furthered by a keen appreciation of the importance of his task, he contributed to the maintenance of these cordial relations which had been established between the French and American forces.
EEPELLETIER, LOUIS R. VR.—France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.	Colonel of artillery, French Army.  As chief liason officer for the French War Office to American General Head- quarters, he rendered services of a distinguished character. By his pains- taking efforts and thorough understanding of conditions which the American Army had to meet, he gave valuable assistance, at all times manifesting a spirit of loyalty and friendship for the American Expeditionary Forces.
LE PELLETIER DE WOILLEMONT, BER- NARD C. F. M. X. E. G. R-France. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922. Distinguished-service cross also awarded.	Lieutenant of cavalry, French Army, As liason officer with the 2d Division he participated in all the battles in which the division was engaged. By his loyal devotion to duty, whole-hearted spirit of cooperation, and high military attainments he rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.
LE ROCH, JULIEN E R—France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.	Captain of infantry, French Army. As a member of the Liquidation Commission, American Expeditionary Forces, he rendered great service to the United States in the adjustment of numerous and complicated accounts between the United States and France.

LE ROND, HENRI L. E. R.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, General Staff, French Army. In his capacity as a member of the general staff attached to the Minister of War and supervisor of all Franco-American Missions in France, by his thorough military knowledge and fervent spirit of cooperation, he gave the American authorities invaluable assistance. He placed at the disposal of our officials all the facilities that his extensive office afforded. His services have been of inestimable worth to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Lescanne, Fernand L. J.R.—France.G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.	Major of infantry, chief of staff of the D. A., French Army. For services rendered the American Expeditionary Forces.
L'HOPITAL, RENÉ M. M.—————————————————————————————————	Captain of artillery, French Army.  As a member of the Cabinet of the Minister of War, he has at all times displayed a friendly interest in the American Army, rendering it courteous consideration and assistance in all matters which came before him. His services have been of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
LIBAUD, EMMANUEL U	Major of infantry, staff officer, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Linard, Jean L. A	Colonel of artillery, French Army, chief, French mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
LOBEZ, STANISLAS J	Colonel of cavalry, French Army. As chief of the French mission with the 32d American Division, he rendered us services of exceptional value in connection with the planning and operation of an efficient system of liason. He displayed a wide comprehension of the needs and difficulties which would be encountered and his advice proved of the greatest assistance to us. He was energetic, tactful, and tireless in his devotion to our interests.
LOMBARD, EMMANUEL E R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Captain of artillery, French Army.  As senior French instructor at the American Artillery Training Camp at Valdahon he rendered services of great value to the American Artillery. At all times he exhibited a spirit of whole-hearted cooperation with the American authorities, assisting them by all means at his command.
LORAIN,	French director of the Telephonic Exploitation of the Department of Posts, Telephones, and Telegraphs.  He procured much-needed telephone material for the American Expeditionary Forces at critical times. His assistance was indispensable in obtaining leases for the long lines which formed the basis of our general telephone and telegraph system. Laboring unremittingly in our behalf, he rendered service of inestimable value.
LOUCHEUR, LOUIS	French Minister of Armament.  He displayed ability of high order in the performance of his important duties.  In his relations with the American authorities he was tactful and zealous in our behalf, going far beyond the bounds of his duties to render valuable service and assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces.
MABILLE, MARIE J. H	Major, French Army. While he was a member of the 2d Bureau at French General Headquarters he manifested a warm spirit of cooperation by doing all in his power to aid the members of the American Military Mission at these headquarters, placing at their disposal all the important facilities of his office, rendering invaluable service to the American Expeditionary Forces. Subsequently, as chief of the 2d Bureau of the 2d French Army, he continued to perform valiant services in the common cause.
Maison, Léofold	Brevet colonel detached, French Army.  As commanding officer of artillery, 132d French Division, he rendered us service of exceptional value by his accurate and rapid work in directing and controlling the fire of the divisional artillery which was supporting the 37th American Division. His efficiency resulted in our infantry receiving all the advantages of constant artillery support, and he was in a large measure responsible for the success achieved. He displayed military attainments of a high order and was constant and untiring in his efforts in our behalf.
MAISTRE, PAUL A. M	Major general, Frency Army, commanding the Gronp of Armies of the Center. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
MAITRE, ALPHONSE A	Colonel of artillery, French Army.  As chief of the artillery section, French mission, during the entire period of American activities, he gave himself wholly to the varied details of the organization, training, and equipment of the American Artillery. His services were of inestimable value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
Mangin, Charles M. E. R.—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919.	Major general, commanding the 10th French Army.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Surgeon major, 1st class, French Army.

As regulating medical officer at Le Bourget, France, he performed highly responsible duties with conspicuous success. When the number of our wounded from the operations in the vicinity of Chateau-Thierry and Soissons became so large that our transportation facilities proved inadequate, he relieved the critical situation by placing French trains at our disposal and personally directed their operations. He also furnished supplies for American patients, cooperated in selecting advantageous evacuation points, and in numerous other ways made himself the instrumentality for saving many American lives and alleviating much suffering, thereby rendering services of incalculable value to the American Expeditionary Forces. MARCOMBE, MARIE J. P ..... R—France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. Lieutenant of cavalry, French Army. As a member of the French mission attached to the American General Head-MARTIN-ZÉDÉ, HENRI.... R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. quarters, he has constantly exerted himself in the interest of the Amercan Army, rendering us every assistance which his office afforded. By his courtesy and good judgment he has done much to further the strengthening of those friendly relatious which have characterized the services of the French and American forces. MARTY, AUGUSTIN A....R.—France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. Paymaster general of 1st c ass, French Army, technical inspector, French Military Postal Service. In charge of the French Military Postal Service, he gave us assistance of inestimable value in the planning and organization of our own military postal system. At all times he cooperated with us most whole-heartedly, giving us sound advice and proving at all times most helpful and tactful. The services which he rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces were of great worth to us. Major of artillery, French Army.
In command of the Aerial Gunnery school at Cazeaux he displayed exceptional zeal and technical knowledge, combined with keen interest in the training of American students detailed to this school. He enabled them to secure training which rendered them markedly efficient at the front, thus rendering most valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. MATHIEU DE VIENNE, ALEXANDRE H. M. Major of cavalry, French Army. As chief of the French mission attached to the American services in Paris, he rendered great service to the United States. R—France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920. MAUGIN, JULES E.... Major of infantry, French Army, assistant chief of staff of the communication R—France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922. zone. For services in connection with the ammunition supply of the American Expetionary Forces. Colonel of infantry detached, French Army.
As chief of the 4th French Bureau of the French General Staff he practically controlled transportation from the coast to the army zone. He rendered the American Expeditionary Forces service of great worth, assisting us most ably in handling the Army supply problem. He cooperated always most fully and unselfishly with the American authorities. MAURIER, GEORGES T. P. H. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Brigadier general, French Army.
As commander of the general reserve of artillery, by his carnest efforts and loyal cooperation with our forces the American Railway Artillery was always provided with suitable cantonments and equipment facilities and an ample supply of ammunition for every mission which was assigned to them. By the high quality of service be has rendered he has contributed materially to the successes achieved by our Railway Artillery during the operations against Maurin, Louis F. T.... R—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924. the enemy. Major general, French Army.

After serving with eminent distinction at the front he was assigned to the command of the 4th Region at Le Mans, France, where he continued to perform important duties with conspicuous ability. By his warm spirit of cooperation and appreciation of American needs he was of material assistance in connection with the establishment and development of our embarkation and replacement center at Le Mans, thereby rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. MAZEL, OLIVIER C. A. A. R.—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. MENARD, VICTOR R.... Major of air service, French Army. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. From the inception of the American Air Service he was its constant and reliable adviser, and rendered most important services in its training and development. He personally supervised the instruction of the first American pursuit squadrons. During the St. Mihiel attack the organization which he commanded was placed at our disposition, and in his personal direction of his group during the battle he showed military ability of a high order, rendering most distinguished service. Brevet lieutenant colonel, French Army.
He served with marked distinction as head of the 2d Bureau at French General Headquarters, performing duties of the utmost responsibility. At all times he manifested the most cordial spirit of cooperation and desire to assist our officers by all the means at his disposal, thereby rendering valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. MEYER, MAURICE R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. MICHEL, CAMILLE C. G. A.

R—France.
G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921.

Brigadier general, chief of staff of the French Army of the Rhine and chief of staff of the Interallied Armies of Occupation in Germany.

For services to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany.

For services to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany.

DECORATIONS, U. S. ARMY, 1862-1926 Second lieutenant of infantry, French Army.

He served with exceptional ability as chief of the administrative offices of the MICHEL-LEVY, MARCEL J. B.... R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. reserved with exceptional ability as their of the administrative omess of the French Mission at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, displaying the same sound judgment and untiring zeal which had previously characterized his service in the field. By his admirable tact and broad sense of justice he aided materially in solving many delicate questions which arose between the American Army and the French civilians, thereby rendering services of great worth to the American Expeditionary Forces. *Moinier, Charles E As military governor of Paris, France, he constantly rendered services of the greatest value to the American Expeditionary Forces, in whose interests he proved himself zealous and self-sacrificing. Occupying a position of high distinction and with a multitude of important duties claiming his attention, he R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. yet found time to aid us with his wise advice and extended hearty cooperation to the American military authorities.

osthumously awarded. Medal presented to next of kin, Major Moinier. Posthumously awarded. Captain of cavalry, French Army.

As an aide-de-camp on the staff of the marshal commanding the Armies of France, by his thorough military knowledge, tact, and keen judgment he has rendered valuable services to the allied cause. At all times he has shown an active interest in the American Army and has rendered them every assist-MOLINIER, FRÉDÉRIC R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. ance at his command. Major, French Army.
When he became liaison officer between the military government of Paris and the office of the chief surgeon, district of Paris, he brought to this important position a broad professional experience and devoted loyalty. During the summer of 1918, when the shortage of our hospital facilities in Paris became acute, he worked with self-sacri cing energy and made available for us many additional beds in French hospitals, also securing numerous buildings which were subsequently converted into hospitals, threeby rendering invaluable services in securing proper care for the sick and wounded of the American Expeditionary Forces. MONIER, LÉON F. V. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Expeditionary Forces. Brigadier general, French Army.
He commanded with great distinction the 69th French Infantry Division, which under his skillful leadership achieved brilliant successes in combat. The 1st American Division had a most valuable initial experience in actual warfare when it went into the trenches of the Toul sector under his supervision. He gave also equally valuable assistance in the training of other American divisions which were attached to his command. MONROE DIT ROE, MARIE L. J.... R—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924. Major general, French Army.
As chief of the military cabinet of the Minister of War, he at all times accorded most valuable assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces. In the discharge of his exacting duties he cooperated loyally with the American military authorities, and by his timely advice and wholehearted service greatly increased the efficiency of our forces. Mordacq, Jean J. H. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Vice admiral, French Navy, at Base Section No. 5, American Expeditionary Forces, Brest, France.

He rendered most valuable assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces in the solution of difficult problems arising in Base Section No. 5 at Brest. He unified the energies of the French and American authorities, working wholeheartedly in the interest of the allied cause.

As French assistant secretary of the board of finances, charged with the liquida-tion of stocks, he ably discharged difficult and important tasks and rendered great service to the United States in the settlement of complicated claims and the liquidation of stocks involving millions of dollars.

MORNET, CHARLES L. D. R-France.

G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

MOURIER, LOUIS_____ R-France.

Rear admiral, French Navy.

In command of the French Marine at Marseille he showed rare tact, judgment, and energy in the performance of his varied duties. He gave generously and untiringly of his services in furthering the interests of the American base, placing every facility at the disposal of the American authorities. MORTIER, PIERRE F

Surgeon major of 1st class, French Army. As medical member of the French Mission at General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, and later in the medical section of the Central Bureau of Franco-American Relations, he labored ceaselessly and with conspicuous success in the interests of the sick and wounded. He obtained for us hospital sites, hospital trains, and ambulances in times of emergency.

As undersecretary of state of the medical service, civilian chief of the medical department of the French Army, he placed all available resources of his great department, both in material and personnel, at the disposal of the American Expeditionary Forces. His advice was of great value, aiding us in the solution of many problems, and he rendered services of inestimable value in assisting us in securing proper evacuation and hospitalization for the sick and wounded.

Brevet lieutenant colonel, French Army. In his capacity as assistant chief, 3d Bureau, French Army, he proved himself at all times a loyal friend of the American Expeditionary Forces, being ever ready to aid us. He gave advice on important matters which proved of the greatest value in handling difficult problems which we were confronted with. At all times he afforded us most hearty cooperation in the performance of all his duties, rendering us valuable assistance.

Major general, French Army.

He served with notable success as commanding general of the 8th Region, in which was located our intermediate section, Services of Supply. By his sound judgment and unfailing cordiality he was of the utmost assistance in the solution of many problems which arose, thereby rendering services of distinction to the American Expeditionary Forces Major general, commanding the 21st Army Corps, French Army.
For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Captain of artillery, French Army.

As a member of the French Military Mission he was placed on duty with the training and instruction branch, war plans division of the General Staff.

His brilliant mental and exceptional professional attainments, coupled with NEVEGANS, PAUL E.... R-France. G. O. No. 105, W. D., 1919. rare tact and tireless devotion to duty, caused his services to be of signal worth to the United States Army. Major general, French Army, member of the Superior Council of War.
To this very distinguished soldier of the French Army this medal is presented as an expression of the high regard of the people of the United States and their Army for the distinguished and patriotic service which he has rendered to the common cause on the battle fields of Europe. NIVELLE, ROBERT G .... R—France. G. O. No. 3, W. D., 1921. Major of infantry, 4th Bureau, General Staff of the Army, (transportation), NORMAND, ANDRÉ C. J. J. French Army. As chief of section in charge of railroad transportation for the American Expeditionary Forces he rendered valuable services. He took an active interest in the transportation problems of our service, and by his energy, zeal, and good judgment aided us materially in solving the perplexing problems that con-R—France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. Major general, French Army.
As a commander, he rendered notable service in the field in command of the 34th Army Corps. As a diplomat, his keen sense of the situation, his tact and firmness toward the enemy, sound judgment in questions of moment, and constant devotion to the cause of the Allies made his services as president of the Permanent International Armistice Commission consplcuously meri-NUDANT, PIERRE A.....R.—France. G. O. No. 14, W. D., 1920. Major of artillery, French Army.
As chief of the French Military Mission with the 88th American Division he worked efficiently and tirelessly, both in the training area and in the front lines. His tactful and most capable direction of the efforts of the French officers assigned to the division met with exceptionally valuable results. He rendered efficient and valuable service to the American Expeditionary OLIVARI, CHARLES..... R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Major of engineers, French Army.
As assistant to the chief, Bureau of the General Commission of Franco-American War Affairs, he rendered great service to the United States. OPPENHEIM, RENÉ.... R—France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920. Lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.

As a member of Marshal Foch's staff he cooperated with us most efficiently in the solution of many problems which presented themselves in connection with the combined operations of the French and the American forces. With sound judgment, tact, and untiring energy he managed difficult situations, rendering us services of exceptional value. PAGÉZY, EUGUÈNE H. J.R.-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.

By his efforts in devising and developing the French system of fire control for antiaircraft artillery, adopted by our armies, and in command of the French Officers' Antiaircraft Artillery School at Arnouville les Genesse, he rendered most valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces. PAGÉZY, JULES E. E. R.—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel of infantry, French Army.

As Chief of Instruction Service he rendered very valuable assistance to the American Expeditionary Forces, aiding us continually by giving us the benefit of his able advice. He displayed military attainments of a high order, and in the midst of exacting duties he never failed to come to our assistance. He cooperated with us wholeheartedly, proving himself at all times a loyal Major general, commanding the 40th Army Corps, French Army.

For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. R—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. PAYOT, CHARLES R-France. Brigadier general, French Army, Director General of Communication and Supply for the Armies. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

Major general, commanding the 32d Army Corps, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

Major general, commanding the 12th Division of Infantry, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. PENET, HIPPOLYTE A..... R—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

102444°-27-53

PAULINIER, MARIE J. A.

Peria, Jean V. H	Controller of 1st class of the administration of the army, French Army, As controller of the administration of the army and chief of the Franco-American Service of the Direction of Control, he rendered very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the organization of the American Rents, Requisitions, and Claims Service. He aided us materially in the matter of negotiations for the installation of American projects throughout France, proving tactful, energetic, and wholeheartedly devoted to the interests of the allied cause.
PERRIN, CHARLES E. F	Brevet lieutenant colonel, French Army, chief of the Interallied Bureau of Operations, Interallied Armies of Occupation.  For services to the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany.
PESSON-DIDION, MAURICE	Captain of infantry, French Army.  As a member of the French Mission in Paris he gave invaluable aid and assistance to the American authorities on numerous occasions when it was necessary to obtain material quickly in order to further the operations of the American Army. At all times he showed earnest cooperation with all the American authorities in all the activities in which he was associated with them.
PÉTAIN, HENRI P. B. O. J	Marshal of France, commander in chief of the French Armics of the North and Northeast.  As an expression to him of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army, for the distinguished and patriolic services which he has rendered to the common cause in which he has been associated on the battle fields of Europe.
PETIT, PAUL A. J	Surgeon major of 2d class, Medical Service, French Army. Attached to the medical section of the Central Bureau of Franco-American Relations and later at G-4, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces, he gave whole-hearted assistance and cooperation at all times. His advice and distinguished ability materially aided us in the prompt evacuation and hospitalization of casualties.
PIARRON DE MONDESIR, JEAN F. L R-France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Major general, commanding the 36th Army Corps, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
PICARD, FRANCOIS	Captain of cavalry, French Army.  He served with marked distinction in his capacity as aide to Marshal Pétain, and rendered very valuable service to the allied cause. He was at all times energetic and tactful in behalf of the American Expeditionary Forces, and by the sound advice and accurate information with which he furnished us proved of very material assistance. At all times he cooperated with us wholeheartedly, and showed himself a loyal friend.
PIKETTY, PAUL	Major of artillery, French Army.  As Chief of the 3d Division of Artillery, by his able advice and assistance the vocation of the organization and training centers for the heavy artillery of the American Expeditionary Forces was decided upon and the equipment and organization of these training centers were accomplished. He displayed great personal interest in the solution of the details of his task, at all times exhibiting an energetic spirit in furthering the general plan and in securing grants from the Ministry of War. His services have been of a high order.
Pompé, Daniel	Lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces.
PONT, FERDINAND A. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Major general, French Army.  He served with marked distinction throughout the war and in positions of great responsibility rendered invaluable service to the American Expeditionary Forces. As Deputy Chief of Staff of the French Army he displayed brilliant military genius and was at all times ready to afford us most loyal cooperation.
POUPART, HARMAN. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Major of infantry, 158th Regiment of Infantry, French Army. In command of front-line troops he performed valiant and faithful service in the allied cause. When he became an assistant to the members of the American Military Mission at French General Headquarters his wide practical experience fitted him admirably for his important duties, and by his zeal in promoting the interests of our Army he rendered services of the highest value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
POUPINEL, RAYMOND J. ER-France. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920.
POUY, JEAN F	Medical inspector, French Army. As chief of the hospitalization section of the undersecretary of state for the Medical Service, he collaborated with the Medical Service of the American Expeditionary Forces in the preparation of a comprehensive hospitalization program. Through his wide knowledge of the possible hospital resources of France and his persistent efforts to insure adequate care for American soldiers, the trying period preeding combat operations was successfully bridged. He met all demands made for the delivering of French hospitals bridged. He met all demands made for the delivering of French hospitals to the American Expeditionary Forces, even to the extent of burdening his own service. By his broad-minded conception of our problem and his energetic assistance in a most important task, he rendered estimable services to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Second lieutenant of engineers, French Army.

By his exceptional enthusiasm, good judgment, and untiring energy in the performance of his arduous duties as instructor at the American Army signal schools at Laugres he proved himself of great value in the instruction of the Signal Corps of the American Expeditionary Forces. Interpreter officer of the 1st class, French Army.

As military secretary and chief of cabinet to the marshal commanding the allied armies he was charged with duties of a most exacting and responsible character, which duties he performed with conspicuous success. In his official capacity he was called upon to treat matters of the utmost delicacy pertaining to American affairs, in the conduct of which he displayed admirable tact, comprehension, and marked ability, thereby rendering invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces. Captain of infantry, French Army.

As a member of the cabinet of the Minister of War by his good judgment and earnest cooperation with the American authorities he has rendered services of marked distinction to the American Expeditionary Forces. ALBERT____ Brigadier general, French Army, chief, French Mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces.
For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. RAGENEAU, CAMILLE M..... G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Colonel of infantry, French Army.

As Chief of the Franco-American Bureau of the Army General Staff, he performed eminent and important services to the U.S. Army in deciding many essential questions in our relations with the French. That he acted with exceptional success is proven by the cordial relations which were at all times Lieutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.
As head of the artillery section of the French Mission to the United States during the World War by his untiring efforts he aided materially in the training of the Artillery in the United States. REMOND, LOUIS.... Colonel of artillery, French Army. For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as chief of the French Artillery Mission to the United States. R—France. G. O. No. 29, W. D., 1919. Colonel of infantry, French Army. Staff of the Personnel Bureau and as head of the 1st Bureau of the General Staff of the French Army, he placed the facilities of his important office at the service of the American authorities, lending every assistance in his power to meet the needs of the American troops. His services, rendered with a loyal spirit of cooperation, have been of great value to the American Expeditions. tionary Forces. Major general, French Army. As commanding general of the 9th French Region, in which were located REQUICHOT, HENRY L. M. J. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. American Headquarters, Services of Supply, he showed himself uniformly helpful, giving us willing assistance and cooperation. He went far beyond the exacting duties of his office to aid the American Expeditionary Forces in securing necessary supplies. REQUIN, EDOUARD J....R.—France. G. O. No. 29, W. D., 1919. Brevet licutenant colonel, French Army.
For services rendered the United States Army while serving as the personal representative of Marshals Joffre and Foch and as special delegate of the French General Staff to the United States. Major of infantry, French Army.

For services as an instructor of the 90th Division. During the training of the division at Aignay-le-Due he was constantly in the field, and by his unceasing work and high military attainments he materially assisted the division to acquire as quickly as possible that proficiency which enabled it to join the fighting forces at the front. His services at this period were invaluable, and later at the front his courage and coolness were an inspiration to the men who saw him. Major of engineers, French Army.

As representative of the 4th Bureau, French Armies of the North and Northeast, in the office of assistant chief of staff, G-4, he was charged with the supervision of the supply of French units and personnel placed at the disposition of the lst American Army. By his high professional attainments and interest he assured the closest liaison between the French and American authorities, contributing largely to the success of the allied cause. Major of the 1st class, Medical Service, French Army.

For services as an eminent scientist. By his untiring zeal, devotion, and energy he promoted the efficient treatment of the American sick and wounded. In his important research work he cooperated with the Medical Service of the American Expeditionary Forces in the fullest measure of devotion to duty. To him is due much credit for the arresting of the ravages of disease and injuries among our forces. Its valuable research efforts in the domain of preventive medicine and wound bacteriology resulted in the saving of many lives among our wounded soldiers. He has rendered services of signal worth, RIST, EDOUARD..... R—France. G. O. No. 59, W. D., 1921.

DECORATIONS, U. S. ARMY, 1862-1926 Lieutenant of infantry, French Army. For services rendered the United States Army while serving as French liaison G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922. officer in the division of criminal investigation, American Expeditionary Forces Medical inspector, French Army.

As chief surgeon of a group of armies, and later as chief of the cabinet of the undersecretary of state for the medical service, by his broad-minded treatment of all important questions arising with regard to hospitalization, and by his earnest cooperations with our Medical Service in all matters affecting the furtherance of efficiency in the care of our sick and wounded, he has rendered services of an important character to the American Expeditionary Forces. He at all times gave ready assistance to the limit of his power, in all important medical matters which constantly came under his extensive jurisdictions. He rendered services of great consequence to the American Expeditions. ditionary Forces. Professor, medical inspector, French director of Pasteur Institute, Paris, France. By his untiring zeal and devotion to the promotion of efficient treatment of the American sick and wounded, and by his carnest cooperation with the medica service of the American Expeditionary Force in important research work, the inroads of disease and infections from wounds among Americans were curtailed. By his eminent skill in scientific research in the field of preventive medicine and wound bacteriology, he achieved marvelous results in the saving of lives among our sick and wounded. He has rendered services of great consequence to the American Expeditionary Forces. sequence to the American Expeditionary Forces. Major of artillery, French Army. He organized schools for ordnance and artillery mechanics and inspectors in the American Field Artillery Training Camp at Valdahon and in the American Ordnance Training Center at Is-sur-Tille. In the training of officers and soldiers of our armies he showed high military attainments and achieved ROUX, PAUL L.... -France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. distinguished success. Lieutenant colonel of infantry, 3d Bureau, French Army.
He was tireless in his efforts to keep the American Mission at French General Headquarters informed on all matters of importance to it, rendering very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces; he at all times afforded us most loyal cooperation, proving unflagging in his devotion to our interests. He displayed military attainments of a high order and gave us valuable advice in times of emergency. ROZET, HENRI E.... -France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

SAINTE-CLAIRE-DEVILLE, CHARLES E... R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

SISTERON, EUGÊNE P. J.....R.—France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.

SORDET, HENRI. R—France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920. Major general, French Army.
As inspector general of material and ammunition for the French Armies he placed at our disposal at all times the results of his wide experience and the facilities under his control. He rendered most valuable service to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the development of the American ordnance inspection and maintenance work.

Vice admiral, French Navy.

As prefect maritime, governor of the place of Brest, by his splendid spirit of whole-hearted cooperation with the American authorities in all matters concerning the welfare and comfort of the large number of American troops which constantly passed through the important port of Brest, he has rendered services of signal worth to the American Expeditionary Forces. Every demand upon the facilities of his office received the same courteous consideration which characterized all the dealings of the Americans with him and his efficient personnel.

Major of infantry, French Army.

As a member of the Cabinet of the Minister of War he has always exhibited a sympathetic interest in the American Army, offering them every assistance which his office afforded. His services have been of a high order and of much value to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, French Army, commanding the garrison of Mayence,

Brigadier general, Frenen Army, commanding the garrison of Mayene Germany.

For services in the allied cause and to the American forces in Germany.

Captain, 132d Regiment of Infantry, French Army, liaison officer, 1st Division, American Expeditionary Forces.

By his high professional attainments and wide experience he rendered invaluable services to the American Expeditionary Forces as liaison officer of the 1st Division. Both during the training period of the division and subsequently during active operations he performed his task with excellent judgment, admirable tact, and earnest loyalty.

Major of infantry, French Army, assistant chief of staff of the communications zone.

For services rendered the American Expeditionary Forces.

Captain of infantry, French Army.

As chief of a section of the Franco-American Mission in Paris, his duties required the daily handling of important matters with the Liquidation Commission. He rendered great service to the United States in the efficient performance of these difficult tasks.

Colonel of infantry, Chlef of Staff, 2d Division of Infantry, French Army. He has been a most sincere and devoted friend to American interests, always willing to do more than his share to bring about a harmonious and friendly understanding between the French and American authorities. By his unfailing tact, sympathy, and understanding, and by his unfiring efforts to successfully solve the many intricate problems that arose between the French and the Americans, he has rendered an invaluable service to the American SPITZ, MARIE C. L. R-France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

Expeditionary Forces.

He rendered service of great value for the American Expeditionary Forces as High Commissioner of the French Republic at Washington, D. C. Dis-playing tact, energy, and devotion to duties, he handled difficult problems with unswerving zeal for the good of the American Army.

> Captain, Air Service, French Army. He commanded the Lafayette Escadrille from the time of its creation in April le commanded the Lafayette Escadrille from the time of its creation in April of 1916 until it was transferred to the Air Service, American Expeditionary Forces in January, 1918. He led the squadron throughout the operations in Alsace and the Verdun offensive in 1916, later participating in the allied offensive on the Somme and the Aisne. In 1917 he continued to command the squadron which was withdrawn from the line, and participated immediately afterwards in the operations on the Chemin des Dames. During this time more than 50 American pursuit pilots served in this unit. By his initiative, force, courage, and devotion to duty he contributed matcally to the successful operations of the squadron and instilled in the American pilots under his command the principles of pursuit aviation which contributed materially to the success of other American pursuit organizations when these pilots were transferred. By his ability as a pilot and his frequent massions over the lines he set an admirable example to the American officers under his command. command.

> Licutenant colonel of artillery, French Army.
>
> As director of organization at the Samur Artillery School, he rendered services of inestimable value to the American artillery. By his energy, enthusiasm, and devotion, he lightened the task involved in the training of young officers for the greatly expanded artillery establishment needed for the American Major of engineers, French Army.

As a member of the 4th Bureau of the General Staff of the French Army he rendered invaluable service to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the selection of suitable sites for depots and hospitals. He gave us histime willingly, although his duties were pressing, aiding us most ably in the development of plans, and frequently furnishing us with labor and construction material in time of emergency.

Colonel of engineers, French Army.
As director of telegraphic service of the 2d line, he labored most zealously and efficiently in our interests at French General Headquarters. He willingly offered wise counsel and unfailing support in our applications for service and

Major of infantry, French Army.
As chief of the French officers assigned to the 90th Division during the training is effect of the French oncers assigned to the division at the front, by his treless efforts, willing spirit of cooperation, and his high military attainments he rendered services of great value to our troops and won the warmest admiration of both officers and men. On the front in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives his conduct and courage were a marked example to the men of the 90th Division.

Professor, French medical inspector, School of Medicine.
By his untiring zeal and devotion to the promotion of efficient treatment of the American sick and wounded, and by his earnest cooperation with the medical service of the American Expeditionary Forces in important research work, the inreads of disease and infections from wounds among Americans were curtailed. By his eminent skill in scientific research in the field of preventive medicine and wound bacteriology, he achieved marvelons results in the saving of lives among our sick and wounded. He rendered services of great consequence to the American Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier general, French Army. As chief of staff to the commanding general, Military Governor of Paris, he has at all times manifested a most cordial attitude in all Franco-American relations, offering us every assistance at the command of his far-reaching office. His services to the American Expeditionary Forces have been of great value.

Major of cavalry, French Army.

As chief of the 2d-Bureau of Marshal Foch's staff he kept us constantly informed as to the general trend of operations as well as the situation of the enemy. He brought to bear on this important task an exact knowledge of the terrain, comprehensive understanding of the enemy movements, and the successive situations which confronted our troops. The services which he so willingly rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces were of exceptional

Major general, commanding the 13th Army Corps, Franch Army. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.

G. O. No. 62, W. D., 1919.

THENAULT, GEORGES R-France. G. O. No. 15, W. D., 1923.

TINARDON, M. A. R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

Tongas, Gaston R-France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.

TREMBLAY, FRANCOIS L.... R-France. G. O. No. 49, W. D., 1922.

TUFFIER, T.....R—France. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.

VALDANT, HENRY C. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

VALLOTTE, PAUL C. A. R. R—France. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

VANDENBURG, CHARLES A.... R—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.

VAN HEEMS, ROGER AR.—France. G. O. No. 19, W. D., 1922.	Major of intantry, French Army, regulating commissioner at Le Bourget, France. For services in connection with the supply and transportation of American troops during the operations at Chateau-Thierry.
VARAIGNE, HENRI A	Major of infantry, French Army. As chairman of the French Mission attached to the Headquarters of the American General Purchasing Board he rendered services of inestimable importance in carrying on for us negotiations with the French Government for the procurement of an immense amount of material. He was indefatigable in his efforts in our behalf, proving himself able, tactful, and possessed of a wide comprehension of existing needs and conditions. Cooperating with us at all times most whole-heartedly, he proved a loyal friend.
VERLEY, EDOUARDR.—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.
VERNAY, ROMAIN P. J. J. R.—France. G. O. No. 24, W. D., 1920.	As French military intendant in the bureau of the assistant secretary of the board of finances, liquidation of stocks, he ably discharged a difficult and important task and rendered great service to the United States in the settlement of complicated claims and the liquidation of stocks involving millions of dollars.
VIDAL, PAUL. R—France. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Major general, French Army.  In command of the 7th French Region he was tireless in his devotion to our interests and to the success of our varied projects in the region of which he had charge. His relations with the American military authorities were always cordial and helpful. He always evinced personal interest in our plans and aided us materially by his sound advice.
VIDALON, JEAN R—France. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1924.	Brigadier general, French Army. As Assistant Chief of Staff of the French Army and as head of the 2d section of the General Staff, particularly charged with relations with foreign armies and of the special Franco-American Bureau, he successfully and most satisfactorily managed and coordinated the relations of the ministry of war with the American authorities. To him is due much credit for the able direction of all the American units in French territory. His able assistance has contributed in a large measure to the friendly spirit that has existed between the French and the Americans.
Vignal, Paul. R—France. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, French Army. For services rendered the United States Army while serving as military attaché to the French Embassy and chief of French Military Mssions to the United States.
VINEL, LOUIS A	As Quartermaster General of the French Army he showed ability of the highest order in handling his important duties and cooperated most loyally with the the American military authorities. In a position of great responsibility, he made special efforts to aid the American Expeditionary Forces.
WAHL, VICTOR E	Colonel of infantry, French Army.  As commander of the 1st Brigade, Artillery of Assault, by his marked ability, initiative, and sound judgment, he gave much valuable assistance to the American armies operating in the St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensives.  His earnest cooperation in carrying out the details of the plans of operations had a marked influence on the success of the Tank Corps units in those important operations.
WALCH, CAMILLE
WEYGAND, MAXIME	Brigadier general, French Army, Chief of Staff to Marshal Foch. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
Wirbel, Henri R—France. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
WISSEMANS, MAURICE M R—France. G. O. No. 39, W. D., 1920.	Medical inspector, Chief of the Medical Service, 2d French Army. When the 1st American Division went into the Verdun sector for training purposes, he collaborated with the medical service of the American Expeditionary Forces in every possible way to the end that our battle casualties should receive proper care. Later, as chief surgeon of the Group of Armies of the East, he actively participated in the preparation of the plans for the St. Mihiel and the Argonne offensives. His wide experience in battle conditions and his whole-hearted desire to be of assistance to his contrary's allies enabled him to render services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces. He freely placed at the disposition of the American Expeditionary Forces all his resources as to hospitals, ambulance and train transportation, and medical material. His able advice and valuable assistance was a material factor in the provisions for the care and evacuation of our battle casualties. He rendered services of great consequence to the American Expeditionary Forces.
	201000

ITALIANS

[Awarded for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in a position of great responsibility, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

ALBRICCI, CONTE ALBERICO R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Italian Army.  As commander of the 2d Italian Army Corps in France he rendered services of great distinction to the allied cause. Later as Minister of War he showed a keen spirit of cooperation with the American forces in Italy, assisting us by all means at the disposal of his extensive office. He has given services of great value to the American Expeditionary Forces.
ALLEGRETTI, LORENZOR-Italy. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Major, commanding the Arditi Assault Battalion, Italian Army, while attached to the 332d Infantry, American Expeditionary Forces. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
ANGELOZZI, CAMILLO	Lieutenant general, Italian Army.  As Director General of Engineers, Italian Army, he performed his exacting duties with eminent technical skill. At all times he was actuated by a desire to aid the American authorities by all the means at his command, thereby rendering services of the greatest value to the common cause.
APOLLONI, ENEAL	Lieutenant colonel, Italian Army.  As liaison officer with the American Red Cross, by his admirable tact and helpful spirit of cooperation he aided materially in the effective relief work of this organization in earing for the sick and wounded of the American and Italian Armies.
AYMONINO, ALDO R—Italy. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919.	Colonel, Italian Army, chief of Group of Allied Missions of the Comando Supremo in Italy.  For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
BADOGLIO, PIETRO	Lieutenant general, Deputy Chief of Staff, Italian Army.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
BASSI, GUIDO R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Brigadier general, Italian Army. As a member of the Interallied Commission on the Repatriation of Prisoners of War he has rendered highly meritorious service to the United States and allied Governments in connection with the repatriation of American and allied prisoners released by the armistice. He always displayed a cheerful and active interest in all that pertained to their welfare, and rendered sympathetic and practical cooperation.
Bongiovanni, Luigi
Businelli, Ugo	Colonel, Italian Army. For services to the allied and associated Governments as chief of staff, Italian section, Supreme War Council, Apr. 27, 1918, to Feb. 11, 1919.
CARPENTIERI, GIACOMO	Colonel, Italian Army.  As chief of the Transportation Department, Italian Army, he displayed exceptional administrative ability and untiring energy in his important duties, thereby playing an important part in assuring the victorious termination of our struggles against the common enemy. Manifesting an earnest desire to aid the American forces in every possible way, he assisted us materially by furnishing adequate facilties for the transportation of our troops and supplies.
CAVALLERO, UGO	General, Italian Army.  For services to the allied and associated Governments as permanent military representative, Italian section, Supreme War Council.
CAVIGLIA, ENRICO	Lieutenant general, Italian Army.  In his capacity as Secretary of State for War, he was a potent factor in the victorious termination of our struggles against the common foc. For his unfalling courtesy and constant desire to aid in every possible way the American forces serving in Italy, he will ever be held in enduring memory by the officers and soldiers of our forces serving on Italian soil.
CHIESA, EUGENIO	As Minister of Aeronautics for Italy, he rendered very valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces in connection with the training of our pilots and the supply of aviation material. At all times he displayed a helpful interest in our Air Service, going far beyond the bounds of duty to render us advice and assistance. He has proved himself possessed of a wide knowledge of all matters pertaining to aviation and was always a loyal friend.

Dallolio, Alfredo	Lieutenant general, Italian Army.  As Inspector General of Artillery, Italian Army, he performed duties of the greatest importance with conspicuous ability. Actuated by a warm spirit of cooperation, he aided materially in maintaining the cordial relations which existed between the Italian and American military authorities.
DE ANGELIS, CIRO	Major general, commanding 31st Infantry Division, 3d Italian Army.  For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
DELLA VAILE, FRANCESCO	Major general, Italian Army.  Serving as surgeon general of the Italian Army he performed duties of the greatest responsibility with conspicuous merit. By his sympathetic knowledge of American needs he was of the greatest assistance in securing proper care for our sick and wounded in Italy.
DE LUCA, MARCELLO	General, Italian Army. As chief of staff of a division at the outbreak of the war, he gave excellent service; later as commander of an infantry brigade, he showed great initiative and marked tactical ability; and finally as chief of staff of the Army Corps of Genoa he rendered eminent distinguished service.
DE MARCORENGO, FABRIZIO ODETTI R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Italian Army.  As remount inspector of the Italian Army be performed his exacting duties with conspicuous success. Through his earnest desire to give the American authorities the advantage of all facilities at his disposal, he rendered services of the highest value in promoting effective cooperation between the two armies.
DEVALLE, GIOVANNI	Colonel, Italian Army.  He served with distinction as chief of T. A. E. A. of the Italian Army, contributing materially to the success of the common cause. At all times manifesting a cordial spirit of cooperation, he did much toward promoting the harmonious relations existing between the Italian Army and the American forces serving in Italy.
DIAZ, ARMANDOR—Italy. G. O. No. 111, W. D., 1918.	Lieutenant general, commander in chief, Italian Armies.  As an expression to him of the high regard of the people of the United States and of their Army, for the distinguished and patriotic services which he has rendered to the common cause in which he has been associated on the battle fields of Europe.
DI CAMPIGLIONE, ENRICO	Captain, Italian Army. For services rendered the United States Army while serving as the liaison officer between the embassy, the High Commission of Italy, and the War Department.
DI ROBILLANT, MARIO NICOLISR—Italy. G. O. No. 75, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Italian Army. For services to the allied and associated Governments as permanent military representative, Italian section, Supreme War Council, Apr. 27, 1918, to Feb. 11, 1919.
DI SAVOIA, EMANUELE FILIBERTOR-Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Italian Army, commanding the 3d Italian Army.  For services rendered the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged.
GIRALDI, GUGLIELMO PECORIR—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.	Lieutenant general, Italian Army. As commander of the 1st Italian Army, he rendered eminent services to the 332d U. S. Infantry, whose good fortune it was to be attached to his command during its training period, and which owes much of its successful preparation for combat to his painstaking efforts in its behalf.
GRAZIOSI, EUGENIO	Brigadier general, Italian Army. As Director of Military Transportation of the Army of Italy, he rendered valuable service to the allied cause. His energy and zealous efforts were a deciding factor in the successful movement of the American forces in Italy.
GUGLIELMOTTI, EMILIOR.—Italy. G. O. No. 11, W. D., 1919.	Major general, Italian Army. For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as military attaché to the Royal Italian Embassy, Washington, D. C.
Guidoni, AlessandroR—Italy. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.
HUNTINGTON, CARLO H	Captain, Italian Army. As principal assistant to the chief of the Italian Mission attached to American beadquarters be has rendered great assistance to the various staff services at general headquarters. At all times he has manifested a zealous spirit of full cooperation with our staff personnel, furthering these cordial relations which have always prevailed between the Italian and American services.
Lanza, Paolo	Colonel, Italian Army. As Assistant Director of Transportation by his whole-hearted cooperation he rendered valuable services to the American Expeditionary Forces, General, Italian Army LEVI, CAESER GIULIO ..... General, Italian Army.

As the representative of the Italian Government on the Interallied Transportation Council he aided in the solution of difficult transportation problems, involving shipment of supplies from and to Italy. He proved an able executive and demonstrated the possession of broad vision and sound judgment. R—Italy. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Major general, Italian Army.

In his capacity as general attached to the Italian War Ministry he showed a constant desire to aid the American forces in every possible way. By his helpful spirit of cooperation he did much toward the success of operations against the common enemy, rendering services of worth to the allied cause. MALLANDRA, GUISEPPE..... R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Italian Army.

He performed his highly important duties as chief of the Intelligence Department of the Italian Army with conspicuous success, aiding thereby to a marked degree in the success of the operations against the common foe. Actuated by a constant desire to assist the American authorities with all the facilities of his office, he contributed materially to the harmonious relations' existing between the Italian Army and the American forces in Italy. MARCHETTI, ODOARDO_____ R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant general, Italian Army.
He served with distinction as Inspector General of Engineers, Italian Army, displaying technical attainments and devoted loyalty to the common cause. Ever ready to aid the American authorities with all the facilities at his command, he was a potent factor in furthering the spirit of cooperation which marked the relations of the Italian and American forces. MARIENI, GIOVAN BATTISTA.....R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Major general, Italian Army, Italian representative, Military Board of Allied Supply. Supply.

For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. Major general, Italian Army He served with distinction as Director General of Transport and Administration of the Italian Army. He was ever ready to aid the American forces by his sound advice and cordial spirit of cooperation, thereby aiding us materially in the solution of the many problems of transportation which arose during the continued operations against the enemy. Major, Italian Army, chief of Paris section, Italian Foreign Military Aeronautical Mission.

For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. MOLTENI, FILIPPO..... R—Italy. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Major general, Italian Army.
As corps commander of the Italian Oriental Expeditionary Force during the war and as the Italian representative on the Interallied Military Mission to Hungary, positions of great responsibility, in which he rendered valuable services in the furtherance of the Allied cause. Mombelli, Ernesto______R—Italy. G. O. No. 10, W. D., 1922. MONTUORI, LUCA.... Lieutenant general, Italian Army Lieutenant general, Italian Army.

As commanding general of the 5th Italian Army he displayed eminent military attainments in the performance of his important duties. To his brilliant leadership was duc, in no small degree, the success achieved by the Italian R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. forces against the common foe. PAOLINI, GIUSEPPE......R.—Italy. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant general, Italian Army, commanding 11th Army Corps, 3d Italian Army.

For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. Brigadier general, Italian Army, chief, Italian Mission, General Headquarters, American Expeditionary Forces. For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause PERELLI, IPPOLITO..... R-Italy. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. in which the United States has been engaged. Brigadier general, Italian Army.

As Adjutant General of the Italian Army he performed his manifold duties with PIRAJNO, ANTONIO R-Italy. G. O. No. 46, W. D., 1920. excellent success. At all times desirons of aiding the American forces in every possible way, he did much to further the spirit of harmony which marked the relations between the Italian and American Armies. excellent success. Colonel, General Staff, Italian Army, Italian military delegate for British and RAGIONI, RODOLFO..... R—Italy. G. O. No. 45, W. D., 1919. American troops. For services performed for the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. Colonel, Air Service, Italian Army.
He furnished us with scientific and technical information needed in the development of the American Air Service in America, France, and in Italy. At all times he showed himself zealous in our behalf, going far beyond the bounds of his important duties to render us invaluable services. His judgment was sound, his advice helpful, his loyalty whole-hearted. RICALDONI, OTTAVIO R-Italy. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919. Colonel, Italian Army.

By his efficient performance of his exacting duties as chief of the General Staff Department, Italian Army, he did much toward bringing about the victory which terminated our struggles against the common enemy. At all times he showed an ardent desire to give every consideration to the American forces serving in Italy, thereby furthering materially the effective cooperation of the Italian and American Armies. ROTA, ALFREDO.... R-Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

RUISECCO, CLAUDIO.....

Captain, Italian Army.

In his capacity as assistant to the chief of the Italian Mission at American General Headquarters, he has constantly shown an earnest desire to furnish our staff services with all assistance at his command. With a loyal devotion to the common cause, he furthered the friendly relations between the time allied common cause. R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. the two allied services. Lieutenant general, Italian Army.

As Director General of Artillery of the Italian Army he was charged with duties of a most important nature, which he performed with marked zeal and ability. He was ever ready to place the facilities of his office at the disposal of the American authorities and thereby rendered important service SACHERO, GIACINTO..... R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. in assuring the efficient cooperation of the two armies. Colonel, Italian Army. His services were of distinguished merit as chief of the Italian Mission. His conscientious attention to duty presented a united allied front to the enemy, while his diplomatic tact cemented the cordial relations among the allies, SCIPIONI, SCIPIONE Major general, Italian Army.

For services rendered to the American Expeditionary Forces and to the cause in which the United States has been engaged. R-Italy. G. O. No. 17, W. D., 1919. Sogno, Vittorio R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant colonel, Italian Army. Lieutenant colonel, Italian Army.

He served with conspicuous success as chief of the 3d section of the General Staff Department, Italian Army, performing services of the utmost importance in connection with the struggle against the common enemy. The warm spirit of cooperation which he constantly displayed in his dealings with the American authorities was a potent factor in cementing the cordial relations between the Italian Army and the American forces serving in Italy. Lieutenant general, Italian Army. He commanded with distinction the 4th Italian Army, performing duties of great importance with conspicuous success. Itis high military attainments and the able leadership were an important factor in the victorious termination of the struggle against the common enemy. TASSONI, GIULIO R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant general, Italian Army.

As Judge Advocate General of the Italian Army he performed his exacting duties with high conceptions of justice and loyal devotion to the common cause. By his unfailing desire to aid the American forces in every possible way he did much to further the harmonious relations which existed between the true exprise. TOMMASI, DONATO ANTONIO..... R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. the two armies. Lieutenant colonel, Italian Army.
For services to the allied and associated Governments as chief of staff, Italian section, Supremo War Council. Lieutenant colonel, Italian Army. As chief of R. Section, Intelligence Department, he performed his important duties with rare skill and untiring energy. Always ready to aid the American authorities with all the facilities at his command, he did much toward making possible the efficient cooperation of the American forces with the Italian Army. Brigadier general, Italian Army.

As Chief of General Staff Department, Italian Army, he played an important part in bringing about the successful termination of the common struggle against the Central Powers by his distinguished services in a duty of great responsibility. Ever ready to aid the American forces in Italy by all the means at his disposal, he was an important factor in maintaining the harmonious relations between the American and Italian authorities. VACCHELLI, NICOLA.... R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. Lieutenant general, Italian Army. He rendered invaluable services to the common cause as Quartermaster General, Italian Army, displaying keen foresight and notable executive ability. By his ardent desire to assist the American forces in every possible way he was a potent factor in fostering the spirit of cooperation which marked the relations of the Italian and American Armies. Lieutenant colonel, Italian Army.

As Chief of P. of W. Department, he performed highly exacting duties with unflagging energy and marked executive ability. At all times he aided the American authorities in every way possible, thereby assisting materially in furthering the cordial relations between the Italian Army and the American ZANGHIERI, GIOVANNI R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919. forces serving in Italy. Colonel, Italian Army.

Charged with highly responsible duties as Chief of Organization and Demobilization Department, Italian Army, he displayed eminent administrative ability and rendered services of great value to the common cause. By his broad-minded spirit of cooperation and unfailing courtesy he did much toward promoting the harmony which marked the relations between the Italian Army and the American forces serving in Italy. Lieutenant general, Italian Army.

As Secretary of State for War he performed highly responsible duties with conspicuous ability and devoted loyalty, thereby meriting a large share of the credit for the success of our common cause. The unbroken harmony which marked the relations of the American and Italian military authorities was in no small degree a reflection of the war spirit of cooperation which he constantly manifested. ZUPELLI, VITTORIO R—Italy. G. O. No. 126, W. D., 1919.

JAPANESE

[Awarded for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in a position of great responsibility, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

INOUYE, KAZUTSUGU	Major general, Imperial Japanese Army.  For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as military attaché to the Imperial Japanese Embassy, Washington, D. C.
Mizumachi, T	Lieutenant colonel, Imperial Japanese Army.  For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as military attaché to the Imperial Japanese Embassy, Washington, D. C.
OTANI, KIKUZO	General, Imperial Japanese Army. For services as senior allied commander in Siberia.
TANAKA, GIICHI	General, Imperial Japanese Army. For services rendered the United States during the World War and in his relations with the U. S. Army while serving as vice chief of the Japanese General Staff and later as Minister of War of the Empire of Japan.
UYEHARA, Y	General, Imperial Japanese Army. For services rendered in the war against Germany and in his relations with the U. S. Army while serving as Chief of the General Staff, Imperial Japanese Army.
WATARI, HISAO	Captain, Imperial Japanese Army. For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as acting military attaché to the Imperial Japanese Embassy, Washington, D. C.

CITIZENS OF OTHER COUNTRIES

[Awarded for exceptionally meritorious and distinguished services in a position of great responsibility, under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

ARGENTINIAN
CHUTRO, PIETRO	At his clinic in Paris, Doctor Chutro devoted himself unreservedly to teaching American medical officers the principles of the lessons learned through experience by the French and British surgeons in the first years of the war, with the result that the knowledge so imparted assisted in a great measure to conserve the life and limb of thousands of American and allied wounded.
RUMANIANS
RUDEANU, JOHN	General, Rumanian Army. For services in connection with the American Military Mission in Hungary.
Teiusanu, Livius D R—Rumania. G. O. No. 87, W. D., 1919.	Major, Rumanian Army. For services rendered the U. S. Army while serving as military attaché to the Rumanian Legation, Washington, D. C.
Vasilescu, Cristea	Lieutenant colonel, Rumanian Army. For services in connection with the American Military Mission in Hungary.
Shir	RUSSIAN
MESTCHERINOFF, SERGE A	Lieutenant colonel, Russian Army.  As deputy military attaché of Russia in France from March, 1917, to April, 1918, he demonstrated qualities of initiative, energy, and ability. Later, as attaché to the King of Montenegro, he showed marked devotion in furthering the friendly relation of the two Governments. He has rendered valuable services to the allied cause.
	SERBIAN
*Mishich, Zhivoyin R—Serbia. G. O. No. 30, W. D., 1921.	Field marshal, Commander in Chief of Serbian Army. For services to the allied cause during the World War. Posthumously awarded. Medal forwarded to the military attaché, American Embassy, Belgrade, Serbia, for delivery to the next of kin.

MEMBERS OF THE ARMY, IN LIEU OF THE CERTIFICATE OF MERIT

[Distinguished-service medal issued in lieu of the certificate of merit under the provisions of the act of Congress approved July 9, 1918]

ABBOTT, GEORGE F.....R.—Worcester, Mass. B.—Brandon, Vt.

B-Little Big Horn River, Mont.

Corporal, Company G, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in action at Tientsin, China, July 13, 1900.

AKERS, THOMAS PR.—Lexington, Ky. B.—Lexington, Ky.	Sergeant, 1st class, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the China relief expedition in China, Aug. 12, 1900.
Albertson, Edward JR.—Sante Fe, N. Mex. B.—Corpus Christi, Tex.	Private, Company F, 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry. For distinguished service in battle on July 1, 1898, at Santiago, Cuba.
ALDRIDGE, JOHN SR—Watauga County, N. C. B—Mitchell County, N. C.	Corporal, Company D, 19th Infantry, U. S. Army. For gallant conduct in action at Mount Bud-Dajo, Jolo, P. I., Mar. 7, 1906.
ALEXANDER, JAMESR.—Monroe, Ohio.B.—Ohio.	First sergeant, Troop A, 4th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in engagement at Rio Chico Nueva Ecya, P. I., Dcc. 6, 1900.
ALLEN, LUCIUS A	Private, Company D, 12th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For most distinguished courage and bravery beyond the call of duty in continuing his efforts to save a drowning comrade after having been seized and almost drowned himself in the Rio Grande River, near Donna, Tex., May 27, 1914.
ARNDT, ALVIN	First sergeant, Troop I, 4th Cavalty, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in action near Nozagaray, P. I., Feb. 15, 1899.
Ash, John W.————————————————————————————————————	Sergeant, Company E, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action against Pulajanes at Tabon-Tabon, Leyte, P. I., July 24, 1906.
Askew, Preston	Corporal, Company E, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in action against Pulajanes at Tabon-Tabon, Leyte, P. I., July 24, 1906.
BAKER, WILLIAM BR.—New York, N. Y. B.—New York, N. Y.	Corporal, Astor Battery, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Manila, P. I., Aug. 13, 1898.
BANDIRA. R—Mindanao, P. I. B—Mindanao, P. I.	Private, 51st Company, Philippine Scouts. For distinguished gallantry in action against hostile Moros, at Mount Bagsak, Jolo, P. I., June 15, 1913.
BARNES, WALTER K. R—Birmingham, Ala. B—Clay Center, Kans.	Acting hospital steward, Hospital Corps, U. S. Army. On June 3, 1900, at Province of Bulacan, P. I., during an engagement with insurgents he went forward to the firing line and applied first-aid dresssing to a soldier who had been wounded fatally.
Barnhouse, John L R—Fairmount, Ind. B—Fairmount, Ind.	Private, Company F, 17th Infantry, U. S. Army. For gallantry in action at Tempitan, Mindanao, P. I. on May 9, 1904.
BARRETT, MICHAEL	Sergeant, Company A, 7th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Bassett, Daniel S	Private, Company F, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at San Felipe Church, El Deposito, Manila Province, P. I., June 22, 1899.
Beasley, Halbert M. R—Kinston, N. C. B—Granville County, N. C.	Sergeant, Hospital Corps, U. S. Army. Being injured himself he rendered aid to others injured in a wreck at Buckatunna, Miss., Oct. 19, 1913.
BELL, FRED R-NR. B-Ulster County, N. Y.	Sergeant, Battery H, 3d Artillery, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the campaign near Malalos, P. I., Mar. 25–31, 1899.
BELMONT, JOHN R—Haverhill, Mass. B—Haverhill, Mass.	Private, Company B, 23d Infantry, U. S. Army.  For heroic efforts to his own extreme exhaustion and danger, which resulted in saving a comrade from drowning at Galveston, Tex., June 18, 1914.
BERNHEIM, ALFRED A.R.—Sacketts Harbor, N. Y.	Sergeant, Company D, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in battle of Tientsin, China, July 13, 1900.

Biefer, Albert R—New York, N. Y. B—Switzerland.	First sergeant, Company G, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the battle of Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
BINCKLI, FREDERICR—New York, N. Y. B—Germany.	Private, Company H, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Bowden, William H	Corporal, Company C, 27th Infantry, U. S. Army. Rescued a fellow soldier from drowning in the Wisconsin River, Wis on June 25, 1912.
Bradford, Claude L R—Port Hudson, La. B—Port Hudson, La.	Sergeant, Company B, 43d Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For coolness, bravery, and good judgment in action against bolomen near Alang Alang, Leyte, P. I., Mar. 29, 1900.
Broadus, Lewis	First sergeant, Company M, 25th Infantry, U. S. Army. For coolness, presence of mind and bravery in saving lives of others at Fort Niobrara, Nebr., on July 3, 1906.
BRYAN, WILLIAM R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y.	Sergeant, 69th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For voluntarily entering a closed place and removing sacks of powder that were in close proximity to burning powder and smoldering débris, at the risk of his own life, thereby preventing further disaster after the explosion, at Fort Mon- roe, Va., July 21, 1910.
BUGBEE, FRED WR—Tucson, Ariz. B—Oakland, Calif.	Private, Troop A, 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Capron, Harry WR-NR. B-Waverly, Iowa.	Corporal, Troop B, 7th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For extraordinary gallantry in action at Wounded Knee Creek, S. Dak, Dec. 29, 1890.
Сніск, Leon II	Sergeant, Battery H, 3d Artillery, U. S. Army. For risking his life in order to check a fire at Manila, P. I., Feb. 22, 1899.
CHISUM, JENNER Y R—Jackson, Tenn. B—Jackson, Tenn.	First sergeant, Troop B, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in twice attempting at the risk of his own life to rescue a fellow soldier from drowning in Wild Cat Creek at Fort Meade, S. Dak., May 25, 1907.
CLARK, JOHN J	Quartermaster sergeant, 3d Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
CLARK, ORION L R—Nemaha, Nebr. B—Nemaha, Nebr.	Private, Company B, 2d Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
CLARKE, HENRY N	Private, Troop D, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in a fire in the troop stables at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., on Aug. 12, 1892.
COMBS, KENRICK B	Private, Troop F, 5th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For gallantry in action at Milk River, Colo., Sept. 29, 1879.
COOK, WILLIAM CR-Owosso, Mich.B-Owosso, Mich.	Private, Company C, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
CORBETT, JOHN E	Recruit, Field Artillery, U. S. Army.  For distinguished service on June 22, 1912, at Fort Slocum, N. Y., for rescuing a fellow soldier from drowning at the risk of his own life.
Cox, Roy F.  R—Junction City, Kans. B—Manhattan, Kans.	Corporal, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. For highly meritorious services in voluntarily traveling about 30 miles during a severe blizzard, rescuing a civilian from freezing near Lake Minto, and dragging by sled 65 miles to Fairbanks, Alaska, Feb. 26-29, 1908.
Craven, Ralph G R—Siler City, N. C. B—Beaufort, N. C.	Color sergeant, 6th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action at Mount Bud-Dajo, Jolo, P. I., Mar. 7, 1906.
Crosby, Scott	Private, Company A, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Crowell, Leon R—Monterey, Mexico. B—Portland, Ind.	Private, Company B, 4th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action near Dasmarinas, Luzon, P. I., June 19, 1899.
DAVIS, EDWARDR—San Antonio, Tex. B—Nashville, Tenn.	Private, Troop H, 9th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.

DEAVEY, WILLIAM H	Sergeant, Company H, 3d Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at Almacenes River, Luzon, P. I., Dec. 3, 1899.
DELANEY, MICHAEL JR.—Portland, Me. B—Portland, Me.	Private, 24th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For bravery in rescuing a comrade from drowning at Fort McKinley, Me., on Apr. 30, 1913.
DILLMAN, WILLIAM R—Terre Haute, Ind. B—Milton, Pa.	Quartermaster sergeant, Company $\Lambda$ , 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, on July 1, 1898.
Donaldson, Lorenzo D. R.—Fremont County, Iowa. B.—Fremont County, Iowa.	Private, Company F, 32d Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For distinguished gallantry in action at Abucay, Luzon, P. I., May 25, 1900.
DONNELLY, JAMES	Private, Company G, 18th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at the fire at Fort Clark, Tex., Mar. 31, 1892.
Doyle, Lawrence R-Newark, N. J. B-New York, N. Y.	Corporal, Company G, 11th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at the Malabang River, Mindanao, P. I., Aug. 2, 1902.
Dozier, Ernest R—San Francisco, Calif. B—East Oakland, Calif.	First-class sergeant, U. S. Volunteer Signal Corps. For distinguished service in action near Manila, P. I., Aug. 5, 1898.
ELDER, ROBERT WR.—Boston, Mass. B—Athol, Mass.	First sergeant, Troop L, 14th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For exceptional courage and daring in action at Cotto Pangpang, P. I., Feb. 14, 1904.
ELLIOTT, HENRY W R—Indianapolis, Ind. B—Indianapolis, Ind.	Corporal, Troop II, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
EVERSOLE, JOSEPH	Corporal, Company H, 8th Infantry, U. S. Army. For saving a fellow soldier from drowning at the risk of his own life at Nagasaki, Japan, Sept. 7, 1917.
FARMER, LYLE G. R-Grand Meadow, Minn. B-Mears, Mich.	Corporal, Company I, 43d Infantry, U. S. Army. For saving Miss Eleanor Bourgeois from drowning in the artificial lake, dis- regarding personal risk and danger. Place: City Park, New Orleans, La. Date: Apr. 27, 1918.
FEARINGTON, GEORGE WR-Durham, N. C. B-Durham County, N. C.	Private, Troop I, 9th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For excellent conduct and heroic service at Fort Duchesne, Utah, Dec. 13, 1899, when the troop barracks were destroyed by fire, having taken post on the peak of the seriously threatened building, remaining there in spite of the great heat, applying water until the danger was over.
FEARNLEY, ARTHUR R—Oklahoma City, Okla. B—Wichita, Kans.	Corporal, 75th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For courage and tenacity of purpose in the face of dangers both known and nuknown while scarching for a comrade who had been lost in the Koolan Range, Oahu, Hawaii, Apr. 8, 1914.
FELDCAMP, GEORGE R—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Sedamsville, Ohio.	First sergeant, Company E, 12th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action against insurgents at Barrio of Mazambique, Ilocos Norte, P. I., Sept. 22, 1900.
FINERTY, WILLIAM MR.—Napoleon, Ohio. B.—Napoleon, Ohio	Corporal, Company E, 2d Infantry, U. S. Army. For most distinguished conduct at Santiago, Cuba, July 2, 1898.
Fisher, Robert LR.—Augusta, Ga. B.—Augusta, Ga.	Private, Battery A, 1st Field Artillery, U. S. Army. For saving a comrade from drowning in Medicine Creek, near Fort Sill, Okla. June 29, 1907.
FLACH, JOHN	Post commissary sergeant, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in Boston Harbor, Mass., Jan. 3, 1900.
FLANNERY, DAVID T	First-class private, Company E, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in action at Big Bend, Luzon, P. I., Oct. 2, 1899.
FLYNN, EDWARDR.—Cincinnati, Ohio. B.—Ireland.	Quartermaster sergeant, Company G, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Fortescue, Granville Roland At Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898. R—New York, N. Y. B—New York, N. Y.	Corporal, Troop E, 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
	The state of the s

Gannon, William F......R—Lowell, Mass. B—Lowell, Mass.

Musician, Company L, 8th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action against Pulajanes near La Paz, Leyte, P. I., Dec. 5, 1906.

GOODE, BENJAMIN H	Private, Company H, 24th Infantry, U.S. Army. For most distinguished gallantry in action at Naguilian, Luzon, P. I., Dec. 7, 1899.
GOULD, CLARENCE S	First sergeant, Troop C, 1st Cavalry, U. S. Army. For gallant conduct in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
GOULD, FRED H	Corporal, Company H, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in operations at Oras, Samar, P. I., January and February, 1902.
Grogan, Michael	Corporal, Company B, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Gunn, James C R—Eureka, Tex. B—Eureka, Tex.	Sergeant, 1st class, Hospital Corps, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Peruke-Utig, Jolo, P. I., on May 3, 1905.
HARRIS, JOHN CR—Chicago, Ill. B—Canada.	Private, Company L, 4th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the engagement near Dasmarinas, Luzon, P. I., June 19, 1899.
Harrison, Fred A	Private, Troop C, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in engagement near San Nicolas, Cavite Province, P. I., Dec. 31, 1901.
HAWK, WILMER HARRISONR—New Brighton, Pa. B—New Brighton, Pa.	Cook, 69th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For voluntarily entering a closed place and removing sacks of powder that were in close proximity to burning powder and smoldering débris, at the right of his own life, thereby preventing further disaster after the explosion, at Fort Monroe, Va., July 21, 1910.
HAWKINS, GEORGE PR.—Coldenham, N. Y. B.—Greenwood, Nebr.	Private, Troop K, 14th Cavalry, U. S. Army.  For gallant conduct on Jan. 29, 1910, in rescuing at the risk of his own life an officer from drowning in the Quinqua River, Luzon, P. I.
HECHT, HERMANR.—Coryville, Ohio. B.—Germany.	First sergeant, Company H, 4th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
HEINZE, JULIUSR.—Minneapolis, Minn. B—Germany.	Private, Hospital Corps, U. S. A. For distinguished service in the fight on the Gandara River, Samar, P. I., Oct. 16, 1901.
HENNECKE, FRED	Sergeant, Company L, 8th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action against Pulajanes, near the village of La Paz, on the island of Leyte, P. I., Dec. 5, 1906.
HERBERT, THOMAS II	Corporal, Troop E, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Hickey, Edward J	Private, U. S. M. A., detachment Army Service men, Quartermaster department, U. S. Army.  For rescuing the body of a drowning boy at West Point, N. Y., Nov. 28, 1904.
HICKMAN, TAYLOR B. R-Knoxville, Tenn. B-Sevier County, Tenn.	Private, Company C, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Tientsin, China, July 13, 1900.
HILYARD, SAMUEL W.R.—Louisville, Ky.B.—Louisville, Ky.	Artificer, Company E, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
HOGAN, JAMES E R—Chicago, Ill. B—Boston, Mass.	First-class sergeant, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. For energy and good judgment displayed in administration of relief to, and safe transportation of three badly frozen enlisted men of Signal Corps from Summit to North Fork, Alaska, Jan. 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7, 1906.
HOGAN, THOMASR-NR	Private, Troop E, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army. For bravery in action with hostile Utcs at Milk Creek, Colo., Sept. 29, 1879.
Houston, Adam R—Pulaski County, Va. B—Pulaski County, Va.	First sergeant, Troop C, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Howe, Charles S	Sergeant, Company D, 17th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the engagement near San Isidro, Luzon, P. I., July 29, 1900.
Hughes, David L. R—Tucson, Ariz. B—Tucson, Ariz.	Sergeant, Troop B, 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, on July 1, 1898.
HUMPHREY, CHARLES L	Private, Company H, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the battle of Tientsin, China, July 13, 1900.

	000
Hunsaker, Irvin L R—Cobden, III. B—Cobden, III.	First sergeant, Company H, 18th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in battle at Jaro, Panay, P. I., Feb. 12, 1899.
HUNTER, CHARLES	Sergeant, Company E, 12th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action against insurgents at Barrio of Mazambique, Hocos Norte, P. I., Sept. 22, 1900.
HYATT, THADDEUS R. R—Quallatown, N. C. B—Jackson County, N. C.	Corporal, Company L, 19th Infantry, U. S. Army. For capturing two of the worst criminals in Porto Rico, Nov. 8, 1898, near Guay-anilla, P. R.
JACKSON, PERRY B	Corporal, Company K, 6th Infantry, U. S. Army, For exceptional bravery in action at Mount Bud-Dajo, Jolo, P. I., Mar. 7, 1906.
JACKSON, PETER R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y.	Corporal, Company G. 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Janowski, Frank	Artificer, Company D, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
JENSEN, JULIUS	Sergeant major, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
JOHNSON, SANT	Corporal, Troop G, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at a fire at Fort Apache, Ariz., Apr. 12, 1904.
Johnson, Thomas R-Lexington, Ky. B-Woodford County, Ky.	First sergeant, Company I, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army, For pursuing and disarming an enlisted man bent on murdering his first ser- geant at Camp McGrath, Batangas, P. I., Aug. 22, 1912.
JONES, FRED B. R-Nough, Tenn. B-Cocke County, Tenn.	Sergeant, 109th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For attempting to rescue a civilian from drowning at Fort Greble, R. I., May 28, 1907.
Jones, Willie R.—R—Atlanta, Ga. B—Atlanta, Ga.	Private, Battery A, 4th Field Artillery, U. S. Army. For saving a comrade from drowning at the risk of his own life at Vera Cruz, Mexico, on Sept. 1, 1914.
JORDAN, JOSEPH K	Private, Company II, 43d Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For distinguished service in the attack by insurgents at Calbayog, Samar, P. I., Mar. 26, 1900.
KAINE, PATRICK	First sergeant, Company D, 3d Infantry, U. S. Army. For saving a comrade from drowning at the risk of his own life at Leech Lake, Minn., June 16, 1893.
KALBER, LOUIS	Corporal, Company G, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army, For distinguished service at Singalan, P. I., Aug. 9, 1899.
KARSTEN, CHARLES	First sergeant, Troop D, 1st Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
KEISTER, GUY AR-Marion, Ind. B-Tipton County, Ind.	Private, Company F, 8th Infantry, U. S. Army. For saving a comrade from drowning at Lakeside, Calif., May 7, 1911.
KELLY, MICHAEL. R-Lewiston, Me. B-West Minot, Me.	First sergeant, Company C, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
KENNEDY, CECIL W	Private, Troop B, 12th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished conduct in passing through a zone infested with bandits and carrying a message to his troop commander after having had two horses shot from under him at Progreso, Tex., Sept. 24, 1915, while serving as private, Troop B, 12th Cavalry, U. S. Army.
KUNGENSMITH, SAMUEL. R—Greensburg, Pa. B—West Newton, Pa.	Private, Troop F, 5th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For gallantry in action at Milk River, Colo., Sept. 29, 1879.
KOENIG, EDWARD R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y.	Private, Company G, 8th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service on July 13, 1905, at the Governors Island Dock, New York, N. Y., in saving from drowning, at the risk of his own life, a civilian who had jumped into the bay with the intention of committing suicide.

First sergeant, Company F, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service near Tarlac, P. I., Nov. 19, 1899.

LEAKINS, JOHN ADAM R—Taneytown, Md. B—Libertytown, Md.	Private, Company C, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
LEONARD, CHARLES L	Hospital steward, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in the assault on Fort Bacolod, Lake Lanao, Mindanao, P. I., Apr. 8, 1903.
Lewis, Oliver	Sergeant, 73d Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For saving a girl from drowning at the risk of his own life at Fort Monroe, Va., July 27, 1915.
Lewis, Thomas	Private, Troop E, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous bravery before hostile Utes at Milk Creek, Colo, Sept. 29, 1879.
LIESMANN, FREDERICK JR.—Dixon, Mo. B.—Pierce City, Mo.	Corporal, Company B, 16th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898. Oak-leaf cluster. Sergeant, Company M, 38th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For most conspicuous gallantry in action near San Juan de Bocboc, Luzon, P. I., July 1, 1900.
LIPSCOMB, SPENCER K	Corporal, Company G, 14th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in action near Manila, P. I., on Feb. 5, 1899.
Lortus, John	Private, Company C, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Long, John R—Baltimore, Md. B—Baltimore, Md.	Artificer, Battery F, 3d Artillery, U. S. Army. For services rendered during fire at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., on Aug. 12, 1892.
Longacre, Benjamin FR—Lewistown, Pa. B—Mifflintown, Pa.	First sergeant, Troop F, 12th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For saving a comrade from drowning at the risk of his own life at Louisville, Colo., July 8, 1914.
Loomis, William ER.—Montrose, Pa. B.—Forest Lake, Pa.	Corporal, Company B, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
McBride, John	Sergeant, Troop A, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Manimani River, Cuba, July 23, 1898.
McComyn, Richard HR-NR. B-Ireland.	Private, Troop A, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in engagement at San Juan, Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
McCutcheon, James	Private, Company G, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
McDonald, Frank R	Trumpeter, Troop L, 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
McDonald, John R—Sugar Notch, Pa. B—Shenandoah, Pa.	First sergeant, 77th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For saving from drowning an employee of the United States Engineer Department, at Otis Wharf, Boston, Mass., June 24, 1905.
McDonald, Wilbert L	l Sergeant, Company D, 19th Infantry, U. S. Army. For gallant conduct in action at Mount Bud-Dajo, Jolo, P. I., Mar. 7, 1906.
McGurty, Frank P. R-New York, N. Y. B-Worcester, Mass.	Private, Company E, 22d Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service during the San Francisco fire and earthquake, April, 1906.
McMillen, James L	Private, Company H, 12th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
McNarney, Frank T R—Lock Haven, Pa. B—McElhattan, Pa.	Sergeant, Company H, 10th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Mahoney, Denis	Private, Company I, 36th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For gallantry in action near Guagua, P. I., Aug. 16, 1899.
Malone, John R—Anacostia, D. C. B—New York, N. Y.	Corporal, 47th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For rescuing with assistance, a comrade from drowning at Fort Washington, Md., Feb. 6, 1910.
Merdinger, George R—NR. B—Germany.	First sergeant, Company H, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.

MILLER, RICHARDR.—Louisville, Ky. B.—Madison County, Ky.	Scrgeant, Troop F, 9th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the engagement at Tagbac, Albay, P. I., Dec. 17 1900.
Moll, Julius	Sergeant major, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Moore, John I	Sergeant, Company C, 27th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the assault on Fort Bacolod, Lake Lanao, Mindanao, P. I., Apr. 8, 1903.
Morrison, Edward W	Private, 1st class, Hospital Corps, U. S. Army. For rendering first aid to wounded comrades under fire of hostile Moros at Mamaya Peak, P. I., Dec. 15, 1913.
Morrow, Bishop L	Sergeant, Company I, 28th Infantry, U. S. Army.  For bravery in saving the life of a wounded comrade by defending him against the treacherous attack of three Moros, all of whom he killed or wounded, near Pantar on the Higan-Lake Lanao Military Road, P. I., May 1, 1963.
Mosely, Thomas R—Brandenburg, Ky. B—Brandenburg, Ky	Private, Hospital Corps, U. S. Army. For distinguished galiantry in action against hostile Moros at Mount Bagsak, Jolo, P. I., June 11, 1913.
MULHERN, BARTHOLOMEWR-NR. B-Ireland.	Sergeant, Troop E, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
MURPHY, MICHAEL J	First sergeant, Company D, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Myers, Edwin R—Brooklyn, N. Y. B—Bayard, Ohio.	Corporal, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at Siassi, P. I., May 11, 1905.
NAGEL, THEODORE R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Germany.	First sergeant, Company A, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
NEAL, LOYD R—Darlington, S. C. B—Darlington, S. C.	Musician, Battery H, 3d Artillery, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action near Manila, P. I., July 31, 1898.
Nichols, Edward T	First sergeant, Company D, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
O'CONNOR, JOHN C R—Jersey City, N. J. B—Ireland.	First sergeant, Battery G, 3d Artillery, U. S. Army. For distinguished services in the campaign in the Philippine Islands, July 31, 1898, to Jan. 1, 1901.
ODEN, GEORGE JR.—Los Angeles, Calif. R.—Germany.	Sergeant major, 36th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For distinguished gallantry in action near Mangaperen, Luzon, P. I., Nov. 28, 1899.
ODEN, OSCAR NR—San Francisco, Calif. B—Eaton County, Mich.	Trumpeter, Troop I, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Odin, Arthur S. R.—Syracuse, N. Y. B.—Syracuse, N. Y.	Private, Company I, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the action near Zapote River, P. I., June 13, 1899.
O'KEEFFE, DANIEL	Private, Battery B, 7th Artillery, U. S. Army.  For heroic conduct in rescuing from drowning a corporal of his battery who fell overboard from the tugboat Alert in Long Island Sound, Apr. 13, 1900, while the boat was plying between New London, Comn., and the islands.
O'KEEFE, JOHN P- R-New York, N. Y. B-New York, N. Y.	Corporal, Company M, 2d Infantry, U. S. Army.  For imperiling his life in rescuing a drowning militiaman at American Lake, Wash., Aug. 19, 1908.
Olsen, Stanley R. R.—Schenectady, N. Y. B.—Frankfort, N. Y.	Private, 1st class, Troop H, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army.  For distinguished service in saving from death by drowning Private Emil A.  Saboslay, Troop B, 6th Cavalry, at Espia, Chihuahua, Mexico, May 17, 1916.
Olson, Roy C. R.—Kansas City, Mo. B.—Kansas City, Mo.	Corporal, Company D, 19th Infantry, U. S. Army. For gallant conduct in action at Mount Bud-Dajo, Jolo, P. I., Mar. 7, 1906, in willingly and unhesitatingly responding to a call for a few men to occupy an exposed point in advance of the line in plain view and within 25 or 30 yards of the enemy, from which point he kept up a most effective fire until the assault was made.
Olsson, Henry	Corporal, Battery E, 1st Artillery, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the action at San Cristobal Bridge, P. I., July 30, 1899.

O'REILLY, JAMES F.  R—Westville, N. Y.  B—Westville, N. Y.	Corporal, Company B, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
O'ROURKE, JOHNR—NR. B—Ireland.	First sergeant, Company C, 17th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
PARKER, JESSE E	Artificer, Company D, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For braye and faithful conduct (assisting a wounded officer to a place of safety) while exposed to a severe fire at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
PARKS, CHARLES E	Private, 69th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army, For voluntarily entering a closed place and removing sacks of powder that were in close proximity to burning powder and smoldering debris, at the risk of his own life, thereby preventing further disaster after the explosion at Fort Monroe, Va., July 21, 1910.
Paschal, Jesse J	Private, 14th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For voluntarily imperiling his own life in the rescue of fellow soldiers at Fort Screven, Ga., July 4, 1906.
PAYNE, WILLIAM  R—Chattanooga, Tenn. B—Nashville, Tenn.	Sergeant, Troop E, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
PHILBIN, PATRICK	Sergeant, Company L, 15th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the action at the barrio of San Juan, P. I., Dec. 31, 1900.
Pitts, William C R—Mineral Point, Wis. B—Milwaukee, Wis.	Private, Company F, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For saving from drowning, near Florence, Ariz., a citizen of Florence, Ariz., on Mar. 7, 1908.
POTTER, HARRY E. R—Monticello, Mc. B—Penobscot, Me.	First sergeant, Company A, 37th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For distinguished conduct June 6, 1990, near Majajay, Laguna Province, Luzon, P. I., in exposing himself to the fire of the enemy at close range in order to remove a wounded comrade to shelter.
PRICE, WILSON C	Private, Company F, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in battle of Tientsin, China, July 13, 1900.
Pumphrey, George WR.—Baltimore, Md. B.—Anne Arundel County, Md.	Corporal, Troop II, 9th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Rевр, Josefu E R—Huntingdon, Pa. B—Drafton, Pa.	Private, Company L, 47th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For distinguished gallantry in action at Bulusan, Luzon, P. I., Nov. 11, 1909.
RICHARDSON, HURLEY OR—Lorley, Md. B—Berlin, Md.	Sergeant, Troop C, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous bravery and efficiency in action against hostile Moros on Patian Island, P. I., July 4, 1909.
RICHMOND, CHARLES CR—Toledo, Ohio. B—White House, Ohio.	First sergeant, Company L, 30th Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For distinguished gallantry in action on Analaon Mountain, Luzon, P. 1., Mar. 26, 1900.
ROSE, FRANKLINR.—St. Louis, Mo. B.—Fulton County, Ohio.	Post commissary sergeant, U. S. Army. For distinguished service during the cyclone at Galveston, Tex., Sept. 8, 1900.
ROSSER, HENRY R—Stork, N. C. B—Chatham County, N. C.	Corporal, Company A, 17th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the attack on Angeles, P. I., Oct. 16, 1899.
ROWBOTTOM, HENRY TR—Valdez, Alaska. B—England.	For rescuing two soldiers elinging to a capsized canoe in the Yukon River, Alaska, on July 3, 1913.
RYAN, THOMAS R—Baltimore, Md. B—Ireland.	First sergeant, Troop K, 1st Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Las Guasimas, Cnba, June 24, 1898.
Ryder, William	Sergeant, Company G, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in the battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SACKNUS, HENRY WR—Cleveland, Ohio. B—Cleveland, Ohio.	Private, Troop C, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For exceptional gallantry in an engagement at Talisay, P. I., Mar. 29, 1901.
SATCHELL, JAMES R—Eastville, Va. B—Eastville, Va.	Corporal, Company A, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SCALETTA, PAUL R—San Jose, Calif. B—San Jose, Calif.	Corporal, Company B, 159th Infantry, 40th Division, U. S. Army. For repeatedly entering a dangerous surf and saving the lives of other soldiers at the risk of his own life at Ocean Beach, Calif., May 5, 1918.

Schuck, William J	Sergeant, Company K, 6th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Bobong, Negros, P. I., July 19, 1899.
SCHWARZ, ADOLPHUS A	Private, Troop K, 3d Cavalry, U. S. Army.  For excellent conduct and heroic service during the burning of a troop barracks at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., Apr. 22, 1896.
SELMIRE, GEORGE	Sergeant, Company H, 7th Infantry, U. S. Army, For distinguished service in battle at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SEUFERT, LOUIS P	Corporal, Company H, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SHADDEAU, HENRY DR.—Swan Creek, Mich. B.—Owosso, Mich.	Corporal, Company F, 17th Infantry, U. S. Army. For exceptional and conspicuous bravery in action at Simpiton, Mindanao, P. I., on May 8, 1904.
SHAFFER, SAMUEL WR.—Collington, Md. B—Baltimore, Md.	Sergeant major, 7th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle of El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SHEWBRIDGE, SMITH MR.—Cincinnati, Ohio. B—Charlestown, W. Va.	First sergeant, Company B, 17th Infantry, U. S. Army. For gallantry in action at Tamparan, Mindanao, P. I., Apr. 5, 1904.
SILLITO, LOUIS A	Private, Company C, 3d Infantry, U. S. Volunteers. For volunteering to nurse and nursing yellow fever patients at Guantanamo, Cuba, Sept. 1, 1898.
Simpson, Alfred G R—Columbia, Ind. B—Fayette County, Ind.	Private, Company C, 3d Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 2, 1898.
SLOAN, JAMES. R—Salt Lake City, Utah. B—Meadville, Pa.	Private, Company G, 16th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SMITH, GEORGE R—Edgefield, Tenn. B—De Kalb, Tenn.	Corporal, Company A, 7th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SMITH, JACK	Lance Corporal, Company E, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous bravery in action at Arroyo de Lanao, Samar, P. I., June 4, 1905.
SMITH, LUCHIOUS	Private, Troop D, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SMITH, ROBERT MR-NR. B-Detroit, Mich.	Corporal, Company B, 7th Infantry, U. S. Army, For distinguished service in battle at El Caney, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SMITH, WESLEY W	Private, Company D, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
SMITH, WILLIE B	Corporal, Battery O, 1st Artillery, U. S. Army. For distinguished service during the cyclone at Galveston, Tex., Sept. 8, 1900.
SMYTH, CHARLES E.R.—Chicago, III.B.—New York, N. Y.	Sergeant, Troop A, 14th Cavalry, U.S. Army.  For manner in which he handled his detachment of 8 men while surrounded by and under fire of almost 100 Mexican bandits at Glen Springs, Tex., May 5, 1916.
STAPLES, FRANK R-Brooklyn, N. Y. B-Brooklyn, N. Y.	Private, Company F, 27th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished gallantry in the assault on Fort Pitacus, P. I., May 4, 1903.
STEGER, EDWARD	Private, Company C, 1st Infantry, U. S. Army. Assisted in rescuing a fellow soldier from drowning at the risk of his own life in the sea near Haleiwa, Hawaii, Oct. 22, 1914.
STEVENS, JACOB W	First sergeant, Company K, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in engagement near Santa Ana, P. I., Oct. 6, 1899.
STEWART, CLYDE H	Corporal, Company F, 7th Infantry, U. S. Army. For saving a child from drowning at Fort Wayne, Mich., Sept. 7, 1908.
Stockfleth, Henry R-NR. B-Germany.	Corporal, Battery H, 3d Artillery, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action near Manila, P. I., July 31, 1898.

B-New Orleans, La.

STOKES, EARNEST	Private, Company F, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For most distinguished gallantry in action at Naguilian, Luzon, P. I., Dec. 7, 1899.
STOKES, GEORGE P R-Rocky Ford, Colo. B-Rogers, Ark.	Private, Company I, 21st Infantry, U. S. Army. For marked courage and intelligence in saving a comrade from drowning at Lake Lanao, P. I., Dec. 12, 1909.
TEETER, MILO CR.—New Albany, Pa. B—New Albany, Pa.	Private, Company E, 19th Infantry, U. S. Army. Rescued a comrade from drowning at Penaranda, P. I., on Feb. 22, 1912.
THORNTON, WILLIAM——————————————————————————————————	Corporal, Company G, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
TOBIN, WILLIAM J.R.NR.B.Fort Warren, Mass.	First sergeant, Battery G, 7th Artillery, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in Boston Harbor, Mass., Jan. 3, 1900.
Tom, Jacob W	Quartermaster sergeant, Company D, 19th Infantry, U. S. Army. For gallant conduct in action at Mount Bud-Dajo, Jolo, P. I., Mar. 7, 1906.
Tominson, Frederick R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Memphis, Tenn.	Corporal, 138th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. Rescued the body of a comrade from a burning launch on the Pasig River Manila, P. I., Sept. 9, 1912.
TURNER, CLEMON	Private, Company K, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For rescuing a fellow soldier from drowning at the risk of his own life, near Camp McGrath, P. I., Nov. 12, 1914.
TURNER, VICTOR	Musician, Company C, 17th Infantry, U. S. Army. For meritorious conduct in saving the life of a drowning comrade at the risk of his own at Sweetwater Creek, Ga., June 29, 1909.
Van Campen, Hiel R—Jeffersonville, Ind. B—Jeffersonville, Ind.	Private, Company E, 1st Infantry, U. S. Army. For his assistance in saving a comrade from drowning at great risk of his own life near Haleiwa, Hawaiiau Islands, Oct. 22, 1914.
VENUS, CHARLES  R—Lawrenceville, III.  B—Lawrenceville, III.	Sergeant, Company I, 23d Infantry, U. S. Army. For exceptional courage in swimming and wading to shore from a capsized boat and guiding a rescue boat to the relief of three comrades whom he had left on the upturned hull in Galveston Bay, Tex., June 29, 1914.
VILLUMSEN, HANS R—Philadelphia, Pa. B—Denmark.	Sergeant, Company D, 10th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
VOLEMAR, WALTER S	Sergeant, Signal Corps, U. S. Army. For distinguished services in subduing a fire which threatened to destroy public property, at Fort Sam Houston, Tex., Mar. 15, 1898.
WALKER, ARTHUR L., Jr	Private, Headquarters Company, 301st Infantry, 76th Division, U. S. Army For saving the life of a fellow soldier when the latter was thrown into the water by the capsizing of a cance, at the risk of his own life, at Robbin. Pond, Camp Devens, Mass., May 4, 1918.
WALKER, JOHN	Corporal, Troop D, 10th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
WARNER, JAMES H R-NR. B-Tioga County, N. Y.	First sergeant, Company D, 4th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action near Dasmarinas, P. I., June 19, 1899.
WEBER, ANTON_ R—New York, N. Y. B—Switzerland.	Quartermaster sergeant, Company II, 13th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
Weiss, George R—St. Louis, Mo. B—Prussia.	Sergeant, Troop F, 4th Cavalry, U. S. Army. For gallant conduct in action at Mount Bud-Dajo, Jolo, P. I., Mar. 7, 1906.
WHELAN, JOHN R—New York, N. Y. B—Ireland.	Sergeant, Company F, 27th Infantry, U. S. Army. For conspicuous gallantry in action at Bayang, P. I., May 2, 1902.
WHITE, JOSEPH R—NR.	Musician, Company B, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service at the Rio Grande River, Cabanatuan, P. I., Nov

8, 1900.

Private, Troop E, 6th Cavalry, U. S. Army.
For distinguished service in unhesitatingly plunging into the Palico River,
P. I., Sept. 2, 1901, and at the risk of his own life attempting to rescue from drowning Sergt. John W. Harris, of said troop.

WIGLEY, DORPHIN CR.—Pine Creek, Pa. B.—Pine Creek, Pa.	Private, 69th Company, Coast Artillery Corps, U. S. Army. For voluntarily entering a closed place and removing sacks of powder that were in close proximity to burning powder and smoldering débris, at the risk of his own life, thereby preventing further disaster after the explosion, at Fort Monroe, Va., July 21, 1910.
WILKINS, GEORGE WR—Sioux City, Iowa. B—Sioux City, Iowa.	Sergeant, Company G, 39th Infantry, U. S. Voluuteers. For distinguished gallantry in action at San Cristobal River, Luzon, P. I., on Jan. 1, 1900.
WILLFORD, JAMES WR—Urbana, Ohio. B—Urbana, Ohio.	Sergeant, Company G, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For great coolness and good judgment displayed in commanding a battery when ambushed by natives near Basey, Samar, P. I., Sept. 1, 1901.
WILLIAMS, RICHARD R—Dayton, Ohio. B—Cincinnati, Ohio.	Corporal, Company B, 24th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
WILLIAMS, THOMAS SR—NR. B—Glasgow, Ky.	Private, Company E, 2d Infantry, U. S. Army. For most distinguished conduct at Santiago, Cuba, July 2, 1898.
WINTER, JOHN GR—San Antonio, Tex. B—Waco, Tex.	Private, Troop F, 1st U. S. Volunteer Cavalry. For distinguished service in battle at Santiago, Cuba, July 1, 1898.
WINTERS, OSCAR F R—NR. B—Flintstone, Md.	Corporal, Company F, 9th Infantry, U. S. Army. For distinguished service in action at Santiago, Cuba, July 2, 1898.
Young, John CR.NR. B.—Canada.	Sergeant major, 3d Infantry, U. S. Army. For rescuing a comrade from drowning in Minnesota River near Fort Snelling, Minn., Nov. 19, 1896. Oak-leaf cluster. For distinguished service in battle at El Cancy, Cuba, July 1, 1898.

ADDITIONAL COPIES

OF THIS PUBLICATION MAY BE PROCURED FROM THE SUPERINTENDENT OF DOCUMENTS GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE WASHINGTON, D. C.

$1.35 PER COPY

 $\nabla$

